Australians Invade Balikpapan Oil Port; B-29s Fire Jap Cities

JUL 2 1945

MACARTHUR LEADS TROOPS ASHORE ON COAST OF BORNEO

DAVIS

Move Splits East Indies, Completes Tactical Control of South Pacific.

LOSSES ARE LIGHT

U. S. Seventh Fleet Covers Invasion Forces After Record Bombardment.

MANILA, Monday, July 2—(AP) Rugged Australian Seventh division infantrymen and armored crews landed in force Sunday on the sandy beaches of the great Borneo oil port of Balikpapan, and by mid-afternon had taken the final ridge overlooking the ruined refineries and the still blazing oil tanks.

Losses were light despite some enemy mortar, small-arms and artillery fire, as the pre-invasion bombardment—most intensive yet made in the southwest Pacific—drove the Japanese out of a network of pillboxes and tunnels before the town.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who personally commanded the invasion forces, announced the landing today.

NIGHT

Dominate Borneo

In a triumphant communique, he declared that this third landing on Borneo, following those May 1 at Tarakan and June 10 at Brunei Bay had "secured domination of Borneo and driven a wedge south, splitting the East Indies" and virtually completing "our tactical control of the entire southwest Pacific."

An Allied invasion fleet of more than 200 ships, including the U. S. Seventh Fleet and Royal Australian and Royal Netherlands units, put the first wave of Australian diggers ashort at Balikpapan's burning foreign district at 8:55 a.m. Sunday.

(Aneta, Netherlands news agency, said a contingent of Netherlands Indies troops "slammed ashore near the famous oil city, accompanying an Australian division under cover of a devastating air and sea barrage. Exact identification of the forces was withheld.")

The troops were met by a spattering of small-arms fire from the Japanese who somehow had survived more than two weeks of daily heavy air assault and a devastating rocket barrage that preceded the landing.

Succeeding waves of troops landed on schedule, and by 11:30 a.m. the Australians possessed a mile-long stretch of beach fronting on Makassar Strait and pushed up to a half-mile inland.

As the morning progressed, the invaders met accurate Japanese mortar fire on their left flank closest to the town.

MacArthur landed with his field commanders in the fourth wave and stepped ashore with the remark:

Settle Old Score

"I think today we settled the score of that Makassar Straits affair of three and a half years ago."

He was referring to the gallant effort by four old American four-stack destroyers in January, 1942, to hold off Japanese convoys that were streaming south for the invasion of Java. Not until the present operations had an Allied war fleet ventured back into Makassar Straits.

That strategic waterway today is "controlled by our surface craft as well as by air and submarine," MacArthur's communique said, and "our shipping can now sail with land-based air cover to any point in the southwest Pacific."

The assault force, commamed by Vice Admiral Daniel C. Barbey, chief of the Seventh Fleet Amphibious force, had expected trouble at Balikpapan, which was noted for its strong shore batteries and anti-aircraft defenses.

Fleet minesweepers, supported by the guns of cruisers and destroyers, started clearing a channel for the invasion fleet 15 days before the actual landings.

Working under the very noses of the Japanese, they found "more mines than you could count," the crews reported, but they cleared out safe channels through the coral reefs and marked them for the troops.

The enemy shore guns, abandoning their usual caution about disclosing their positions, fired on the sweepers, and were able to put up an intermittent fire at the warships and landing craft on D-day.

More than 150 heavy bombers and long-range lightning fighters of the U. S. Fifth and 13th Air forces culminated the heaviest series of neutralization raids of the Borneo campaign with a strike immediately preceding the landings.

Since June 1 they had dropped more than 3,500 tons of bombs on and around Balikpapan, hitting it every day for the past 18 days and turning it into an inferno of twisted oil tanks, wrecked warehouses and blazing petroleum.

Oil tanks had been the prime targets, lest the Japanese divert oil to the beach defenses and set it afire in the path of the invasion forces.

This preventive campaign was successful, but the Australians were forced to penetrate triple rows of barbed wire entanglements and scramble across a 10-foot anti-tank ditch before advancing inland.

Veterans of Syria

Troops of the seventh division are veterans of Syria, who also fought the Japanese to a standstill and shoved them back over the Kokoda trail in the early New Guinea campaign three years ago this month.

They found huge oil fires still ranging in Balikpapan's tank farm sector. As they pushed forward over the gently rising, sparsely-wooded terrain knee-deep in green alang-alang grass, the Australians entered the Klandasan district which once sheltered the European colony.

The former Chinese Kampong district was demolished and native villages showed the effects of the steady aerial attacks during June.

The Seventh division Aussies expected, and found tougher opposition than their countrymen of the Ninth division met in the Tarakan and Brunei Bay invasions.

The Australians are under the direct command of Maj. Gen. E. J. Milford, commander of the Seventh division. Their corps commander is Lt. Gen. Sir Leslie J. Morshead, whose Ninth division forces conquered Tarakan and swept into the Brunei Bay area within the past two months.

Close watch was kept for enemy aircraft as the invasion fleet approached the target area. At least one aerial torpedo attack was met Monday night when three Japanese planes were downed by ships' anti-aircraft.

Knock Guns Out

Maj. Gen. Paul B. Wurtsmith, whose 13th Air force, with the aid of the Fifth and of the RAAF had destroyed at least 60 per cent of Balikpapan, a town of 30,000, also had knocked out 17 of 28 known 90-millimeter gun positions and rendered seven Japanese airfields unfit for use.

The cruiser, bombardment and minesweeper force was under command of Rear Adm. Russell S. Berkey of Lyme, Conn., while the support force of cruisers was under Rear Adm. Ralph S. Griggs, and the amphibious force was under Rear Adm. Albert Gallatin Noble.

Heavy Bombers In Wide Sweeps

Manila, Monday, July 2 (AP)—Allied heavy bombers, scouring Japan's lifelines and supply bases, have struck from Formosa southward through Indo-China and Eastern Java, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Teriffic explosions and smoke columns rising 11,000 feet were reported by bombardiers after a raid on the Shinchiku oil refinery in northern Formosa. Other bombers west of Formosa scored hits on the naval base of Mako, in the Pescadores.

Daylight bombers pounded Japanese communication lines, and an airdrome in French Indo-China and to the south bombers continued attacks on enemy air fields in eastern Java, in the Lesser Sunda Islands and throughout the Celebes. In these waters they also sank two Japanese freighters and a tug boat.

'Unflyable' Plane Escorts 2d Damaged Craft Home

By The Associated Press.

THIRTEENTH AIR FORCE, Philippines, Monday, July 2—Flying a strafing attack against Balik Papan, Second Lieut. George E. Davis of Charlotte, N. C., had his plane holed by heavy anti-aircraft fire. He called for an escort in the event he were forced down at sea.

Lieut. Harold R. Sherman of New Bedford, Mass. volunteered. Both planes reached base—where an unbelieving engineering officer took a quick look and demanded: "Who did you say was the escort?"

"Lieutenant Davis' plane is all right," he told Lieutenant Sherman, "but yours is unflyable."

Lieutenant Sherman said he knew his plane had been hit three times, but it seemed only slightly damaged. It had its nose bashed in, its tail assembly mangled, radio compass antenna broken, right engine nacelle broken, radio antenna ripped off and its bomb-bay doors jammed shut.

With Lieutenant Sherman were Second Lieut. Willliam E. Davies of Rome, N. Y., navigator, and Sgts. William C. Rehfield of 3912 Murdock Avenue, New York City, and William H. Parkinson of Philadelphia.

GREATEST FLEET OF BOMBERS HITS MILITARY CENTERS

More Than 600 Drop 4,000 Tons of Incendiary Bombs in Dawn Attack.

KURE NAVAL BASE HIT

Shimonoseki, Ube, Kumamoto Targets; 23 Enemy Ships Sunk from Air.

GUAM, Monday, July 2—(AP) The greatest B-29 fleet ever to hit Japan sent a flaming 4,000 tons of incendiary bombs down on four of the empire's industrial cities before dawn today—a record load for the record number of nearly 600 Superfortresses.

Twenty-three enemy ships were sunk or damaged and two airfields and two seaplane bases were hammered in day-long widespread attacks Sunday by other Army bombers, Marine and fleet aircraft and Iwo-based Mustang fighter planes.

Hit Four Targets

Targets of the B-29s greatest incendiary strike of the war:

Kure, site of the enemy's greatest naval base on the inland sea;

Shimonoseki, on the north shore of Shimonoseki Strait, at the west entrance to the inland sea;

Ube, major coal center and top magnesium-producing region in the empire;

Kumamoto, transportation hub and military training center, as well as an important war-industry city on western Kyushu.

It was the first time any of the four cities had been fire-bombed. The strike raised to 22 the number of enemy cities charred by incendiary attacks. There have been 33 fire-bomb assaults on Japan's war plants.

The greatest previous B-29 strike—550 planes—swept Tokyo with flame on May 23.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique today reported other American aircraft ranged from the southern Ryukyus to the inland sea. Sunk or damaged were 23 Japanese ships.

(In the southwest Pacific, Allied heavy bombers struck from Formosa southward through Indo-China and eastern Java, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today. Blasted were a Formosa oil refinery, the naval base of Mako and an arsenal near Canton, among other targets).

Kure, with a population of about 276,000 is about 200 miles west of Japan's second greatest city, Osaka, on the southern coast of the main home island of Honshu.

Naval Base Target

Targets of the greatest military importance were the sprawling naval base facilities extending along an L-shaped waterfront.

The naval aircraft factory and the Kure arsenal were hit with demolition bombs May 5 and June 22.

The fire bombs were dumped along the east, northeast and north sides of the naval base and in the city.

Kure is the site of the largest combined dockyard, shipbuilding yard and naval industrial plant in Japan.

The population is highly congested—about 70,000 persons to the square mile.

Ube, 25 miles east of Shimonoseki near the southwestern tip of Honshu, is strategically important because it contains the Arken Metal company plant—largest magnesium maker in Japan.

Growing increasingly short of aluminum, the Japanese are depending more and more on magnesium as an aircraft metal.

Ube also is the site of a large nitrogen fixation plant, important in the production of munitions.

It is the center of the southwestern Shonshu mines, producing large quantities of black lignite coal for Japanese industry.

Bottleneck Hit

Shimonoseki, with a population of 196,000, is in Japan's principal region of heavy industry, and is a vulnerable bottleneck of Japanese rail transportation.

Through Kammon tunnel under Shimonoseki strait and by ferry, Shimonoseki connects Honshu and the southern island of Kyushu.

More than half the coal required for Honshu's war plants passes through Shimonoseki, which is the southern terminus of Honshu's railroads.

The Hatabu railroad shops are in the northwestern part of the city.

Shimonoseki served as an embarkation point for troops and supplies to Korea, Manchuria and north China, but has been effectively blockaded as a supply port of planes of U. S. fleet Air Wing No. 1 since the invasion of Okinawa.

A bomber command spokesman said Shimonoseki represented one of the most highly concentrated and inflammable targets in Japan.

Kumamoto with a population of 210,000 is one of the largest inland cities of Japan. It is in western Kyushu about midway between Kagoshima and Moji. Moji was seared in the Superfortress fire bomb attack June 29.

Transportation Hub

Kumamoto is a transportation hub and commercial center for the lowlands east of Shimabara gulf and is headquarters for the Japanese Army's division. Its industries include an aircraft assembly plant, spinning mills and silk laboratories.

The plains surrounding the city extend inland to Asozan, a great volcano dominating central Kyushu.

Cities previously fire blitzed by the Superforts are Tokyo, Nagoya, Osaka, Kobe, Kawasaki, Yokohama, Hammatsu, Amagasaki, Yokkaichi, Toyohashi, Shizuoka and Okayama on Honshu island, and Kagoshima, Omuta, Fukuoka, Sasebo, Moji and Nobeoka on Kyushu.

ATTLEE ASSAILS CHURCHILL FOR CAMPAIGN CLAIM

By EDWARD J. DENNEHY

LONDON, July 1.—(AP) Laborite Clement Attlee accused Prime Minister Churchill today of descending to "depths of misrepresentation and ingratitude" as Britain's heated election campaign entered its last week.

The voting is next Thursday, but results will not be announced until July 26, after overseas ballots have been counted.

The Prime Minister's fourth and final radio broadcast last night aroused more than the usual reaction from the Labor party camp, particularly Churchill's assertion that Laborite leaders who are not members of Parliament would share high military and state secrets if Attlee's forces won.

Asserting that the Labor members of Churchill's coalition government kept major war secrets throughout the European struggle, Attlee told an election meeting that the Prime Minister "knows perfectly well from experience that this vile suggestion is false."

"I'd never thought he would descend to such depths of misrepresentation and ingratitude toward men who had shown him such loyalty and consideration," he exclaimed. Attlee was Churchill's deputy prime minister in the coalition government recently dissolved."

"Not Indispensable"

Saying that Churchill was trying to carry the entire conservative campaign on his own personal prestige, Attlee declared:

"I should be the last man to deny his great services in the German war, but it's quite another thing to argue from this that he's indispensable in the future, and that the country, to secure his services, must saddle itself with a conservative government."

Attlee also ridiculed Churchill's statement in last night's speech that Britain might decline to a second-rate power if it failed to maintain a strong government of the present type and now "dissolves into faction and party politics." Attlee said a nation's influence "doesn't depend on the Conservative party—it largely depends on the heroism of the people, and by the efforts made by the people of all parties and all classes during five years of war."

Smuts Visits Churchill

Churchill himself spent a quiet day at his Chequers estate outside London, his rest broken by a visit from Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, on his way from the San Francisco conference to South Africa. Churchill finished a tour of England and Scotland yesterday.

He swings back into action tomorrow with a three-night electioneering tour of London's working class boroughs aimed at getting Conservative party support from the city's millions of shirt-sleeved voters.

Churchill is expected to have no trouble winning a Parliament seat himself. The issues are over party control of Parliament. The Conservatives and Laborites are the two large parties, with the Liberal party a poor third.

Each party has agreed generally on foreign policies, including a full-scale British effort to defeat Japan, close friendship with Russia, the United States and France, and security for the British empire.

On the home front issues, Laborites want to nationalize the railroads, electricity and important utilities. The Liberals want to overhaul the government and provide for easier world trade. Churchill's Conservative party advocates private enterprise and full employment through an expanding economy.

Thugutt Declines Warsaw's Offer

London, July 1 (AP)—The new Polish cabinet suffered its first loss tonight when Mieczyslaw Thugutt declined to accept the Ministry of Posts and Telegraph.

"I'm not going to Warsaw," Thugutt said. "That's all I can say now."

It was learned however, that Thugutt, who served in the interior ministry of the London Polish exile government under former Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, now deputy premier in the new Polish Government, had explained the situation and affirmed his loyalty to the new Polish Government in a letter delivered today to Mikolajczyk in Warsaw.

Mikolajczyk, in a broadcast speech at Warsaw today recorded by the FCC, declared German aggression "has already started to raise its head again" and for this reason Poland must be united and watchful.

The deputy premier said that "not even the greatest power in the world can manage to live alone while the possibility of German Hitlerism or Fascism being reborn exists." Poland, he added, "must live in the closest possible friendship with our neighbor, the Soviet Union."

Eden Lauds Foundation Laid for Future Peace

Calls Conference a Landmark in Search for Co-operation

LONDON, July 1 (AP).—Anthony Eden, British Foreign Minister, said today that the San Francisco conference represented "a landmark in mankind's long search for peace and international co-operation."

Replying to a message sent him by Edward R. Stettinius, United States representative in the United Nations organization, Mr. Eden said he was "confident that by the combined efforts of the United Nations a firm and enduring structure will be raised on the foundation laid with so much care in your great city of San Francisco and that our peoples thus will be able to continue in peace the comradeship gained in war."

The message from Mr. Stettinius expressed regret that Mr. Eden had been unable to attend the concluding ceremony at the conference, and said that "a space has been reserved for your signature and I hope there will be a convenient occasion for you to sign."

Mr. Stettinius also said that what had been accomplished at the conference strengthened his "faith that the vision of Prime Minister Winston Churchill and the latte President Roosevelt will become as enduring and effective a reality in peace as it has been mighty in war."

Smuts Arrives In London

London, July 1 (AP)—Field Marshal Jan Christaan Smuts arrived here today by plane, en route to South Africa from the United Nations conference at San Francisco. He was accompanied by his son, Major Smuts.

JUL 2 19

LONDON, July 1 (AP)—A British Foreign Office commentator today termed "highly improbable" published reports that the Big Three may discuss international control of the Suez and Panama Canals. He also said he had "seen nothing to support" another report that Soviet Russia would be given an interest in the control of the Suez Canal.

Montagu Norman Saved By Penicillin, Briton Says

London, July 1 (AP)—An injection of penicillin directly into the brain saved Lord Montagu Collet Norman, former Governor of the Bank of England, from a type of meningitis which in all previous cases has been fatal, Lord Charles Moran, president of the Royal College of Physicians, said tonight.

The physician, in a broadcast in behalf of a hospital financial campaign, said, "He is fit to work now and as good as ever."

Yanks In Britain Can Send Victory Telegrams

London, July 1 (AP)—New victory letter telegrams, which may be sent by United States troops stationed in Great Britain, costing one third the regular rate, were announced today by British Cable and Wireless Ltd.

The messages must be dispatched through United States army post offices and cost five to eleven cents a word with a minimum of ten words.

25 Berlin Houses For Big-3 Parley

London, July 1 (AP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation reported today that 25 large houses are being repaired and renovated in the battered Potsdam district of Berlin for the Big-Three meeting.

A correspondent said the same staff of plumbers, waiters, cooks and orderlies which the Russians had at the Yalta conference already had been brought from Moscow and 4,000 British troops and army engineers were helping with repairs.

The Paris radio said yesterday the conference would begin July 9.

Irish Ask Break With Japan

Mayo Council Seeks Explanation In Deaths of Four Missionaries

DUBLIN, July 1 (AP).—A demand that Eire break off relations with Japan until Tokyo gives a "full and satisfactory" explanation of the deaths of four Irish missionaries at Manila was made today by the Mayo County Council.

The deaths first were revealed by David Gray, American Minister to Eire, in a letter sent to all Dublin newspapers last April. The rigid Irish censorship at that time deleted sections of the letter which placed the blame for the deaths directly on the Japanese.

AMERICAN UNITS MOVE ON BERLIN FOR OCCUPATION

S LONG

PARIS, July 1—(AP) American occupation troops tonight were moving toward Berlin, preliminary to the Big Three meeting there this month, and Gen. Eisenhower's forces prepared to dissolve SHAEF.

Formal dissolution of Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force awaits only Eisenhower's return from the United States, authoritative sources said. Its operations now are broken into separate army activities which will be correlated through the Allied Control Council, on which Eisenhower sits with representatives of Soviet Russia, Great Britain and France.

The move toward Berlin coincided with an announcement that more than 315,000 American troops already have returned to the United States, and the total will reach 500,000 by July's end.

British and French troops also were on the move to Berlin, while the Western allies were pulling out of territory designated parts of the Russian zone of occupation. The entore shift is expected to end by July 4.

A press party of more than 100 prepared to leave for Berlin Tuesday. Supreme headquarters made no announcement but it was understood here that, the American force moving in is the Second Armored division, with the 82nd Airborne to follow or perhaps take over the assignment later. The British are sending their Seventh Armored (Desert Rat) division to make good its cry "Alamein to Berlin." The French force may include part of their Second Armored.

The Russians will continue to hold the Eastern half of Berlin, including all of the central section. The British will take over the pie-shaped northwestern slice, including the fashionable residential areas, at least one of which is not so severely damaged as some parts of the city.

The Americans will occupy the the southwestern slice, described unofficially as the smallest of the three but including the Templehof airdrome.

French Status not Clear

Whether the French actually will occupy a district or will be there only to staff and serve their administrative buildings in connection with the Allied Control Council has not been disclosed.

Final boundaries of the German occupation zones outside Berlin have not been announced but the Russians said several weeks ago their line ran from Luebeck to the Elbe river and around Thuringia to the Czechoslovak border.

The British announced today that readjustment of the Russian zone of occupation to include the Mecklenburg region and had been started. The Russian line will be moved from Wismar on the Baltic westwards to outside Luebeck, absorbing an area crammed with perhaps 1,000,000 refugee Germans who fled before the Red Army as it swept through Poland and into Germany. Stopped from entering the British zone and unable to pass back of the Russian line, the refugees have been milling around in Meck-lenburg, living in wagons and eating off the land.

Seven American divisions, which have been holding Thuringia and the western half of Halle in the great central German plain between the Elbe bend and Czechoslovakia, are involved in shifting of the troops.

Many Return Home

Communications zone headquarters said shipment of men to the United States was running ahead of schedule.

On June 20, the latest date at which figures are available, more than 310,000 soldiers had left for home. In May 115,000 were shipped back and the June quota of 250,500 is expected to be exceeded when complete figures are received.

The figures concern only men redeployed to the United States, as the number of soldiers sent directly to the Pacific remains a military secret.

Of the total redeployed by June 20, some 268,000 went by ship and 42,000 by plane, the announcement added.

Two thirds of the men returning in July are redeployed troop units, with the air forces sending about 40,000; ground forces 102,000 and service forces 34,000. The other third comprises men with more than 85 points, plus 13,600 sick and wounded who are being evacuated to United States hospitals.

Tangier Talks To Begin Today With America Participating

Paris, July 1 (AP)—Foreign office representatives of America, Britain and France meet tomorrow to discuss the return of Tangier to international status.

Following preliminary talks tomorrow, a full-dress conference will open Tuesday aimed at "revalidating the Tangier Statute of 1923," a French government spokesman said. On December 18, 1923, Spain, France and Britain signed an agreement declaring Tangier an international zone. Five years later, Italy also signed after the agreement was modified.

To Spain In 1940

The strategic port lying opposite Gibraltar was occupied by Spain in 1940 after the fall of France. Recently Spain has indicated a willingness to see Tangier revert to international status, but neither Gen. Francisco Franco nor Italy will be represented at the conference.

Russia also will not have a delegate present, but it was stated that the Soviet Union would be kept informed of daily developments by the French Government.

U.S. In Mediterranean

"We are happy to see America become a member of the convention," a spokesman for General de Gaulle said, "because the United States now is definitely a Mediterranean power."

The spokesman said that France was the "most interested member because of the protectorate of Morocco." Jacques Meyrier of the French delegation will open the formal discussions Tuesday.

Nazi General In Suicide Pact With Mistress

Kienzel Preferred Death to Separation From Her in Allied Prison Camp

21ST ARMY GROUP HEADUARTERS, July 1 (AP).—A suicide pact in which a German general killed his mistress and then himself marked the dissolution of the headquarters of Field Marshal Ernst Busch, a British intelligence officer disclosed today.

Involved in the suicide pact were a General Kienzel, a member of Busch's staff, and a Miss Aschnoff. Their bodies were found in a house near Flensburg last week. Both had bullet holes through the head, and near by was Kienzel's automatic pistol.

Kienzel, described as a hard-drinking, hard-swearing monocled German of about fifty-three, left a letter asserting he would rather die than face a long separation from his mistress in a concentration camp.

Intelligence officers were told his wife was reported to have consented to a divorce so he could go away with Miss Aschnoff. The latter's background in the case is being investigated by security police.

Kienzel was former chief of staff to Busch and was one of his emissaries sent to arrange the surrender terms with Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery at Lueneburg Heath last May.

Two others who were at that meeting have met violent deaths. They were General Admiral Hans Georg Friedeburg, who committed suicide by taking poison, and a Major Fidel, who died in an automobile crash.

Kienzel's death came three days before the sending of thirty or fifty members of Busch's staff to prisoner of war cages in Germany.

U.S. ACTIVATES REGIONALIZING PLAN IN REICH

Complete Decentralization Of Germany Is Aim Of New Program

Frankfurt On The Main, July 1 (AP)—The United States group of the Allied Control Council instituted today a program which it hopes will lead to the complete decentralization of Germany by breaking it up into lander or regions.

The American group will begin moving to Berlin with American troops on July 4 and within ten days and will be in a position to place its program before representatives of Russia, Britain and France in the battered capital of the Reich.

The group already has directed Gen. Omar N. Bradley, as 12th Army Group commander, to begin breaking up the United States western Reich district—one of two military districts into which the American zone will be divided for purposes of military government.

To Build Up Local Sense

Plans call for the division of this western district—its precise geographical boundaries are yet to be defined—into three regions.

This breaking up of the Reich into military impotent districts is expected to become the general policy for all Germany when it can be adopted formally by the quadripartite control council in Berlin.

Under the American plan, district commanders will assume control over all German governmental agencies within their district boundaries.

The reason for the break-up of the nation is not only the decentralization of Germany politically and economically, but also to build up a strong sense of local responsibility among the German people.

Since the collapse of Germany, the governing of the Reich has been under control of SHAEF as a part of general military operations. But with the dissolution of SHAEF gigantic tasks shift to the control council group.

Responsibility Clay's

Much of the responsibility falls on the shoulders of Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, chief of the American group and American member of the quadripartite council's coordinating committee.

"With the movement of our troops into the United States zones of occupation on July 7, our council becomes for the first time the policy representative of the United States Government in Germany," Clay said.

Clay will take a small group of specialists into Berlin with the first occupation troops. There later will be representatives from all twelve divisions of his staff. Later, as the need develops and housing and transportation permit, others will join this group. They expect to be established in Berlin by early August.

Policies To Start With

Before the control council can begin the adoption of any sort of national policies for Germany there will be a tedious and laborious process of building the structure of procedures for the exchange of ideas. This in itself is quite a task, since representatives of four powers speaking three different languages must agree on a policy for a fifth nation which speaks a fourth language.

Primary tasks in the initial meetings in Berlin will be to build up procedures, establish an Allied secretariat, develop methods of presenting papers, translate in three languages, agree on a daily agenda, establish fixed meetings and develop a program of discussion. Then the council can get down to the major task of considering policy.

While there has been no discussion on policy between the commanders in chief of the United States, Russia, Britain and France, there is a general understanding of the views of each Government as a result of discussions by the European Advisory Commission.

To Delegate Responsibility

These discussions, while they did not set up any policy, provided for an exchange of thinking and the council will have the benefit of views expressed.

American policy, it was learned from a high source, will be to give the Germans more and more responsibility in governing themselves, with emphasis on government at regional or state levels—but with careful control by the military government.

The first move will be to establish a workable administrative setup, then later gradually turn over more authority to the Germans.

It is planned to restore the German press eventually, with censorship after publication and not before the papers are in print—thus putting the burden of censorship on the Germans themselves with the threat of suspension hanging over any paper violating principles laid down by American authorities.

How long it will be before these moves can be made none can say just now, since the actions fall into the category of long-term policies.

To Urge Anti-Nazi Groups

In decentralizing the German government and stimulating interest in local government, the American policy will be to encourage the formation of local anti-Nazi advisory groups. While they will have no political power in reality, it is hoped their meetings will encourage interest in self-government.

While resumption of political parties is a matter for the theater commander to decide, there is no intention by the Americans to prohibit political parties forever.

One authoritative source said that at some time in the future there probably will be a centralized German administrative unit under Allied control to run postal, telegraphic and communications services on a national basis. However, he said, such a unit would be purely administrative and would not exercise any political functions.

Single Economic Unit Advised For Germany

Frankfurt-on-the-Main, July 1 (AP). Economic experts with the American group on the Allied control council said today they favor establishment of a single economy unit for Germany as a short cut to solving the Reich's many problems, even though the country is split into four zones of occupation.

"Unless we arrange trade between the zones," a member of the economic division said, "we shall have what amounts to four different countries with the problem of imports and exports."

Russian Units Take Over Magdeburg From British

Magdeburg, Germany, July 1 (AP)—Russian infantry and cavalry crossed the Elbe River on an American-built "friendship bridge" today and took possession of Magdeburg, center of Germany's synthetic oil industry, while the Germans remained in their homes under a British-imposed curfew.

The Red Army's entry into the city, captured by the Americans, and occupied by the British last month, was part of the readjustment of occupation zones in Germany.

ARMY REDEDICATES RHINE ISLAND STADIUM

COBLENZ, Germany, July 1 (AP)—A colorful stadium on an island in the Rhine River was rededicated to the American Army's uses today, just twenty-five years after American occupation forces had built it after the first World War.

The main purpose after that other war was to let the fighting men forget the war. The purpose was the same today and it was fulfilled with pleasure for 12,000 men of the Thirty-fifth Infantry Division who filled its seats for a baseball game.

The Thirty-fifth defeated the 106th Division, 5 to 2, largely on the merits of Corp. Murry Dickson of Leavenworth, Kan., who pitched for the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1942 and 1943 series and who is the only man for whom the late Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis ever requested a furlough for a ball game. He gave the 106th Division only five hits. Co-starring with him was Sgt. Leonard J. Novak of Chicago, who hit a home run as the first man at bat for his team in the first inning and then hit another in the seventh inning.

German civilians served beer throughout the game, obviously enjoying the spectacle.

SPAIN INVITES GI HOLIDAYERS

Franco Asks Yanks To Spend Vacations In His Resorts

Madrid, July 1 (AP)—The government of Generalissimo Francisco Franco today invited American soldiers in Europe to spend their vacations in Spain while awaiting transport home or to other theaters of war.

The official move to give Americans privileges similar to those unofficially accorded the Germans when they were winning in Europe was followed by a declaration from the Government organ El Espanol that the Franco regime would respect the conclusions reached at San Francisco only if the United Nations acknowledged Franco's right to rule Spain.

Wooing United States

These two developments further evidenced the Spanish policy of wooing the United States as a most necessary ally, while asserting what El Espanol called "the same right which Eden (British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden) asks for the British Empire—the right to rule ourselves."

A Foreign Ministry spokesman did not say whether the United States had accepted Spain's offer, which would permit American soldiers to wear uniforms while on Spanish soil.

Although German troops between the time of France's defeat and liberation never had so much time on their hands, many stationed in southwestern France were permitted to visit Spanish resort towns along the Bay of Biscay wearing uniforms.

"Happy Days"

The announcement concerning the Americans was made while Allied residents of Madrid and their Spanish friends danced at open-air motion-picture studios in the outskirts of the capital to "Happy Days Are Here Again." The benefit celebration, in behalf of British allied war charities, was the biggest social affair the Allies have yet staged in Spain.

The announcement followed a strong Spanish diplomatic protest earlier in the week against editorials in the American and British embassies' news bulletins.

The Anglo-American reply to oral protests reportedly was to advise the Spaniards that these editorials reflecting Allied policy did not specifically mention the Spanish regime.

Captive Italians Go Back To Army

Rome, July 1 (AP)—A new phase in Allied-Italian accord was achieved today with the announcement that Italian prisoners of war captured in North Africa were being permitted to revert to their former positions as regular members of the Italian armed forces.

The Allied military commission said the change in prisoner status was effective today and applied to former prisoners who had been cooperating with the Allied forces in Italy.

The decision followed repeated requests by the Italian Government, the commission said, adding that the Italian Army, through its regular auxiliary units, would continue to furnish the Allies with the same necessary aid heretofore supplied by the former prisoners.

Ask Closer Accord

Meanwhile, at Milan, Premier Ferruccio Parri expressed hope that the closer accord soon would place Italy "side by side with the Allies."

The new premier told the press conference at the Italy-American Press Club, of which he is president, that the conditions of the September, 1943, armistice now had been substantially met and that "we can no longer ask simply for betterment of the armistice conditions."

He said that Italy was ready to participate in the Japanese war but that the government, because of the present juridical condition "cannot make an open declaration on the Pacific war."

Parri explained that Italians were able to participate in the conflict on volunteer basis now but that the Government required a more satisfactory international position before taking a formal stand.

BRUNNER VISITS TRIESTE

VFW Commander Is Completing Journey in Italy

TRIESTE, Italy, July 1 (AP)—Jean A. Brunner, Commander in Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, visited American troops in the Trieste, Gorizia and Venezia Giulia areas yesterday on the last leg of an Italian trip.

He is talking with American fighting men in an effort to determine their views as a guide for the post-war planning of his organization. His party, including Col. Falkner Heard, deputy director of the War Department Bureau of Public Relations in Washington, was the guest of the British Eighth Army in this area. Mr. Brunner expects to return to the United States this week.

Soviet Science Academy Ends Its Celebration

Moscow, July 1 (AP)—The jubilee celebration of the Soviet Academy of Science ended today after a banquet in marble-lined St. George's Hall at the Kremlin Palace.

The dinner last night was attended by Premier Stalin, Foreign Commissar Molotov was master of ceremonies and a Red Army band provided music.

The 1,200 world scientists, including several from the United States, toasted international friendship.

MOSCOW, July 1—(AP) Premier Stalin received Premier T. V. Soong of China last night, but no details of their discussions were announced.

593 KILLED, 1,972 HURT IN SYRIAN CLASHES

DAMASCUS, Syria, July 1 (AP)—The Government reported officially today that 593 persons had been killed and 1,972 had been wounded in recent disturbances between French troops and Syrians. It said that the country was quiet now and the French were evacuating trouble spots.

The Home Minister, Salui Assali, stopping here after visits to Aleppo, Homs, Hama and other points on the Damascus-Baghdad railroad, said that all was quiet at those stations and also on the Turkish-Syrian frontier, which the French patrols were leaving.

The manuscript of a Syrian Black Book to be published by the Government on relations between the Syrians and the French has been completed but has yet to be approved by the Cabinet, it was learned. Final work has been completed by Foreign Minister Mardam Bey and Lebanese Foreign Minister Henri Pharaon on a memorandum to France.

The new Syrian Minister Plenipotentiary to Moscow, Fayez al Khoury, will leave next Tuesday for Moscow on a special mission.

3d Division Honored

Salzburg, Austria, July 1 (AP)—The United States 3d Infantry Division today was awarded a presidential unit citation for fighting in the Colmar pocket. The award, honoring 21,353 men, was the first to an army infantry division.

OKINAWA PLANES RIP ENEMY BASES

Devastating Strikes Against Enemy Shipping Reported by Nimitz.

GUAM, Monday, July, 2—(AP) American planes from Okinawa and Iwo struck two airfield and two seaplane bases on Japan and sank or damaged 23 enemy ships in air strikes against the island empire and in China waters, Saturday and Sunday, it was announced today.

Army Mitchell medium bombers, operating for the first time from Okinawa bases, struck an airfield used by enemy suicide fliers at Chiran on Kyushu, today's fleet communique disclosed, while nearly 150 long-range Mustang fighters from Iwo Jima battered Hammamatsu airfield southeast of Nagoya and spread their attacks to Hamashima seaplane base, damaging five small ships.

The Iwo Mustangs of the Seventh Fighter Command, in their challenging strikes into the heart of Japan's main island of Honshu, were opposed only to bad weather and anti-aircraft fire.

Three of the only six Japanese planes sighted in the air were shot down by the Mustangs' guns, which also destroyed nine and damaged 14 on the ground at Hamamatsu and Hamashima. Two Mustangs were lost over Hamashima but one pilot was rescued.

Kyushu Hit Again

The Tokyo radio earlier today had kept up the hammering of Kyushu from 3 a. m. until mid-afternoon Sunday.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz's communique today announced that a concentration of Japanese shipping was caught off Chusan archipelago off the East China coast. A large oil tanker was set afire and six large cargo ships, a medium cargo ship and a seaplane tender were damaged by rocket fire of Army thunderbolts.

Search Liberators of fleet air wing one sank two cargo ships and damaged another in the Sakishima group of islands and search planes of fleet air wing 18 sent a small cargo ship and a motor fishing vessel to the bottom off Honshu. A coastal ship probably was sunk.

Tighten Blockade

These blows demonstrated tightening of the American blockade of Japanese shipping south of the Japan sea since the conquest of Okinawa.

The Mitchells in their first assault from Okinawa on the Japanese homeland were escorted by Marine Corsair fighters.

Chiran airfield is one of the largest of the southern Kyushu bases from which the Japanese mounted their kamikaze suicidal attacks during the battle of Okinawa.

Thunderbolts in a co-ordinated mission swept Ibusuki seaplane base, also on southern Kyushu, sinking four seaplanes and a number of small craft around the base. One enemy bomber was shot down.

Nimitz said that in other widespread blows, Liberators of the Seventh Army Air force bombed runways and boat basins on Marcus island Saturday while Helldiver bombers and Corsairs and Hellcat fighters of the Fourth Marine aircraft wing hit Jap in the Palaus Sunday.

JAPAN HAS NO CHANCE TO WIN, SAYS STILWELL

OKINAWA, Monday, July 2 (AP) Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, the United States Tenth Army's new commander, declared today the conquest of Okinawa again proved "that the Jap has no chance against Americans."

"The most severe fighting to date in the Pacific has just been brought to a successful conclusion," General Stilwell said during a broadcast on the Army Hour. "Organized resistance on Okinawa crumbled as announced June 21, but that did not mean the complete cessation of hostilities by any means.

"The Japs do not quit in a body; they have to be chopped up until there are none left.

"Since June 21 their continued resistance in small groups has cost them 16,000 men and we, of course, have not got off scot-free. As elsewhere, mopping-up operations must continue for a long time before we can be sure this island is clear.

"In the campaign on Okinawa the Army, Navy and Marines all cooperated to make the operation a decisive victory.

"The terrain must be seen to be appreciated. But to those who have seen it, it is obvious that the victory is a high tribute to the American soldier, sailor and marine—the best fighting men in the world.

"Our pride in their accomplishment must be tempered by the price they paid. Too many of them will not come home. Among them was the Tenth Army's commander, Lieut. Gen. [Simon Bolivar] Buckner, who ended a brilliant career in the Army as he would have wished—among his men in action.

"We owe it to the men who gave their lives here to finish the job so completely and convincingly that never again can Japan be a threat to peace in the Pacific."

YANKS ATTACK 3 LUZON HILLS

5,240 Added To Count Of Jap Dead In Week's Drive

Manila, Monday, July 2 (AP)—Three Japanese mountain strongholds in northern Luzon were under American and Filipino pressure today while to the east beyond the Cagayan Valley thousands of other broken enemy troops were left to starve or to the mercy of guerrillas.

As the mopping up moved ahead with patrols unable to make major contacts with the enemy, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that 5,240 more Japanese dead and 711 prisoners were counted last week.

Raises Total To 419,035

This brought the cost to the Japanese in their lost battle of the Philippines to 419,035, including 9,774 prisoners.

The enemy strongholds toward which guerrillas and American troops were steadily moving were Bontoc, Mankayan and Kiangan in the hills northeast of the summer capital of Baguio, north of Manila. Japanese resistance was reported weakening before Kiangan.

On Mindanao Island strong combat patrols found many abandoned vehicles at Kibangay, 20 miles northwest of Davao. Light naval units shelled escape points along the Davao Gulf, near Davao, and fighters in support sweeps blew up an ammunition dump.

In northern Mindanao, guerrillas plunging deep into dreary swamplands, were a mile from the enemy base of Waloe.

Motor Pool Overrun

In the operations on northern Luzon, American troops over-ran what was believed to be the enemy's last big motor pool in the islands.

The 33d Division found the pool of from 150 to 200 fuelless motor vehicles in a valley near Bokod, 16 miles northeast of Baguio.

The enemy base of Bontoc, 53 miles northeast of Baguio, was being threatened from the west by guerrillas and from the south by the United States 6th Infantry Division.

Guerrillas Near Pass

Guerrillas were 7 miles from Bontoc after seizing Besao, just short of a pass leading into the town. The 6th was 26 miles away on the south after capturing Bolog. At Bolog the 6th also was but 5 miles from another enemy stronghold at Kiangan.

Some of the heaviest fighting raged about 20 miles southwest of Bontoc, where guerrillas beat off four Banzai charges in two days and advanced a mile and a half west of Mankayan.

JAP PRISONERS SEE EARLY PEACE

WITH THE 37TH DIVISION, Luzon, July 1—(AP) Japanese troops surrendering in large numbers in northern Luzon say they are convinced Japan has lost the war—and they expect a speedy end to the conflict.

One prisoner—a Formosan—reported he had heard the commanding officers of his company discussing a cabinet headed by Prince Fumimaro Konoye as premier to seek peace. He added he had heard predictions the war might end "next month," but in reply to inquiries said he did not know the source of information on which his officers based their discussion.

All prisoners, however, have been cut off from their homeland and pounded heavily by overpowering American military strength. As a result they are highly demoralized, American officers pointed out, and their opinions do not necessarily indicate the Japanese trend of thought on other battlegrounds or in the homeland.

Prisoners talked freely through interpreters, and most of them said they are convinced a new cabinet soon will be formed to seek peace. All mentioning the possibility said the cabinet, in their opinion, would be headed by Prince Konoye as premier—a friend of the common people, they termed him.

Some of the prisoners asserted only Japan's militaristic government is keeping the war under way, and added that when the Japanese people learn Americans provide good treatment, including medical care and food, they will demand surrender.

Death Ratio In Philippines

Washington, July 1 (AP)—An estimated 31 Japanese have died in the Philippines campaign for every one of General MacArthur's soldiers killed or missing, Col. Albert L. Warner said today.

OKINAWA INVASION BALKED BAKA BOMB

U. S. Landing Prevented Use of Japanese Suicide Craft Against Our Fleet

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC, June 28 (Delayed) (AP)—American timing of the Okinawa invasion deprived the Japanese of the full use of their newest secret weapon, the baka bomb, which they had hoped might strike a decisive blow at the United States fleet anchored offshore.

Military authorities who discussed the baka bomb—a piloted, jet-accelerated bomb launched from a plane—said today that there was now no reason why the story could not be told.

The invasion on April 1 came so swiftly that the Japanese were caught with only a few of the bakas ready for use on Okinawa, but with vast preparations under way for launching hundreds, possibly thousands of them.

A few were captured quickly by United States forces, one on the day after the invasion began. Because of the rapid American advance across the center of the island, where most of the bomb hangars were situated, the Japanese never got a chance to use many of them. A few, however, have been launched against American forces.

The size of the installations and the care with which the bakas were hidden was a strong indication of the faith the Japanese placed in their new weapon.

Strictly a Suicide Craft

Undoubtedly they had thousands of them, or have manufactured thousands since.

The baka is one of the finest racing airplanes ever constructed, aviation engineers have agreed. It might have been a successful weapon had not the Americans gained possession of the hangar area. The Americans christened them bakas, a Japanese word meaning stupid, since many of those later launched from planes missed their targets but always killed their own pilots.

It is designed to be a suicide weapon—it leaves no other alternative for its pilot—but only an experienced pilot could be expected to operate such a high-powered, speedy missile with accuracy.

Built of plywood with an aluminum fuselage, it is strictly a mass-production weapon with all parts interchangeable. Despite its simple design and construction, the weapon has terrific speed. All surfaces are highly polished, removing the last ounce of wind resistance. The wingspread is approximately sixteen feet, the length twenty feet. Traveling more than 500 miles an hour, it presents a target only a few inches wide and about sixteen feet long.

Because of its speed, it is in view of the observer only seconds before it reaches its target.

Carried on Mother Plane

The "fool's bomb," as the baka also was termed by the Americans because of its pilot's one-way ride, has beneath its cockpit bubble a dashboard containing direction controls, altimeter, compass and other scientific gadgets to guide the pilot.

The baka is carried by a mother plane that releases it in flight. As it glides away from the launching plane, the pilot turns on his first three rockets. This steps up his speed to around 500 miles an hour. The baka can be propelled for about fifty miles by three rockets fired at intervals.

An impact fuse in the nose sets off the warhead—2,500 pounds of explosive—the instant it hits a solid object.

Speed seems to be a weakness of the baka, because it requires great skill in guiding. There can be no practice runs. All of the pilot's combat skill must be developed on his first—and last—run.

The baka apparently can be dropped from any twin-engine plane.

Evacuates 3,000 Wounded

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC, June 26 (Delayed) (AP).—The Relief, oldest of the American hospital ships in service in the Pacific, evacuated more than 3,000 wounded Americans from Okinawa, it was disclosed today. Often the casualties were brought aboard the white-and-green-striped old ship, sometimes referred to as the "floating Christmas tree," within a half hour of the time they were wounded.

Yanks Burning Hut Discover Baka Bombs

Guam, Sunday, July 1 (AP)—American forces discovered Japan's secret weapon—the baka or foolish bomb—by accident. And the discovery cost a few American casualties.

Men of Company C, 32d Regiment of the 7th Infantry Division, led by Lieut. Jack H. Andrews, Sheffield, Pa., had landed in the first assault wave. Shortly afterward they seized Kadena airfield.

When they began burning thatch-roofed native huts that might shelter snipers, one hut exploded with a terrific blast, causing several casualties.

"We stopped burning huts then, and investigated," Andrews said. "We found the first of several mammoth flying bombs hidden in similar huts and reported the find to headquarters."

SOUTH CHINA ISLAND TAKEN

Weichow Captured By Chinese Regulars And Militia

Chungking, July 1 (AP)—Chinese troops have captured Weichow Island in the waters American flyers have been patrolling off China's south coast, the Chinese command said tonight.

Meanwhile, front dispatches reported the fall of three Japanese-held Indo-Chinese towns to Chinese forces pushing into French colony on a 100-mile front.

In new blows following recapture of Liuchow, other Chinese forces battered toward two other former American airfields in south China—the airstrips at Kweilin and Tanchuk, a Chinese communiqué disclosed.

Aided By Local Militia

Weichow Island, in the gulf of Tonkin between the Luichow peninsula and Indo-China, was cleared of Japanese forces as a result of mopping-up operations by Chinese regulars and local militiamen.

The strategic little island, lying astride Japan's sea supply routes to Southeast Asia, apparently was garrisoned only by a small Japanese force, the bulk of which probably was withdrawn to the Luichow peninsula as part of a recent redeployment of Japanese forces in South China.

New details of fighting inside Indo-China meanwhile revealed that mountain troops under Gen. Chang Fah-kwei had pushed over the Chinese frontier and into 6,500-foot hills at points along a 100-mile front.

Fight For Fourth Town

The front extended from Trung Khanh Phu (Chungchingfu), 19 miles northeast of the mountain-locked Indo-Chinese highway hub of Caobang, to Malungchai, identified as 1 mile inside Indo-China and 23 miles north of Hagiang.

In addition to the capture of Trung Khanh Phu and Malungchai, reports said that Dong Van, in the northernmost tip of the French colony and 30 miles northeast of Malungchai, also had been seized and that fighting was ranging for Tra Linh, 12 miles north of Caobang.

The Chinese communiqué said that reinforced Japanese troops from Caobang had counterattacked at Trung Khanh Phu, but the mountain town still was held by General Chang's forces. Chinese observers emphasized, however, that Chang's drive and occupation of several Indo-Chinese towns within the past month did not represent an invasion aimed at ejecting the Japanese from Indo-China.

Advance On Kweilin

Meanwhile, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces pressed from Liuchow toward Kweilin, 90 miles northeast, advancing along both the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad and the Liuchow-Kweilin highway.

Enemy remnants on the outskirts of Liuchow were being mowed down while the Chinese surrounded Japanese-held Liucheng, 12 miles north of Liuchow, and were laying siege to that town.

At the same time, Chinese soldiers west of Kweilin broke into Haishou, 25 miles from the Kwangsi province capital, and street fighting was raging for the Japanese stronghold guarding Kweilin's approaches. Paishou, headquarters said, had changed hands "many times" recently as a result of vigorous attacks by Japanese reinforcements.

Kweiping Recaptured

Eighty-two miles southeast of Liuchow, the high command reported that regulars and militia had recaptured the Si (West) River port of Kweiping. The Japanese, it was said, retreated around a bend in the river toward Pingnam, 21 miles northeast of Kweiping.

Kweiping and Pingnam are, respectively, 28 miles west and 13 miles northwest of the former 14th Air Force base at Tanchuk, on the south bank of the Si River. The airfield was abandoned by Lieut. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's flyers September 21, 1944.

While the Chinese pushed toward Tanchuk from the west, the Japanese recaptured Tengyun, on the Si River, 26 miles east of the airbase, a communiqué admitted.

Tengyun was retaken by the enemy June 22. A few days earlier it had been captured by the Chinese, attempting to cut the escape route for Japanese forces withdrawing along the Si River.

BRITISH MOVE AHEAD IN BURMA CAMPAIGN

CALCUTTA, July 1—(AP) British troops, battling an estimated 53,000 Japanese soldiers still in Burma, have captured two enemy-held villages in the Sittang river valley 71 miles northeast of Rangoon, Admiral Lord Mountbatten's headquarters said today.

The villages lie 26 miles northeast of Pegu, on the Rangoon-Mandalay railroad. In the area nine miles northwest of Pegu, the Japanese made their second unsuccessful attempt in more than a year to supply isolated forces by parachute, a communique said.

Some 120 miles north of Rangoon, British Patrols, supported by mountain artillery, engaged a party of 100 Japanese nine miles southeast of Pyu and killed 20, while farther north Allied units reached the Heimo near Kalaw, 90 miles southeast of Mandalay.

Life and People in 'Shangri-la' Jungle Described by Cameraman

(War Correspondent Alexander Cann parachuted into the "Shangri-La" valley of Dutch Guinea to obtain pictures for the Netherlands Indies government's Information Service. He was rescued last week by glider after a Dutch woman WAC and two servicemen had been brought out similarly. This is his story, written for the official Netherlands agency ANETA, which said he was the only correspondent to enter the valley).

By ALEXANDER CANN

MELBOURNE, July 1 — (AP) I reached Hollandia Sunday, June 17, and early on June 18 I flew over the site of the crash.

I decided that if a story was obtainable I would have to enter the valley that afternoon. I decided to drop in by parachute and after 30 minutes instruction I took off for the first parachute descent of my career.

I don't know whether I jumped or was pushed at the "go" signal, but I felt a sudden heavy jerk as the chute opened and I started shooting pictures of the descent. Then I landed unhurt, flat on my back in some bushes.

The crash survivors (WAC Corp. Margaret Hastings, Lt. John B. McCollom and Sgt. Kenneth Decker) and their rescue party were just then arriving from the crash scene on their way to the paratroopers' base camp in the valley proper.

I was astonished to see the survivors so fit after a three-day walk covering 42 miles.

The next day I started to explore the valley. This unexplored region of Netherlands New Guinea is fabulously beautiful but the isolation is frightening. The valley is entirely enclosed by high mountains and there appeared to be no means of egress except by trying to walk through the dense swamp and jungle on the other side of the range.

The natives at first were terrified of us and our equipment but the Filipino paratroopers gradually won their confidence. The natives brought us presents of vegetables similar to sweet potatoes and wild pigs. The American army dropped small shells for us to trade.

On the third day I decided to visit the native village. I traveled five miles through the dense jungle to reach the 400-acre village. The area was magnificently cultivated and irrigated, with the women doing the field work. Their babies were carried in baskets woven of kunei grass and slung over their shoulders.

There seemed to be less babies than in most native villages and the adult population was made up mostly of men. The village itself was surrounded with high sapling fences. All the huts were built around an open central patio.

Found Primitive People

There was no evidence of meat supplies in the valley. The natives had no cooking or eating utensils and all their weapons were primitive bows, arrows and spears. The people were friendly, however, and permitted us to inspect their huts.

At this time the American army dropped us some magazines and we were able to make the natives realize that my camera was a means of producing pictures such as they saw in the books. At first they were shy but later they indicated a desire to be photographed.

The women were more timid than the men and 50 per cent of them were entirely covered, including their hair, with a reddish-pink clay substance.

The women wore a brief hip-covering woven from hair of wild pigs.

I was able to discover no religion or superstition. The queen was a stalwart individual with an entourage of 15 men. Each corner of her village had a round hut where the chiefs and their women lived.

Around the village were 40-foot-high watchtowers, constantly manned to warn field workers of approaching enemy tribes. Everywhere there was evidence of constant tribal warfare and we found many partially decomposed bodies, mostly with arrows still driven into them.

Our camp appeared to be situated in the center of a traditional battleground.

The natives burned their dead, they said, and burial is unknown. The tribe was healthy and paratroop medicos treated only three for a skin disease.

The Filipinos eventually mastered a few native words and by these, with signals, they made the natives understand that the white people in the crash came from a great bird in the sky and would return.

Describes Shaving Technique

The old men wore beards but the young men were clean-shaven. The shave was affected by half-breaking a hardwood twig, applying the ends to individual hairs and extracting, as with tweezers.

Not a native was seen to take a drink of water or other liquid. Their sole diet seemed to be a type of sweet potato and, on rare occasions, pig.

The American army dropped a ton and a half of food and much equipment, all of which was left behind including a dozen colored parachutes, canned foods, carbines and tommyguns. No ammunition, however, was left.

The rescue by glider was effected over a period of days. The first day the WAC and the two male survivors of the crash went with the Filipino medicos. The second day four Filipino paratroopers and I were taken. Perfect timing made each operation fully effective.

When we left, the natives appeared downcast. Personally, I should like to return in six months and see what use they made of our foodstuffs and equipment.

Australia To Observe July 4

Melbourne, July 1 (AP)—Independence Sunday was observed in some Melbourne churches today as a prelude to Australia's country-wide celebration of American Independence Day Wednesday. Addresses by prominent Americans and Australians will mark the July 4 celebration, which will be featured by church services and demonstrations by children. Broadcasting stations will relay special programs from the United States.

Forde To Be Australia's Acting Prime Minister

Sydney, July 1 (AP)—Informed sources said today that Army Minister Francis M. Forde is expected to take over as Australia's Acting Prime Minister at a Cabinet session tomorrow.

Just back from the San Francisco conference, Forde visited the ailing Premier John Curtin at Canberra today but declined to comment on the political situation. Curtin is seriously ill with a lung congestion.

J. B. Chifley, Minister for Post-war Reconstruction, has been acting premier. Action on Government leadership, however, is expected to await the return from San Francisco of H. V. Evatt, Attorney General and Minister for External Affairs.

Brooks Heads 11th Air Force

UNITED STATES 11TH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN THE ALEUTIANS, June 30 (AP).—Major General John B. Brooks, former commander of the Newfoundland Base Command, has assumed command of the 11th Air Force, succeeding Major General Davenport Johnson, reassigned after twenty-two months in the Aleutians. Brooks' home is at Cazenovia, N. Y.

ARGENTINA GETS NEWS FROM N. Y.

BUENOS AIRES, July 1—(AP) Argentine newspaper readers are getting more news about what is going on in their country, although some of it is reaching them by way of the United States.

This unusual situation, in which Argentine papers often publish domestic stories under a New York dateline, is a result of the freedom from censorship lately granted to foreign correspondents.

The Argentine press lacks the guarantees given United States correspondence, and experience has taught Argentine editors to be wary. As a result, dispatches published in the United States under a Buenos Aires dateline are transmitted back to Argentina by American news services, and often are republished here under the datelines of New York and other North American cities.

For example, yesterday's newspapers published under a New York dateline a dispatch sent the New York Times by its Buenos Aires correspondent, Arnaldo Cortesi, in which Cortesi reported receiving a telephone warning against "false tendencies" in his stories of the Argentine political situation.

Another item consisted of a dispatch sent by Correspondent Joseph Newman to the New York Herald Tribune interpreting an Argentine Supreme Court decision as a blow to the military regime.

United States correspondents' versions of alleged tortures of Argentine political prisoners and quarrels in government circles also have been printed in recent weeks.

Atlantic Fleet Trains Men For Pacific Fight

Recife, Brazil, July 1 (AP)—Admiral Jonas Ingram, commander of the United States Atlantic Fleet, said today that 40,000 officers and 350,000 men were being trained in the Atlantic Fleet for action in the Pacific.

"The hope of all persons in my command is to get into action as soon as possible," the former commander of the South Atlantic command said.

Australians Approach Bougainville Airstrip

San Francisco, July 1 (AP)—Soldiers of Australia's 3d Division have fought their way to within a dozen miles of the Kara airstrip on southern Bougainville, the Melbourne radio reported today in a broadcast picked up by the FCC.

The Aussies, Melbourne said, are steadily pushing the Japanese back east of the Morel River in the Kara sector.

On New Guinea troops of the 6th Australian Division are now in positions dominating the entire Wewak area, the broadcast said.

PRESIDENT SEES CONTROLS NEEDED IN POSTWAR DAYS

JUL 2 1945

Maps Continuing Fight Against Inflation After Signing OPA Bill.

RETURNS TO CAPITAL

Truman to Present United Nations Charter in Senate Ceremony Today.

WASHINGTON, July 1—(AP) President Truman declared today that stabilization controls will have to be continued into the post-war period.

In a statement announcing the signing of the bill extending stabilization and price controls another year, the President asserted:

"Everyone of us must refrain from making unnecessary purchase of scarce goods and everyone of us must put as many of his dollars as possible into war bonds. In this way we can speed the day of victory and make sure that peace will bring a sound and lasting prosperity."

He declared that the renewal of the legislation without weakening amendments "gives the country reassurance that the fight against inflation will be carried on during the difficult year that lies ahead," and added:

"We shall have need for stabilization not only in fighting the war but in solving the problems of reconversion which we are already confronting."

Bill Extends OPA

The bill, giving the Office of Price Administration another year's lease on life, was hurried through the House at an unusual Saturday session and was flown to the President at Kansas City by special plane.

Without the legislation, OPA's price and rationing powers would have expired with the fiscal year at midnight last night.

Newsmen accompanying Mr. Truman were unable to learn in Kansas City whether the actual signing had taken place, or even whether the plane got there in time.

After the President returned to Washington this afternoon, his press secretary, Charles G. Ross said that the measure was signed shortly before midnight.

OPA gets $174,500,000 for its job under an appropriation also pushed through at the year-end session.

Under the OPA extension bill the new Secretary of Agriculture, Clinton P. Anderson, gets a veto over all food price orders.

Text of Statement

The text of the President's stabilization statement follows:

"I am very happy to sign the stabilization extension bill. For the past three and one half years we have succeded in stabilizing the cost of living despite the greatest war of all times. This has been of immeasurable benefit not only to all of us here at home but to the war effort itself.

"The renewal of the statutes without weakening amendments gives the country reassurance that the fight against inflation will be carried on during the difficult year that lies ahead. We shall have need for stabilization, not only in finishing the war, but in solving the problems of reconversion which we are already confronting.

"I congratulte the Congress on having enacted a sound, and well considered statute. Under it perplexing problems of food supply can be met and the stabilization and reconversion programs can be successfully carried forward. I am glad that Congress did not disturb the existing arrangements for coordinating these programs and for settling differences among the agencies. I congratulate the stabilization agencies. They have had the unpleasant, thankless task of enforcing controls during a critical emergency. They have served us loyally and well.

"We must always remember that it is the war—not these agencies—which is responsible for shortages and hardships. I am confident that the public will support the stabilization program with renewed vigor. Everyone of us must refrain from making unnecessary purchases of scarce goods and everyone of us must put as many of his dollars as possible into war bonds. In this way we can speed the day of victory and make sure that peace will bring a sound and lasting prosperity."

To Present Charter Today

The President returned to the capital at 1:55 p.m. (E.W.T.) today, ready to make a dramatic appeal to the Senate tomorrow for ratification of the United Nations charter.

He flew in from Kansas City Mo., where he had stopped over for homecoming ceremonies en route back from San Francisco where he addressed the closing session of the international conference on world organization.

Tomorrow at 1 p.m. he will present the charter in person to the Senate and ask that body to make this country one of the first to line up with other nations in an organization designed to keep and enforce peace.

More than the two-thirds of the Senate necessary to ratification already has signified its intention of voting "aye" in a poll conducted by the Associated Press, with Aug. 1 fixed as a tentative date for completing American entry into the world association.

Before that date the President will have conferred near Berlin with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin in a meeting closely tied up with United Nations problems.

Since Mr. Truman left Washington eight days ago he has taken a brief vacation in Washington State, with a little fishing and sightseeing, flown to San Francisco for the close of the United Nations meeting, and been feted on his first visit to his two home towns—Independence and Kansas City, Mo.—on his first visit there since he became Chief Executive.

Will Present Peace Charter To Senate Today; Signs Price Curb Bill

Meat and fats problem has not yet been solved, says former President Hoover.....Page 6

Washington, July 1 (AP)—President Truman returned today from an eight-day, 5,500-mile air trip to the Pacific Coast during which he addressed the final session of the United Nations conference at San Francisco.

Tomorrow he will carry personally to the Senate the fruit of that conference—the United Nations peace charter—and legislation calling for United States participation in a world court.

The document, flown here ahead of him, was delivered to the President this afternoon by Alger Hiss, State Department official and secretary of the conference.

Ratification Seen Certain

Compliance with Mr. Truman's request for ratification of the Charter is a foregone conclusion.

Shortly after he stepped down from his big luxury transport plane, definite plans were announced at the White House for his appearance before the Senate at 1 P.M. tomorrow.

At the same time it was disclosed that he had signed the bill extending stabilization and price controls for another year. An accompanying statement said the controls will be carried into the postwar period as a safeguard against inflation.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, next in the line of presidential succession until the Senate confirms the nomination of James F. Byrnes as Secretary of State, was at the National Airport to greet Mr. Truman when he arrived at 1.55 P.M. Morgenthau said his presence was merely a courtesy gesture.

Flight Takes Four Hours

The President showed no evidence of fatigue from the long trip, broken up by a two-day vacation visit with Gov. Mon C. Wallgren, of Washington State, and a four-day stay at his home in Independence, Missouri.

Mrs. Truman, their daughter Margaret, and his brother, J. Vivien Truman, were at the Kansas City airport this morning to see him off on his return trip, which took 4 hours and 10 minutes.

More than two thirds of the Senate needed for ratification already has signified its intention of voting "aye," in a poll conducted by the Associated Press, with August 1 fixed as a tentative date for completing American entry into the world association.

Three More To Vote Aye

Senator Maybank (D., S.C.), Kilgore (D., W.Va.) and Hart (R., Conn.) permitted addition of their names to the "yes" column of the poll on the question: "Will you vote for United States adherence to the Charter, barring unforeseen developments?"

With no senator expressing open opposition to ratification, that made the totals stand:

Yes: 65.
Probably yes: 5.
Noncommittal: 17.

Eight senators were not reached. There is one vacancy.

The President's speech at 1 P.M. tomorrow will be brief—probably five or ten minutes in length. In compliance with his expressed desire for simplicity, it will not be broadcast. Neither will the Senate relax its rule against taking photographs in the chamber.

In announcing the signing of the bill extending stabilization and price controls another year, the President said:

"I am very happy to sign the stabilization extension bill. For the past three and one half years we have succeeded in stabilizing the cost of living despite the greatest war of all times. This has been of immeasurable benefit not only to all of us here at home but to the war effort itself.

"The renewal of the statutes without weakening amendments gives the country reassurance that the fight against inflation will be carried on during the difficult year that lies ahead.

"We shall have need for stabilization, not only in finishing the war, but in solving the problems of reconversion which we are already confronting.

Congratulates Congress

"I congratulate the Congress on having enacted a sound and well-considered statute. Under it perplexing problems of food supply can be met and the stabilization and reconversion programs can be successfully carried forward.

"I am glad that Congress did not distrub the existing arrangements for co-ordinating these programs and for settling differences among the agencies.

"I congratulate the stabilization agencies. They have had the unpleasant, thankless task of enforcing controls during a critical emergency. They have served us loyally and well.

"We must always remember that it is the war—not these agencies—which is responsible for shortages and hardships. I am confident that the public will support the stabilization program with renewed vigor.

Since eastern Germany, under Russian occupation, produces as much barley, oats, wheat, sugar beets and potatoes as the combined American-British-French zones, a possible solution to the winter food problem was seen in swapping labor for food if the single economy unit plan is adopted.

"Every one of us must refrain from making unnecessary purchases of scarce goods and every one of us must put as many of his dollars as possible into war bonds. In this way we can speed the day of victory and make sure that peace will bring a sound and lasting prosperity."

Anderson Aims To Block Post-war Depression

Washington, July 1 (AP)—Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, declared today that his first task as the nation's new food chief will be to create farmer confidence that abundant production will not bring on another postwar farm depression.

Such confidence, he said, will lead the way to plentiful supplies of food and to a solution of problems growing out of current shortages.

Anderson, who was sworn in yesterday as Secretary of Agriculture, said this task will involve a coordination of food production and pricing policies in such a way as to encourage maximum output while still holding the line against inflation.

Farmer A War Producer

"To get more production now," the new Cabinet officer said, "we must think of the farmer as a war producer just as much as the manufacturer of planes and tanks."

Anderson outlined these views on an American Dairy Association program broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company.

Government agencies requiring food for military, lend-lease and foreign relief purposes should be required, he said, to assume full financial responsibility for the food they ask farmers to produce, regardless of whether those agencies finally need it or not.

Wants Commitments Firm

"The original requests (of such agencies)' on which farm production goals are based should be regarded as firm commitments," he said.

Emphasizing the necessity of carrying out Government price guarantees to farmers, the Secretary said there should be no repetition of the time, during the winter of 1943-44, "when support prices on hogs broke under the pressure of heavy production coupled with overoptimism for an early end of the war."

Looking to the postwar period and possible farm surpluses, Anderson said the Government and the people have "strong hopes" for a high level of employment which would support abundant production and consumption of agricultural commodities.

"No Magic Wand"

He cautioned consumers that present shortages could be expected to continue in the immediate future because they "cannot be corrected by any waving of a magic wand."

One of Anderson's first tasks will be the reorganization of the Agriculture Department to include the functions and personnel of the War Food Administration, agency which President Truman ordered abolished. He promised to make the reorganized department an efficient organization serving agriculture and the people.

Anderson said the department would seek to secure "fair and equitable" distribution of the food supply in meeting military, civilian and foreign relief requirements. He promised to restore food to "legitimate" channels of trade through rigid black-market controls and "tough enforcement."

Aerial Tows Bring Home Planes With Bad Engines

Navy Avoids Dismantling and Trucking of Craft

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP).—The Navy revealed today development of an aerial towing service for disabled planes which it predicted may become a common facility for airplane overhaul stations after the war.

The new plan does away with the slow and expensive system of dismantling the disabled plane, trucking it and reassembling it at its destination. It was developed at the Naval Aircraft Factory at Philadelphia, by Captain Ralph S. Barnaby, of Scotch Plains, N. J., chief engineer at the factory and in charge of the Navy's glider activities.

He got the idea, he said, when a garage mechanic applied for a job as a motor mechanic. When told there was not a vacancy, the mechanic said he couldn't understand it. "I know you must be having a lot of engine trouble, because I've seen several airplanes being towed in recently."

The mechanic had seen gliders being towed in the air, but it gave Captain Barnaby the idea. So when a few days later one of his pilots was forced down at Akron, Ohio, by an oil line failure, Captain Barnaby decided to try it.

A standard glider tow, modified to fit the disabled plane's propeller hub, was loaded into a Consolidated Catalina and flown to Akron. In two hours and twenty minutes the disabled craft was back in Philadelphia. The experiment has been successfully repeated six times since.

PRESIDENT TO NAME BYRNES TO CABINET

WASHINGTON, July 1—(AP) President Truman will send to the Senate tomorrow James F. Byrnes' nomination to be Secretary of State to succeed Edward R. Stettinius, Jr.

Quick confirmation seemed assured for the one-timed South Carolina law-maker, Supreme court justice and "assistant President" to the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross announced Byrnes' selection late Saturday at Kansas City. Mr. Truman earlier in the week accepted Stettinius' resignation and announced his appointment as American representative on the projected world security council of the new United Nations organization.

Presumably Byrnes' nomination will reach the Senate before Mr. Truman's scheduled 1 p.m. (EWT) personal appearance to submit the United Nations charter to the chamber for ratification.

Iowan Given Medal Of Honor

Washington, July 1 (AP)—A one-time farmer who rescued four wounded comrades from two shell-smashed, flaming tank destroyers and forced surrender of 55 Germans in two days of fighting was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor today.

He is Staff Sergeant Herschel F. Briles, 31, Colfax, Iowa.

Although he was ill at the time, the Army report of his exploits said Briles knew a battle was coming up and refused to leave his post as leader of a tank destroyer platoon. The American forces had driven into the German positions when the enemy artillery opened up on Briles's platoon.

A German shell scored a direct hit on one of the destroyers, which had bogged down in the mud several yards behind Briles's vehicle. One crewman was killed, two others wounded and the destroyer was set afire.

Briles leaped from his destroyer and ran back through artillery, machine gun and rifle fire, to the crippled destroyer. He first tried to get into the turret but was beaten back by the flames spouting from the interior.

With his bare hands he beat out some of the flames and crawled into the turret. He carried out the two wounded men and then returned with a fire extinguisher, quenched the flames and directed removal of the destroyer for repair.

The next morning, Briles sighted German infantry advancing against the American lines. With his machine gun blazing, Briles drove his destroyer against this force, penned it in with deadly fire and forced 55 Germans to give up.

Buxton Quits As Aide To Donovan, OSS Chief

Washington, July 1 (AP)—The resignation of G. Edward Buxton as assistant director of the Office of Strategic Services to return to private life was announced today.

Buxton has been second in command to Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, OSS director. He was born in Kansas City, Mo., but moved at an early age to Rhode Island.

It was Buxton, then a battalion major, with whom Sergt. Alvin C. York held his man-to-man discussion about his religious scruples forbidding him to bear arms against the enemy. The two men discussed the Bible for hours, then Buxton suggested that York take a furlough to think it over. Ten days later York came back, and achieved subsequent fame in France.

Pro-Nazi Bulgarian Official Is Arrested

New York, July 1 (AP)—A Yugoslav telegraph agency dispatch reported today that the Bulgarian militia had arrested Dotsche Christov, Minister of the Interior in the pro-Nazi Bulgarian Government headed by Premier Dobri Bozhiliv in 1943-44.

Christov, arrested in Sofia, was one of "several hardened Fascist leaders" taken into custody, the FCC-recorded broadcast said. Among the others was Ivan Bozhiliv, chief of police during the Bozhiliv regime, and Simedn Andreyev, described as "the former national representative Fascist."

Early Peace Conference Is Favored By Connally

Harrisonburg, Va., July 1 (AP)—Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said today that he saw no reason a European peace conference could not be called shortly after the conclusion of the impending meeting of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin.

"Much of the groundwork for the conference already has been laid," Connally told newsmen at a fishing lodge near here where he is spending the week end.

Connally, a delegate to the United Nations conference at San Francisco, predicted that Herbert Evatt, Prime Minister of Australia, who battled for the smaller nations, may become president of the United Nations Assembly.

GOV. DEWEY SUPPORTS WORLD CHARTER PLAN

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 1—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York today termed the United Nations charter a "tremendous step forward in eliminating wars" and urged immediate senate ratification without reservations.

The 1944 Republican presidential nominee told a news conference while awaiting the formal opening of the annual Governors' Conference tomorrow:

"I don't believe any reservations are necessary. I think they would simply delay adoption."

He said he hoped and believed the charter adopted by 50 nations at San Francisco would receive prompt ratification.

"A great many people would like to examine it and some will want reservations," he added. "I think we ought to ratify it now so our desire to have full-fledged participation in world peace is made known to the world."

United Nations Group To Meet In Washington

San Francisco, July 1 (AP)—A temporary committee appointed to proceed with organizing a United Nations lawyers' association will meet in Washington within the next 30 days, according to an announcement here by Attorney General Robert W. Kenny, of California.

Chief Justice Phil S. Gibson, of California, is chairman of the committee, which includes embassy lawyers of the "Big Five" nations. As well as those representing several of the smaller powers, and members of the American Bar Association and the National Lawyers' Guild.

Objectives of the new organization include furthering the interests of the legal profesion throughout the world, giving aid to the United Nations in its program of international co-operation, facilitating exchange of jurists, scholars and legal publications, and "enhancing the development and dignity of international law."

BUDAPEST, JUNE 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THREE AMERICAN SOLDIERS CAME HOME TO BUDAPEST; ONE HELPED BRIEF THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE BOMBERS WHO SHATTERED HIS NATIVE CITY; ONE WAS AN ARTIST AND WAS SAD AT THE DESOLATION, AND ANOTHER WAS HAPPY BECAUSE HE FOUND HIS MOTHER.

AND IN THE SAME WAR-WRECKED CITY IS A HUNGARIAN HOUSEWIFE WHO IS HOMESICK FOR SOUTH BEND, IND.

SGT. STEPHEN SCHNERGEL, ONE OF HUNGARY'S LEADING FENCERS AND OWNER OF A LUMBER MILL, LEFT BUDAPEST IN JULY, 1939, TO VISIT HIS BROTHER IN NEW YORK. HE WAS THERE WHEN WAR WAS DECLARED AND WAS SOON IN THE AMERICAN ARMY.

HE WAS WOUNDED TWICE IN ITALY AND THEN, BECAUSE OF HIS ACQUAINTANCE WITH HUNGARIAN INDUSTRY, HE SERVED TO BRIEF U.S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE BOMBER PILOTS WHO HAVE TO SHUTTLE FROM ENGLAND TO BARI AND THEN TO RUSSIA. WHEN THE AMERICAN MISSION WAS FORMED TO MOVE INTO BUDAPEST HE CAME ALONG AS A LINGUIST GUIDE.

THE FIRST THING HE DID WAS HEAD FOR HIS OWN APARTMENT NEAR MOSSUTH SQUARE. HE FOUND IT ONLY A LITTLE DAMAGED BY THE BOMBS HE HAD HAPPED FOR THE CITY.

JUL 2 1945

SGT. ANDRE HORVANYI OF 51 W. 12TH ST., NEW YORK CITY, WAS AN ARTIST WHO HAD MANY ONE-MAN SHOWS IN NEW YORK. AT THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR HE JOINED A FORCE OF ARMY ARTISTS TO PORTRAY SCENES OF THE WAR.

HIS DUTIES LED HIM BACK TO HIS NATIVE BUDAPEST, WHICH HE LAST VISITED IN 1937, AND HE IS SADDENED BY THE SCENES OF DESOLATION.

A WOMAN CAME IN TO THE AMERICAN MISSION'S HEADQUARTERS ONE MORNING AND TOLD SGT. WILLIAM WHEELER OF OHANA, NEB., THAT SHE HAD BEEN TRAVELING 48 DAYS BY RAIL, HORSE AND AFOOT TO REACH BUDAPEST BECAUSE SHE HAD A SON IN THE AMERICAN ARMY AND SHE THOUGHT HE MIGHT BE IN BUDAPEST. SHE HAD NOT SEEN HIM IN SIX YEARS.

WHEELER GAVE HER A PIECE OF PAPER AND ASKED HER TO WRITE DOWN HER SON'S NAME. COMPLIED AND HANDED BACK THE PAPER.

JUL 2 1945

"WHY HE'S ON OUR STAFF," WHEELER SAID.

SO CPL. JOHN CUNDR OF 23 GRAND VIEW AVE., TUCKAHOE, N.Y., WAS REUNITED WITH HIS MOTHER.

ESTHER KUNJDA SUZDA, WIFE OF ONE OF THE LEADING LAWYERS OF BUDAPEST AND THE MOTHER OF TWO BOYS, ONE 18, THE OTHER FOUR, WANTS TO GO BACK TO SOUTH BEND, IND. SHE REMEMBERS FOOTBALL GAMES AT NOTRE DAME, A DRUG STORE ON A CORNER, AND HIGH SCHOOL.

SHE WAS BORN IN BUDAPEST AND TAKEN TO SOUTH BEND WHEN SHE WAS TWO WEEKS OLD. HER FATHER WAS IN THE HUNGARIAN CONSULATE IN CHICAGO.

HE DIED AND IS BURIED IN THE UNITED STATES.

AFTER GRADUATION, ESTHER HUDAJDA WAS MARRIED, BUT THE MARRIAGE WAS UNSUCCESSFUL, AND SHE RETURNED TO BUDAPEST WITH HER MOTHER. AFTER HER CHILD WAS BORN SHE OBTAINED A DIVORCE AND LATER MARRIED PAUL BUDA

"PAUL IS SWEET," SHE SAID, "BUT HUNGARY IS DONE. FINISHED. KAPUT. I WANT TO GO HOME."

MANILA, MONDAY, JULY 2--(AP)--NAVY DEMOLITION TEAMS WHO WORKED IN NECK-DEEP WATER FOR THREE DAYS PRIOR TO THE BALIKPAPAN INVASION FOUND FEW FIXED UNDERWATER OBSTACLES TO REMOVE, BUT MINESWEEPERS DISPOSED OF MANY MINES.

BOMBERS AND FIGHTER PLANES OF THE U.S. 13TH AIR FORCE PROTECTED THE DEMOLITION MEN WHO LITERALLY WORKED UNDER THE EYES OF THE JAPANESE ON SHORE.

THE YANK AIRMEN CONSTANTLY POUNDED THE ENEMY WITH ANTIPERSONNEL AND FRAGMENTATION BOMBS TO PREVENT INTERFERENCE WITH THE DEMOLITION SQUADS. THE HEAVY BOMBERS ALSO DESTROYED TWO BIG NAVAL GUNS WHICH THE JAPANESE HAD FIRED FROM CAVES ON RIDGES BACK OF BALIKPAPAN AT ALLIED WARSHIPS IN THE PREINVASION BOMBARDMENT.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE INVASION PERMITTED DISCLOSURE OF A "SUICIDE MISSION" IN WHICH MEDIUM BOMBERS OF THE 13TH BRAVED THE HEAVIEST ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE EAST OF SINGAPORE TO FLY AT AN ALTITUDE OF 700 FEET A HALF-MILE OFF SHORE AND OBTAIN PRE-INVASION PHOTOGRAPHIC INFORMATION.

TO ACCOMPLISH THIS MISSION B-24 MEDIUM BOMBERS HIT THE CITY'S DEFENSES, LIGHTNING FIGHTERS KEPT OFF ENEMY INTERCEPTION AND CRUSADERS STRAFED AND BOMBED GUN POSITIONS, WHILE THE PHOTO PLANES SPED ALONG THE BEACH.

"WE FLEW SO CLOSE WE COULD READ THE SIGNS ON WATERFRONT BUILDINGS," THE FLIERS REPORTED.

MANILA, MONDAY, JULY 2-(AP)-THE AERIAL DEFENSES OF FLAMING BALIKPAPAN--SOUTHEAST BORNERO'S BIG OIL PORT AND REFINING CITY--WEAKENED TODAY AFTER 16 STRAIGHT DAYS OF SAVAGE BOMBING BY HUNDREDS OF ALLIED WARPLANES.
(JAPANESE BROADCASTS SAID ALLIED MINESWEEPERS, UNDER THE PROTECTING GUNS OF A BOMBARDING INVASION FLEET, HAD CLEARED THE COASTAL WATERS FOR LANDINGS WHICH MIGHT COME AT ANY HOUR.)
THE CAMPAIGN TO RECONQUER BORNEO, ONE OF THE RICHEST PRIZES SEIZED BY THE JAPANESE IN THEIR 1942 DRIVE THROUGH THE EAST INDIES, ALREADY WAS PAYING DIVIDENDS WITH OIL FROM ITS FIELDS GOING TO U.S. ARMED FORCES.

BORNEO'S CRUDE PETROLEUM IS OF SUCH HIGH QUALITY THAT IT CAN BE USED IN SHIPS FOR FUEL WITHOUT REFINING.
MORE THAN 230 TONS OF BOMBS WERE UNLOADED ON THE DEFENSES ON BALIKPAPAN AND NEARBY AIRFIELDS. RETURNING PILOTS SAID THAT ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE, ONCE AS HEAVY AS ANY IN THAT PART OF THE WORLD, HAD BEGUN TO FALL OFF.
THE JAPANESE TRIED A NEW TECHNIQUE, SENDING UP BARRAGE BALLOONS AS HIGH AS 1,300 FEET WITH SILVERY EXPLOSIVE BALLS ATTACHED TO THE CABLES, BUT THESE PROVED INEFFECTIVE AGAINST LOW-LEVEL SKIP BOMBERS.
OTHER ALLIED BOMBERS RANGED 200 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BALIKPAPAN AND ATTACKED TWO AIRSTRIPS NEAR BANDJERMASIN ON BORNEO'S SOUTH COAST MANGGAR AIRDROME, 12 MILES NORTHEAST OF BALIKPAPAN, ALSO GOT ANOTHER WORKING OVER FROM THE BOMBERS.

AGROUND, THE AUSTRALIANS POUNDING DOWN BORNEO'S WEST COAST MADE THEIR FIRST CONTACT WITH THE RETREATING JAPANESE SOUTHWEST OF THE CAPTURED MIRI OIL FIELDS, BUT THERE STILL WAS NO INDICATIO THAT THE NIPPONESE WERE READY TO STAND AND FIGHT.
IN THEIR WITHDRAWAL, THE SLIM ENEMY GARRISON HAS GIVEN UP SOME OF THE RICHEST PETROLEUM AND RUBBER AREAS IN THE INDIES. RUBBER HAS BEEN ONE OF THE CRITICALLY SHORT STRATEGIC MATERIALS OF THE ALLIES.
(THE JAPANESE MADE THEIR FIRST CLAIM TO PUTTING UP "STIFF RESISTANCE" ON BORNEO, SAYING THEY WERE BATTLING ATTEMPTS TO ENTER THE CITY OF BEAUFORT NORTH OF BRUNEI BAY. THE CAPTURE OF BEAUFORT WAS ANNOUNCES ATURDAY BY MACARTHUR.)

NEHRU, WHO WAS RELEASED FROM BRITISH CUSTODY TWO WEEKS AGO, ARRIVED AT SIMLA TO PARTICIPATE IN CONGRESS PARTY WORKING COMMITTEE SESSIONS IN CONNECTION WITH THE WAVELL PLAN CONFERENCE.

HE DECLARED THAT THE LAST WAR HAD FAR REACHING CONSEQUENCES, INCLUDING THE GROWTH OF THE NATIONALIST MOVEMENT IN INDIA, AND SAID THAT A PROPHET WAS UNNECESSARY FOR THE CONCLUSION THAT THE CURRENT WAR WOULD HAVE EVEN GREATER CONSEQUENCES.

HE ADDED THAT IT WAS THE JOB OF NATIONAL LEADERS TO

LATER HE SAID HE HAD NO OBJECTION TO MAKING RADIO BROADCASTS TO AMERICA, PROVIDED FACILITIES WERE ARRANGED, BUT THAT HE FELT A VISIT TO THE UNITED STATES WAS IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL THE CURREN SITUATION WAS RESOLVED.

THE LATEST DEVELOPMENT IN THAT SITUATION--A PROPOSAL BY MOHAMMED ALI JINNAH, MOSLEM LEAGUE PRESIDENT TO MOHANDAS K. GANDHI THAT THEY MEET PRIVATELY TO ACHIEVE A SETTLEMENT BETWEEN CONGRESS AND MOSLEM LEADERS.

THERE WAS NO REPLY FROM GANDHI TO THE JINNAH PROPOSAL, WHICH WAS CONTINGENT UPON GANDHI AGREEING TO THE ESTABLISHMENT OF "PAKISTAN" AS A SEPARATE STATE FOR THE MOSLEMS. JINNAH SUGGESTED THAT THE WAVELL PLAN FOR A NEW NATIONAL GOVERNMENT FOR INDIA BE DROPPED.

AS ALLIED PLANES GAVE DIRECT SUPPORT TO GROUND FORCES IN BURMA, BRITISH OFFICIAL QUARTERS SAID THAT THE JAPANESE STILL HAD AN ESTIMATED 33,000 MEN IN EASTERN BURMA. OUT OF 18,000 ENEMY TROOPS WEST OF THE BRITISH-HELD RANGOON-MANDALAY RAILROAD LESS THAN TWO WEEKS AGO, THE ESTIMATERS SAID, ABOUT 5,000 ARE LEFT.

THESE 33,000 ENEMY TROOPS ARE MAKING FIGHTING EXITS TOWARD WHAT MAY BE A LINEUP OF ALL ENEMY FORCES IN SOUTHEAST ASIA FOR FINAL BATTLES AGAINST ALLIED FORCES. THOUSANDS OF ENEMY TROOPS ARE EITHER WITHDRAWING FROM OR PLANNING TO ABANDON MALAYA AND THE EAST INDIES.

BRITISH QUARTERS EXPRESSED BELIEF THAT JAPAN'S SOUTHEAST ASIA ARMIES ALREADY ISOLATED FROM HOMELAND SUPPLY AND ADMINISTRATION, MIGHT BE PLANNING A LAST-STAND IN THAILAND OR INDO-CHINA. ALTHOUGH DOOMED BY ATTRITION, THESE JAPANESE FORCES MAY TAKE MONTHS, IF NOT YEARS, TO WIPE OUT, BRITISH SOURCES SUGGESTED.

THE EASTWARD TREK OF THE JAPANESE ALREADY HAS COST THE ENEMY THOUSANDS OF LIVES SINCE THE ABANDONMENT OF RANGOON MORE THAN TWO MONTHS AGO, BUT IT WAS BELIEVED THAT THEY CAN ROB THE BRITISH OF A CLEAN-CUT VICTORY AND CAUSE CONSIDERABLE BLOODSHED.

Truman Urges Senate to Ratify Charter, 'Only Road to Peace'; Byrnes Confirmed Unanimously

CHARTER OFFERS SOLE PEACE ROAD ASSERTS TRUMAN

President Calls on Senate for Prompt Ratification of Pact.

APPROVAL LOOMS

Poll Shows Two-Thirds of Senators Favor World Organization.

WASHINGTON, July 2—(AP) Harry S. Truman came back to the Senate today to hand his old associates the United Nations charter and ask them to ratify it promptly.

The President spoke with the simple, easy air of a man who felt pretty sure of getting just what he asked for.

"The choice before the Senate is now clear," he said, spacing his words carefully.

Charter or Nothing

"The choice is not between this charter and something else. It is between this charter and no charter at all."

Then, just before ending his seven-minute speech, he re-emphasized that conclusion to the men who have the final say-so on ratification.

"This charter points down the only road to enduring peace," he said.

"There is no other.

"Let us not hesitate to join hands with the peace-loving peoples of the earth and start down that road—with God's help and with firm resolve that we can and will reach our goal.

"I urge ratification.

"I urge prompt ratification."

There appeared no doubt his request would be granted since an Associated Press poll showed more than two thirds of the Senate membership already on record for the world organization.

Shortly before Mr. Truman went to the capitol Senator Barkley (D-Ky) emerging from the executive offices after a call with other legislators, said he had told the President he "couldn't put my finger on as many as six senators who will be against" the charter.

Senate Chamber Jammed

The relatively small Senate chamber was jammed with notables and their friends, including some members of the cabinet. But there were no microphones, no popping flash bulbs, none of the fanfare usual at a President's appearance. Mr. Truman himself thought the occasion called for simplicity.

Completely at home in the body where he served 10 years, the President smiled wistfully as he addressed the presiding officer, Senator McKellar of Tennessee, with the formal salutation "Mr. President."

Then he quickly got down to business.

He told the Senate that people all over the face of the earth are watching to see if this nation will take the lead in ratifying the document born of nine weeks hard work at San Francisco.

He assured the intently listening senators that the charter carries out completely the Senate's own peace organization aims as embodied in last year's Connally resolution. He asked them to consider the spirit as well as the words of the charter, a bound copy of which lay beside him on a table.

Calls Objectives Clear

"The objectives of the charter are clear," he declared.

"It seeks to prevent future wars.

"It seeks to settle international disputes by peaceful means and in conformity with principles of justice.

"It seeks to promote world-wide progress and better standards of living.

"It seeks to achieve universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all men and women—without distinction as to race, language or religion.

"It seeks to remove the economic and social causes of international conflict and unrest.

"I urge ratification. I urge prompt ratification."

The President traveled a familiar path in his appearance in the Senate—this time as ambassador for the nations that want freedom from war.

Here in the ornate Senate chamber where he served ten years Mr. Truman had a dramatic date with history.

The President chose to deliver personally the treaty of San Francisco, the pact of 50 United Nations to outlaw war.

The Senate, eager to act on the treaty, dropped all other duties to accept the document from the Chief Executive this afternoon and to hear his 600-word talk in behalf of prompt ratification.

Mr. Truman returned to Washington only yesterday from a 5,500-mile, eight-day aerial trip to the West Coast, climaxed by his address to the closing session of the San Francisco Conference. His departure for Berlin and his first meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin is imminent.

The treaty was flown here last week and delivered to Mr. Truman yesterday afternoon by Alger Hiss, conference secretary.

It arrives in the Senate under the best possible auspices. More than two thirds of the Senators already have lined up in its favor. And not one has come out against it.

From Russia to Peru, Government leaders are setting in motion machinery for formal approval, and it is possible that every nation will have acted by late Fall.

The treaty designed to safeguard the world against aggression might attain unanimous ratification even earlier but for the necessary preliminary in some nations of reinstituting legislative bodies which were strangled during German occupation.

All capitals expressed interest in the drive for quick indorsement in the United States Senate, but no government spokesman suggested that his government might wait to see what the United States would do.

Associated Press Correspondent Eddy Gilmore in Moscow reported that "what the United States does or what is said in debate there certainly is not likely to affect Russia's stand one iota." He added that the Soviet Union "undoubtedly will be one of the first nations to approve the charter."

The Supreme Soviet met only recently and no longer is in session, but, in the intervals between its meetings, its Praesdium has full authority to act.

The only delay in Britain's formal acceptance probably will be the interlude before the new Parliament convenes Aug. 1. The British cabinet's approval of treaties is announced formally in Commons.

Even quicker action was probable in France, where an official spokesman said Gen. de Gaulle's Government could ratify the pact merely through publication in the official journal after approval by the cabinet, with no action by the consultative assembly needed.

President's Talk to Senate

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—Following is the text of President Truman's address to the Senate today:

It is good of you to let me come back among you. You know, I am sure, how much that means to one who served so recently in this chamber.

I have just brought down from the White House and have delivered to your presiding officer the Charter of the United Nations. It was signed in San Francisco on June 26, 1945—six days ago—by the representatives of fifty nations. The statute of the International Court of Justice is annexed to the Charter.

I am appearing to ask for the ratification of the Charter, and the Statute annexed thereto, in accordance with the Constitution.

The Charter which I bring you has been written in the name of "we, the peoples of the United Nations." Those peoples—stretching all over the face of the earth—will watch our action here with great concern and high hope. For they look to this body of elected representatives of the people of the United States to take the lead in approving the Charter and Statute and pointing the way for the rest of the world.

Charter's Principles Not New

This Charter and the principles on which it is based are not new to the United States Senate or to the House of Representatives.

Over a year and a half ago, the Senate, after thorough debate, adopted the Connally resolution, which contained the essence of this Charter. It called for "a general international organization based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all peace-loving states, and open to membership by all such states, large and small, for the maintenance of international peace and security." What I am now presenting to the Senate carries out completely this expression of national and international necessity.

Shortly before that, the House of Representatives passed the Fulbright resolution—also favoring the creation of international machinery with participation by the United States. You and the House of Representatives thus had a hand in shaping the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, upon which the Charter has been based.

No international document has been drawn in a greater glare of publicity than this one. It has been the subject of public comment for months. This widespread discussion has created the impression in some quarters that there were many points of disagreement among the United Nations in drafting this Charter. Naturally, much more public attention was given to the items of disagreement than to the items of agreement.

The fact is that there were comparatively few points upon which there was not accord from the very beginning. Disagreement was reduced to a minimum—and related more to methods than to principles. Whatever differences there were, were finally settled. They were settled by the traditionally democratic method of free exchange of opinions and points of view.

I shall not attempt here to go into the various provisions of the Charter. They have been so thoroughly discussed that I am sure you are all familiar with them. They will be so thoroughly discussed on this floor that you and the people of the nation will all have a complete expression of views.

In your deliberations, I hope you will consider not only the words of the Charter but also the spirit which gives it meaning and life.

Objectives of the Charter

The objectives of the Charter are clear.

It seeks to prevent future wars.

It seeks to settle international disputes by peaceful means and in conformity with principles of justice.

It seeks to promote world-wide progress and better standards of living.

It seeks to remove the economic and social causes of international conflict and unrest.

It is the product of many hands and many influences. It comes from the reality of experience in a world where one generation has failed twice to keep the peace. The lessons of that experience have been written into the document.

The choice before the Senate is now clear. The choice is not between this Charter and something else. It is between this Charter and no charter at all.

Improvements will come in the future as the United Nations gain experience with the machinery and methods which they have set up. For this is not a static treaty. It can be improved—and, as the years go by, it will be—just as our own Constitution has been improved.

This Charter points down the only road to enduring peace. There is no other. Let us not hesitate to join hands with the peace-loving peoples of the earth and start down that road—with firm resolve that we can and will reach our goal.

I urge ratification. I urge prompt ratification.

BYRNES VOTED IN BY SENATE

Is Confirmed as Successor to Stettinius.

Washington, July 2 (A. P.)—James F. Byrnes was confirmed unanimously by the Senate today as Secretary of State, succeeding Edward R. Stettinius Jr. The action was taken in a matter of minutes after the nomination was received from the White House.

The Senate suspended rules requiring hearings on Cabinet nominations and a day layover before a vote can be taken on such an appointment. This was done as a tribute by both Democrats and Republicans to the man who served with them for years, later was an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court and more recently Director of War Mobilization.

Original Plan Streamlined.

The Senate even telescoped its original plan to wait until after President Truman presented the United Nations charter before acting on the nomination. Confirmation placed Byrnes next in line for the Presidency, under present statutes, should Mr. Truman not complete his term.

Majority Leader Barkley moved to suspend the rules almost as soon as the nomination was received from the White House. Minority Leader White of Maine concurred, asserting that "we all know Mr. Byrnes personally," and adding that his length of service in high Government "leaves no doubt in any one's mind as to his qualifications."

By voice vote the Senate then approved the appointment. The conference gave President Truman his fifth Cabinet member of his own choice.

Two Large Airfields Captured by Aussies In Balikpapan Drive

DAVIS

INVASION FORCES ADVANCE INLAND ON 3-MILE FRONT

Borneo Campaign Already 'Strategically Won' Gen. Morshead Says.

RESISTANCE MOUNTS

American Bombers, Fighters Give Close Support to Ground Action.

MANILA, Tuesday, July 3—(AP) Australian invasion troops pushed within 1,500 yards of the fire-swept heart of Balikpapan on southeast Borneo today as their commander, Lt. Gen. Sir Leslie Morshead, announced that the campaign already was "strategically won."

The Melbourne radio said both the Sepinggang and Manggar airfields had been captured by the Australians, giving the Royal Australian Air force as its authority. This was not confirmed here, but Russell Brines, Associated Press correspondent on the scene, reported at 6:30 a. m. that the capture of Sepinggang was imminent. It is three miles from Balikpapan.

Resistance Increases

Japanese resistance increased measurably as the Australians drove forward. Japanese 5-inch guns, hitherto hidden, opened up on the beaches, joining periodic mortar and anti-aircraft fire.

The Australians had taken more than three miles of beach and had driven better than 2,500 yards inland, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported early today.

General Morshead told Brines "the first few hours" settled the ultimate outcome of the invasion Sunday when the Aussies captured the "vital Paramatta ridge on the left flank of the beachhead."

The ridge put the Australians within a mile of the central docks and refineries which were destroyed by pre-invasion bombardments of the rich oil producing center.

The deeply entrenched Japanese were being subjected to steady artillery fire from Australian 25-pounders and aerial bombardment from carriers operating with the Seventh fleet.

Naval gunfire silenced a number of the Japanese gun placements.

Thick black smoke from the burning oil storage tanks settled over the entire battle operation, during which airforce repair crews began immediately to repair the captured airfields for Allied use, the Melbourne radio said.

Manggar airfield is ten miles northeast of Balikpapan and seven miles from Sepinggang.

Bombers Give Support

American heavy, medium and fighter bombers continued to give close support to the ground forces, while U. S. carrier based Navy fighters hit enemy road transportation inland.

This was the first disclosure that carrier planes were participating in the operation. (The Japanese in an ambiguous broadcast Sunday night had referred to carriers).

One American plane was lost in operations which included attacks on Tawao airfield and a supply area at Redeb.

By nightfall Sunday the Australian troops had overrun more than half the Klandasan section of Balikpapan, which formerly was the European residential quarter of the town.

Part of the Australian force swung north from the town's flaming ruins and was reaching within two miles of the Sepinggang airfields, a 4,650-foot strip which the Japanese had built three miles from Balikpapan.

Despite stiffening resistance from an enemy who had been shocked on D-day by the heaviest pre-invasion bombardment ever unleashed in the southwest Pacific, Allied losses were declared to be still light.

Capture of a 200-foot hill on the Aussie left flank put a stop to the accurate mortar and machine gun fire with which the Japanese had been harassing them.

Batteries Are Silenced

Continued gunning by the U. S. Seventh fleet silenced remaining Japanese coastal batteries which had met the in[illegible]sion with intermittent fire.

The invaders [illegible] yet taken any important [illegible] area of Balikpapan, bu[illegible] refineries and tank farms appeared to be in total ruin.

Developing their invasion steadily, however, the veterans of the Seventh division had pushed their right flank a mile and a half east along the broad, mangrove-studded beach and had forded the Ketji river, while their left flank gained three-quarters of a mile to the west.

Both wings had strong air support from Army and Navy planes, the Navy Wildcats and Avengers under Rear Admiral W. D. Sample overtaking an enemy truck convoy fleeing north and hitting 15 vehicles.

Sepinggang airfield, a first objective, is one of two good strips in the area.

Seven miles beyond lies yet another good air field, that at Manggar which was built before the war and used by the Japanese in their conquering southward march in 1942.

(The Tokyo radio in a broadcast heard by the Federal Communications Commission said 5,000 troops made three landings at Balikpapan and yet another force hit the swampy beaches near Sambodja, an oil center 31 miles northeast of Balikpapan.)

Heights Are Seized

The Australians seized heights dominating Balikpapan and were in the eastern suburbs, but apparently were making no attempt immediately to enter the city proper, which is smoke shrouded and shot by flame from the rain of shells and bombs that saturated its defenses.

MacArthur went ashore four hours after the first wave hit the beaches east of the city, and pored unperturbed over an operations map while a sniper took eight shots at him and his staff.

"This is my return visit to Makassar strait after three years," MacArthur said, referring to the dark days of 1942 when the Japanese were using this strategic strip of water between Borneo and the Celebes as an avenue to the south.

Now the strait is strictly an Allied avenue which cuts Japan's conquered Indies empire in half, because ships can steam through it to any part of the southwest Pacific under land-based air cover.

The capture of Balikpapan's air fields—in the words of MacArthur—"will enable our air craft of all categories to disrupt and smash enemy communications on land and sea from Timor to eastern Sumatra." All of Java, another island rich in oil, will be within easy range.

More and more troops and supplies were pouring ashore from the big invasion fleet of more than 300 ships that rode at anchor off Balikpapan.

Ready To Repair Port

American Seabees waited for the fires to die so they could go in and repair the damage to Balikpapan's harbor, which provides a good anchorage and has seven wharves.

American sailors manned the landing ships and an amphibian tractor battalion also hit the beaches with the Australians.

The Japanese Air Force made only a token appearance on D-day, one plane dashing in and out without trying to attack.

Rear Admiral Albert Gallatin Noble, in command of the 7th Fleet's amphibious group, reported unloading of supplies was proceeding satisfactorily.

Elsewhere on Borneo, the Australian 9th Division on the north coast took an enemy strongpoint 1 mile east of Australian-held Beaufort and pushed on up the narrow-guage railroad leading eastward to the Japanese base of Jesselton, now 50 miles ahead.

MacArthur Says New Victory Assures Control Of All Borneo

By SPENCER DAVIS

MANILA, July 2, (AP)—Australian troops made a successful major landing at Balikpapan Sunday in the third phase of a triple invasion of Borneo.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who is in personal command, said this secured domination of all Borneo, split the East Indies and virtually completed Allied tactical control of the entire southwest Pacific.

Japanese resistance was aggressive to light as the tough infantry and tank troopers of the veteran Australian Seventh Division smashed ashore in the suburbs of the Far East's greatest oil center behind the most intensive pre-invasion bombardment yet unleashed in this theater. Opposition increased as the Australians thrust steadily inland.

By the middle of the afternoon they had won the last ridge looking down on the ruins of the town and refinery and its still-blazing oil storage tanks. They had taken an elaborate series of tunnels and pillboxes which the Japanese had deserted in the face of the furious naval and air onslaught.

Toughest opposition was on this last ridge, which Associated Press Correspondent James Hutcheson said was littered with dead Japanese, many of whom obviously had been killed by bombs and artillery fire, although others were chopped down by Australian machine gunners and tanks.

Although commanders had anticipated strong defense of this strongly-gunned enemy base, first losses were declared officially to have been light.

This was due in part to the 3,500 ton month-long pre-invasion bombing by the U. S. 13th and Fifth Air Forces and to the shell and rocket fire from the U. S. Seventh Fleet with Dutch and Australian units supporting the landing. Their weight of metal was described as heavier than the combined tonnage fired in the Leyte, Lingayen Gulf, Luzon and Manila areas.

The Japanese shore guns which had escaped being knocked out in a month-long aerial softening-up observation fired back sporadically at some of the more than 300 invasion ships, but their defense was ineffective.

The landing ships swept directly up to the beaches through channels which had cleared of countless mines and buoyed by daring fleet minesweepers who operated under Japanese gunfire for 15 days of the invasion.

American underwater demolition swimmers went in six days before D-Day and worked neck-deep in the surf, removing fixed obstacles while planes guarded them from Japanese funfire.

As a result, the Australians drove smoothly ashore at 8:55 A. M., quickly seized a mile-long stretch of beach, and raced inland against small-arms, mortar and artillery fire which was scattered but accurate.

MacArthur himself went ashore four hours later and climbed to a ridge for a view of the inferno of smashed oil installations.

"I think today we settled the score of that Makassar Straits affair of three and a half years ago," he commented, referring to the bold but vain effort of four old four-stack American destroyers in January, 1942, to stop the Japanese convoys heading south for the invasion of Java.

MacArthur Draws Sniper Fire

WITH ALLIED FORCES AT BALIKPAPAN, Borneo, July 1 (Delayed) (AP).—Although Balikpapan was an "Australian show," thousands of Americans participated in the operation. Most of them were with the Navy in bombardment units or manning troop and cargo ships. A large force of American Seabees (construction battalions) are scheduled for the big job of reconditioning the wrecked port.

The 672d Amphibian Tractor Battalion, which won renown for the Los Banos internee camp rescue on Luzon, carried the first waves of troops ashore alongside of elements of the 727th Amphibians.

"We kept machine guns firing into the beach, but there was no return fire," said Corporal Robert Stange, of Norfolk, Va., who was in the first wave of Amtracks (amphibian tractors). "Those Aussies looked good to me. When the ramp hit the beach, they dashed out into the hip-deep water like a football team for the second half."

General MacArthur drew Japanese sniper fire this afternoon as he surveyed enemy strongpoints from the most advanced command post, less than 200 yards from the enemy's defense positions.

Striding first through damp swampland and later up shale hills dotted with Australian foxholes, MacArthur reached a spur-like crescent overlooking Mt. Malang, first important objective of his Australian forces on the right flank.

As he stood conferring with an Australian brigadier, eight shots rang out. Staff members automatically ducked, but MacArthur and the brigadier continued to pore over a large-scale map, completely unperturbed.

With terse questions MacArthur probed the general and his staff for each development of the campaign—only four hours old at the time he went ashore.

MacArthur was especially interested in casualty figures and smiled broadly when he learned only two men had been injured, and they only slightly.

"An engagement will be measured by its casualties," he remarked later.

Australian Force Pushes Close To Balikpapan Ruins

Brines

New York, July 2—The Melbourne radio, in a broadcast heard tonight by NBC, said the Sepinggang and Manggar airfields near Balikpapan have been captured by Australian troops.

With Allied Forces Near Balikpapan, Tuesday, July 3 (AP)—Australian infantrymen were within 1,500 yards of ruined Balikpapan today while tank-led columns on the right flank plunged swiftly eastward, threatening imminent capture of Sepinggang airstrip, a little over 3 miles beyond the edge of the town.

United States carriers operating with the 7th Fleet were augmenting the continual Allied air attacks against deeply entrenched Japanese positions. Carriers were under the command of Rear Admiral W. D. Sample.

5-Inch Guns Silenced

Heretofore hidden Japanese 5-inch guns opened fire upon the beachhead and upon ships in the bay today, joining periodic mortar and anti-aircraft fire which were highlights of the increasing enemy resistance. Naval gunfire, however, was believed to have silenced the 5-inchers, which were located deep in the hills several miles inland.

Australian 25-pounders continually blasted enemy positions in dominating ridges eastward from Balikpapan as tempo of the fighting increased.

"Won In First Few Hours"

Meanwhile, Lieutenant General Sir Leslie J. Morshead, Australian

Corps commander, told the Associated Press:

"The campaign was strategically won in the first few hours on invasion day," when Australians captured vital Paramatta ridge on the left flank of the beachhead. Positions atop this heavily bombed height placed Australians within a mile of the Balikpapan central docks and refineries which were totally destroyed by preinvasion air-raids. A Japanese-held ridge separated the Australians from the town itself.

Japs Take Borneo Natives To Java

With Allied Forces Near Balikpapan, July 1 [AP—Delayed]—Less than a dozen reed-thin, pathetically subservient natives who were in the Balikpapan invasion zone today told members of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's party that the Japanese had forced mass evacuation of their countrymen to Java.

Half naked, many of them still bleeding from wounds received in the preinvasion bombardment, the natives—all old men and boys—saluted everyone. One old man wearing a Mohammedan felt cap spied General MacArthur's gold-braided hat. He saluted rapidly three times as the general passed.

The natives said that when American air raids intensified and invasion became imminent the Japanese forced their countrymen to go to Java presumably to do forced labor in building defenses.

Nearly 30,000 natives lived in the Balikpapan area before the war. Most of them were Indonesians and predominantly Mohammedan.

The possibility of some last minute Japanese slaughtering of Balikpapan natives was hinted by a new graveyard on a hill behind the landing beach. More than 100 graves were found.

BIG OIL REFINERY ON NIP MAINLAND BLASTED BY B-29S

Explosive Bombs Used to Rip War Industry Near Shimotsu.

DUAL CAMPAIGN

Attack Follows Greatest Fire Raid by Superforts in History.

JUL 3 1945

GUAM, Tuesday, July 3 — (AP) About 50 American Superfortresses blasted the Maruzen oil refinery near Shimotsu on Japan's mainland before dawn today, less than 24 hours after nearly 600 of the B-29s struck four Nippon cities in the greatest incendiary air raid of history. Only two bombers were lost in the record fire-bomb mission.

Explosive bombs were used in the Shimotsu attack, the sixth raid in eight days by the Marianas-based B-29s against Japan. Shimotsu is 35 miles southwest of Osaka on Honshu island. The target was the third oil plant hit in a week.

Dual Bombing Campaign

The precision demolition attacks are part of a dual bombing campaign now being waged by Maj. Gen. Curtic LeMay's 21st bomber command. They are being alternated with the 500 and 600 plane incendiary strikes.

Targets in the two previous precision attacks included the Utsube river oil refinery and the Nippon oil company's plant at Kudumatsu.

The Maruzan installations produce fuel and lubrication oil and aviation gasoline. Many large storage tanks were in the target area, as well as refinery buildings.

Superfortress crew men returned from the record incendiary attack said Japanese air and ground fire opposition was insignificant.

The 20th air force, announcing from Washington that two of the B-29s failed to return, said that 20 crew members were rescued. Superfortresses normally carry crews of 11 men each.

In the four-pronged, before-dawn mission Monday, the bombers from Marinas bases at Guam, Tinian and Saipan poured 4,000 tons of incendiaries on Kure, Shimohoseki, Ube and Kumamoto—all vital centers of Japan's war-making power of about 200,000 population or more each.

22 Cities Now Hit

The attacks brought to 22 the number of Japan's key cities struck by American fire raiders since the incendiary campaign was launched March 10 with the first such attack on Tokyo. Today's was the 33rd incendiary mission from the Marianas. It was the fifth B-29 incendiary and explosive bomb attack on Japan in a week.

Returned crew members reported they observed "good to excellent" fires spreading and some described the conflagration at Kure—Japan's largest inland sea naval base—as "wonderful." There was only weak Japanese fighter opposition and ground guns offered but meager and inaccurate fire.

Other American planes, including medium B-25 Mitchell bombers on their first mission from newly-conquered Okinawa, contributed to a bad week-end for the Nippon mainland.

Twenty-three of the Seventh air force B-25s, escorted by Marine Corsairs, raided the Chiran airdrome on southern Kyushu island without encountering opposition beyond light ground fire.

Associated Press Correspondent Al Dopking reported from Okinawa that they were probably the first B-25s over Japan since Doolittle's carrier-launched Mitchells made their historic raid April 18, 1942.

Plane Bases Raided

Army Thunderbolt fighters from Okinawa and Mustang fighters from Iwo Jima also raided Japanese airfields and seaplane bases over the weekend.

Navy search planes sank or damaged 23 Nipponese ships in Japanese homeland waters and off the east China coast, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' Monday communique announced.

All four of the B-29 targets were hit for the first time with incendiaries.

Kure, with a population of about 275,000 is approximately 200 miles west of Osaka on the southern coast of Honshu.

Ube, near the southwestern end of Honshu, is Japan's greatest magnesium producing center. Returned fliers said that vital target area was hit by "the best fire concentration" they had yet seen.

Shimonoseki, rail and shipping terminus 25 miles west of Ube, and Kumamoto, transportation, commercial and military training center on western Kyushu island, were overcast. Bombing was by instrument and returned crewmen said they were unable to make detailed observations.

(A Japanese Domei news agency dispatch, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said a "wide area" of Kure was burned and that "some damage" was inflicted to naval facilities. It claimed, however, that "strategic operations remain absolutely unharmed."

(Tokyo also reported that 12 B-29s laid mines in Toyama bay on the west coast of Honshu Sunday midnight.)

Huge Air Fleet Leaves Jap Industrial Cities in Ruins

Six Hundred Superforts Dump 4,000 Tons of Incendiary Bombs on Four Important Targets in Record Assault; Other Attacks Carried Out

By LEIF ERICKSON

GUAM, July 2, (AP)—The greatest flood of fire ever unleashed in warfare leaped through four of Japan's important industrial centers today, bursting from a record 4,000 tons of incendiary bombs.

Nearly 600 superfortresses—a record number over Japan at one time—showered down the fire bombs with "good to excellent results."

Most clearly visible target was Ube, Japan's greatest magnesium producing center—vital to the aircraft industry. The entire waterfront was aflame, crewmen said.

Bombs were reported "well placed" in industrial areas.

Other aerial blows by smaller planes harassed the enemy from Java to Japan's Inland Sea, sinking or damaging 26 ships and crippling airfields and supply bases.

The B-29s in their biggest attack of the war struck before dawn at these targets—all fire bombed for the first time:

Kure—Greatest naval base and shipyard on the Inland Sea; a city of 275,000, about 200 miles west of Osaka on the southern coast of Honshu.

Shimonoseki—Vulnerable bottleneck of rail transportation at the western entrance to the Inland Sea; the city of 196,000 served as the embarkation point for troops and supplies moving to Korea and North China.

Kumamoto—Transportation, commercial and military-training center; a city of 210,000, it was one of the most important industrially in Western Kyushu.

Ube—major coal producing center and top magnesium maker of the empire; lies 25 miles east of Shimonoseki, near southwestern tip of Honshu.

Returning crewmen said cloud cover prevented full observation of results at all targets except Ube, which was hit by the 313th wing, based on Tinian. Pilots said the whole Ube waterfront was ablaze, with the superforts' firebomb loads well-placed within industrial areas of the city.

(Radio Tokyo acknowledged considerable damage "in a wide area" at Kure, and "some damage" to naval facilities there. Army units aided the Navy in relief work.

Weak aerial interception efforts were reported at Kure and Ube. No enemy planes at all were met over Kumamoto and Shimonoseki. Antiaircraft fire was meager and inaccurate at Kumamoto and Ube, crewmen said, and meager to moderate over Kure. Shimonoseki offered no ackack against the Guam-based 314th wing planes.

A total of 22 Japanese cities have now been hit in the 33 firebomb assaults which B-29s have made against the enemy homeland. Largest superfortess fleet—until today—was the 550-plan fo[illegible] which fired Tokyo May 23.

Yank Walks Into Jap Camp And Asks 'Em to Surrender

Manila, July 2 (A. P.).—A First Cavalry Division officer—Lieut. Terrill E. Price Jr. of Ridley Park, Pa.—walked boldly into an enemy camp in the wilds of central Luzon and talked for ten minutes with a Japanese colonel in an effort to induce him to surrender his men; and when he saw his efforts were not succeeding he shot his way to freedom with a forty-five.

The surrender venture began when a Formosan captured by Price's platoon told an interpreter that he had a hundred friends who would surrender if a lieutenant approached them. With the Formosan and the interpreter, Price set out for the enemy lines with riflemen bringing up the rear. An hour later at the Formosan's call, a Japanese emerged from the brush, bowed, accepted a cigarette and told Price there were sixty Japanese on a small hill just ahead.

"My platoon was about 300 yards back and under cover," Price said. "The guerrilla interpreter and I went on along."

They crawled over a barbed wire fence and through a hedgerow to face several uniformed Japanese standing in front of a small shack. A Japanese lieutenant walked out of the shack with a gun in his hand. Two more followed him and a third rounded the corner with rifles leveled.

Told 'Em War Was Over.

"I told the Lieutenant if he'd take me to his commanding officer we could get on with the surrender business. I told him the war had ended three days ago."

Price and his interpreter were taken to one captain and then to another and there were messengers coming and going.

"We thought they were beginning to believe the war was over when they asked rather than ordered us to come on another 500 yards—but first to unload our guns."

The interpreter unloaded his carbine. Price pulled back his slide and ejected one round from the chamber leaving seven rounds in the clip but the Jap appeared satisfied and led them to the colonel.

Ordered Two Holes Dug.

"The colonel was seated on the ground at the bank of a river in a cocoanut grove with a saber beside him," the cavalryman said. "The colonel and my interpreter talked for about ten minutes and I could see things weren't going too well. Finally the colonel got up and after a brisk exchange of salutes and orders walked away. My interpreter told me the colonel had ordered two holes dug—perhaps our graves."

Price wanted to make a break but his guerrilla companion was reluctant to do so without arms. Finally, the Japanese agreed to let the interpreter get in touch with some Japanese who had a radio near by. He made off and Price waited for ten minutes. Alarmed, he went into action.

He hurled his steel helmet at one of three officers and put a bullet in the stomach of one of two guards. The second and third shots felled two remaining officers. Then he started a wild sprint back to the American lines with the sentinel and the rest of the Japanese in the area shooting at him. He scooted through a coconut grove for 200 yards, raced across a camote field, dropped below the river bank and crawled back to his own lines.

Jap Prisoners Predict Peace

Enemy Casualties in Philippines Reach 419,035; Remnants Crack

MANILA, July 2, (AP)—With scattered Japanese units cracking before the steady advance of Americans and Filipino guerrillas, enemy losses in the Philippines have risen to 419,035, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said today.

The total includes 9,774 prisoners, some of whom are predicting an early peace.

The enemy retained several strongholds on Luzon in the mountains northeast of the Summer capital, Baguio, including Bontoc, Mankayan and Kiangan. Resistance at Kiangan was reported weakening, however.

Most American forces were resting after their long campaign. In the Cagayan valley fighting was principally between guerrillas and isolated bands of disorganized Japanese.

A War Department intelligence officer, Col. Albert L. Warner, said American forces have lost 11,715 killed and 1,131 missing in the Philippines campaign—a ratio of 31 Japanese dead for every American dead or missing. His estimate of Japanese dead was 300,000.

JAP PRISONERS SAY SURRENDER IS DUE

Manila, July 2 (A. P.).—Some Japanese prisoners captured or surrendering voluntarily in the Philippines expect the war to end "next month" with Japan's surrender, it was learned today at 37th Division headquarters. The prisoners talked freely through interpreters, he said, and most of them discussed the possibility of a new Japanese Cabinet being formed soon to seek peace.

They agreed that Prince Kanoye might head such a cabinet, and termed him a friend of the common people of Japan.

American officers pointed out, however, that the views of Japanese soldiers who have been isolated for six months and exposed to America's overwhelming power in the Philippines cannot be expected to represent the views of Japanese in the homeland.

OSMENA SIGNS BILL THANKING AMERICA

Manila, July 2 (A. P.).—President Sergio Osmena signed joint resolution No. 1 of the Philippine Congress today and issued a statement which said:

"I have signed a resolution expressing our gratitude to the Government and the people of the United States for our liberation, and placing all our manpower resources at their disposal for the prosecution of the war against Japan."

The Commonwealth President continued, "the resolution represents the spontaneous and unanimous feeling of our people toward the great nation that has given them the largest measure of self-government known in colonial history."

Osmena said the Philippines were well on the course toward independence when the Japs struck, overwhelmed and occupied his country, but "without the least vacillation the Government of the United States pledged all resources at its command to the task of rescuing us from the tyrant and reiterated its solemn commitment to grant us our independence."

AMERICANS ON LUZON BAG 4 ENEMY TANKS

MANILA, Tuesday, July 3 (AP)—American troops and Filipino guerrillas tightened their lines around Japanese remnants cut off in the Cordillera Mountains northeast of the summer capital of Baguio in northern Luzon, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué reported today.

Farther east other American forces knocked out four enemy tanks and captured a number of vehicles as they chased Japanese troops, beaten in the battle of the Cagayan Valley, deeper into the foothills of the Sierra Madras.

The screws also were tightened on the southern Philippines island of Mindanao, where the fleeing Japanese were encircled around the village of Waloe.

The Japanese were expected to try to regroup their tired and beaten forces in this area in the wild Agusan River Valley of eastern Mindanoa. Guerrillas pushed within less than a mile of Waloe without stirring up a fight.

ALCOHOL PLANTS ON FORMOSA HIT

MANILA, Tuesday, July 3.—(AP) Unrelenting heavy bomber raids have knocked out 90 per cent of Formosa's alcohol production capacity in one more blow at Japan's shrinking fuel supplies, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

His communique reported that a raid on the island completed the destruction of the big Heito sugar alcohol plant, which went up in what was described as "five tremendous explosions."

Fifth Air Force and Seventh fleet Liberators hit the naval base of Mako in the Pescadores for the second day in a row Saturday.

The around - the - clock aerial blockade of the Asiatic coast, extended now all the way from Shanghai southwestward to the Malay peninsula, sank eight coastal freighters and three luggers in 24 hours.

To the south, the tempo of neutralizing attacks was rising as heavy bombers blasted airdromes on the Celebes day and night and other heavies turned their attention on Malang air base in eastern Java.

A seaplane base on the nearby Kangean islands also was struck and explosions were reported.

COMMANDS LISTED IN RYUKYUS FORCES

Nimitz Announces Organization Under Stilwell

Guam, Tuesday, July 2 (AP)—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz today announced the following command organization under Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, commanding the 10th Army and Ryukyus forces:

Rear Admiral C. H. Cobb, commanding naval forces in the Ryukyus.

Maj. Gen. Louis E. Woods, Marine Corps, commanding Tactical Air Force.

Maj. Gen. F. G. Wallace, Army, Okinawa Island command.

Nimitz announced also that Vice Admiral J. B. Olendorf was commanding 3d Fleet forces now in the Ryukyus.

Title Added For Richardson

Honolulu, July 2 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., commanding United States Army Forces in Pacific Ocean Areas, announced today that he had been given title of commander of United States Army Forces in the Middle Pacific.

The new Middle Pacific command was created by Gen. Douglas MacArthur along with the Western Pacific command under Lieut. Gen. Wilhelm D. Steyer.

Richardson retains his title as army commander of Pacific Ocean Areas and commander of the Hawaiian Department, however, as in some cases his Pacific Ocean Areas command will report to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Richardson said Okinawa was within his command and that he would supply and train some of the troops to be used in future landings in either China or Japan.

CORSAIRS DOWN 8 JAP FIGHTERS

GUAM, Tuesday, July 3.—(AP) Search privateers destroyed or damaged eight more Japanese vessels as they ranged from China to Japan in a strangling blockade of enemy shipping lanes, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported today.

Fleet Air Wing One has destroyed 137,875 tons and damaged 138,400 tons of Japanese shipping in the Okinawa area since it began operations there, the Admiral said, as well as destroying 37 enemy planes and damaging 26.

Marine Corsairs ranged again over Kyushu Monday, shooting down eight Japanese fighters, while other Okinawa-based tactical air force planes struck again at the Sakishima islands off Formosa.

Included in Fleet Air Wing One's newest kills were a small oiler and three small cargo ships left burning and sinking in Tsushima straits, a small river steamer sunk in Hangchow bay, and a destroyer escort damaged off Shanghai.

Okinawa Fighting Is Not Yet Ended

OKINAWA, July 2, (AP)—The American conquest of Okinawa was "a decisive victory" in which "our troops slugged their way through and proved again what we already know—that the Jap has no chance against Americans," Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell declared today.

Stilwell has assumed active command of the victorious 10th Army to which he was appointed several days ago in succession to the late Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner Jr.

Calling the Okinawa campaign, in which Buckner was killed, on June 18, "the most severe fighting to date in the Pacific," Stilwell warned that "organized resistance on Okinawa crumbled as announced on June 21, but that does not mean the complete cessation of hostilities by any means.

"The Japs do not quit in a body; they have to be chopped up until there are none left.

"Since June 21 their continued resistance in small groups has cost them 16,000 men, and we, of course, have not got off scot free.

"As elsewhere, mopping-up operations must continue for a long time before we can be sure this island is clear."

ERNIE PYLE HONORED IN RYUKYUS AND U. S.

IE ISLAND, the Ryukyus, July 2 (AP)—Soldiers of the United States Seventy-seventh Infantry Division dedicated a monument today to Ernie Pyle on the spot where he was killed by a Japanese sniper bullet April 18.

The concrete monument, replacing a painted board sign that was erected at the time of the correspondent's death, bears two brass plaques made from shell casings. One contains the Statue of Liberty shoulder patch design of the Seventy-seventh, the other reads:

"On this spot the Seventy-seventh Infantry Division lost a buddy, Ernie Pyle, April 18, 1945."

A combat engineer group of the division erected the monument.

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—The award of a posthumous medal of merit to Ernie Pyle, war correspondent, was announced today by the Army, Navy and the State Department.

It will be presented tomorrow night to Mrs. Pyle, who will fly here from Denver for the ceremony. The presentation will take place after the National Press Club's preview of the film, Ernie Pyle's "Story of G. I. Joe."

Balikpapan Is Old Story For Amphibious Troops

Borneo Landing Marked 2d Anniversary for 7th Force

ABOARD [illegible] ADMIRAL BARBEY'S FLAGSHIP, July 1 (Delayed) (AP).—The 7th Amphibious Force celebrated an anniversary off Balikpapan today.

Just two years and one day ago a few ships operating on untried principles inaugurated amphibious warfare as now employed in this theater. In a night shoestring operation a considerable body of troops landed June 30, 1943, on Woodlark Island, 180 miles east of the eastern tip of New Guinea.

Vice-Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, commander of the amphibious force, recalled events since as he watched the tremendous array of power for today's landing.

The 7th Amphibious force has now completed fifty-three landings—all of them equal to or larger than Tarawa. Losses, said Barbey, have been "very modest for the result achieved, both in ships and men." The operations include the Lingayen landing on Jan. 9, 1945, one of the largest amphibious operations in military history.

In the initial Woodlark operation twenty-eight ships protected by only four destroyers slipped into the beach at night, risking mines in order to maintain the surprise element. The landing was unopposed.

Today more than 200 ships are assembled off the landing beach in broad daylight under the intensive supporting fire of warships and planes. The Japanese were forewarned sixteen days by minesweeping activities, aerial and surface attacks.

MARINE COLONEL KILLED BY SNIPER

MEZADO RIDGE, Southern Okinawa, June 18 (Delayed) (AP)—A Japanese sniper killed Col. Harold C. Roberts, 46-year-old commander of the Sixth Marine division's Twenty-second Regiment, today at almost the same hour when a Japanese shell killed Lieut. Gen. Simon B. Buckner, the Tenth Army's commander, 800 yards away.

Corp. Vincent Mullahy of Newport, R. I., a Marine Corps correspondent, said that Colonel Roberts had been killed in a sudden burst of activity by Japanese snipers. Within a few hours they also killed a second lieutenant commanding one of Colonel Roberts' companies. Several enlisted men were wounded.

Shortly after Colonel Roberts had been killed, the second in command, Col. August Larson of Sherburn, Minn., was dazed but uninjured when a shell from a Japanese grenade-discharger narrowly missed him.

Colonel Roberts, a Navy enlisted man in the first World War, was one of the most decorated men in the Marine Corps. His father, George Fenn Roberts, was Professor of Medicine at the University of Buffalo. The colonel is survived by his widow, Faith, and his daughter, Katherine, of Coronado, Calif.

FOUR ARE DECORATED

313TH BOMB WING, B-29 base, Tinian—(AP) Decorations for members of the 313th bombardment wing, the 21st bomber command unit responsible for bottling up Japanese harbors with parachuted mines, were announced here. Those honored for "meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flights during combat missions against the Japanese Empire" included:

Connecticut—

S-Sgt. Daniel V. Manfredi, Middletown, (gunner)—second oak leaf cluster to Air medal.

S-Sgt. Donald P. Ward, New London, (radio operator)—second oak leaf cluster to Air medal.

Capt. John A. Bierkan, New Britain, (airplane commander)—oak leaf cluster to Air medal.

Lt. Kenneth F. Grogan, Hartford, (navigator)—oak leaf cluster to Air medal.

Plans to Ratify Charter Sped In All Capitals

JUL 3 1945

Many May Not Wait for U. S., Russia Expected To Be Among the First

LONDON, July 2 (AP).—Quick ratification of the United Nations charter appeared certain today in the capitals of virtually all the nations which took part in shaping it at San Francisco.

From Russia to Peru, government leaders are setting in motion machinery for formal approval, and it is possible that every nation will have acted by late fall.

All capitals expressed interest in the drive for quick indorsement in the United States Senate, but no government spokesman suggested that his government might wait to see what the United States would do.

Associated Press correspondent Eddy Gilmore, in Moscow, reported that "What the United States does or what is said in debate there certainly is not likely to affect Russia's stand one iota." He added that the Soviet Union "undoubtedly will be one of the first nations to approve the charter."

The Supreme Soviet met only recently and no longer is in session, but, in the intervals between its meetings, its praesdium has full authority to act.

Slight Delay in Britain

The only delay in Britain's formal acceptance probably will be the interlude before the new parliament convenes Aug. 1. The British Cabinet's approval of treaties is announced formally in Commons.

Even quicker action is probable in France, where an official spokesman said General Charles de Gaulle's government could ratify the pact merely through publication in the official journal after approval by the Cabinet, with no action by the consultative assembly needed.

In Chungking, China's ratification is expected shortly and without the slightest hitch, Associated Press correspondent Spencer Moosa reported.

The official Chinese text has not yet reached Chungking, but the English version has been cabled to the capital, translated there and brought to the attention of Won Wen-Hao, acting president of the legislative Yuan—the first step in the ratification procedure.

Action in China

Mr. Won will refer it to the Supreme National Defense Council, which met today. The council, after discussion and approval, will refer the charter to the Yuan for scrutiny and concurrence and it then would go to President Chiang Kai-shek for final approval.

Ratification in Belgium and Norway must await parliamentary elections in the fall, but the new government in Holland has announced that one of its first steps will be creation of an emergency parliament, which would have authority to ratify.

Denmark's Riksdagen, now in session, is expected to act promptly after Danish delegates return to Copenhagen from San Francisco.

Greece's government for several days has been debating whether to ratify the pact at once or wait until the election of a general assembly, whose approval, some Greeks said, could be given in an atmosphere of greater solemnity and formality.

Action by Great Britain's dominions appeared to hinge solely on legislative procedure. Canada's new Parliament meets in August or September. New Zealand's is now in session. The Parliament of

...e Union of South Africa normally would not convene until January, but a special session may be called. Australian ratification would require Parliamentary deliberation.

In Egypt, the government's large majority in Parliament is expected to win ratification despite opposition from the Wafdist party, which has contended that the charter duplicates existing Egyptian commitments and thus is not helpful.

Middle Eastern States

Reports reaching Cairo indicated that other middle Eastern states would indorse the pact quickly.

There was no important opposition in South America.

Argentina's Foreign Minister, Cesar Ameghino, said last Wednesday that ratification could be expected "soon," presumably by an executive decree by President Edelmiro Farrell.

The charter will be put before Peru's new Congress when it convenes July 28 coincident with the induction of the new President, Jose Luis Bustamante, who has expressed interest in quick ratification.

In Ecuador, Congressional ratification is necessary, and the Constituent Assembly has voted that Congress will not meet until August, 1946, except in exceptional circumstances. A special session, however, could be called.

Brazil's President, Getulio Vargas, has power to ratify the charter by executive decree, and his foreign ministry said he is expected to do so soon.

Chile's congressional ratification is expected to follow Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez's return late in July from San Francisco and visits elsewhere in North America.

Mexico's congress convenes in September and is expected to indorse the agreement quickly.

Columbia's Congress may act next week. The body already is in special session, and consideration of the charter is on the agenda.

Cuba's ratification must be by its Congress, which does not meet in regular session until late in September. Several political parties have asked for a special session.

Labor Party Committee Hercker Made Issue

London, July 2 (AP)—In an exchange of personal letters virtually on the eve of Thursday's general elections, Prime Minister Churchill asked Clement R. Attlee, Labor party leader, tonight what control the party's executive committee would exercise over a labor government, and Attlee replied "none."

Churchill's letter reiterated his recent suggestion that the 27-man executive committee of the opposition party would be made privy to the highest state secrets and called upon the former deputy prime minister in the coalition government to say whether the committee would dictate government foreign policy.

Attlee said Commons would determine policy under a Labor government and asserted that neither the committee nor its chairman, Prof. Harold Laski, had authority to instruct members of Parliament.

Attlee's Reply

The Laborite, who might be Churchill's successor as Prime Minister in the event of a Labor victory, declared that Churchill's concern over the issue was due to what he termed "his lack of acquaintance with procedures of democratic parties in general and the Labor party in particular."

Meanwhile Churchill campaigned through London for the city's millions of votes, reiterating his plea for a heavy Conservative party majority to give him "the power to speak for Britain" in world councils.

Press association estimated that 1,000,000 Londoners cheered the Prime Minister, who was perched on the rolled-down top of an open car.

"Dictator" Charge

Laborite Arthur Greenwood told other Londoners in a campaign speech that Churchill's campaign methods were "those of a dictator," because "he has endeavored to make the election a personal matter, rendering his followers ciphers with no contribution to make to the struggle."

Laborite Herbert Morrison struck the same theme, countering a heckler's cry of "vote for Churchill" with the statement that "we are voting for a Parliament and not for a Führer."

Atlee campaigned, too, asking London voters to "give us the chance to govern—we've never had it," and his lieutenant, Ernest Bevin, campaigned on national issues.

Committee Of 27

Churchill's letter said he had never been aware during the coalition government of any case in which the National Executive Committee had demanded secret information from (Labor) ministers," but that since this campaign opened, "we have learned a great deal more than we knew before about the powers vested in the National Executive Committee.

"It would appear," he said, "that a Labor or Socialist government would be subject to directions of this committee and that matters of foreign affairs and also, I presume, if they desired it, military would have to be submitted to them. . . .

"When we consider the members of this committee of 27 and how very few are responsible in any way to the public or bound by any formal obligation to the state, I feel that the situation is extremely disquieting and that it ought to be explained by you to the nation. . . ."

Ballot Estimate

Churchill, deprived of his own vote by the omission of his name from the electoral register while he was out of the country, carried his fight tonight into London's constituencies. He plans speeches tomorrow and Wednesday nights also.

It is estimated that between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 ballots will be cast, with most voters choosing between the free enterprise program of Churchill's Conservatives and the Labor party's advocacy of nationalization of the Bank of England, all inland transport, coal mines and other basic industries.

Election results will not be announced, however, until July 26, after overseas ballots are received, some from as far away as Burma. Balloting already has started among the armed forces overseas.

"Vote Of Thanks"

First of the Laborites to speak tonight was Emanuel Shinwell, who told voters, "do not let us make the mistake of handing over to Mr. Churchill on silver a victory for the Tory party."

Shinwell said "a vote of thanks to Churchill would be reasonable, but to give one to the Tory party would not only be nonsensical—it would prove to be the most tragic thing that happened to the nation since Mr. Lloyd-George succumbed to the Tory party in 1918, which led to the disasters of the inter-war years.

Attlee, who might succeed him as prime minister if the Labor party triumphs in the general election Thursday, as both Conservative and Labor leaders concentrated their last efforts toward winning London's millions of votes.

Attlee, who was deputy prime minister in the wartime coalition government, last night assailed Churchill for suggesting that if the Laborites won, the non-parliamentary members of the Labor party's 27-man executive committee might be made privy to highly secret military and state affairs.

CHURCHILL QUESTIONS ATTLEE ON LABOR PLAN

LONDON, July 2—(AP) Prime Minister Churchill, making an election issue of how the Labor party might handle foreign and military affairs, tonight asked opposition leader Clement Attlee to explain what controls his party's executive committee could exercise over a Labor government.

8 NAZIS WHO KILLED NON-NAZI ON TRIAL

London, July 2 (A. P.).—Eight German prisoners of war went on trial before a British military court today on a charge of trying and executing a fellow prisoner in a Scottish camp because he said that he was not a Nazi. The eight non-commissioned defendants pleaded not guilty to charges of murder.

Major Ral Hillard, prosecutor, told the court that Sergt. Wolfgang Rostberg was questioned by the other prisoners on whether he was a Nazi on his arrival at the camp last December 23 and that he replied, "No."

The next morning, Hillard said, a mock trial was held and Rostberg was told "if he had any honor he would hang himself," but he refused. A rope was tied around Rostberg's neck, the prosecutor said, and he was beaten, then dragged sixty feet to the lavatory, where his body was found hanging from a pipe.

Five non-coms on trial are charged with being present at the hanging, and all are accused of "pursuance of a common design to cause the death of Rostberg." The deputy judge-advocate, with six British officers sitting as a court, said that he wanted the prisoners to have a fair trial and know what was going on. Two British captains were called in as interpreters.

8 GERMANS TRIED IN CAMP HANGING

Prisoners in Britain Accused of Having Executed Captive Who Rejected Nazism

LONDON, July 2 (AP)—Eight young German non-commissioned officers were accused today of having established their own court in a British prisoner-of-war camp and of having hanged a fellow-prisoner because he had refused to "pay any attention" to Hitler's National Socialism.

Defiant and scowling, the defendants pleaded not guilty to charges of murder, and heard witnesses tell a British tribunal of six army officers how Sgt. Wolfgang Rosterg had been put to death after having been condemned as a "traitor."

The witnesses, whose names were kept secret after some expressed fears that the Nazi underground would seek revenge on them or their families, said Rosterg's body was found hanging from a pipe in a prison camp lavatory the day after his arrival there on Dec. 23, 1944.

The witnesses gave this account of the prison camp trial:

Rosterg, who had traveled extensively and could speak seven languages, immediately received the "third degree" upon his arrival in camp. When asked whether he was a Nazi, Rosterg answered "no," and added that he had "moved about enough in the world and had seen enough things not to pay any more attention to National Socialism."

The eight defendants, led by an SS man, then proceeded to determine "what was wrong" with Rosterg. A rope was fastened around his neck in the leader's camp hut and shouts of "traitor, swine and rogue" were heard.

One of the accused then announced, "We are doing it all quietly and gently. He has signed something about his having to hang himself. But he doesn't know that yet."

The witnesses said Rosterg refused to commit suicide, was knocked to the ground, and one of the defendants knelt upon his breast and tried to choke him while others kicked him in the face. Later Rosterg was dragged sixty feet through mud to a lavatory where he was hanged just before dawn, they told the court.

Agreement Reported On War Crime Trials

LONDON, July 2 (AP).—A responsible informant said today that the four major Western powers had reached general agreement on the American plan for a collective trial of German war leaders before an international military tribunal.

There was no official statement as the powers started their second week of conferences on plans for the prosecution. An American delegation spokesman reported "good progress."

TESCHEN AREA TREATY URGED

Russia Insists On Agreement By Czechs And Poles

London, July 2 (AP)—Zdeneu Fierlinger, Czechoslovak Prime Minister, said tonight in a Prague broadcast reported by the Czechoslovak news service that Russia had assured Czechoslovakia she had a full right to her pre-Munich frontiers but insisted the Czech dispute with Poland over the Teschen district must be settled by mutual agreement.

The broadcast was the Prime Minister's first report to the Czechoslovak nation since his return from a conference with the Poles in Moscow. He gave no indication that the Teschen dispute was nearer settlement, saying only that the Poles still claimed a Polish majority in the area.

In Dispute For Generations

Teschen, in dispute for many generations, was taken over by Poland from Czechoslovakia in 1938 shortly after Munich.

The Prime Minister also disclosed that the Czechoslovak delegation in Moscow had claimed the German areas of Kladsko (Glatz), Ratibor and Hlubcice. "If we consider that Poland is going to get large slices of the territories of Upper Silesia, not to speak of East Prussia and Pomerania, then our claim to German areas is utterly fair and just," he said.

Russia advised the delegation that these claims must be settled at the peace conference.

Withdrawals Indicated

Regarding Teschen, the Prime Minister said . . . "that historically pure Czech region" . . . "was an indispensible part of the economic whole of our state."

Fierlinger said Premier Stalin had informed Czechoslovakia that "within the next few days all Soviet troops would be concentrated along the German frontier and the American demarcation line." He added that he understood the Americans also planned an early withdrawal into their occupation zones, leaving the interior of the country.

BRITAIN GAINS ON SOLDIER SPENDING

London, July 2 (A. P.).—The impressive spending power of American troops has helped Great Britain to build reserves in dollars, Sir John Anderson, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce today.

As American forces came into the sterling area, he said, Great Britain gave them local supplies and services free as reciprocal aid, but "they had an impressive spending power of dollars and these dollars have formed a very large part of additions to our reserves that we have been able to build up."

Anderson said Britain's reserves now were better but "they still are substantially less than when war broke out." He predicted that Great Britain and all countries "associated with us" in war would be short of dollars immediately after the war for purchase of goods and products from the North American continent.

Britain's financial position had changed "gravely" during the war in another respect, he said, as Great Britain had incurred an enormous financial indebtedness in sterling to a large number of countries. He said it already had reached $12,000,000,000 and would be even larger before the war is over.

Maintaining that most of the debt had been incurred entirely for war purposes, he added, "90 per cent is owed to our Allies and associates in the war."

"We asked each sterling area country to restrict their claim on us for dollars to essential needs," he said, "but we have accepted their claims as they came forward and have put dollars at their disposal."

Tokyo Reports Downing 3 U. S. Women Pilots

Outfits Are So Smart They're Credited to Walt Disney

LONDON, July 2 (AP).—The Tokyo radio said today three American aircraft piloted by women had been shot down over Kweilin, China. "Thus it is assumed that a shortage of American air crews is so acute that women are now being employed on operational duties," said the broadcast.

Walt Disney Dresses

The planes were flown by American girls dressed "in smart outfits which may have been designed by Walt Disney because they were so natty," said a Tokyo broadcast heard in San Francisco by the Federal Communications Commission.

Tokyo declared this "amazing fact" came to light when women pilots raided Kweilin last Saturday. "Since they were women," the report concluded, "their aerial technique was inferior, and they immediately fell prey to Japanese flak."

Britain Breaks Bad News To Italy's New Premier

PNEUMATIC BREAKWATERS

Used by Allies to Control Waves on Normandy Invasion

LONDON, July 2 (AP)—The Allies' invasion forces used pneumatic breakwaters to control waves on the beaches during the Normandy invasion, Sir George Beharrell, chairman of the Dunlop Rubber Company, Ltd., disclosed today.

He said that the breakwaters were 200 feet long and twenty-five feet high and were the largest single inflatable rubber units ever made. Clamped to concrete keels set in line, a number of these units can reduce a six-foot wave to one foot, he said.

Ten-Horsepower Austin Sedan En Route to New York

LONDON, July 2 (AP).—The first British post-war car, a ten-horsepower Austin sedan, is en route to New York. J. L. Green, New York distributor of the automobile, said he wanted all the British small cars he could get for American buyers.

Green flew to England to negotiate with Austin manufacturers at Birmingham soon after a government announcement of resumption of private car manufacture in England.

Tommy Who Strangled Faithless Wife Freed

Nottingham, England, July 2 (AP). A British soldier accused of strangling his wife when he returned from overseas and found her bearing another man's baby was acquitted tonight of a murder charge.

"The provocation was such that an ordinary, frail man might have done what he did," the court said in discharging 24-year-old Reginald Keymer. "While her husband, a very excellent man, was overseas fighting, she was consorting with other men."

said that members of the United States Control Group were moving to Berlin with the troops and within ten days would be in a position to place their proposals before the representatives of Russia, Britain and France.

The American program for the decentralization of Germany—both politically and economically—calls for breaking Germany down into a number of "lander," or militarily impotent districts. Work has already begun on breaking up the American occupied western district—one of two military areas over which the American Army will have control—into three "lander." American regional commanders will take control over all German governmental agencies within their own regions.

Reds in Magdeburg.

Advices from Frankfurt said that a similar policy was expected to be carried out throughout Germany as soon as the program can be adopted by the Quadripartite Control Council in Berlin. "We are certain that Russia, Britain and Frence feel a great deal of sympathy for the policy of decentralization," one member of the United States group was quoted as saying.

It is expected here that the movement of American troops to Berlin will be completed by Wednesday, the Fourth of July, and that the withdrawal of forces of the western Allies from areas allotted to the Russians will be completed at the same time.

SHAEF Breaking Up.

While there was no official announcement concerning the identity of the American force en route to Berlin, it is understood to be the Second Armored Division. The Eighty-second Airborne Division is expected to follow, or perhaps take over the assignment later.

The British are sending their Seventh Armored (Desert Rat) Division to Berlin and a French force also is on the move. A press party of more than 100 is preparing to leave Paris for Berlin tomorrow.

The move toward Berlin coincided with an announcement that 315,000 American troops have already returned to the United States and that 185,000 more will have been added to this total by the end of July. The number sent from here direct to the Pacific remains a military secret.

Meanwhile today an authoritative spokesman said that the formal dissolution of Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, awaits only Gen. Eisenhower's return from the United States. SHAEF operations are now broken into separate Army activities which will later on be correlated through the Allied Control Council, on which Eisenhower will sit, along with representatives of Russia, Britain and France.

Advance American Units Enter Berlin

Paris, July 2 (AP)—Advance units of American occupation forces have entered Berlin to set up communication facilities and arrange billeting for the veterans of World War II scheduled to march into the German capital tomorrow, it was disclosed tonight.

Supreme headquarters revealed that a mobile radio transmitter was sent ahead with an advance party of troops, and Press Wireless, Inc., announced in New York that the station had been set up in Berlin. SHAEF said the advance party had been sent ahead to arrange billeting for the main body of troops.

The mobile transmitter will handle the file of some 200 Allied correspondents who are due to enter the city with main American, British, Canadian and French forces tomorrow and Wednesday.

The main occupation forces of the western Allies already were either trekking toward the capital or were awaiting the signal to leave their positions.

EASTLAND'S CHARGES HIT

SHAEF Has No Knowledge of Offenses Laid to Negroes

PARIS, July 2 (AP)—Supreme Headquarters said today it had "no knowledge" of an allege incident in Stuttgart to which Senator James O. Eastland, Democrat, of Mississippi, referred last Friday in a Senate debate, when he said that French Senegelese troops had locked 5,000 German girls in a subway for five days and criminally assaulted them.

SHAEF also had no comment on Mr. Eastland's statement that it had been necessary to disarm "a good many Negro soldiers in Normandy" because they had broken into French farmhouses and attacked French women. It was pointed out, however, that there were no Negro combat troops in the Normandy campaign. The only Negroes used there were service troops.

250,000 TROOPS PASS THROUGH LE HAVRE

PARIS, July 2 (AP)—More than 250,000 troops passed through the embarkation port of Le Havre for the United States up to the end of June, Col. Thomas J. Weed of the port command announced today.

The quarter million mark was passed on Saturday, when the United States Army transport Wakefield sailed with 6,958 troops.

"We have a number of handicaps," Colonel Weed said, "but we expect that we may embark over 1,500,000 troops from this port for the States in the next six months."

Four full divisions, the Eighty-sixth, Ninety-fifth, Ninety-seventh and 104th, have cleared through the port. The Eighth Division is now loading and six others, the Second, Fourth, Fifth, Forty-fourth, Eighty-seventh and Thirteenth Armored, are listed for redeployment through Le Havre.

3,260,000 Homeless Restored in Europe

Paris, July 2 (A. P.).—Supreme Headquarters anounced today that 3,260,000 of the homeless have returned to their lands and that 2,530,000 remain to be sent back.

The announcement also said that 91,000 American and 168,400 British prisoners of war had been recovered and that virtually all were home or on their way home.

Dispatches from Frankfurt

Former International Status Of Tangier Will Be Restored

Madrid, July 2 (AP)—General Franco has called a meeting of the Spanish Cabinet tomorrow with the session expected to last through the British elections Thursday.

Washington, July 2 (AP) — The Allies are about to end Spain's control of Tangier, where Francisco Franco made a grab to dominate the Straits of Gibraltar when it seemed that Britain had lost the war.

The plan is to work out a British-French-United States program for restoring the strategic stretch of the northwest African coast to its former international status, and then tell Franco how it is going to be done.

Soviet Union Asks Role

That is the purpose of conversations in Paris which the State Department announced today will get under way immediately. Russia may come into the picture, too. The British Foreign Office said the Soviet Union had asked to be included in the talks and the request is being considered.

With France crumbling before Nazi armies and Britain seemingly headed for the same fate, Franco moved Spanish troops into the international area June 14, 1940. He announced his action as intended to preserve the "neutrality" of the 147-square-mile area, only 29 miles from Gibraltar.

Since 1923 the area commanding the entrance to the Mediterranean had been an international settlement with Britain, France, Italy and Spain as the principal administrative powers.

No Spanish Participants

Today's State Department announcement was bluntly worded, mentioning that Franco moved in "by unilateral action," and stating that in view of the end of the European war "there no longer appears to be any justification for the continued occupation by the Spanish of the international zone."

The statement said Spain has "already indicated its desire to regularize the situation" and shown an inclination to negotiate with the United States, Britain and France to that end.

But the informal conversations in Paris apparently will have no Spanish participants.

Early Communication

"It is expected," the State Department said, "that the conclusions reached by the three powers participating in the present conversations will be communicated to the Spanish Government at an early date."

The United States, disliking the representation offered, had not taken part in the former international administration, but had advised Spain that it reserved all rights under Moroccan treaties.

There have been recent reports that Spanish troops already are being withdrawn from Tangier.

U. S. WILL HELP RESTORE TANGIER

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—Strategic Tangier, seized by Spain in 1940, is going to be restored to its former international status. When Britain, the United States and France decide how they intend to bring this about, they will notify Spain.

That is the gist of a State Department announcement which today bluntly recalled that on June 14, 1940, Spanish military forces by unilateral decision occupied Tangier to preserve its neutrality. The department has repeatedly stated its dislike of one-sided decisions in such matters.

Today's announcement said that since the European war has ended, "there no longer appears to be any justification for the continued occupation by the Spanish of the international zone," which is composed of 147 square miles on the northwest coast of Africa within twenty-nine miles of Gibraltar.

Accordingly, the announcement continued, Britain and France have invited the United States to an informal conference to be held in Paris immediately to consider what should be done with the zone. The announcement added that Spain would be informed of the results of the Paris conference "at an early date."

State Department Views

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—A State Department annuncement today concerning the future status of Tangier said:

"On June 14, 1940, Spanish military forces, by unilateral decision of the Spanish government, occupied the international zone of Tangier and notified the statutory powers that this action had been taken as a result of Spain's desire to preserve the neutrality of the zone during the war in which the other major interested powers—Great Britain, France and Italy—were then engaged.

"The United States had not become a party to the international regime then governing Tangier, but, in view of its special position in Morocco deriving from a series of treaties to which it is a party, the American government made it clear to the Spanish government thtat it reserved all rights under those treaties during the provisional occupation by Spain.

"In view of the fact that the European war has been terminated, there no longer appears to be any justification for the continued occupation by the Spanish of the international zone. Accordingly on the invitation of the British and French governments, an informal meeting has been arranged between American representatives and representatives of those two governments for the purpose of discussing action to be taken in connection with the future disposition of the zone.

"Mr. Henry S. Villard, chief of the African division of the Department of State; Mr. J. Rives Childs, until recently American charge d'affaires at Tangier, and Mr. Ernest J. Dempster, of the American legation at Tangier, are representing the United States government in these conversations, which will take place immediately in Paris.

"The Spanish government has already indicated its desire to regularize the situation in Tangier and has indicated that it is disposed to enter into negotiations with the United States, Great Britain and France to that end. It is expected that the conclusions reached by the three powers participating in the present conversations will be communicated to the Spanish government at an early date."

Pact Between China and Soviet Is Expected From Soong's Visit

By The Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 2—A high foreign diplomatic source said today that the present conversations of Chinese Premier T. V. Soong with Russian officials covered virtually every issue of Chinese-Russian policy and predicted the talks would bring "most heartening news to anyone interested in inter-Allied relations."

The source said many problems of common interest would be threshed out before the conversations were concluded.

The diplomat, well-informed on the current talks, said the arrangement of an alliance or pact between China and the Soviet Union was "not beyond possibility."

He stressed that Premier Soong's first meeting with Premier Stalin had been most encouraging and said the spirit in which Mr. Stalin received the Chinese Premier should be applauded by all peoples interested in seeing closer unity among Russia, China, the United States and Britain.

SOVIET TROOPS NOW RULE MAGDEBURG

Magdeburg, Germany, July 2 (A. P.).—Russian infantry and cavalry crossed the Elbe River on the American-built Friendship Bridge today and took possession of Magdeburg, center of Germany's synthetic oil industry, while the Germans remained in their homes under a British-imposed curfew. The Red Army's entry into the city, captured by the Americans, and occupied by the British last month, was part of the readjustment of occupation zones in Germany.

THEATERS REOPEN

21ST ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, Germany, July 2—(AP) Theaters and places of entertainment now are being reopened for German civilians in the British area of occupation, it was announced today.

Permits for public gatherings, subject to normal security regulations, must be obtained from military government authorities before any show can be given. The first public entertainments were held yesterday in Hamburg and Hannover, where German musicians gave symphonic concerts. In Hamburg, the boxoffice was sold out of its 2,000 seats in three hours.

RUSSIANS FINE PRIEST

MOSCOW, July 2—(AP) Father Leopold M. Braun, formerly of Worcester Mass., now pastor of Moscow's Roman Catholic church of St. Louis des Francais, was convicted today of assaulting the Russian janitor of the French embassy. He was fined 100 rubles.

Father Braun was tried by a court consisting of three women judges. The janitor said that the priest had attacked him, and produced a medical certificate which indicated that his nose had been broken as the result of the attack.

First Demobilized Reds Reach Home

Moscow, July 2 (A. P.).—The first groups of demobilized Red Army veterans began leaving their units and arriving home today. Tass, from Leningrad, said each town and village had a special fund earmarked for housing for returning soldiers to draw upon. Soldiers returning to collective farms will find a pig as a present.

German Leaders Continue Feuds

Wiesbaden, Germany, July 2 (AP). Feuds and bitter personal animosities that split the German general staff during the final phases of the war did not end with the capitulation, but instead are being continued with vigor in captivity, it was learned today.

Most of the general staff, headed by Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, has been assembled on an acre of ground in the home of the late Gen. Diego von Bergen, former German Ambassador to the Holy See. Individual members are being interrogated there. Already the officers have fallen into two cliques with each ignoring the presence of the other.

Cleavage Dates To Bomb Plot

When Gen. George von Thomas arrived he received a note from von Rundstedt asking him to forget an earlier incident in which the field marshal had presided over a Wehrmacht court of honor hearing for von Thomas and others. The field marshal explained that only his sense of military duty had made him preside over the court.

Von Thomas, in the presence of his American captors, read the note and tossed it into a wastebasket, saying "tell General von Rundstedt I neither wish to see him nor to speak with him."

The cleavage dates to the Hitler bomb plot of last July which resulted in the hanging of Field Marshal Erwin von Witzleben and a sentence to a concentration camp for von Thomas and others.

Not On Speaking Terms

Another ranking officer being detained at "the generals' house," as the rendezvous is called, is Gen. Franz Halder, former German chief of staff. At the time of the Sudetenland crisis he headed a panzer division which he said had orders to move into Berlin and kill or capture Hitler.

Von Rundstedt and his clique have different sittings at dinner than the clique represented by von Thomas and Halder.

Before von Rundstedt arrived Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist was the ranking officer and customarily sat at the head of the table. He sat there the night von Rundstedt arrived, but von Rundstedt moved in and grandly swept him aside.

At this time Von Kleist also occupied a room that opened into the only bathroom in their section of the house. The other generals didn't dare go through Von Kleist's room, but washed their hands in the kitchen sink.

Japanese To Be Exchanged

Return of 33 Captured Diplomats May Liberate Wainwright

SALSBURG, Austria, July 2 (AP).—Thirty-three members of the Japanese Embassy in Berlin departed by plane today for the United States to figure in a prisoner exchange, and it was suggested here that the exchange might liberate Lieutenant General Jonathan Wainwright, hero of Bataan and Corregidor.

Guards of the 3d Division, commanded by Lieutenant Robert Van Sickle, of Spokane, Wash., escorted the diplomats. In the group were General Hiroshi Oshima, Japanese Ambassador to Berlin; Admiral Hideo Kojimabara and Lieutenant General Mitsuhiki Kamatso.

The Japanese were seized at Bad Gastein in the Austrian Tyrol when Germany was falling. They had sought refuge in the south after Berlin was bombed.

Talk With King Leopold Ended By Van Zeeland

Salzburg, July 2 (AP)—Former Premier Paul Van Zeeland today left for Brussels after a three-day conference with King Leopold on the Belgian political situation.

He was accompanied by other Belgian leaders.

No statement was issued upon their departure but the mystery surrounding the King's negotiations to retain his throne deepened with the arrival here of six persons described as servants. There was no indication whether they came to help Leopold move to Brussels or to augment his staff at his chateau in the Salzkamergut Mountains.

3 American Soldiers Come Home to Budapest

JUL 3 1945

Budapest, June 20 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Three American soldiers came home to Budapest: one helped brief the Eighth Air Force bombers who shattered his native city; one was an artist and was sad at the desolation, and another was happy because he found his mother. And in the same war-wrecked city is a Hungarian housewife who is homesick for South Bend, Ind.

Sergt. Stephen Schmergel, one of Hungary's leading fencers and owner of a lumber mill, left Budapest in July, 1939, to visit his brother in New York. He was there when war was declared and was soon in the American Army.

He was wounded twice in Italy and then, because of his acquaintance with Hungarian industry, he served to brief United States Eighth Air Force bomber pilots who used to shuttle from England to Bari and then to Russia. When the American mission was formed to move into Budapest he came along as a linguist guide. The first thing he did was head for his own apartment near Kossuth Square. He found it only a little damaged by the bombs he had mapped for the city.

Saddened by Desolation.

Sergt. Andre Kormandy of 51 West 12th street, New York city, was an artist who had many one-man shows in New York. At the beginning of the war he joined a force of Army artists to portray scenes of the war. His duties led him back to his native Budapest, which he last visited in 1937, and he is saddened by the scenes of desolation.

A woman came in to the American mission's headquarters one morning and told Sergt. William Wheeler of Omaha, Neb., that she had been traveling forty-eight days by rail, horse and afoot to reach Budapest because she had a son in the American Army and she thought he might be in Budapest. She had not seen him in six years.

Wheeler gave her a piece of paper and asked her to write down her son's name. "Why, he's on our staff," he then said. So Corporal John Cukor of 2 Grand View avenue, Tuckahoe, N. Y., was reunited with his mother.

Yearns for Notre Dame.

Esther Khoajda Buzda, wife of one of the leading lawyers of Budapest and the mother of two boys, one 12, the other 4, wants to go back to South Bend, Ind.

She remembers football games at Notre Dame, a drug store on a corner, and high school. She was born in Budapest and taken to South Bend when she was two weeks old. Her father was in the Hungarian consulate in Chicago. He died and is buried in the United States. After graduation Esther Khoajda was married, but the marriage was unsuccessful and she returned to Budapest with her mother. After her child was born she obtained a divorce and later married Paul Buzda.

CZECHS ARE EXPECTED TO APPROVE RED GRANT

PRAGUE, July 2—(AP) Early ratification by the Czechoslovak government of the Czech-Russian agreement ceding the Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) to the Soviet Union was expected today.

President Edouard Benes and his council of ministers soon will recommend its approval to the National committee, a four-party group performing some of the functions of parliament in the present transitional period.

The probable demarcation line has not yet been fixed. Czechoslovakia, as a result of the agreement, probably will lose her border with Romania unless Romania later gets some Hungarian territory.

Details of the demarcation will be settled later by a Czechoslovak-Russian commission, it was understood.

ARMY SAFE IS RECOVERED

Two Fugitive Americans Accused of Theft in Italy

ROME, July 2 (AP)—Crammed with $133,000, a United States Army safe, stolen on the Rome-Florence highway, has been recovered intact and two fugitive American prisoners who escaped from a stockade have been recaptured and accused of the hold-up, headquarters announced today.

One of the recaptured prisoners, Sylvio T. Mathieu, was a member of the notorious "Lang gang" of American and Canadian Army deserters who staged a long series of hold-ups and kidnappings in 1944. The other, Rodney S. Trevanion, was serving a twelve-year prison term, it was said.

The safe was en route from Florence on June 18 in a jeep. Two hitch-hikers, said by the Army division to be Mathieu and Trevanion, held up the driver near Siena.

Mathieu and Trevanion escaped from a prison stockade at Pisa on June 15. Mathieu was serving a twenty-five-year term in connection with the activities of the "Lang gang."

Rome, July 2 (A. P.).—Departure of the United States First Armored Division from Italy to become part of the American occupation force was disclosed today.

Charter Stand on Poland Is Deplored by Vatican

Spirit of Pact, However, Wins General Approval

VATICAN CITY, July 2 (AP).—An authoritative Vatican informant said today that the San Francisco conference had caused some disappointment at the Holy See because, while the charter stressed the principle of self-determination of peoples, no mention was made of the fate of the Baltic States and Poland.

The Vatican approved of the spirit of the charter in general, the informant said, because the Holy See was favorable to any initiative aimed at guaranteeing a just peace in the world.

The creation of the Economic and Social Council is regarded by the Vatican as a "step ahead over the old League of Nations because it is designed to strike at the roots of international conflict," the informant said.

He said the Pope had made no statement for publication about the conference.

Reds Punished Bishop's Killers, Vatican Belief

Vatican City, July 2 (AP)—An official Vatican source today said Russian authorities were believed to have punished "the drunken soldiers" accused of fatally wounding the Most Reverend William Apor, Bishop of the Hungarian city of Gyor, on April 1.

The Osservator Romano said death occurred when the 53-year-old prelate was "carrying out his duties." The unofficial Vatican news service said the Bishop was attempting to protect some women from the soldiers.

GREECE WARS ON NIPS

WASHINGTON, July 2—(AP) The Greek embassy announced today that Greece considers herself at war with Japan, as of Dec. 8, 1941.

The embassy said George Chrystopoulos, first secretary of the embassy, was informing the State department that Japan has been notified of the Greek position through the Swedish embassy in Tokyo.

The embassy said Greek warships already have taken part in operations in the Indian ocean with the British fleet.

MORE CHINA COAST LOST BY JAPANESE

Chinese Are 132 Miles South of Shanghai—Foe Driven From Town North of Hong Kong

CHUNGKING, China, July 2 (AP)—The Chinese High Command indicated today that soldiers of Free China, pursuing withdrawing Japanese forces into the Hangchow Bay industrial basin, had gained up to thirty-five miles along China's "invasion coast" and reached an area 132 miles south of Shanghai.

More than 1,100 miles southwest of Shanghai, other veterans of China's widely scattered armies suffered a setback in Indo-China and were forced to withdraw from Trung Khanh Phu, seven miles inside the mountainous French colony, the High Command acknowledged.

Without specifying the exact location of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops pushing toward Shanghai, a Chinese communiqué said that the Japanese were continuing a withdrawal along the Chekiang coast after linking up with a relief force at Ninghai, 132 miles south of Shanghai.

The Japanese relief column, sent to aid enemy forces pulling out of the mainland coastal regions 380 miles west of American-held Kume island, was dispatched from Fenghwa, Chiang Kai-shek's birthplace 109 miles south of Shanghai, the communiqué continued.

Two Enemy Forces Pursued

Headquarters said that Chinese were in close pursuit of the relief column and retiring coastal forces. The report indicated that the Chinese had gained thirty-five miles in several days from captured Taichow and that spearheads in the Ninghai area were ninety-seven miles southeast of Hangchow city and thirty-nine miles south of Ningpo.

The communiqué said that Japanese remnants north of Linhai on the Wenchow-Ningpo coastal highway were being mopped up as the Chinese struggled for possession of Tientai, an enemy stronghold twenty miles above Taichow.

Almost 400 miles of China's east coast opposite Formosa is apparently Chinese controlled from the Ninghai area south to Amoy.

[The Tokyo radio, heard by the Federal Communications Commission, said that "about 100 American-directed Chinese junks" last Wednesday "charged" the Japanese-held port of Amoy, 140 miles west of Formosa and 285 miles northeast of Hong Kong. The broadcast claimed that "in the face of our immediate interception their adventure failed."]

Meanwhile, 230 miles north of Hong Kong in inland Kiangsi Province, the Chinese recaptured the highway town of Tangkiang, eleven miles west of the former United States Fourteenth Air Force base at Kanhsien, the Chinese said. Tangkiang was retaken Saturday, two days after it had been seized by the Japanese, the communiqué said.

In the Indo-China border area 132 miles northeast of the colonial capital of Hanoi, mountain fighters of Gen. Chang Fah-kwei's army pulled out of Trung Khanh Phu on the evening of June 24 following a Japanese counter-attack launched with reinforcements from Caobang.

A communiqué said that the Chinese who had taken Trung Khanh Phu earlier in the day "withdrew to adjacent areas where a fierce battle still is in progress." At least two other Indo-Chinese frontier towns—Dong Van and Malangchai, up to 100 miles west of Trung Khanh Phu, apparently still were in the hands of General Chang's troops.

Fliers of the United States Fourteenth Air Force, approaching the third anniversary Wednesday of their operations in China, ranged over Japanese communications in North China between Nanking and the middle reaches of the Yellow River and attacked the airdrome at Kaifeng.

JAPS PUSH CHINESE FROM INDO-CHINA

Chungking, July 2 (A. P.).—Chinese troops who pushed into Indo-China have withdrawn under Japanese counter-attack and a fierce battle now is raging in areas adjacent to Trung Khanh Phu, the Chinese High Command announced today.

Troops under Gen. Chang Fah-kwei captured Trung Khanh Php (Chungchingfu) June 24, but were driven out that night by Japanese forces striking back with reinforcements from Caobang, nineteen miles to the southwest. Chang's troops also had captured Malungchai, one mile inside Indo-China and twenty-three miles north of Hagiang, which apparently was still held.

Chinese observers had stressed that the drive into Indo-China did not represent an invasion aimed at ejecting the Japanese from Indo-China.

The High Command said Chinese forces operating in Kiangsi Province recaptured Saturday the highway town of Tankiang, eleven miles west of the former American air base at Kanhsien. In Chekiang Province, a Japanese relief column from Fangwha, the birthplace of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, near Ningpao, effected a junction with Japanese forces withdrawing northward along the coastal highway from Wenchow, which was abandoned by the enemy June 18. The Japanese continued to withdraw toward the north after the junction, with the Chinese in close pursuit, the high command said.

San Francisco, July 2 (A. P.).—An unconfirmed Tokyo radio report said today "about 100 American - directed Chinese junks" attacked the Japanese-held port of Amoy, on the East China coast, opposite Formosa, last Wednesday.

"In the face of our immediate interception, however, their adventure failed," Tokyo said in the broadcast heard by the FCC.

ALLIED BURMA LINE

Japanese Unable to Cross Sittang River in Flight

CALCUTTA, India, July 2 (AP)—Air-supported British troops, after killing almost an entire party of Japanese, have smashed an enemy attempt to cross the Sittang River 200 miles north of Rangoon and withdraw from Central Burma toward Thailand, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters disclosed today.

A group of sixty Japanese troops, trapped on the west bank of the Sittang twenty-six miles south of Pyinmana on the British-controlled Rangoon-Mandalay railroad, tried to cross the swift-flowing barrier on rafts. Fifty-one were killed.

Some 120 miles north of Rangoon, Indian infantry, aided by artillery, kept up an attack against 100 Japanese soldiers fighting from positions ten miles south of Pyu. More than forty casualties were inflicted on the Japanese, a communiqué said.

On the lower reaches of the Sittang, seventy miles northeast of Rangoon, the Japanese attacked a British gun position twenty-five miles northeast of Pegu but suffered high losses.

Fighter-bombers and fighters of the Eastern Air Command ranged up the Sittang River valley, lashing Japanese river transports and installations, while Mosquito bombers attacked rail lines and bridges north and south of Moulmein.

British Prevent Japs From Crossing Sittang

Calcutta, July 2 (AP)—Air-supported British troops, massacring almost an entire party of Japanese, have smashed an enemy attempt to cross the Sittang River 200 miles north of Rangoon and withdraw from central Burma toward Thailand, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters disclosed today.

'SHANGRI-LA' PLANE SURVIVORS HEARD

Hollandia, New Guinea, June 30 (Delayed), (A. P.).—While five paratroopers still awaited rescue from New Guinea's hidden valley of "Shangri-La," the authorities here continued their investigation of the crash of a transport plane in that valley on May 13, bringing death to twenty of her twenty - three passengers. The three survivors were brought from the valley by glider and by plane last week.

They told the investigators that the emergency equipment of the wrecked plane did not contain flares that might have speeded discovery by search planes of their remote location in the wild crags of the Oranje Mountains. They added, however, that it was possible the flares were discharged when the plane burned.

Awaiting rescue are Capt. Cecil E. Walters, Master Sergt. Santiago Abrenncia of Los Angeles, Tech. Sergts. Roque Velasque of San Francisco and H. E. Caoilo of Sacramento and Sergt. Alfred Baylon of Chicago, members of the glider rescue part...

Dutch to Train in Australia

MELBOURNE, July 2 (AP)—Preparations are being made for the training here of approximately 30,000 volunteer Netherlands troops to participate in the liberation of the Netherlands Indies, Lieut. Gen. 1,076,000 Put Ashore

MELBOURNE, July 2 (AP).—Amphibious forces under command of General Douglas MacArthur have put ashore 1,076,000 men in a total of fifty-three large and small landings, one naval commander informed a "Melbourne Herald-correspondent at a briefing on Sunday's Balikpapan invasion.

FOE TO CLEAR SINGAPORE

JUL 3 1945

Radio Says Japs Will Send Out Unessential Civilians

San Francisco, July 2 (AP)—The Japanese announced plans today to evacuate civilians from Singapore as Allied power to the east on Borneo pushed dangerously close to the great naval base.

The Japanese-controlled Java radio said nonessential civilians would begin clearing out of Singapore the middle of July.

Seek Base 400 Miles Away

The Allies already control three airbases at Brunei, little more than 700 miles from Singapore, and now Australians are moving down Borneo's west coast toward Kuching airbase — 400 miles from Singapore.

The Tokyo radio in another broadcast heard by the Federal Communications Commission declared that "the curtain is about to be raised on the homeland battle" and reiterated that "both men and women, young and old" would join in a suicidal defense for an "ultimate victory."

It asserted that improved suicide planes would attack the invasion fleet and "if the enemy manages to barely reach the shores, our air force and surface special-attack corps will attack him in body-crashing action."

And if the invaders get ashore, the broadcast added, "our army forces will thoroughly smash him with body-crashing tactics also."

Admit Damage In Raids

Admitting damage was spreading in cities hit by the Superfortresses, Tokyo continued: "We are permitting the enemy to raid us with his B-29's and P-51's while we are striving to make even one more extra plane."

New crack fighter planes are being turned out in great numbers, Tokyo went on, and would soon go into action to "bring down enemy B-29's before the very eyes of the people."

Tokyo claimed that the United States and Great Britain, fearing defeat in invasion would crush the fighting spirit of their peoples, were trying to entice Russia to enter the conflict to end the war quickly.

Claims Attack On Amoy

Without confirmation elsewhere, the Tokyo radio said that "about 100 American-directed Chinese junks" attacked the port of Amoy, opposite Formosa, but the "adventure failed."

The Tokyo radio in a propaganda broadcast to the United States said that three American women piloting planes over Kweilin, China, were shot down and added:

"Thus it is assumed that a shortage of American air crews is so acute that women are now being employed for operational duties.

"It is believed that these girls were among those trained in aviation schools for women in the United States and that all of the planes raiding Kweilin on June 30 were piloted by women, except the leader plane."

TOKYO TO BE DEAD CITY

San Francisco, July 2 (A. P.).—Japan's Government expects only "about 200,000 people to remain in scorched Tokyo," Tokyo radio broadcasts said today. Greater Tokyo had a peacetime population of 6,496,613, according to the 1945 World Almanac. Extensive evacuation to rural areas and to smaller cities followed B-29 assaults which burned out fifty square miles of the heart of Tokyo.

KAMIKAZI FAILS TO SINK 'MIGHTY I'

San Francisco, July 2 (A. P.).—A great rent gapes in her hull, fifteen of her enlisted men are dead and thirty wounded, but the destroyer U. S. S. Ingraham will sail again for another crack at the Japanese. The 2,200-ton craft, now in drydock for repairs at San Francisco, survived a direct hit by a Nipponese Kamikaze plane early in May north of Okinawa and came home under her own power, the Twelfth Naval District announced today.

Before the attack the Ingraham had taken a heavy toll. She was instrumental in sinking three enemy vessels and destroyed six of the seven suicide planes which chose her as their target in an assault by seventy to eighty Jap aircraft of all types.

Nicknamed the "Mighty I" by her crew, the Ingraham was operating on the edge of the East China Sea with another destroyer, the Morrison, when she was hit. Lieut. John D. Brink, U. S. N. R., of San Diego, Cal, Ingraham gunnery officer, said the Japs threw all available planes, from modern fighters to old twin-engined float craft, into the battle.

The Morrison was struck and badly damaged. The "Mighty I" steamed to her aid. Then one Nipponese suicide pilot bored through the barrage of ack-ack and crashed into the Ingraham's side at the water line, ramming into the crew's mess hall, with its bomb exploding in the generator room. So terrific was the blow that an almost perfect imprint of the plane was left in the Ingraham's side.

Flames swept through the ship, and she settled until her decks were within five feet of being awash. Other Jap flyers poised to deal the death blow, but American combat air patrolmen shot them down by the score, and none reached the Ingraham. Forty minutes later rescue tugs took the crippled destroyer in tow and pulled her to safety.

EXACT TERMS ON SURRENDER OF JAPS URGED

Senator Calls For Truman Statement, Thinking It Might End War

JUL 3 1945

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Senator White, of Maine, minority leader, declared today that the Pacific war might end quickly if President Truman would state specifically just what unconditional surrender means for the Japanese.

White in a Senate speech called on the President to point out clearly that Japan's choice is either annihilation or a surrender with permission to continue peaceful pursuits.

"Should such a statement by our President meet indifference or rejection by Japan," the Senate minority leader declared, "it will not have increased our losses or otherwise have prejudiced our cause.

"Much might be gained by such a statement. Nothing could be lost."

Speaks As Individual

He said there is now "some evidence, slight though it is, of the beginning of a breach in the morale of the Japanese forces."

"The Japanese authorities and people must now realize the imminence and the extent of the disaster that approaches them," he added.

White emphasized he was speaking only as an individual Senator. He declared that Japan's surrender must mean her complete disarmament, relinquishment of conquered lands and punishment of war criminals. But he said surrender would not mean destruction of Japan's home life, religion or peaceful occupations.

Majority Leader Barkley (Ky.) raised the question whether the President could make such a statement without prior consultation with the Allies, particularly China and England. However, White said the statement should be made anyway.

Capehart Is Insistent

At a news conference later, Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) reiterated a contention, previously denied by the State Department, that this Government has received a peace offer from Japan.

Capehart said his information had come from "someone connected with" the United States Government and that the Japanese offer had been made "at least 30 days ago." The Japanese, Capehart said, offered to give up all their conquered territory, their army and navy and war-making facilities. The only reservation was that Emperor Hirohito be allowed to remain on the Japanese throne.

HOLDS JAP FLEET POWER HAS ENDED

Admiral Says Enemy Made Its Last Banzai Attack

Coronado, Cal., July 2 (AP)—The Japanese fleet made its final Banzai suicide charge soon after Okinawa was invaded, and today has "virtually no effective fighting power left, Rear Admiral George Raymond Henderson, commander of an escort carrier task unit, said in an interview here today.

Admiral Henderson, who has spent three years overseas, was executive officer to Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher when the latter was commander of the carrier Hornet during the Doolittle raid on Tokyo in 1942.

Suicide Planes Not New

Henderson contended that the Japs have used suicide planes since early in the war. Kamikaze planes contributed to destruction of the Hornet after the Doolittle raid, he said.

"The closer we move to enemy shores, the greater will be our naval losses from suicide attacks," he declared. "The proportion of hits, however, is very low."

The best method of improving defenses against the Kamikaze planes is to increase the number of navy carrier-based fighter interceports and get more surface ship gunnery in action, Henderson asserted.

He predicted that the war will last at least two more years.

"We'll have to hunt them out and kill them one by one, and that may mean about 10,000,000 Japs of the military forces," he said.

10,000-ton Jap Cruiser Sunk

British Submarine Makes Killing in Pacific —10 Ships Sent Down by Yanks.

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—The Navy announced today the sinking of a Japanese cruiser by a British submarine operating under American control in the Southwest Pacific. In addition, the communique said, American submarines have reported the sinking of ten enemy vessels in Far Eastern waters.

The ten latter were listed as a converted gunboat, a patrol escort vessel, four medium merchant vessels, a large tanker, two small merchant vessels and a small tanker. American submarines have thus far sunk a total of 1,163 combatant and non-combatant Japanese ships.

The cruiser was of the Haguro class. Jane's Fighting Ships describes this class as of 10,000-ton standard displacement, with complements of 692 officers and men and carrying ten eight-inch guns. A Navy spokesman said that the British identified the submarine that sank the cruiser as H. M. S. Trenchant.

10 More Jap Ships Sunk By U.S. Subs

Washington, July 2 (AP)—United States submarines have sunk ten more Japanese vessels, bringing their total bag to 1,163, the Navy disclosed today.

The ten were a converted gunboat, a patrol escort vessel, four medium merchant vessels, a large tanker, two small merchant vessels and a small tanker.

The Navy also announced that a British submarine sank a cruiser of the Haguro class in the Southwest Pacific. The submarine, reported to be the H.M.S. Trenchant, was operating under United States control. The Haguro type is of 10,000 tons, with 692 men aboard.

Total sinkings by United States submarines include 140 combatant and 1,023 noncombatant ships.

Japs Tightening Grasp On Shanghai, China Port

JUL 3 1945

By James D. White

New York, June 30 (AP)—The Japanese, frankly scared of an Allied landing along the China coast, have pulled out of the southeastern ports of Foochow and Wenchow, thereby opening no particular doors to the Asiatic mainland.

Both ports are silted and undeveloped, and have only poor roads leading to the interior.

Meanwhile, the Japanese have abandoned their land corridor down through China. Gen. Claire Chennault says this means they have revamped their defensive strategy. They have built extensive fortifications around Shanghai, the most desirable port in China, and apparently intend to hold Hong Kong for its nuisance value.

Transportation Problem

One point in considering a landing on the China coast is transportation inland—or lack of it. There are practically no highways to the interior except in the north. Railways reach the coast only at a few points, and nowhere between Hong Kong and Shanghai.

Sea approaches to ports along the entire coast from Indo-China to the Hangchow estuary, just south of Shanghai, are difficult. Harbor entrances are often blocked by many islands, and waters are shoal. Rivers also are badly silted. However, a skilled pilot who knows the territory could maneuver a large vessel fairly close to shore at many spots.

Yangtse Navigable

The Yangtse River, north of Shanghai, is navigable clear up to Hankow. However, the mouth of the river is a wilderness of islands and sandbanks.

In 1937 the Japanese took Shanghai from the south, by landing on the northern shore of the Hangchow estuary. Shanghai is one of the biggest ports in the world, and it lies on flat ground.

The Japanese have ordered all their civilians out of Shanghai and have announced plans to remove a million Chinese also. This is taken as an indication of their nervousness about a possible attack there.

Sand banks and salt flats extend along the coast for 300 miles above Shanghai. At Lienyun approaches are still shallow, but the coastline starts to rise a little. The important port in this area is Haichow, inland on a small river from Lienyun. Haichow is on the Lunghai east-west railroad, but the port area is undeveloped and is on shallow water.

The water gets deeper and the coastline higher north of Lienyun, until Tsingtao is reached. Tsingtao is a deep water harbor, situated in a well-protected bay. The Germans held a lease on it until after the first World War. In that war the Japanese (on our side that time) tried to capture it from the sea but were badly mauled by German shore batteries. They finally landed on the north shore of the Shantung peninsula and took Tsingtao from the north.

Resemblance Misleading

Any resemblance on the map between the Shantung peninsula and the Norman peninsula where the Allies landed in France is somewhat misleading. Shantung is mountainous and has only one railroad, which leads to Tsingtao. Its coast is generally forbidding.

Landings north of the Shantung peninsula don't seem to be in the cards at all, at least until an advanced stage of the campaign, if there is to be one.

The Japanese would dominate the region from Korea. However, if it's considered advisable to move on Manchuria from the sea, there are several ports that might possibly be used.

On Deep Water

Shanhaikwan, Hulutao and Newchwang are on deep water and fairly approachable. These are all above the end of the Great Wall. Between the Shantung peninsula and the Great Wall is the old flood plain of the Yellow River—salt pools, tidal flats, sand bars and marshes.

Tientsin is the only port in this area. It must be approached on the Hai River, which must be dredged to accommodate ships of 4,000 tons. A Liberty ship is 10,000 tons.

Argentina's Socialists Ask Election This Year

Present Regime Is Termed a Complete Failure

BUENOS AIRES, July 2 (AP).—A demand that national elections be held in Argentina this year and a declaration that the present military government "has failed politically, mentally and morally" were made today by the national council of the Socialist party, at the end of a three-day session.

It was also decided to support neither the government nor private business in their current "battle of the manifestos," referring to published criticisms of the government's economic and social policies by trade and industry and to the government's replies.

Argentina's three-month-old meat strike ended today when the few workers who were still striking reported for work at the Armour and Swift packing plants in La Plata.

REPORTER IS THREATENED

BUENOS AIRES, July 2—(AP) Joseph Newman, correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune, took up residence in the United States embassy today, saying he had received a threatening telephone call because of a Herald-Tribune dispatch regarding the Argentine political situation.

Carol, Lupescu Reported Set To Go To Portugal

Rio de Janeiro, July 2 (AP)—A reliable informant said today that former King Carol of Romania and Elena Lupescu would sail about July 14 on the Portuguese liner Serpa Pinto for Lisbon.

The couple returned recently from the Brazilian summer capital of Petropolis, in mountains northeast of Rio de Janeiro.

Efforts To Save Yanks Since January 8 Snowslide Fail

Narsarssuak, Greenland, July 2 (AP)—The Army's Greenland base command said today that eleven American soldiers have been awaiting rescue from a remote weather and radio outpost since January 8 when a snowslide buried their supplies and powerhouse.

Col. Eugene H. Rice, commanding officer of the base command, which is part of the Eastern Defense Command, said the men had been kept alive by supplies dropped by parachute. Efforts to rescue them by plane and boat have failed.

Officials are waiting for ice to thaw sufficiently on Greenland's bleak east coast to permit a boat to reach the station at Skjoldungen.

Rice said the men were in good spirits and had volunteered to remain at their posts until their regular relief was due in Greenland's late spring.

Foreign Policy Is Held Partial To No Nation

State Department Denies Either Britain or Russia Is Favored Over Other

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—The State Department emphatically set forth today a policy of impartial friendliness toward both Britain and Russia.

In a communication to an informal committee of Congressmen, it also restated the department's dedication to the principles of the Atlantic charter and a determination to pursue an active course in international affairs, aimed at achievement of this country's own aims.

Acting Secretary Joseph C. Grew wrote the outline to Representative John M. Coffee, Democrat, of Washington, leader of a group of four House members who called at the State Department May 31 and asked five specific questions about this country's foreign policy.

"It can be stated unequivocally that the United States government has no tacit understanding or day-to-day working arrangement through which it has become 'de facto' or otherwise a part of an Anglo-American or any other front against the Soviet Union," Mr. Grew wrote.

"Conversely there is no truth in the assertions made by some that we are 'playing into the hands of the Soviet Union' to the detriment of the British Empire or any other nation. . . .

United States Role Is Explained

"The leading role we have taken in the creation of the world security organization in San Francisco is conclusive proof of our friendly attitude to all freedom loving nations.

"It is regettable that when differences arise, one group of opinion or another often endeavors to build these differences into fundamental issues which are difficult to solve even in an atmosphere of patience and mutual understanding."

Answering the other questions, Mr. Grew told the Congressional group:

1. American policy in respect to the Polish and general eastern European questions "has not changed since the death of President Roosevelt. It continues to be as it was under President Roosevelt, based on the decisions of the Crimea Conference, as well as on his program for the attainment by all peoples of the four freedoms."

2. Reports that old anti-Soviet prejudices cling to a group within the State Department "have no foundation in fact."

3. Replying to the question: "What do you think has caused responsible editorial criticism?" Mr. Grew wrote, "As long as there is freedom of the press in the United States there will be editorial criticism because there is practically never unanimity of opinion on any important subject."

Roosevelt Policy Cited

4. Answering another question as to whether there has been any departure by the United States from its position as a "disinterested third power which could mediate in and mollify whatever differences might develop between our two great allies," Mr. Grew said:

"President Rooseevlt pursued a firm foreign policy whereby the United States participated as an active force in all foreign questions involving American interests or policy.

"In carrying out this policy of protecting vital American interests, President Roosevelt used his influence and that of the United States as mediator in those questions which, although not directly affecting our interests, might disturb international harmony if allowed to remain unsolved.

"This policy of active participation in the solution of all international questions concerning the United States is being continued by President Truman, and the Department of State is diligent in its efforts to execute this policy."

WISE LEADERSHIP URGED BY STASSEN

Governors Told U. S. Can Prevent War for 50 Years.

1945 JUL 3

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 2—(AP) Harold E. Stassen told a new conference today that "we are facing a basic reorientation of our entire foreign policy" and if the United States follows a course of wise world leadership it will be possible to go 50 years without a war.

The former Minnesota governor, who will return to his post as assistant chief of staff to Admiral William F. Halsey in the Pacific soon, spoke to about 50 newsmen before appealing to the governors in a night address to take a more active part in studying and speaking about international affairs.

Calls Charter Essential

Just back from serving as a delegate to the San Francisco conference, he said the United Nations charter is "an essential step to world cooperation."

"Unless we have a mechanism whereby nations can meet continually, it will be impossible through messages and envoys to work out our social, economic and political problems satisfactorily," he asserted.

He added the charter alone was not sufficient and that the "common bonds of the people of the world in their intense desire for peace will decide the issue of peace or war."

"I do not feel that war is inevitable," he declared. "But that doesn't mean that we might not always have policing activity."

In response to a question, Commander Stassen said he still felt that from a Republican or party standpoint it was a political liability for him to accept membership on the American delegation to San Francisco from a president of the opposing party. But he said he wanted to reemphasize that he accepted the appointment because of the great obligation he felt and that he would accept again.

Stassen, a prospective candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948, was interviewed after eight state chief executives made formal and informal speeches in opening the 37th annual conference of governors.

One, Gov. Herbert B. Maw of Utah, a Democrat and chairman of the conference, called for an end to all emergency federal regulation of business, farming and individuals as soon as peace comes, despite a statement by President Truman that stabilization controls would have to be continued into the post-war period.

Stassen said speedy ratification by the Senate of the world security charter without reservation was essential, but he added that he did not mean that it should be done so hastily as to preclude sufficient study by the Senate and the people.

Favors Some Curb

In response to a question, Stassen said he did not believe the American delegate on the proposed world security council should be given complete freedom of decision on the use of American forces and materials in collective action against aggressors. This is a separate question that should be handled by separate legislation, he said.

He preferred, the commander said, to wait until he had conferred with Washington officials further before outlining his views on his potentially controversial question in a formal statement.

His experiences at San Francisco had convinced him, Stassen said, that it would be no more difficult for an international organization to reach agreement on policies than for a session of Congress or of state legislators to do the same thing.

Stassen said he left San Francisco feeling "that the people of the Soviet Union are just as anxious to find a continuing basis for world peace as our people or the people of any other nation."

Noting the possibility that the world organization may be given additional authority in the future, he said he thought that it may become necessary, for instance, for the league to be given the same sort of control over international airways as the federal government exercises in this country.

Elaborating on his thesis that America faces a reorientation of its foreign policy, the former Minnesota governor said:

"We now occupy an unusual position in the world. It carries with it a very grave responsibility. We recognize our industrial and military strength and the very great power of the ideas that built America—freedom of enterprise and capital ownership widely dispersed.

Must Share in Leadership

"Our responsibility is to use that power for the welfare of the world as whole. To do that we must share in the leadership of the world and not attempt to dictate to the rest of the world, but to mediate the various hemispheric problems. That is the most constructive role we can play. It is a role that we followed in the last few weeks at San Francisco. It was the most important factor in bringing that conference to a successful conclusion."

Stassen said history would have to pass real judgment on the charter, which he termed "not perfect" but having the "flexibility and room for growth to a long life and real contribution to lasting peace."

Stassen spoke extemporaneously to the governors and covered virtually the same ground as he touched in the news conference. He prepared brief excerpts of his address for the press, however, in which he asserted:

"American world policy can no longer be one of aloofnes, neither can it be a policy of the State department and the Senate and the President alone. It must be the policy of the people of the 48 states. Only in that way can it be strong, clear, continuing, and effective.

"I hope the day will come when the 50 United Nations get along as well together as do our 48 states."

Peace Training Report Handed To House Group

Approval Is Due Thursday by Military Committee; 'Timely Adoption' Urged

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—A tentative report recommending prompt Congressional approval of the "broad principle" of universal military training is in the hands of House Post-War Military Committee members.

Barring unexpected changes of sentiment, the report, perhaps with minor revisions, will be approved formally Thursday. Indications are that not more than six of the twenty-three members of the committee headed by Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, Democrat, of Virginia, will dissent.

The report, given to members over the week end and based on two weeks of public committee hearings, declares that "timely adoption" of the principle of peace-time military training for the nation's youths "will provide assurance to the United Nations that this nation expects to retain the necessary military strength to stand behind and make to work the idealism which has inspired the Dumbarton Oaks and the World Security conferences."

It emphasizes that no military service should be required of youths put into training, except in a national emergency and upon express orders of Congress.

The training, the report continues, should be provided in such a manner and on such a basis as to cause the least interference with normal education and the private lives of the trainees.

The committee will recommend no legislation as such. Details must be worked out by the House or Senate Military Committees, which probably won't consider the subject until fall.

The committee's tentative report urges that Congress act during the present session which ends in December. Congressional action, the committee feels, should not interfere with preservation of the National Guard, the Reserve Officer Corps and other established reserve components.

The training, the report continues, should be "universal and democratic, applicable to rich and poor alike, and with a minimum of exemptions or exceptions," and should be provided "under conditions of modern warfare" and fitted into the existing structure of the military and naval establishments.

Future military operations, "can not be conducted effectively by raw recruits or partially trained men," it said, adding:

"It is not feasible to rest the future security of the United States upon a large standing armed force; its cost would be prohibitive; the necessary men to fill its ranks could not be hired in time of peace; and it would be repugnant to the American people."

Senators Hear Swiss Conceal German Funds

Banking Secrecy Laws Are Found to Provide Cloak for Nazis' World Plot

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—Senators delving into German plans for a third world war heard testimony today that Swiss banking secrecy laws provide the Nazis with a convenient cloak for their machinations.

Just returned from a mission to Europe, Orvis Schmidt, director of the Treasury's foreign funds control division, told a Senate Military Subcommittee headed by Senator Harley M. Kilgore, Democrat, of West Virginia, that "there has been an open invitation to Germans to utilize Swiss facilities to conceal their assets throughout the world."

Asserting there is every indication that this government does not know even yet the exact extent of German investments in the United States, Mr. Schmidt added in testimony prepared for the committee:

"Even at this late date, the Swiss government is loath to take the necessary steps to force banks and other cloaking institutions to disclose owners of assets held in or through Switzerland. . . . Thus the true picture of German financial and industrial penetration throughout the world will be kept a secret."

Mr. Schmidt said "the German industrial giants have honeycombed" the four neutral nations of Europe, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland, as well as Argentina and Turkey, with some 650 subsidiary and affiliated companies.

Terming this significant but not all-important, the witness added that "the real problem is to break the veil of secrecy and reach and eliminate the German ability to finance another world war."

Mr. Schmidt said "General Otto Stupenagel, some time prior to V-E Day, admitted that Germany was turning her 'booty' into deposits in neutral countries and that she would plead poverty until the time comes for her to try again.

"Marshal von Mannstein directed, in a confidential circular to brigade commanders in September, 1943, that they should procure commodities of little weight but representing great value, such as jewelry, precious stones, etc., so that they can be sold easily and transformed into monetary deposits to be held in 'inviolable' places.

"The extensive plans for an underground movement can only be successful," Mr. Schmidt continued, "if the Germans can utilize the reserves already accumulated abroad and presently being added to by various devices."

Mr. Schmidt submitted a breakdown of German-controlled firms showing fifty-eight in Portugal, 112 in Spain, 233 in Sweden, 214 in Switzerland, thirty-five in Turkey and ninety-eight in Argentina. Of the total 122 were in manufacturing, and these firms held $258,000,000 in American investments. There were twenty-seven in petroleum, twenty-five in finance, fifty-four in trade and fifty miscellaneous. The total American investment in the list was valued at $420,000,000.

Brownell Sees Food 'Muddle' As 1946 Issue

Holds Truman Responsible in Rejecting Republican Food 'Czar' Proposals

CHICAGO, July 2 (AP).—Because Republican-offered proposals for a food "czar" and for changes in the price-control act were "rejected" by the Truman administration, the Republican party "may well carry" the food problem as an issue into the 1946 campaign, Herbert Brownell jr. said today.

The chairman of the Republican National Committee, here for a meeting of national party officers with those of thirteen states, told a press conference his party "gave the Truman administration an opportunity to take our Republican program on production and distribution of food, presented in a very friendly spirit.

"This offer was rejected, and the Truman administration has taken on the responsibility. Time will tell whether their program works or whether there will be a continuation of this muddle.

"That may well carry into the 1946 campaign."

Mr. Brownell said his party had shown "constructive leadership" in developing this program and in the work of its representatives at the San Francisco Conference. He gave "major credit" to Republicans for changing the Dumbarton Oaks proposal to make the United Nations Charter "workable."

Asserting that the Republicans' objective is to win control of Congress in 1946, Mr. Brownell said: "With the successful winning of the war, the intention of the people will be to develop a better domestic economy for every American family, and we believe the Republican party more capable of this than the New Deal program."

Earlier Mr. Brownell had told chairmen and vice-chairmen of thirteen Republican state committees that the Republican party "still is fighting the New Deal" because President Truman "has made that discredited regime his own."

He said the Administration is "adhering to practices through which its predecessor sought to debauch the electorate by misuse of public funds," adding that the Truman administration "sought to buy votes in a special Congressional election in Montana with funds voted for the construction of a veterans' hospital."

States represented at the two-day meeting are Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa and Oklahoma.

The first of a series of regional meetings, it is designed, Mr. Brownell said, to integrate the national party program with state programs.

Wheeler Nickell, of Ashland, Ky., a Marine Corps veteran of the Pacific War, today was named chairman of a committee set up by the Republican National Committee to map out activities for veterans of this war.

Mr. Nickell, former president of the Ashland Young Republican Club, received his discharge from the corps after fighting at Gaudalcanal, Bougainville and Guam, where he was wounded.

Warren H. Atherton, of Stockton, Calif., former national commander of the American Legion, heads the party's committee on all veteran affairs.

PRESIDENT CALLS FOR FACTS ON FOOD

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—President Truman told his new Secretary of Agriculture today that he wants to be kept closely informed on developments in the food situation.

The Secretary, former Representative Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico, called on Mr. Truman to ask how much of the food question should be carried on to the White House.

"He seems to be very anxious to keep personally informed on the question of food," Anderson told reporters later. He arranged a later date with the Chief Executive to discuss the food front in detail.

DISABILITIES ARE INCREASED

Veterans Administration Approves New Schedule

JUL 3 1945

Washington, July 2 (AP)—The Veterans Administration tonight announced its approval of a new schedule for use in determining the degree of disability suffered by war veterans.

It includes "many new disabilities" incurred in service in the tropics and under conditions peculiar to this war.

"Particular attention has been given to temporary and residual conditions resulting from tropical diseases, gunshot wounds and burns," the administration said in a statement.

176 In New Schedule

For example, 176 separate disabilities of bones, joints and muscles were listed, compared with 126 in the old schedule which has been in effect since 1933.

Disability ratings for loss of a hand or foot were made equivalent to amputations, and special attention was given scars resulting from explosions, oil burns and similar casualties.

Special recognition also was given to skull fractures and gunshot wounds of the brain, chest and abdomen.

Total Deafness 100% Disability

"Emphasis has been placed on these because of the greater number of wounded in this war who survive with these injuries," said the agency.

A veteran who is deaf in both ears and whose hearing may not be improved by a hearing aid now is rated at 100 per cent disability.

Increases in disability rating were approved for disfiguring scars and discoloration of the skin.

Hart Steps Out As Chairman of New Dies Group

Rankin, in Line for Post, Refuses; Non-Member of Committee May Get It

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—Representative Edward J. Hart, New Jersey Democrat, resigned today as chairman of the House Committee on un-American Activities, and Representative John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, turned down an opportunity to succeed him.

Representative Hart said he was under doctor's orders to curtail his activities. His resignation came as the committee projected an investigation of alleged subversive activities in Hollywood and on the west coast.

As next-ranking Democrat on the committee, Representative Rankin was in line to become chairman. But he already heads the important Veterans' Committee, and Democratic rules prevent any member from holding two chairmanships.

Representative Rankin said he preferred to remain as head of the veterans' group which now is investigating conditions in veterans' facilities.

The vacancy on the un-American Activities Committee will be filled by the House on recommendation of Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee, which also will recommend a chairman. Word went around that the post had been offered to Representative Henry M. Jackson, Democrat, of Washington, but there was no information on whether he will take it.

Normally Representative J. Hardin Peterson, of Florida, would be next in line, below Representative Rankin, but he too heads a committee—public lands—and probably would decline to give it up.

Next is Representative J. W. Robinson, of Utah, chairman of the Roads Committee, followed by Representative John R. Murdock, of Arizona, chairman of the committee on Irrigation nad Reclamation.

The remaining Democrat, Representative Herbert C. Bonner, of North Carolina, is chairman of a minor committee, but his colleagues say he would not want the chairmanship of the un-American group.

That situation lent weight to the report that the Ways and Means Committee may recommend an entirely new man for chairman.

Representative Hart's resignation had been expected for some time. He emphasized, in his letter to Speaker Sam Rayburn, that he resigned solely for reasons of health.

Representative Hart and Representative Rankin have disagreed frequently on committee procedure. Only a few weeks ago, when Representative Hart made public a statement defining committee policy, Representative Rankin disputed it and said the committee had not voted on a definition of un-American activities.

The committee had conducted public hearings in one investigation—of radio programs of the New York Regional Office of Price Administration office—since it was created. Representatives Hart and Rankin disagreed over the timing of the hearings, with Representative Rankin winning that controversy.

The investigation of alleged subversive activities on the west coast was ordered last week in Representative Hart's absence.

FEPC REBUFFED TWICE IN HOUSE

Rules and Appropriations Bodies Bar All Funds.

JUL 3 1945

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—The House Appropriations Committee today refused to recommend funds for continuance of the Fair Employment Practices Committee—the FEPC's second rebuff of the day. It tabled a $771,000,000 war agencies supply measure into which the Senate had inserted $250,000 for FEPC operation in the current fiscal year after earlier House action refusing to recognize that agency.

The Rules Committee declined this morning to approve procedure which would have permitted the House membership to vote on the FEPC fund provided by the Senate.

To save the funds of sixteen other home front war agencies financed in the war agencies supply measure the Appropriations Committee voted out a new bill, varying only in minor details from the measure originally passed by the House. It carried nothing for the FEPC. The vote rejecting the Senate bill was reported as 20 to 11, while that sending a new bill to the House floor was 21 to 12.

FEPC Backers Continue Fight.

FEPC backers were expected to make a fight for Rules Committee approval of procedure that would permit submission to the House of an amendment restoring the FEPC funds. The authorization expired yesterday. The Rule's Committee's rejection of the $200,000 compromise fund

The Rules Committee's rejection of the $200,000 compromise fund was reported to be 5 to 5.

The committee acted after a delegation of approximately twenty Negoes from New York sought a hearing in support of the FEPC, created by the late President Roosevelt to prevent employment discrimination because of race, creed or color. Charles Collins, head of the delegation, asked to be heard and declined at first to leave the committee room when an executive session was ordered.

Asks If This Is Germany.

"What is this, Germany?" he shouted as he was led to the door by committee attaches and a plain clothes officer.

Collins identified himself as president of the Negro Labor and Victory Committee and the spokesman for the Hotel and Club Employees Union, Local No. 6, New York City. In denying Collins's request for a hearing, the committee followed its normal procedure of not hearing outside witnesses. Seldom does it permit any one except members of Congress to testify.

TRAINING-PLAN VOTE PROPOSED

Butler Would Take Popular Opinion In 1946 Elections

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Senator Butler (R., Neb.) suggested today a poll of the public, including the armed forces, on the question of compulsory military training in peacetime.

Butler offered a resolution calling on state governments to start up machinery for placing the question before the voters in the next congressional election in November, 1946.

Thus, under the absentee-voting laws, service men would have a voice in the proposal, Butler said in a speech to the Senate.

The answer of the public would be available "in a year or so," he said, and he did not consider this undue delay because "I think it is generally agreed that the Congress will not act (on universal service) this year anyway."

"How People Stand"

"Such a referendum would clear up many doubts in the minds of many senators about how the people themselves stand on this most vital issue," he told the Senate.

The Senator offered his suggestion while members of the House Postwar Military Committee—headed by Representative Woodrum (D. Va.)—were considering the tentative draft of a report approving the "broad principle" of universal military training.

The report, not proposing actual legislation but suggesting congressional action during this session which ends in December, probably will be adopted at a meeting Thursday. Not more than six of the 23 committeemen are reported opposed.

Relevance To Combat Service

Under the draft report the youths would not be required to perform actual military service except in a national emergency and upon express orders of Congress.

Expressing objections to a big standing army, the report asserts that future military operations "cannot be conducted effectively by raw recruits or partially trained men."

"Timely adoption" of the principle of peacetime training, it says, "will provide assurance to the United Nations that this nation expects to retain the necessary military strength to stand behind and make work the idealism which has inspired the Dumbarton Oaks and world security conferences."

ARMY ANNOUNCES MORE CUT-BACKS

Chicago, July 2 (AP P.).—Contract cut-backs calling for reduction of approximately $20,000,000 a month in production of medium artillery ammunition components were anounced today by the Army. Items involved included such components as storage cases, cartridge cases, containers, fuses, primers and boosters.

Under the cut-backs approximately 7,600 workers in eighty three plants throughout the nation would be released between now and September 1, the Army estimated, while man power was not affected in 118 other plants and there was no estimate on the number affected in sub-contractors' plants.

The announcement, made through the Chicago Ordnance District, followed a meeting of Army and industrial officials here and said that the War Manpower Commission was taking immediate steps to direct released workers into other vital war jobs in their own areas.

The cut-backs were described as another major step in adjustment of the nation's war production since the end of the European war. Last week the Army anounced a 50 per cent over-all reduction in the artillery shell program. The new reductions were approved by the production readjustment committee of the War Production Board composed of representatives of the Army, Navy, WPB, WMC, Smaller War Plants Corporation, War Food Administration and Maritime Commission.

Production schedules were cut extensively in all cases, the announcement said, but only twenty-five plants, which were not identified, received complete cancellations of their contracts on these particular items and these same plants are engaged in other war production work. Most affected plants will retain large potential capacity on these items in case of future emergency needs by the Army.

TREASURY OPPOSES BRETTON PLAN CURB

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—The Treasury told the Senate Banking Committee today it opposed a reservation to the Bretton Woods Monetary plan restricting its operations until Great Britain's fiscal position was improved.

Committee members said that Harry D. White, assistant Secretary of the Treasury, told a closed session that discussions had been going on in only a general way for the United States to give Britain a postwar loan to help clear up that country's debts.

Senator Fulbright, Democrat of Arkansas, had suggested that Congress write a reservation to give Britain prior aid in the measure providing for United States participation in the Bretton Woods plan.

He had suggesed some proviso after witnesses testified that the monetary plan might not work out unless Britain received substantial help beforehand and modified its empire preference trading system.

Mr. Fulbright told reporters that Mr. White had opposed the idea of any reservation to United States participation in the plan and had assured the committee that this Government as yet had made no commitments to give Great Britain postwar aid.

Senator Taft, Republican of Ohio, said that nothing should be given Britain until it agreed to lift trade restrictions so "we can sell to India and Egypt, for instance, on the same basis as the British Empire."

Local Councils Urged for Little Communities

State Community Service Institute Hears Plea by Farm Labor Supervisor

SYRACUSE, July 2 (AP).—Delegates attending the New York State Institute of Community Service were told today that "small communities need community councils for their own protection and as insurance for continuing the democratic process."

visor of the farm labor program, also said: "Promotion of self-interest on the part of individuals and organizations in the past-war years will have a tendency to break up co-operative work developed during war time unless some plan such as the community council is promoted."

"A modern rural community with a village center of 1,000 and hinterland of 1,500," Mr. Polson said, "will have operating within it sixty membership organizations and thirty to fifty state and Federal agencies.

"The result of this highly specialized type of organization is usually an unco-ordinated series of appeals to special interests. These many groups and agencies, although well intentioned, operate to dissipate the energies of the community rather than to promote its well being."

Dewey Message Read

A message from Governor Thomas E. Dewey was read at the opening session this morning by Chancellor William P. Tolley of Syracuse University.

The complete text of Mr. Dewey's message:

"It is a great pleasure to extend my congratulations to the officers and members of the New York State Citizens' Council, the Educational Conference Board and Syracuse University for sponsoring this important Institute of Community Service. I am very glad that several agencies of the state government, including agriculture and markets, commerce, health, housing and labor, are also joining with you to face the problem of mobilizing community resources for the balance of the war and for the post-war period.

"Community endeavor is the key to progress in the Empire State. New York is studded with communities—large and small—which are models of the American home town. The position of leadership which our state enjoys in matters of social and economic advancement is the result of years of energetic endeavor by leaders of our communities to improve their lives and the living conditions of their children and their neighborhood.

Lauds Co-operation in State

"Business men, labor leaders, farm leaders, educators and other good citizens in all walks of life take pride in their community in this state of ours. Working together with officials of local and state government, they have made social and economic conditions serve the best of human values.

"The war has presented many new opportunities for community endeavor. Out of the experience of these war years has come a new awakening to the possibilities of community service and good government. We owe it to the young men and women who are risking their lives in this war, as well as to ourselves, to see that our community and our state become even more effective units for the full realization of the American ideal.

"I wish you success, both in your work here and in the cities, towns and villages to which you will return."

The two-week institute is sponsored by the New York State Departments of Agricture, Commerce, Health, Housing and Labor, the New York State Citizens' Council, Educational Conference Board and Syracuse University.

Army Needs More Dogs To Spot Enemy Snipers

O. W. I. Asks Citizens to Enlist Animals for Scout Work

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—The Office of War Information said today:

"The government needs and asks its citizens in this 186th week of the war against Japan to:

"Ask for no more canning sugar than you will actually use. By taking only your fair share, you will help make the short supply go round.

"Enlist your shepherd, schnauzer, Doberman pinscher or collie in the Army K-9 Corps. The need is urgent for scout dogs to spot Japanese snipers and save American lives. Write or wire Quartermaster General, Washington 25, D. C.

"Sign up for at least one voyage on a merchant ship bringing soldiers home from Europe, if you are a competent chef, butcher or baker. Sea experience is unnecessary. Wire collect, Merchant Marine, Washington 25, D. C.

"Drown your July 4 picnic fire before leaving it. War-time lumber shortages are acute, yet careless campers and smokers cause fires that annually destroy enough timber to build thousands of houses.

"Use and put up all the fresh peaches you can. They may be the only plentiful fruit crop this summer, and commercially canned fruits will continue scarce next winter."

WLB Ends Strikers' Vacations

JUL 3 1945

Also Suspends Shift Premium Provisions of Akron Rubber Workers.

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—The War Labor Board, in an unprecedented action, suspended the shift premium and vacation provisions of its April 3 directive order today for 16,700 striking C. I. O. rubber workers at Akron, Ohio.

The board, with labor members dissenting, afted after George W. Taylor, the chairman, had warned the strikers at the plant of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company that it would consider modification of its directive orders as a disciplinary move. Repeated efforts by the board and by the international officers of the union to get the striking members of Local No. 2 back on the job thus far have proved fruitless. The strike began on June 16.

Strike Not Condoned.

At the same time, the WLB called on officials of Local No. 7 of the rubber workers' union to end a walkout at the plant of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company. The WLB said that the strike at Firestone, which began yesterday, involved 17,000 workers.

The labor members who refused to join in the board's suspension of shift premium and vacation provisions in the Goodyear directive, explained that they did not, however, condone the strike. They said that they merely objected to upsetting the order.

The vacation pay provision previously ordered by the WLB called for one week's vacation for those with one year's service and two weeks' vacation with pay for those with five or more years' service. The shift premium which the board suspends was 3 cents an hour extra for those working between 6 P. M. and 6 A. M. Because of previous allowances, this 3-cent additional premium made the total bonus 4 cents an hour for the second shift and 8 cents an hour for the third shift.

16,700 striking rubber workers, the War Labor Board today suspended paid vacations and other benefits it had granted them.

The action was taken against members of the CIO rubber workers, who have defied WLB orders to return to work at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio.

With labor members dissenting in principle, the board suspended the money provisions in a order it issued April 3. They were a 3-cent hourly shift differential for workers on the job between 6 P.M. and 6 A.M., and paid vacations of one week for one year of service and two weeks for five years or more.

Act In Firestone

The board was unable to estimate how much money would be withheld, temporarily at least, from the strikers.

The WLB also moved to bring a quick end to the Akron strike of 15,000 CIO rubber workers of the Firestone Rubber Company. The Goodyear strike began June 16, the Firestone walkout started yesterday.

The 31,700 workers had voted under the Smith-Connally War Labor Dispute Act last month in favor of striking to enforce their demands. At Goodyear, the board said, the strike was over company handling of grievances and at Firestone over negotiation on a new contract. The old one expired June 29.

Return-To-Work Order

The WLB sent Firestone workers a return-to-work order similar to one sent to Goodyear workers when their walkout began.

At Goodyear, repeated efforts by the Government and by the union's international president, Sherman H. Dalrymple, were unsuccessful in getting resumption of work.

Tire production was practically nonexistent in Akron.

Strikes caused by labor-management disputes kept 33,200 production workers idle at two plants, 24,000 others were off their jobs for a week because of shutdowns of three firms for overhauling and repairing of equipment.

Pickets At Gates

Only 1,500 were producing tires at a sixth company—the only one functioning.

Pickets guarded the gates of the Goodyear Company, and the Firestone Company.

Said C. V. Wheeler, local head of the Goodyear union:

"They've taken away our right. We'll stay out until we get it back."

He then advised the strikers to "go down and apply for unemployment compensations, for this forced strike is a lockout because of intolerable working conditions."

Turn Back Workers

Pickets of the Goodyear group which voted yesterday for the seventh time to continue the strike, today turned back some 3,800 clerical employés, permitting only top executives, Government workers, doctors and nurses to pass through the lines.

Some 16,500 Firestone employés also steered aside all production employés seeking to enter the gates, but allowed office workers to enter.

A new angle crept into the situation as it was disclosed several hundred railway cars, loaded with crude and synthetic rubber, solvents, carbon black and fabric, could not be unloaded due to the strikes. The cars are on sidings near the plants, and more are arriving daily.

Furloughs For Miners Opposed By Patterson

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, opposed today a proposal that men in the armed forces be discharged or furloughed to work in coal mines.

He told congressional delegations from four states and industry representatives that compliance with their suggestion that 60,000 to 75,000 men be released would "open the flood gates" to blanket discharges.

Patterson said the Army's best estimate was that only 42,000 former coal miners are now in the Army. About 7,000 of them, he estimated, will be released under the point discharge system within the next year.

OPA Extended

WASHINGTON, July 2, (AP)—President Truman's signature to a bill dramatically flown to him in Kansas City brought OPA safely through a fiscal year-end crisis.

The measure extending price and stabilization controls one year was signed into law shortly before their Saturday midnight expiration.

And Mr. Truman in a statement issued after his return to Washington by plane yesterday reiterated that such controls will be needed during reconversion to continue the fight against inflation.

Sped to final House passage Saturday afternoon, the legislation was flown to Mr. Truman to eliminate any possible cloud over OPA's price and rationing powers. The signing took place shortly before the midnight deadline.

JEWISH ISSUE PUT UP TO BIG 3

JUL 3 1945

Truman Asked To Include It On Conference Agenda

Washington, July 2 (AP)—The New Zionist Organization of America today asked President Truman to include "the Jewish question" in the agenda of the forthcoming conference of the Big Three.

In a letter to the President made public by Major William R. Friedman, the organization asked the Chief Executive "to secure a decision by the Big Three that the Jewish problem be solved in accordance with its magnitude and its historical implications."

Also submitted to the President was a declaration signed by twenty United States senators, 80 congressmen and more than 100 mayors calling upon the Government to "take the necessary steps that Palestine in its historic boundaries shall be proclaimed as a Jewish state."

Palestine Jewry Delegation

The 'officials' declaration also asked that a delegation of Palestine Jewry as "the natural representatives of all the Jews of the world who are in need of a home be invited to participate with the representatives of all the United Nations to secure a real, just and lasting peace for humanity."

In its letter to President Truman The New Zionist Organization declared:

"A Jewish Palestine with its tremendous civilizing, moral and material force will be a bulwark of peace and order in the eastern Mediterranean."

Death Sentence Reduced By President Truman

Washington, July 2 (AP)—President Truman late today commuted the death sentence for Private Albert B. Ritchie, of Catawba county, N.C., to life imprisonment.

Ritchie was convicted by court-martial for the murder of Corporal Peter De Fusco at Camp Phillips, Kan., last summer.

Representative Ervin (D., N.C.), accompanied by Attorneys John Stroupe and R. H. Shuford, of Hickory, N.C., made their plea for clemency before the President's military aide, Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughan.

Within an hour, Vaughan had consulted the President and the Chief Executive had changed the sentence to life imprisonment.

Washington, July 2 (AP)—President Truman has signed legislation continuing the present first class postal rates, the White House announced today. Without the legislation the 3-cent rate on out-of-town letters would have reverted to 2 cents.

Truman Too Busy To Go to Mackinac

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—Because of the press of work in Washington, President Truman will not be able to attend the Governors' Conference at Mackinac Island, Mich., as he had planned. White House press secretary Charles G. Ross today made this announcement on behalf of Mr. Truman.

"He regrets that he can't go, but he has too heavy a load of work ahead of him here."

Possible Rockefeller Successors Mentioned

Washington, July 2 (AP)—The name of Claude G. Bowers, United States Ambassador to Chile, was prominently mentioned today in speculation by Latin-American diplomatic circles as possible successor to Nelson A. Rockefeller, Assistant Secretary of State.

Laurence Duggan, formerly in charge of State Department activities in Latin America, and Adolf A. Berle, United States Ambassador to Brazil, were also mentioned as possibilities if Rockefeller leaves office when James F. Byrnes becomes Secretary of State.

Duggan currently is a deputy director of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. Berle was an Assistant Secretary of State under Cordell Hull for several years, but resigned to accept the ambassadorship to Brazil following Hull's retirement last fall.

Contract Terminations $5,100,000,000 In May

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Reflecting the end of the war in Europe, contract terminations jumped from $1,800,000,000 in April to $5,100,000,000 in May.

Reporting this today, the office of contract settlement said that during May the settlement rate reached $1,700,000,000, and is expected to rise further between now and September.

The War Department accounted for most of the May contract terminations with a total of $4,600,000,000. Of the total, the air forces canceled commitments exceeding $2,700,000,000, and the Army Service Forces $1,900,000,000.

New Director Named For Division Of ODT

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Earle E. McCarty has been appointed director of the railway transport division of the ODT, the agency announced today.

McCarty, associate director since May 1, is on loan from the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway. He succeeds J. H. Aydelott, of Chicago, who is returning to the Burlington Railroad.

The agency also announced the appointment of M. E. Harlan as assistant director for passenger trafic of the railway transport department. Harlan, a resident of St. Paul, succeeds Vincent T. Corbett, who is returning to the Rock Island lines at Chicago.

L. A. Christiansen, who has been acting eastern director, railway transport department, with headquarters at New York, has been appointed director.

Assistant Postmaster General Resigns Post

Washington, July 2 (AP)—The White House announced the resignation today of Kildroy P. Aldrich, First Assistant Postmaster General since 1943.

Charles G. Ross, presidential press secretary, said Aldrich, who entered the postal service as a clerk in 1897, told President Truman he felt it was time to retire and asked to be released at the end of June. Aldrich was born a Alhambra, Ill., February 16, 1877.

Briggs Replaces Hatch On Senate Committee

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Senator Briggs (D., Mo.) was appointed today to the Senate Mead committee, which conducts a continuing investigation of the war effort.

Briggs fills the vacancy created by the resignation of Senator Hatch (D., N.M.), who said he had too much other Senate work to continue.

Wickard Is Sworn In As Electrification Head

St. Louis, July 2 (AP)—Claude R. Wickard, former Secretary of Agriculture, was sworn in as Rural Electrification Administrator today in the REA offices.

The oath of office was given by John W. Asher, Jr., chief of the REA personnel division.

After the brief ceremony, Wickard read a statement asking for "support of everyone who wants the Rural Electrification Administration to reach its goal of providing electricity to the 6,000,000 still-unserved rural homes.

Wickard succeeds Harry Slattery, who resigned last December.

Roosevelt Memorial For Foreign Students

New York, July 2 (AP)—Receipt of $40,000 from an anonymous donor for establishment of a Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Scholarship fund for foreign students was announced yesterday by Dr. Henry Noble Mac Cracken, president of Vassar College.

Dr. Mac Cracken said income from the gift would be applied to scholarships for one or more students from any of the United Nations in furtherance of "President Roosevelt's work for international understanding."

Flags Of Big 3 On Russ Stamp

New York, July 2 (AP)—The Soviet Tass news agency today said Russia had issued two postage stamps depicting the flags of the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in color "in honor of the Anglo-American-Russian fighting alliance." The dispatch was heard by the FCC.

Mercury Worth Five Million Is Discovered on Nazi U-Boat

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 2—(AP) Approximately five million dollars' worth of mercury was discovered aboard the U-234, Nazi mine laying submarine, when it was drydocked at the Portsmouth Navy yard, the Portsmouth Herald said today.

The U-boat, one of the largest in the German navy, surrendered while en route to Japan after V-E day.

Water-tight containers found in 18 mine wells were reported to have been taken from the U-234 and shipped to Washington two weeks ago under a heavy escort of Seabees and Marines.

They were said to have obtained valuable plans, merchandise and secret equipment.

Navy officials in Portsmouth declined to discuss the U-234's cargo which they said, would be made public in Washington. The Navy department at Washington said it had "No comment."

The Herald reported that first knowledge of the mercury came when keel plates were removed. The valuable liquid metal, presumed to have come from Italy, was said to have been carried as ballast on each side of the keel, stored in flasks 12 to 18 inches high. The smaller size flask was said to have weighed about 80 pounds, but no estimate of the total weight of the shipment was available.

TEXAN COMES HOME TO DIE

Soldier, Who Had Been In Jap Camp, Doomed, Doctors Say

Fort Worth, Texas, July 2 (AP)—Corporal James E. Newman came home from the war today, but he brought with him effects of the infamous march of death and three years in a Japanese prison camp which doctors say will be fatal.

He was smiling, this sick, weary soldier, as an ambulance wheeled up to his front door and attendants carried him into the house.

But scarring his 6-foot-2-inch frame were the ravages of tuberculosis, laryngitis, malnutrition and beri-beri, which had reduced his weight to 98 pounds and left him critically ill.

Plane Brings Him Home

A Red Cross plane flew him home from the hospital. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Newman, requested that he be allowed to return home since doctors said he couldn't live.

It was on December 7, 1941, that Newman was to have boarded a ship which was to bring him from the Philippines back to the United States. His three-year hitch in the Army, which he had joined when he was still a minor, was up.

Newman was among those liberated from Cabanatuan. Then he was taken to New Guinea. Doctors said he couldn't survive.

On March 27 he was brought to San Francisco and after two weeks he was taken to Bruns General Hospital.

He Smiles Jauntily

His mother visited him there—it was the first time in seven years she had seen him.

"Sit down over there, mother," she said her son told her. "Pull yourself together. I'm going to be all right now."

Army doctors at the hospital feared he couldn't stand the plane ride, which brought him to Fort Worth today.

But with a civilian hat cocked over one eye and propped up on an elbow, he smiled jauntily as he moved across the lawn of his front yard on the stretcher bringing him home.

RATIFICATION IN BELGIUM AND NORWAY MUST AWAIT PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS IN THE FALL, BUT THE NEW GOVERNMENT IN HOLLAND HAS ANNOUNCED THAT ONE OF ITS FIRST STEPS WILL BE THE CREATION OF AN EMERGENCY PARLIAMENT, WHICH WOULD HAVE AUTHORITY TO RATIFY.

DENMARK'S RIKSDAGEN, NOW IN SESSION, WAS EXPECTED TO ACT PROMPTLY AFTER DANISH DELEGATES RETURN TO COPENHAGEN FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

AFTER DANISH DELEGATES RETURN TO COPENHAGEN FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

GREECE'S GOVERNMENT FOR SEVERAL DAYS HAS BEEN DEBATING WHETHER TO RATIFY THE PACT AT ONCE OR WAIT UNTIL THE ELECTION OF A GENERAL ASSEMBLY, WHOSE APPROVAL, SOME GREEKS SAID, COULD BE GIVEN IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF GREATER SOLEMNITY AND FORMALITY.

ACTION BY GREAT BRITAIN'S DOMINIONS APPEARED TO HINGE SOLELY ON LEGISLATIVE PROCEDURE. CANADA'S NEW PARLIAMENT MEETS IN AUGUST OR SEPTEMBER. NEW ZEALAND'S IS NOW IN SESSION. THE PARLIAMENT OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA NORMALLY WOULD NOT CONVENE UNTIL JANUARY, BUT A SPECIAL SESSION MAY BE CALLED. AUSTRALIAN RATIFICATION WOULD REQUIRE PARLIAMENTARY DELIBERATION.

IN EGYPT, THE GOVERNMENT'S LARGE MAJORITY IN PARLIAMENT WAS EXPECTED TO WIN RATIFICATION DESPITE OPPOSITION FROM THE WAFDIST PARTY, WHICH HAS CONTENDED THAT THE CHARTER DUPLICATES EXISTING EGYPTIAN COMMITMENTS AND THUS IS NOT HELPFUL.

REPORTS REACHING CAIRO INDICATED THAT OTHER MIDDLE EASTERN STATES WOULD INDORSE THE PACT QUICKLY.

THERE WAS NO IMPORTANT OPPOSITION IN SOUTH AMERICA.

ARGENTINA'S FOREIGN MINISTER, CESAR AMEGHINO, SAID LAST WEDNESDAY THAT RATIFICATION COULD BE EXPECTED "SOON," PRESUMABLY BY AN EXECUTIVE DECREE BY PRESIDENT EDELMIRO FARRELL.

A28

THE ARGENTINE CONSTITUTION REQUIRES LEGISLATIVE APPROVAL OF TREATIES, BUT THE SUPREME COURT HAS RULED THAT, SINCE THE COUNTRY LACKS A CONGRESS UNDER ITS MILITARY GOVERNMENT, RATIFICATION MAY BE PERFORMED LEGALLY BY THE EXECUTIVE.

MIGUEL ANGEL CARCANO, CHIEF OF THE ARGENTINE DELEGATION AT SAN FRANCISCO, SAID WEDNESDAY IN NEW YORK THAT ARGENTINA MIGHT BE THE FIRST LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRY TO ACT.

THE CHARTER WILL BE PUT BEFORE PERU'S NEW CONGRESS WHEN IT CONVENES JULY 28 COINCIDENT WITH THE INDUCTION OF THE NEW PRESIDENT, JOSE LUIS BUSTAMANTE, WHO HAS EXPRESSED INTEREST IN QUICK RATIFICIATION.

IN ECUADOR, CONGRESSIONAL RATIFICATION IS NECESSARY AND THE CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY HAS VOTED THAT CONGRESS WILL NOT MEET UNTIL AUGUST, 1946, EXCEPT IN EXCEPTIONAL CIRCUMSTANCES. A SPECIAL SESSION, HOWEVER, COULD BE CALLED.

BRAZIL'S PRESIDENT, GETULIO VARGAS, HAS POWER TO RATIFY THE CHARTER BY EXECUTIVE DECREE AND HIS FOREIGN MINISTRY SAID HE WAS EXPECTED TO DO SO SOON.

CHILE'S CONGRESSIONAL RATIFICATION WAS EXPECTED TO FOLLOW FOREIGN MINISTER JOAQUIN FERNANDEZ' RETURN LATE IN JULY FROM SAN FRANCISCO AND VISITS ELSEWHERE IN NORTH AMERICA.

MEXICO'S CONGRESS CONVENES IN SEPTEMBER AND IS EXPECTED TO INDORSE THE AGREEMENT QUICKLY.

COLOMBIA'S CONGRESS MAY ACT NEXT WEEK. THE BODY ALREADY IS IN SPECIAL SESSION, AND CONSIDERATION OF THE CHARTER IS ON THE AGENDA.

JUL 3 1945

CUBA'S RATIFICATION MUST BE BY ITS CONGRESS, WHICH DOES NOT MEET IN REGULAR SESSION UNTIL LATE IN SEPTEMBER. SEVERAL POLITICAL PARTIES HAVE ASKED FOR A SPECIAL SESSION.

LONDON, JULY 2-(AP)-NEWSPAPERS WHICH SUPPORT THE CONSERVATIVES WROT CONFIDENTLY TODAY THAT PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S PARTY WOULD WIN THE THURSDAY ELECTION, WITH SPECULATION THAT THE MARGIN MIGHT BE MORE THAN 100 SEATS IN PARLIAMENT.

LORD BEAVERBROOK'S EVENING STANDARD STATED THAT "FAVORITE FIGURES RANGE FROM 100 UPWARDS." CONSERVATIVES HELD 359 SEATS IN THE OLD PARLIAMENT, A WORKING MAJORITY OF 52.

CHURCHILL, APPARENTLY EXPECTING A HARD FIGHT AT THE POLLS, STARTED A TOUR OF LONDON. BY A STRANGE TWIST OF THE REGISTRATION LAWS, THE PRIME MINISTER WILL HAVE NO VOTE SINCE HE DOES NOT MAINTAIN A BUSINESS IN HIS HOME CONSTITUENCY INTHE ABBEY DIVISION OF WESTMINISTER AND DID NOT ATTEND A UNIVERSITY AFTER LEAVING HARROW.

THE LABOR PARTY, LIKE THE CONSERVATIVES, EXUDED CONFIDENCE. LABORITES WERE URGING THEIR NATIONALIZATION PLATFORM, AND SCHEDULED MASS MEETINGS FOR TOMORROW NIGHT. THEIR BIG THREE, CLEMENT ATTLEE, ERNEST BEVIN AND HERBERT MORRISON SCHEDULED LONDON APPEARANCES.

LABORITES WERE EXPECTED TO CAPITALIZE ON CHURCHILL'S DISENFRANCHISEMENT AS PROOF OF THEIR ASSERTIONS THAT REGISTERS THROUGHOUT THE LAND WERE NOT IN SHAPE FOR AN EARLY ELECTION. BOTH THE LABOR AND LIBERAL PARTIES WANTED A FALL ELECTION.

THE FIRST VOTES CAST ARRIVED LAST NIGHT FROM TROOPS IN THE CHANNEL ISLANDS. MEN OF THE 21ST ARMY GROUP OCCUPYING NORTHWEST GERMANY WILL START VOTING TOMORROW. THE TIME NEEDED TO COLLECT SOLDIERS' VOTES WILL DELAY ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE ELECTION RESULTS UNTIL JULY 26.

THE DAILY EXPRESS, THE DAILY TELEGRAPH, DAILY MAIL AND DAILY SKETCH--ALL SUPPORTING CHURCHILL EDITORIALLY--PRINTED FRONT PAGE FORECASTS THAT THE CONSERVATIVES WOULD WIN THE JULY 5 BALLOTING.

LONDON, JULY 2--(AP)--PRIME MINISTER WINSTON CHURCHILL WILL N O T BE ABLE TO VOTE IN BRITAIN'S GENERAL ELECTION JULY 5 BECAUSE HIS NAME WAS LEFT OFF THE ELECTORAL REGISTER IN HIS HOME CONSTITUENCY, A SPOKESMAN FOR NO. 10 DOWNING STREET ANNOUNCED TODAY.

MANY BRITISH SUBJECTS HAVE A CHOICE OF TWO OUT OF THREE CONSTITUENCIES IN WHICH TO VOTE -- NOT ONLY FROM THE RESIDENTIAL ADDRESS, BUT FROM BUSINESSPREMISES AND FROM CERTAIN UNIVERSITIES WHICH SEND MEMBERS TO PARLIAMENT.

BUT THE PRIME MINISTER, THE SPOKESMAN SAID, IS OUT OF LUCK ALL THE WAY AROUND. HE DOES N O T MAINTAIN A BUSINESS AND DID N O T ATTEND AND UNIVERSITY AFTER LEAVING HARROW.

"SO HE'S LOST HIS VOTE ENTIRELY," THE SPOKESMAN SAID.

THIS NEW DEVELOPMENT WAS EXPECTED TO BE SEIZED UPON BY THE OPPOSITION TO CHURCHILL'S CONSERVATIVE PARTY. THE OPPOSITION HAS FREQUENTLY CONTENDED THAT MANY VOTERS WOULD BE DISENFRANCHISED BY THE JULY ELECTION BECAUSE THE ELECTORAL REGISTERS ARE NOT COMPLETE.

THE DISCOVERY THAT HE HAD BEEN LEFT OFF THE REGISTER WAS MADE WHEN CHURCHILL RETURNED FROM HIS 1,000-MILE TOUR OF THE NORTH LAST WEEK. AT THAT TIME HE MADE INQUIRIES ABOUT THE POLLING STATION AT WHICH HE WOULD CAST HIS VOTE. NO. 10 DOWNING STREET IS IN THE "ABBEY DIVISION," WHERE CHURCHILL WOULD HAVE VOTED FOR SIR HAROLD WEBB, CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE.

JUL 3 1945

CHURCHILL'S SECRETARY, MRS. HILL, MADE INQUIRIES AND DISCOVERED THAT THE NAMES OF MRS. CHURCHILL AND THE PRIME MINISTER'S BROTHER JOHN WERE PRESENT, BUT THAT CHURCHILL'S NAME WAS NOT.

MRS. HILL DISCOVERED INCIDENTALLY THAT ANOTHER NAME HAD BEEN LEFT OFF -- HERS.

LONDON, JULY 2--(AP)--LONDON'S CONSERVATIVE PRESS BROKE OUT IN A RASH OF VICTORY PREDICTIONS TODAY AS BRITAIN'S STORMY ELECTION CAMPAIGN THUNDERED INTO THE CLOSING DAYS.

JUL 3 1945

THE DAILY EXPRESS, DAILY TELEGRAPH, DAILY MAIL AND DAILY SKETCH -- ALL EDITORIALLY SUPPORTING PRIME MINISTER WINSTON CHURCHILL'S CONSERVATIVE PARTY -- JOINED IN PRINTING FRONT PAGE FORECASTS THAT THE CONSERVATIVES WOULD BE RETURNED TO POWER IN THE VOTING JULY 5.

CHURCHILL HIMSELF, HOWEVER, ~~SEEMED LIKE ANYTHING BUT~~ A MAN CONCEDING TO AN EASY VICTORY. HE STARTED A WHIRLWIND THREE-DAY CAMPAIGN TOUR OF LONDON WHICH WILL CARRY HIM RIGHT UP TO THE BALLOTING DEADLINE.

JUL 3 1945

THE LABOR PARTY -- THE CONSERVATIVES' STRONGEST CHALLENGE -- LIKEWISE WHEELED UP ITS BIGGEST ~~ORATORICAL~~ ORATORICAL GUNS FOR A FINAL BARRAGE IN SUPPORT OF ITS PROGRAM FOR NATIONALIZATION OF KEY INDUSTRIES.

LONDON SPEECHES WERE BILLED FOR CLEMENT ATTLEE, LABORITE LEADER AND HEIR-APPARENT TO THE PREMIERSHIP IF THE LABORITES WIN, AND FOR ERNEST BEVIN AND HERBERT MORRISON, BOTH FORMER LABORITE MEMBERS OF THE COALITION CABINET.

PAPERS PREDICTING A CONSERVATIVE TRIUMPH SAID THEIR FORECASTS WERE BASED IN REPORTS COMPILED BY PARTY HEADQUARTERS.

"CONSERVATIVE ELECTION EXPERTS SPECIALLY SELECTED FOR LONG EXPERIENCE AND ABILITY TO ASSESS TRENDS OF PUBLIC OPINION HAVE REPORTED THAT THE PRIME MINISTER CAN BE CERTAIN OF VICTORY AT THE POLLS THURSDAY, BARRING ACCIDENTS," SAID THE DAILY MAIL.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH STATED THAT "WEEKEND REPORTS FROM THE CONSTITUENCES ENCOURAGE THE VIEW THAT THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT (AS CHURCHILL REFERS TO HIS CABINET) IS ASSURED OF A MAJORITY."

THE DAILY SKETCH SAID THAT "POLITICAL ANALYSTS OF THREE MAJOR PARTIES TODAY PRESENT TO THEIR CHIEFS THEIR FORECASTS OF THE ELECTION RESULT AND ALL AGREE ON A MAJORITY FOR CHURCHILL AND HIS NATIONAL GOVERNMENT."

JUL 3 1945

THE DAILY EXPRESS DECLARED THAT THE "GOVERNMENT'S OPPONENTS HAVE ALREADY DECIDED THEY HAVE LOST THE ELECTION AND THAT CHURCHILL IS CERTAIN OF A BIG WORKING MAJORITY."

PAPERS SUPPORTING THE LABOR PARTY WERE MUCH MORE RESTRAINED BUT CONCEDED NOTHING. THE LABORITE HERALD SAID THAT "LABOR CONFIDENCE IS HIGHER THAN EVER" AND PROMISED "SHOCKS FOR THE TORIES." IT DECLARED THAT "WHEN ALL THE HYSTERIA CREATED BY THE TORIES HAS DIED DOWN THE MASS OF PEOPLE WILL ON THURSDAY INSIST ON A LABOR POLICY."

AS TIME FOR VOTING NEARED TEMPERS FIRED AND CAMPAIGN SPEECHES SHARPENED.

ATTLEE LAST NIGHT ACCUSED CHURCHILL OF PLUMBING THE "DEPTHS OF MISREPRESENTATION AND INGRATITUDE" IN SUGGESTING THAT LABOR PARTY

LEADERS OUTSIDE PARLIAMENT WOULD BE MADE PRIVY TO HIGH MILITARY AND STATE SECRETS IF THE LABORITES CONTROLLED THE GOVERNMENT. ATTLEE CLAIMED THAT LABOR MEMBERS OF THE COALITION GOVERNMENT KEPT WARTIME SECRETS.

JUL 3 1945

ATTLEE ALSO RAPPED THE CAMPAIGN ROLE OF CHURCHILL WHO, DESPITE HIS 70 YEARS, STUMPED VIGOROUSLY OVER MOST OF ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND, DEFENDING THE POLICY OF FREE ENTERPRIZE, SLAMMING SOCIALISM. THE LABOR LEADER, WHO WAS CHURCHILL'S DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER IN THE COALITION CABINET, SAID HE WAS TRYING TO WAGE THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY'S CAMPAIGN ON HIS OWN PRESTIGE AS A WAR LEADER.

"I SHOULD BE THE LAST MAN TO DENY HIS GREAT SERVICES IN THE GERMAN WAR," ATTLEE ASSERTED, "BUT IT IS QUITE ANOTHER THING TO ARGUE FROM THIS THAT HE'S INDISPENSABLE IN THE FUTURE AND THAT THE COUNTRY, TO SECURE HIS SERVICES, MUST SADDLE ITSELF WITH A CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT."

OBERAMMERGAU, JULY 2-(AP)-HOPE THAT THE PASSION PLAYERS WILL BE ABLE TO SET THEIR PRODUCTION IN SHAPE FOR A SPECIAL PRESENTATION NEXT YEAR IS STIRRING THE VILLAGERS OF OBERAMMERGAU, ALTHOUGH NO DECISION HAS BEEN REACHED.

THE PASSION PLAY HAS BEEN GIVEN HERE SINCE 1634, WHEN IT WAS BEGUN AS AN EXPRESSION OF THANKSGIVING BECAUSE OBERAMMERGAU WAS SPARED DURING A PLAGUE.

THE PLAY WAS GIVEN AT TEN-YEAR INTERVALS, BUT THE LAST ONE WAS PRESENTED IN 1934 ON THE TERCENTENARY. WAR PREVENTED ITS REPETITION IN 1944.

MISS ANNY RUTZ, WHO PLAYS THE ROLE OF MARY, SAID:

"WE ALL HOPE WE CAN GIVE THE PLAY NEXT YEAR, ALTHOUGH NORMALLY IT WOULD NOT BE GIVEN AGAIN UNTIL 1954. BUT WE LOST SO MANY MEN IN THE WAR AND NEW CHARACTERS MUST BE TRAINED FOR ROLES.

"WILLY BIERLING, WHO PLAYED JOHN, IS NOW A PRISONER OF WAR IN THE UNITED STATES. WE LOST MORE THAN 100 MEN.

"FROM A VILLAGE OF 3,000, WE USE 1,400 PERSONS IN THE PLAY, 700 ACTUALLY TAKING ROLES IN THE CAST. THE REMAINDER ARE TECHNICIANS.

"MANY WOMEN HAVE MARRIED SINCE 1934, AND THAT FURTHER LIMITS OUR CHOICE OF CHARACTERS, SINCE IN MOST ROLES MARRIED WOMEN ARE BARRED."

THE VILLAGERS HAVE BEEN KEEPING THEIR FAMED WOOD-CARVING SCHOOLS GOING, WORKING AT THE DAILY TASKS WHILE WAITING FOR REHEARSALS TO BEGIN.

OTTO RUTZ, NOT A RELATIVE OF ANNY, WHO PLAYS SIMON, IS THE VILLAGE TECHNICIAN. PILATE IS PORTRAYED BY MELCHOIR BREITAMTER, THE SAWMILL OWNER. JUDAS IS HANS ZWINK, AN ARTIST AND FARMER, WHOSE GREAT-GRANDFATHER ONCE PLAYED THE CHRISTUS, WHOSE GRANDFATHER PLAYED PETER AND WHOSE FATHER PLAYED JUDAS.

THE CURRENT CHRISTUS IS ALOIS LANG, WHO NOW LIVES IN A BARN BACK OF DAHEIM LANG, NOTED HOTEL WHERE PASSION PLAY VISITORS WERE PUT UP BY THE LANG FAMILY. THE HOTEL HAS BEEN TAKEN OVER BY THE 10TH ARMORED DIVISION FOR ITS HEADQUARTERS. THE DIVISION OCCUPIES THE TOWN.

THE CAST LOST ITS MARY MAGDALENE, THE FORMER RITA FOSCH, DAUGHTER OF THE TOWN DRUGGIST, WHO MARRIED SOME YEARS AGO AND NOW HAS TWO CHILDREN. SHE WON'T BE ABLE TO PLAY THE ROLE.

BUT THE COSTUMES AND SCENERY ARE UNDAMAGED BY THE WAR. THE TOWN WAS SPARED BY BOMBERS, ALTHOUGH IT WAS LEARNED AFTER THE UNITED STATES ARMY MOVED IN THAT IT HOUSED A LABORATORY FOR JET-PROPULSION PLANE DESIGNING STAFFS.

THE ENGLISH-LANGUAGE BROADCAST, MONITORED BY THE FCC, QUOTED THE PONTIFF AS SAYING THAT LEADERS "IN ALL FIELDS SHOULD RECOGNIZE IT AS

THE REPORT SAID THE STATEMENTS WERE MADE IN AN INTERVIEW GRANTED BY POPE PIUS TO JEAN A.BRUNNER, COMMANDER OF THE U.S. VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS.

MANILA, JULY 2-(AP)-INVASION OF THE SOUTHEAST BORNEO AREA OF BALIKPAPAN BY AUSTRALAIN TROOPS REGAINS FROM JAPANESE CONTROL THE RICHEST OIL FIELDS OF THE EAST INDIES.

IT WAS UPON THE OIL SOURCES THERE THAT THE JAPANESE HAD HOPED TO BUILD THEIR ASIATIC CONQUEST, EXPECTING THAT AREA TO SUPPLY THE FUEL FOR THEIR WAR MACHINE.

THOSE HOPES ALREADY HAD BEEN QUASHED TO A GREAT EXTENT BY AIR AND SEA BLOCKADES WHICH IN RECENT MONTHS CUT TO A THIN TRICKLE THE ENEMY'S FLOW OF OIL MOVING BY TANKERS OR PUMPED DIRECTLY INTO THE THE BUNKERS OF SHIPS.

ESTIMATES OF PRODUCTION IN THE BALIKPAPAN FIELDS VARY, BUT IT RUNS TO MANY MILLIONS OF BARRELS OF CRUDE OIL ANNUALLY--GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR SAID 15,000,000. THIS OIL IS SO PURE IT CAN BE USED AS SHIP FUEL WITHOUT REFINING.

IN ADDITION, DUTCH-BUILT REFINERIES HAD A DAILY OUTPUT OF 35,000 BARRELS OF OIL AND 7,400 BARRELS OF GASOLINE.

DESTROYED BY THE DUTCH WHEN THE JAPANESE SWEPT SOUTHWARD IN 1942.

THESE REFINERIES WERE RESTORED BY THE ENEMY AND THEN BLASTED AGAIN BY THE ALLIES. JAPANESE PRODUCTION MAY HAVE INCREASED BEYOND PRE-WAR FIGURES TO HANDLE THE GREATER OUTPUT PIPED FROM FILES TO THE NORTH AT SAMBODJA AND LOUISE AND ON BOTH SIDES OF THE MAHAKAM RIVER IN THE SAMARINDA AREA.

BUILT ALONG THE EAST SHORE OF BALIKPAPAN BAY, THE TOWN OF BALIK-PAPAN HAD A PRE-WAR POPULATION OF 30,000 INDONESIANS AND ABOUT 1,000 EUROPEANS. MOST OF ITS RESIDENTS WERE ENGAGED IN OIL PRODUCTION.

THE FEW ROADS HAD BEEN IMPROVED BY THE JAPANESE TO GAIN BETTER ACCESS TO THE OIL FIELDS. NOW THEY MAY WELL PROVE OF GREAT AID IN THE MOVEMENT OF ALLIED TROOPS THROUGHOUT THE AREA.

BALIKPAPAN BAY PROVIDES GOOD ANCHORAGE FOR AN ALMOST-UNLIMITED NUMBER OF SHIPS. THE TOWN ITSELF HAS, OR HAD, AT LEAST SEVEN GOOD WHARVES, MAKING IT A LOGICAL BASE FOR OPERATIONS THROUGH THE MAKASSAR STRAITS AGAINST OTHER ENEMY-HELD TERRITORY.

OUTSIDE OF THE TOWN, THE GENERAL AREA OF THE INVASION IS SPARSELY-POPULATED, AND EXCEPT IN THE IMMEDIATE VICINITY OF THE OIL FIELDS THE TROOPS FACE THE PROSPECT OF JUNGLE FIGHTING.

THERE ARE TWO CHIEF AIRFIELDS IN THE VICINITY. ONE, FORMERLY A CIVILIAN AIRPORT, IS AT MANGGAR, 12 MILES NORTHEAST OF BALIK-PAPAN, AND A JAPANESE-BUILD FIELD AT SEPINGGANG. THERE ARE SEVERAL ADDITIONAL SITES FOR AIRFIELD CONSTRUCTION NEARBY. ALL THE AREA HAS BEEN HEAVILY BOMBED, KNOCKING THE ENEMY FIELDS OUT OF OPERATIONAL USE.

THAT SECTION OF EAST BORNEO NORMALLY IS UNDER RULE OF THE SULTAN OF KOETE, MAHOMMED PARIKESIT, BUT SINCE THE JAPANESE LANDED ON JAN. 25, 1942, IT HAS BEEN ADMINISTERED BY THE JAPANESE NAVY.

WITH ALLIED FORCES AT BALIKPAPAN, BORNEO, JULY 1-(DELAYED)-(AP)-JAPANESE SOLDIERS FLED INLAND TODAY AS THE INVASION OF BALIKPAPAN'S OIL LANDS ROLLED ON OVER BLASTED BEACH DEFENSES AND SHELL SEARED HILLS STRETCHING BACK FROM THE BAY.

AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN PILOTS REPORTED ENEMY TROOPS WERE GETTING OUT OF THE IMMEDIATE VICINITY AS FAST AS THEIR FEET AND A VARIETY OF VEHICLES COULD TAKE THEM.

THE AIRMEN HASTENED THEIR DEPARTURE WITH BOMBS AND STRAFING ATTACKS.

FROM A RIDGE OVERLOOKING BALIKPAPAN, WHICH THE AUSTRALIAN TROOPS SECURED BY MID-AFTERNOON TODAY, WE COULD SEE LITTLE BUT RUIN.

HUGE OIL STORAGE TANKS, OF 50,000 GALLON CAPACITY, BLAZED AND SENT SMOKE BILLOWING SKYWARD.

ALONG THE SHORELINE THREE ROWS OF PILINGS HAD BEEN VIRTUALLY UPROOTED IN THE PRE-INVASION OPERATIONS WHICH MILITARY OBSERVERS SAID WAS ONE OF THE MOST DIFFICULT AMPHIBIOUS MANEUVERS ACHIEVED IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

AS THE AUSSIES MOVED IN AND ESTABLISHED FIRM POSITIONS, THERE WAS EVIDENCE OF HURRIED EVACUATION BY THE ENEMY. SOME ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS WERE TAKEN INTACT.

SOME OF THE PILLBOXES WERE AS LARGE AS A THREE-ROOM BUNGALOW. ONE HONEYCOMBED TUNNEL SYSTEM, EVIDENTLY USED AS A HOSPITAL, WAS AT LEAST 600 FEET LONG. A VERTICAL SHAFT DROPPED 30 FEET, REVEALING TWO TUNNEL LEVELS.

ON THE NOSE OF THE RIDGE FROM WHICH WE VIEWED THE SCENE WAS A JAPANESE FIVE-INCH GUN EMPLACEMENT. BOXES OF UNUSED AMMUNITION WERE STACKED BESIDE IT.

THE ENEMY APPARENTLY ABANDONED IT WHEN AN ALLIED BOMB OR NAVAL GUN SCORED A HIT IN FRONT OF THE EMPLACEMENT. AUSSIES SAT QUIETLY BESIDE THE OMNIOUS LOOKING GUN--AND BREWED A POT OF TEA.

JUL 3 1945

PART OF THE INVADING FORCE SWUNG NORTHEAST ALONG THE COASTAL HIGHWAY TOWARD THE SEPINGGANG AIRSTRIP, THREE MILES AWAY, AND LATE IN THE DAY WERE REPORTED MAKING GOOD PROGRESS.

SEPINGGANG'S AIRSTRIP, BUILT BY THE JAPANESE, IS 4,600 FEET LONG. A SECOND AIRFIELD WITH TWO PRE-WAR BUILT RUNWAYS LIES SEVEN MILES FARTUER ON AT MANGGAR.

INLAND 100 MILES ARE TWO OTHER AIRFIELDS WHICH THE DUTCH BUILT SECRETLY BEFORE THE WAR. THE JAPANESE HAVE BEEN USING ALL THE FIELDS BUT NO PLANES APPEARED FROM ANY OF THEM TODAY.

THE ENEMY APPARENTLY DID NOT EXPECT A FRONTAL ASSAULT FROM THE SEA. A MAIN ANTI-TANK DITCH WAS FURTHER NORTH, NEAR THE AIRFIELDS.

(ADVANCE)...OKINAWA (DELAYED)--OKINAWA'S READY ACCEPTANCE OF AMERICAN OCCUPATION HAS BEEN DRAMATICALLY PRESENTED IN A PETITION SIGNED BY PROMINENT CIVILIANS HOPEFUL FOR "A NEW PARADISE OF THE PACIFIC," UNDER AMERICAN CIVILIZATION.

THE PETITION, DRAWN UP BY 10 OF THE MOST INFLUENTIAL OF THIS WAR-SCARRED ISLAND'S CIVILIANS, EVEN SUGGESTS A MAN--A MARINE LIEUTENANT BORN IN JAPAN TO TAKE A LEADING ROLE IN OKINAWA'S REHABILITATION.

HE IS FIRST LIEUTENANT FREDERICK B. VAN BRUNT OF ONTARIO, CALIF., WHO WAS BORN IN YOKOHAMA AND SPENT 17 OF HIS 23 YEARS IN KOBE. IT WAS LARGELY THROUGH VAN BRUNT'S EFFORTS THAT THE COOPERATION OF THE OKINAWANS WAS WON IN THE EARLY, DECISIVE PHASE OF THE CAMPAIGN.

THE OKINAWANS' PETITION WAS ADDRESSED TO "HIS EXCELLENCY, THE REVERED" MAJ. GEN. LEMUEL C. SHEPHERD, COMMANDING THE SIXTH MARINE DIVISION.

THE DOCUMENT READ IN PART:

"OKINAWA HAS AN EXTRAORDINARY HISTORY, EXTENDING BACK OVER A PERIOD OF SIX HUNDRED YEARS. IT REPRESENTS AN AMALGAMATION OF THE CHINESE AND JAPANESE CULTURES, BUILT ON A FOUNDATION PECULIAR TO OKINAWA ITSELF. X X X

"IF, WHILE THE TRADITIONAL CULTURE OF OKINAWA STILL EXISTS, IT WERE IMPREGNATED WITH THE SEEDS OF YOUR NEWER CIVILIZATION, THIS LAND WOULD BECOME A NEW PARADISE OF THE PACIFIC. X X X

"WE FEEL THAT LIEUTENANT VAN BRUNT, BY VIRTUE OF HIS UNDERSTANDING OF OKINAWA AND HER PEOPLE, IS THE PERSON BEST QUALIFIED TO UNDERTAKE THE REBUILDING OF OKINAWA, A WORK IN WHICH MEN OF SUCH CHARACTER MUST NOT BE LACKING.

"PLEASE DEIGN TO ALLOW THIS LIEUTENANT TO REMAIN WITH US, X X X"

GENERAL SHEPHERD REPLIED:

"I AM GREATLY HONORED AND DEEPYL TOUCHED TO RECEIVE YOUR PERSONAL LETTER, BUT I AM ONLY A MILITARY COMMANDER OF ONE DIVISION OF THE AMERICAN FORCES ON THIS ISLAND. THEREFORE, I HAVE NO AUTHORITY TO GRANT YOUR REQUEST.

THE FUTURE OF OKINAWA RESTS WITH THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES AND NOT WITH THE MILITARY COMMANDERS IN THE FIELD. THE GOVERNMENT OF THIS ISLAND WILL BE ADMINISTERED BY CIVIL AFFAIRS OFFICERS SENT BY THE UNITED STATES, SUPPORTED BY MILITARY AND NAVAL OCCUPATIONAL FORCES. TELL YOUR PEOPLE THAT I WILL FORWARD YOUR REQUEST TO THE PROPER AUTHORITIES RECOMMENDING THEY GIVE IT THEIR GRAVEST CONSIDERATION."

SAID VAN BRUNT, "IT ALL CAME AS A SURPRISE TO ME."

OKINAWA, JUNE 2-(AP)-THE AMERICAN AERIAL BLOCKADE OF JAPAN, NOW EXTENDED TO THE CHINESE COAST, HAS THROTTLED ENEMY SHIPPING IN THE YELLOW SEA TO A MERE TRICKLE, A NAVY OFFICER DECLARED TODAY.

THIS SEA BETWEEN THE JAPANESE HOME ISLANDS AND CHINA ONCE WAS THE PRINCIPAL ENEMY ARTERY, BUT NOW NONE OF ITS WATER IS SAFE.

COMDR.J.M.CHITTENDEN, OF MASSENA,N.Y., COMMANDER OF THE PRIVATEER DETACHMENT OF FLEET AIR WING ONE, SAID AMERICAN ATTACKS HAD FORCED THE JAPANESE TO TAKE A ROUNDABOUT ROUTE FAR UP THE YELLOW SEA.

THE TRAFFIC IS RESTRICTED TO SMALL SHIPS, HE SAID, AND TO REACH JAPAN AT ALL THEY MUST FOLLOW THE SMALL ISLANDS OFF KOREA AND THEN SLIP ACROSS THE HOME ISLANDS BY NIGHT.

THUNDERBOLTS FROM OKINAWA IN THEIR FIRST STRIKE AGAINST THE CHINA COAST DEMONSTRATED YESTERDAY HOW DANGEROUS IT IS FOR THE NIPPONESE TO MOVE BY DAY IN THE WATERS BETWEEN CHINA AND JAPAN.

THEY CAUGHT A CONCENTRATION OF SHIPPING IN THE CHUSAN ARCHIPELAGO, WHICH IS SOUTH OF SHANGHAI, SET A BIG OIL TANKER AFIRE AND DAMAGED SIX LARGE CARGO VESSELS.

LT.LLOYD E.MILLET OF BELLEVILLE,ILL., HAD HIS PLANE SHOT UP IN THE RAID ON THE ARCHIPELAGO AND RETURNED TO BASE WITH ONE WHEEL OF HIS THUNDERBOLT UP AND THE OTHER DOWN. HE HEADED OUT TO SEA WHILE ANOTHER PLANE BUZZED A NAVY SHIP TO ATTRACT ATTENTION.

MILLET BAILED OUT. "AS I FLOATED DOWN I COULD SEE A P-6 BOAT HEADING FOR ME," HE SAID, "AND SO WHEN I HIT THE WATER AND DITCHED THE PARACHUTE I DIDN'T BOTHER TO INFLATE THE LIFE RAFT."

TWENTY-THREE MEDIUM BOMBERS OF A SEVENTH AIR FORCE BOMBARDMENT

GROUP HIT CHIRAN AIRFIELD ON THE SOUTHERN TIP OF KYUSHU SHORTLY BEFORE 8 A.M. THEY REPORTED NO OPPOSITION EXCEPT A LITTLE FLAK FIRED AT TAIL-END PLANES.

THE MITCHELL BOMBERS WERE POSSIBLY THE FIRST OVER JAPAN SINCE DOOLITTLE'S CARRIER-LAUNCHED B-25 ATTACK APRIL 18, 1942. THEY CAME OVER THE TARGET IN TWO WAVES AT 7,500 FEET.

ESCORTED BY 32 MARINE CORSAIR FIGHTER PLANES, THE MITCHELLS DROPPED HUNDREDS OF FRAGMENTATION BOMBS. THE TAIL-END PLANES OF THE STRIKE REPORTED SEEING ENEMY ANTIAIRCRAFT BURSTS WHICH LT.JOE GARDNER, MIAMI BEACH,FLA., DESCRIBED AS "WIDE." SO DID 2ND LT.ARNOLD D.NYZER, STORM LAKE,IOWA, AND STAFF-SGT.EDWARD STINSON, NORRISTOWN,N.J.

NO FRATERNIZING IS PERMITTED AMONG OKIES AND AMERICAN TROOPS WHO ARE NOT ALLOWED TO GIVE THEM CIGARETS OR CANDY. AND IF CIVILIAN WOUNDED NEED BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS, THE BLOOD COMES FROM FELLOW OKINAWANS.

JUL 3 1945

MILITARY OPERATIONS HAVE DICTATED THAT THE OKINAWANS MUST MOVE FROM THE COMPARATIVELY LEVEL FERTILE SOIL IN THE SOUTH TO THE MORE MOUNTAINOUS COUNTRY IN THE NORTH, SAID CRIST. HOWEVER BEFORE THIS MASS MIGRATION IS UNDERTAKEN THE NATIVES ARE BEING ALLOWED TO HARVEST THEIR CROPS.

THE OKINAWANS RAPIDLY ARE LEARNING ENOUGH ENGLISH TO GET ALONG ON, OTHERWISE THEY CLING TO THEIR ANCIENT WAYS. THEY ARE NOT JAPANESE, ALTHOUGH THEIR CULTURE IS A CONGLOMERATION OF CHINESE AND JAPANESE WITH IMPROVIZATIONS OF THEIR OWN.

THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT, SAID CRIST, IS GIVING EACH OKINAWAN AS MUCH RESPONSIBILITY AS HE IS WORTHY OF SHOULDERING. NO MORE. UNDOUBTEDLY SOME OF THE NATIVES ARE STILL PRO-JAPANESE, ALTHOUGH MOST ARE DOCILE FARMERS EASY TO HANDLE.

COL.FREDERICK B.WIENER, PROVIDENCE, R.I., DIRECTOR OF ONE GOVERNMENT BRANCH, REPORTED LITTLE RELIGIOUS UNDERSTANDING AMONG

ADDITIONAL TROOPS LANDED MONDAY ON THE WIDENING BEACHHEAD, TO THE THUNDEROUS WELCOME OF INCESSANT ARTILLERY FIRE AND THE UNDERTONES OF DEEPER NAVAL GUNFIRE AND BOMBS DROPPED BY CIRCLING CARRIER PLANES.

FORCES DIVING EASTWARD ALONG THE COAST TOWARD SEPINGGANG AIRSTRIP MOVED RAPIDLY ALONG A TWO-LANE DIRT ROAD THROUGH GENERALLY LIGHT RESISTANCE BUT MET OCCASIONAL STUBBORN JAPANESE POCKETS. THE ADVANCE WAS SO SWIFT THAT CAPTURE OF THE AIRFIELD SEEMED IMMINENT.

IN THIS EASTWARD ADVANCE THE AUSTRALIANS EARLY THIS MORNING TOOK A DOMINATING HILL WITH SURPRISING EASE. ELABORATE FORTIFICATIONS ON THEHILL WERE FOUND VIRTUALLY UNMANNED. FIELD COMMANDERS SAID THIS WAS ONE OF MANY STRIKING EXAMPLES OF THE EFFECTIVENESS OF PRE-INVASION AERIAL AND NAVAL BOMBARDMENTS WHICH LEFT ALL TARGET AREAS IN COMPLETE RUINS AND DROVE AWAY MANY SHATTERED DEFENSE GARRISONS.

SEPINGGANG AIRSTRIP, JAPANESE-BUILT, WAS HEAVILY CRATERED BY THE BOMBARDMENT BUT AFTER ITS CAPTURE IS EXPECTED TO BE RESTORED TO SERVICE RAPIDLY TO PROVIDE A BASE FOR CLOSE AIR SUPPORT.

SPECIAL CAVALRY COMMANDOS WERE FIGHTING IN THIS EASTWARD DRIVE. ABOUT A MILE INLAND, BITTER FIGHTING FLARED WHERE THE AUSTRALIANS WERE TRYING TO DISLODGE JAPANESE FROM STRONG CAVE AND TUNNEL POSITIONS.

WERE BEING REDUCED SYSTEMATICALLY. THE JAPANESE USED ARTILLERY IN FAMILIAR STYLE, WITH A FEW ROUNDS AT INTERVALS. AUSTRALIAN CASUALTIES WERE LIGHT ALTHOUGH THE ENEMY WAS COVERING THE ENTIRE BEACHHEAD AREA WITH HIS GUNS.

JAPANESE WERE EMPLOYING DUAL PURPOSE ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS FIRED AT A RELATIVELY LOW ALTITUDE, WHERE THEIR SHELLS SPREAD HOT METAL OVER A WIDE AREA.

ONCE SUCH A SERIES OF BURSTS HIT A BARGE ALONG THE BEACH AND SCATTERED METAL ACROSS A NEARBY COMMAND POST. THE SAME GUN SENT A SCOUT PLANE CRASHING IN FLAMES FROM 200 FEET ALTITUDE.

ONE GROUP OF AUSSIES BUILT A FIRE TO BREW TEA AND EXPLODED SUCH A BOMB, KILLING ONE AND WOUNDING SIX.

SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 2-(AP)-THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT TODAY MOVED TO IMPROVE ITS DAMAGED RAIL AND WATER TRANSPORTATION SYSTEMS IN THE FACE OF CONTINUED AIR ATTACKS, THE IMPENDING INVASION OF THE MAINLAND AND THE ANNOUNCED PROGRAM OF SHIFTING ITS INDUSTRIES TO MANCHURIA.

IN A BROADCAST PICKED UP IN SAN FRANCISCO BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION QUOTING DOMEI NEWS AGENCY, RADIO TOKYO SAID THE GOVERNMENT AS ORDERED A NEW MOBILIZATION OF MEMBERS OF THE PEOPLE'S VOLUNTEER CORPS TO LOAD AND UNLOAD FREIGHT.

THEY WILL BE CHARGED WITH "AUGMENTING THE EFFICIENCY OF RAILWAYS FOR THE SPEEDIEST POSSIBLE MOVEMENT OF MUNITIONS, FOODSTUFFS, COAL AND OTHER VITAL STRATEGIC GOODS."

THE DISPATCH SAID THE GOVERNMENT WOULD TEMPORARILY LEND ROLLING STOCK TO PRIVATELY OWNED AND OPERATED RAILWAYS AND RAILWAY WORKERS WOULD BE ORGANIZED INTO A "RAILWAY FIGHTING UNIT."

"EMERGENCY ARRANGEMENTS" WERE TAKEN TO CONSTRUCT "MORE STRATEGIC" VESSELS AND FOR THE EXPANSION OF FACILITIES FOR BUILDING AND REPAIRING WOODEN STEAMERS AND ENGINE-EQUIPPED SAIL NG VESSELS.

PLANS WERE MADE TO EXPAND STEVEDORING HELP AND TO MOBILIZE LIGHTERS AND MECHANICAL CONVEYORS TO INCREASE SHIPPING EFFICIENCY, DOMEI SAID.

THE MEASURES WERE DESIGNED ALSO TO FACILITATE EVACUATION OF "IMPORTANT PRODUCTIVE FACILITIES FROM LARGE CITIES TO RURAL DISTRICTS."

JUL 4 - 1945

By Daniel De Luce

BERLIN, July 3 (AP) — American occupation troops rolled into Berlin today, speeding through the beaten capital's mammoth wreckage to the accompaniment of scattered waves and tears from bread lines and work-chains of women and girls.

Enter as Conquerors

The American veterans of World War Two entered as conquerors and returned the crisp salutes of Red Army women traffic police. There were tears of joy and cries of "God be thanked" from some Berliners, but others were silent and sullen.

Vanguards of a vast 4,000-vehicle convoy reached suburban Zehlendorf this afternoon after leaving Halle at 4 a. m., crossing the Elbe River and driving through Russian-occupied Germany west of the capital.

"Bridge trouble," however, delayed the combat veterans of the U. S. Second Armored (Hell On Wheels) Division and the prospects were that the division's main strength might not arrive before midnight — making them at least late in fulfilling a pledge they took three years ago to bivouac in Berlin.

A red-skinned hero of the U. S. Army was the first American soldier to enter the Russian-held center of Berlin as a veteran of the 2d Armored Division, which will take up positions in the American occupation zone in the southwestern part of the capital.

Drives to Chancellery

He was Pfc. Harvey Natchees of the Ute Indian reservation in northeastern Utah, a 25-year old veteran due to return home on points after a few more days. He drove this correspondent to Adolf Hitler's Reichschancellery.

Girls in freshly-ironed frocks walked in lines along the route, removing the debris from great piles of ruined buildings. In an eight-mile drive through the center of Berlin, not a single block was seen intact.

Hundreds of women, children and old men queued up in front of bread stores. In Zehlendorf a German child complained of hunger and got part of Natchee's K ration. An old woman said she got only 200 grams of bread daily and no meat or fat. She went off with the rest of Natchee's lunch.

Twice we crossed a canal that was an open sewer which could be smelled 600 yards away. On the Kaiserallee a Red flag flew over the Stars and Stripes on a pole outside the headquarters of the German Communist party.

The East-West Axis in the blasted Tiergarten still was decorated with colossal portraits of Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin from a previous Red Army celebration. The city was scattered with Russian posters telling the Germans of the unity of the United Nations.

Berliner Hugs Soldier

One Berliner, Margaret Titze, who said she was born at Sheepshead Bay, New York, and was dressed in a swanky, black fur coat, hugged Natchees when she saw the "U. S." on his jacket. On the rubble-lined Wilhelmstrasse, a neatly-dressed middle-aged woman asked:

"Russian?"

"Lady, I'm an American," Natchees replied.

"God be thanked," she exclaimed.

A peddler in front of Berlin cathedral, its huge dome wilted, gave Natchees a set of pre-war Berlin postcards and said: "It is good to see the Americans again.

Most Berliners claim they have been waiting since March for the U. S. Army "to save us from the Russians," but their ideas seemed to reek of the anti-Bolshevik beliefs inculcated in them by Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels.

In a bomb-battered Berlin district facing the small Schlachten See (lake), Capt. James W. Mooney, of Conrad, Mont., commander of a company in the 41st Armored Infantry Regiment, claimed that his unit was the first American combat group to hit Berlin.

Unit Arrives Sunday

Mooney's unit arrived Sunday to arrange billeting. As soon as his men unloaded their trucks, German women appeared and volunteered to clean house for "our American friends." Their menfolk came around later asking if they could be of help. One offered a hotel in the Russian zone.

Mooney said his unit changed from half-tracks to trucks at the Elbe River after the Russians said they didn't want armored combat vehicles to appear in Berlin so early.

Mooney's outfit has had a tough time getting billets. "We located a large collection of damaged artillery barracks," he said, "yet in 20 buildings there were only about three satisfactory rooms.

"Our billeting detail had a little trouble with the Soviet authorities, too," he said. "Three of our officers were detained overnight last night because they had mistakenly gone into a non-American area after curfew. The Russians were polite but firm."

Berlin, July 3 (A. P.).—The veteran Second Armored (Hell on Wheels) Division of the American Army deployed in the suburbs, and the first member of the American occupation force entered the Russian-held center of Berlin today. A red-skinned hero of the United States Army jeeped down Unter den Linden and women wept with joy at the sight of him—Pfc. Harvey Natchees of the Ute Indian Reservation, who wears the Silver Star, the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster.

The main force of the division was deployed in suburban Zhlendorf to the south.

[Exchange Telegraph, the British news agency, declared in a dispatch to London, that the British occupation force of about 15,000 troops was expected to arrive in the main part of Berlin tonight, while the main British force would arrive tomorrow.

The American delegation of the Allied Control Council arrived at headquarters of the council's newly created district in Berlin today, NBC declared in a broadcast from the German capital, and will start work immediately in co-operation with representatives of the other Allied Powers on the task of dividing the city into three separate zones of occupation.]

Ute's Adventures.

A lot happened to Natchees in a few minutes. After rounding a shell-scarred Victory monument in the Tiergarten, taking a smart salute from a Red Army woman traffic cop, he started for the remains of the Kaiser's Palace. A Berliner on a bicycle asked him to look up his brother, Bill William Schwellbeck, somewhere with the American forces in France. And Margaret Titze, who said she was born in Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., begged a ride to Potsdam.

She was dressed in a swanky black fur coat with a handkerchief-size American flag tied to her sleeve, and when she spied the "U. S." on Natchees's jacket she hugged him and her eyes filled with tears.

On the rubble-lined street that was once the far-famed Wilhelmstrasse, Natchees inquired the location of Hitler's Chancellory. A middle-aged German woman, neatly dressed and twisting her hands nervously, replied: "Russian?"

"Lady, I'm an American," said the khaki-clad private.

"God be thanked!" she exclaimed.

Clearing Up Debris.

Most of the Chancellory walls were still standing. Red Army men were supervising the clearing up of debris and repairs to a water main at the corner, so Natchees did not go prospecting for the subterranean bunker where Hitler is supposed to have met his death.

In front of the Berlin Cathedral, its huge dome wilted by bombs and fire, Natchees was given a set of pre-war Berlin postcards by a street peddler, who said: "Gee, its great to see Americans again."

Registering the distance on his speedometer, Natchees drove eight miles through Berlin without seeing one block of buildings that was intact. "It took quite a beating," he commented.

He saw girls in freshly ironed frocks working in chain lines removing bricks from mammoth piles of wreckage. He saw women and children and old men queued up by the hundreds in front of bread stores. He saw a red flag on a pole outside what turned out to be the headquarters of the German Communist party.

The east-west axis boulevard through the blasted Tiergarten was still decorated with colossal portraits of Stalin, Roosevelt and Churchill which had been raised for the previous Red Army celebration. Scattered over the city were posters stuck up by the Russians telling Germans of the unity of the United Nations.

Gives Germans Food.

Natchees, who is 25 years old—and going home on points after a few more days in Berlin—drove an Associated Press correspondent up from Halle this morning with Brig.-Gen. John H. Collier of Dallas, Tex., in the lead and Collier's Second Armored Division in the rear of a 4,000-vehicle convoy that stretched out for many miles.

Getting across the Elbe in a downpour of rain was a ticklish business because of Russian cavalcades going in the opposite direction to occupy territory that had been held by the Americans. Russian soldiers on foot herded cows, horses and sheep in their big trek. Others rode lend-lease trucks and model Russian-made vehicles. Many Russian women accompanied them, not all in uniform.

The spacious autobahn was decorated every quarter mile with fancy signboards bearing quotations from Stalin's speeches dealing with the Soviet ideal of equality of races, a rebirth of the German people and a state devoid of "Fascist pogrom-heroes."

"I guess the Russians don't worry about non-fraternization," said Natchees.

In Zehlendorf a German child approached and complained of hunger and received a share of the Indian's K rations. An old woman said she had only a small amount of bread. She received the rest of Natchees's lunch.

"Back home I've got 200 head of cattle on my ranch, and I'll never have to worry about going hungry," he said.

To March In Today.

Paris, July 3 (A. P.).—The main body of American troops assigned to occupation duty in Berlin was expected to march triumphantly into the rubbled German capital some time today.

Advance units of the American forces entered Berlin yesterday to set up communications facilities and arrange billeting for the troops. British, Canadian and French forces will march into the city simultaneously with the Americans. Approximately 200 Allied correspondents are accompanying the troops.

Russians Leaving Prague.

Prague, July 2 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Russian occupation troops started moving out of Prague today and it was expected that virtually all would be gone by tomorrow except administrative officers and a guard at the airport.

The Russians are regrouping at the borders of Czecho-Slovakia, reducing the occupation area. The Czechs, meanwhile, are pressing an energetic mobilization program, obviously hoping to convince the occupying Powers—American as well as Russian—that they can take care of any conceivable military emergency themselves.

[The Moscow radio said today that the west German cities of Schwerin, Halle, Leipzig, Weimar, Erfurt and Plauen were occupied by Russian troops yesterday after the withdrawal of British and American troops from the Soviet occupation zone.]

Thirteen villages in the vicinity of Litomysl have reported that all Germans have been evacuated and the village names have been changed from German to Slav. The village of Litrbach, for instance, was renamed Paty, in honor of Dr. Joseph Paty, university professor executed by the German Gestapo.

New Boundary Formula Seen

London Foreign Office Backs Friendly Local Settlements of Territorial Disputes.

London, July 3 (A. P.).—A new formula for easing Europe's many boundary disputes appeared to be taking shape today in the wake of Russia's acquisition of the Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) from Czecho-Slovakia, and the argument between Czechs and Poles over the future of Teschen.

A Foreign Office commentator said today that there was nothing in the major Power agreements to preclude the settlement of disputes between Allied countries that would be laid eventually on the peace table for ratification. Up to now it had been assumed in some diplomatic quarters that all such questions, with the exception of Poland, would be postponed to the peace table. This was based in part on Under-Secretary of State Crew's recent statement pointing out that there are more than thirty such questions now.

The Foreign Office commentator took the view today, however, that the delay affected only cases involving enemy territory and that nothing existed to bar friendly settlements between Allied countries.

Apparently, too, there is nothing mandatory for one major Power involved in a territorial change to consult the others before reaching an agreement. The commentator said he did not know whether Britain and the United States had been consulted about the Carpatho-Ukraine.

States Czech Claim.

The Czech Prime Minister Zdeneu Fierlinger, enunciated in a broadcast yesterday Czech-Slovakia's claim to the German areas of Kladsko (Glatz), Ratibor and Hlubcice. Two other territorial questions already held the attention of the Czechs.

Prime Minister Zdeneu Fierlinger said last night in a Prague broadcast that Russia had assured Czecho-Slovakia that she had a full right to her pre-Munich frontiers, but insisted that the Czech dispute with Poland over the Teschen district must be settled by mutual agreement. The broadcast was reported by the Czechoslovak News Service. Teschen, disputed for generations, was taken over by Poland from Czecho-Slovakia in 1938, shortly after Munich.

A Prague dispatch said that early Czech ratification was expected of the Czech-Russian agreement ceding the Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) to the Soviet Ukraine.

Churchill Endures Heckling In Stormy London Speech

By W. W. Hercher

LONDON, July 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, booed and heckled at one of the stormiest political meetings in British history, tonight carried his fight for a Conservative party victory before a crowd estimated at 25,000 persons in the Labor party stronghold of northeast London.

"We Want Labor" Chant

Greeted by organized sections of hecklers chanting "we want labor" Churchill told the big open air rally in Walthamstow Stadium that "hirers cheer and the beaten boo."

Almost constant heckling, and responsive cheering by the Prime Minister's supporters, forced him at times to wait several minutes before continuing his speech.

Swapping verbal punches with partisan opponents, the 70-year old Prime Minister endured half an hour of booing as he made his last major speech of the hard-fought campaign alongside conservative candidates seeking the 27 Parliament seats in the district.

"The first element of our policy," Churchill told his stormy audience, "is to beat Japan. The next thing is to bring our army home and then we have to build up the homes and houses shattered by enemy bombardment."

Promises Full Employment

Churchill promised full employment for the next two or three years as Britain starts to produce long-needed goods.

He estimated six years of war had left Britain short nearly 2,000,000 homes "which otherwise would have been built, apart from all of those which the enemy blew down or broke into pieces. Why have we not repaired and rebuilt those houses?"

He was interrupted by cries from all over the stadium.

"The reason why . . ." Churchill began but stopped and announced "another two minutes will be allowed for booing, if you like."

His listeners took him at his word.

With only 24 hours of campaigning left, leaders of both the labor and liberal parties—chief conservative opposition—warned voters to beware of any "last minute trick" by Churchill and other conservatives to stampede the electorate.

Other Speeches Scheduled

Scores of other candidates scheduled speeches tonight throughout London.

In a statement authorized by Churchill, the conservatives today denied allegations that their party was "fostering the regrowth of the Fascist party." The statement said the "Socialist press is the only body in the country which has made any contact with these people and they have done it in order to frame a mock-up position to divert the people's minds from the real issues of the election."

Voting started today among Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery's 500,000 British troops on the European continent but Associated Press Correspondent Charles Chamberlain reported from 21st Army headquarters that business was so slow several polling booths closed down in mid-afternoon.

'A Drink-Free Britain' Urged

LONDON, July 3 (AP).—The British National Prohibition Party appealed to its members today to write the words "A Drink-Free Britain" across their ballots before dropping them in a box at general election polls Thursday. The party urged its members not to vote for any candidate unless "you are positive he stands foursquare against the drink traffic."

Describe Nazi Terror Reign

LONDON, July 3 (AP)—A reign of Nazi terror in a German prisoner of war camp in Scotland where young fanatics exercised virtual rule by threats, was described to a British military court today in the trial of eight German non-commissioned officers charged with murdering a non-Nazi.

Witnesses said Sergt. Wolfgang Rosterg was beaten to death and his body hanged last Dec. 23 when he refused to commit suicide to save his "honor" after declaring he was not a Nazi.

One witness said he attempted to save Rosterg, was then himself grilled as a suspected "traitor," and forced to watch the hanging procession "to see if you are a National Socialist."

Put Rope Around Neck

Another of the witnesses, whose names are being kept secret, testified that one of the eight accused, Erich Pallme Koenig, put a rope around Rosterg's neck after the mock trial and told Rosterg: "If you have any honor in your body you will hang yourself."

When Rosterg said he could not, the witness declared that Rosterg was beaten, kicked, choked and stamped upon and his body then was dragged 60 feet through mud with one man kneeling on the chest before it was hanged from a washroom pipe.

Under cross-examination, the witness agreed that "it was too long ago for me to say with absolute certainty" that it was Koenig who put the rope around Rosterg's neck.

Other witnesses testified that they heard "screaming and crying and then loud singing" coming from the hut where Rosterg was given his mock trial and that one of the accused, Heinz Brueling, was heard boasting that he had taken part in the murder.

500-Year-Old Tradition to Go

LONDON, July 3 (AP)—King George VI and Queen Elizabeth left on a cruiser today to attend the traditional July 5 meeting of the Tynwald Court, the Manx Parliament. No sovereign has taken part in the ancient ceremony since the Isle of Man was wrested from the Vikings and came under the English crown in 1399. The Manxmen have nominal home rule and say they can produce records of Parliament meetings since 913.

King Visits Isle of Man

London, July 3 (U.P.)—The King and Queen left this afternoon for a visit to the Isle of Man.

German Leftist Bloc Urged

LONDON, July 3 (AP).—Walter Ulbricht, German Communist party leader in Russian-occupied Germany, issued an invitation to Socialists in western Germany to form a left wing bloc, in a Berlin radio talk heard here today. Ulbricht said occupation authorities had agreed to formation of a committee for re-education of German youth.

Norwich to Honor Kepner

LONDON, July 3 (AP)—Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, commander of the United States Eighth Air Force in the United Kingdom, is to receive "the freedom of Norwich" from a city that has never before given such an honor to a foreigner. General Kepner's former outfit, the Second Air Division, which operated from East Anglian airfields close to Norwish, subscribed $30,000 to build a Norwish memorial to colleagues killed during 463 bombing missions over Europe.

8 Soldiers Burned As Flare Explodes

BRISTOL, July 3. (AP)—Eight members of the Seventh infantry company stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., were treated at Bristol hospital today for burns received, and Army spokesmen said, when "an aerial flare exploded in a truck in which they were riding as a part of the "Here Is Your Infantry" Army war bond show.

T-Sgt. Karl Geib received burns about the face and body characterized as "serious" by a hospital spokesman but his name was not immediately placed on the danger list. An Army spokesman said the injured man would be taken to the Bradley Field air base hospital as soon as he could be removed.

Those treated for slight burns at the hospital and then released were identified as S-Sgt. Charles Lewis; T-5 Hendon Shelton; S-Sgt. Herbert Rosignol; T-5 Harold Dixon; Sgt. John Brewen; Corp. Leander Henson, and Pfc. Allan Waters.

Witnesses said the accident happened on Farmington avenue as the 10-truck convoy was approaching Bristol from New Britain. As the trucks neared the city, the soldiers started shooting aerial flares into the sky to announce the show's arrival for a performance at Muzzy Field.

Sweden Ends Press Censorship.

Stockholm, July 3 (A. P.).—Press censorship in Sweden on cables and telephone calls have ended with the lapsing of a special wartime law on press control.

45TH DIVISION COMING HOME

Movements of Other Units Are Listed.

Paris, July 3 (AP).—The veteran Forty-fifth (Thunderbird) infantry Division received orders today from Supreme Allied Headquarters for redeployment home to the United States.

The giant communications zone redeployment center at Reims started its second month of operations today with 134,000 in the course of processing. SHAEF said the moving of men home would be speeded through the port of Antwerp on converted Liberty and Victory ships at the rate of 1,500 men daily starting today. The rate will be stepped up to 3,000 a day by August 1. The Victory vessels will carry 1,725 men and the Libertys 550 each.

The redeployment box score:

95th Infantry—379th Regiment home, rest now nearing U. S.

104th Infantry—Now on the high seas.

8th Infantry—To complete loading today at LeHavre.

87th Infantry—Now loading and expected to clear port July 7.

4th Infantry—Advance party home, rest of division to complete loading today.

2d Infantry — Processing for shipment later this month.

5th Infantry — Advance unit sailed from Le Havre June 28, rest of division expected to sail later this month.

44th Infantry—Three shiploads shuttled to United Kingdom for immediate shipment home, rest of division to clear Le Havre July 7.

13th Armored—Advance units left June 30, rest of division processing for July shipment.

30th Infantry—Scheduled to arrive at assembly command area July 10 on way home.

28th Infantry — Movement order temporarily suspended.

45th Infantry—Alerted for redeployment and scheduled to arrive in assembly area July 5.

The Forty-fifth is one of the oldest divisions in the European theater. It participated in the invasion landings in Sicily, Salerno, Anzio and southern France.

'LOST' AMERICANS THRONG TO PARIS

Thousands Claiming Citizenship Arrive From All Europe—Food and Shelter Needed

PARIS, July 3 (AP)—United States Army, embassy and Red Cross representatives are expected to meet here today to discuss means of procuring food and billets for increasing numbers of persons arriving here from all over Europe and claiming American citizenship.

Miss Adele Dix of Washington, American vice consul in charge of welfare, said that quick action was imperative to relieve the plight of these stranded persons. "The United States is feeding the world but can't do a thing for our own," she said.

According to Red Cross estimates, there are at least 2,000 American civilians living here now. Nobody knows the number living in other countries.

The Red Cross said that the United States Government was shipping tons of supplies and that it was a matter of getting the Army to release some of the food for the nation's civilians. Those whose claims to citizenship are dubious are, under Army procedure, treated as displaced persons until their status has been established. Then they will be eligible for State Department aid.

The Army's policy has been to use food for military and not civilian needs. William H. G. Giblin of Dorchester, Mass., director of civilian war relief for western Europe for the Red Cross, said that his organization would soon receive food that would be distributed to needy Americans, particularly to children and the sick.

Miss Dix said that this was a typical example of the problems turning up daily:

Three sisters, claiming Michigan birth, appealed for aid for a 5-year-old child suffering from tuberculosis. They said that they had been taken when quite young to Lithuania by their parents. Their only documents consisted of birth certificates. They said that their husbands and parents had died during forced labor in Germany. They had been unable to find hospital facilities for the child, who belonged to one of the sisters, because the military had taken over the one American-sponsored hospital.

Miss Dix said that the situation would be awkward enough if only Americans with positive identification were turning up needing assistance, "but the problem is really getting serious with persons logically classed as displaced persons appearing with citizenship claims which must be proved." She said, however, that she could not blame the Army for telling such persons to "go to Paris and present yourself to the embassy."

Russia's Tangier Request Delays 3-Power Parley

Paris, July 3 (AP).—A French foreign ministry spokesman tonight said the tripower conference called to discus means of ousting means of ousting Spain from the Tangier international zone had been postponed indefinitely pending action on Soviet Russia's proposal that she participate in its future control.

The spokesman said negotiations were under way at Paris, London and Washington, and that Allied acceptance of the Russian request would mean simultaneously admitting the Soviets to the "exploratory conversations" which had been scheduled to start today.

12 U. S. Soldiers Killed In Nancy Train Crash

PARIS, July 3 (AP)—At least 12 American soldiers were killed and 25 to 30 injured when their train plowed into a freight train halted on the tracks near Nancy shortly after midnight Saturday, headquarters of the military railway service of the European theater said today.

The soldiers were returning from a Riviera holiday on a train northbound from Nice to Aachen, Germany.

Both trains were operated by the French. The office of Brig.-Gen. Carl Gray, director general of U. S. Military railroads has not yet received a final report from French investigating officials.

Gray's aides said none of the names of victims had yet been reported to that headquarters.

At least two soldiers were reported in a critical condition.

The first three cars behind the engine telescoped when the military train crashed into the freight. Army officials said there were many instances of heroism but declined to discuss details until an investigation is completed.

Press May Be Barred From Big 3 Parley

Supreme Headquarters, Paris, July 3 (A. P.).—Supreme Headquarters said today that so far as is known here no arrangements have yet been made for press coverage of the forthcoming Big Three meeting in Berlin.

There is a possibility that the meeting will be held without press coverage and that the results will simply be announced in a statement afterward as at Yalta. A large Allied press party accompanied the British, American and French troops arriving in the German capital today, and while it is possible that this group may cover the meeting, such a resumption has not been substantiated by any official announcement.

U. S. I.'S DIE IN WRECK

Nancy, July 3 (A. P.).—The bodies of twelve American soldiers killed in a train wreck near here Sunday night have been recovered, it was announced today. Twenty-three injured Americans are in hospitals. The French press agency said a United States military train carrying leave personnel smashed into a freight train that had stopped.

Nazi Government Pay Is Officially Stopped

Paris, July 3 (A. P.).—Supreme Headquarters today issued a stop order on all salaries, allowances and compensations to all inactive national and local officials and employees of the former German Government.

This policy, it was explained, has been in effect in most parts of the SHAEF area of the Reich for a long time. The order was issued to make uniform the policy of keeping officials and employees of agencies from drawing compensation in any form on non-existent positions.

Weygand's Property Seized

PARIS, July 3 (AP)—France's High Court of Justice for the trial of collaborationists today ordered the seizure of all the property and assets of Gen. Maxine Weygand, at present under arrest on charges of attacking the internal security of the state. Weygand, who succeeded Gen. Maurice-Gustave Gamelin in 1940 as commander in chief, was arrested on his return from German internment in May.

'New York Post' Starts Its Paper in Paris Today

Editor-Publisher of Tabloid Is Paul Scott Mowrer

PARIS, July 3 (AP).—The Fourth of July will see the first issue of "The Paris Post," a tabloid size affiliate of "The New York Post" and the first American afternoon daily to start publication in the French capital.

In an editorial written for the four-page debut number, editor-publisher Paul Scott Mowrer announces that "The Paris Post" will be a liberal newspaper reflecting the American viewpoint and concerning itself primarily with world affairs. Robert Pell, a former newspaper colleague of Mowrer, who passed eighteen years with the United States State Department, is general manager of the paper, and Jan Hasbrouck is managing editor.

Mowrer's editorial explains that "The Paris Post" was started despite the availability of a number of excellent French papers, quick deliveries of British journals and the presence of the "well known and deservedly popular" European edition of the New York Herald Tribune, in the belief that the large English-reading public on the Continent "should have a chance to see at least two American dailies."

"The Paris Post" will be operated as an independent publication, Mowrer said, although it is financed by the New York Post Corporation and is "affiliated editorially with the parent publication."

Direct Coverage Of News Banned For Big 3 Parley

Berlin, July 3 (AP).—One hundred and forty Allied correspondents who entered Berlin today with American troops were told tonight no direct coverage of the forthcoming "Big Three" conference would be permitted.

Their spokesmen immediately asked clarification and reconsideration of an order that said that no correspondent now accredited would be permitted to report the conference.

Another order said all correspondents who entered Berlin today would be withdrawn at the end of seven days and would be replaced by others having "Allied accreditation."

Goebbels' Body Is Identified

(By the Associated Press)

The Moscow radio said today that the body of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, former Nazi propaganda minister, has been "unmistakably identified."

The German language broadcast, reported by the FCC, said the body had been carried from an air raid shelter under the Reichschancellery in Berlin by Nazi SS troopers on the night of May 1 and that they had attempted to burn it.

The body did not burn, the broadcast said, adding that Goebbels had "remained in such a state of conservation that he could be unmistakably identified."

Moscow said Soviet photographers had taken pictures of the body

Montgomery's Aide Killed

Col. Ewart, Victim of Auto Crash, Marshal's Intelligence Chief

TWENTY-FIRST ARMY GROUP, Germany, July 3 (AP).—Colonel Joseph O. Ewart, twenty-eight-year-old right-hand man for Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, has been killed in an auto accident, it was announced today.

Colonel Ewart, regarded by many as having one of the most brilliant minds in the British Army, rose in five years from a private in the Royal Scots Regiment to chief of intelligence at the field marshal's personal headquarters.

He was killed July 1 when his staff car skidded at high speed off a wet road and spun into a tree. The driver also was killed.

Soong Sees Stalin Twice

Talks Viewed as Bringing Closer a Chinese-Russian Pact

MOSCOW, July 3 (AP).—Two conferences between Chinese Premier T. V. Soong and Generalissimo Stalin were reported today to have brought "much closer" the possibility of a Russian-Chinese pact.

Chinese and foreign diplomats agreed that there was a "good chance for a pact or treaty," but did not specify its nature.

Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov gave a reception for Soong this evening, attended by large numbers of Soviet officials and diplomats.

SINO-RUSSIAN PACT IS REPORTED NEAR

Moscow, July 3 (A. P.).—The Chinese and Russians were reported today to be "much closer" to a pact, the nature of which was not specified. An informant with close connections with the negotiations of Chinese Premier T. V. Soong said there was a good chance of a treaty being worked out.

Soong planned to hold discussions with the Soviet Foreign Trade office today.

Pleasure was expressed in Chinese diplomatic circles with the results of Soong's second conversation last night with Premier Generalissimo Stalin. After an elaborate banquet given by Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov yesterday afternoon, Soong went to the Kremlin at 10 P. M., and talked with the Russian leader.

A person on the Chinese side in a position to know said "the talk was most gratifying."

Soong had his first meeting with Stalin on June 30, the night of his arrival.

Russia Greets News

MOSCOW, July 3 (AP).—President Truman's call for swift approval of the San Francisco charter by the United States Senate was given great prominence today by both the Soviet press and radio. No announcement has been made concerning Russia's plans for ratification, but there is eevry indication the charter will be approved shortly.

First Moscow-Berlin Train

MOSCOW, July 3 (AP).—The first train from Moscow to Berlin since the start of the war between Germany and Russia arrived in the German capital yesterday, a Tass dispatch reported today. Burgomeister Arthur Werner welcomed the train at the Silesian Railway Station, which was decorated for the occasion with flags of the United Nations. The train left Moscow at noon on June 25.

U. S. NAVY RECEIVES BLESSING OF POPE

Vatican City, July 3 (A. P.).—Pope Pius XII blessed the United States Navy yesterday and expressed the hope that the mission of the "greatest Navy in the world will be to protect and defend the most precious treasure of this world—peace."

The pontiff's declaration was made at an audience with the Naval Affairs Committee of Congress.

"Europe will always be grateful," he said, "for the assistance America has given and wishes to give."

Declaring that the reconstruction of Europe would seem a terrifying task, the Pope said that the people must be saved from "fear or terror which lead so easily to reckless grasping at any specious, flattering solution to their problems that may be offered by unscrupulous and selfish leaders."

Meanwhile today an audience was granted by the Pope to James Markham of Lowell, Mass., the United States Alien Property Custodian. He was introduced by his brother, Mgr. Thomas F. Markham, the National Catholic Welfare Council's representative for war relief in Italy.

Leopold's Decision Mystery To Public

BRUSSELS, July 3 (AP)—Belgium's exiled king, Leopold III, was believed tonight to have made up his mind on whether to abdicate or return to his throne, but just which way he had decided still had the public guessing.

A communique from the royal palace saying Leopold's consultations with his advisers at Salzberg had ended intensified the belief among a big bloc of parliament members that Leopold would not come back to the throne.

Many parliament members predicted announcement of his abdication would be withheld several days, until it could be carried out with all royal parliamentary formalities.

LEOPOLD BELIEVED DECIDING TO QUIT

Brussels, July 3 (A. P.).—A cryptic statement attributed by the official Belgian news agency to the Royal Palace was interpreted in some parliamentary circles today as indicating that King Leopold III has decided to abdicate.

The statement said, according to the agency, that consultations had come to an end and that Attorney-General Cornil had been asked by the King to communicate with the Regent, Prince Charles, and former Prime Minister Achille Van Acker, who resigned in protest against Leopold's returning as head of the Government. The statement added that the King would "hold conversations" with them today.

Supporting the belief that Leopold would abdicate, observers said, was the disclosure that the palace domestic staff has left for St. Wolfgang, where the exiled King has maintained headquarters while holding discussions with his advisers.

Red Troops Leave Prague

Russians Regroup at Border as Czechs Spur Mobilization

PRAGUE, July 2 (Delayed) (AP).—Russian occupation troops started moving out of Prague today, and it was expected that virtually all would be gone by tomorrow except administrative officers and a guard at the airport.

The Russians are regrouping at the borders of Czechoslovakia, reducing the occupation area.

The Czechs, meanwhile, are pressing an energetic mobilization program, obviously hoping to convince the occupying powers—American as well as Russian—that they can take care of any conceivable military emergency themselves.

'Appeasement' Table Found

PRAGUE, July 3 (AP).—Another Czech war trophy has come to light. It is the table on which the British, French, German and Italian negotiators signed the Munich agreement dismembering the republic. Hitler ordered it taken to the monastery at Visoky Brod, where it was found with a number of art objects from Vienna, Paris and Amsterdam.

First Coffee in 7 Years Jams Prague Traffic

PRAGUE, July 3 (AP).—Traffic jams were caused in front of several shops when Prague residents stopped today to see the first coffee displayed here in seven years.

Beginning next week, workers doing heavy labor will be permitted to buy three-tenths of a pound each of the coffee, seized from German Army warehouses.

Over 93 Buildings Wrecked

Raid Near Changsha Key Nerve Center Of Resistance.

THOUSANDS OF TROOPS ROUTED

Success Gained By U. S. 14th Air Force Supporting Chinese.

JUL 4

By Spencer Moosa

CHUNGKING, July 3 (AP)—Striking the key nerve center of Japanese resistance in central China, American fliers virtually destroyed three enemy headquarters near Changsha, 385 miles east southeast of Chungking, a U. S. 14th Air Force communique said today.

The concentrated blow against Japanese staff headquarters yesterday wrecked more than 93 buildings, and scattered thousands of Japanese troops, the bulletin declared.

Support Chinese Forces

The attack by bomb-carrying fighters supporting Chinese ground forces in Hunan province, destroyed 40 buildings housing troops, supplies and staff officers at a point seven miles east of Changsha.

Fifteen miles east of Changsha, American pilots swooped low over Yunganshih and destroyed 43 other buildings where Japanese troops were concentrated, the communique continued. In a third attack, an enemy headquarters estimated to quarter 400 troops was attacked and 10 buildings were leveled.

Air Attacks in Hengyang Area

Seventy-five miles south of Changsha, astride Japan's vital transcontinental corridor from Korea to Hong Kong, P-51 Mustang fighters pummeled bridges and Japanese shipping in the Hengyang area.

All the U. S. planes returned safely to base, the communique said.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's soldiers meanwhile scored new gains 400 miles southeast of Chungking, breaking through the north gate into the encircled Japanese-held town of Liucheng, 11 miles north northwest of captured Liuchow, a Chinese communique said.

Chinese Capture Town

Street fighting broke out in the Japanese stronghold and at the same time, other Chinese units recaptured Shapoyu, an important point six miles east of Liucheng, the High Command said.

At dawn Monday, Chinese fighters in southwestern Kiangsi province reoccupied the important highway center of Sinfeng, 185 miles northeast of Canton and 32 miles south of the former American air base at Kanhsien, the Chinese announced.

The High Command reported a fresh outbreak of fighting 350 miles northeast of Chungking and west of the stubbornly-held Japanese bastion of Hsihsiakow in southern Honan province.

(While the Chinese communique failed to report the progress of fighting inside the northern frontiers of Indo-China, the Brazaville radio reported that French troops in the occupied colony had withdrawn to the mountains "in order to hold the Japanese more easily." The French were outnumbered five to one and were without sufficient materials and planes, the broadcast, heard by the FCC, said.

Civilians Leaving Shanghai

Chinese press reports from Japanese-occupied Shanghai meanwhile asserted that some 170,000 of Shanghai's 3,000,000 inhabitants had evacuated the seaport recently as a result of high prices and the fear of Allied air raids.

The reports said Japanese authorities in Shanghai had closed all German firms there and interned 1,700 German nationals in a camp on the city's western outskirts.

CHINESE WIN ROAD HUB

Chungking, July 3 (A. P.).—The Chinese High Command announced today that Chinese forces have captured the important highway center of Sinfeng in Kiangsi province, 185 miles northeast of Canton and thirty-two south of the former United States Fourteenth Air Force base at Kanhsien. The announcement said the city, a link in the defenses guarding the Jap Hong-kong-Hankow corridor, had fallen after continuous assaults from the south.

At the same time the Chinese announced that their forces in Kwangsi province had entered encircled Liucheng, eleven miles northwest of Liuchow, another former American air base. The Chinese also said they had recaptured Shapoyu, six miles east of Liucheng.

In southwestern Honan province a fresh outbreak of fighting was reported north of Hishsiakow which the invaders have built up to safeguard the approaches to the Hankow railway between Hankow and the Yellow River.

110 GERMAN FIRMS SHUT IN SHANGHAI

Chungking, July 3 (A. P.).—Chinese press reports said today that Japanese authorities had closed all 110 German firms in Shanghai and interned more than 1,700 German nationals in a camp on the western outskirts of the city. Another dispatch said that a Japanese plane, shot down in an air battle over Shanghai, had crashed in a crowded district in the former French concession, causing an explosion and fires which resulted in the deaths of some 2,000 persons.

A third report said that the prohibitive prices of food, combined with the fear of Allied air raids, had caused some 1,700,000 of Shanghai's 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 population to leave the city in the last few months.

Policy on Role Of Press Urged By Australians

Invite Newspapermen in English-Speaking Lands to Conference Next Year

SYDNEY, Australia, July 3 (AP).—The Australian Newspaper Proprietors Association proposed today that a conference of newspaper men from English-speaking countries be held in Australia within a year for the purpose of declaring "the public service and responsibilities they are prepared to accept as beneficiaries of the historic military victory over the enemies of freedom."

Rupert Henderson, president of the association, said the proposal was put forward "in the belief that newspapers, to maintain their status in the post-war world, must clearly define the basis on which they hope to keep the freedom to report and comment." He added that it was hoped the conference would produce "a declaration of these minimum requirements and these responsibilities."

Henderson said invitations would be issued to fifty delegates from Britain, the United States, Canada, South Africa, New Zealand and Australia. He explained it was felt that to extend the scope of the conference to other than English-speaking nations "might cause needless difficulties and delays," but expressed hope the meeting might be "the starting point for a wider exchange of views."

The association advanced the following points as the basis of an agenda:

1. Drafting of a declaration of newspapers' post-war position.

2. What is the function of a free press in a free country?

3. How are the conditions of freedom to be recovered where war has compromised them? This would include discussion of (a) the future of government controls and laws prohibiting free reporting developed during the war; (b) the development of propaganda as an instrument of administration and its potential danger to free reporting.

4. How can conditions of freedom be established where they have never existed? (a) A proposal to incorporate in the peace covenant a clause binding the signatories to remove all barriers to free reporting of news within their frontiers. (b) To what extent does ownership or control of channels of communication prevent establishment of a free press?

5. How can the free press of the world organize a united front in defense of the freedom to report and comment? (a) A proposal for a world press secretariat to act as a clearing house of information on governmental tendencies toward the suppression of press freedom. (b) Proposal for an international society of editors to meet regularly to discuss problems and trends affecting freedom of communication and access to information.

Henderson said it was hoped to hold the conference either late this year or early in 1946. He disclosed that the association was sending Brian Penton, editor of "The Sydney Daily Telegraph," abroad to complete arrangements and carry invitations.

Promises Rubber From Borneo Quickly

Sydney, July 3 (A. P.).—Rubber can be exported from Balikpapan, in Dutch Borneo, within a week after its complete liberation if there is shipping space available, J. Van Holst Pellekaan, Dutch East Indies Trade Commissioner in Australia, said today. He added that in his belief most of Borneo's rubber trees would be found intact.

Stilwell Road Repaired

Survives Downpour at Start of Monsoon; Much More Rain Ahead

NEW DELHI, India, July 3 (AP).—The new Stilwell (Ledo-Burma) Road from India to China has had its first and hardest test of this monsoon, and has come up muddy but unbowed.

A six-day downpour dumped twenty-three inches of rain on the road and buried part of it under four feet of water. Two bridges were washed out, but engineers rushed repairs, and after a brief relay traffic was resumed.

It was described as one of the hardest rains since construction of the road started three years ago. The monsoon has just begun, however, and there will be much more rain.

Protest Against Germans in Palestine

Jerusalem, July 3 (A. P.).—A large group said to have been composed of Jewish refugees and ex-service men invaded the German settlement of Sarona yesterday in a demonstration protesting any attempt to re-Germanize that colony which was one of six founded by German settlers in Palestine eighty years ago. The demonstrators did not molest any of the German houses.

Since the outbreak of the war the nearly 5,000 inhabitants of the colony have been kept under guard.

Last Man Out of 'Shangri-La'

Rescue Leader and Filipino Paratroopers Say Crash Victims Would Have Died.

Hollandia, New Guinea, July 1 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The last white man came back from New Guinea's hidden valley of "Shangri-La" today, a weird, towering figure with six weeks' growth of beard and a flaming bird of paradise headdress.

He was handsome Capt. Cecil Walters, leader of the expedition that parachuted into trackless jungles to rescue a pretty Wac and two Army airmen who crashed just seven weeks ago. The great adventure ended as the glider carrying Walters and the last three of his ten Filipino paratroopers rolled to a halt on Hollandia's air strip.

Shortly after his arrival Walters viewed pictures of the Grand Valley discovered in 1938 by the Richard Archbold Expedition, and was asked whether in his opinion it was Shangri-La.

Not Grand Valley.

"Grand Valley is certainly not the one we were in,' he declared emphatically. The American Museum of Natural History, New York, sponsor of the Archbold Expedition, had expressed the belief that they were the same.

Walters was unstinting in his praise of the Filipino paratroopers.

"They should receive their fair share of any recognition this expedition gets," he said. "They went into the roughest kind of mountain terrain without map or guides and faced unknown conditions without flinching."

Would Have Died Without Aid.

He said that two of the rescued trio—Wac Corporal Margaret Hastings of Owego, N. Y., and Sergt. Kenneth Decker of Kelso, Wash.—would have died without the treatment administered by two Filipino medics, Staff Sergt. Benjamin Bulato of San Francisco and Corporal Camilo Ramirez of Ormoc, Leyte. The third of the rescued group, was Lieut. John B. McCollom of Trenton, Mo.

Sergt. Decker has been in a hospital since his return here last Thursday. Medical officers said they must reset his elbow joint and graft new skin on his seriously burned back. Present plan calls for further treatment the United States and possibly, an honorable discharge because he has 95 points. Both Lieut. McCollom and Corporal Hastings are scheduled for furloughs home.

Returning with Walters today was Master Sergt. Santiago Abrenica of Los Angeles, Tech. Sergt. Hermenegildo Caoilo of Sacramento, Cal., and Tech-Sergt. Roque Velasco of San Francisco.

450-500 Planes In Raid

Four New Target Cities On Honshu, Shikoku Islands Hit.

BOMBERS USING NEW MISSILES

Seeking Out Frantically Dispersed War Plants With Incendiary Bombs.

GUAM, Wednesday, July 4 (AP)—Four fleets of B-29s, totaling between 450 and 500 planes, struck four target cities on Honshu and Shikoku islands of Japan with nearly 3,000 tons of firebombs in predawn darkness today.

The mission brought to 2,400 the total number of sorties flown by planes of the 21st Bomber Command against Japan in nine days.

Three cities in Shikoku—Tokushima, Takamatsu and Kochi—were hit with firebombs for the first time.

The fourth city attacked was Himeji, on Honshu, across the Inland Sea from Shikoku.

26 Cities Now Fire-Blitzed

Twenty-six Japanese industrial cities now have been fire-blitzed by the Superforts, which have made 37 incendiary missions from the Marianas.

In their unique campaign to wipe out the enemy's war industries, Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay's bombers are using newly-developed American incendiary missles. They are seeking out frantically dispersed war plants in cities which Americans never heard of before the B-29s started blasting the Nipponese homeland.

Most Important Target

The Kurashiki Aircraft plant, converted from a spinning mill, at Takamatsu appeared to be the most important military target in this morning's objectives. Takamatsu is Shikoku's leading port city and the terminus of railroad ferry line connecting with Honshu.

The railroad ferry terminal, with its repair shops constituted a prime target in the effort to further obstruct Japanese transportation.

Takamatsu also has a small iron works, a minor seaplane base and scattered spinning mills.

Major Industrial Center

Kochi is a major industrial and commercial center on southern Shikoku. Its industries include paper and textile mills now converted to war production. Other large industries around the city include a plywood plant, metal working plant and cement and chemical works.

A 21st Bomber Command spokesman said Kokochi probably is more important as a commercial and food-producing center than as a war industry hub.

Before the war Tokushima, largest city on Shikoku, was the principal center for manufacture of high-quality silk crepe. Its textile mills have been converted to war industry.

Himeji is a major railroad terminal on the Sanyo main railroad line. It is also an important military training center.

Himeji's industrial plants produce explosives, electric light bulbs and matches, which are one of the cirtically-rationed Japanese commodities.

Quick Follow Raid

This morning's raid (after noon Tuesday,E.W.T.) followed closely on Tuesday's attack by 50 Superforts on the Maruzen oil refinery near Shimotsu, also on Honshu, which returning airmen indicated was successful. It also came less than two days after the great fire raid by a record force of 600 planes on the Honshu cities of Kure, Shimohoseki, Ube and Kunamoto, in which 4,000 tons of bombs were cascaded on target areas.

Two Forts Lost

Two Superforts were lost in the mission, but all but two crew members were rescued.

The pre-dawn strike at the Maruzen plant was carried out by 50 B-29s. Black smoke rose 10,000 feet and could be seen for 30 miles.

Not a single plane was lost in the Maruzen mission, it was announced in Washington by the 20th Air Force. Crews reported no enemy interception and but meager, inaccurate ground fire over the target.

"They just seemed to want to play," said Cpl. W. H. Power, Carrollton, Ga. "They just sat out of range and wiggled their wings and flicked their lights."

Good Results

Lt. Chester C. Gibbens, Hayward, flying the newly-commissioned B-29 "Fleet Admiral Nimitz," reported good results. He added, "somebody right behind us really hit pay dirt. I saw a double flash that lit up the sky for five seconds."

Navy search Privateers, meanwhile, sank or damaged eight more enemy vessels, Marine Corsairs knocked down eight enemy fighter planes over the home island of Kyushu, and Okinawa-based Tactical Air Force pilots attacked the Sakishima islands off Formosa.

To the south, Philippine-based bombers in the MacArthur Command have destroyed 90 per cent of the alcohol production on Formosa. Others tightening the blockade in southwest by sinking eight Japanese coastal freighters and three luggers and continuing attacks on the enemy naval base at Mako in the Pescadores.

Airdromes in the Celebes, eastern Java, and the seaplane base in the Kangean islands near Java, also felt aerial blows.

Carrollton, Ga.

"They just sat out of range and wiggled their wings and flicked their lights."

A Direct Hit Scored.

"Our bombs looked like they went into the target areas," said Lieut. Chester C. Gibbens of Hayward, Cal., riding in the newly commissioned Superfortress named "Fleet Admiral Nimitz." "Somebody right behind us really hit pay dirt. I saw a double flash that lit up the sky for at least five seconds. You know, whoom!"

Corporal Andy Sevick of Bethel, Kan., whose crewmates claim that at 34 he's the oldest and best tailgunner in the business, watched a "fireball" come up through the clouds and tail the "Chicago Queen" for a seeming eternity of seven minutes before it dove through the clouds and

B-29 Crewmen Report They Won't Have to Return to Maruzen Refinery.

ERICKSON

Guam, July 3 (A. P.).—Superfortresses struck at Japan's dwindling oil resources today for the third time in a week, blasting the Maruzen oil refinery with such precision returning airmen said "we won't have to go back there again."

DRAFT

Fifth precision bombing B-29s hit the oil center thirty-five miles from Osaka before dawn today in a quick follow up of yesterday's record 600-plane fire raid on four cities, while other Allied air forces wrecked shipping and military installations from Nippon to Malaya. Two B-29's were lost in yesterday's 600-plane raid, but all except two crew members were rescued.

[In Washington, a communique from 20th Air Force headquarters said the Maruzen mission was flown without loss. Crews reported meager and inaccurate anti-aircraft fire at the target and no enemy air opposition, the communique said.]

Black smoke which rose 10,000 feet above the important Maruzen oil plant could be seen for thirty miles in the night sky. Anti-aircraft fire was light and the few Jap interceptors that took to the air "just seemed to want to play," said Corporal W. H. Power of Twenty-first Bomber Command Headquarters announced, meanwhile, that 117 square miles of Jap urban industrial area had been laid waste by B-29 strikes, not counting yesterday's record raid. Reconnaissance photographs of firebomb strikes June 29 against Moji, Sasebo, Shimonoseki and Nobeoka showed approximately two square miles burned out.

Navy Planes Blast Ships.

The refinery hit today at Shimotsu, thirty-five miles southwest of Osaka on Honshu Island, was the third oil center struck within a week. It had produced fuel and lubricating oil and aviation gasoline. It likewise was a storage center with many large fuel tanks in the target area. The raid was the eighth B-29 attack on the Jap homeland in eight days, dovetailing with other aerial assaults on far-flung areas of the empire.

Navy Search Privateers, ranging from Japan to China, sank or damaged eight more enemy vessels as Marine Corsairs over the home island of Kyushu knocked down eight Jap planes. Other Okinawa-based planes attacked the Sakishima Islands off Formosa.

Japs Report Raid on Kyushu.

San Francisco, July 3 (A. P.).—Radio Tokyo said today that 100 medium and small-sized planes raided air bases in southern Kyushu today even as it was promising that crack new fighter planes soon would go into action to "bring down enemy B-29s before the very eyes of the people."

Australians Capture Sepinggan Airfield

Seventh Division Troops Speed Three Miles Along Highway—Manggar Airstrip Threatened—Japanese Retire From Beaches.

By Spencer Davis

MANILA, Wednesday, July 4 (AP)—Australian Seventh Division troops in a three-mile advance to the northeast captured Sepinggan airfield by nightfall of the second day of the Balikpapan invasion to bring Java, heart of the Dutch East Indies, within fighter range of Allied planes for the first time in more than three years.

Consolidate Positions

As the Aussies consolidated their left flank positions atop a vital ridge overlooking fire ravaged Balikpapan, the rapid advance of other digger units along a hard-surfaced two-lane highway brought possession of the 4,600-foot asphalt paved runway only 510 statute miles from Soerabaja.

Royal Australian Engineers prepared to fill bomb craters and smooth the airstrip for accommodation of land based planes as quickly as possible.

A second enemy airfield is at Manggar, only six miles ahead of the driving Australians. While Melbourne radio broadcasts have claimed its capture, there has been no confirmation from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

The Japanese defenders of Balikpapan, where the Australians landed Sunday, followed their customary practice and pulled out of strong prepared positions on the beach and retired to a series of ridges overlooking the town itself.

Today's communique made no mention of further progress inland and a spokesman said there had been little change of position from the first day.

Heavy Machinegun Fire

Cavalry commandos, components of the Seventh Division, met heavy machinegun fire from six enemy positions when they crossed the Klandasan river Sunday night to begin their push on Sepinggan.

Aerial and naval bombardment knocked out Japanese coastal defense guns and dual purpose anti-aircraft guns at the landing beach but there was no indication that enemy mortar and artillery fire in the hinterland had been silenced.

Balikpapan continued to blaze as burning oil sent a thick pall over the city.

While Rear Adm. Russell S. Berkey's Seventh Fleet cruisers and destroyers supported by carrier planes volleyed hundreds of rounds of shells into the oil town, more than 100 Liberators and scores of Mitchells and Lightnings of the 13th and 5th Air Forces pounded enemy bridges, barracks and troop concentrations in the target area.

In addition, planes kept banketed and unoperational various airfields on Celebes, across the Makassar strait from Borneo, and in the Bandjermasin area of southern Borneo. Four small enemy craft were destroyed in the straits.

Advance North of Beaufort

On western Borneo, the Australian Ninth Division, supported by Navy rocket fire, advanced north of Beaufort to capture Lamut and pushed two miles north to within 50 miles of Jeselton. Another column, south and east of Beaufort, took strong natural positions lightly held by the Japanese at Tenom, a mile and a half west along a spur railroad serving North Borneo rubber plantations. Fifth Air Force Liberators, Spitfires and Kittyhawks based at Labuan worked over enemy positions from Trombol Field at Kuching to Keningau.

Over China, a 5th Air Force Liberator on armed reconnaissance Saturday night hit Shanghai's Texaco oil refinery. Other liberators and Seventh Fleet mariners hit a Hongkong radio station and an important bridge position leading into Haiphong, Indo-China. Privateers swept Indo-China railways.

On Sunday a lone Liberator raided the enemy naval base of Mako, in the Pescadores, while Black Widow night fighters and Liberators bombed and strafed Kochun, on southern Formosa.

Lt. Gen. Sir Leslie J. Morshead, Australian Corps commander, declared yesterday after seizure of high ground dominating Balikpapan that "in a strategic sense, the campaign is won."

Jap Withdrawal Reported

Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines, with the invasion force, reported the Japanese were withdrawing up the coast towards Samarinda, 60 miles north of Balikpapan.

The rich Sanga Sanga oil fields, in the Samarinda area, are the last held by the Japanese. They have been driven from Tarakan island, 300 miles north of Balikpapan, from which oil is already being supplied to Allied ships, and their hold has been broken on the Seria and Miri fields of Sarawak, northwest Borneo.

Borneo's rubber, with much of the producing areas already in Allied hands, can be exported from Balikpapan within a few weeks after its liberation, Netherlands government officials said.

Brines reported that in their retreat northward the Japanese were driving before them all able-bodied natives, including several thousand Javanese and Dyaks believed used as slave laborers.

AUSSIES BRAVE INFERNO OF OIL AT BALIKPAPAN

Invaders Also Encounter Fire From Jap 5-inch Gun Batteries.

BUT PART OF PORT IS SEIZED

Two Airfields Are Also Reported Taken—Campaign Is Said to Be Already Won.

Manila, July 3 (A. P.).—Australian infantry, braving flaming oil and barrages from Jap 5-inch guns, advanced through searing heat today and seized part of the vital southeast Borneo petroleum port of Balikpapan.

Australian radio reports asserted they also had captured both the Sepinggang and Manggar airfields, three and ten miles northeast of Balikpapan, and the Australian commander declared the two-day-old invasion already was a strategic success.

Fire and smoke from the refinery area rolled over Aussie-held ridges that dominate both the town and the beach. Standing atop the highest of these ridges, Lieut.-Gen. Sir Leslie J. Morshead, Australian Corps commander, declared that quick capture of the ridge had "insured success of the campaign." Jap resistance inland, however, was stiffening and the enemy's concealed artillery still was spattering ridges and beachhead.

Tokyo Says 7,000 Troops Land.

Tokyo radio said approximately 7,000 Allied troops had been put ashore by last night, spearheaded by two heavy tanks and fifty medium tanks. The Japs placed air support of this ground operation at 170 planes and noted an "increase of warships, including five cruisers, fifty transports and other types."

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today located the invading Australian Seventh Division nearly two miles inland and spread for three miles along the seashore. MacArthur did not confirm the report of the capture of the airfields, but Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines earlier reported from the front that capture of Sepinggang, at least, was imminent.

The Australians already held more than half of Klandasan, a main residential suburb of Balikpapan, near the Balikpapan Bay entrance. East of the beachhead and about a mile inland, Japs holding strong cave and tunnel positions were fighting bitterly. Similar caves were encountered occasionally inland from the main beachhead and were being reduced one by one in familiar, grim, Pacific-war fashion.

Aussie Casualties Light.

Aussie casualties thus far were reported light. Only a few Jap prisoners have been taken.

Emphasizing the difficulty of immediate occupation—and salvage—of the refinery area, Associated Press Correspondent James Hutcheson described a literal river of fire separating Australian and Japanese lines when a huge oil tank exploded, sending "a wild column of flame" roaring down ravines toward the sea.

There was no confirmation of Tokyo's assertion that Australian invasion forces had made a new landing at Kualasambodja, some thirty miles up the coast from Balikpapan.

ILL SLAVES BURNED BY FOE ON BORNEO

Japanese Set Fire to Hospital Before Driving Thousands of Natives North for Work

Brines

WITH ALLIED FORCES, Near Balik Papan, Borneo, July 3 (AP)—The burning of starving and sick Javanese slave laborers in a hospital was charged to the Japanese Army today by Netherlands officials.

JUL 4 1945

The Japanese, officials said, set fire to a native hospital before driving all able-bodied men and women northward toward the Samarinda oil fields. Several thousand, including Javanese and Borneo Dyaks, were believed to have been driven away as slave laborers.

Only 200 natives, including two women, have been found so far in this area. They were placed in a compound maintained by a Netherlands Indies civil affairs unit. Nearly all are pathetically beaten skeletons.

Two men escaped from the burning hospital, where an uncounted number were burned alive. Australian soldiers found the two huddled in foxholes when they reached the site, along the road leading to the Sepinggang airstrip. One had an old, unattended leg infection from which bones protruded. He gasped out part of the story and then died. The other lay dying, unable to talk, this afternoon in the Nicau hospital.

The Australians were told that Japanese soldiers, entering the flimsy wooden hospital, where they kept slave laborers who were too weak to work but gave them no attention or medicine, had announced that they intended to burn the hospital and that all those able to walk could escape. Only two managed to stagger outside as the torch was applied.

The Japanese methodically fired the hospital while the helpless patients stared hopelessly from wooden shelves which they occupied as beds.

When the Australians arrived nearly all sizable buildings had been destroyed and charred bodies were scattered in the debris.

Other Australian troops discovered in the Klandasan section of Balik Papan additional natives too weak to move. They were in a small house surrounded by dead compatriots. Three natives, found in a near-by cave, were boiling leaves for food.

It is impossible to describe the gaunt, scrofulous, submissive victims of Japanese imperialism now receiving medical treatment in the Nicau hospital for a variety of illnesses and starvation. Many had been wounded by pre-invasion shellfire.

Maj. Andre van Assenderp, commanding the 186-man Nicau unit, said that the Japanese shipped 500 slave laborers monthly to Java for at least five months before the invasion. They were called "Hei-Ho," or military laborers, and all received some form of Japanese military training under compulsion.

The Javanese apparently were kept on a near-starvation diet. Local natives, also impressed as laborers, fared somewhat better because they raised some food around their homes.

PHILIPPINES MOPUP

Manila, July 3 (A. P.).—Scattered little remnants of a Jap Philippine garrison, once half a million strong, found themselves isolated and trapped today by American and guerrilla thrusts.

The village of Waloe, in the Agusan River valley of eastern Mindanao, already is circled by a ring of American and Filipino troops. The fleeing enemy was believed likely to attempt a final regrouping of his forces there.

On Luzon, Filipino Army forces captured several communities in the northern Cagayan Valley near Lal-lo and American Thirty-seventh Division infantrymen destroyed four enemy tanks as they chased beaten Japs into the foothills of the Sierra Madres. Lines also tightened around enemy remnants in the Cordillera Mountains northeast of the summer capital of Baguio.

OKINAWA FIGHTERS HIT SHANGHAI SHIPS

Okinawa, July 3 (A. P.).—Ranging the length of the Yellow Sea and the coast of China virtually without enemy fighter opposition, Yank flyers in two days sank eighteen Jap small craft and damaged sixteen others including two destroyer escorts and two large freighters five miles from Shanghai.

It was the first Shanghai strike for American Thunderbolts whose veteran pilots are hunting for Jap fighter planes. Not finding any, they loosed their rockets upon a Jap convoy of two destroyer escorts and two 7,000-ton freighters setting one of the destroyers on fire and damaging the other ships.

Privateers of Fleet Air Wing 1 caught a 4,000-ton river boat in Hangchow Bay and sunk it. It may have been attempting to evacuate Jap soldiers from China.

"Big ship targets have been scarce for some time," said Commander J. M. Chittenden of Massena, N. Y., commanding officer of the Privateer detachment, "but hunting is good for smaller boats, especially in the Tsushima Straits."

FOUR AIRMEN SURVIVE TWO CRASHES IN DAY

Headquarters, 13th Air Force, Philippines, July 3—(AP)—Hundreds of bombing missions struck Balikpapan prior to the landing of the Australians—but it's still recognized by pilots of the 13th Air Force as one of the toughest targets east of Singapore.

There was the case of one Liberator which had flown through flak-filled skies to give a low-level pasting to antiaircraft guns and Japanese troops and barracks. Going home, the Liberator gave out under the strain and with two engines knocked out the pilot ordered the crew to jump.

Only four men survived to tell the harrowing story. They were Second Lieut. Walter E. Kulig, navigator; Freeland, Pa.; Sgts. Robert Kaul, engineer, Hammond, Ind.; Daniel Loeffelholz, radio operator, Potosi, Wis.; and Gleen D. Gatenby, assistant engineer, Gallatin, Mo.

Two Men Lost

The bombardier and tail gunner jumped but never were seen again. The other four crew members landed on Japanese-held Celebes and watched as the big bomber crashed with pilot and co-pilot still aboard. Both managed to swim away from the sinking plane and joined Kulig and the three enlisted men ashore.

Less than an hour later a 13th Air Force Catalina flying boat dropped down to rescue survivors while a sister Cat and several other Liberators strafed and bombed the shore to keep the Japanese from attempting to capture the men. But tragedy still pursued the survivors.

The Catalina pilot, Lieut. Arthur G. Carothers, Jr., Orbisonia, Pa., took the survivors aboard but the choppy sea proved an unexpected obstacle. Gunning the big seaplane, Carothers tried to take off but water ripped the hull, nearly tearing the rescue plane in two. It nosed over at high speed and pearl-dived into the sea.

Pilots Killed

30.24-28095

The Liberator pilot and co-pilot, so recently rescued, were killed outright. Carothers' navigator also was killed.

Watching the crash of his sister ship, Lieut. Bryan D. W. Guess, pilot of the second Catalina, made a risky water landing.

His flight surgeon, Capt. Nicholas Bailey, Manhattan Beach, Calif., dived overboard to help the survivors. He saw a flash of gold and blue—it was the shoulder patch of the crashed Catalina's radio operator, Pfc. Granville S. Mason, Delhi, Ontario—and pulled Mason from the wreckage.

The crew of the wrecked Catalina, with the four Liberator survivors, crowded into the waist of Lieutenant Guess' Catalina. There were 19 aboard when he started his takeoff.

Waves eight feet high smashed the plexiglass window and flooded the waist. Pilot Guess battled for 45 minutes before his Catalina soared into the air.

"None of us thought we'd get out of that one alive," said Navigator Kulig, "but Guess pulled her up."

The rescued men were taken to a Dutch East Indies base where doctors said they'd fly again after treatment and rest.

JAPAN'S FOOD CUT; B-29'S SEAR SUPPLY

Tokyo Decrees 10% Reduction in Ration—Boasts New Plane to Combat 'Superforts'

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 3—B-29 attacks on Japan, aimed at industrial targets, are paying an extra dividend by destroying Japanese food reserves, Army men said today.

Incendiary bombs, which have wrecked whole metropolitan areas, certainly have razed warehouses and even many small food stores, War Department authorities believe. They cite the Japanese announcement today that rations are being cut another 10 per cent in the home islands.

"Certainly they are starting to feel a pinch in food," a high officer said. "They have announced that they are even boiling leaves for starches. That may be a sign that the rice reserves have been hit."

An even more powerful blow at the Japanese larder is in store, he indicated. With industrial targets plastered, the big bombers will turn next to Japanese ports and rail communications.

Only two ports have been chosen so far for attack; they were "secondary" targets, to be hit only if the primary ones, the industrial areas, could not be reached.

Once ports and port facilities come under the lash of the Superfortresses, it is reasoned, the Japanese will not keep them teeming with ships laden with food grown on the Asiatic continent.

Moreover, additional strikes at rail lines would block shipment of food inland from ports.

Japan Boasts of New Planes

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3 (AP)—Japanese propagandists said today that new planes would soon be in the air to fight the B-29's and strove to assure the world that the Japanese were "determined to die" in defending the invasion-jittery empire.

Civilian volunteers are banding together from Japan proper to Singapore, the Tokyo radio said. "The same spirit that beat back the Mongol invasion 700 years ago is as fierce as ever today," it added.

Inhabitants of Kyushu in southern Japan were pictured as particularly determined. An unidentified but "prominent" landowner, said to have graduated from "one of the best known universities in California," was quoted in one of the broadcasts, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, as having said:

"Village folks know that the war situation in the Okinawas is unfavorable, and many believe Kyushu will be the next scene of fighting. Preparations are being made to crush the enemy. I, myself, am determined to die on the battlefront here."

Contradictory reports were made on accomplishments of Japan's small underground aircraft plants. To the Japanese, Tokyo said that the plants were producing "scores" of planes a month; another broadcast, aimed at America, boosted the output to "several hundred, with the production curve showing an upward swing every night."

The Japanese military, trying to guess where Allied troops would land next, rushed defense preparations from Singapore to the towering cliffs of the home islands.

The enemy radio told of plans to evacuate civilians from Singapore and the formation of volunteer corps in Canton and in Indo-China. The Domei agency said that 10,000 Japanese residents of Canton had formed special storming parties of males 14 to 60 years of age.

Japan's new Extraordinary War Measures Committee has approved a decree voiding all leases on property damaged by American bombs "to facilitate swift rehabilitation," Domei said.

JAPS ARE RUSHING INVASION DEFENSES

San Francisco, July 3 (A. P.).—The feverish Japanese military, trying to guess where Allied troops will land next, pushed defense preparations today from Singapore to the cliffs of the home islands.

The enemy radio told of plans to evacuate civilians from Singapore, the formation of volunteer corps at Canton and in Indo-China and determination of Japponese at home to die defending Kyushu's soil.

Domei Agency reported 10,000 Jap residents of Canton have formed special storming parties of males between 14 and 60 years of age. It is there that the enemy fears Allied invasion of the China coast to gain the important Canton-Hongkong port facilities.

Tokyo claimed that the United States and Great Britain are well aware of the threat of defeat on Japan's beaches and are attempting to entice Russia into the fight to bring about a short war, although "there exists no reason nor problem for which Russia must participate in the Japanese war."

Domei admitted that the Jap home food situation is so critical that leaves and vines of at least nineteen different kinds of plants will be used in an effort to obtain starch.

Added to the Jap dietary woes was a decision by Premier Kantaro Suzuki and the cabinet to cut staple rations 10 per cent. The nation generally will be affected July 11 and the major cities a month later. The Japanese are pinning their hopes for fuller tables on the October harvest.

The Nipponese acknowledged scant air opposition to destruction of Japan's cities by American Superforts, but the broadcast, recorded by the FCC, declared that an infallible air force was being hoarded for the "coming battle of the homeland." It explained that American bombers were being permitted to carry on their massive raids while all effort was concentrated on building a great new force of planes.

B-29S BREAK LEASES IN JAPAN

San Francisco, July 3 (A. P.).—Japan's new "extraordinary war measures committee" has approved a decree voiding all leases on property damaged by American bombs, in order "to facilitate swift rehabilitation," the Japanese Domei Agency said today.

Permission of the prefectural governor alone is sufficient, under the decree, to permit any one to use such property "for anti-air raid defense, production and other emergency war purposes," said the broadcast, recorded by the FCC. After a "certain" lapse of time, it added, "burnt trees, metals and other immovables" on such property will revert to the state treasury—if the owners haven't taken possession meanwhile.

Tokyo Says Japs Sank Cruiser

San Francisco, July 3 (A. P.).—Japan's Domei News Agency reported today that Jap planes sank one "enemy" cruiser and damaged another off Okinawa Sunday night and attacked the American airfield on Ie Jima, west of Okinawa, on Monday, "causing several big fires." The dispatch, recorded by the FCC, was without Allied confirmation.

Japs Report 2 More Admirals Dead

San Francisco, July 3 (A. P.).—The death of two more Japanese flag officers identified as Rear Admirals Yasuatsu Suzuki and Yoshiro Kato, was announced today by the Tokyo radio. The broadcast, recorded by the FCC, gave no details.

Japanese Acknowledge 4,900,000 Casualties

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3 (AP)—Tokyo radio acknowledged tonight that 4,900,000 Japanese have been killed, injured or rendered homeless in five large homeland cities as the result of American aerial blows up to May 31.

The broadcast, monitored by the American Broadcasting Company, said 1,135,000 homes were destroyed in the attacks.

ARGENTINA DENIES THREAT TO NEWMAN

Buenos Aires, July 3 (A. P.).—The Ministry of the Interior expressed surprise today when informed that Joseph Newman, correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, had taken up residence in the American embassy on the ground that he had received a threatening telephone call. The Ministry said that Argentina offers ample guaranties for the safety of foreigners residing in the country and that Newman should have told the police of any threat to his person before seeking shelter in the embassy.

Newman declared he had received a call yesterday from a man who identified himself as a "Capt. Moretti" and said he was speaking from the War Ministry.

"News correspondence which you have been sending is tendentious and is causing serious disturbances in the country," Newman quoted the man as saying. "We are going to put an end to this. We will terminate your activities."

The embassy also received a telephone call from a man giving the same identification and complaining about the dispatches filed by American correspondents. A secretary immediately telephoned the War Ministry and was informed by Capt. Mario Jorge Moretti that he had made no such calls.

Arnaldo Cortesi, correspondent for the New York Times, disclosed last week that he too had received threatening telephone calls from an individual calling himself "Capt. Moretti." At the time also Capt. Mario Jorge Moretti denied making any such call.

Navy Tells How Okinawa Ships Were Protected

Floating Air Base in East China Sea Mothered Planes Covering Invasion

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—The largest, most daring seaplane maneuver in history covered the Okinawa operation for nearly a week before the invasion, on April 1.

Anchored amid the Kerama Islands in the East China Sea seven seaplane tenders of Fleet Air Wing 1 mothered four squadrons of Martin Mariners (P. B. M. S., which protected from surprise enemy movement on, under and above the sea the vast armada of warships, transports and supply vessels engaged in the Ryukyus assault.

The Navy now permits telling of the story, for with extensive land-based air operations at Okinawa there no longer is need for a floating base.

This was the situation: Okinawa was 1,400 miles from the Marianas bases and less than 350 miles from the Japanese mainland. The distance was too great for land-based air patrols of the density needed; carrier-based aircraft had other assignments and were not suited to the job. The answer was a floating seaplane base.

So the veteran 77th Army Division was sent to Kerama on Monday, March 27, to take over a few of the dozen islands seventeen miles west of Okinawa. Soldiers were already ashore when the Navy force steamed in the next morning.

Fleet Air Wing 1's ships moved briskly to prearranged anchorages. Small boats were over the rails before anchors were down, and plans worked out months before were in operation. Thousands of men bustled around the three seaplane tenders. Light markers and navigation aids were placed in positions. Soundings of the area were made to check charts.

Then the big planes arrived, in small groups, flying through tough weather that for awhile had threatened the whole Ryukyuan operation. They came primarily to patrol the China Sea and the Pacific Ocean sides of Nansei Shoto—a long chain of islands running southwestward from Japan—and the southwest and southeast shores of Kyushu, and to forestall any Japanese attempt to bring in submarines, warships or aircraft against the American invasion forces, which by then were en route.

The ground crews lived in dust, freezing nights and sweltering noons, and ate from cans and cartons, all the while flailing at mosquitoes. But they and the fliers did the job.

GEN. PATTON OFF TO EUROPEAN POST

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—Gen. George S. Patton Jr. wound up his vacation in the States and left today for Europe, where he will resume command of the Third Army Headquarters. He retains his rank as commander of the Third Army.

The War Department announced the General's departure.

The Third and Seventh armies have been designated as the American occupation forces in Germany.

Earlier, Representative Rankin (D.-Miss.) told the House he had invited the General to visit Congress but the invitation was late reaching Patton and he had to leave for Europe today before he could accept. "He said, however, that he hoped to have the privilege of visiting with us later," Rankin said.

SENATOR SEES SIX FLAWS IN WORLD CHARTER

But Bushfield Asserts He Must Support Treaty for Sake of Soldier-son.

SAYS CORRECTION IS EASY

Aims Criticism at Broad Powers of American Council Member and Council Itself.

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—In one of the first open Senate breaks on the United Nations Charter, Senator Bushfield (R.-S. D.) declared today that the document contains at least six flaws. These should be corrected, he told his colleagues, before the charter is ratified.

Although the first-term Westerner asserted that some of the provisions must be changed "for our national safety," he announced that he would support the treaty because he could not face his soldier son "if I fail to do what I can to stop the senseless, maniacal slaughter and planned murder of my fellow men."

In a Senate speech, Bushfield listed these as "the jurisdictional faults in the new treaty:

1. "It delegates power which we have no authority to delegate to the Security Council to declare war.

2. "It places our sovereignty in the hands of foreigners because we have only one vote out of a necessary total of seven. This power must be referred to Congress in each case as it arises.

3. "It seeks by implication to delegate power to the American member of the Security Council to vote us into war without reference to Congress. This power must be strictly defined and limited by statute to congressional approval in each case as it arises.

4. "It grants to the Security Council power to regulate the size and kind of our armaments for national defense. No power on earth should dictate our defense, except the Congress.

5. "It destroys the Monroe Doctrine, which is the only fixed foreign policy America has ever had and leaves that foreign policy to a council of foreign nations.

6. "It scuttles the Pan American Union which we have spent fifty years in building among our American neighbors and makes it subject to the approval of European and Asiatic nations."

Bushfield said all the objections "can be corrected easily by the Senate," without harm to the treaty.

Governors Will Express Views About Charter

Conference Will Be Asked To Endorse Resolution For "Prompt" Approval.

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 3, (AP)—The 37th vonference of state governors will be asked tomorrow to approve a resolution endorsing the United Nations world security charter as drafted and asking "prompt" approval by the United States Senate.

The reslution, approved unanimously late today by the conference's resolutions committee, declares the charter "lays a firm foundation upon which future progress of world organization for lasting peace can be made."

"No more worthwhile achievement could be realized by freedom-loving men and women," it added.

The resolution asserts that the attainment of world peace "has ever been the aim of civilized peoples," adding:

Favor U. S. Entry

"We as governors declare our belief that the people of the several states are wholeheartedly in favor of teh entry of the Uinted States into this proposed international organization for world security."

The resolutions committee action highlighted another day of speechmaking by state chief executives in which major problems confronting the states and nation in the changeover from war to peace received exclusive attention.

Gov. J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, the last speaker tonight urged that federal grants-in-aid to states for unemployment insurance as proposed by President Truman for the reconversion period be made a permanent part of the Social Security structure.

He suggested it is an amendment to the Wargner-Murray-Dingell bill in Congress which provides for a federalized insurance plan. He said it was needed:

"First, because the United States, the wealthiest nation in the world, cann ill-afford to furnish less security than nations mucn poorer than we;

Must Provide Security

"Second, with state socialism emergent as a competitive to our system of individual initiative and free enterprise, we must provide our people with equal security.

"Third, unless we can provide social and economic security in this, the wealthiest of nations, our failure will likely prevent economic recovery of a devastated world.

The Rhode Island governor spoke at a night session after Governor Edward Martin of Pennsylvania asserted returning veterans want opportunity for jobs and not "coddling."

"Remember that the real veterans — the man who did things as a soldier and will do things as a citizen — does not want coddling," he said. "He wants an opportunity. He wants a free and dynamic America. It is our job to give it to him."

BATTLE OVER FEPC IN HOUSE IMPERILS 11 OTHER AGENCIES

Single Member Can Block Funds for These Units and Marcantonio Plans to Do So

CTION IS DUE TOMORROW

Inusual Situation Arises as Rules Group Refuses to Clear 752 Million Bill

By C. P. TRUSSELL,
Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, July 3 — New developments in the House fight over continuance or death of the Fair Employment Practices Committee threatened today to further delay, if not block entirely, appropriations to keep alive nearly a dozen of other war agencies.

Among those scheduled for new or added financial troubles were the War Production Board, War Labor Board, the Office of War Information, the Office of Economic Stabilization, the Office of Defense Transportation, the War Shipping Administration and the Office of Inter-American Affairs. These and twelve other agencies are now functioning under a temporary arrangement by which they may "incur obligations" pending receipt of the allotments blocked by the FEPC controversy.

In its latest move to prevent the House from voting on funds to continue the FEPC, which presently has no money at all, the Rules Committee refused this afternoon to grant a rule to clear for floor action the new War Agencies Appropriation Bill, totaling $752,000,000, which yesterday replaced the one passed recently by the Senate and House, but which the Rules group would not let go to conference. The Senate bill contained a compromise of $250,000 for the FEPC, about one-half the amount sought for this fiscal year.

Out of the parliamentary maze which entangles the FEPC and war agencies operating funds in general, there emerged the fact that the Rules Committee's action was more positive than negative.

Bill Goes to Floor Tomorrow

The new war-agencies' bill, which contains no funds for the FEPC, was agreed, can go to the House floor without a rull and will on Thursday. But any attempt to offer an amendment giving money to the FEPC will be subject to a point of order and barred under House rules from a vote. By the same token eleven other war agencies which were also created by executive order and did not receive statutory status from Congress will be similarly affected.

Representative Marcantonio of the American Labor party of New York, served notice that he and others would enter points of order affecting all eleven agencies.

"The responsibility for denial of funds to these war agencies," Mr. Marcantonio said, "will not be on us. We had a war agency bill and it was passed by both houses of Congress. All that remained to be done was to send it to conference.

"Who blocked that conference? Opponents of FEPC. The bill went back to the Appropriations Committee. Instead of reporting it out the committee tabled it and submitted an entirely new bill. Opponents of the FEPC on that committee have succeeded in writing into the bill a provision that no money appropriated by it may be used for the FEPC."

Byrnes Is Secretary of State

President and Other Officials See the Oath Administered on White House Terrace.

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—James F. Byrnes became Secretary of State today. President Truman and the highest officials of the Government looked on as the oath of office was administered to the man who would succeed to the presidency, under present statutes, should Mr. Truman be unable to complete his term.

After Byrnes had been sworn in by Chief Justice Richard S. Whaley of the Court of Claims, in a brief ceremony on a sun-swept White House terrace, he made the following formal statement:

"I enter upon my duties as Secretary of State, deeply conscious of the great and grave responsibilities of that office.

"It is the function of the State Department to advise the President in the formulation of foreign policy and to carry out the foreign policy of the United States as determined by the President and the Congress. It follows that a change in the secretaryship at this time involves no change in the basic principles of our foreign policy in the prosecution of the war and in the struggle for enduring peace which have been charted by the late President Roosevelt and reaffirmed by President Truman.

Will Seek Advice.

"In advising President Truman on foreign policy I shall seek the constant help and guidance of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. My friend, Cordell Hull, with whom I have served in the Congress and in the executive branch of the Government and who has done so much to shape our foreign policy during the critical war years, has promised to give me the benefit of his wise counsel. I am glad also that I will be in a position to advise with my immediate predecessor, Mr. Stettinius, particularly on the tremendously important tasks relating to the organization of the United Nations as a permanent institution to maintain peace.

"As I am leaving within a short time to accompany President Truman at his forthcoming conference with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill, I am asking all of those in the department at home or abroad to remain at their posts and to carry on as usual. I have asked the director of the budget to make an investigation of the structure of the department. Until I receive that report and have an opportunity to study it and make such personal inquiry as I deem advisable, no change in personnel will be made.

Tells What Peace Needs.

"The making of enduring peace will depend on something more than skilled diplomacy, something more than paper treaties, something more even than the best charter the wisest statesman can draft. Important as is diplomacy, important as is our peace settlements and the basic charter of world peace, these cannot succeed unless backed by the will of the peoples of different lands not only to have peace but to live together as good neighbors.

"Centuries ago devout men thought that they had to fight with one another to preserve their different religious beliefs. But we have learned through long and bitter experience that the only way to protect our religious belief is to respect and to recognize the right of others to their religious beliefs.

"Today there can be no doubt that the peoples of this war-ravaged earth want to live in a free and peaceful world. But the supreme task of statesmanship the world over is to help them to understand that they can have peace and freedom only if they tolerate and respect the rights of others to opinions, feelings, and ways of life which they do not and cannot share."

Ceremony on Terrace.

The ceremony was shifted out to the terrace because the crowd was too big for the President's office. As the new Secretary took the oath, Edward R. Stettinius Jr., the man he succeeds, stood one step behind him.

Members of the Cabinet, military leaders, and many members of the Senate and House of Representatives looked on and applauded.

After the ceremony Byrnes and Stettinius left the White House together. Charles G. Ross, press secretary, announced that Stettinius will have an office in the White House to carry on his new duties as member of the United Nations Security Council.

Harry Hopkins Quits Because Of Ill Health

Truman Accepts White House Adviser's Resignation.

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—Harry Hopkins, confidential White House adviser and wartime emissary for two Presidents, stepped out of public life today because "I must take a rest."

In frail health for several years, Hopkins turned in his resignation as special assistant to President Truman. The latter accepted it in a letter expressing regret and praise "for all your great and patriotic service to our country."

The resignation came at a time when the President was preparing for his first Big Three conference with Premier Churchill and Marshal Stalin. Hopkins was to have attended that conference in the same advisory capacity in which he accompanied the late President

HARRY L. HOPKINS

Roosevelt to all previous Big Three meetings.

Returned from Moscow

The ailing White House confidant returned to Washington recently from a special mission to Moscow, undertaken at the request of President Truman. He has made many such secret trips since the war started, despite his failing health.

In his letter of resignation, Hopkins wrote:

"The time has come when I must take a rest. I have therefore reached the decision that I should now retire from government service. Hence I shall not be able to accompany you to the Berlin area for your impending conference."

In accepting the resignation President Truman wrote:

"There are few people in the United States who know more fully than I the substantial role you have played in the prosecution of our war."

Hopkins came into the government as Works Progress Administrator in 1935 and immediately became one of the closest advisers to President Roosevelt.

Special Assistant

He became adviser and special assistant to Mr. Roosevelt in 1941 and continued the role in the Truman administration. At one period in his government service he lived in the White House spending his nights and days under the same roof with President Roosevelt.

When Mr. Roosevelt died Hopkins arose from a sick bed and, obviously weak from illness, went to the White House to offer his assistance to Mr. Truman. The offer was accepted and culminated in his recent Moscow trip.

As he stepped out of government service Hopkins applauded President Truman for the latter's "courageous administration of this government's foreign and domestic policy."

"The fact that you are surrounding yourself with competent and able men but adds to the confidence this nation has in you," he wrote Mr. Truman.

The texts of the letters exchanged between Mr. Hopkins and the President follow:

THE HOPKINS LETTER

Dear Mr. President:

The time has come when I must take a rest. I have, therefore, reached the decision that I should now retire from the Government's service and hence I shall not be able to accompany you to the Berlin area for your impending conference with Mr. Churchill and Mr. Stalin.

I want you to know how, along with millions of other Americans, I applaud your courage and liberal administration of this Government's domestic and foreign policy. The fact that you are surrounding yourself with competent and able men but adds to the confidence this nation has in you.

If I express my gratitude for your more than generous attitude toward me personally, it is that you may know that I leave the Government with a deep satisfaction in your confidence.

THE TRUMAN REPLY

Dear Harry:

I am sorry that I cannot persuade you to remain in Government any longer. I should have liked it not only because of the great service which you could continue to render to the nation but also because it would have given me great pleasure to have you associated with my administration.

However, I understand fully the reasons which prompted your decision—and I do not feel that I can justifiably ignore them.

There are few people in the United States who know more fully than I the substantial role which you have played in the prosecution of our war. I know how much President Roosevelt relied upon you as he started the nation on the hard task of preparation to meet aggression from abroad. I know how much your efforts counted toward the successful carrying out of the lend-lease program during the days immediately preceding and following our entry into the war. I know how much your tireless energy had to do with the carrying on of the war in all parts of the globe.

During the earlier days when our nation was recovering from the depths of the depression, your participation in Government affairs—first as administrator of relief activities and later as Secretary of Commerce—left its beneficial and lasting imprint on the economy of our nation.

I am sure that you must feel much pride and a deep sense of accomplishment in all your great and patriotic service to our country during the last twelve years.

I know that I shall have to call upon you in the future and I hope that you will soon be fully and completely recovered so that you can give me the benefit of your counsel.

RANKIN OPPOSES JACKSON IN JOB

Wants No Liberal to Head un-American Committee.

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—Representative Rankin (D.-Miss.), acting chairman of the House Committee on un-American Activities, indicated today that he would oppose the selection of Representative Henry Jackson (D.-Wash.) as chairman of the committee.

In a statement commenting on the vacancy created by the resignation of Representative Edward J. Hart (D.-N. J.) as chairman and reports that the 33-year-old Jackson would succeed Hart, Rankin said: "No member should be selected for this post who opposed the creation of this committee or who is opposed to the purposes for which it was established."

Jackson was recorded as not voting on January 3 when the House established the committee as permanent successor to the old Dies committee. However, on March 7 he voted against giving the committee $50,000 for operating expenses. In 1943, when the old Dies group was extended for the 78th Congress, Jackson voted against its continuance and against financing it.

Other Southerners indicated that they, too, would oppose the selection of Jackson, who has been classed as a "liberal" by colleagues since he came to the House in 1941.

While Rankin did not indicate his own choice for the chairmanship, his associates said the Mississippian favored Representative John Gibson, Georgia Democrat.

"The Committee on un-American Activities," Rankin said in his statement, "has a tremendous task before it running down and exposing those elements and individuals who are trying to undermine and destroy our constitutional form of government and our American way of life.

"They are using the same dangerous technics and tactics employed in every totalitarian country in Europe. They are trying to get control of the press, either by purchase, advertising or other influences. They are trying to get control of the radio and the picture shows, driving decent, patriotic Americans like Cecil DeMille and Upton Close from the screen and from the air. They are carrying on schools of subversive technic for the purpose of teaching their deadly doctrines and indoctrinating the children of this country through the schools, through the press, through the radio, and through the moving picture shows."

...es Deplores ...port of Fight At Northport

Declares Veteran's Mother Grossly Exaggerated in Charging Free-for-All

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—Veterans' Administrator Frank T. Hines said today that a mother who told of a "free-for-all fight" at the Northport, N. Y., Veterans facility, had "grossly exaggerated."

Mrs. Ralph Morris, of 233 West Seventy-seventh Street, New York City, told Representative Bernard W. Kearney, Republican, of New York, that she saw a "violent" patient at the hospital "pick up a chair and hit a visitor." She was worried, she said, about the safety of her son, a patient at the hospital. She added that a "free-for-all fight" broke out among the patients and that "no attendant was around to preserve order."

"Wha was evident," Mrs. Morris said in a letter to Representative Kearney, "was the shortage of attandants, making the situation precarious. We fear for our son's safety, and all the patients and visitors are endangered."

Representative Kearney referred her letter to Brigadier General Hines for a repor ton the incident. General Hines declared that a "thorough and impartial" investigation "shows conclusively that Mrs. Morris' statement of the incident was grossly exaggerated."

Chair Taken Away

His investigation disclosed, General Hines reported in a letter to Representative Kearney, that Mrs. Morris witnessed an attempt by a psychotic patient to hit his visiting father with a chair. This occurred, he said, after the son accused the father of giving him "poisoned candy."

The patient raised a chair in an effort to strike the father, General Hines said, but did not do so because another patient "took the chair away from him before any one was struck or injured."

He added several witnesses corroborated that no "free-for-all" developed, as Mrs. Morris asserted, and that three attendants were present—one of whom "responded immediately to the situation."

"It is indeed unfortunate that such an incident should be so grossly exaggerated, with the consequent publicity resulting in anguish and worry to relatives of patients in our hospitals," General Hines said.

The hospital was recently the subject of criticism by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in testimony before the House Veterans Committee, of which Representative Kearney is a member. Witnesses termed conditions at the hospital "intolerable."

Blind Declared Neglected

Representative Jack Z. Anderson, Republican, of California, called today for "a prompt and thorough investigation" of complaints that blind patients at the Army's Dibble General Hospital receive little attention.

Representative Anderson asked Representative J. Buell Snyder, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Subcommittee on Military Appropriations, to discuss the situation at the Menlo Park, Calif., Hospital with Surgeon General Norman Kirk.

He sent to Representative Snyder letters from two Californians living near the hospital stating that the blind patients have inadequate recreational and vocational training facilities, transportation and medical care.

General Hines soon will be succeeded in the veterans' office by General Omar Bradley.

Awards for Draft Board Workers.

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—President Truman has signed legislation authorizing issuance of a medal and an award of merit to uncompensated employees of the Selective Service system.

Urges Cabinet Seat For Veterans Head

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—The creation of a Cabinet post for the head of veterans affairs was suggested today by Brig-Gen. Frank T. Hines, retriing veterans administrator. Hines did not make a formal proposal, but he told the House veterans affairs committee:

"If I were President, I would want whomever is running that institution (veterans office) sitting at the Cabinet table. Other Cabinet members might be helped by this presence there."

Hines soon will be succeeded in the veterans office by Gen. Omar Bradley. He appeared before the veterans committee to answer charges of adverse conditions in hospitals under his administration which have been aired before the committee. He laid most of the recent troubles of the facilities to "lack of personnel and lack of space."

Senator ...nith Deplores Haste on Succession Bill

Wants a Careful Study Made of Various Plans

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—Senator H. Alexander Smith, Republican, of New Jersey, who said today he was not yet committed to any of the numerous plans to provide for Presidential succession, believes a careful study should be made before adopting any of the new proposals.

He said he did not believe the Senate would be as hasty as the House in accepting legislation to make the Speaker of the House the next in line after the Vice-President. Now that James F. Byrnes has been named Secretary of State, Senator Smith said a revision of the existing law, in his opinion, would appear less urgent.

The Senator, who believes the proposal to be one of the most important before Congress, said he had already begun a study of the various plans, none of which may be acted upon finally until after the summer recess.

Among the proposals are: In case of a double vacancy, the Secretary of State would become temporary President, holding office until a President and Vice-President were elected at the next Congressional election. A second would have the President appoint an assistant President, with Senate approval, who would be next in line after the Vice-President.

Goodyear Rubber Seizure By Government Impending

By Larry Smith

AKRON, O., July 3 (AP)—Government seizure of strike-paralyzed Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. plants moved a step nearer today as the National War Labor Board, handed the 18-day-old stoppage by 16,700 workers to Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis.

Other Developments

That was but one of the fast-moving developments in this labor-troubled rubber capital on Independence Day eve.

Sharing the spotlight with the WLB's action, which came just a day after that agency had erased defiant Goodyear workers' rights to vacations and shift differentials were:

1—Notification of the WLB by 16,500 Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. employes, on strike since Sunday, that they "would not return to work under present conditions," thus defying a back-to-work order.

2—An almost "open rebellion" by Summit County draft boards against recent instructions to draft men involved in the Goodyear strike.

3—Announcement by four ...ron banks that rubber worke...s, unpaid since the strikes began, cashed war bonds yesterday $43,000 in excess of the normal "turn-in" rate.

4—Disclosure by Goodyear that the stoppage at its plants had resulted in the loss of 272,000 tires and a Firestone announcement that its production lines were losing 14,400 tires and 13,500 tubes daily.

First Definite Step

Referral of the Goodyear case to Davis by WLB was regarded as the first definite step toward seizure of the plants by the Army or Navy—both are vitally interested in tires and other military equipment produced here—on orders by President Truman.

Goodyear CIO-United Rubber worker defiance of the WLB was backed up today by the Firestone branch of the same union when Isaac H. Watson, local president, informed the National Board the company has shown no willingness to reach an agreement on any of them," and urged the WLB "not to resort to the same repressive tactics used in the Goodyear case, but rather order an investigation into the merits of the controversy."

Yesterday C. V. Wheeler, president of the Goodyear local, and Watson had joined in asking a Senate committee to "immediately start consideration of the merit of disputed points between the workers and these companies."

County Boards Protest

The request by Davis, and an ensuing order by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey and state draft officials, that draft deferments of the Goodyear strikers be cancelled and all men between 18 and 27 be called, drew fire from the 14 Summit County boards.

J. P. Riddle, attorney and chairman of Draft Board No. 1, sent a protest to state draft officials today, declaring.

"The members of our local board are of the opinion that the order issued is most unfair to local draft boards.

"It means placing in our hands a responsibility of another government agency charged with solving labor's problems, and which has adequate facilities at its disposal for the settlement of strikes.

"Our community is torn asunder with the possibility of neighbor being arraigned against neighbor. We should not be forced to become a strike-breaking agency.

Riddle said the other draft boards felt the same as his about the order.

NEWSPRINT QUOTAS INCREASED BY WPB

38,500-Ton Accrual Permits First Easing of Cuts Since Jan. 1, 1943

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—Newspapers will receive slightly more newsprint on their quota allocations for the third quarter, the printing and publishing division of the War Production Board announced today.

In the first relaxation of the newsprint consumption limitation order since it was put into effelt on Jan. 1, 1943, officials of the board said that the sliding scale of reductions in the use of paper from the base year, 1941, would be eased, with the additional allocations representing about 1 to 6 percentage points off the outstanding deductions from the basic tonnages.

An over-all increase of about 38,500 tons of newsprint now available for newsprint publishing in this country will make possible the changes. A spokesman for the WPB said that the increased allotments would permit newspapers to operate "somewhat more closely to normal requirements."

The WPB indicated that monthly delivery quotas would be one-sixth of the total of a publisher's consumption quotas for the third and fourth quarters for 7945.

Exemptions for small newsprint consumers are increased from one and onelquarter tons to five tons per quarter for newspapers published weekly or less frequently, with an exemption for each additional day of publication of one and one-quarter tons a quarter.

Each publisher using twenty-five tons, or more, of newsprint during any calendar quarter must report his inventory on hand, and in transit, at the end of each month. Publishers also must send to the WPB copies of all orders placed by them for delivery of newsprint.

Publishers in Northern and Eastern parts of the United States confine their newsprint inventory to a thirty-day supply on Dec. 31, 1945. Publishers in the South and West may not exceed inventories of fifty days by the end of the year.

At the same time as the WPB's announcement, newsprint action was taken on Capitol Hill when the Senate Agriculture Committee approved a resolution appropriating $5,000 for an investigation of the newsprint shortage.

Senator Willis, Republican of Indiana, who introduced the measure was named chairman of an inquiry sub-committee. Appointed to serve with him were Senators Butler, Republican of Nebraska; Thomas, Democrat of Oklahoma; wheeler, Democrat of Montana, and Bilbo, Democrat of Mississippi.

The resolution went to the Senate.

Margin Requirements Are Raised To 75% by Federal Reserve Board

Move to Reduce Loans, Check Speculation, Behind 50% Increase, Effective Tomorrow—To Force Use of Cash From Sales

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board took two major steps today to reduce loans in the stock market and thereby cut down on speculation:

1. It raised the marign requirements from 50 to 75 per cent, the highest ever. The change, effective July 5, will reduce the size of new loans to finance purchases or short sales of stock exchange securities. It meant that when a person buys or sells stock short on credit he must put up a martin of 75 per cent and can borrow only 25 per cent fbrom his banker or broker.

2. The board announced another change, effective on July 16, designed to squeeze some of the existing credit out of the market. If a person holds several securities in a single account, and sells some of them, he must use the proceeds to bring the margin on the remaining securities up to 75 per cent.

This rule applies to loans under both Regulation T and Regulation U. Except to this extent, neither regulation requires that existing accounts or loans be brought up to 75 per cent.

The Federal Reserve Board often has said thta raising margin requirements would not eliminate speculation because it would not affect cash sales and cash is "the important factor" in the rising market.

A spokesman repeated this tonight, but said it is hope that the regulations will have "some effect" as a quieting influence.

The last change in margin requirements was in February when they were raised from 40 to 50 per cent. Prior to that they were at 40 per cent for more than seven years.

SENATE BODY BACKS THE BRETTON PLAN

Banking Committee Vote Is 14 to 4—It Will Be Taken Up Before Charter Debate

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee late today approved, 14 to 4, legislation enabling United States participation in the Bretton Woods mnetary plan.

Democratic Leader Barkley, said that the legislation, already adopted by the House, will be taken uup by the Senate July 16, a week before debate opens on the United Nations Charter.

The monetary plan provides an $8,800,000,000 fund for international stabilization and $9,100,000,000 world bank for reconstruction and development.

The proposed World Bank would guarantee long-term loans by private lenders for redevelopment of devastated countries, while the fund would seek to stabilize currencies of cooperating nations and provide a revolving fund of foreign exchange.

One of the three amendments approved by the committee strikes out a house-inserted provision which would have required the United States to fix the par value of the dollar in terms of gold only. This action was taken on motion of Senator Millikin, Democrat, of Colorado.

Senator Radcliffe, Democrat, of Maryland, succeeded in inserting an amendment which would have Congress declare that nations should abolish currency restrictions and trade obstacles to insure success of the monetary plan.

Sen. Radcliffe said he had in mind the British Empire trade preference system which committee witnesses had said favors members of the empire to the prejudice of other nations.

The third amendment approved, one by Senator Taft, Republican of Ohio, requires that the United States insist that none of the monetary fund's resources be used for financing armaments.

Only Senators Taft, Thomas of Idaho, Butler of Nebraska, and Millikin, all Republicans, voted against the plan. Approving it were Senators Wagner, Democrat, of New York; Tobey, Republican, of New Hampshire; Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky; Radcliss, Glass, Democrats, of Virginia; Bankhead, Democrat, of Alabama; Downey, Democrat, of California; Murdock, Democrat, of Utah; McFarland, Democrat, of Arizona; Taylor, Democrat, of Idaho; Fulbright, Democrat, of Arkansas; Buck, Republican, of Delaware; Hickenloopen, Republican, of Iowa, and Mitchell, Democrat, of Washington.

Over $100 Billions Spent by U. S. in Year For First Time in History; Ninety for War

JUL 4 1945

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—Government spending passed the $100,000,000,000 a year mark for the first time in history during the fiscal year which ended Saturday, the Treasury announced today.

Total expenditures were $100,-030,000,000, a record which the Treasury said was not likely to be approached for some time to come.

War spending was over $90,000,-000,000 for the first time.

Receipts were over $46,000,000,-000, also a new record.

The Army spent $50,000,000,000 for the first time and the Navy spent $30,000,000,000 for the first time. An additional $10,000,000,-000 was spent for war purposes by various agencies, such as the Maritime Commission, War Shipping Administration, Agriculture Department and others.

Income taxes on individuals and corporations were $35,000,000,000, breaking last year's record.

There was a $188,000,000 in surplus postal revenues. Last year there also was a slight surplus, but before that there was usually a deficit.

The year ended with the largest cash balance in history, $24,698,-000,000, built up at the close by the Seventh War Loan drive.

This drive also brought the public debt up to $258,682,000,000, an increase during the fiscal year of $57,679,000,000.

For the first time during the war Government corporations took in more than they spent. They showed a net credit of $374,000,000

FARM HANDOUTS UNDER ATTACK

Gov. Sparks Calls for More Efficient Food Output.

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 3 (A. P.).—The nation's governors heard proposals today that small business be given a head start in reconversion and farmers an even break with industry instead of Federal handouts.

Gov. Lester C. Hunt of Wyoming declared at the conference of the States' chief executives that unless little business gets the jump on large industry in the changeover to peaceful pursuits its chances of survival will be threatened.

On the same program, Gov. Chauncey Sparks of Alabama told his colleagues that Federal measures to aid the farmers had been "poor sedatives that ought to give way to efforts to making food production more efficient, increasing markets and perfecting distribution.

The governors turned to domestic problems after hearing Commander Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota Governor, call last night for a reorientation of American foreign policy under which this country would assume the role of mediator between the clashing interests of other nations.

Sparks declared that there had been too many attempts in the past to solve the farm problem by unnatural stimulation by means of legislative handouts. He suggested that mechanization of farms would cut production costs, adding that there is a wide field for electrification development. He noted, too, that the need for rural housing is acute, with upward of 3,000,000 new farm homes classed as essential.

SCHWELLENBACK GIVES FIRST ORDER

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach told the employees in his department today that their duty is to accept and enforce the laws—not to try to interpret them.

In his first general order—released at the White House with the approval of President Truman—Schwellenbach told his department:

"I must insist that in this department there is given full recognition to the fact it is the function of this department to execute the laws. The duty of an officer in this department is to accept the laws as Congress has written them and as the courts have interpreted them. The fact that he may think the Congress should have written, or the courts should have interpreted, a law differently in no case justifies him in ignoring or attempting to circumvent the law. I will expect full co-operation on this policy."

Schwellenbach later explained to reporters that he had no specific instances of misinterpretation in mind, but commented that "you gentlemen know that in the past Congress has passed a law and after a department gets through interpreting it you would not recognize it if you met it on the street."

He explained that President Truman had decided to announce the policy through the White House after the new Labor Secretary's visit yesterday. Schwellenbach said he hastened to get the policy pronouncement on the record in order to clarify his position for the department employees in the future.

U. S. JUDGE RESIGNS; IS UNDER INQUIRY

Johnson, 72, Cites Age in Leaving Bench in Pennsylvania—House Group to Push Sift

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—Attorney General Tom Clark said today that Judge Albert W. Johnson of the Middle District Federal court in Pennsylvania had tendered his resignation to the President and the President had accepted it.

The judge. gave his age, 72, as the reason for retiring, the Attorney General, who had just left the White House, said.

The "official conduct" of Judge Johnson and of another judge in the same court, Albert L. Watson, has been under investigation since 1944 by a House Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Representative Kefauver of Tennessee.

The inquiry was authorized by the House on motion of the Judiciary Committee to determine if either judge had been "guilty of any high crime or misdemeanor" which would "require" impeachment proceedings.

A Federal grand jury in Scranton, Pa., recently indicted Judge Johnson's son, Donald M. Johnson, District Attorney of Snyder County, on conspiracy charges in connection with a receivership suit before his father's court.

The son has since pleaded not guilty. The indictment charged that he received "approximately $2,500" in an "off-the-record" fee split, though not participating as a lawyer in the suit. Among four others named in the same indictment and also pleading not guilty was Harry S. Knight of Sunbury, Pa., secretary of the American Bar Association.

Mr. Kefauver had declared before leaving for Scranton this week, while rumors that Judge Johnson would resign were circulating in Washington, that his group would continue its investigation even if Judge Johnson resigned.

Chairman Sumners of the Judiciary Committee said that a judge's resignation would not "necessarily" forestall any impeachment proceedings which might be contemplated against him.

The subcommittee, which resumed hearings in Scranton Monday, has heard testimony from and about Judge Johnson behind closed doors.

U.S. Appoints C. H. Powel Head of German Electrics

He Will Help Revive Industry, but Curb War Potential

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—The War Department announced today the selection of Charles H. Powel, of Pittsburgh, as chief of the electrical and radio branch in the United States Group Control Council for Germany.

Mr. Powel is president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and is an official of Westinghouse.

The Army said his immediate task will be to survey facilities in the American zone of occupation, establish controls under which German industries will be permitted to revive, and to see that they are so organized that they cannot become potential producers of war materiel.

Mr. Powel will join the staff of Lieutenant General Lucius D. Clay, Deputy United States Military Governor of Germany, about mid-July.

Truman Names N. H. A. Head

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—President Truman nominated today Raymond Michael Foley, of Michigan, to be Federal Housing Commissioner in the National Housing Agency, succeeding Abner H. Ferguson, resigned. Mr. Foley's term will expire June 30, 1946.

Truman Orders 44-Hour Week For Most Government Agencies

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 3.—President Truman ordered today most government agencies to cut their work week to forty-four hours, effective immediately.

His memorandum excluded the War and Navy Departments, the Treasury, the Veterans Administration, the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Panama Canal.

All other government agencies were ordered to cut four hours from the forty-eight-hour six-day week they have maintained through the war. Even in the case of the six departments excluded, the President said they should examine their operations and go on a forty-four-hour week wherever possible.

In a memorandum to the heads of the executive departments and agencies, Mr. Truman said:

"It should be clearly understood that reductions in hours of work are not to constitute a basis for request for additional funds for personnel."

The President's action means that hundreds of thousands of Federal workers will receive smaller pay checks than they otherwise would get. However, President Truman on Saturday signed a bill granting basic pay raises averaging 15.9 per cent to 1,220,000 Federal employees.

Truman Signs Bill to Pay Sioux Indians $101,630

Money Is for Ponies the Army Took After Custer Massacre

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—President Truman signed legislation today to pay $101,630 to Sioux Indians for ponies the Army took away from them after the Custer massacre.

After General George A. Custer and his little band were wiped out at the battle of the Little Big Horn in Montana in June, 1876, the Army swung into action.

The troops took the ponies of the Sioux—hostile and non-hostile—in a wide area, with the idea that, if the Indians couldn't ride to battle, the uprisings would be quelled.

The legislation, introduced by Representative Francis Case, Republican, of South Dakota, authorizes payment for the ponies and arms taken from the non-hostile Sioux, principally in North and South Dakota and a few in Montana. The payments are to go to the Indians or their heirs.

Truman Urges Nation to Glory In Its Liberty

His Fourth of July Message Calls U. S. Leader of Freedom for the World

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—In a Fourth of July statement, President Truman tonight called on the nation to honor the "creed of liberty" which its fighting sons have carried throughout the world.

His statement follows:

"Again this year we celebrate July 4 as the anniversary of the day 169 years ago on which we declared our independence as a sovereign people.

"In this year of 1945 we have pride in the combined might of this nation which has contributed signally to the defeat of the enemy in Europe. We have confidence that, under providence, we soon may crush the enemy in the Pacific. We have humility for the guidance that has been given us of God in serving His will as a leader of freedom for the world.

"This year the men and women of our armed forces, and many civilians as well, are celebrating the anniversary of American independence in other countries throughout the world. Citizens of these other lands will understand what we celebrate and why, for freedom is dear to the hearts of all men everywhere. In other lands, others will join us in honoring our declaration that all men are created equal and are endowed with certain inalienable rights—life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

"Here at home, on this July 4, 1945, let us honor our nation's creed of liberty, and the men and women of our armed forces who are carrying this creed with them throughout the world."

ANDERSON ASKS BLIND INQUIRY

Requests Investigation of Veteran Care.

Washington, July 3 (AP).—Representative Anderson (R.-Cal.) called today for a prompt and thorough investigation of complaints that blind patients at the Army's Dibble General Hospital receive little attention.

Anderson asked Representative Snyder (D.-Pa.), chairman of the House Sub-committee on Military Appropriations, to discuss the situation at the Menlo Park Hospital in California with Surgeon-General Norman Kirk.

He sent letters to Snyder from two Californians living near the hospital stating that the blind patients have inadequate recreational and vocation training facilities, transportation and medical care.

One of the letters said:

"One of the patients had a pus formation where the eye had been. He tells me he was turned over to a cadet nurse who asked 'What do you think I should put on it?'"

Other complaints in the letters:

Cannot Use Canes.

"A new building has just been erected for the blind. Instead of it being of easy access, it is fraught with hazards. The blind were told they couldn't use their canes because they would mark up the walls of this nice new building."

"Entertainment is haphazardly handled through the Red Cross. Private individuals wishing to entertain are frequently told, 'The hospital wants no outside interference. Everything possible is being done for the boys.'"

Anderson said that he feels sure that the hospital commandant, if given the proper equipment and a sufficient vocational training staff, will promptly rectify many of the complaints.

BUSINESS TAX CUT FACES HOUSE VOTE

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—The way was opened today for a House vote on a proposal to relieve corporations of paying an estimated $235,000,000 of excess profits taxes this year. The relief would be accomplished by raising exemptions effective retroactively to last January 1.

Congressional tax authorities apparently were agreed that the House will approve the proposal, although there is some vigorous opposition.

The Rules Committee stipulated late yesterday that an amendment can be offered to the business-aid tax bill stipulating that a boost in the excess profits levy exemption take effect on 1945 corporate income instead of on January 1, 1946, as recommended by the Senate-House post-war tax committee, the Treasury and by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Under the bill reported by the Ways and Means Committee, and coming to the House floor Thursday, the excess profits exemption would be raised from $10,000 to $25,000 beginning with the next calendar year.

Chairman Doughton (D.-N. C.), chairman of the Ways and Means group, said that setting the effective date a year earlier would cost the Treasury $235,000,000.

The proposal to raise the exemption is part of a five-point tax revision program designed to improve the cash position of business and industry by $5,000,000,000 during the reconversion period.

C.A.B. Issues New Rules For Air Trips Overseas

Code Aims to Promote 'Safe and Orderly Operation'

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—A new set of regulations, designed to promote "safe and orderly operation" of scheduled airplane flights outside the continent, was issued today by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The new rules, which become effective Aug. 1, were announced by the C. A. B. after more than a year's discussion among representatives of the aviation industry, the C. A. B. and the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

The lengthy list of rules sets requirements for maintenance of aircraft, licensing, qualifications for pilots and crews, landing and take-off regulations, flight and dispatching rules and weather-report specifications.

The C. A. B. divided the scheduled operations into two classes—"short distance" and "long distance" operations.

Short-distance operations were defined as those involving intermediate stops of sufficient frequency to permit dispatch of flights from each airport to be based on spot weather reports and forecasts.

Long-distance operations are those in which the time interval between stops is so great as to require that the dispatching of flights be based entirely on forecasts of weather expected at destinations.

In long-distance operations the C. A. B. made distinctions in its regulations between day, night and instrument flights.

House Group Backs Bill On Indian Immigration

Act Also Makes Eastern Race Eligible for Citizenship

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—A bill permitting immigration of Eastern Hemisphere Indians was sent to the House by committee today with the plea that its enactment would eliminate "present resentment against what amounts to a racial barrier."

Representative Noah M. Mason, Republican, of Illinois, acting as spokesman of the House Immigration Committee, officially informed the rest of his colleagues of committee approval of the measure and urged speedy action.

A few hours earlier the committee had reaffirmed its aproval of the bill, sponsored by Representative Emanuel Celler, Democrat, of New York, which in addition would make Indians racially eligible for citizenship.

"It has been a source of annoyance to the United States, because they feel the real cause of exclusion is based on a question of race," the committee's report said.

The report stressed that William Philipps, former American special representative to India, and Representative Clare Booth Luce, Republican, of Connecticut, had "each submitted convincing reasons why the Congress should give favorable consideration to the measure."

Dr. Wright Says at FTC Inquiry Nicotine Difference Is Slight

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—Dr. C. D. Wright, an Agricultural Department expert, testified at a hearing yesterday before the Federal Trade Commission that there was little difference in the effects on smokers produced by various popular brands of cigarettes.

Dr. Wright testified for the Commission in a continuation of hearings started recently in New York and New Jersey on Commission complaints that P. Lorillard & Co. of Jersey City, N. J., misrepresented facts in advertising Old Gold cigarettes. The difference in nicotine content among the popular brands was so slight as to be insignificant, Dr. Wright testified.

House Wastes No Time In Drawing Expense Fund

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—Kenneth Romney, House paymaster, disclosed today that "upwards of 85 per cent" of the members have drawn the $1,250 expense allowance they recently voted themselves.

The allowance is $2,500 per year, but was made retroactive to last Jan. 1. Half of it was payable yesterday.

Mr. Romney declined to divulge the names of the members who already have drawn. The total number, however, was expected to increase as soon as members who were absent yesterday return to the capital. They have until the end of the year to draw the expense allowance for the entire year.

JUL 4 1945

Gates Now Navy's Under-Secretary

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—Artemus L. Gates took the oath of office as Under-Secretary of the Navy at ceremonies today in the office of Secretary Forrestal. He was sworn in at noon by Rear Admiral Thomas L. Gatch, Judge Advocate General of the Navy. Gates has been Assistant Secretary for Air since September 5, 1941, and in that assignment had charge of building up the Navy's air force to its present striking power.

He was succeeded as Assistant Secretary for Air by John L. Sullivan, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Gates succeeds Ralph A. Bard, resigned.

Coffee Reassured on Russia

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—Representative John M. Coffee, Democrat, of Washington, said today a State Department declaration of unaltered friendship for the Soviet Union "allays the concern many of us felt over our relations with Russia." Representative Coffee told a reporter he also was gratified at the Department's statement yesterday that America's policy toward Polish and general eastern European questions "continues to be as it was under President Roosevelt, based on the decisions of the Crimea conference, as well as on his program for the attainment by all people of the four freedoms." Joseph C. Grew, Acting State Secretary, sent Representative Coffee a letter replying to specific foreign policy questions put by an unofficial committee of House members led by the Washingtonian.

Federal Judge Johnson Quits Bench at Scranton

Conduct Under Investigation; Son Under Indictment

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—Attorney General Tom Clark said today Judge Albert W. Johnson of the Middle District Federal Court in Pennsylvania has resigned.

The Attorney General told reporters of the resignation as he left the White House after a conference with President Truman.

"Judge Johnson has tendered his resignation to the President, and the President has accepted it," Mr. Clark said. He said the judge gave his age as the reason for retiring from the bench. Judge Johnson is seventy-two.

The "official conduct" of Judge Johnson and of another judge in the same court, Albert L. Watson, has been under investigation since 1944 by a House judiciary subcommittee headed by Representative Estes Kefauver, Democrat, of Tennessee.

The inquiry was authorized by the House on motion of the Judiciary Committee to determine if either judge had been "guilty of any high crime or misdemeanor" which would "require" impeachment proceedings.

A Federal grand jury in Scranton, Pa., assigned to investigate "certain matters" in that court, also has spent more than a year in conducting an inquiry. It recently indicted Judge Johnson's son, Donald M. Johnson, Snyder County District Attorney, on conspiracy charges in a receivership suit before his father's court.

The son has since pleaded no guilty. The indictment charges he received "approximately $2,500" in an "off-the-record" fee split although not participating as a lawyer in the suit.

Newsprint Inquiry Voted by House

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—The Senate Agriculture Committee today approved a resolution appropriating $5,000 for an investigation of the newsprint shortage. Senator Willis (R.-Ind.), who introduced the measure was named chairman of an inquiry sub-committee. Appointed to serve with him were Senators Butler (R.-Neb.), Thomas (D.-Okla.), Wheeler (D.-Mont.) and Ilbo (D.-Miss.), The resolution went to the Senate.

SEEK TO INCREASE SOFT COAL OUTPUT

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—Officials of half a dozen Government agencies conferred with soft coal producers today to attempt to reach agreement on how to step up production.

William H. Davis, Director of Economic Stablization, met with officials of the War Manpower Commission, the OPA, the War Production Board, the Army and the Foreign Economic Administration to discuss a threatened 1945 coal shortage of between 25,000,000 and 35,000,000 tons.

Later the same group met with representatives of miners and operators from Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee. Both sessions were closed. One of Davis's aids said it was improbable that any immediate announcement would be made of a course of action.

Davis will report on results of the talks to Representative Flannagan (D.-Va.), chairman of an informal congressional committee from the four States. The committee met with the Government and industry groups yesterday.

Spokesmen for the operators claim that unless prompt Government action is taken to solve production problems, there will be a 5,000,000-ton deficit this year in the four States, which mine one-fifth of the nation's coal. They placed 1945 production at 117,000,000 tons, as against a demand of 122,000,000 tons.

FOUR PROMOTED IN NAVY

Truman Names Two in Marine Corps to Be Major Generals

WASHINGTON, July 3—(AP)—President Truman sent to the Senate today these nominations for promotions:

Brigadier generals to be major generals in the Marine Corps, Harry R. Pickett, now stationed at Camp San Louis Obispo, Calif., and Raymond R. Wright, paymaster of the Marine Corps.

Colonel to brigadier general, in the Marine Corps, Robert H. Pepper, stationed with Fleet Marine Force in Pacific.

To Commodore, Charles T. Dickeman, of New York, now director of Advance Base Department, Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks, Washington.

House Investigator Ousted

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—The House Civil Service Investigating Committee voted today to discharge its staff director, E. J. McCormack, effective July 31. The decision upheld temporary action taken earlier by the committee chairman, Representative Robert Ramspeck, Democrat, of Georgia, who said Mr. McCormack had circulated a letter which reflected on him.

Quick on the Draw

More Than 85% of Home Members Collect New Expense Allowance

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—Kenneth Romney, House paymaster, disclosed today that "upward of 85 per cent" of members of the House have drawn the $1,250 expense allowance they recently voted themselves. The allowance is $2,500 a year, but was made retroactive to Jan. 1. Half of it was payable yesterday.

Mr. Romney declined to divulge the names of the members who had already drawn. The number is expected to increase as soon as members who were absent yesterday return to the capital. They have until the end of the year to draw the allowance for the entire year.

Flying General Promoted

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—Lieutenant General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, former commander of the 9th Air Force, was appointed today assistant chief of air staff in the Army Air Forces. General Vandenberg, forty-six, a native of Milwaukee, Wis., and holder of numerous decorations as a flying general in North African, Sicilian and Italian campaigns, succeeds Major General Donald Wilson. The latter has received a new, undisclosed assignment.

SAYS AGENCY'S FOOD ROTS

Senator Wherry Cites Sale of 'Off-Condition' Pack of 1942

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—Senator Wherry of Nebraska asserted in a Senate speech today that Government agencies were permitting food to spoil in dead storage. He introduced into the Congressional Record an advertisement for a sale by the Commodity Credit Corporation of a batch of "off-condition evaporated milk" of the pack of 1942.

"What about the packs of 1943 and 1944?" the Senator asked. "The food counters are empty. You go into eating places and there's no butter, but here is milk that has been allowed to spoil.

"I call it maladministration."

Veterans Can Get Tires to Sell

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—OPA today authorized veterans opening small businesses to obtain limited stocks of new tires.

Effective Friday, veterans will be able to stock ten passenger tires, four small and two large truck tires, and six tractor tires. This is the first time in the last year that OPA has permitted any one not already in the business to obtain new tires.

C. H. Powel Gets Post in Germany

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—The War Department announced today the selection of Charles H. Powel of Pittsburgh as chief of the electrical and radio branch in the United States Group Control Council for Germany. Powel is president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and is an official of Westinghouse.

The Army said his immediate task will be to survey facilities in the American zone of occupation, establish controls under which German industries will be permitted to revive, and to see that they are so organized that they cannot become potential producers of war material. Powel will join the staff of Lieut.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy United States military governor of Germany, about mid-July.

Montgomery Ward Gets Back a Plant

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—The Army has relinquished control of the ummer Manufacturing Division of Montgomery Ward & Co. at Springfield, Ill., Secretary Stimson announced today. The War Department took over the plant last year during a labor dispute which held up the output of strategic war material.

A departmental statement said that the property was restored to Montgomery Ward yesterday. The action was taken, the statement added, after Col. Nelson S. Talbott had informed his superiors that recent developments in the labor situation at the Hummer plant had provided assurance that productive efficiency would be maintained if the War Department withdrew.

Foley Nominated For Housing Post

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—President Truman today nominated Raymond Michael Foley of Michigan to be Federal Housing Commissioner in the National Housing Agency, succeeding Abner H. Ferguson, resigned. Foley's term will expire June 30, 1946.

General Vandenberg Gets Air Staff Post

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, former commander of the Ninth Air Force, was appointed today Assistant Chief of Air Staff in the Army Air Forces.

Vandenberg, 46, a native of Milwaukee, Wis., and holder of numerous decorations as a flying general in the North African, Sicilian and Italian campaigns, succeeds Major-Gen. Donald Wilson. The latter has been given a new, undisclosed assignment.

Passenger Liner Sailing for France

Boston, July 3 (A. P.).—The liner Mariposa, recently used as a troop transport, sails this evening for France with approximately 377 passengers, including a number of women aboard in the first big civilian exodus from Boston since the war began.

The women were described by shipping officials as the wives of foreign diplomats, civilians abroad or American business men en route to Europe. Contrary to rumor, shipping agents said that there were no wives of overseas service men listed to sail.

Included among those sailing were delegates returning from the San Francisco Peace Conference and experts on special missions.

Nine American nuns from Marycliff Academy in Arlington, Mass., and Joan d'Arc Academy in Milton, Mass., were headed for the mother house of their order in Argentan, Normandy, to participate in the election of a new superior for their order.

Court-martial Frees 2 Negro Officers

Fort Knox, Ky., July 3 (A. P.).—Col. B. O. Davis, commanding officer at Godman Field here, said today that two Negro air force officers had been acquitted of charges of "disobedience of a direct order." He said an all-Negro court-martial freed the young officers last night. The officers were listed as Second Lieuts. Marsden Thompson and Roger Terry, both from Los Angeles.

Col. Davis said Second Lieut. Shirley Clinton of Camden, N. J., another flyer attached to the all-Negro unit here, would be tried on a similar charge today.

The public relations office at the field said the charges grew out of "an incident" at Freeman Field, Ind., last spring when a group of young Negro flyers, then students, tried to enter a club set aside for officer-instructors. The young Negroes said they were barred from the club because of a race segregation regulation, but Freeman Field authorities said it was a case of separating students and instructors during off-duty hours.

Greek Officials to See Truman

CHICAGO, July 3 (AP).—Cimon Diamantopoulos, Greek Ambassador to the United States, and John Sofianopoulos, Greek Minister of Foreign Affairs, departed today for Washington, where they will confer with President Truman and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes. Van A. Nomikos, regional director of Greek War Relief, said Mr. Diamantopoulos and Mr. Sofianopoulos, who attended the San Francisco Conference, also would confer with government officials "on the Greek-Japanese situation."

Patrol Fleet Is Sent to Pacific

PHILADELPHIA, July 3 (AP).—Submarine busters that patrolled the Atlantic City and Cape May shore line and later the English coast in the Normandy invasion are among the fleet of Coast Guard eighty-three-footers in Philippine waters, the Coast Guard revealed today. Lieutenant Commander Ernest A. Simpson, commander of the flotilla in the Pacific, says, "so far, the Japs haven't thrown anything at us that we can't throw right back." These submarine chasers, the Coast Guard said, are the first Coast Guard-owned vessels to be transferred from Atlantic to Pacific duty.

Navy Plane Cutback Causes July Layoff

Philadelphia, July 3 (A. P.).—Curtailment of the output of TBY-2 (Sea Wolf) airplanes, affecting the production program of the Consolidated-Vultee Aircraft Corporation in Allentown, was announced today by the Navy Department.

Naval spokesmen pointed to the reduction in total requirements for torpedo bombers as the reason for the cutback in production of the TBY'2's. A gradual release of workers was expected with approximately 20 per cent of the 4,800 employed in the Allentown division to be released during July, the Navy said.

Canadians Can Bring Own Meat

BUFFALO, July 3 (AP).—Canadians visiting the United States are permitted to bring a "reasonable supply" of meat with them, The Buffalo Courier-Express reported today in a story quoting a Canadian customs official. However, Jack Wiggins, inspector in charge of United States customs at Peace Bridge, said they had to submit "the necessary red points within twenty days after entrance." The Buffalo office of the OPA said that they allotted about one and one-half red points per day.

Communities Urged to Give Aid to Veterans

Institute Speaker Says Men Will Go Where Business Opportunities Are Best

SYRACUSE, July 5 (AP).—Delegates at the New York State Institute of Community Service were told today that "It's time for us to stop having the government tell us what to do and for us to be ready to tell the government what to do."

Samuel H. Thompson, associate director of the National Planning Association, of Washington, also declared that "Freedom is not very meaningful unless it is exercised in the presence of opportunity."

D. H. Davenport, deputy commissioner of the State Department of Commerce, said that "numbers of soldiers write to us that they want to start business in a small way," adding: "They are the finest kind of community material. If we don't make opportunity for them, they will go elsewhere."

Mr. Davenport said that because a large number of New York's factories have continued normal operation during the war, "turning out clothing, shoes and food for civilian or government needs," the state's problems of reconversion to peace-time production were somewhat simpler than those confronting the nation as a whole.

He warned against expecting too much from private enterprise, asserting that "each project has to meet expenses and pay profits, or it goes out."

"Tremendous lags" exist in the production of housing, roads, schools, automobiles, refrigerators, radios and other such goods, Louis Hollander, of New York City, president of the New York State Industrial Union Council, Congress of Industrial Organizations affiliate, pointed out.

He said that "the needs of our people and of the peoples of the world provide us with a new economic frontier as challenging as the geographic frontier which confronted the American pioneers."

BY DONALD DOANE

LONDON, JULY 3-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND FORMER DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER CLEMENT ATTLEE--LEADERS OF BRITAIN'S STRONGEST POLITICAL PARTIES--MARSHALLED THEIR FOLLOWERS TODAY FOR A LAST-MINUTE DRIVE FOR THE VOTES THAT WILL DECIDE THURSDAY'S NATIONAL ELECTION.

AFTER CROSSING SWORDS IN A SHARP EXCHANGE OF LETTERS, CHURCHILL, WHO HEADS THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY, AND ATTLEE, WHO LEADS THE LABORITES PLANNED TO MOUNT SPEAKING ROSTRUMS TO KEYNOTE THEIR PARTIES' SEMI-FINAL ROUND OF ORATORY.

BOTH PARTIES CONCENTRATED THEIR CLOSING FIRE ON LONDON, WHERE A FIFTH OF BRITAIN'S ESTIMATED 25,000,000 VOTES ARE BUNCHED, WITH CHURCHILL SPEAKING IN MASSIVE WALTHAMSTOW STADIUM AND ATTLEE AND OTHER LABOR PARTY LEADERS SCHEDULING A SERIES OF SPEECHES ELSEWHERE IN THE CITY.

CHURCHILL BROUGHT ONE CAMPAIGN ISSUE TO AN EXPLOSIVE HEAD LAST NIGHT WITH A LETTER DEMANDING THAT ATTLEE EXPLAIN TO THE NATION JUST WHAT CONTROLS THE LABOR PARTY'S EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MIGHT EXERCISE OVER THE GOVERNMENT IF THE LABORITES WON. CHURCHILL POINTED OUT THAT THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE WAS NOT ELECTED BY THE VOTERS.

ATTLEE REPLIED THAT THE EXECUTIVE COMMITEE HAD NO CONTROL OVER LABOR MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT AND ADDED: "I AM SORRY YOU ARE SO DISTRESSED, OWING TO YOUR LACK OF ACQUAINTANCE WITH THE ORDINARY PROCEDURE OF DEMOCRATIC PARTIES IN GENERAL AND THE LABOR PARTY IN PARTICULAR."

THE CONSERVATIVE DAILY MAIL PROMPTLY CALLED ATTLEE'S REPLY "DISOWNING" OF PROF. HAROLD LASKI, CHAIRMAN OF THE LABOR PARTY'S EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, WHO HAS BEEN A POPULAR CAMPAIGN TARGET.

LABORITE ARTHUR GREENWOOD CALLED CHURCHILL'S CAMPAIGN METHODS "THOSE OF A DICTATOR" AND DECLARED: "THE MOST DISTURBING FEATURE OF THIS ELECTION IS THE EMERGENCE OF THE FUEHRER PRIN CIPLE WHICH IS FOREIGN AND ABHORRENT TO THE BRITISH PEOPLE."

WHILE CHURCHILL AND ATTLEE HELD THE CAMPAIGN SPOTLIGHT, PARTY LIEUTENANTS AND PRESS EDITORIALS KEPT HAMMERING AT THE BASIC ISSUE OF THE CAMPAIGN--THE FREE ENTERPRISE SLOGAN OF THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY AND LABOR'S PROGRAM FOR NATIONALIZATION OF BASIC INDUSTRIES.

OLIVER LYTTELTON, CONSERVATIVE MINISTER OF PRODUCTION AND PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRADE, PAINTED A PICTURE OF THE BRITISH PEOPLE UNDER SOCIALISM AS PUPPETS PERFORMING BY GOVERNMENT DIRECTIVES

HERBERT MORRISON, FORMER HOME SECRETARY IN THE WARTIME COALITION GOVERNMENT, DECLARED THAT THE CONSERVATIVES FAILED TO ANSWER THE "REAL QUESTIONS" OF THE CAMPAIGN--"HOW BEST T GIVE THE PEOPLE A GOOD AND LASTING LIVING AFTER THE WAR." HE SCOFFED AT RECENT VICTORY CLAIMS BY CONSERVATIVE NEWSPAPERS AND PARTY LEADERS.

A10

"LABOR HAS VICTORY WITHIN ITS GRASP," HE SAID, "IF BETWEEM NOW AND THURSDAY A LAST BIG EFFORT IS MADE."

THE EVENING STANDARD OF LORD BEAVERBROOK--HE IS A CONSERVATIVE AND LORD PRIVY SEAL--PREDICTED A CONSERVATIVE MAJORITY OF AS HIGH AS 100 IN COMMONS' 640 SEATS. THE PARTY HAD A MAJORITY OF ONLY 52 IN THE HOUSE WHICH WAS ELECTED IN 1935 AND STAYED IN OFFICE A RECORD 10 YEARS THROUGH A WARTIME POLITICAL TRUCE WHEN ALL PARTIES JOINED IN A COALITION GOVERNMENT UNDER CHURCHILL.

ATTLEE EXPRESSED THE LABOR PARTY'S SENTIMENT WHEN HE SAID IN A SPEECH: "GIVE US THE CHANCE TO GOVERN--WE'VE NEVER HAD IT."

LONDON, JULY 3-(AP)-TWO TERRITORIAL QUESTIONS HELD THE ATTENTION OF CZECHOSLOVAK CITIZENS TODAY.

PRIME MINISTER ZDENEU FIERLINGER SAID LAST NIGHT IN A PRAGUE BROADCAST THAT RUSSIA HAD ASSURED CZECHOSLOVAKIA THAT SHE HAD A FULL RIGHT TO HER PRE-MUNICH FRONTIERS BUT INSISTED THAT THE CZECH DISPUTE WITH POLAND OVER THE TESCHEN DISTRICT MUST BE SETTLED BY MUTUAL AGREEMENT. THE BROADCAST WAS REPORTED BY THE CZECHOSLOVAK NEWS SERVICE.

TESCHEN, DISPUTED FOR GENERATIONS, WAS TAKEN OVER BY POLAND FROM CZECHOSLOVAKIA IN 1938 SHORTLY AFTER MUNICH.

A PRAGUE DISPATCH SAID THAT EARLY CZECH RATIFICATION WAS EXPECTED OF THE CZECH-RUSSIAN AGREEMENT CEDING THE CARPATHO-UKRAINE (RUTHENIA) TO THE SOVIET UKRAINE.

BERLIN, JULY 3-(AP)-ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS FROM MANY NATIONS, MANY OF WHOM HAD BEEN ALERTED SINCE MID-MAY TO BE READY AT ANY MOMENT TO GO TO THE GERMAN CAPITAL, ARRIVED SHORTLY AFTER NOON TODAY IN THE BOROUGH OF ZEHLENDORF.

THE LARGE PRESS PARTY TRAVELLED IN 70 JEEPS WITH TRAILERS AHEAD OF THE U.S.SECOND ARMORED DIVISION.

(EDS: THE FOLLOWING BRACKETED MATTER MAY BE USED AS A PRECEDE TO LOCHNER'S STORY)

(LOUIS P.LOCHNER WAS CHIEF OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS BUREAU IN BERLIN FOR 14 YEARS--1928 TO DECEMBER, 1941 WHEN GERMANY DECLARED WAR ON THE UNITED STATES. HE WAS INTERNED WITH OTHER AMERICWN CORRESPONDENTS AT BAD NAUHEIM AND FINALLY REPATRIATED TO THE UNITED STATES. HE HAS NOW RETURNED TO BERLIN WITH THE U.S. ARMY AND THE AMERICAN DELEGATION TO

THE ALLIED CONTROL COMMISSION. LOCHNER HAS SPENT THE PAST SEVERAL MONTHS IN THE SHAEF OCCUPATION ZONE OF GERMANY.)
--DASH--
THEY HAD SPENT THE NIGHT AT HALLE. STARTING FOR BERLIN AT 4 A.M., THE CORRESPONDENTS WERE CHECKED IN BY THE RUSSIANS AT THE BRIDGE ACROSS THE ELBE RIVER NEAR DESSAU.
THIS ELBE BRIDGE AS OF TONIGHT CEASES TO BE THE DEMARCATION LINE SINCE THE RUSSIANS NOW ARE SPREADING OVER SECTIONS OF THURINGIA PROVINCE, SAXONY AND PORTIONS OF HARZ, A CORNER OF THE FORMER SAXONY KINGDOM.
AS THE CORRESPONDENTS DROVE ALONG THEY ENCOUNTERED NUMEROUS RUSSIAN DETACHMENTS GOING IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION WITH HORSE DRAWN VEHICLES ON THE SUPERHIGHWAYS ORIGINALLY BUILT FOR FAST AUTOMOTIVE TRAFFIC.
IF IT BE TRUE THAT AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS CHIEFLY HUNT CAMERAS AS SOUVENIRS, IT IS EQUALLY TRUE THE CUSSIANS SEEM TO GO IN FOR COWS AND HORSES.
AT NUMEROUS POINTS ALONG THE ROUTE WE SAW CORRALS OF HORSES AND CATTLE GUARDED BY IVAN GI'S.
THE FIRST FLEETING IMPRESSION IS THAT THE RUSSIANS ARE DETERMINED TO RUSSIANIZE THE SECTIONS WHEREIN THEY RULE FOR THE GERMAN ROAD SIGNS IN MOST CASES HAVE BEEN REMOVED AND SIGNS IN RUSSIAN PUT IN THEIR PLACE.
AS WE REACHED THE SO-CALLED BERLINER RING--MEANING THE SUPERHIGHWAYS ENCIRCLING THE CAPITAL--QUOTATIONS FROM STALIN AND OTHER COMMUNIST PROPAGANDA EVERYWHERE WERE PRESENT.
ENTERING WITTENBERG EN ROUTE WE SAW A SIGN IN GERMAN "LUTHER, CITY OF WITTENBERG," HAD BEEN TORN DOWN AND IN ITS STEAD A RUSSIAN SIGN POSTED.
WITTENBERG CLAIMED THE NAME BECAUSE LUTHER THERE IN 1517 NAILED HIS FAMED 95 THESES TO THE DOORS OF THE SCHLOSSKIRCHE OR CASTLE CHURCH.

A185
NOBODY IN THE GREAT CONVOY COULD LOITER ENROUTE OR DEVIATE FROM THE ROUTE.
THE AUTOBAHN FROM HALLE TO THE BELINER RING WAS CROWDED IN SPOTS WITH RUSSIAN DISPLACED PERSONS WHOM THE AMERICAN ARMIES HAD BROUGHT IN MOTOR TRUCKS TO THE DEMARCATION LINE.
FROM THERE ON ITS WAS GOING ON FOOT FOR THEM. THEY TRUDGED ALONG WEARILY IN ONE OF THE WORST DAYS OF SOGGING RAIN EVEN THE MOST BATTLE-SCARRED CORRESPONDENTS HAD ENCOUNTERED.
IN VARIOUS VILLAGES THROUGH WHICH THE CONVOY MOVED, GERMANS CHEERED WITH HANDS RAISED IN GREETING. AT ZEHLENDORF CURIOUS CROWDS STOOD AROUND WATCHING WHILE WE WERE BILLETED IN THE HOUSES.
THE RUSSIAN OCCUPATION IS MUCH MORE EVIDENT THAN THE AMERICAN OR BRITISH. THE RUSSIANS SEEM TO DELIGHT IN BEING SEEN ON THE STREETS.
DURING THE ENTIRE FOUR HOUR TRIP I SAW ONLY ONE CIVILIAN MOTOR-PROPELLED VEHICLE. SUCH CARS, TRUCKS AND MOTORCYCLES AS WE SAW WERE EITHER RUSSIAN OR GERMAN-MADE BUT ALL HAD RUSSIAN DRIVERS.
THERE APPARENTLY WAS NOTHING LIKE THE SO-CALLED CIVILIAN MOTOR POOLS WE SEE THROUGHOUT THE VCCUPIED WESTERN AND SOUTHERN GERMANY WHERE CARS ARE ALLOTED TO THOSE NEEDING THEM.
ANOTHER DEFINITE IMPRESSION IS THAT THE RUSSIANS ARE MOVING AN UNUSUALLY AMOUNT OF HEAVY ARTILLERY INTO SECTIONS FORMERLY IN WESTERN ALLIED HANDS NOW BEING TAKEN OVER BY THE SOVIETS.
FINALLY WHAT IMPRESSES THE VISITORS COMING INTO THE RUSSIAN OCCUPIED TERRITORY FOR THE FIRST TIME FOR A LONGER VISIT IS THE GREAT NUMBER OF WOMAN CAMP FOLLOWERS WHO MOVE ABOUT ON HORSEDRAWN VEHICLES OR ARE SITTING BEHIND MEN ON THE MOTORCYCLES.
THEY SEEM TO DO ALL SORTS OF HOUSEWIFELY CHORES AND SEEM TO BE HAVING A GOOD TIME.
AS WE SAW PRACTICALLY NO WOMEN AMONG THE MARCHING DISPLACED PERSONS THE CONJECTURE SEEMS TO BE WARRANTED THAT MANY WOMEN WHO HITHERTO WORKED IN NAZI FACTORIES NOW ARE CAMP FOLLOWERS.

BY LOUIS P.LOCHNER
BERLIN, JULY 3-(AP)-AT LEAST OUTWARDLY, BERLIN SEEMS TO HAVE CHANGED FROM COMPLETELY NAZI TO COMPLETELY COMMUNIST.
RETURNING AFTER AN ABSENCE OF THREE AND A HALF YEARS TO THE SCENE OF 21 YEARS OVERSEAS NEWS DUTY, I FEEL SOMEWHAT LIKE RIP VAN WINKLE--EVERYTHING SEEMS TO HAVE CHANGED.
JUST AS THE NAZI PARTY WAS THE ONLY POLITICAL PARTY PERMITTED BY THE REGIME OF ADOLF HITLER, SO BERLIN UNDER RUSSIAN OCCUPATION SEEMS TO HAVE ONLY THE COMMUNIST PARTY FUNCTIONING. COMMUNIST SLOGANS CRY AT YOU FROM BIG POSTERS.
I MAY OR MAY NOT DISCOVER OTHER POLITICAL PARTIES AFTER A FURTHER INVESTIGATION. I HAD NO DIFFICULTY IN DISCOVERING COMMUNIST PARTY HEADQUARTERS IN THREE BOROUGHS DURING A TOUR IN THE MIDST OF A CLOUDBURST. ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT DANIEL DE LUCE DISCOVERED A FOURTH HEADQUARTERS.
THE CITY ALSO HAS CHANGED FROM ONE IN WHICH, AT THE TIME OF MY DEPARTURE, THERE HAD BEEN ONLY MINOR DAMAGE TO ONE OF THE WORST BOMBED PLACES I HAVE SEEN. YET ON THE OTHER HAND, I HAVE BEEN SURPRISED HOW MUCH OF THE OUTLYING RESIDENTIAL DISTRICTS STILL IS HABITABLE.
DOWNTOWN BERLIN IS A WRECK. LANDMARKS SO FAMILIAR TO TOURISTS, LIKE THE REICHSCHANCELLERY, THE REICHSTAG, THE FOREIGN MINISTRY, WERTHEIM'S DEPARTMENT STORE, THE AMERICAN, BRITISH AND FRENCH EMBASSIES, THE HOTEL KAISERHOF, THE KROLL OPERA HOUSE, AND THE PROPAGANDA MINISTRY ARE MERE SHELLS WITH EVERYTHING INSIDE DESTROYED.
AROUND THE KAISER WILHELM MEMORIAL CHURCH, WHICH ITSELF IS A SAD RELIC OF JUMBLED STONES, ALL BUT A FEW AMUSEMENT PLACES--MOVIE HOUSES, NIGHT CLUBS AND SO ON--HAVE DISAPPEARED.
YET IN THE WEST END WHERE CORRESPONDENTS USED TO LIVE, ESPECIALL IN CHARLOTTENBURG, ONE FINDS GREAT SURPRISES OF UNEXPECTED SURVIVALS.

A53
FOR INSTANCE, I HAD WRITTEN MY BERLIN APARTMENT OFF AS A COMPLETE LOSS BECAUSE I'D BEEN TOLD IT HAD BEEN HIT BY A BLOCK-BUSTER. I FOUND EVERY ROOM EXCEPT THE DINING ROOM INTACT, TO MY AMAZEMENT. THE WINDOWS, HOWEVER, WERE MOSTLY BOARDS. I FOUND AN OCTOGENARIAN COUPLE, WITH WHOM I HAD LIVED, ALIVE AND AS HEALTHY AS COULD BE EXPECTED AT THEIR AGE.
THE EXPLANATION OF THE SURVIVAL OF THEIR BELONGINGS AND MINE WAS THAT THE BLOCKBUSTER HAD INDEED CRASHED THROUGH THE DINING ROOM, SMASHING CHINA, SILVERWARE AND ANTIQUE FURNITURE, BUT HAD FAILED TO EXPLODE.
ON THE OTHER HAND, THE HOUSE OPPOSITE WAS COMPLETELY WRECKED, TOGETHER WITH VARIOUS OTHERS IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD.
THE UNDERGROUND RAILWAY AND SOME BUS LINES ARE RUNNING IN BERLIN BUT TRANSPORTATION STILL IS A MAJOR PROBLEM WITH LONG QUEUES

JUL 4 1945

OF BERLINERS STANDING IN LINE FOR SUCH CARS AS COME.

THE RUSSIANS EVIDENTLY DID A GOOD JOB AND HAVE THE CITY WELL TIDIED UP, ALTHOUGH THERE STILL ARE MANY MOUNTAINS OF DEBRIS IN SOME STREETS.

IN THE ALEXANDERPLATZ AREA WHOLE STREETS HAVE BEEN SEALED OFF BECAUSE OF MANY DECAYING BODIES UNDER THE RUBBLE.

BEFORE HITLER'S PROUD CHANCELLERY, A HUGE PILE OF SAND AND STONE HAS BEEN LEFT, PROBABLY SOMEWHAT INTENTIONALLY TO SYMBOLIZE THE ABJECTNESS OF THE GERMAN FUEHRER'S FALL.

FOR A WHILE, I THOUGHT I WAS IN ANOTHER WORLD WHEN I SAW SNAPPILY-SALUTING SOVIET WOMEN POLICE DIRECTING TRAFFIC AT SUCH INTERSECTIONS AS UNTER DEN LINDEN AND WILHELMSTRASSE, REPLACING THE STERN NAZI POLICE I USED TO SEE.

AT SUCH MOVIE-HOUSES AS SEEMED RELATIVELY INTACT, THE TITLES WERE MAINLY OF SOVIET-SPONSORED FILMS BUT SOME PEOPLE TO WHOM I TALKED SAID SOME FILMS OF GERMAN MAKE WERE RUNNING AGAIN.

IT IS DIFFICULT TO ASSESS BOMB DAMAGE, FOR THE MANY TREES IN THE CITY HIDE THE DESTRUCTION. TIME AND AGAIN I WAS FOOLED BY THE OUTWARD APPEARANCE OF HOMES WITH VERDANT CREEPERS AND OTHER FOLIAGE WHICH ON CLOSER INVESTIGATION PROVED TO HIDE THE EMPTY SHELLS OF APARTMENT HOUSES.

BERLINERS REACTED WITH EXTREME CURIOSITY TO THE ARRIVAL OF AMERICAN TROOPS. EVERYWHERE PEOPLE STOOD GAPING AS CORRESPONDENTS TOURED THE CITY.

THE RUSSIANS RAISED NO OBJECTIONS WHATEVER TO OUR DRIVING INTO THEIR ZONE. GUARDS BEFORE OFF-LIMITS BUILDINGS READILY ALLOWED PHOTOGRAPHS TO BE TAKEN.

WIESBADEN, GERMANY, JULY 3-(AP)-OMAR NELSON BRADLEY, MISSOURI'S FOUR-STAR GENERAL APPOINTED BY PRESIDENT TRUMAN TO HEAD THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION, IS CONSIDERING THE FEASIBILITY OF DECENTRALIZING AND SIMPLIFYING THE ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE OF THAT ORGANIZATION WHICH MUST BE GEARED TO HANDLE THE NEEDS OF SOME 18,000,000 VETERANS BY THE TIME WORLD WAR II IS ENDED.

AT PRESENT, BRADLEY IS ACTING AS A STAND-IN FOR GEN. EISENHOWER, AND IS WINDING UP HIS AFFAIRS AS COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE 12TH ARMY GROUP. HE EXPECTS TO BE ABLE TO RETURN TO THE UNITED STATES IN ABOUT 30 DAYS TO ASSUME HIS NEW RESPONSIBILITIES.

THIS GRAVE, HOMESPUN DOUGHBOYS' SOLDIER--WHO WON THE NATION'S ACCLAIM BY HIS BRILLIANT GENERALSHIP IN THE AFRICAN, SICILIAN AND EUROPEAN CAMPAIGNS--IS VITALLY INTERESTED IN ORGANIZING THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION ON A BASIS WHICH WILL SERVE VETERANS WITH THE GREATEST POSSIBLE SPEED AND EFFICIENCY.

HE IS NOT CERTAIN THAT ANY GREAT DECENTRALIZATION CAN BE ACHIEVED UNTIL HE STUDIES THE SET-UP FURTHER, BUT HE IS INTERESTED IN THE POSSIBILITY OF PUTTING MORE EMPHASIS ON REGIONAL ADMINISTRATION TO BRING THE SERVICES CLOSER TO THE VETERANS.

BECAUSE OF THE AVAILABILITY OF WAR DEPARTMENT RECORDS ON VETERANS, THE MAIN OFFICE WILL BE IN WASHINGTON TO FACILITATE THE HANDLING OF THE MULTITUDE OF INDIVIDUAL CASES.

ONE OF BRADLEY'S MAIN CONCERNS WILL BE TO SEE THAT VETERANS WITH SERVICE-CONNECTED DISABILITY RECEIVE THE BEST POSSIBLE MEDICAL CARE WITH AS LITTLE RED TAPE AS POSSIBLE. ALL THE TREND OF BRADLEY'S ADMINISTRATION OF HIS NEW JOB WILL BE TO SIMPLIFY, CUT AWAY AS MUCH RED TAPE AS POSSIBLE, AND GIVE THE VETERANS THE BENEFITS TO WHICH THEY ARE ENTITLED.

MANILA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 4-(AP)-A FIELD DISPATCH TODAY DISCLOSED THAT AUSSIE INVADERS OF BALIKPAPAN, BOMB-WRECKED OIL CENTER ON EAST BORNEO, HAVE A BEACHHEAD SEVEN MILES LONG AND TWO MILES DEEP AND THE CAPTURED SEPINGGAN AIRFIELD ALREADY IS IN OPERATION.

REPORTING FROM BALIKPAPAN, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT RUSSELL BRINES SAID THE DIGGERS, WHO LANDED THERE SUNDAY ALREADY HAVE BURIED 500 JAPANESE. HE SAID THE AUSSIES, BY SECURING THE LAST RIDGE FACING THE TOWN VIRTUALLY HAVE SECURED ITS CENTRAL REFINERIES AND DOCKS, LONG SINCE RENDERED UNSERVICEABLE TO THE ENEMY BY BOMBING AND SHELLING.

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE TODAY CONFIRMED MELBOURNE RADIO REPORTS THAT SEPINGGAN AIRFIELD WAS CAPTURED AT NIGHTFALL MONDAY, PUTTING THE ALLIED AIR FORCE WITHIN FIGHTER PLANE RANGE OF JAVA, HEART OF THE DUTCH EAST INDIES, FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MORE THAN THREE YEARS.

BRINES SAID TROOPS ADVANCING ON THE RIGHT FLANK WON THE AIRFIELD AGAINST LIGHT OPPOSITION AND ALSO TOOK THE NEAREY VILLAGE OF SEPINGGAN.

ALTHOUGH THE AIRFIELD RUNWAY WAS CRATERED, ONE 600 YARD STRETCH WAS QUICKLY MADE SERVICEABLE FOR USE BY AUSSIE SCOUT PLANES.

MANILA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 4-(AP)-THE PACIFIC TYPHOON SEASON, WITH ITS SWIRLING WINDS AND DRIVING RAIN, HAS INTERVENED TO IMPEDE THE AMERICAN MOPUP CAMPAIGN ON LUZON ISLAND.

IN THE SOUTHEAST PHILIPPINES, HOWEVER, AMERICAN SOLDIERS OF THE DIXIE DIVISION AND FILIPINO GUERRILLAS CAPTURED THE MINDANAO ISLAND TOWN OF WALOE IN THE AGUSAN RIVER VALLEY.

TYPHOON RAINS CAUSED NUMEROUS LANDSLIDES IN THE NORTHERN MOUNTAIN AREAS OF LUZON WHERE THE YANKS ARE HUNTING DOWN REMNANTS OF THE DEFEATED JAPANESE FORCES. DESPITE THE BAD WEATHER THE AMERICANS WERE OUT ON EXTENSIVE PATROLS IN THE CAGAYAN VALLEY, THE RICH PRIZE THEY WON FROM THE JAPANESE JUST BEFORE THE TYPHOON SEASON STRUCK.

YANK FIGHTER BOMBERS AND LIGHT NAVAL UNITS SUPPORTED GROUND OPERATIONS IN THE PHILIPPINES.

MANILA, JULY 3-(AP)-ADM. THOMAS CASSIN KINKAID, COMMANDER OF THE UNITED STATES SEVENTH FLEET, TODAY EXPRESSED HIMSELF AS "NOT INTERESTED IN CHINA BASES UNLESS THEY ARE CLOSER TO JAPAN THAN BASES THE NAVY NOW POSSESSES."

THE VETERAN OF EVERY THEATER OF THE PACIFIC WAR, WHOSE FLEET SUPPORTED GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S DRIVE NORTH TO RECOVER THE PHILIPPINES AND NOW IS PARTICIPATING IN THE BORNEO INVASION, HAS JUST RETURNED FROM CONFERENCES WITH THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF AT WASHINGTON, D.C.

HE DECLARED IN AN INTERVIEW THAT THE "WHOLE EFFORT OF THE ARMY, NAVY AND AIR FORCES IS ON JAPAN. OUR EYES ARE ON TOKYO AND THERE IS NOTHING ELSE TO LOOK AT.

"WE'VE GOT THE PRESSURE ON NOW. WE MUST KEEP THE PRESSURE ON THEM (THE JAPANESE) UNTIL ONE DAY THEIR RESISTANCE WILL DISSOLVE."

HE ADDED: "JAPAN IS QUITE DEFINITELY DEFEATED NOW. IT'S JUST A QUESTION OF CLOSING IT OUT. BUT THAT MEANS WE WILL HAVE TO MEET THEM AT HOME. FIGHT THEM AND KILL THEM; AND THAT WILL MEAN AMERICAN CASUALTIES TOO."

THE FOUR-STAR ADMIRAL SAID HE WOULD CONTINUE IN COMMAND OF THE SEVENTH FLEET AND THAT IT WOULD COME UNDER THE OVERALL COMMAND OF FLEET ADM. CHESTER W. NIMITZ WHEN REORGANIZATION OF PACIFIC COMMANDS IS COMPLETED.

HE PREDICTED THAT CARRIER-BASED AIRCRAFT WOULD FIGURE PROMINENTLY IN THE FINAL ASSAULT ON NIPPON AND THAT NEW 45,000-TON CARRIERS OF THE FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT CLASS WOULD SEE ACTION.

WITH THE ALLIED FORCES NEAR BALIKPAPAN, WEDNESDAY, JULY 4-(AP)-AUSTRALIANS SWEPT OVER THE LAST RIDGE FACING BALIKPAPAN YESTERDAY, VIRTUALLY SECURING CONTROL OF ITS CENTRAL REFINERIES AND DOCKS AFTER OTHER COLUMNS CAPTURED SEPINGGANG (CORRECT) AIRFIELD AND SENT A SCOUT PLANE FORWARD FROM IT.

THE AUSSIES BURIED 500 JAPANESE DEAD IN THE FIRST TWO DAYS. THE BEACHHEAD IS AT LEAST TWO MILES INLAND AT THE POINT OF DEEPEST PENETRATION AND SEVEN MILES LONG.

ONLY SCATTERED JAPANESE RESISTANCE FACED THE AUSSIE LINE PLANTED ON STRATEGIC RIDGES STRETCHING INLAND FROM TOKONO HILL AT THE PENINSULA JUTTING INTO THE BAY ENTRANCE. AUSTRALIAN CONTROL OVER THE AREA BELOW WAS EMPHASIZED BY FAILURE OF THE JAPANESE TO OFFER ANY SUBSTANTIAL RETURN FIRE.

TROOPS ADVANCING FROM THE RIGHT FLANK ROLLED INTO SEPINGGANG AIRSTRIP AGAINST LIGHT OPPOSITION AND TOOK THE ADJACENT VILLAGE OF THE SAME NAME. THE AIRFIELD RUNWAY WAS CRATERED BUT FIELD OFFICERS REPORTED IT WAS NOT AS BADLY DAMAGED AS AT FIRST SUPPOSED.

ONE 600-YARD STRETCH OF HARD-SURFACED RUNWAY QUICKLY WAS MADE SERVICEABLE AND AN AUSTRALIAN SCOUT PLANE, WHICH IS THE AUSTRALIAN EQUIVALENT OF AN AMERICAN PIPER CUB, WAS SENT ALOFT AS AN ARTILLERY SPOTTER.

SEVERAL PLANES, UNLOADED FROM SHIPS, WERE SENT TO THE AIRSTRIP ALOARD DUCKS BECAUSE A BADLY CRATERED ROADWAY SLOWED VEHICULAR TRAFFIC.

OFFICERS ESTIMATED THAT SEPINGGANG WOULD BE ABLE TO HANDLE TRANSPORT PLANES SOON. AUSSIE ENGINEERS PREVIOUSLY BUILT ANOTHER STRIP ALONG THE COASTAL PLAIN BUT IT WAS ABANDONED WITHOUT BEING PUT INTO USE. TANK-LED COLUMNS CONTINUED ALONG THE COAST TOWARD THE MANGGAR AIRFIELD, MAJOR PRE-WAR 'DROME. (MELBOURNE RADIO HAD REPORTED THIS FIELD ALSO CAPTURED).

A161PX

INFANTRYMEN FIGHTING TOWARD SEPINGGANG TEMPORARILY WERE DELAYED AFTER CROSSING THE SEPINGGANG-KETJIL RIVER (SMALL SEPINGGANG) BY STRONG OPPOSITION. THE AUSSIES PAUSED WHILE A NIGHT NAVAL BARRAGE PENETRATED THE ENEMY POSITIONS. THE NEXT MORNING, PATROLS DISCOVERED THE JAPANESE HAD PULLED OUT.

THIS IS TYPICAL OF THE BRISK GUN-DUELLING CONTINUING TO HIGHLIGHT THIS BATTLE FOR POSITION. NAVAL BATTERIES, AIRCRAFT AND AUSTRALIAN ARTILLERY MAINTAIN A CONTINUOUS THUNDER AGAINST ENEMY POSITIONS WHICH REVEAL THEMSELVES THROUGH INTERMITTENT BARRAGES.

MANY ONE-TIME FORMIDABLE GUNS HAVE BEEN SILENCED. ONE SERIES OF JAPANESE SHELLS CLEARLY OUTLINED THE STATE OF MIND OF THE RELATIVELY FEW NATIVES LIBERATED. WHEN SHELLS FELL NEAR A REFUGEE COMPOUND, ALL NATIVES DESERTED TO THE BRUSH AND CRAWLED BACK WHEN THE FIRING CEASED.

JAPANESE SNIPERS WERE ACTIVE AROUND SUBURBAN KLANDASAN, JUST EAST OF BALIKPAPAN, WHERE THE AUSSIES NOW HAVE WON THE FORMER ADMINISTRATION CENTER AND CLUB ON THE BEACH BELOW TOKONG HILL.

THE ENEMY ALSO TOOK ADVANTAGE OF CAVES ON RIDGES, MAKING WILD CHARGES FROM THEM AT NIGHT, BUT THESE CAVES WERE BEING SEALED.

AUSSIE DEMOLITION SQUADS ARE UNCOVERING MANY MINES, INCLUDING 540-POUND SEA MINES, BURIED DEPTH CHARGES AND BOMBS, TO CONCEALED BOOBY TRAPS. THE JAPANESE AROUND BALIKPAPAN HAVE SHOWED CONSIDERABLE NGENUITY IN LAYING MINE FIELDS.

THE MINES ARE CONCENTRATED OFF THE MAIN ROAD, DESIGNED TO CATCH THE SOLDIERS APPROACHING FROM ANY DIRECTION. ALL RUINED HOUSES LINING THE ROAD WERE BOOBY-TRAPPED, SEVERAL AUSSIES WERE KILLED BY THEM. IN ONE CAVE, DEMOLITION SQUADS FOUND A COMPLETE PLANT FOR MANUFACTURING LAND MINES.

THE TERRIFIC JAM OF LANDING-DAY HAS BEEN EASED BY ENGINEERS OF BOTH NATIONALITIES. THE AMERICANS PUT IN PONTOON PIERS TO SPEED UNLOADING WHILE THE AUSTRALIANS LAID STEEL MATS ACROSS THE SAND FOR SEVERAL HUNDRED YARDS TO THE ROAD AND REPAIRED SEVERAL SMALL BRIDGES.

WITH AUSTRALIAN TROOPS NEAR BALIKPAPAN, BORNEO, JULY 3-(AP)-

THE SPRAWLING REFINERIES ALONG A MILE OF BALIKPAPAN'S WATERFRONT ARE A FIRE-SWEPT MASS OF CHARRED AND TWISTED STEEL.

FROM THE LAST RIDGE OVERLOOKING THE DUTCH BORNEO OIL CENTER--A RIDGE WHICH THE AUSSIES HAD COMPLETELY SECURED TODAY--THE TERRIFIC DAMAGE INFLICTED BY A MONTH'S BOMBINGS WAS CLEARLY VISIBLE.

THE MOST COMPLETE DESTRUCTION WAS APPARENT AT THE LUBRICATING OIL AND PARAFFIN REFINERY TOWARD THE NORTH END OF THE CITY. IT COVER AN AREA SHAPED LIKE A GIANT SHOE--2,000 FEET FROM HEEL TO TOE, 2,000 FEET FROM HEEL TO SHOE TOP.

IT APPEARS AS AN ENDLESS NETWORK OF BURNED TANKS AND PIPES, ALTHOUGH MANY BRICK AND CONCRETE WALLS STILL ARE STANDING.

SEVERAL BIG STORAGE TANKS IN THE AREA ARE SPEWING BLACK CLOUDS OF SMOKE. FLAMES ARE SPURTING FROM THE FEW PIPES LEFT RELATIVELY INTACT.

JUL 4 1945

MANY OF THE TANKS AND RETORTS ARE AT CRAZY ANGLES.

THE SCENE OF THE DESTRUCTION, BY COMPARISON, MAKES THE BURNED SKELETON OF THE LUTONG REFINERY, ON THE NORTHWEST COAST OF BRITISH BORNEO, SEEM A DEMOLISHED MINIATURE MODEL.

FROM APPEARANCES, THE JAPANESE COULDN'T HAVE OBTAINED A GALLON OF OIL THROUGH THE REFINING PROCESSES IN THE BALIKPAPAN PLANT. APPARENTLY IT HAD BEEN DESTROYED FOR SOME TIME.

JW947PCW

WITH AUSTRALIAN TROOPS NEAR BALIKPAPAN--FIRST ADD REFINERIES DESTROYED. BY HUTCHESON X X X FOR SOME TIME.

MOST TANKS AND RETORTS IN THE BIG PLANT REMAINED ERECT, BUT THE SCOURGE OF FIRE WAS EVIDENT EVERYWHERE.

THE NEWER PANDANSARI REFINERY--A MILE FARTHER NORTH ALONG BALIKPAPAN BAY--WAS NOT VISIBLE FROM THE HILL, BUT PILOTS REPORTED IT, TOO, WAS VIRTUALLY A COMPLETE WRECK.

WHAT IS KNOWN AS THE "OLD REFINERY," A HALF-MILE SOUTH OF THE LARGER LUBRICATING OIL PLANT, APPEARED TO HAVE SUFFERED LESS DAMAGE.

SOME WHOLE AREAS OF STORAGE TANKS HAVE BEEN ENTIRELY BURNED, WHILE OTHERS APPEAR ALMOST UNDAMAGED. IN WAREHOUSE AND WORKSHOP AREAS ABOUT HALF THE BUILDINGS STILL ARE STANDING WITH ROOFS INTACT.

MOST OF THE BALIKPAPAN PIERS HAVE BEEN DESTROYED.

THE STACK OF ONE SUNKEN SHIP PROTRUDES ABOVE THE WATER A STONE'S THROW OFFSHORE. THREE MIDGET LOCOMOTIVES, RUSTED AND CHARRED, STAND ON ONE BURNED PIER. NUMEROUS FLATCARS AND MOST OF THE NARROW GAUGE RAILWAY ITSELF APPEAR UNDAMAGED.

EXPERTNESS OF THE BOMBING WAS SHOWN BY THE VIRTUALLY UNDAMAGED PAVED STREETS, WHILE INSTALLATIONS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE MAIN WATERFRONT THOROUGHFARES HAD BEEN HIT. THE SEVENTH FLEET BOMBARDMENT ALSO HAD BEEN DIRECTED AGAINST THE CITY.

DAMAGE RUNS INTO MILLIONS OF DOLLARS. HOW SOON THE OIL CENTER CAN BE RESTORED TO PRODUCTION REMAINS PROBLEMATICAL. IT IS KNOWN, HOWEVER, THAT ENGINEERS ARE ALREADY TO BEGIN SWIFTLY AT LEAST A PARTIAL RESTORATION. MAIN SOURCES OF CRUDE OIL FOR THE REFINERIES ARE FIELDS 30 TO 70 MILES NORTH, STILL IN JAPANESE HANDS AND CERTAIN TO REMAIN SO FOR SOME TIME.

RESISTANCE AROUND BALIKPAPAN TOWN TODAY WAS MOSTLY SPORADIC FROM POCKETS. ONE PILLBOX PROVIDED A SPECTACULAR FLAMETHROWER SHTW AFTER AUSTRALIANS AND CORRESPONDENTS HAD BEEN WALKING PAST AND AROUND IT FOR MORE THAN AN HOUR.

SURPRISE RIFLE FIRE FROM A SLIT PINNED DOWN THE GROUP OF AUSSIES. WHEN THEY SPOTTED THE SOURCE--THE PILLBOX--RIFLEMEN MOVED IN WHILE A GRENADE WAS TOSSED DOWN THE VENT. SCREAMS WERE HEARD. THEN, AS A FLAMETHROWER WAS TURNED IN ONE END, JAPANESE STARTED TO DASH OUT THE OTHER--ONLY TO BE TURNED BACK BY AUSSIE GUNS.

FLAMES SPURTED INTO THE MAIN ENTRANCE, AND THE WHOLE OIL-SATURATED INTERIOR OF THE 25-FOOT SHELTER BURST INTO FLAMES, CREMATING ITS OCCUPANTS.

WHEN THE MALAYANS REALIZED THEY WERE AMONG FRIENDS, THEY JOYFULLY HUGGED THE AUSTRALIANS AND DANCED UP AND DOWN. THEY SAID THEY HAD ENTERED THE TUNNEL TO ESCAPE THE ALLIED BOMBARDMENT.

DURING LAST NIGHT, NUMEROUS JAPANESE INFILTRATED TO THE RIDGE. SEVERAL WERE KILLED BUT ONE WAS FOUND AT DAWN COWERING IN A SHELLHOLE ALONGSIDE AN AUSTRALIAN'S FOXHOLE. UNARMED AND TREMBLING WITH FEAR, HE SURRENDERED READILY.

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON, JULY 3-(AP)-A VERY LARGE TASK FORCE OF B29S SMASHED ANEW AT INDUSTRIAL TARGETS IN THE JAPANESE HOMELANDS IN NIGHT RAIDS, THE 20TH AIR FORCE ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE RAIDS TOOK PLACE JULY 3, U.S.TIME (JULY 4, JAPANESE TIME).

DETAILS OF THE RESULTS WERE HELD UP PENDING THE RETURN OF THE CREWS.

THE FORCE OF 500 OR MORE SUPERFORTRESSES BASED IN THE MARIANAS ATTACKED URBAN INDUSTRIES AT HIMEJI ON HONSHU ISLAND, TOKUSHIMA, TAKAMATSU AND KOCHI, ALL ON SHIKOKU ISLAND.

THE TARGET ON HONSHU, HIMEJI, IS A MAJOR RAILROAD TERMINAL WITH CONNECTIONS TO THE NORTH HONSHU COAST. THE CITY HAD A PREWAR POPULATION OF 104,000 AND WAS CONSIDERED AN IMPORTANT TEXTILE CENTER AS WELL AS A HEAVY PRODUCER OF ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT AND EXPLOSIVES. THE THREE AREAS ON SHIKOKU ARE SHIPPING POINTS AND PORTS WITH CONSIDERABLE STRATEGIC VALUE AS CLEARING CENTERS FOR RICH AGRICULTURAL VALLEYS.

A7WX

TOKUSHIMA WITH 119,581 PEOPLE IS ADJACENT TO THE NARUTO STRAIT ENTRANCE TO THE INLAND SEA AND ITS POSITION HAS MADE IT A TEXTILE AND LUMBER CENTER; TAKAMATSU IS THE PRINCIPAL PORT ON SHIKOKU ISLAND AND IS THE TERMINUS OF A RAILROAD FERRY SERVICE. KOCHI WITH 106,644 PEOPLE IS A SUBSTANTIAL MANUFACTURING CENTER. COMPLETION OFRAIL CONNECTIONS WITH THE NORTH HAS INCREASED INDUSTRIAL IMPORTANCE OF THIS PORT WHICH IS ALSO THE SITE OF PAPER, TEXTILE AND CHEMICAL FACTORIES.

TWENTY FIRST BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, GUAM, JULY 3-(AP)-MAJ.GEN.CURTIS E.LEMAY'S MARIANAS-BASED SUPERFORTRESSES HAVE BURNED OUT A TOTAL OF 117 SQUARE MILES OF JAPANESE URBAN INDUSTRIAL AREA, THE 21ST BOMBER COMMAND ANNOUNCED TODAY.

JUL 4 1945

LATEST RECONNAISSANCE PHOTOGRAPHS OF FIRE BOMB RAIDS SHOWED APPROXIMATELY TWO SQUARE MILES BURNED OUT IN THE TARGET CITIES OF MOJI, SASEBO, SHIMONOSEKI AND NOBEOKA.

SHIMONOSEKI AT THE NARROW WESTERN ENTRANCE TO THE INLAND SEA WAS HIT EARLY MONDAY MORNING IN THE RECORD 600-PLANE SUPERFORTRESS RAID WHICH SPILLED 4,000 TONS OF BOMBS ON FOUR TARGET CITIES.

THE NAVAL BASE CITY OF SASEBO, NOBEOKA AND MOJI, ALL ON KYUSHU ISLAND, WERE HIT LAST FRIDAY.

LEMAY REPORTED THE DAMAGE IN MOJI, WHICH IS ON THE MILE AND A HALF WIDE STRAIT OF SHIMONOSEKI, COVERS ABOUT 28 PER CENT OF THE CITY'S BUILT UP AREA.

THIRTY-SIX PER CENT OF SHIMONOSEKI'S BUILT UP AREA WAS BURNED OUT. SHIMONOSEKI AND MOJI CONSTITUTE A CRITICAL BOTTLENECK IN JAPAN'S RAIL TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM WITH THE THREE AND A HALF MILE KANMON TUNNEL LINKING THE TWO CITIES AND TWO HOME ISLANDS OF KYUSHU AND HONSHU. THROUGH THE BOTTLENECK MOVES MUCH OF THE COAL AND IRON FOR HONSHU'S STEEL INDUSTRY.

IN THE KYUSHU NAVAL BASE CITY OF SASEBO THE BURNED OUT AREA AMOUNTED TO 17.9 PER CENT OF THE CITY'S BUILT UP SECTION, AND 36 PER CENT OF THE BUILT UP AREA IN NOBEOKA ON EASTERN KYUSHU, AN IMPORTANT CHEMICAL AND MILITARY EXPLOSIVES PRODUCTION AREA, WAS BURNED OUT.

DAMAGE TO THE MOJI PORT TOTALS .32 SQUARE MILES IN PRELIMINARY ESTIMATES MADE FROM PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN WHILE SMOKE FROM THE FIRES STILL BURNING IN SHIMONOSEKI, ACROSS THE STRAIT, STILL OBSCURED THE PORT CITY. DAMAGE WAS PRINCIPALLY IN THE WATERFRONT AREA.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF SHINONOSEKI, TAKEN WHILE FIRES STILL BURNED THERE, SHOWED THE MAIN PORTION OF THE CITY DESTROYED WITH .52 SQUARE MILE BURNED OUT. DAMAGE THERE ALSO WAS CONCENTRATED IN THE WATERFRONT AREA.

IN SASEBO, NAVAL ARSENAL AND ENGINEERING DEPOT, THE DAMAGE AMOUNTED TO 30 PER CENT. THE NAVAL DOCKYARD, HOWEVER, ESCAPED WITH MINOR DAMAGE.

IN THE CHEMICAL CENTER OF NOBEOKA THE DAMAGED AREA WAS .31 SQUARE MILES.

(CX) IT APPARENTLY WAS THE GOVERNMENT'S MOVE TODAY IN THE KNOCK-DOWN, DRAG-OUT FIGHT TO BREAK A STRIKE OF 18,700 RUBBER WORKERS IN AKRON, OHIO.

THE WAR LABOR BOARD, ITS PREVIOUS DIRECTIVES DEFIED, FIRED ANOTHER BROADSIDE AT THE STRIKING CIO-UNITED RUBBER WORKERS AT THE GOODYEAR TIRE AND RUBBER COMPANY. BUT ITS UNPRECEDENTED DISCIPLINARY ACTION IN SUSPENDING THEIR RIGHTS TO SHIFT PREMIUMS AND VACATIONS BROUGHT NO IMMEDIATE INDICATION THE UNION WOULD BOW TO THE BOARD'S REPEALS AND CALL OFF THE 17-DAY STOPPAGE.

THE BOARD, SEEKING TO RESTORE PRODUCTION OF VITAL WAR GOODS IN THE OHIO CITY, ALSO DIRECTED 17,000 OTHER RUBBER WORKERS, ON STRIKE SINCE SUNDAY FROM THE FIRESTONE TIRE AND RUBBER COMPANY, TO GO BACK TO THEIR JOBS. OFF THEIR JOBS FOR A WEEK BECAUSE OF SHUTDOWNS OF THREE AKRON FIRMS FOR OVERHAULING AND REPAIRS OF EQUIPMENT LEFT ONLY 1,500 EMPLOYES PRODUCING TIRES IN THE RUBBER INDUSTRY CAPITAL.

THE 33,700 STRIKING RUBBER EMPLOYES ACCOUNTED FOR THE BULK OF THE 54,000 MEN AND WOMEN ACROSS THE NATION WHO STAYED AWAY FROM THEIR JOBS BECAUSE OF LABOR DISPUTES.

IN AKRON, C.V.WHEELER, LOCAL HEAD OF THE GOODYEAR UNION, INDICATED THE WLB'S LATEST MOVE WOULD NOT END THE STRIKE. HE SAID:

"THEY'VE TAKEN AWAY OUR RIGHTS. WE'LL STAY OUT UNTIL WE GET 'EM BACK."

LATER HE ADVISED THE STRIKERS TO APPLY FOR UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATIONS, TELLING THEM "THIS FORCED STRIKE IS A LOCKOUT BECAUSE OF INTOLERABLE WORKING CONDITIONS."

THE WLB, EARLIER, HAD ORDERED CANCELLATION OF OCCUPATIONAL DEFERMENTS FOR THE STRIKERS REGISTERED FOR THE MILITARY DRAFT, WHILE MILITARY DEPARTMENT OFFICIALS HAD URGENTLY APPEALED THEY QUIT THE STRIKE BECAUSE OF THE NECESSITY OF THE RUBBER MATERIAL IN THE WAR EFFORT. IN LINCOLN, NEBR., 1,000 GOODYEAR EMPLOYES WERE IDLE BECAUSE OF INSUFFICIENT PARTS NEEDED TO MAKE SELF-SEALING GASOLINE TANKS.

APPARENT DEFIANCE ALSO MET THE WLB'S DIRECTIVE TO STRIKING DELIVERYMEN FOR NEW YORK CITY NEWSPAPERS TO GO BACK TO THEIR JOBS OR APPEAR IN WASHINGTON TOMORROW AT A SHOW CAUSE HEARING. A SPOKESMAN FOR THE NEWSPAPER AND MAIL DELIVERERS UNION (UNAFFILIATED, SAID THE MEN "HAD NO INTENTION OF GOING BACK TO WORK UNDER PRESENT ARRANGEMENTS."

THERE WERE NO INDICATIONS OF EARLY SETTLEMENT OF THE OTHER STOPPAGES. IN NEW JERSEY AND PENNSYLVANIA, AN AUTOMOBILE PARTS INDUSTRY STRIKE AT FOUR PLANTS KEPT IDLE 7,900 AS THE NEW YORK REGIONAL WLB ACTED TO EFFECT A SETTLEMENT.

Balikpapan Center, Plants Captured by Aussie Units

INVADERS SEIZE WATERFRONT AREA IN BORNEO DRIVE

Find Dutch-Installed Refineries in Ruins Due to Allied Assaults.

HARD GOING AHEAD

Terrain Favors Japs; Booby Traps, Mines Handicap Invaders.

MANILA, Thursday, July 5.—(AP) The blazing heart of Balikpapan's central town area, including seven waterfront pier installations and gasoline cracking plants, was captured by the Australians Tuesday, third day of the invasion, headquarters disclosed today.

"For all practical purposes the oil port is in Allied hands," reported Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines in a July 4 field dispatch from the invasion scene.

He said American Army engineers on the day sailed aboard two small craft into Balikpapan bay, the first Allied craft there since 1941, moving up to Japanese-built pontoon wharves.

"Contrasting with the desolation of the land, the bay is mostly an expanse of calm water, with only a few sunken ships protruding," Brines added.

Refineries in Ruins

The Dutch-installed Pandsari refineries, largely in ruins due to intense Allied attacks, were being steadily enveloped at the north extremity of the city.

Sir Leslie Morshead's Seventh Australian Infantry Division made a sharp swing around the left flank in hard fighting through Monday and Tuesday to seize Tokong, or Signal hill, then swept down the bluffs upon the bomb and shell-wrecked town itself.

The central plateau was studded with the twisted skeletons of oil storage tanks and masses of pipes.

More than 60 per cent of the town was destroyed before the troops were put ashore. Three days of intense bombardment and artillery fire by Aussie 25-pounders added to the devastation.

Hard fighting still was under way in the center of the eight-mile-long East Borneo beachhead. The Aussies gained high ground 500 yards northeast of Hill 99 and fought off a savage enemy counterattack.

Other ridge positions a mile east of Hill 99 also were secured. Enemy machinegun fire and intermittent shelling of the invasion beach continues on a slackening scale.

On the right flank of the beachhead, other Aussies gained two miles to reach a point within four miles of the big, two-runway Manggar airdrome. They met moderate opposition from small arms and machinegun fire as they approached the little Batakan river.

The ultimate objective of this force was the Samarinda oil fields, 48 miles beyond the airdrome. These wells feed the refineries of Balikpapan.

Hard Battle Ahead

The route has been heavily fortified by the Japanese, and a long and hard battle is in front of the tanks and infantry, Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines said.

But the Allied warfleet that put the Australians ashore Sunday with a minimum of casualties was swinging northeastward along the coast abreast of the ground forces.

Brines said that with accurate fire from their batteries, the warships were bowling over the strong enemy defenses along the road to Samarinda.

Fighting up over pulverized positions, the Australians found one six-inch enemy gun on a high ridge which had been knocked out by a direct hit that did not even touch the concrete emplacement.

Japanese guns as much as five miles inland, having escaped the pre-invasion bombardment, were opening up and these too were being silenced one by one.

Of great assistance in the sea-to-shore gun duel were artillery spotter planes, which already were using newly-captured Sepinggang air field four miles east of Balikpapan.

Bothered by Booby Traps

The Japanese will have the benefit of a narrow defense line, since much of the way up the coast to Samarinda is through tidal swamps which force the attackers to stay on or close to the road.

The pipe line which carries the oil from the Samarinda field to Balikpapan follows the highway.

Matilda tanks were hammering along the highway. Artillery also was ashore and adding to the fire powering this drive as well as the push inland just east of Balikpapan.

The deepest inland penetration reported was around two miles, but so badly disorganized were the Japanese by the pre-invasion bombardment that they still were unable to make the most of their naturally strong defenses.

The fixed defenses of Balikpapan were flattened along with most of the city by the days of sea and air bombardment which signalled the opening of the invasion.

The fleet of supply ships off shore was being unloaded by various types of landing craft while shore parties constructed temporary rocks to carry the load until the excellent wharves of Balikpapan could be repaired and put to use.

PHILIPPINE WAR VIRTUALLY ENDED, MACARTHUR SAYS

23 Jap Divisions of 450,000 Men 'Practically Annihilated,' General Reports.

30,000 REMAIN ALIVE

U. S. Losses in Campaign Started Last October Listed at 54,000.

MANILA, Thursday, July 5.—(AP) The "entire Philippine Islands are now liberated and the Philippine campaigns can be regarded as virtually closed," Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Summarizing the campaign which began last October at Leyte, MacArthur said the Japanese employed 23 divisions—more than 450,000 men—which "were practically annihilated."

54,000 U. S. Casualties

A spokesman said that the 250-day campaign cost the American Army 54,000 in killed, wounded and missing. The figure did not include Marine or naval casualties.

Best estimates are that of the 450,000 enemy soldiers, 30,000 remain alive, but they are scattered and widely separated. They range from small bands foraging for food to pockets of several thousand.

MacArthur, whose heart was close to the Philippines operation because he had to take leave of the islands while they were being occupied by the Japanese invaders in 1942, reported:

"Some minor isolated action of a guerrilla nature in the practically uninhabited mountain ranges may occasionally persist, but this great land mass of 115,600 square miles with a population of 17,000,000 is now freed of the invader."

Against elements of 23 Japanese divisions, MacArthur said he sent 17 divisions and cited it as "one of the rare instances when in a long campaign a ground force superior in numbers was entirely destroyed by a numerically inferior opponent."

Lauds All Services

In the victory, MacArthur's communique gave credit to all arms—the Navy, which in battles "reduced the Japanese navy to practical impotence" and the Air Forces, which "seriously crippled" the enemy's air potential.

"Working in complete unison," he added, "the three services inflicted the greatest disaster ever sustained by Japanese arms."

MacArthur said the objectives of the Philippines campaign were six fold:

1. To pierce the enemy's center so as to divide him into north and south—the homeland on the north, the captured Pacific possessions on the south. Each half could then be enveloped and attacked in turn.

2. The acquisition of a great land, sea and air base for future operations comparable to the British islands in the war against Germany.

3. A strangulating air and sea blockade to prevent raw materials being sent to Japan, and supplies or reinforcements to the south.

4. The liberation of the Philippines, with the consequent collapse of the enemy's imperial concept of a greater East Asia coprosperity sphere, and the reintroduction of democracy in the Far East.

5. The liberation of captured officers and men and internees.

6. To strike a crippling blow to the Japanese army, navy and air force.

Said MacArthur: "All these purposes were accomplished."

In the current ground operations, the communique announced that the 37th Infantry division Tuesday occupied Gonzaga, on Luzon's north coast 23 miles east of the port of Aparri. Other advances were made in the mountains to the southwest, where sizeable enemy forces are pocketed.

By best estimates here, 12,000 Japanese are scattered through the wilds of southernmost Mindanao island; 5,000 are in the central islands; 11,000 are holed up in wild crags and nonproductive jungles of North Luzon and the other 2,000 are in the Marakina watershed east of Manila.

A Japanese naval force led by Admiral Iwabuchi was met and eliminated in Manila. Other naval troops under Admiral Shiroya survive in remnants on Mindanao.

A spokesman said the enemy force included Empire reinforcements and approximately 17,000 civilians and merchant marine personnel pressed into army service.

Originally there was a force of 275,000 Japanese on Luzon; 75,000 on Leyte, Samar and Masbate, 6,000 on Palawan and Panay; 10,000 on Negros; 15,000 on Bohol and Cebu; 7,000 in the Sulu archipelago and 45,000 on Mindanao.

U. S. FLIERS RAID SIX JAP AIRFIELDS, BOMB FOUR TOWNS

One Mustang Unit Invites Nip Airforce to Engage in Fight.

BLAST 4-SHIP CONVOY

Two Direct Hits Made on Enemy Destroyers in Yellow Sea.

GUAM, Thursday, July 5.—(AP) More than 150 Mustang fighters of the U. S. Seventh Army Air Force roamed at will yesterday over hundreds of square miles of Japan, shooting up six airfields around Tokyo the same day 500 Superfortressess set mammoth fires in four homeland cities with 3,000 tons of fire bombs.

One Mustang squadron vainly broadcast an hour-long invitation to the Japanese airforce to come up and fight. The fighters circled three airfields for an hour but the Japanese declined combat.

Scourging both Japan and the water around it, American planes put on an unprecedented Fourth July pyrotechnics, including bo hits on two destroyers of a f ship convoy blasted in the Yel sea.

Fresh reports built up to hu proportions the air offensive lashing Nippon from all quarters, with B-29 pilots bringing back accounts of seeing four empire cities on fire at the same time after yesterday's pre-dawn strike.

One B-29 flier said they looked "like all the fires of hell broke loose."

Destroy 8-Japs Planes

The Mustangs, Iwo headquarters reported, destroyed eight enemy planes on the ground, damaged 24 more but shot down only one in the air and were so disappointed over the airfield targets that they looked around for power houses, radio stations, freight cars and shipping. These we rocketed and strafed.

At Tokyo's Imna and Nobara airfields, hangers, control towers, ammunition sheds and gas tanks were shot up by the low-flying P51s.

Northeast of the bomb-battered capital city, the Mustangs tore into the Kashima, Tsukuba, Konoike and Kasumigaura airfield. One Mustang was downed by ack ack over Kasumigaura.

At three fields, the Mustangs were unable to find a single enemy plane on the ground. The only plane shot down was a bi-plane.

Targets either destroyed or damaged included a power house, six warehouses, a replacement ship, 12 freight cars and two light houses. Two small surface vessels were hit.

Jubilant pilots on the pre-dawn Superfortresses fire raid said one enemy city was surprised with its lights burning.

"It was the best Fourth of July any of us ever had," remarked one pilot who added excitedly:

"And what firecrackers we had this year."

Two Destroyers Hit

In the Yellow Sea convoy attack, navy and army planes fired a patrol craft and damaged a transport as well as hit the two destroyers.

The attack by Army Thunderbolts and Fleet Air Wing One search planes was announced today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz in a communique listing successes against more than 15 enemy surface craft.

Simultaneously, Seventh Fighter Command headquarters on Iwo announced that, in eight fighter sweeps and escort missions to Japan during June, Mustangs destroyed 100 enemy planes and destroyed or damaged 150 more. That brought to 638 the number of enemy planes hit by the Mustangs since April 7. Five Mustangs were lost during June.

Headquarters disclosed an attack by Army Mitchells and Thunderbolts and Marine Corsairs Tuesday on the Chiran and Kanoya airfields on Kyushu, Southern Japan, but gave no confirmation to enemy broadcasts that more than 200 Iwo and Marianas-based planes hit the homeland as a followup to yesterday's Superfort firebomb raid.

Sink Two Cargo Ships

Also on Tuesday, search planes of Fleet Air Wing One operating over enemy empire water sank two small coastal cargo vessels south of Korea, damaged a medium cargo ship off Kyushu's west coast and five coastal cargo vessels in the Tsushima Straits between Japan and Korea. An enemy fighter was shot down.

Nimitz said planes of the same wing left a small coastal cargo ship and coastal tug in a sinking condition off Shanghai, China. They also sank a lugger and left another burning west of the Ryukyus.

Tactical air force planes from Okinawa raided the Southern Ryukus Tuesday. Night fighters off Ie Shima, an island immediately west of Okinawa, shot down an enemy plane.

Corsairs of the Fourth Marine Aircraft Wing hit enemy bases in the Palaus yesterday and Seventh Army air force Liberators pounded Marcus the day before.

(Tokyo radio said 240 American bomber and fighter planes from Okinawa and Iwo Jima raided cities and airfields on Honshu and Kyushu islands in the Japanese homeland yesterday, following the Superfortress raids.

Attack Naval Base

(Sasebo, naval base city on Kyushu, was one of the cities attacked in the widely separated daylight raids, said the unconfirmed broadcast. Another enemy radio report said 25 B-29s sowed mines in and near Kanmon strait, at the western entrance to Japan's inland sea.)

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, commander of the 21st bomber command, said the early morning Fourth of July raids on the cities of Tokushima, Takamatsu and Kochi on Shipkoku island and Himeji, on Honshu, were "highly successful."

The 3,000 tons of gasoline jelly bombs started fires which reached "general conflagration" proportions in all four cities said airmen. Weather was clear and bombing was visual.

Two Superforts failed to return, 20th air force headquarters reported at Washington. The Japanese offered only weak aerial opposition and their anti-aircraft fire was meager and inaccurate.

The report said fires at Tokushima were visible 60 miles with smoke rising to 12,000 feet.

2 U.S. DESTROYERS SUNK AT OKINAWA

Twiggs and Porter Go Down Under Jap Aerial Attacks.

JUL 5 - 1945

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP) Two of the Navy's newer destroyers, the Twiggs and William D. Porter, were sunk by Japanese aerial attack during the latter phases of the Okinawa campaign, with a total of 244 casualties.

Loss of the 2,050-ton vessels had been previously announced but their names were not disclosed until today's Navy announcement.

The Porter, victim of a Japanese suicide dive bomber, sank three hours after being hit on the morning of June 10 and escaped with light casualties. Of her wartime complement of between 300 and 350 men, 61 were wounded, and only a comparatively few of those seriously. There was none killed or reported missing.

Twiggs Hit by Torpedo

Her sister ship, the Twiggs, was lost on the evening of June 16 in a surprise attack which came so suddenly survivors were unable to say with certainty what hit them. Later evidence indicated it was a torpedo dropped by the attacking plane which swept suddenly out of the night sky.

The ship's bow was blown off by the explosion and all the officers were killed or disabled by injuries. Command of the vessel fell to Chief Pharmacist's Mate Joseph E. Deworcki, of Long Beach, Calif. Her skipper, Commander George Philip, Jr., Rapid City, S. D., son-in-law of Vice Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, was reported missing.

The Twiggs was participating in shore bombardment in support of ground troops closing in on Japanese bottled up on the southern tip of Okinawa when the fatal blow came.

"We were preparing to fire," Deworocki reported. "It was shortly after 8 o'clock in the evening. I suddenly heard the noise of a plane, looked up and saw what looked like a red ball zoom over the bow, swish, like that. A few seconds later there was a terrific explosion and there was no more bow to the ship. Fires broke out below decks, forward, and spread up to the stack. Soon after another fire broke out aft. An LST nearby said we were hit by a suicide plane. Some of the men said there was gasoline and oil back aft. Some said the wind blew the flames from the fires forward back to start the fire aft. Everyone who was forward is missing."

Deworocki said another chief petty officer, Chief Machinist's Mate Charles F. Schmidt, Phoebus, Va., senior to him, was caught aft on the ship's fantail by flames and could do nothing except try to save himself.

With ammunition exploding below decks, Deworocki said, there was nothing to do but try to get off the ship.

Could Not Treat Wounded

"I didn't have time to treat the men," he said, "but had to have them lowered over the side without giving them any aid. It was pretty brutal on the men, but it was the only way we could get them over. All of the wounded and all men not missing got off the ship except one, a non-swimmer who was on the fantail."

Nearby ships picked up the survivors and the Twiggs sank just one hour after being hit.

The Japanese suicide plane which sank the Porter, the Navy reported, shot out of an overcast sky about 8:30 in the morning, came in very low and struck the destroyer at the water-line on the starboard side near the after engine room. Within seconds the engine room and other compartments flooded and the ship listed heavily to starboard.

By noon all of her crew had escaped the ship and by nightfall all of the injured had been taken aboard the Hospital Ship Relief.

Commander Philip, missing skipper of the Twiggs, won the Silver Star medal for conspicuous gallantry as executive officer of the destroyer O'Bannon during the battle of Guadalcanal and subsequent actions in the South Pacific.

The Twiggs had been hit earlier in the Okinawa campaign. During patrol duty off the northern tip of Okinawa on April 28 she and other ships on patrol underwent a heavy air attack. Of the force which came in, 12 were shot down, two by the Twiggs. The last plane in the group crashed on the deck amidships. The bomb went below and blew out the officers' quarters.

Survivors Coming Home

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4.—(AP) The Twelfth Naval District, releasing the first detailed account of the sinking of the 2100-ton Destroyer William D. Porter off Okinawa, announced tonight that her survivors—all hands — will arrive soon for U. S. leave.

The Navy department disclosed in Washington earlier the loss of the Porter and sistership Twiggs by Japanese aerial attack at the end of the Okinawa campaign. Sixty-one men of the Porter were injured but they and the other 300 crew members were rescued.

The Twiggs incurred 183 casualties.

The Navy said the Porter was one "of a few fighting craft" in the U. S. fleet to sink in this war without loss of life.

The Porter was the second destroyer of that name lost in this war. The first Porter sank with light loss of life after an engagement northeast of Guadalcanal in 1942.

American Fleet Reported Close To Asiatic Coast

San Francisco, July 4 (AP)—Japan reported today that American war ships shelled Karafuto, the Japanese half of the Russo-Japanese island close to the Asiatic coast, on Monday and Tuesday in their deepest penetration of Japan's northern waters.

A submarine carried out attacks both days and a force of five warships bombarded the island yesterday, said the unconfirmed Tokyo broadcast. It was beamed to the United States and recorded by the FCC.

NIGHT

Southern Half Of Sakhalin

Karafuto is the southern half of Sakhalin Island, the northern portion of which is held by Russia. The island is about 600 miles long and 85 wide at its broadest portion.

Yesterday's bombardment fell on Shikuka, a port on the Bay of Tarika, only 50 miles south of the Russo-Japanese boundary line that bisects the island. The submarine shelled the coast near Shikuka, Tokyo said, and warships bombarded defense installations in the same area.

The previous day a submarine reportedly made three successive shelling and machine-gun attacks on the tiny island of Kaihyo, off Karafuto's eastern coast.

Tokyo claimed the bombardments did "absolutely no damage."

In Sea Of Okhotsk

Sakhalin, in the western Sea of Okhotsk, is separated from the Asiatic continent by the Gulf of Tatary. American warships knifed through the Kurile Islands into the Okhotsk Sea for the first time last week to sink or damage every vessel in a five-ship Japanese convoy.

The enemy broadcast did not specify the type of warships in the task force but they probably were light units such as penetrated the Okhotsk Sea June 25. To reach that area the vessels of Vice Admiral Frank Jack Fletcher's 9th Fleet would have to steam far west of their base in Alaskan waters and work their way through the Kurile Island chain.

Announces Food Plan

The Domei news agency announced a nation-wide program on conserving food had been launched by the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce. This move followed Cabinet approval of a ten per cent reduction in the ration of staple foods.

An English-language broadcast for American consumption said civilians were rushing to completion the chain of underground fortresses "around the entire coastline of the Japanese mainland." It quoted an article in the Yomiuri Hochi which said that even "little old women" were interspersed among the men digging trenches.

JAP NAVY 'ELIMINATED,' ADMIRAL MITSCHER SAYS

SEATTLE, July 4—(AP) Japan's navy is virtually eliminated as a fighting unit and its naval air power "is now almost non-existant," Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher said today, but he warned he "would not count heavily upon their quitting.

The leader of famed Task Force 58, in speeches prepared for an Independence Day observance, said the Japanese "show no indication that they will give up, even though they are being bombed day after day by our heavy bombers and by navy carrier air forces x x x."

Thousands lined downtown streets as Admiral Mitscher led a parade in which 7,500 persons, chiefly military personnel, took part.

Admiral Mitscher said he believed Japanese kamikaze attacks are "born of desperation and a desire to prolong the war in the hope we will wear out."

He warned that ships will continue to return from combat severely damaged, and said that "if we could repair them all on the West coast that would speed the war materially."

Suicide Plane and Bomb Drawn From Liberty Ship

Vessel Hit at Okinawa Carried Missile to San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4 (AP).—The wreckage of a Japanese suicide plane and its unexploded 500-pound bomb were gingerly drawn this week from the shattered hold of the Liberty ship Josiah Snelling as she rode at anchor in San Francisco Bay, the Navy has disclosed here.

A volunteer crew of fifteen Seabees and a naval bomb disposal squad lifted the shattered plane and the bomb from a cargo of lumber and cement in which they were imbedded. The vessel was hit at Okinawa May 28.

The Kamikaze plane was the survivor of a flight of nine which dived at the Snelling, the Navy said. The aircraft struck from astern, sheared off a cargo boom and plunged into the forward hold. It struck a tier of cement bags, and its bomb lodged in a stack of lumber.

The damaged ship was immediately turned homeward for repair, but First Officer Rolf Gundersen, of San Francisco, said he and the crew did not know they were carrying a live bomb.

The missile was discovered by an inspection party here.

NAVAL CASUALTIES HIGHEST ON OKINAWA

NEW YORK, July 4 — (AP) Naval casualties in the battle for Okinawa were higher than those of the American ground forces, Lt. Comdr. W. J. Warburton said today in an Independence Day ceremony at the Eternal Light.

Warburton, representing Rear Adm. Monroe Kelly, Third Naval District Commandant, said the Navy's "investment" in the Okinawa campaign was $8,800,000,000—"more than double the Navy's total expense for the whole of World War I."

He added that "plenty" of warships "are being damaged every day right now."

BIG THREE PLANS 50 YEAR PROGRAM TO GUIDE EUROPE

Singleton

LONDON, July 4 — (AP) Responsible Anglo-American diplomatic sources maintained today that the forthcoming meeting of the "Big Three" would shape Europe's economic future for half a century at least and sketch in general terms a new draft of the continent's map.

In Potsdam — paradoxically the musem of Frederick the Great's military ambitions and the site of the Friedenskirche, or "Church of Peace"—Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Stalin and President Truman were expected to open their momentous deliberations between July 14 and 16.

Unofficial reports indicated the "Big Three's" agenda and designed to liquidate most of the outstanding differences on European problems.

In London, where Anglo-American recognition of the new Warsaw government was expected within 36 hours, diplomatic quarters maintained that the elimination of the time-consuming Polish issue from the discussions would go a long way toward achieving that objective.

JUL 5 - 1945

A British foreign office commentator reported the probability that announcement on the progress of the major powers' reparations commissions studying the price Germany must pay for aggression would be held up until the Big Three meeting.

The same delay appeared evident in decisions of the Allied Control Commission—a target of mounting criticism in the British and American press as a result of divergencies in Anglo-American-Soviet treatment of conquered Germany.

Both British and American sources said other problems to be settled include the use of the Reich's skilled labor, likely demands upon Germany's available natural resources, such as coal, iron and wood, and the disposition of undamaged industrial machinery.

Developing simultaneously with these economic problems are a number of territorial issues. There was a growing belief that the "Big Three" would attempt to reach general boundary agreements in preparation for an early European peace table.

BRITISH ELECTION CAMPAIGN CLOSES

25,000,000 Vote Forecast; Results to Be Known July 26

Herald Tribune

LONDON, July 4—(AP) Britain's noisest and bitterest election campaign—her first in 10 years—ended tonight with Prime Minister Churchill warning the nation's 25,000,000 voters that defeat of his government would plummet many European countries into the "violence of communism."

Riding through South London constituencies on election eve, Churchill told crowds lining the route of his eleventh hour tour that "if there should be a landslide to the left, many countries on the continent would slide, not into decent socialism, but into the violence of communism.

"If we go down," the prime minister warned, "all the nine-pins of Europe will fall."

"We are going to win," he aded. "I can feel it in my bones."

While Churchill rode about the city, hundreds of halls throughout Britain rang with the last-minute appeals of candidates. In the open air more rallies were held to garner the last doubtful votes.

Rain was forcast for tomorrow in some areas of the United Kingdom, but a heavy vote was expected nevertheless. The results will not be announced until July 26, after servicemen's ballots are collected and counted.

Churchill's oppontents also expressed confidence in tomorrow's results. Lord Samuel, a Liberal party leader, said that "on July 26 there will be an explosion, when many expectations will be blown to pieces."

Clement Attlee and his two chief Labor lieutenants, Ernest Bevin and Herbert Morrison, doggedly campaigned in their own districts. Attlee warned his listeners to beware of last-minute conservative "scares" and said "we are asking the country to give us an opportunity to carry out our principles. We have never had that opportunity yet."

Churchill told one audience, in pleading for a strong conservative majority in parliament, that "they are looking at us, too, across the Atlantic ocean, where they hope they will have something to deal with that they know and can count upon."

The Prime Minister dealt frankly with his rivals.

"It's no good pretending I have not got a liking for Ernie Bevin," he said. He commented later of Morrison: "Of all the colleagues I have lost, he is the one I am least sorry to have seen the last of." Both Bevin and Morrison served with Churchill in the Wartime coalition cabinet.

CANUCK SOLDIERS STAGE RIOT IN BRITISH CITY

LONDON, July 4—(AP) Hundreds of Canadian soldiers smashed windows and overturned parked cars in the streets of Aldershot tonight in a two-hour disturbance, Press Association reported.

The new sagency said the soldiers, camped in the town, caused damage estimated at thousands of pounds and returned to barracks only after British and Canadian military police reinforcements had been called out.

Canadian army officials admitted there had been some trouble in the garrison town but suggested that reports of "thousands of pounds in damage are exaggerated."

The Canadian Press reported that most of the soldiers "were said to belong to Canadian repatriation depots and, waiting to go back to Canada after service in western Europe."

"It was not a drunken escapade," Press Association said it was told. "The soldiers seemed sober and it was obvious they were men with a grievance."

London Bomb Craters Yield Roman Relics

LONDON, July 4 (AP).—German bomb craters have provided British archeologists a way to seek relics dating back to Roman times.

In King's Head, between Borough High Street and St. Thomas's Street in Southeast London, excavators have found quantities of ancient potttery and tools. Searchers hope that future digging may establish the route of the old Roman Road and the size of the Roman settlement.

ABSIE IN FINAL PROGRAM

American Broadcasting Station Bolstered Europe's Anti-Nazis

LONDON, July 4 (AP)—The American broadcasting station in Europe, ABSIE, transmitted its final "Yankee Doodle" program tonight.

Set up five weeks before the Normandy invasion, ABSIE had broadcast around the clock in different languages to underground armies and others in occupied countries, who dared Nazi vengeance to listen.

G.I.s to Get Munich Beer Hall

Bomb-Damaged Place to House Club for American Soldiers

PARIS, July 4 (AP).—The Munich beer hall where Adolf Hitler made his first bid for power will soon become a "G. I." club, and American soldiers will munch doughnuts in the erstwhile Fuehrer's "eagle's nest" overlooking Berchtesgaden.

Frederick Carroll, American Red Cross commissioner, said today repair work on the bomb-damaged hall would start soon. The "doughnut dugout" will supplement "G. I." clubs already operating at Berchtesgaden.

American Flag Raised As Yanks Occupy Berlin

Lochner

Ceremony Takes Place on Spot Where Hitler Staged Mass Executions.

BERLIN, July 4—(AP) The American flag was raised over Berlin today in the same blood-stained barracks square where Adolf Hitler's enemies were purged in mass executions by the Gestapo 11 years ago.

Outside the parade grounds of Hitler's own elite body of guards Berlin lay in ruins, almost destroyed in the war Nazism brought to Germany. The capital's sullen, subdued people lined up for food and labored in long work-lines.

NIGHT

The raising of the Stars and Stripes symbolized the partial occupation of Berlin by the U. S. Army. Old Glory went up beside the red flag of the Soviet Union.

Symbol of Unity

Turning the American occupation zone over to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the U. S. 12th Army group, the Russian commander of Berlin, Maj. Gen. Nikolai N. Barinov, said:

"The raising of the American flag side by side with that of the Soviet Union symbolizes not only the unity of the past but in a greater sense the further fight against Fascism and for democracy."

In brief, terse sentences, Bradley replied:

"This victory is made possible by all working together. Hope our close relationship will continue so that never again will it be necessary to conquer any nation as was necessary in the case of Germany which desired to rule her neighbors."

The huge Adolf Hitler parade ground, famed in imperial times for the drilling of the Kaiser's cadets, was jammed with troops. With Bradley was Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, commander of the U. S. First Airborne army, who has been named American commander of Berlin, and French commander, Maj. Gen. Geoffrey de Beauchesne.

The honor guards were an infantry battalion commanded by Lt. Gen. Robert F. Brockman of Indianapolis, of the U. S. Second Armored division, and a Russian Berlin guards battalion under Maj. Vassily Demchenko, Soviet hero who forced the crossing of the Dnepr river.

In a well-modulated voice, stocky Gen. Barinov turned the American zone over to Bradley and Parks and, paying tribute to American aid to Russia, said that the "Soviet Union always felt gratitude for the help given by the United States."

Barinov observed that the "Americans undertook the principal task in the west when the victories of the Red army broke the back of the German armies during the battles of 1943-1944," and concluded with "Hails" to the United Nations, President Truman and Premeir Stalin.

Band Stops Bradley

Bradley appeared anxious to reply immediately, but before he could step before the microphone, a Russian band struck up with the Soviet anthem. An American band of the 2d Armored division replied with the Star Spangled Banner.

American tanks sent the air with a 48-gun salute, and Bradley then keynoted the ceremony with his short speech.

The whole event lasted only 15 minutes on the ground which, during the 1945 "blood purge" of Capt. Ernest Roehm and his brown-shirted storm-troopers, reverberated every few minutes through the night with shots of executioners.

No British were present at today's flag-raising. They held at ceremony elsewhere at the same time.

Britain's famed Seventh Armored division which fought from El Alamein to Hamburg, rolled into the capital late today to join the occupation forces.

Maj. Gen. L. O. Lynie, division commander, stood on a Union Jack-draped stand on Pickesdorfer Strasse and took a salute from the first arriving units.

Inspects Berlin

Before he attended the ceremony, Bradley had his first close look at cratered Berlin. Parks escorted him from Tempelhof Airdrome through the center of Berlin, and a long convoy of jeeps filled with newsmen followed.

Women were at work everywhere carting debris. The men did not appear equally forced into labor, as many of them were walking the streets. Big flocks of sheep and cows were being driven by Russian soldiers through main thoroughfares now being taken over by the Americans and British. The Russians were taking all the livestock into their own section.

Bradley's caravan led from the totally-wrecked buildings of the Tempelhof Airdrome first to Markgrafenstrasse with its once impressive set-up of the state theater flanked by the French and garrison churches. Of all three, only parts of the walls remained, while before the Staatstheater there was a huge conglomeration of wrecked motor vehicles, stone, rubble and wild-grass.

SOVIETS STRIP GERMAN AREAS

Reparations In Kind Used On Occupation Zone Industry

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Berlin, July 4 (AP)—Reparations in kind—a policy agreed to by the Allies before defeat of Germany—already is being carried out on a large scale in the Soviet occupation zone.

NIGHT

In Berlin district, now being taken over by American and British troops factories were stripped of heavy machinery four to eight weeks ago.

Reports from Allied nationals who have been through other German areas whose permanent occupation by the Red Army never has been in doubt confirm that similar removal of industrial equipment is in progress there.

This correspondent visited today the vast Rheinmetall-Borsig armament works in the northern suburb of Tegel, which the Russians evacuated last Sunday in expectation of the arrival of British forces.

Huge shops which produced everything from gasoline refineries to Tiger tanks until they were severely damaged by American and RAF raids cover 25 city blocks. At their peak these shops employed 70,000 workers, 40 per cent of them foreign "slaves," including 1,000 Soviet women.

Of the 2,500 machines which survived the bombings, less than 300 have been left behind by Soviet authorities, according to company records.

"Productive Capacity Nil"

The Soviet-appointed technical director, Dr. Arthur Zinzen, said the Russians shipped off over 2,200 items of industrial equipment, mostly of a heavier type than those they did not confiscate.

What is left in the way of small machine tools have been ordered by the Russians to be operated by the new management of the Rhein-Metall-Borsig as the official repair shop for Berlin's city government.

"There is no question of our producing anything," said Zinzen. "Our productive capacity is absolutely nil."

The huge armament works suffered its heaviest bomb damage when 225 United States 8th Air Force planes dropped 441 tons of bombs on March 18. One bomber was lost.

Germans At Top Dismissed

Previously Americans hammered this target last December, unloading 942 tons from 300 bombers with the loss of eleven planes. Zinzen said the March raid halted operations and no work was resumed before the entry of Soviet forces one month later, although the main power station was only slightly damaged.

Zinzen said Soviet authorities put through a drastic shakeup of the plant management, promoting him and two others to top posts.

The men who were at the top during the Nazi regime were summarily dismissed. Zinzen formerly was an engineer in the boiler works and presumably was a non-Nazi.

All Factories Being Combed

The Soviet dismantling of German industry is not confined to armament works. In the Zehlendorf district, now under American control, a spinning mill, a sugar mill and various other plants have been thoroughly cleaned out.

Factories of all types in the Russian-held areas are reported being combed in the same fashion for machinery needed in the Soviet Union.

Something approaching panic is expressed by many Germans—even those who had anti-Fascist records before the war and now are serving with Soviet approval in police and municipal administrations—at the prospect of how the nation will exist if reparations in kind is enforced to the limit.

Policeman Looks To U.S.

None of the Germans with whom I have talked in the past 24 hours admitted having seen any of the wartime destruction in the Soviet Union. They seemed unaware that the standard of living to which Germans are falling is the way the people of Kiev, Stalingrad, Minsk and Odessa have existed for years.

A German policeman, Rheingold Koch, whose brother Fred Koch last was reported running a restaurant in Chicago, said: "Things may look bad, but I'm optimistic. Won't America lend us some factory equipment soon?"

Big flocks of sheep and cows were being driven by Russian soldiers through the main thoroughfares in the sections of the city being taken over by the British and Americans. The Russians were taking this live stock over into their own section.

LA GUARDIA'S SISTER PRISONER 11 MONTHS

JUL 5 - 1945

BERLIN, July 4—(AP)—Gray-haired Gemma La Guardia Gluck, American-born sister of Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York, said today she had been imprisoned by the gestapo during the last 11 months of the war because of her brother's anti-Fascist fame.

With her daughter, Joalnda, and infant grandson, Richard, she lived in an air-raid shelter during the last 11 days of the battle of Berlin until she was greeted with respectful courtesy by Soviet troops.

Mrs. Gluck, who was born in New York and lived for a time in Prescott, Ariz., was married in 1908 in Fiume and thereby lost her American citizenship. During the last 36 years she has lived in Budapest.

"On German orders," she said, "the Hungarian police searched my home in May, 1944, although I was ill in bed at the time from heart trouble. They said they were looking for a secret radio with which I allegedly communicated with my brother.

"On June 7, 1944, three German gestapo men took me away for an 'interview.' They claimed I would be home again in an hour. My husband insisted on accompanying me and both of us were thrown into jail."

YANKS BREAK UP MURDER FACTORY

Germans Charged With Using Humans As "Guinea Pigs"

Gold berg

Munich, July 4 (AP)—Charged with killing at least 211 children, four German doctors and three hospital attendants have been arrested by the United States Army in a Nazi "murder experiment" station in Bavaria—which operated up to three days ago.

A nurse, charged with poisoning 40 adults, and the "murder factory's" food administrator also have been apprehended, military government authorities revealed tonight.

The extermination station was uncovered in the Kaufbeuren area 45 miles southeast of Munich. Authorities asserted that the institution—operating behind the title of a public sanatorium and insane asylum—was only one of a series of systematic starvation and drug experiment stations scattered throughout Bavaria and Austria.

Used As Guinea Pigs

Children and adults were sent to the station from all parts of Germany by the Nazi Ministry of the Interior and by the Bavarian Provincial Government, records showed.

The "patients" were used as guinea pigs in "research" into scientific starvation, aided by the administration of drugs. After their deaths, frequently induced by injections, the bodies were cremated.

Two public health officers of the Munich Military Government, Maj. Marvin Linick, of New York city, and Capt. Loyal Murphy, of Memphis, Tenn., uncovered the "murder plant."

They reported it housed 1,578 men, women and children on June 30, and a branch of the experimental station at near-by Irsee had another 468—all in various stages of malnutrition.

Institution Papers Burned

A statement issued here said all the institution's papers were burned prior to the officers' arrival and there was no way of knowing the total number of persons "treated" at the Kaufbeuren asylum and its branch.

It was reported that other experimental stations had been found at Harthausen, near Linz in Austria about 200 miles east of Kaufbeuren. Smaller stations were discovered at Grafeneck, Wuettemberg, and Guensburg in Bavaria.

Among the children found alive at Kaufbeuren was a 10-year-old boy who weighed less than 23 pounds.

In an uncooled morgue, the Americans found the bodies of men and women who had died twelve hours to three days earlier as a result of the "experiments." Each body weighed only between 53 and 66 pounds.

More Than 350 Cremated

The officers said that more than 350 men, women and children had been cremated in the asylum since last November. The last child died after an intravenous injection causing pneumonia 33 days after United States troops occupied the Kaufbeuren area.

The officers' report said the extermination program at both Kaufbeuren and Irsee included the injection of chemicals to produce direct starvation intended to kill either within three months or to take six months or longer.

One Man Hangs Himself

Overdoses of sedatives were given at stages of advanced malnutrition. These were designed to induce pneumonia or other lung ailments which then were given as the official cause of death.

The night before Linick and Murphy entered the place, Dr. Lothar Gaertner, 43, second in charge, hanged himself.

Dr. Valentin Falthauser, sixty-nine, who is accused of running the asylum's charnel house, and his secretary-food administrator, Franziska Vill, are in Allied custody.

The AMG statement said that the head nurse of one of the children's wards, a woman named Worle, had confessed to having poisoned or killed by intramuscular injection at least 211 minors, for which she drew a monthly bonus of thirty-five Reichsmarks—about $8 at the old exchange rate. She was quoted as asking: "Will anything happen to me?"

Another nurse, Olga Rittler, was quoted by the officers as having confessed to poisoning "at least thirty to forty persons."

In official correspondence, the human guinea pigs were referred to as "suitable stock" when other institutions were making arrangements to send patients to Kaufbeuren for experimentation.

A letter found addressed to the head of the station, Falthauser, from the state welfare association of the Swabia district said: "I have the honor to inform you that all female patients transferred from your institution on Aug. 11, 1940, have died during November of this year at Grafeneck, Bernberg, Sonnenstein and Hartheim."

Reds To Have Role In Meeting On Tangier, Diplomat Declares

Moscow, July 4 (AP)—A well-informed diplomat said today that Russia would participate in the Paris conference on restoration of Tangier to its prewar international status.

The Russians have been insisting that they should be represented, along with the British, French and Americans, at the meeting, which was scheduled to open yesterday. No formal meetings were held today.

An editorial in the newspaper Izvestia said Russia had asked a postponement of the conference so she could participate.

Soviet Attitude Outlined

Izvestia pointed out that Russia had taken part in Tangier agreements in 1880 and 1906, and declared that although she was ignored in other Tangier discussions in 1923 and 1926, she had a vital interest in the matter.

Tangier is on the African side of Strait of Gilbraltar, at the entrance to the Mediterranean. Gen. Francisco Franco sent Spanish troops to occupy the zone in June, 1940, after the European war broke out.

Outlining Russia's attitude toward Tangier, Izvestia said that any discussion of the problem "without the Soviet Union's taking part in it cannot be recognized as legitimate."

Lack Of Invitation Cited

The newspaper said the announcement of the Paris conference was made by the United States State Department June 30, and the Soviet Government was informed by Britain and France that meetings would start July 3.

"Nevertheless," said the paper, "the Soviet Government was not invited to participate in the preliminary exchange of opinions between the governments previously referred to, nor in the conference in Paris.

"It is scarcely necessary to prove the just interest of the Soviet Union in solving the problems of Tangier. Even the United States, which never participated in determining the status of Tangier, is now invited to participate in the conference.

Kaiser's Action Cited

"That is why, immediately after receiving information about the conference, the Soviet Government asked a delay in the conference so that it will not take place without the participation of the U.S.S.R. The problem of Tangier should be considered only with the participance of the Soviet Union."

Izvestia said that Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany once visited Tangier and in a speech threatened war with France unless Germany was given a say in administering Tangier.

"Because the fate of Tangier has interested many powers for a long period, its status was regulated by general agreements concluded by the most important powers," the newspaper added.

The editorial indicated that the Soviet Union felt her status as one of the great powers impelled her to take part with other large nations in all matters of common interest.

Soong's Moscow Visit Stirs Hopes

Moscow, July 4 (AP)—A neutral foreign diplomat said today that the Japanese mission to Moscow viewed the presence of T. V. Soong's party and the cordial reception the Chinese Premier was receiving from the Soviets with "considerable nervousness."

The Japanese, this informant said, appeared most concerned over the question of whether the Chinese and the Russians would work out a pact which might have a bearing on the Japanese-Chinese conflict.

Leopold to Await Vote

King Is Reported Delaying His Decision on Abdication

BRUSSELS, July 4 (AP).—The newspaper "Le Soir" said today that King Leopold III, after consulting with many advisers, has proposed to wait until after elections are held in Belgium before deciding whether to abdicate. It probably would require at least six months to hold the elections.

The newspaper said the sovereign's proposal caused a "violent reaction" among the anti-Leopold coalition of Liberals, Communists and Socialists.

3-Hour Work Stoppage Staged In Copenhagen

Copenhagen, July 4 (AP)—A virtual three-hour general work stoppage developed in Copenhagen today from a planned workers' demonstration before Parliament for a 40-hour week and three weeks vacation. It was estimated that more than 100,000 Danish workers participated.

As a gesture of sympathy workers quit at noon and joined the procession started by employés of the Burmaister Wain shipyard.

2 U.S. Red Cross Girls Decorated by Gen. Clark

Rome, July 4 (AP)—Two American Red Cross girls, Mary Moen, of Onawa, Iowa, and Lois R. Herney, of Fallon, Nev., were awarded Bronze Star medals by Gen. Mark W. Clark at 15th Army Group headquarters today for meritorious achievement during the Salerno invasion.

William A. Stephens, Brooklyn, N.Y., was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for organizational work as regional director of the American Red Cross with the American 5th Army.

Spanish Paper Assails Any Red-Tangier Link

Madrid, July 4 (AP)—The newspaper Pueblo, Falange party organ, criticized the French Government today for supporting Russia's request for permission to participate in the American-British-French conference on Tangier.

The newspaper, in the first public comment in Spain on the Russian proposal, said the United States and Britain "share our worries" over the possibility that Russia might share in the administration of the international zone.

[In Paris, an official spokesman said today that the French Government had no objection to Russian participation in the American-British-French conference on Tangier.

[He spoke after learning that the United States had taken the same position.]

Syrian Deputy Assassinated

DAMASCUS, Syria, July 4 (AP)—Taha Hifnawi al Zamr, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, was shot and killed last night by unidentified assailants, who also wounded his wife. A British Army car pursued the automobile in which the assassins fled, but failed to overtake it. Eight suspects were arrested.

YANK PLANES IN CHINA FIGHT

Aerial Attacks Spread From Yellow River To Indo-China

Chungking, July 4 (AP)—China-based American flyers hammered Japanese communications along a 1,000-mile aerial front from the Yellow River to Indo-China yesterday while Chinese soldiers posed a new threat to Kweilin, 360 miles southeast of Chungking, United States and Chinese communiqués said today.

The site of three former American airfields, Japanese-held Kweilin already was threatened by medium-sized Chinese forces battling within 10 miles west of the city. Chinese High Command reported that the main Chinese armies in south-central China now were swinging toward the Kwangsi province capital from the southwest.

Pursue Retreating Japs

Fanning out from captured Liuchow, these forces pursued withdrawing Japanese troops toward Chungtu, 60 miles southwest of Kweilin, after capturing Liucheng, 11 miles northwest of Liuchow, on Monday, a communiqué said.

The Chinese in the Liuchow area were wheeling northwestward along the Liuchow-Kweilin highway and railroad, and the high command said some formations had reached the west bank of the Liu River 6 miles east of Liuchow.

American medium and fighter-bombers of the 14th Air Force pounded Japanese supply and communication lines, destroying enemy trains north of the Yellow River and wrecking a vital bridge along the Peiping-Hankow railroad 30 miles south of Chenghsien in northern Honan.

Planes In Close Support

Bomb-carrying Thunderbolts, in close support of Chinese ground forces, attacked Japanese supply and ammunition dumps near Hsihsiasuchi, north of Laohokow, while Mustangs returned to the Changsha area, west of Chungking, and smashed enemy river boats and rail stations.

Southeast of Liuchow, other low-flying fighter-bombers winged over the Si (West) River and attacked Japanese shipping between Tanchuk and Koyiu, 50 miles west of Canton. Other planes struck into Indo-China and pounded the great port area around Haiphong, 53 miles west of Hanoi, capital of the French colony.

One group of American flyers flew south of the Si River and attacked a large Japanese military compound at Fahsien, a highway hub northeast of the Luichow peninsula.

The raid followed a delayed Chinese admission that the Japanese captured Fahsien June 29.

The raid followed a delayed Chinese High Command admission that the Japanese captured Fahsien June 29. From Fahsien, which the Japanese apparently took as part of a plan to safeguard their communications with Hainan Island in the South China Sea, the invaders drove northeastward. The Japanese were engaged by the Chinese and fierce fighting was in progress, the High Command said.

thought that such a conference of the heads of the United States, Britain, Russia, France and China might come about if the high hopes now placed in Soong's trip to Moscow are justified.

Sino-Russ Pact Expected

Belief was expressed here that Soong might negotiate a mutual aid pact whereby Russia would undertake to supply Chinese armies without lending them direct military aid.

In return it was thought China would make certain concessions to Russia—most likely granting a warm water naval base in the Liaotung peninsula of Manchuria and certain railway transportation rights through Manchuria, both in the Liaotung peninsula and to Vladivostok.

Mongolian Premier In Moscow

London, July 4 (AP)—The Moscow radio said tonight that Marshal Choi Bal San, Prime Minister of the Mongolian People's Republic (Outer Mongolia), arrived by plane today in Moscow and was met by Foreign Commissar Molotov.

The broadcast said that the Soviet envoy and minister plenipotentiary to Mongolia also had arrived in Moscow.

The Prime Minister's visit coincided with that of Chinese Premier T. V. Soong.

Outer Mongolia, an independent republic, adjoins Japanese-controlled Manchuria on the east and flanks Russia's vital trans-Siberian railroad.

China to Act Soon

CHUNGKING, July 4 (AP).—Foreign Office spokesman K. C. Wu said today the San Francisco charter would be submitted to the Supreme National Defense Council for ratification as soon as the official text is received.

Molotov May Return Soong's Moscow Visit, Chungking Hears

Chungking, July 4 (AP)—A qualified informant said today the Soviet Foreign Commissar, Vyacheslav M. Molotov, may come to Chungking returning T. V. Soong's current visit to Moscow, if the Chinese Premier's mission is successful.

There was much speculation on the possibility of a meeting of the Big Five leaders, including Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. It was

AUSTRALIA SETS EXAMPLE

Bill Applies Trusteeship Idea of Charter to New Guinea

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4 (AP)—Australia proposes to administer liberated sections of New Guinea as "an example of the principle of trusteeship, in respect of independent people, as embodied in the United Nations Charter."

The Melbourne radio reported today that Edwin J. Ward, Australian Minister of External Territories, introduced a bill in the Parliament "to create a single provisional administration, as a temporary measure," to govern the Papua region of southern New Guinea and other liberated parts of the big island.

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said the bill would end the indenture system in five years or earlier. The Government, it added, considered it a bounden duty to provide facilities for better health and education "and participation by the natives in the wealth of the country and essentially in its Government."

Australian troops now are engaged in mopping up operations against the by-passed Japanese on New Guinea.

Australian Air Force Casualties 13,800

San Francisco, July 4 (AP)—The Australian Air Force has suffered 13,800 casualties since the start of the war, the Melbourne radio said today, quoting Air Minister Arthur Drakeford.

The total included 6,500 in Europe, 4,700 in the Southwest Pacific, 1,500 in the Middle East, 370 in the Far East and 300 in Burma.

The broadcast was recorded by the FCC.

Australia To Supply Rations

San Francisco, July 3 (AP)—The Melbourne radio said today that Australia has been asked by the British War Office to provide 2,700,000 ration packs by mid-August "for the use of landing parties and Commando units."

Admiral J. J. Clark, 5 Of Staff, Decorated

San Diego, July 4 (AP)—Rear Admiral Joseph J. Clark, of Chelsea, Okla., commander of a carrier division operating with the Navy's famed Carrier Task Force 58, and five of his staff officers have been decorated for outstanding service in the Pacific.

Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, leader of Task Force 58, presented the decorations during ceremonies at the United States Naval Air Station. Admiral Clark received the Legion of Merit Medal for directing an air attack last March 24 which resulted in the sinking of an eight-ship enemy convoy attempting to take troops and supplies to Okinawa.

Canadians Homeward Bound

OTTAWA, July 4 (AP).—Defense Minister A. G. L. McNaughton announced today that a total of 126,000 Canadian Army and R. C. A. F. personnel will come home from Europe in the last six months of this year, leaving another 125,000 Army personnel still overseas.

'Peace Banquet' Is Held

JUL 5 - 1945

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Twin U. S. City Mark 130-Year Amity

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., July 4 (AP).—The twin cities of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., joined hands across the "longest undefended border in the world" tonight in a gesture of international good feeling.

The two communities staged a "peace banquet" in the Windsor Hotel, here, in commemoration of the 130th anniversary of America's ratification of the Treaty of Ghent, which ended the War of 1812 and initiated a world record of international amity.

Paul Martin, of Ottawa, Secretary of State of Canada, was scheduled to carry to the dinner the expressions of Canadian good will on the occasion.

In the United States, millions of persons gave up traditional holiday trips in response to Government stay-at-home pleas. The Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated that the work of those who went to their war-plant jobs would make up time lost by strikes since Pearl Harbor.

Dade county, Georgia, "rejoined" the United States, officially ending, with pageant and oratory, a legend that it seceded individually from the Union in 1860 and never rescinded the action.

Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan told a "Truman Day" rally at Gainesville, Ga., that the nation's united support of its new President was "a truly heartening and inspiring omen."

President's Proclamation

The President, in a Fourth of July statement, had expressed confidence that "under Providence we soon may crush the enemy in the Pacific." He spent the day working at his desk.

The famous flags that were raised on Iwo Jima were hoisted at New York's Eternal Light, honoring the dead of World War I, and patients from army hospitals were among the thousands at an American Legion show at Chicago's Soldier Field.

Other wounded veterans were guests at war-bond rallies and other ceremonies in many communities. Midnight bonfires, New England's traditional Fourth of July gesture, flared for the first time since submarine peril ended.

Holiday In Britain

American forces in Britain enjoyed a full holiday, marred only by typical British showery weather. A big program of theatricals, sports, dances and patriotic rallies carried through the day and night.

British artillery fired a 48-gun salute for the 48 states to mark the celebration at Wrexham, where British and American troops marched together in a parade.

The Norwegians—last European people to shake off the Nazi shackles—observed two minutes of silence at noon in memory of President Roosevelt. With American Thunderbolts flying overhead, Crown Prince Olaf accepted the salute from parading American and Norwegian troops.

Fireworks And Beauty Contest

American troops in Italy observed the day in old-fashioned style with everything from fireworks to a bathing-beauty contest.

Premier Admiral Volgaris ordered flags flown on all government buildings in Greece and in a message to President Truman he conveyed "sincere wishes of the Royal Government and myself for the greatness and prosperity of the noble American nation and the heartfelt wishes of the Greek people for total victory in the Far East."

Flag ceremonies were held at Antwerp and Luxembourg. The battle-scarred 29th Infantry Division at Bremen celebrated with sports and renamed the former Weser Stadium "Eisenhower Stadium."

In Jerusalem Cathedral

In the Holy Land, a special Independence Day service was held in St. George's Cathedral, Jerusalem, with American clergymen officiating.

Sir Basil Brooke, Premier of Northern Ireland, sent "heartiest greetings" to Ambassador Winant and expressed the hope that the "United States and the British Commonwealth would always be to the fore in promoting peace and human brotherhood."

For the first time in history, the Fourth of July was celebrated aboard a British battleship as the American flag flew from the Duke of York berthed in Sydney harbor in Australia.

Denmark Pays Tribute

American troops in Berlin observed the day by moving into the American occupation zone in the southwestern part of the city as the Russians moved out.

In Denmark American and Danish flags fluttered everywhere and newspapers carried long stories emphasizing that the United States had sacrificed hundreds of thousands of young men on the European battlefields so that Denmark, among others, could be freed.

In Paris, one of the city's proudest streets—the Avenue Victor Emmanuel III—was renamed the Avenue President Roosevelt. Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery reaffirmed the friendship of the two nations.

Maj. Gen. Patrick Hurley, American Ambassador, and Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of the 14th Air Force, were hosts in Chungking at a reception attended by Chinese notables and diplomats.

Fourth Observed, Berlin To Canberra

Washington, July 4 (AP)—Young Americans serving in far-flung lands celebrated America's Independence Day with a gusto sparked in many of these nations by their own newly won freedom.

There were fireworks, dances and parades—from Berlin to Canberra—but behind it all was the solemn reminder sounded in Britain by John G. Winant, United States Ambassador, that "we have much to be grateful for today—but the war is not yet ended."

Winant's London Speech

"When I was asked two years ago what kind of world lies ahead, I suggested that our faith and our future then rested with the soldiers of democracy," Winant told the American Society in London. "Already our debt to them can never be effaced. We carry on only as debtors to the generous and the brave."

Holiday Work Seen Offsetting Strikes Since Pearl Harbor

By The Associated Press

Millions of workers observed Independence Day by laboring at their machines and benches yesterday, theoretically offsetting to some extent the time lost in strikes since Pearl Harbor.

There were some 50,000 strike idle, 33,000 of these in the Akron, Ohio, rubber capital, but the figure was small compared with the army that donned overalls and slacks for "just another working day."

By keeping on the job, Labor Bureau statistics showed, these workers not only compensated for man-days lost in the current wave of labor troubles, but also for those lost in strikes and lockouts since the nation went to war.

The bureau reported there had been 13,585 work stoppages, costing 31,562,000 man-days, between Dec. 7, 1941, and June 1, 1945. This is about equal to a single day's idleness by civilian male workers in every plant, office or store in the country.

The trend of strikes, however, is upward. Lost time in May was greater than in any month since Pearl Harbor, but the number of strikes in that month was not particularly high.

Along the front of major current strikes, the holiday was quiet.

Federal seizure at any time was expected at the strike-bound Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company plants in Akron, where 16,700 persons have been away from work eighteen days. Another 16,500 were idle at the Firestone Tire and Rubber plants there.

Congress of Industrial Organizations union officials informed President Truman there was "absolutely no necessity" for government seizure. They said the President or some agency merely should order managements of both companies to negotiate with the union toward settlement "of the hundreds of grievances."

The Goodyear strike started on June 17 after failure of negotiations on thirty-two wage, hour, working conditions and overtime grievances. The Firestone strike came on July 1 when contract negotiations collapsed.

Cleveland Mill Closes

CLEVELAND, July 4 (AP).—The Republic Steel Corporation's gigantic hot mill was shut down tonight by what company and union officials said was an unauthorized stay-at-home refusal to work.

Company and union spokesmen said the cause of the stoppage, involving approximately 100 men, was a reported decrease in tonnage handled and a consequent loss of take-home pay.

Ten key men failed to report for work eight days ago, company and union officials said, and the mill was closed Tuesday through Friday. A mass meeting of workers Friday resulted in a vote to return to work starting Monday, they added. Attendance fell late Monday, they continued, and tonight the company closed the mills.

"Morally the men might be right, but actually they're wrong," said William F. Donovan, Congress of Industrial Organizations United Steel Workers' Union district director. "The men are not following the contract or grievance procedure. They have been ordered back to work. They're not going to bypass that agreement."

Forrestal, Naval Officers Confer on Jap War Progress

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP) The Navy disclosed today that Secretary Forrestal and top flight naval officers from Washington and the Pacific conferred in San Francisco last weekend on the progress of the war with Japan.

The presence in San Francisco of Fleet Admiral Chester Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, was revealed last week when he conferred there with President Truman.

Others who participated in the Navy talks, the Navy disclosed, included Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King commander and chief of the fleet and chief of naval operations; Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, commander of the Western sea frontier, Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, commander of the Fifth Fleet; Vice Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of naval personnel and various members of the staff of the fleet admirals.

The Navy said "prosecution of the Pacific war was discussed but details cannot be disclosed in the national interest and in the interest of the men fighting in the Pacific."

Secretary Forrestal, also conferred with west coast naval commanders concerned with the ship repair problem.

They included Rear Admiral C. H. Wright, commandant of the 12th Naval District; Rear Admiral S. Tisdale, commandant of the Mare Island Navy Yard; Rear Admiral R. M. Griffin, commandant of the 13th Naval district, and Rear Admiral R. W. Christie, commandant of the Puget Sound Navy yard. Forrestal visited the Mare Island and Puget Sound yards to observe progress of repair work on the vast damaged war ships and on ships undergoing routine overhaul. He stressed the urgency of the work, requestioning skilled workers to stay on their jobs.

RECORD OF FLETCHER, DESTROYER, IS BARED

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP)—The Navy threw a spotlight tonight on its destroyer Fletcher, which is still pitching trouble at the Japanese, after two and a half years and 200,000 miles of service in the Pacific.

The Fletcher, the only participating United States warship to come through the Battle of Guadalcanal undamaged, has taken part in three surface campaigns, thirty-one anti-aircraft actions, five submarine attacks and sixteen major shore bombardments.

Prototype of a class now numbering more than 100 ships, the Navy reported, the Fletcher has blasted eleven enemy planes from the skies, aided in downing eight others, sunk a Japanese cruiser, assisted in sinking another and heavily damaged two destroyers. She has received credit for killing one Japanese submarine and for probably destroying another. She has rescued more than 1,000 survivors of five stricken ships, five planes and a submarine.

The Fletcher was commissioned June 30, 1942, at the Federal Shipbuilding Company, Mare Island, Calif. Her present skipper is Lieut. Comdr. Robert R. Green of Connersville, Ind.

F. E. A. Forbids Export of Steel Rails to Spain

Denies License to Private U.S. Shipper; C.I.O. Had Protested Any Shipment

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP).—The Foreign Economic Administration said today that it had turned thumbs down on shipment of 100,000 tons of steel rails to Spain.

The agency said that last month private American exporters, whom it did not name, inquired whether such a shipment could be made to Spain, and were told that an export license would not be granted.

F. E. A. officials disclosed their action when a reporter asked for comment on a protest by Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, against any such shipment.

Mr. Murray made public a letter to War Mobilization Director Fred M. Vinson, which said: "My information is that the Sparrows Point, Md., plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation is rolling or preparing to roll 100,000 tons of steel rails for shipment to Spain. I am advised that request has been made by the Export Traders Company, New York City, for an export license to ship steel rails to Spain."

He called this an "outrageous situation" and said it was made possible because the War Production Board has permitted the sale of steel "in the free market."

At Baltimore, S. J. Cort, general manager of the Sparrows Point plant, said that he had no knowledge of any planned shipments.

Urging retention of controls on all scarce materials, Mr. Murray said that to abandon such controls now would be detrimental to small business men, workers and farmers "who will be forced to go without essential goods" until the demands of other buyers are satisfied.

"It is unnecessary for me to point out," he said, "the need of our own railroads for rails in order to meet the current tremendous transportation demands, to say nothing of the need of rails for rebuilding the transportation systems of our allies and the liberated countries."

F. E. A. officials said that no steel rails have been sent to Spain and that no license has been granted for such shipments. Advised of this, an aid to Mr. Murray said: "If that is the case, we are naturally pleased." Mr. Murray himself could not be reached for comment.

Private Trade Resumed To French North Africa

Exporters, However, Must Get Licenses From F. E. A.

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP).—The Foreign Economic Administration announced today the resumption of private trade between this country and French North Africa, Algeria, French Morocco and Tunisia.

The agency suggested that interested exporters establish trade contacts in French North Africa immediately in order to assure a continuous flow of supplies to that area.

More than 300 new items, ranging from dried skimmed milk to power-driven tools, now may be exported through commercial channels to French North Africa. Exporters proposing to ship to French North Africa must obtain export licenses from the F. E. A.

U. S. Produced 45% of World's Munitions in '44

Its Civilians, Meanwhile, Were 'Best Fed, Housed and Clothed in World'

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP).—J. A. Krug, War Production Board chairman, reported today that the United States produced 45 per cent of the world's munitions in 1944 while keeping Americans "the best fed—the best housed—the best clothed civilians in the world."

In the first annual report ever issued by the W. P. B., Mr. Krug stated that American war plants have sustained better than a $5,000,000,000 monthly munitions pace since the summer of 1943.

"The nation has supplied the best equipment to the largest Navy, the largest air force and one of the largest armies in the world," the report declared, "and our civilian economy, though short of some of the things to which it was accustomed, has been maintained in a sound annd healthy condition.

"In 1944 alone, the country produced 96,359 planes, including 16,048 heavy bombers, built 30,889 ships, 17,565 tanks, 595,330 Army trucks, and produced 3,284 heavy field guns and howitzers and 7,454 light ones, 152,000 Army aircraft rocket launchers, 215,177 bazookas and 1,146,774 tons of ground artillery ammunition."

Mr. Krug reported that the almost uninterrupted climb in arms production from $500,000,000 monthly in 1940 to a volume ten times as great in 1944 was "dogged at almost every step by crises." The man-power pinch was acute last year, he said, because of the loss of nearly 1,000,000 workers from the civilian labor force.

"To a high degree this loss was the result of inductions of skilled labor into the armed forces," he said. "Inductions sometimes caused by a not-too-cautious weighing of the need for a worker on the production front against the need for that need on the fighting front.

"The important and astounding fact is that in 1944, the year in which the crescendo of war mounted to a thunderous climax. The American consumer and his family remained by far the best fed, best housed, best clothed civilians in the world.

"While all battlefronts were ablaze, while the United States productive system was feeding shipload after shipload of munitions into a funeral pyre for the enemy, the American consumer was furnished with more goods and services than in any year since 1941."

In 142 pages, the report described the rise of synthetic rubber production from 8,000 tons in 1941 to 753,000 in 1944; the trebling of aluminum output from 1942 through 1944; the fifty-fold rise of magnesium production in five years and the eighty-fold increase in penicillin output in one year.

In 1941, the W. P. B. chairman continued, the United States contributed only 12 per cent to the comparatively small world production of armaments. Last year this country alone was responsible for almost 45 per cent of the $110,000,000,000 in combat munitions produced by the Axis and the United Nations together. The over-all figures include estimates on Axis production by the Foreign Economic Administration.

Board Orders Preference to Small Business

JUL 5 - 1945

Fair Value, Not Highest Price to Govern the Sale of Disposal Agencies

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP).—The Surplus Property Board today declared a policy of preference for local and small business in the disposition of government-owned war plants and facilities.

The agency, in a statement to owning and disposal agencies, said such prospective purchasers should be given preference "as against large concerns whose operations are nation-wide." This policy should be followed especially in the sale of medium-sized and smaller plants, the board added.

The government's investment in more than 13,000 manufacturing plants is estimated at about $16,000,000,000, most of it in new buildings and equipment.

Pointing out that the surplus property act calls for disposal at fair value rather than the highest price obtainable, the board said:

"To attain this objective the disposal agency should accept an offer from a responsible local group with adequate working capital and know-how, even if extended credit over a long period of years up to 90 per cent of the purchase price is necessary, rather than an equal cash offer from a firm or group which would tend to concentrate economic power."

Offers to buy or lease submitted by local groups should be seriously weighed, even though less than other bids, "if it appears that the American system of free competitive enterprise will benefit thereby," the board added.

Taft Promises Senate Fight on Bretton Woods

World Monetary Measure Going to Floor July 16; Legion Head For Charter

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP).—The Senate steered today toward early approval of the Bretton Woods monetary program, although Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican, of Ohio, pledged a stiff floor fight.

Senator Taft told reporters he would renew in the chamber his unsuccessful effort in the Senate Banking Committee to postpone establishment of the $9,100,000,000 world bank and $8,800,000,000 stabilization fund.

But the Senate majority leader, Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, went ahead with plans to bring the enabling legislation before the Senate July 16.

The monetary legislation won Banking Committee approval by a 14-to-4 vote, with several Republicans joining the solid bloc of committee Democrats. Only Republican Senators Taft, John Thomas, of Idaho; Hugh Butler, of Nebraska, and Eugene D. Millikin, of Colorado, voted against the bill. It has already been approved by a top-heavy 345-18 margin in the House.

HANNEGAN PRAISES UNITY FOR TRUMAN

Says at Gainesville, Ga., That It Is Good Omen for Future of the Country

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 4 (AP)—Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan told a "Truman Day" crowd today that the manner in which this country had united behind President Truman was "a truly heartening and inspiring omen for our nation's future."

Mr. Hannegan, who is also Democratic National Committee chairman, represented the President at the Fourth of July celebration arranged as a tribute to Mr. Truman and the national Democratic Administration.

He declared that this country and the United Nations must continue their wartime unity to meet the post-war challenges of a lasting peace and full employment.

"All our differing and diverse groups have united to meet and surmount the challenges of war," Mr. Hannegan said. "Under the leadership of President Truman, I am confident that they will, with equal vigor and resolution, meet and surmount the challenges of peace."

He said that the President had brought to his task "talents of simplicity, directness and clear-thinking energy which were peculiarly his own."

Contrasting the open debates at the United Nations Conference at San Francisco with the "secret diplomacy such as marked the end of the first World War," the Postmaster General said this was proving helpful in shaping machinery intended to prevent aggression, adding:

"Out of San Francisco has come a charter which, I firmly believe, can and will succeed, because the people of the world have demanded it."

Asserting that the United Nations were confronted with the problems of suppressing aggression and assuring a full flow of trade among nations, Mr. Hannegan said that it was "equally important that we are applying to the task of peace the cooperation that we learned in the hard school of war. We are determined to eliminate the causes of war. We cannot evade this responsibility. The world looks to us for leadership, and we are accepting the role."

Turning to the problem of employment he suggested that a "job for every man and woman who wants to work would constitute a good beginning to the fulfillment of the Four Freedoms and to the prevention of war."

"Our country," he continued, "has more than attained this goal during the war. But there is something wrong when such standards of living can be attained only by producing for war. There is something wrong with us, with the systems of mankind that have caused war.

"There will be something wrong with mankind, too, if we allow wars and depressions to return with clocklike regularity as of old. Depressions, like wars, are not acts of God. Man makes them. If we make them, we can unmake them. We must create, in peace, a new prosperity and a greater opportunity for jobs than has existed before."

KEEFE CHARGES GRAIN SCANDAL

Wisconsin Representative Sees Congressmen Implicated

Washington, July 4 (AP)—Representative Keefe (R., Wis.) predicted today that several Washington officials, including some congressmen, would be implicated in what he terms "a national scandal in market manipulation."

"It is common talk on Capitol Hill that certain influential members have benefited from inside knowledge of operations of the rye market on the Chicago Board of Trade," Keefe told a reporter.

His statement was an elaboration of remarks he made in the House yesterday, when Representatives Sabath (D., Ill.) and Stefan (R., Neb.) rose to support his remarks and join in a demand for a full investigation.

'Manipulators' Cited

In his House address Keefe asserted that a "certain group of manipulators . . . has obtained a corner on the rye market . . . and, as a result, 'short-sellers' lost millions of dollars . . . and the manipulators made a handsome profit."

"We should know, if any, what tieup there has been between WFA (War Food Administration), the Commodity Credit Corporation and the FEA (Foreign Economic Administration) with this group," he added.

"We should know and expose any member of Congress who has enriched himself as a result of his power to infuence decisions of these agencies."

He said that on May 26, Ashley Sellers, Assistant War Food Administrator, filed a complaint charging General Foods Corporation and others with the manipulations, but added, "this didn't go far enough."

What The Complaint Charged

Keefe said the complaint charged Commodity Exchange Act violations only through May, 1944, and "does not relate to what I conceive to be the unlawful actions of this group in the period following that date."

He added that the group, "with tenacles reaching into Washington," had made huge profits as a result of a Government order requiring industrial alcohol distillers to use rye flour and another order requiring use of rye for relief work of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

"This situation . . . amounts to nothing short of a national scandal," Keefe asserted.

Sabath added that "something is wrong somewhere and you are justified in your statement."

Stefan commented, "This is a terrible situation, which needs looking into."

Seeks Congressional Probe

Keefe said he planned to introduce legislation calling for a Congressional investigation.

Meanwhile, J. H. Mehl, Commodity Exchange Act Administrator, said in a statement that he had asked the Chicago market on June 27 to take specific action against excessive speculation and that the market had responded in part on July 2.

JUL 5 - 1945

JUL 5 - 1945

The Chicago action, he said, increased margin requirements and established certain limits on speculative dealings in rye future contracts.

In Chicago J. O. McClintock, a director of the Board of Trade, said "I do not believe that there has been any corner on the rye market. I know of no manipulations that took place during 1942-44.

Price Ceilings Cited

"Actually, there have been a number of good reasons for the increased activity in rye.

"The markets for other grains have been more or less frozen by price ceilings, and there were no price ceiligns for rye. Rye sold comparatively cheap and consequently offered a rather inviting outlook.

"Furthermore, I believe that, were a price ceiling to be set on rye, it would be somewhere near current prices."

Hollis Griffin, another director, said "investigation appears to be outside the province of the Board of Trade. It had nothing to do with the charges of manipulation."

Farm Population Hits Lowest Point in 35 Years

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 4—The farm population in this country has dropped to the lowest point in thirty-five years.

Reporting that today, the Agriculture Department estimated the number of persons living on farms last January 1 totaled 25,190,000. This represents a decline of 5,079,000 since 1940, or a decrease of nearly 17 per cent.

Farm and food production, on the other hand, has increased 35 per cent.

The department estimated farms lost 5,136,000 persons through migration or abandonment of farming operations and 1,805,000 to the military services.

These losses were offset in part by a net addition of 1,907,000 persons through excess of births over deaths.

BOWLES OPENS DRIVE ON RATION CHECK RACKET

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP) Price Administrator Chester Bowles today ordered a nationwide drive to crush what he termed an organized racket in the sale of ration bank checks.

These checks are written against accounts of ration currency in much the same way as regular checks are drawn on money accounts.

Bowles said the first evidence that "this phase of racketeering had assumed large proportions" was uncovered in New York recently, and resulted in arrest of "several big operators."

The bogus checks, he added, were being sold at prices varying from $6 to $8 a thousand points.

Bowles said that while operations detected thus far have been confined mostly to the New York area, "persons in other cities are implicated and we have advised our field offices that similar methods probably are being used in other parts of the country."

The OPA chief said that spurious checks already uncovered were sufficient to supply 600,000 persons with a full month's ration of meat, butter and other red point foods. He added that these checks had put 30,000,000 red points into illicit use.

Anderson Asks Local Aid On Meat Black Markets

Ties Easing of Slaughter Rules to Help From Authorities

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson said Tuesday easing of slaughtering regulations will depend upon co-operation of local authorities in dealing with meat black markets.

An amendment to the recently enacted Office of Price Administration extension bill gives the new Cabinet officer authority to certify non-Federally inspected packing plants as sanitary, thus permitting them to ship their meat across state lines and to sell to the armed forces. Sponsored by Representative Wright Patman, Democrat, of Texas, the provision was designed to make more meat available in shortage areas.

Mr. Anderson, however, told newsmen after his first full workday in his new post that "if we were to issue blanket authority under the Patman amendment to the non-Federally inspected slaughterers it might harm a good deal of the good done under present O. P. A. restrictions."

Local officials, he added, must assume "some responsibility to see that the meat reaches the legitimate market at legal ceilings."

Synthetic Rubber Use Is Ordered in All Tires

By The Associated Press.

JUL 5 - 1945

WASHINGTON, July 4—No more tires will be made entirely of natural rubber.

The move, announced today by the War Production Board, was designed to conserve the country's dwindling stockpile of natural rubber.

In the future, some synthetic rubber will be used in all tires, regardless of size. Most small tires already are made entirely of synthetic rubber, and some of it is used in almost all tires. Because of this, the WPB estimated that today's order would result in a saving of only 1,300 tons of natural rubber a year.

The required amounts of synthetic rubber vary from 100 per cent for small tires to 5 per cent for giant casings.

Cuba-New York Air Line Is Projected in 6 Months

Passenger and Cargo Service Planned; Office Here

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP).—Blazing the way for an anticipated Cuban air line from Havana along the Atlantic Coast into New York, a Cuban Expreso Airline transport plane arrived here today.

Abroad were officials of the company who said they were here seeking equipment and making further plans for the establishment of the proposed route, which they hoped would be in operation within six months.

Heading the group of Cuban air officials was Donald Stewart, executive vice-president of Expreso Airlines, who expressed enthusiasm for the future of what he said would be the first Cuban air line to undertake operations north of Miami, Fla.

"The opportunity for business on such a route is almost without limit," Mr. Stewart said.

"We plan both passenger and freight services as soon as the proper authority for the route and equipment can be had. Sixty per cent of the air line business into and out of Havana is with cities in this area, principally New York, and we feel we can offer a commanding service over the route."

The party planned to remain in Washington overnight, proceeding tomorrow to New York where the company officials said they were opening offices at 400 Madison Avenue. Mr. Stewart explained it was the hope of Expreso Airlines to make the Havana-New York route via Miami, Jacksonville, Fla., Charleston, S. C., and Washington.

Curbs Freight to Mexico To Ease Congestion Here

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 4—An emergency order designed to help relieve the railroad car shortage was issued today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It directed that beginning July 10 until next Feb. 28, United States railroads should accept carload shipments originating in this country and destined to ports in Mexico only if they are covered by straight bills of lading.

It appears, the order said, that carload shipments to Mexico covered by order bills of lading are being unduly delayed at ports of entry thus contributing to the shortage of equipment and causing traffic congestion.

214 Examples Of Soldier Art

Washington, July 4 (AP)—It's an army of artists too.

Two hundred and fourteen examples of soldier art chosen from 9,000 entries in a nationwide army contest went on display here today at the National Gallery of Art to remain through September 4.

It is the first such competition in military history. It offers a striking study in variety and influences.

One of the few exhibitors present at the opening, Corporal Syd Browne, marched up and down a street in Fort Belvoir, Va., all through his basic training. From impressions of it under snow at night, he painted it in oil.

Army Of Individuals

Then there is Clarence J. Doore attached to the Climatic Research Laboratory at Lawrence, Mass., where army clothing types are developed. Doore did an oil of the cold chamber where Arctic apparel is being tested and another called "Pneumonia Gulch" with simulated rain pouring from a tower on men testing rain dress.

The great body of 9,000 original entrants stationed too far away to attend the opening are not recognized artists. This was noted by Bartlett H. Hayes Jr., director of the Addison Galleries, Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., one of the judges, in making selections for the display. He called the result extraordinary.

"This is a civilian army made up of individuals," Hayes commented, "and their individuality is expressed in striking ways."

Stimson Expresses Pleasure

Working in their spare time, the artists divided their subject matter about equally between military and civilian subjects. A visitor remarked to Hayes that most seemed to carry "a serious and sad tone whether they were about war or not." There was also a strong vein of comedy, however.

GI creative ability was turned loose in paintings, prints, drawings, sculpture and photographs. First prizes were $800 in war bonds. Winners included clerks, dentists, bartenders, farmers and mechanics.

The contest proved to Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, "that as a nation we can take up the sword without losing the gift and endowments of peace."

"It is only in the army of democracy," he continued in a statement, "that the soldier, while voluntarily submitting to the military necessity of regimentation, still retains that proud sense of individuality which is the heart of the creative process."

'IRON MIKE' O'DANIEL INFANTRY SCHOOL BOSS

WASHINGTON, July 4. — (AP) Appointment of Maj. Gen. John W. "Iron Mike" O'Daniel as commanding general of the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., was announced today by the War department.

He succeeds Maj. Gen. Fred L. Walker, who will become director of training of the Army Service Forces. Both will take over their new assignments in mid-month.

General O'Daniel won the nickname "Iron Mike" for his endurance in commanding the 3rd Infantry (Rock of the Marne) division in Europe. General Walker formerly commanded the 36th (Texas) Division in Italy.

General Walker, who will have under his jurisdiction the training of all Army Service Forces, replaces Brig. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, who has been given an assignment in the Pacific.

GOVERNORS PLEDGE SUPPORT ON FOOD

Differ on Solution Plan; Baldwin Retains Executive Board Post.

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 4.—(AP) The 37th annual conference of State Governors today avoided taking a definite stand on steps to solve the food problem and compromised by pledging support to the government in finding a way out of shortages and maldistribution.

Adoption of the food resolution terminated the hottest discussion of the four-day convention.

Northeastern governors wanted a more detailed resolution calling for importation of meat from Canada and Mexico and for separate red ration points for meat only instead of those now covering meat and other commodities. Westerners fought this and won out for the general resolution as offered by Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska.

The convention adjourned after naming Pennsylvania's Gov. Edward Martin, 65-year-old former soldier, as chairman of the 1946 governors conference, succeeding Gov. Herbert B. Maw of Utah.

Three new members of the executive committee were named: Govs. Harry F. Kelly, of Michigan, Ellis Arnall of Georgia and J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island. They replaced Governors Dwight H. Green of Illinois, Dwight Griswold of Nebraska and Herbert R. O'Connor of Maryland.

Baldwin Keeps Post

The remaining members of the committee are Govs. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, Robert S. Kerr, of Oklahoma, Chauncey Sparks of Alabama and Earl Warren of California.

Earlier it had adopted 13 other resolutions headed by one endorsing the United Nations charter and calling for its prompt approval by the Senate.

The fight on food took most of the day. It was interrupted by an off-the-record discussion of the Pacific war by General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the fleet.

The food resolution adopted said the situation surrounding food production, processing and distribution is such that the people "are now unable to purchase the necessary items upon an equitable basis."

Besides pledging support to Congress and interested government agencies in finding a solution, the resolution called for appointment of not less than three governors to go to Washington soon to lend assistance in trying to improve the situation.

Seek Ration Changes

Governor Griswold told reporters that the fight revolved around a motion by northeastern governors to come out for detailed changes in the rationing system and slaughtering practices. He said their program was essentially that recently approved by a conference of 13 governors from the Northeastern states called by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York. Governor Walter E. Edge of New Jersey sought inclusion of a proposal favoring meat imports from "neighboring" countries, but it never came to a vote.

After a lengthy discussion the Griswold proposition prevailed unanimously. The Nebraskan said it was a question of taking his resolution or "staying around three months trying to write a congressional act in all its details."

Truman Asked to Discuss Palestine at Big 3 Talks

37 Governors Sign Petition to Aid Jewish Colonization

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 4 (AP).—Thirty-seven Governors joined today in a petition to President Truman that he take up at the coming Big Three meeting the question of Jewish colonization of Palestine.

"We believe," said the petition, "that the time has come when concrete measures must be taken to open the doors of Palestine to Jewish mass immigration and colonization and to bring about the earliest transformation of that country into a free and democratic Jewish commonwealth, and we most earnestly urge you to take such action as will contribute to this end. In any steps which you, Mr. President, may take to bring about the realization of this program we desire to assure you that you can rely upon the approbation of the American people and count on our individual support."

The petition was forwarded by Governor Herbert B. Maw, of Utah, who said it was initiated by himself and Governors Thomas E. Dewey, of New York; Raymond E. Balwin, of Connecticut; Maurice J. Tobin, of Massachusetts, and J. Howard McGrath, of Rhode Island.

Other Governors who signed the petition:

Chauncey Sparks, Alabama; Sidney P. Osborn, Arizona; Ben T. Laney, Arkansas; Walter W. Bacon, Delaware; Millard F. Caldwell, Florida; Dwight W. Green, Illinois; Charles C. Gossett, Idaho; Robert D. Blue, Iowa; Andrew F. Schoeppel, Kansas; Simeon S. Willis, Kentucky; Herbert R. O'Connor, Maryland; Harry F. Kelly, Michigan; Edward J. Thye, Minnesota; Phil M. Donnelly, Missouri; Sam C. Ford, Montana; E. P. Carville, Nevada; Charles M. Dale, New Hampshire; Acting Governor Farley, New Jersey; Thomas E. Dempsey, New Mexico; R. Gregg Cherry, North Carolina; Fred G. Aandahl, North Dakota; Frank J. Lausche, Ohio; Robert S. Kerr, Oklahoma; Earl Snell, Oregon; Edward Martin, Pennsylvania; Ransome J. Williams, South Carolina; M. Q. Tourist Group Planned

Illinois, Ohio, Indiana May Join in Great Lakes Association

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 4 (AP).—Proposals to bring the states of Ohio, Illinois and Indiana into a suggested Great Lakes Regional Tourist Association were advanced tonight on the eve or an International Tourist Conference here. Governor Harry F. Kelly of Michigan, sponsor of the association plan, said he had invited Governors Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, Dwight H. Green of Illinois and Ralph F. Gates of Indiana to join the conference.

Governors Edward J. Thye of Minnesota, Walter S. Goodland of Wisconsin and Dana Porter, Minister of Planning and Development for Ontario, previously had accepted invitations to discuss the formation of an organization to boom the Great Lakes region as a national tourist playground. Paul

Murphy Calls for Battle On Intolerance and Bias

Warns of 'Manifestations of Nazi Disease Here'

HOLLYWOOD, July 4 (AP).—Associate Justice Frank Murphy, of the Supreme Court, told an Independence Day throng today that "ours is now the spiritual battle, the battle against all the manifestations of the Nazi disease we may find among our own people."

"We must become alert to the symptoms of moral decay," he said in an address prepared for delivery in Hollywood Bowl.

"Fortunately our military victories have crushed the power to do harm, if not the inflated and insane egotism, of the Fascists. We still have to mount guard, however, against those in our midst who have been nurtured on the myths of the superior and inferior races and who practice discrimination against fellow Americans because of the color of their skins or some other arbitrary racial sign. . . .

"There are still among us, calling themselves Christians, those who follow the Nazi line of anti-Semitism and fail to see that, in attacking the Jews, they undermine the basic tenets of Christianity. . . .

"We must remove the economic insecurity and social frictions which tempt the weak to seek scapegoats on whom to blame their troubles or on whom to pour their blind hatred, born of frustration and defeat.

"This war has driven home the bitter lesson of the 1929 depression: the welfare of all classes of Americans, from the lowliest to the highest, as well as that of all nations, forms one indivisible unity."

G. I.s in Coaches Angry as P. W.s Ride Pullmans

500 Back From Europe Tell of Crowded Journey From Here to California

MARYSVILLE, Calif., July 4 (AP).—Five hundred combat veterans from the European area arrived at Camp Beale yesterday protesting that they were required to ride across the country in crowded day coaches while German war prisoners had Pullman accommodations.

Lieutenant Colonel Peter de Paolo, ranking officer aboard, described the trip as "a mess." At a stop in New York, the colonel called Washington protesting the overcrowded conditions in the cars, where three men were occupying seats for two. Sleepers were prom-used at Chicago and later at Omaha, but failed to materialize.

At Omaha the veterans said they spotted a trainload of German prisoners riding in sleepers. "They really raised the roof," the colonel declared.

Frequently there was no drinking water for the soldiers, and seldom was there water for washing or shaving. Major John E. Norberg, of Burlingame, Calif., said they were so crowded that men were forced to sleep in the aisle. Two men jumped the train in New Haven and two in New York, the officers said.

A spokesman at the War Department in Washingtton said that an investigation has been started. He pointed out that the Army has a directive prohibiting the use of Pullmans for prisoners of war except where medical officers consider such accommodations necessary or where there is an isolated case of a prisoner whom authorities think should be kept from public view.

One of the eight commuter-type day coaches used in the United States soldiers' train arrived with the following sign chalked on its side: "We get back from England and we have to ride all the way to California in a chair car while the German P. W.'s ride in Pullman. Now is that fair? We ask you."

3D ELLIOTT LOAN DEFAULT REVEALED

Insurance Man Says He Lost $40,000 Of $70,000

Montclair, N.J., July 4 (AP)—David G. Baird, New York insurance executive, said today he and a business acquaintance loaned Elliott Roosevelt $120,000, and took a loss of approximately $70,000 when the Texas radio network business venture of the late President's son went on the rocks.

Baird said that through "payment and salvage" he recovered about $30,000 on a $70,000 loan made in 1939 and Maxwell M. Bilofsky, radio tube and electrical apparatus manufacturer, recovered about $20,000 on a $50,000 loan.

Stock Never Purchased

The loans, Baird said, were "private and personal investments, entered into for profit because the loan carried for the lenders an option to purchase stock in the network at the original offering price, and the gains could have been substantial. The companies did not turn out to be profitable, and the loans were liquidated at losses to the lenders."

Baird said stock in the network never was purchased by the lenders.

Baird said that, as far as he knew, President Roosevelt was not apprised of the loan transaction. He classed himself a political independent with no political connections, and said he never had any Government contracts or negotiations.

"No comment" was his answer to questions about the tax angle of the loan.

Counsel for John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, said recently that Hartford loaned $200,000 to young Roosevelt, settled for $4,000 and wrote off the loan as a bad debt in his 1942 income-tax return.

Only In A Business Way

Baird said he recovered as much as he did because Roosevelt gave him Transcontinental Broadcasting Company stock as collateral. He said he had known Roosevelt, now a brigadier general in the Army, for a number of years, but only in a business way.

Baird said he had "nothing to add" to yesterday's statment by Bilofsky, a Loch Arbour resident and Newark manufacturer, who said he loaned young Roosevelt $50,000 in 1939, took as collateral 500 shares in Texas Radio Network stock which proved to be worthless and received final and total payment of $20,800 in 1941 and 1942.

Bilofsky said he did not claim the deal as a loss for income tax purposes.

Bilofsky said his loan was arranged by Baird, who he said approached him in behalf of Roosevelt when he was raising funs to buy the network.

25,000 Lose War Jobs

PHILADELPHIA, July 4 (AP).—Approximately 25,000 war workers in the Philadelphia area have lost jobs through recent termination of contracts and cutbacks, Levy Anderson, director of the Regional War Man Power Commission said today. The area comprises Philadelphia, parts of Delaware, Chester, Montgomery and Bucks Counties, Camden, Gloucester Counties and a portion of Burlington County, in New Jersey. Mr. Anderson said the situation is not critical, adding that industry in this area is sufficiently diversified to absorb the great majority of employees released from war jobs.

M.P.'s Guard Guam Watermelon Patch

Kansas City, July 4 (AP)—The United States now has MP's guarding its watermelon patch in Guam, and for the same reason as at home—to keep out pilferers.

Alvin S. McCoy, war correspondent of the Kansas City Star, today reported from Guam that the first ten-acre patch of watermelons planted there by the Army was a failure because of pilferage. B. E. Lundholm, of Salinas, Cal., Foreign Economic Administration representative, told McCoy:

"These city boys don't know how to thump a melon, and they'd plug all the green ones, causing them to rot in the field. We lost every melon we tried to grow. Now we're planting 40 acres more, and we'll have MP's around them all night."

McCoy reported the Army had taken about 50 milk cows, 900 hogs and much seed to Guam, and now was producing fresh milk, meat and vegetables for soldiers stationed there. More than 100 former farm boys have been recruited from the Army to handle the army farms.

Charter Approval Seen

PORT HENRY, N. Y., July 4 (AP).—Approval by the Senate of the United Nations charter would provide a "solemn declaration to the world that America wants permanent peace and is ready to give leadership in attaining it," National American Legion Commander Edward N. Scheiberling, of Albany, said today.

Addressing members of the Clark-Patnode Legion Post on the establishment of their new home here, Mr. Scheiberling expressed "confidence" that the Senate would act favorably.

Yank Pilot Home As A Stowaway

New York, July 4 (AP)—Listed as a stowaway and AWOL, a young air force lieutenant arrived today in one of two troopships that brought back 833 soldiers from Europe.

Army officials, who did not identify the red-haired, husky lad, said he went aboard at Le Havre and concealed himself in a gun turret until the ship was well at sea. They said his plane had been shot down and that he had been a prisoner of war.

The officer told shipmates that he left a convalescent hospital after watching many of his buddies leave for home. He was held in custody while officers pondered what to do with him.

Shared Purser's Cabin

Lieut. Harold W. Buckless, Hudson Falls, N.Y., transport commander of the Liberty freighter Ezra Cornell, said the flyer shared a cabin with the ship's purser because there was no army space available.

The Cornell brought in 372 veterans—most of them signal corpsmen and drivers of the 517th Quartermaster Car Company.

The Liberty freighter Robin Sherwood, also from Le Havre, arrived with 416 soldiers — most of them members of the 294th Field Artillery Observation Battalion—and a cargo of champagne, cognac

ELECTIONS

BY DON DOANE

LONDON, JULY 4-(AP)-ONE OF THE BITTEREST ELECTION CAMPAIGNS IN BRITISH HISTORY ENDED TODAY IN A CRESCENDO OF BOOS AND CHEERS WHICH ALL BUT DROWNED OUT DISCUSSION OF THE IMPORTANT ISSUES TO BE DECIDED BY VOTERS TOMORROW.

MOST BOOS AND CHEERS WERE AIMED AT ONE MAN--WINSTON CHURCHILL, WHOSE STUBBY FIGURE HAS BEEN THE STORM CENTER OF THE CAMPAIGN. ITS OUTCOME WILL DECIDE WHETHER HE REMAINS AS PRIME MINISTER TO MAINTAIN THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY'S DOCTRINE OF FREE ENTERPRISE OR GIVES WAY TO A LABORITE SUCCESSOR COMMITTED TO NATIONALIZATION OF BASIC INDUSTRIES.

SELDON HAS ANY BRITISH CAMPAIGN PRODUCED A SPECTACLE LIKE THAT ENACTED LAST NIGHT, WHEN THE MAN WHO HEADED THE GOVERNMENT THROUGH THE VICTORIOUS EUROPEAN WAR FOUND HIMSELF HARDLY ABLE TO SPEAK ABOVE THE DIN OF CATCALLS AND CHEERING FROM A CROWD ESTIMATED AT 25,000 IN A BIG NORTHEAST LONDON STADIUM.

CHURCHILL WAS PLEADING THE CONSERVATIVE CAUSE IN THE HEAT OF ONE OF THE BIGGEST AND ROUGHEST OF LABOR STRONGHOLDS. THE PRIME MINISTER HUMOROUSLY DUBBED HIS INTERRUPTERS "THE BOOING PARTY" AND HE ASSURED THEM:

"IN A FREE COUNTRY EVERYONE HAS A PERFECT RIGHT TO CHEER AND BOO AS MUCH AS HE LIKES."

ONCE HE ANNOUNCED HE WAS ALLOWING TWO MINUTES FOR BOOING--OF WHICH THE CROWD TOOK FULL ADVANTAGE. HIS SUPPORTERS ANSWERED THE HECKLERS BY CHEERING.

FINALLY CHURCHILL SAID:

"ANYONE WHO INTERRUPTS IN AN ORGANIZED MANNER IN A GREAT PUBLIC GATHERING IS GUILTY OF THOSE VERY CRIMES WHICH OUR SOLDIERS HAVE SWEPT AWAY ACROSS EUROPE WITH FIRE AND SWORD."

THE SIGHT OF CHURCHILL OUT THERE ALONE DEFYING THE NOISY CROWD WAS A DRAMATIC DEPICTION OF HIS ROLE IN THE WHOLE CAMPAIGN. MUCH OF THE

30.24-28123

CONSERVATIVE PARTY'S BURDEN HAS FALLEN ON HIS 70-YEAR-OLD SHOULDERS, WITH THE OPPOSITION LIKEWISE CENTERING ITS FIRE ON HIM. HE WINDS UP HIS PARTY'S VOTE DRIVE TONIGHT WITH A SPEAKING TOUR THROUGH SOUTH LONDON.

THE LAST SHOTS FOR LABOR WILL BE FIRED BY CLEMENT ATTLEE--WHO IS LIKELY TO SUCCEED CHURCHILL IF THE LABORITES WIN--AND BY HIS CHIEF LIEUTENANTS, ERNEST BEVIN AND HERBERT MORRISON, ALL FORMER MEMBERS OF CHURCHILL'S DISBANDED COALITION WAR CABINET.

DOMESTIC POLICIES FORMED THE BASIC CAMPAIGN ISSUES, WITH ALL PARTIES PLEDGING FULLEST PROSECUTION OF THE JAPANESE WAR, BUT CHURCHILL INJECTED FOREIGN POLICY LAST NIGHT BY QUESTIONING WHETHER A LABORITE PREMIER WOULD BE FREE TO ACT AT THE PEACE CONFERENCE WITHOUT HAVING TO ACCOUNT TO HIS PARTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

A14

JUL 5 - 1945

SAYING THE LABOR PARTY'S CONSTITUTION "APPARENTLY WOULD ENABLE THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE TO CALL UPON A LABOR PRIME MINISTER TO APPEAR BEFORE THEM AND CRITICIZE HIS CONDUCT OF PEACE NEGOTIATIONS," CHURCHILL ASKED ATTLEE IN A LETTER "HOW HE WOULD DEFEND HIS ACTIONS WITHOUT THE DISCLOSURE OF CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION."

ATTLEE REPLIED THAT CHURCHILL CONFUSED "THE RIGHT TO BE CONSULTED" WITH "THE POWER TO CHALLENGE ACTIONS" AND COMMENTED THAT IN RAISING SUCH A QUESTION "I THINK YOU UNDERESTIMATE THE INTELLIGENCE OF THE PUBLIC." IT WAS THE SECOND EXCHANGE OF LETTERS BETWEEN CHURCHILL AND ATTLEE ON THIS ISSUE.

THE NEWSPAPERS, MOST OF WHICH HAVE TAKEN SIDES VIOLENTLY IN THE CAMPAIGN, FOUND SPACE FOR LITTLE BESIDES POLITICS THIS MORNING. BOTH SIDES URGED A BIG TURNOUT FOR THE FIRST NATIONAL ELECTIONS IN 10 YEARS. ABOUT 25,000,000 VOTERS ARE EXPECTED TO RESPOND.

MANY VOTES WILL COME BY AIRPLANE FROM SOLDIERS OVERSEAS AND THEIR TABULATION WILL DELAY ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE RESULTS UNTIL JULY 26.

IN THE MEANTIME BOTH CHURCHILL AND ATTLEE WILL ATTEND THE BIG THREE MEETING AT BERLIN WHILE AWAITING THE VERDICT WHICH WILL CALL ON ONE OF THEM AS PRIME MINISTER TO EXECUTE THE POLICIES DECIDED THERE.

PS334AEW

ADD LDN Election (WAR KKK Cabinet (Hercher)

ALL THE COLOR AND BITTERNESS OF THE CAMPAIGN SEEMED EPITOMIZED IN CHURCHILL'S LAST TOUR. FOR A TIME HIS AUTOMOBILE WAS ACCOMPANIED BY A SOUND TRUCK BLARING THE MERITS OF LABOR PARTY CANDIDATES AND SAYING "GIVE CHURCHILL A CHEER BUT TURN OUT THE OLD TORY GANG TOMORROW."

THE PRIME MINISTER GOT A TASTE OF THE "FOURTH OF JULY" WHEN A BOY SET OFF A GIANT FIRECRACKER ALMOST IN CHURCHILL'S FACE. HE FLINCHED AND STOPPED SPEAKING, BUT WHEN POLICE MOVED TOWARD THE BOY HE SMILINGLY SAID, "DON'T HURT THE LITTLE FOOL."

JUL 5 - 1945

HIGH ABOVE THE PERSONAL ABUSE THE CAMPAIGN ELICITED STOOD ONE PARAMOUNT ISSUE--WHETHER THE COUNTRY WANTED TO FINISH THE WAR UNDER CHURCHILL'S LEADERSHIP AND TACKLE THE PEACE WITH THE CONSERVATIVE POLICY OF FREE ENTERPRISE, OR WOULD GIVE THE REINS TO THE LABOR PARTY AND BEGIN POST-WAR RECOVERY WITH THE NATIONALIZATION OF BASIC INDUSTRIES.

THERE WILL BE 640 SEATS IN THE NEW PARLIAMENT, BUT ONLY 613 WILL BE VOTED UPON TOMORROW. THREE MEMBERS HAVE BEEN RETURNED UNOPPOSED, 23 CONTESTS HAVE BEEN POSTPONED FOR LOCAL REASONS AND ONE ELECTION DEFERRED BECAUSE OF THE DEATH OF A LABOR CANDIDATE.

THERE WAS A POSSIBILITY THAT THE ELECTION WOULD NOT GIVE EITHER PARTY A BIG ENOUGH MAJORITY FOR A STABLE GOVERNMENT. IN THAT EVENT, ANOTHER ELECTION WOULD BE IN PROSPECT.

JUL 5 - 1945

LONDON, JULY 3-(AP)-PEACETIME COOPERATION OF THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN AIR FORCES IN DEMONSTRATIONS OF THEIR COMBINED STRENGTH TO DISCOURAGE WAR-MINDED NATIONS WAS SUGGESTED TODAY BY AN RAF OFFICER.

THE COMBINED FORCES COULD PARADE THEIR POWER AND PROGRESS WHEN SOME NATION WAS THINKING OF WAR, HE SAID.

THE OFFICER, WHO CANNOT BE IDENTIFIED, SPOKE AT A CONFERENCE FOR AMERICAN AVIATION WRITERS TOURING EUROPEAN BATTLEFIELDS TO EVALUATE AIRPOWER IN THE LIGHT OF METHODS AND RESULTS IN THE WAR WITH THE AXIS.

THE OFFICIAL SAID THAT WHILE HE DID NOT KNOW WHETHER THE UNITED STATES HAD REQUESTED POSTWAR BASES IN THE UNITED KINGDOM, IT MIGHT BE AN EXCELLENT IDEA TO CONTINUE THE CLOSE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE TWO GREAT AIR FORCES, DEVELOPED DURING WAR, FOR EXCHANGE OF IDEAS AND METHODS. DEMONSTRATIONS OF AMERICAN-BRITISH AIRPOWER, HE SAID, MIGHT HELP KEEP THE PEACE AFTER THE TIME WHEN OCCUPATION FORCES NO LONGER ARE MAINTAINED IN AXIS COUNTRIES.

EARLIER, LORD SWINTON, CIVIL AVIATION MINISTER, TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE FOR THE AVIATION WRITERS THAT THE BRITISH WOULD INSIST ON A TRAFFIC DIVISION FORMULA WHEN THEY NEGOTIATE A NEW AIR TRANSPORT AGREEMENT WITH THE UNITED STATES.

THE NEGOTIATIONS HAVE NOT YET BEEN ARRANGED, BUT "WE WILL HAVE TO BE GETTING AROUND TO THAT ONE OF THESE DAYS," HE ADDED.

BRITISH OPPOSITION TO THE SO-CALLED FIFTH FREEDOM--THE PRIVILEGE TO CARRY TRAFFIC BETWEEN TERRITORIES OTHER THAN THAT OF THE CARRIER'S HOMELAND--HAS NOT BEEN RELEASED, HE SAID, SINCE THE INTERNATIONAL AVIATION CONFERENCE AT CHICAGO, WHERE THAT ISSUE WAS A STUMBLING BLOCK TO COMPLETE AGREEMENT.

LORD SWINTON SAID HE WAS WILLING TO SIGN AN AGREEMENT WITHOUT THE FIFTH FREEDOM CLAUSE IMMEDIATELY. BUT AT THE SAME TIME, HE ADDED, HE WOULD PROPOSE AN ESCALATOR CLAUSE WHEREIN EACH NATION'S OPERATING CAPACITY ABOVE A BASIC MINIMUM WOULD BE DETERMINED BY THE AVERAGE LOADS CARRIED--OR AS AN ALTERNATIVE WOULD SEEK A 50-50 SPLIT OF TRAFFIC.

THE POINTS SWINTON MENTIONED, HOWEVER, SEEM CERTAIN TO BE REJECTED BY THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT IN SUCH NEGOTIATIONS. THE UNITED STATES HOPES TO ESTABLISH FAIR PRACTICE RULES, AND LEAVE CONTROL OF THE OPERATING FREQUENCIES WITH THE CARRIERS, JUST AS IS DONE ON DOMESTIC ROUTES.

AT PRESENT, THE ANGLO-AMERICAN AGREEMENT PROVIDES TWO ROUND TRIPS WEEKLY BY IMPERIAL AIRWAYS AND PAN-AMERICAN AIRWAYS.

THAT AGREEMENT IS THE ONLY ONE WITH THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT NAMING AN AIRLINE, AND AN EFFORT WILL BE MADE TO REPLACE IT WITH ONE PERMITTING SERVICES BY WHICHEVER CARRIERS MAY BE CERTIFICATED.

WASHINGTON REPORTS INDICATE PRESIDENT TRUMAN WILL APPROVE NORTH ATLANTIC ROUTES FOR PAN-AMERICAN, AMERICAN EXPORT AIRLINES, AND TRANSCONTINENTAL AND WESTERN AIR.

DISCUSSING POSTWAR AVIATION GENERALLY, LORD SWINTON SAID HE EXPECTED TO SEE MASS AIR TRAVEL, BUT NOT AT THE PRICES WHICH SOME CARRIERS ADVERTISED.

FIVE DAYS LATER, MRS.BLUCK SAID, THEY WERE TRANSFERRED TO A PRISON CAMP AND A FEW DAYS AFTER THAT SHE AND HER HUSBAND WERE SEPARATED. SHE DOES NOT KNOW WHERE HE IS NOW AND HAS ASKED AMERICAN AUTHORITIES TO HELP FIND HIM.

TRANSFERRED TO ANOTHER CAMP AT RAVENSBRUECK, SHE WAS TREATED AS A "SPECIAL PRISONER," SHE SAID, "BUT EVERY MORNING WITH OTHER WOMEN PRISONERS I HAD TO STAND AT STRICT ATTENTION OUT IN THE OPEN FOR THREE OR FOUR HOURS FOR ROLL CALL AND IF WE SO MUCH AS PUT OUR HANDS IN OUR POCKETS TO KEEP THEM WARM WE WERE LIABLE TO BE STRUCK.

"I REPEATEDLY ASKED THE REASON FOR MY ARREST AND THE GUARDS TOLD ME, 'IT'S ENOUGH THAT YOU ARE LA GUARDIA'S SISTER.'"

IN AUGUST, 1944, SHE SAID, THE GERMANS TOOK HER DAUGHTER AND INFANT GRANDSON FROM BUDAPEST TO THE SAME PRISON, BUT SHE DID NOT KNOW THEY WERE THERE UNTIL ALL THREE WERE TRANSFERRED TOGETHER TO BERLIN ON APRIL 13.

AS THE RUSSIAN ARMY APPROACHED BERLIN, THEIR JAILERS FREED THEM--WITHOUT MONEY, IDENTIFICATION PAPERS OR FRIENDS IN THE CITY, SHE CONTINUED, AND A STREET POLICEMAN GUIDED THEM TO AN AIR RAID SHELTER. WHEN THE RUSSIANS CAME, SHE SAID, "I TOLD THEM WE WERE AMERICANS AND THEY SALUTED AND SAID 'AMERICANS AND RUSSIANS ARE FRIENDS.'"

"BY ACCIDENT WE MET A GENEROUS ANTI-FASCIST GERMAN FAMILY, WHICH TOOK US IN AND GAVE US A PLACE TO LIVE UNTIL WE COULD GO HOME," SHE SAID.

FRANKFURT, JULY 4--(AP)--THIS LETTER TO THE EDITOR, SIGNED BY PFC ALLEN S. HYDE, APPEARED IN TODAY'S EDITION OF STARS AND STRIPES:

JUL 5 - 1945

"THIS IS THE VOICE OF A GI, NOT OF A GENERAL OR POLITICIAN, BUT A COMMON SOLDIER IN THE ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES, I SPEAK OF GERMANY AND ITS AILMENTS.

"THE GERMANS--ALL AGES AND BOTH SEXES--PROFESS UNBELIEVABLE IGNORANCE OF THE TRUTH. THEY SAY AMERICA DECLARED WAR ON GERMANY FIRST; THAT [redacted] JEWISH PRISONERS IN BUCHENWALD WERE WELL FED; THAT ONLY SS [redacted] AND GESTAPO MEN WERE BAD; THAT CIVILIANS WERE IGNORANT OF WHAT WAS GOING ON IN GERMANY. THIS ANGERS THE GI, BUT HE CAN DO NOTHING.

JUL 5 - 1945

"THEY TAKE THE LINE THAT DOCTOR GOEBBELS USED SO LONG AND SOUND LIKE CARBON COPIES OF HIM; ONLY GERMANY REALIZES WHAT COMMUNISM IS AND SHE FOUGHT IT ALONE. RUSSIA IS TOO STRONG. SHE WANTS EUROPE. IN A FEW YEARS THE WESTERN ALLIES WILL CLASH WITH RUSSIA. THEY REPEAT STORIES OF RUSSIAN-ALLIED DISAGREEMENT.

"WHY SEVEN WEEKS AFTER THE WAR'S END ARE NOT POSTERS, PICTURES AND MOVIES DISTRIBUTED IN EVERY VILLAGE AND HAMLET IN GERMANY--POINTING OUT THE CRIMES, ATROCITIES AND HORRORS OF CONCENTRATION CAMPS?

"THE SHOCK OF RUIN AND DEFEAT HAS PASSED FOR THE GERMANS. THEY ARE BEGINNING TO PLAN AND SCHEME ON HOW TO DEFEAT OUR AIMS FOR THE FUTURE AND TO SHOW DISCORD AMONG THE ALLIES.

BY SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, JULY 4-(AP)-POLITICAL OBSERVERS HERE EXPRESSED BELIEF TODAY THAT PREMIER T.V. SOONG'S CURRENT VISIT TO MOSCOW MIGHT RESULT IN NEGOTIATION OF A MUTUAL AID PACT WHEREBY RUSSIA WOULD UNDERTAKE TO SUPPLY GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK'S ARMIES WITHOUT LENDING THEM DIRECT MILITARY AID.

SUCH SUPPLIES COULD BE SENT BOTH BY AIR AND OVER THE RUSSIA-CHINA SUPPLY ROUTE, THROUGH WHICH A TRICKLE OF MATERIAL CAME IN THE EARLY STAGES OF THE CHINESE-JAPANESE WAR.

IN RETURN CHINA WOULD MAKE CERTAIN CONCESSIONS TO RUSSIA -- MOST LIKELY GRANTING A WARM WATER NAVAL BASE IN THE LIAOTUNG PENINSULA OF MANCHURIA AND CERTAIN RAILWAY TRANSPORTATION RIGHTS THROUGH MANCHURIA, BOTH TO THE LIAOTUNG PENINSULA AND TO VLADIVOSTOK.

SUCH A PACT WOULD BE REGARDED HERE AS A GREAT POLITICAL TRIUMPH FOR SOONG.

AN UNDERSTANDING OF THIS NATURE, IT WAS BELIEVED, PROBABLY WOULD CARRY IMPLICIT SOVIET RENUNCIATION OF FUTURE AID TO THE CHINESE COMMUNISTS AND WOULD STRENGTHEN THE CHUNGKING GOVERNMENT'S HAND IN REACHING A SETTLEMENT OF CHINA'S MOST TROUBLESOME AND DANGEROUS INTERNAL ISSUE.

A GROUP OF SIX NON-PARTY MEMBERS OF THE PEOPLE'S POLITICAL COUNCIL ARE AT PRESENT IN YENAN SEEKING TERMS FOR AN UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENT AND THE COMMUNISTS.

GUAM, JULY 4--(AP)--"GENERAL CONFLAGRATIONS" SPREADING FROM THE WHITE-HOT BLASTS OF 3,000 TONS OF B-29 FIREBOMBS CREATED THE FOURTH OF JULY DAWN OVER FOUR MORE OF JAPAN'S WAR-PRODUCTION CENTERS.

TERMING THE 500-PLANE ASSAULT "HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL," MAJ. GEN. CURTIS E. LEMAY'S 21ST BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS SAID WEATHER WAS CLEARER THAN IT HAS BEEN FOR THREE WEEKS AND VIRTUALLY ALL PLANES BOMBED VISUALLY THEIR TARGETS IN TOKUSHIMA, TAKAMATSU AND KOCHI, ON SHIKOKU ISLAND, AND IMEJI ON HONSHU, 30 MILES WEST OF KOBE.

TOKYO RADIO TODAY CONCEDED 4,900,000 JAPANESE IN TOKYO, USMKELSYOKOHAMAIDANOWERAND KOBE WERE KILLED, INJURED OR RENDERED

DAY

OSAKA, YOKOHAMA, NAGOYA AND KOBE WERE KILLED, INJURED OR RENDERED HOMELESS IN AMERICAN AERIAL STRIKES UP TO MAY 31. A TOTAL OF 1,135,- 000 HOMES WERE DESTROYED IN THE FIVE BIG CITIES, THE BROADCAST ADMITTED.

THE BROADCAST CITED THESE FIGURES:

TOKYO: 707,000 HOMES DESTROYED: 3,100,000 PERSONS HOMELESS.

(EARLIER BROADCASTS HAVE INDICATED ONLY ABOUT 200,000 PERSONS EXPECT TO REMAIN IN TOKYO.)

OSAKA: 130,000 HOMES BURNED DOWN: 510,000 PERSONS HOMELESS.

YOKOHAMA: 132,000 HOMES DESTROYED: 650,000 HOMELESS.

NAGOYA: 96,000 HOMES DEMOLISHED: 380,000 PEOPLE AFFECTED.

KOBE: 70,000 HOUSES BURNED: 260,000 PEOPLE "COUNTED AS DESTROYED OR OTHERWISE VICTIMIZED."

TOKYO DID NOT SAY HOW MANY OF THE "HOMELESS" OR "AFFECTED" WERE DEAD.

GENERAL LEMAY SAID TO THE 500 PLANE COMMANDERS OF THE 20TH REPORTED TO HEADQUARTERS IN THE MARIANAS AFTER THEIR FLIGHTS DESCRIBING RESULTING FIRES AS RESULTING "SPECTACULAR" "GENERAL CONFLAGRATION"

PROPORTIONS IN ALL FOUR CITIES.

PILOTS SAID FLAMES APPEARED GREATEST AT TOKUSHIMA AT THE EXTREME NORTHEAST END OF SHIKOKU AT THE ENTRANCE TO THE INLAND SEA. DESTRUCTION WAS NEXT GREATEST IN KOCHI. FOR ALL EXCEPT IMEJI IT WAS THE FIRST FIRE RAID.

THE ENEMY'S MOST IMPORTANT CITIES WERE NOW PRACTICALLY OF JAPAN. TWENTY-SIX OF THE 37TH FIREBOMBING RAIDS OF THE 29ETS. WITH MORE THAN 117 SQUARE MILES OF THEIR INDUSTRIAL HEARTS DESTROYED.

KOCHI, A MAJOR INDUSTRIAL CITY OF SOUTHERN SHIKOKU, HOUSES PAPER AND TEXTILE MILLS NOW CONVERTED TO WAR PRODUCTS AS WELL AS PLYWOOD, METAL, CEMENT AND CHEMICAL PLANTS. ONE 21ST BOMBER COMMAND SPOKESMAN DESCRIBED IT AS AN IMPORTANT FOOD PRODUCING CENTER. TOKYO RADIO EARLIER ACKNOWLEDGED A GROWING FOOD SHORTAGE AND TALKED VAGUELY OF MAKING FOOD FROM MULBERRY LEAVES--THE PEACETIME DIET OF A SILKWORM.

TOKUSHIMA, SHIKOKU'S LARGEST CITY, CONTAINS LARGE TEXTILE MILLS NOW CONVERTED TO WAR INDUSTRY.

HIMEJI, ON HONSHU, IS A MAJOR RAILROAD TERMINAL, A MILITARY TRAINING CENTER, AND A PRODUCER OF EXPLOSIVES.

LESS THAN TWO DAYS AGO, A RECORD FLEET OF 600 SUPERFORTS RAINED A NEW PEAK LOAD OF 4,000 TONS OF FIREBOMBS ON THE HONSHU CITIES OF KURE, SHIMONOSEKI, UBE AND KUMAMOTO; AND ONLY TUESDAY 50 MORE RETURNED TO THE EMPIRE TO BLAST "SUCCESSFULLY" THE MARUZEN REFINERY AT SHIMITSU, 35 MILES FROM OSAKA. THERE WERE NO B-29 LOSSES AT SHIMITSU, AND ONLY TWO PLANES WERE LOST--WITH ALL BUT TWO CREWMEN SAVED--IN THE RECORD ASSAULT MONDAY.

RADIO TOKYO, ACKNOWLEDGING WEAKNESS OF THE EMPIRE'S DEFENSES AGAINST SUCH STRIKES, PROMISED NEW FIGHTER PLANES WOULD EMERGE "SOON" FROM UNDERGROUND SHOPS TO "BRING DOWN B-29S BEFORE THE VERY EYES OF THE PEOPLE."

BY SPENCER DAVIS

MANILA, JULY 4-(AP)-THE LAST JAPANESE AIR BASE IN THE BALIKPAPAN AREA WAS MENACED TODAY BY AUSTRALIAN SEVENTH DIVISION TROOPS, PACED BY CLATTERING MATILDA TANKS, SPREADING OUT ALONG THE INVADED EAST BORNEO COAST UNDER A CONTINUOUS FIRE SCREEN OF WARSHIPS, PLANES AND ARTILLERY.

THE TANK-LED COLUMNS WERE LESS THAN SIX MILES FROM THE TWO-RUNWAY MANGGAR AIRDROME, MILES TO THE NORTHEAST OF BLASTED, BURNING BALIKPAPAN, BORNEO'S GREATEST OIL PORT. MELBOURNE RADIO SAID THE FALL OF BALIKPAPAN IS BUT "A MATTER OF HOURS."

THE ARMORED SPEARHEADS OPERATED EAST OF SEPINGGANG AIRFIELD, OCCUPIED ONLY SUNDAY NIGHT BUT ALREADY SENDING UP SCOUT PLANES AS "EYES" FOR THE GROUND BATTERIES. BUSY ENGINEERS EXPECTED TO HAVE THE CRATERED 4,600-FOOT AIRFIELD READY FOR TRANSPORT PLANES SOON.

A FIELD NEAR BALIKPAPAN, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT RUSSELL BRINES GAVE THIS OVERALL SUMMARY TODAY:

"ENEMY FORCES IN THIS AREA APPARENTLY WERE TOPPLED OFF BALANCE AND RIPPED INTO SMALL UNITS, LACKING COMMUNICATIONS, BY THE INTENSE PRE-LANDING BOMBARDMENTS. THEY HAVE FAILED TO REGAIN THEIR EQUILISRIUM IN THE FACE OF THE SWIFT AUSSIE ADVANCE. HENCE, THEY WERE UNABLE TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE INTENSIVE FORTIFICATIONS THEY PREPARED LONG AGO."

HE REPORTED THAT THE AUSSIES, AFTER UNCOVERING 500 ENEMY MINES, STILL WERE PLAGUED BY THE MOST INGENIOUS MAZE OF CONCEALED DEMOLITIONS AND BOOBY TRAPS YET ENCOUNTERED IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC. BRINES SAID THE JAPANESE PROBABLY WILL PUT UP A STRONG DEFENSE ALONG THE HIGHWAY LEADING NORTH FROM BALIKPAPAN 58 MILES TO MARA IN THE HEART OF THE MAIN OIL FIELDS.

JUL 5 - 1945

FROM THE LAST RIDGES BEFORE BALIKPAPAN, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT JAMES HUTCHESON LOOKED DOWN ON MILLIONS OF DOLLARS OF WRECKED REFINERIES, SMASHED BY ALLIED AIR AND NAVAL ATTACKS TO RENDER THEM USELESS TO THE ENEMY.

A10FX

NOW ENGINEERS STAND READY TO BEGIN THE TREMENDOUS JOB OF RESTORING THEM BUT HUTCHESON SAID IT WAS LIKELY THAT THE OIL FIELDS SERVING THEM WOULD REMAIN IN ENEMY HANDS FOR SOME TIME. THE AUSSIES NEAR BALIKPAPAN HAD MADE THE DEEPEST INLAND PENETRATION FROM SUNDAY'S INVASION BEACHES--TWO MILES.

THE CAPTURE OF SEPINGGANG AIRFIELD AGAINST LIGHT OPPOSITION GAVE GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S FORCES A BASE WITHIN FIGHTER PLANE RANGE OF JAVA AND AFFORDED THE U.S. SEVENTH FLEET AIR COVER ON RUNS DEEP INSIDE MAKASSAR STRAITS, UNTIL RECENTLY PENETRATED ONLY BY ALLIED SUBMARINES.

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCEMENT IN WASHINGTON OF THE RECENT SINKING OF THE JAPANESE HEAVY CRUISER, ASHIGURU, BY THE BRITISH SUBMARINE, TRENCHANT, IN WATERS BETWEEN JAVA AND SINGAPORE INDICATED THAT ALREADY A TIGHT NET HAS BEEN DRAWN AROUND THE INDIES.

WITH THE AIR AND SEA POWER SOON AVAILABLE, THOUSANDS OF ENEMY TROOPS NOW GARRISONED ON SOUTHERN BORNEO, JAVA, CELEBES AND TIMOR WILL BE CUT OFF HOPELESSLY FROM A LARGE SCALE WITHDRAWAL TO THE ASIATIC MAINLAND.

THE ASHIGURU WAS THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN ON AN EVACUATION RUN FROM BATAVIA TO SINGAPORE WHEN ATTACKED IN DAYLIGHT BY THE TRENCHANT. SEVENTH FLEET HEADQUARTERS DISCLOSED THE DARING ATTACK WAS CONDUCTED BY THE ROYAL NAVY COMMANDER, BALDY NEZLETT, IN COMPARATIVELY SHALLOW WATER WHILE JAPANESE PLANES FLEW OVER THE CRUISER. NEZLETT WAS AWARDED THE LEGION OF MERIT, HIGHEST AMERICAN AWARD TO A MEMBER OF AN ALLIED NAVY.

THE EFFECTIVENESS OF ALLIED AIR ATTACKS ON BALIKPAPAN, CARRIED OUT LARGELY BY LONG RANGE HEAVY BOMBERS OF THE U.S. 13TH AIRFORCE, WAS EMPHASIZED BY CORRESPONDENT HUTCHESON:

"FROM APPEARANCES, THE JAPS COULDN'T HAVE BEEN ABLE TO GET A GALLON OF OIL THROUGH THE REFINING PROCESS. APPARENTLY DESTROYED SOME TIME AGO."

MANILA, JULY 4-(AP)-SECRETARY OF WAR STIMSON TODAY CONGRATULATED GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR ON COMPLETION OF THE LUZON CAMPAIGN.

"YOUR ANNOUNCEMENT THAT ALL LUZON HAS BEEN LIBERATED MARKS THE ACHIEVEMENT OF A GREAT MILITARY SUCCESS," STIMSON SAID IN HIS MESSAGE FROM WASHINGTON TO THE COMMANDER OF ALL ARMY FORCES IN THE PACIF

"MY CONGRATULATIONS GO TO YOU AND ALL OFFICERS AND MEN IN YOUR COMMAND FOR THIS MOST SKILFULL AND HEROIC ACHIEVEMENT."

THE SIXTH ARMY COMMANDED BY LT. GEN. WALTER KRUEGER AND THE EIGHTH UNDER LT. GEN. ROBERT L. EICHELBERGER MADE THE BEACHHEADS AND DEFEATED THE JAPANESE ON LUZON, MINDANAO AND OTHER ISLANDS OF THE PHILIPPINE GROUP.

"FROM MY OWN SERVICE IN THE ISLANDS AND MY CLOSE ASSOCIATION WITH THEIR GOVERNMENT I HAVE RETAINED HIGH RESPECT AND WARM FRIENDSHIP FOR THE PHILIPPINE PEOPLE," STIMSON SAID.

"THEY HAVE SUFFERED CRUELLY UNDER THE JAPANESE OCCUPATION. I SHARE THEIR GREAT REJOICING AT LIBERATION OF THE MAIN ISLAND OF THEIR COMMONWEALTH. YOUR GREAT VICTORY HASTENS THE DAY WHEN THE LAST OF THE OPPRESSORS WILL HAVE BEEN CLEARED FROM FILIPINO SOIL."

MANILA, JULY 4-(AP)-LANDSLIDES AND HEAVY RAINS IMPEDED THE ADVANCE TODAY OF MAJ.GEN.CHARLES HURD'S SIXTH DIVISION AS IT PUSHED ON KIANGAN IN THE WILDERNESS OF NORTHERN LUZON ISLAND'S RUGGED MOUNTAIN PROVINCE.

SPEARHEADING THE ADVANCE IN THE VIRTUALLY CONCLUDED CAMPAIGN, THE 63RD INFANTRY REGIMENT AT THE BASE OF MOUNT SANTO DOMINGO GAINED 3,000 YARDS TO FIND FRESH EVIDENCE OF THE DEADLY ACCURACY OF THE FIFTH AIR FORCE'S STRAFING ATTACKS AND SUPPORTING ARTILLERY FIRE.

THE INABILITY OF JAPANESE ENGINEERS TO CONSTRUCT BRIDGES ACROSS THE SWIFT LAMUT AND IBULAO RIVERS WAS A PRIME FACTOR IN THE CATCHING OF AN ENEMY MOTORIZED COLUMN, BUMPER TO BUMPER ALONG THE HIGHWAY, BY A STRAFING AIRCRAFT PATROL.

THE TOLL IN JAPANESE DEAD, WRECKED TRUCKS, EQUIPMENT AND AMMUNITION STILL HAS NOT BEEN COMPLETELY COMPUTED. SO FAR MORE THAN 300 DEAD AND 298 ENEMY TRUCKS HAVE BEEN COUNTED IN A 14-MILE STRETCH BETWEEN THE TWO RIVERS. ONE CONVOY OF 45 TRUCKS AND NUMEROUS CARABAO CARTS WERE CAUGHT PREPARING TO FORD THE LAMUT RIVER. BODIES, RICE AND TRUCKS WERE STREWN FOR A MILE AND A HALF ALONG THE HIGHWAY AFTER THE STRAFING PLANES HIT.

FILIPINO GUERRILLAS, AIDED BY AMERICANS, CAPTURED THE AGUSAN VALLEY TOWN OF WALOE ON MINDANAO ISLAND, WHERE OPERATIONS WERE NOT HINDERED SO GREATLY BY THE TYPHOON SEASON AS IN LUZON.

FLYING HIS 35TH AND FINAL MISSION, CAPT.GRAHAM L.MILLER, BRANDSVILLE, PA., SAID OF THE TAKAMATSU RAID:

"IT WAS A NICE MISSION TO END ON. WE COULD SEE FIRES BURNING IN THREE OTHER CITIES."

CAPT.GEORGE MCCARTHY, WOODHAVEN, N.Y., ADDED, "IT WAS A REAL FOURTH OF JULY--PLENTY OF FIREWORKS ON THE GROUND."

COL.ED REYNOLDS, BEAUMONT, TEX., FLYING THE PLANE "CITY OF FORT WORTH," AGREED. "WE HAD OUR OWN SPECIAL FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION AND IF THE JAPS CAN'T SEE THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL NOW, THERE IS NO PREDICTING WHEN THEY WILL," HE SAID.

"WE WERE UNOPPOSED--NO FLAK, NO FIGHTERS. OUR FORMATION LEFT THE TARGET ABLAZE AND WE COULD SEE FLAMES BURNING FIERCELY IN OTHER CITIES BEING BOMBED." REYNOLDS WAS WITH A GROUP THAT HIT TOKUSHIMA.

BALIKPAPAN BORNEO, JULY 5-(THURSDAY)-(AP)-AUSTRALIAN AND JAPANESE ARTILLERY DUELED TODAY ACROSS THE NARROW, TH E-MILE-WIDE BALIKPAPAN BAY AS THE AUSSIES PUSHED AHEAD LIKE AN UNCHECKED TIDE TOWARD COMPLETE ENVELOPMENO OF JAPANESE INSTALLATIONS IN THIS H RICH OIL CENTER.

JUL 5 - 1945

NVADING DIGGERS CELEBRATED THE AMERICAN SOURTH OF JULY

WITH A SWEEP THROUGH THE VAST SCRAPHEAP WHICH FORMERLY WAS THE MAIN OIL DOCK INSTALLATIONS IN THE HEART OF THE ONCE WEALTHY TOWN.

TODAY THEY HAMMERED AT THE PANDANIARI REFINERY AREA AT THE NORTH END OF TOWN, THE PRINCIPAL ESTABLISHMENT REMAINING IN THE HANDS OF THE JAPANESE.

LIGHT BUT STUBBORN JAPANESE RESISTANCE REMAINED AROUND THE REFINERIES WHICH ARE SOUTH OF THE PANDANIARI RIVER.

REFINERIES WHICH ARE SOUTH OF THE PANDANIARI RIVER.

THE MAIN ENEMY FORCES APPARENTLY ARE WITHDRAWING NORTHEASTWARD ALONG THE ROAD TO SAMARINDA IN THE HEART OF OIL FIELDS. AUSTRALIAN GROUND FORCES MOVED TOWARD THAT REGION IN THE CENTER OF THE EXPANDING FRONT UNDER COVER OF HEAVY NAVAL GUNFIRE AND ARTILLERY SUPPORT.

THE FIRST PATROLS ENTERED THE TOWN OF BALIKPAPAN ON JULY 2. THE MAIN FORCES DOMINATED THE VIRTUALLY DESERTED INDUSTRIAL AREA THE FOLLOWING DAY FROM KEY RIDGES OVERLOOKING THE NARROW FLATLANDS WHERE THE MILLIONS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF OIL DOCKING EQUIPMENT HAD BEEN LOCATED.

" FOR ALL PRACTICAL PURPOSES THE OIL PORT IS IN ALLIED HANDS. AMERICAN ARMY ENGINEERS SAILED THE FIRST ALLIED CRAFT SINCE 1941 INTO BALIKPAPAN BAY ON THE FOURTH JULY, PILOTING TWO LCMS THROUGH UNCLEARED MINEFIELDS TO THE JAPANESE-BUILT PONTOON WHARVES.

ALL SIX PREWAR ANCHORAGES IN THE CENTRAL DISTRICT HAVE BEEN COMPLETELY DESTROYED AND THE CHARRED BURNING OF THE PILINGS INDICATE THEY WERE SWEPT AWAY BY ALLIED BOMBING LONG AGO.

WAR HAS TOUCHED EVERYTHING, AND HAS DESTROYED NEARLY EVERY BIT OF MACHINERY AND EVERY TOOL IN THE RICH OIL PORT.

CONTRASTING WITH THE DESOLATION OF THE LAND, THE BAY IS MOSTLY AN EXPANSE OF CALM WATER, WITH ONLY A FEW SUNKEN SHIPS PROTRUDING. THE BAY, AN AREA STILL NOT CLEARED FOR GENERAL USE, IS LIKEWISE IN GREAT CONTRAST WITH THE CHOPPY OPEN WATERS OF THE INVASION ANCHORAGE, WHIH IS SO ROUGH THAT CATALINA FLYING BOATS HAVE BEEN DAMAGED IN LANDING.

JUL 5 - 1945

THE WADDLING LCMS WHICH WERE THE FIRST ALLIED VESSELS IN THE BAY SINCE 1941, WERE PILOTED BY AMERICAN ARMY ENLISTED MEN LOOKING FOR A PLACE TO SET UP A REPAIR SHOP. THEY PILOTED THEIR SHIPS RIGHT THROUGH THE HEAVILY MINED WATERS, WHICH HAVE NOT YET BEEN CLEARED, RIGHT UP TO THE JAPANESE PONTOON WHARVES.

TECH.SGT.FRANK S.DOYLE, BIRD ISLAND,MINN., WAS COXSWAIN OF THE FIRST BOAT. HIS CREW INCLUDED STAFF SGT.JAMES C.CONWAY, FARMINGTON,ME., AND TECH.CPLS.CASSIDY BURT OF MICHIGAN (NO HOME TOWN GIVEN), AND PHILIPP DAMORE, 2641 SOUTH 16TH ST., PHILADELPHIA. ALSO ABOARD WAS LST.LT.HARRY M.KULBA, 7341 FAIRBANKS AVE., CINCINNATI,OHIO.

THE CREW OF THE SECOND CRAFT INCLUDED SGT.DURAINE BURKE, STILLWATER,MINN., COXSWAIN, AND CPLS.WILLIAM F.CORIELL, BATTLE CREEK,MICH.; PETER HERSPERGER, WESTFIELD,N.J.

THE BOATS WERE FROM COMPANY A OF THE 593 ENGINEER BOAT AND SHORE BATTALION AND THE OPERATION WAS DIRECTED BY LT.COL.BRIAN P.

WITH ALLIED FORCES NEAR BALIKPAPAN, BORNEO, JULY 4-(AP)-THE NETHERLANDS FLAG FLIES AGAIN OVER THIS SOUTHEASTERN PART OF BORNEO, ALONG WITH THE UNION JACK, THE AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN FLAGS, AND DUTCH SOLDIERS HAVE JOINED THEIR ALLIES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC WAR OF LIBERATION.

THERE ARE BITTER MEMORIES, HOWEVER, OF THE STAUNCH DUTCH DEFENSE OF THIS RICH OIL AREA DURING THE FIRST STAGES OF THE WAR, WHEN JAPANESE AGGRESSION SNAKED INTO THE NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES.

NONE OF THE SURVIVORS OF THE EARLY 1942 FIGHTING HAS BEEN FOUND. THOSE STILL ALIVE ARE BELIEVED TO BE ELSEWHERE IN JAPANESE HANDS.

DEEP AMONG THE STIFFENING JAPANESE DEFENSE POINTS IN THE INTERIOR BORNEO HILLS, DUTCH SOLDIERS ARE MOVING AHEAD WITH THE AUSTRALIAN SEVENTH DIVISION IN THE SLOW PROCESS OF ELIMINATING ENEMY PILLBOXES AND CAVES. MORE THAN ONE COMPANY OF NETHERLANDS TROOPS IS INVOLVED, SPLIT INTO SMALL UNITS ACCOMPANYING VARIOUS AUSSIE GROUPS.

THE DUTCH CRUISER TROMP, COMMANDED BY CAPT. WILHELM STAM CONTINUES IN ACTION WITH OTHER ALLIED WARSHIPS PROVIDING NAVAL GUNFIRE SUPPORT FOR ADVANCING GROUND FORCES. THE TROMP ACCOMPANIED THE ORIGINAL ALLIED PREINVASION BOMBARDMENT FORCE WHICH BLASTED THE WAY FOR THE SEVENTH DIVISION'S LANDING SUNDAY.

THE NETHERLANDS SOLDIERS ARE MOSTLY INDONESIANS AND VOLUNTEERS FROM THE DUTCH WEST (CORRECT) INDIES UNDER DUTCH OFFICERS. THEIR MAIN TASK IS TO ACT AS SCOUTS AND GUIDES, AND TO CONTACT BANDS OF NATIVES.

JUL 5 - 1945

AS THE BATT

E LINE EXTENDS INLAND PROBABLY MORE NATIVES WILL BE ENCOUNTERED. ONLY ABOUT 250, INCLUDING FOUR WOMEN, HAVE BEEN LIBERATED THUS FAR. THE PREWAR NATIVE POPULATION OF THIS AREA TOTALLED AROUND 20,000.

NETHERLANDS INDIES COLONIAL ADMINISTRATION (NICA) OFFICIALS, WHO RAISED THE DUTCH FLAG OVER THEIR COMPOUND, WERE PREPARED TO HANDLE 20,000 NATIVES. THEY LANDED WITH 200 TONS OF RELIEF SUPPLIES, MOSTLY FOOD, AND A COMPLETE ORGANIZATION FOR REESTABLISHING CIVIL AUTHORITY.

THE ORGANIZATION INCLUDES A WELL EQUIPPED MOBILE HOSPITAL WITH A STAFF OF DOCTORS WHO ALREADY ARE AIDING THE PITIFUL SURVIVORS WHO HAVE COME INTO THEIR CARE. TREATMENTS RANGE FROM AMPUTATION OF LIMBS SHATTERED BY PREINVASION SHELLFIRE TO ORDINARY MEDICAL PRESCRIPTIONS.

NETHERLANDS OFFICIALS INC

UDED OIL EXPERTS WHO WILL ASSESS THE DAMAGE TO REFINERIES, CRACKING PLANTS AND OTHER INSTALLATIONS.

THE NICA IS FACED WITH A HEAVY TASK. THE ABSENCE OF ABLE-BODIES NATIVES MEANS GREATER DIFFICULTY IN OBTAINING THE LABOR NECESSARY FOR ANY RAPIDLY TRAVELING ARMY. THIS HANDICAP ALSO MEANS GREATER DELAY IN REBUILDING THE RUINS OF THIS ONCE RICH

ION.

THE SHIKUKA COAST YESTERDAY FOR ABOUT TEN MINUTES BUT DENIED DAMAGE.

THE BROADCAST ADDED THAT ON THE PREVIOUS DAY A SUBMARINE
MADE THREE SUCCESSIVE SHELLING AND MACHINE GUN ATTACKS ON KAIHYO

ALMOST FIVE HOURS.

KARAFUTO-SAKHALIN DIVIDES THE SEA OF JAPAN FROM THE SEA OF

TOKYO, WHICH HAS LONG BEEN WORRYING ABOUT AN INVASION FROM THE SOUTH, BECAME APPREHENSIVE LAST WEEK ABOUT AN ATTACK FROM THE NORTH. THESE BROADCASTS SAID THE NINTH FLEET WAS BEING INCREASED, AND PARATROOPS AND ALPINE UNITS ADDED TO AMERICAN GROUND FORCES STATIONED IN ALASKA.

THREE B-29S LED 120 MUSTANG FIGHTERS FROM IWO JIMA OVER TOKYO THE EASTERN COAST OF HONSHU IN A BOMBING AND STRAFING ATTACK ON AIR-FIELDS AND MILITARY INSTALLATIONS EAST OF ~~HONSHU~~, THE BROADCASTS SAID.

TOKYO REPORTED AN ASSORTMENT OF 120 BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS FROM OKINAWA, INCLUDING LIGHTNING, THUNDERBOLT AND MUSTANG FIGHTERS, MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS, AND NAVY MARTIN PATROL BOMBERS RAIDED KYUSHU, SOUTHERNMOST ISLAND OF NIPPON FOR TWO HOURS.

ALL OF THE REPORTS, INTERCEPTED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, WERE WITHOUT AMERICAN CONFIRMATION.

HEAVIEST BLOW AT KYUSHU WAS STRUCK BY 60 PLANES WHICH BOMBED KAGOSHIMA AND MIYAZAKI PREFECTURES AT THE SOUTHERN TIP OF THE ISLAND.

TWENTY OTHERS WERE REPORTED OVER THE SASEBO NAVAL BASE, AMAKUSA, SHIMABARA AND NAGASAKI, ALL ON NORTHERN KYUSHU. OTHER STRIKES INCLUDED WESTERN AND EASTERN SECTORS OF THE ISLAND WHICH TOKYO SAYS IS MARKED FOR THE NEXT MAJOR AMERICAN INVASION. JAPANESE BROADCASTS SAID 120 PLANES WERE INVOLVED ALTOGETHER IN THE KYUSHU ATTACKS, BUT DETAILED MOVEMENTS OF ONLY 92.

THE BROADCAST, HEARD BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, WARNED THAT AMERICAN TROOPS WOULD FIND JAPANESE FIGHTING TO DEFEND THEIR HOME SOIL MUCH TOUGHER THAN THOSE ENCOUNTERED OUTSIDE ITS BORDERS.

"LITTLE OLD WOMEN WITH SHOVELS" WERE SAID TO BE HELPING MEN AND SOLDIERS AT THE "NIGHT AND DAY" DIGGING OF THE EMERGENCY FORTIFICATINS. THE BROADCAST ALSO ECHOED ONE OF JAPAN'S CHIEF FEARS, THAT BOMBINGS WILL DISRUPT COMMUNICATIONS DURING THE CRITICAL INVASION PERIOD.

IT MENTIONED PIG FARMS, POULTRY FARMS AND THE SOWING OF POTATOES IN THE FORTIFIED AREAS TO MAKE THEM "SELF-SUFFICIENT IN DAILY LIFE."

THE 10 PER CENT CUT IN JAPAN'S STAPLE FOOD RATION IN THE NEXT FEW WEEKS BROUGHT AN ANNOUNCEMENT FROM THE GOVERNMENT TODAY THAT SPECIALISTS WILL EDUCATE THE PUBLIC IN MAKING BEST USE OF THE FOODS THEY HAVE. IT WAS THE LARGEST CONTRACT EVER HANDLED BY THE CANADIAN ALUMINUM INDUSTRY. A COMPANY SPOKESMAN SAID THAT ADVANCE PAYMENTS BY THE U.S. GOVERNMENT HAD NO CONNECTION WITH THE WARTIME EXTENSION OF THE SHIPSHAW,QUE., POWER PROJECT. EXPANSION OF POWER FACILITIES WAS FINANCED BY ISSUING IN 1943, $15,000,000 IN "ALCAN" PREFERRED STOCK, AND $40,000,000 OF "ALCAN" BONDS IN 1940.

"CALCULATIONS SHOW THAT IF THE CANADIAN ALUMINUM INDUSTRY HAD NOT UNDERTAKEN THE ALUMINUM INGOT CONTRACTS FOR THE UNITED STATES, NECESSITATING HUGE WARTIME EXPANSION IN CANADA, THE COMPANY WOULD HAVE EARNED MILLIONS OF DOLLARS MORE FOR SHAREHOLDERS," THE SPOKESMAN ADDED.

WASHINGTON,JULY 4-(AP)-DR.CHARLES GREELEY ABBOT, OFTEN CALLED THE "WORLD'S NO.1 SUN MAN," BELIEVES THAT GERMAN SCIENTISTS WERE SPOOFING WHEN THEY TALKED ABOUT ERECTING A PLATFORM 5,000 MILES ABOVE THE EARTH TO HARNESS THE POWER OF THE SUN.

FURTHERMORE, THEY PROBABLY WERE LAUGHING UP THEIR SLEEVES IN MAKING KNOWN THEIR PROPOSALS, SAYS DR. ABBOT, 73-YEAR-OLD ASTROPHYSICIST WHO RETIRED LAST YEAR AS SECRETARY OF THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.

HIS COMMENTS WERE IN CONNECTION WITH SEEMINGLY FANTASTIC DATA WHICH GERMAN SCIENTISTS HAVE TURNED OVER TO THE ALLIES.

LT. COL. JOHN A. KECK, CHIEF OF THE ENEMY EQUIPMENT INTELLIGENCE SECTION OF THE U.S. ARMY ORDNANCE DIVISION IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER, RECENTLY TOLD CORRESPONDENTS AT PARIS ABOUT SOME OF THE GERMAN SCIENTISTS' IDEAS.

AMONG OTHER THINGS, KECK SAID, THEY BELIEVED THAT WITHIN 50 TO 100 YEARS ACCESS COULD BE GAINED TO A REGION 5,100 MILES ABOVE THE EARTH.

JUL 5 - 1945

"ONCE THIS IS ACHIEVED," HE QUOTED THEM AS SAYING, "SPACE STATIONS CAN BE ESTABLISHED FOR THE USE OF ASTRONOMERS, OBSERVERS AND OTHER SCIENTISTS. THEN OTHERS COULD BE BUILT LEADING TO THE CONSTRUCTION OF A LARGE REFLECTOR FOR FOCUSING THE SUN'S AYS ON TO THE EARTH FOR POWER GENERATING PURPOSES."

THE NAZI SCIENTISTS ALSO DECLARED THAT BY FOCUSING THE REFLECTOR, THE SUN'S RAYS COULD BE USED TO KILL HUMAN BEINGS, WIPE OUT CITIES AND KINDLE FOREST FIRES.

IN A LETTER TO THE EDITOR OF THE WASHINGTON EVENING STAR, DR. ABBOT SAID:

"THEY PROPOSE A PLATFORM 5,000 MILES ABOVE THE EARTH. THEY WOULD EITHER HAVE TO SUPPORT IT BY CONTINUAL ROCKET POWER OR ELSE ALLOW IT TO BE ANOTHER MOON, IN WHICH CASE IT WOULD REVOLVE ABOUT THE EARTH IN ABOUT 20 HOURS.

"TO BE SURE, IT WOULD BE A PRETTY FAVORABLE PLACE TO PRODUCE SOLAR POWER. PROBABLY 15 SQUARE FEET MIGHT BE SUFFICIENT FOR ONE HORSEPOWER.

"BUT THE IDEA OF REFLECTING SUNLIGHT TO BURN CITIES FROM THAT DISTANCE IS ABSURD. IF THE CITIES WERE EXACTLY UNDER THE PLATFORM, 5,000 MILES, IT WOULD TAKE A MIRROR 50 MILES IN DIAMETER TO DOUBLE THE NATURAL SUNLIGHT AT THE CITY, AND THAT WOULD NOT BE SUFFICIENT TO BURN IT.

"IF THE REFLECTION WERE OBLIQUE THE DISTANCE WOULD BE GREATER AND THE INTENSITY WOULD BE REDUCED BY THE OBLIQUENESS, SO THAT IT WOULD EASILY TAKE A MIRROR 100 MILES IN DIAMETER TO DOUBLE THE LIGHT UPON THE CITY."

U.S. RECOGNIZES POLAND'S WARSAW REVISED REGIME

Britain Takes Similar Action, London Group Is Cast Adrift.

JUL 6 1945

NAME AMBASSADOR

Both Nations Stress That Free Election Condition of Recognition.

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) The United States and Britain jointly recognized the reconstituted Warsaw government of Poland tonight, cutting adrift the London exile regime with which they have dealt throughout the war.

In both London and Washington, however, it was emphasized in the announcements that the setting up of the expanded Warsaw administration constituted only a "step" in fulfillment of the Yalta Big Three agreements.

President Truman, announcing American acceptance of the Warsaw government, said it had "recognized" the Yalta agreement in full and thereby confirmed the Crimean plan for free elections.

Lane Named Ambassador

The President said Arthur Lane has been named ambassador and "will proceed to Warsaw as soon as possible." The British announcement laid strees on "full agreement with the United States government" in recognizing the "Polish provisional government of national unity." It said an ambassador will be dispatched from London shortly.

Lane was appointed last September as ambassador to the London Polish government, but never went to London, apparently in expectation of such a shift as came today. He is in Washington. Previously he was ambassador to Colombia.

The Crimea agreement by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin called for broadening the base of the Moscow-sponsored Warsaw group, to take in other democratic Polish elements, and for free elections to be held later. Diplomatic comment both here and in the British capital has laid emphasis on the elections, and the circumstances under which they are held, as the finally important step in letting the Poles work out their own democratic course.

Stanislaus Mikolajczyk, one-time leader of the London Polish government, has been included in the new Warsaw set-up as vice-premier. The new government was finally worked out after long negotiations which all but stalled over Soviet objections to taking in any representatives of the London group. The Russian arrest of 16 Polish underground leaders, whom Moscow accused of subversive activities behind the Red Army lines, further complicated the negotiations.

In a message to Foreign Minister Wincenty Ryzymowski in Warsaw, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes today expressed "deep personal gratification" at establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and the Polish government of national unity.

Diplomats here did not expect any formal withdrawal of recognition from the London Poles. Rather the organization was expected here to be treated as if it had simply ceased to exist diplomatically. Whatever happens in that direction, there probably will be arguments over disposition of Polish assets claimed by both regimes.

Polish troops, who have fought under British command in Europe, and whoses loyalty the London Poles still claim, constitute another problem.

The London group is represented here by Jan Ciechanoski, who has been accepted as ambassador. No immediate plans were announced with regard to him.

"The establishment of this government is an important and positive step in fulfilling the decisions regarding Poland reached at Yalta and signed on February 11, 1945," said a statement by the President which was issued at the White House.

"The new Polish provisional government unity has informed me in a written communication that it has recognized in their entirety the decisions of the Crimea conference on the Polish question," the President's statement continued.

"The new government has thereby confirmed its intention to carry out the provisions of the Crimea decision with respect to the holding of elections."

Letters Made Public

Simultaneously the White House made public an exchange of correspondence between Mr. Truman and Osobka-Morawski, Prime Minister of the Polish provisional government.

The Prime Minister's message, addressed to Mr. Truman, follows:

"I have the honor to notify you that as a result of the understanding reached in Moscow between representatives of the Warsaw provisional government and Polish democratic leaders invited from Poland and from abroad under the auspices of the commission of three set up at the Crimea conference the Polish provisional government of national unity was formed on the 28th of June, 1945, in accordance with article 45 of the Constitution of the Polish Republic of 1921.

"The provisional government of national unity has recognized in their entirety the decisions of the Crimea conference on the Polish question.

"At the same time I have the honor in the name of the provisional government of national unity to approach the government of the United States of America with a request for the establishment of diplomatic relations between our nations and for the exchange of representatives with the rank of ambassador."

To which president Truman replied:

"I am gratified to learn from your message to me transmitted through your ambassador at Moscow that the Polish provisional government of national unity was established on June 28, 1945 in conformity with the Crimea decision. I am pleased to note that your excellency's government has recognized in their entirety the decisions of the Crimea conference on the Polish government thereby confirming the intention of your excellency's government to proceed with the holding of elections in Poland in conformity with the provisions of the Crimea decisions. The government of the United States of America therefore on the basis of its assurances given at the Crimea conference hereby establishes diplomatic relations with the Polish Provisional Government of National Unity. I have chosen as ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Poland Mr. Arthur Bliss Lane, whom I have instructed to proceed to Warsaw as soon as possible."

HOPE BIG THREE TO SETTLE MANY EUROPEAN ISSUES

JUL 6 1945

Meeting May Shape Germany's Destiny for Many Years to Come.

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—Diplomatic circles expressed hope today that the impending meeting of the "Big Three" in Potsdam would liquidate most of the outstanding differences over European problems and shape Germany's destiny for many years to come.

Belief was general in London that agreement on matters awaiting the attention of the "Big Three" would be speedily forthcoming on every issue except one—solution of the Polish problem—an issue which British-American recognition of the new Warsaw provisional government will automatically eliminate from the Potsdam agenda.

This recognition is expected to be forthcoming within 36 hours.

Outstanding among the questions which President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin are expected to discuss are Germany's economic future and the price she must pay for her aggressions.

Involved in these questions are the use which is to be made of Germany's skilled labor, likely demands to be made upon her natural resources such as coal, iron and wood, and the disposition of her undamaged industrial machinery.

A dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Daniel De Luce in Berlin said that a majority of the factories in the Berlin districts now being taken over by British and American troops were stripped of heavy machinery by the Russians four to eight weeks ago.

De Luce said Allied nationals who have been through other German areas occupied by the Red army report that similar removal of industrial equipment is in progress there.

In addition to settling Germany's economic future it is believed here that the "Big Three" will attempt to reach general boundary agreements in preparation for an early European peace settlement. This would involve discussion of the territorial claims of Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, France and possibly Holland.

The actual date of the Potsdam meeting still was a matter of speculation, but the best guess here was that would start about July 14 or 16.

British Election Results Not Known for Three Weeks

HERCHER

LONDON, July 5—(AP) Great Britain chose a new government today to finish the war with Japan and to lay the foundations for the peace to come, but the result will not be known for three weeks.

The election was orderly and quiet, in sharp contrast to the rancor of one of the bitterest campaigns in decades.

The British Press Association said between 70 and 80 percent of the registered electors were estimated to have cast ballots. On the basis of 30,000,000 eligible voters this would mean a total vote of between 21 and 24 million.

Voters decided whether their immediate future would be shaped by the free enterprise system advocated by Prime Minister Churchill and the Conservatives, or by the Labor Party with its announced goal of a "Socialist Commonwealth of Great Britain."

The ballots will not be counted until July 26, after the service vote is returned from all the battlefronts. The results are expected to be announced about noon that day.

The world watched the election for an indication of whether Europe's postwar political pendulum would swing to the left or the right.

In one of the last speeches of the stormy campaign, Churchill asserted that defeat of his Conservative "caretaker" government would cast many European countries into communism.

"If there should be a landslide to the left many countries on the continent would slide, not into decent socialism, but into the violence of communism," he said. "If we go down, all the ninepins of Europe will fall."

Labor party leader Clement Attlee and other laborites have demanded the nationalization of coal mining, power, inland transport and the iron and steel industries of Britain.

"Labor will organize the economic life of the country in order to insure good homes, food, clothing, social security, employment, leisure, freedom and the amenities of life for everbody," Attlee said in a final speech.

"This has never been done under the system of 'private interests first' which the Conservatives support," he said.

Churchill himself, like thousands of others, was unable to vote because his name was left off the register. The mixup and confusion resulted from enemy bombing and the shifting of wartime populations.

Mrs. Churchill, however, cast her ballot, and the waiting crowd outside shouted "Good luck Winnie" when she appeared.

CHURCHILL, ATTLEE BOTH CONFIDENT AS BRITAIN VOTES

World Watches British Election for Indication of Europe's Political Trend.

By DON DOANE

LONDON, July 5. (AP)—Britain is voting today to decide the bitterly debated issue of free enterprise versus Socialism in a general election watched by the world for an indication of Europe's postwar political trend—left or right.

In the country's stormiest campaign in decades the Conservative party led by Prime Minister Churchill supported its traditional policy of freedom of economic enterprise.

The Labor party headed by Clement Attlee demanded the nationalization of four basic industries with the announced aim of eventually establishing a "Socialistic" commonwealth of Great Britain.

Results will not be known until July 26 because the absentee soldier vote will remain to be counted, but both sides voiced the usual election eve confidence in the outcome.

"We are going to win," Churchill shouted at a rally last night. "I feel it in my bones." Conservative newspapers speculated on a majority of up to 100 seats for their party, which had a 52-seat majority in the last House of Commons, elected 10 years ago.

However, the Laborite Daily Herald said:

"All indications are that today's poll will overwhelmingly confirm the swing to Labor which, months before the campaign began, as freely admitted in Tory (Conservative) circles."

The independent Manchester Guardian, sometimes listed as Liberal, yesterday suggested "the possibility of a combined Liberal and Labor majority sufficient to form a government of the left."

Closing the campaign in which he played a standout role, Churchill declared last night:

"All over the world people are looking to Britain. They are looking from the continent of Europe to see which way Britain is going to go. If there should be a landslide to the left many countries would slide into the voilence of Communism. If we go down all the ninepins of Europe will fall."

Attlee, likely successor as prime minister if the Laborites win, told voters in a final speech:

"Labor will organize the economic life of the country in order to insure good homes, food, clothing, social security, employment, leisure, freedom and the amenities of life for everybody. This has never been done under the system of 'private interests first' which the Conservatives support."

BIG THREE MEETING PLANS DISCUSSED

SINGLETON

LONDON, July 5—(AP) Establishment of a coordinated plan to govern the social and educational structure of Germany during the period of occupation was described today in diplomatic quarters as one of the major objectives of the approaching Potsdam meeting of the Big Three.

Responsible sources said this effort inevitably would include a review of the non-fraternization policy to determine whether its relaxation would hasten the elimination of the Nazi ideology.

As part of the coordinated program it was said that a jointly operated radio station would be set up in Berlin to speak for the Allied Control commission.

In Potsdam, (a Berlin suburb), American and British signalmen were installing communication facilities for the Big Three meeting. A temporary "White House" was being prepared for President Truman in another suburb. A direct line will connect his headquarters with New York and Washington.

An Associated Press dispatch from Bordeaux said arrangements were being made to accommodate Prime Minister Churchill and his family for a brief vacation on the French Basque coast before the Big Three meeting.

A British Foreign Office commentator inferentially denied a published report that Churchill would meet Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain before the Potsdam meeting.

300 PLANES SAVED BRITAIN

414 Pilots Downed 2,033 of Foe in 1940-41 Battle

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—The Ministry of Information disclosed tonight that Flagship Group 11, comprising 414 pilots and 300 planes, had fought the Battle of Britain.

In the prolonged contest over Britain, British definitely destroyed 2,375 German aircraft, of which the fighter group shot down 2,033. The Fighter Command of the Royal Air Force lost 375 pilots killed.

The fighter group, which planned and directed all the air battles over the southern half of England, was organized in eighteen squadrons of eighteen aircraft each. Not all the squadrons had their full complements of planes. Three squadrons were equipped with Spitfires, ten with Hurricans and the remainder with aircraft regarded as obsolete.

HUNT FOR 15 FLIERS ENDS

No Trace Found of Big Bomber Missing on Way to Azores

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—European headquarters of the Air Transport Command announced today that the search had been abandoned for the Liberator bomber, carrying fifteen airmen, that plunged into the Atlantic between Britain and the Azores June 17.

The announcement said that seven American and British warships, at least seventeen merchant vessels and an "untold number" of American and RAF planes covered some 65,000 square miles of ocean during the first nine days of the search.

Since that time aircraft and surface vessels on regular routes through the area where the plane disappeared have continued the search for the missing airmen, who were being redeployed to the Pacific by the United States Eighth Air Force.

An elaborate rescue system has been set up to protect the 6,300 tactical aircraft being flown from the European theatre to the United States, it was said.

GERMAN CAPTIVE CLEARED

British Military Court Acquits Him in Killing of Non-Nazi

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—A British military court today acquitted Hans Klein, one of eight German prisoners of war on trial for slaying a non-Nazi prisoner, holding that the prosecution had failed to prove he had participated actively.

The court refused to acquit Herbert Wunderlich, ruling that this prisoner's own statement was sufficient to establish a case. Wunderlich said he had helped drag the beaten body of Wolfgang Rosterg across rough ground to the prison lavatory last Dec. 23, where the man was left hanging from an overhead pipe. A doctor testified that a post-mortem had shown Rosterg had been strangled during the dragging and already was dead when his body was hanged.

Testimony was presented that Rosterg, who had asserted his non-Nazi beliefs, had been accused by a number of other prisoners of being a deserter who had revealed valuable information to the Allies. Documents taken from Rosterg were used at a mock trial to establish he was a "traitor" to Germany, this testimony said.

Four RAF Chiefs Knighted

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—Four RAF chiefs who distinguished themselves in the war against Germany were made Knights of the British Empire today. They are Acting Air Marshal Charles Roderick Carr of New Zealand, Deputy Chief of Staff for the RAF at SHAEF; Acting Air Marshal Leslie Norman Hollinghurst, Acting Air Vice Marshal Harry Broadhurst and Acting Vice Marshal Basil Embry, first RAF officer to win the triple DSO.

Restore Telegraph Service

LONDON, July 5. (AP)—Public telegraph service between Britain and Yugoslavia was restored today after a wartime lapse. Codes or the use of any languages other than English or French are barred.

Explodes Firecracker Near Churchill; Fined

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—A 17-year-old student was fined $8 in a London court today for throwing a firecracker that exploded near Prime Minister Churchill at a political rally last night.

"I don't why I did it," the youth said. "I certainly do not favor Mr. Churchill, but I had no intention of hurting him."

Churchill was disconcerted but not injured by the explosion.

Restrictions on Racing Lifted in Great Britain

LONDON July 5 (AP).—Great Britain, which never banned horse racing during the war—even in the worst days—today lifted all restrictions on the sport, effective July 28.

The move came amid indications of a tremendous boom in all sports developing throughout this island where crowds were discouraged for five years because of German bombings.

In announcing the resumption of open racing, the government is abolishing the "regional racing" system, imposed largely because of the shortage of transport. Under this plan, the sport was split into three divisions—south, north and Newmarket. With a few exceptions for important races, horses were required to run in the region where they were stabled.

Theater Roof Collapses

LONDON, July 5, (AP)—Twenty persons were injured last night when the roof of the Royal theater at St. Helen's, Lancashire, collapsed as the orchestra struck up the overture before a showing of the film "Wuthering Heights."

Birth Rate Rise Praised As a Major War Feat

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 5—The British medical journal Lancet expressed astonishment today at the rise in the European birth rate since 1941-42, calling it one of the most unusual accompaniments of the war.

"It is paralleled in the field of human endeavor only by the unexpected high level of mental stability shown by the mass of people," the magazine said. "There can be little doubt that these two things are linked in some way. But how and in what form we have yet to discover."

CANADIAN SOLDIERS RIOT IN ENGLAND

ALDERSHOT, Eng., July 5—(AP) Canadian soldiers rioted in the center of town again tonight for more than two hours, repeating the turbulent scenes of last night in which officials estimated 500 participated, despite the appeal of one of their officers to return to their barracks.

The soldiers, apparently resenting delays in sending them homeward, surged through streets breaking windows and demonstrating noisily.

The group entered one store which sells beer and helped themselves.

An undetermined Canadian officer addressed the crowd outside the police station and urged the soldiers to return to their camp without further demonstrations. He assured the men they would be leaving for home soon and announced some future sailing dates.

The demonstration followed a similar outbreak last night when a crowd of soldiers stampeded through the downtown section.

The disturbance of Wednesday night brought a stiff rebuke today from Canadian Maj. Gen. Daniel Spry who termed the incident a "schoolboy action" in a reprimand to his troops.

RIOTING CANADIAN TROOPS DAMAGE ALDERSHOT STORES

Soldiers Awaiting Return Home Demonstrate Because of Lack of Shipping.

ALDERSHOT, England, July 5—(AP)—High army officials said today that upwards of 40 men were involved in a smashing of store windows and other property destruction in a two and one-half hour demonstration last night by hundreds of Canadian servicemen awaiting transportation home.

Damage to the shopping district, which was littered with broken glass and debris, was estimated at several thousand pounds.

Major General Dan Spry reprimanded the soldiers this morning for the "schoolboy action" of "20 or 30" of their number. He said it was the sort of thing to "undermine the good reputation Canadians built up on the battlefield."

Spry told the men he understood they had three main complaints—lack of shipping which was delaying repatriation of troops, inadequate food and a delay in pay.

He acknowledged that they had no money left when they found their sailings delayed and promised they would be able to draw more money later today. He explained reasons for the lack of shipping, and said they were receiving far more food than British civilians.

Apparently no one was injured in the outbreak. There was no drunkenness. More than 200 British and Canadian provost reinforcements were rushed to the business district, but were not used.

One provost officer said as many as 3,000 Canadian servicemen were involved, but other estimates ranged down to 700.

A few hours before the outbreak a statement had been issued in Ottawa saying only 101,000 Canadian army personnel would be repatriated between July 1 and the end of the war.

MANX LEGISLATURE IN HISTORIC EVENT

Douglas, Isle of Man, July 5 (A. P.).—The people of this tiny island in the Irish Sea, where no buzzbombs ever fell, proclaimed their loyalty to the British Crown today with a gift of $1,000,000 toward meeting the cost of the war. The Tynwald, the eleven-hundred year old Manx Parliament, heard the act promulgated at a colorful ceremony presided over by King George VI of England. He and Queen Elizabeth were paying their first royal visit to Man, which is sixty miles from Liverpool.

Today is Tynwald Day, and on this day every year the Tynwald, in accordance with ancient custom, sits on the top of Tynwald Hill, an ancient mound nearly twenty feet high that was built by the Norse founders of the Parliament, from the earth of each of the island parishes.

The King, wearing the uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet, and the Queen, in a powder-blue suit, sat upon the Manx throne. On the next tier below them were the members of the Council—the upper house, including the Bishop of Sodor and Man, the two Deensters and others—and the members of the House of Keys, the lower house of the Tynwald. It was the first time a monarch has ever attended a session of this historic Legislature which is older than the English Parliament.

Following the promulgation of fifteen new laws—adopted in the past year—the King decorated forty-three men at the first investiture ever held on the Isle of Man.

DIVISIONS' STATUS IN EUROPE LISTED

Five Army Corps Headquarters Have Left for United States in Quickening Redeployment

EUNSON

PARIS, July 5 (AP)—Five United States Army corps headquarters have left for the United States in the quickening redeployment, Supreme Allied Headquarters announced today.

Some fifty-five units of 32,000 men left the Reims assembly area in the first four days of July en route to Le Havre and home, or to Marseille and the Pacific.

Corps headquarters that have sailed for home are Maj. Gen. James A. van Fleet's Third Corps, which seized the Remagen bridgehead across the Rhine; Lieut. Gen. Joseph L. Collins' Seventh Corps, which stopped an early German counter-attack at Mortain; Lieut. Gen. A. C. Gillem's Thirteenth Corps, which crossed the Rhine at Wesel, and Lieut. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's Eighteenth Airborne Corps, which held Bastogne last December, and Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner's Fifth Corps, which landed in Normandy on D-day.

A corps includes two or more divisions. Corps headquarters is the only permanent component of the corps.

Six Will Be Demobilized

Headquarters announced that the Second Corps had been assigned to occupation and that six other corps were to be demobilized. These are the Twelfth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-first.

Five of the nine American divisions definitely earmarked for transfer from the European Theatre of Operations to the Pacific via the United States either are partly on the high seas or have reached home, reports showed today.

Troops already in the United States or on their way are from the Thirteenth Armored and the Eighty-sixth, Ninety-fifth, Ninety-seventh and 104th Infantry Divisions. Those ready or about ready to sail are from the Second, Fifth, Forty-fourth and Eighty-seventh Infantry Divisions.

The Fourth Division is nearing the United States now and the Eighth is on the high seas, but neither is slated definitely for the Pacific.

Divisions to be redeployed or placed on inactive status are assigned to the charge of the European Theatre of Operations, U.S.A. Those not yet withdrawn from Germany and awaiting decision as to their future are assigned to Supreme Headquarters, pending transfer to the ETOUSA if not put on permanent occupation detail.

This is a numerical list of divisions, with their present status:

Infantry Divisions

1st—Ansbach, Germany, on permanent occupation detail.
2d—Advance units sailed for home from Le Havre June 30. Rest being processed at Reims for July sailing.
3d—Salzburg, Austria, in Seventh Army on permanent occupation detail.
4th—Arriving in the United States now, future status not determined.
5th—At sea bound for Pacific duty after home leave.
6th—At sea bound for home, future status not determined.
9th—Ingolstadt, Germany, in Third Army on permanent occupation detail.
26th—Winterburg, Czechoslovakia, assigned to SHAEF.
28th—Scheduled to arrive at Reims "at earliest possible date" for redeployment.
29th—Bremen, on permanent occupation of the seaport for United States use.
30th—Moving to assembly area for redeployment to the Pacific after home leave.
35th—Mayen, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
36th—Ulm, Germany, in Seventh Army on permanent occupation detail.
42d—Kitzbuehel, Austria, to operate an occupation assignment in Austria.
44th—Being shuttled to Britain for shipment home and redeployment.
45th—Scheduled sailing orders for July 28 temporarily suspended.
63d—Wuerzburg, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
65th—Linz, Austria, separate occupation assignment.
66th—Marseille, France, operating the port, assigned to ETOUSA.
69th—Leipzig, assigned to SHAEF.
70th—Limburg, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
71st—Augsburg, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
75th—Operating assembly area, assigned to ETOUSA.
76th—Gera, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
78th—Bad Wildungen, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
79th—Eger, Czechoslovakia, assigned to SHAEF.
80th—Kaufbeuren, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
83d—Deggendorf, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
84th—Mannheim, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
86th—In the United States, en route to the Pacific.
88th—Embarkation loading, expected to sail between July 7 and 10.
89th—Assigned to ETOUSA for return home and possible redeployment.
90th—Weiden, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
94th—Strakonitz, Czechoslovakia, assigned to SHAEF.
95th—379th Regiment home, others nearing United States.
97th—In the United States for redeployment.
99th—Kitzingen, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
100th—Gerstetten, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
102d—Gotha, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
103d—Innsbruck, Austria, assigned to SHAEF.
104th—At sea bound for home and the Pacific.
106th—Guarding German prisoners of war in American hands.

Airborne Divisions

13th, 17th, 82d—Assigned to ETOUSA for possible redeployment.
101st—Berchtesgaden, assigned to SHAEF.

Armored Divisions

1st—Halle, Germany, assigned to Seventh Army on permanent occupation detail.
2d—Berlin, assigned to SHAEF.
3d—Darmstadt, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
4th—Landshut, Germany, assigned to Third Army for permanent occupation detail.
5th—Muehlhausen, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
6th—Jena, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
7th—Halle, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
8th—Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, assigned to SHAEF.
9th—Bayreuth, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
10th—Garmisch and Partenkirchen, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
11th—Gmunden, Austria, assigned to SHAEF.
12th—Heidenheim, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
13th—Advance units sailed June 30, rest loading now for redeployment.
14th—Wasserburg, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.
16th—Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, assigned to SHAEF.
20th—Rosenheim, Germany, assigned to SHAEF.

Several divisions assigned to SHAEF will be moving from their above listed posts some time this week as the Allies swing around into their individual occupation zones.

[The Thirtieth, Sixty-ninth, Seventy-sixth and 102d Infantry Divisions and the Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Armored Divisions were mentioned in previous dispatches as scheduled to take part in withdrawals from Thuringia and parts of Halle-Merseburg and Saxony Provinces to be included in the Russian occupation zone.]

Army personnel arriving in the United States for redeployment to the Pacific automatically receive home furloughs.

'Pauline' Proves Of N.Y. Society

Lowry

Paris, July 5 (AP)—"Pauline" of the French resistance has emerged from the underground and is disclosed to be a product of Philadelphia's Main Line and New York's Park avenue.

She is Mme. Jacques Allez, born Mary Astor Paul in Philadelphia. She is the former wife of Charles Munn, and the mother of Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr., New York society figures.

"We still cannot tell the whole story of how things were done," the energetic gray-haired woman said. "The trouble in Europe is not finished. Part of my work was to transmit messages to the American legation in Bern, to Robert Murphy (United States consul) in Africa and to England.

Had Agents Everywhere

"I had agents gathering information everywhere and I was known to them only as Pauline—I took that name because it was the name of my daughter who died," she explained.

"People who worked gathering the information were in every class of society and occupation—waiters in restaurants patronized by Germans, shopkeepers and servants. I had to be very careful because everyone knew I was an American, in fact I could tell the Germans truthfully I had not gone home because my place was here with my husband who is French.

Madame Allez refused to give further details of her operations but said she carried messages "between the flesh and sole of my shoe in summer and rolled in a stocking garter in the winter."

Calories Increased For German Miners

Paris, July 5 (AP)—Supreme headquarters announced today that it had become necessary to use imported wheat in Germany to supplement the available ration to coal miners in the hope of obtaining a better output in western German mines.

Surface workers at the mines have been getting 2,250 calories per day and underground workers 2,800—well above the 1,150 allowed the ordinary German under the close Allied control of limited food stocks. The announcement said that the miners' calory allowance had "proved insufficient to maintain a productive output."

Patton Returns To His Headquarters

Paris, July 5 (A. P.).—Gen. George S. Patton Jr. left today for his Third Army Headquarters at Bad Toelz in southern Germany. He returned here yesterday and attended a July 4 reception at the United States embassy last night.

Anne Morgan Group Arrives in France

Le Havre, France, July 5 (A. P.).—A delegation of women representatives of the American Civil Relief Committee landed today from the French freighter Oregon which arrived in Le Havre last night from the United States. Miss Anne Morgan, head of the group, said the delegation came to aid France's reconstruction.

The freighter brought a cargo of 4,000 tons of steel, 1,000 tons of wool, 400 tons of automobile chassis, 1,000 tons of newsprint and several hundred tons of insecticide.

Hague Suburb Prison Camp for Dutch Nazis

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, July 5 (AP)—The suburban section of Duindorp will be used as a prison camp for 40,000 Dutch Nazis, collaborators and black market operators, it was announced today.

The area was picked so clean by the Nazis that it was estimated it will take two years to make it livable once more. The prisoners will have the task of rebuilding the houses and re-installing the furnishings and other objects the Germans hauled into the bunkers and fortifications they built in nearby dunes.

Dutch Children Get Swiss Care

AMSTERDAM, July 5 (AP).—A first group of 200 children in delicate health, from six to twelve years old, left Amsterdam yesterday for a three months' stay in the Swiss mountains, where the Swiss Red Cross has undertaken to find lodging for 3,000 Dutch children at one time. Other groups have left from Utrecht and Rotterdam.

Occupation Zone in Berlin Taken Over by Yanks

BERLIN, July 5 (AP) — Major General Nikolai N. Barinov, Soviet commander in Berlin, formally turned the American occupation zone in the German capital over to General Omar N. Bradley yesterday at ceremonies in which the American flag was raised over the Adolf Hitler barracks.

A 48-gun salute boomed out as the Stars and Stripes went up beside the Red flag in the square where Adolf Hitler's enemies were purged by the Gestapo in mass executions 11 years ago.

"The raising of the American flag side by side with that of the Soviet Union symbolizes not only our unity in the past but, in a greater sense, in the further fight against Fascism and for democracy," Barinov said in a brief speech.

Bradley replied:

"This victory is made possible by all working together. We hope our close relationship will continue so that never again will it be necessary to conquer any nation as was necessary in the case of Germany, which desired to rule her neighbors."

With Bradley was Major General Floyd L. Parks, commander of the U. S. First Airborne army, who has been named American commander in Berlin, and the French commander, Major General Geoffrey de Beauchesne.

The U. S. Second Armored division was joined in the German capital yesterday by the British Seventh Armored division, which fought from El Alamein to Hamburg. A Canadian contingent also arrived last evening.

(The Paris radio said French troops would arrive in Berlin today to take over the area assigned to them.)

U. S. IN CHARGE OF TEMPELHOF

Yanks Get Berlin's Airfield Operating in Half an Hour.

Berlin, July 5 (A. P.).—The famous Tempelhof airdrome was under American control today. The Americans took over at midnight, installed their first control tower and had the field in operation within thirty minutes.

Major-Gen. Nikolai N. Barinov, the Russian commander in Berlin, turned the American occupation zone in the German capital over to Gen. Omar N. Bradley at ceremonies at which the American flag was raised over the Adolf Hitler barracks yesterday. A forty-eight-gun salute boomed out as the Stars and Stripes went up beside the Red flag in the square where Hitler's enemies were purged by the Gestapo in mass executions eleven years ago.

"The raising of the American flag side by side with that of the Soviet Union symbolizes not only our unity in the past but, in a greater sense, in the further fight against fascism and for democracy;" Barinov said in a brief speech.

Bradley replied: "This victory is made possible by all working together. We hope our close relationship will continue so that never again will it be necessary to conquer any nation as was necessary in the case of Germany, which desired to rule her neighbors."

With Bradley was Major-Gen. Floyd L. Parks, commander of the United States First Airborne Army, who has been named American commander in Berlin, and the French commander, Major-Gen. Geoffrey de Beauchesne.

The United States Second Armored Division was joined in Berlin yesterday by the British Seventh Armored Division, which fought from El Alamein to Hamburg. A Canadian contingent also arrived last evening.

76 AMERICAN WACS ARRIVE IN BERLIN

BERLIN, July 5 — (AP) A vanguard of 76 WACs assigned to the American occupation district of Berlin arrived today in a downpour of rain, 11 months after leaving England for duty with the Allied first airborne army.

They wore three campaign stars on their European service ribbons.

"It's the end of the road," remarked Capt. Cynthia B. Warner, West Hartford, Conn., commander of the [illegible] WACs." They will work with the 82nd Airborne division, the permanent American occupation force.

Within a few hours they were at their jobs operating switchboards, teletypes and typewriters.

Sgt. Doris McAlear, Inglewood, Calif., was reported not too impressed by billets awaiting the service women. However, she compared them favorably with those that she and a detachment occupied in the apparently luxurious home of the fabulously wealthy Agha Khan in France. The Agha Khan mansion had no heat, lights or water.

MAYOR'S SISTER SAFE IN BERLIN

She Tells Story of Being Held by Gestapo.

Berlin, July 5 (A. P.).—American G. I.'s today chipped in from their own rations to provide a banquet for Mrs. Gemma LaGuardia Gluck, sister of New York's Mayor, and her homeless family. Mrs. Gluck, whose presence here was disclosed last night, said that she had been imprisoned by the Gestapo for eleven months because of her brother's anti-Fascist reputation.

Lieut. Alvin M. Shapiro of 2092 Island avenue, Brooklyn, presented the gifts of food and other essentials to Mrs. Gluck, who is a native New Yorker and a gray-haired grandmother, freed by the Russian conquerors of Berlin. The feminine touch of her brother, she was moved to tears.

The men of Headquarters Company of the Second Armored (Hell on Wheels) Division contributed milk for Mrs. Gluck's sixteen months' old grandson Richard, and a variety of more substantial food for her daughter, Jolanda, and herself. Sergt. Clifford Stoll of Buffalo saw to it that even soap and a can opener were included in the parcel.

AMG Seeks Orange Juice.

Mrs. Gluck is being sheltered temporarily by a German family. While Shapiro was visiting her, Capt. Joseph Wall of the Running Fox Farm, Media, Pa., arrived from the American Military Government office with two cans of orange juice for the baby.

Mrs. Gluck lost her American citizenship when she was married in Fiume in 1908. She lived in Budapest for the next thirty-six years, and while she was ill in May, 1944, the Hungarian police on German orders searched her home, she said, adding: "They said they were looking for a secret radio with which I communicated with my brother." On June 7, 1944, three German Gestapo men took her and her husban to jail. Five days later they were taken to a prison camp where they were separated. She has not seen her husband since and does not know where he is, she added.

She was sent to a camp at Ravensbrueck and treated as a special prisoner, and was transferred to Berlin last April. "I repeatedly asked the reason for my arrest," she said, "and the guards told me: 'It's enough that you are LaGuardia's sister.'"

POTSDAM'S GLORY GONE

Palaces Escaped Heavy Damage but Center Is in Ruins

BERLIN, July 5 (AP)—Potsdam, on the outskirts of Berlin, as a city of imperial pensioners is a thing of the past, even though relatively little damage was done to the palaces associated with the name of the Hohensollern dynasty.

The city's center took a very heavy beating. The City Hall, built in 1753, and the Nikolai Protestant Church, also called the Stadt Palace, with its rococo architecture, were wrecked and burned out.

Kaiser Wilhelm's Neues Palais, meaning the new palace, is unharmed, while adjacent buildings for his aides are badly shelled. The famed windmill of Sans Souci Park is also a thing of the past, but former Crown Prince Wilhelm's Cecilienhoff Castle escaped bombing.

Potsdam's 130,000 inhabitants live in crowded quarters, four or five families to a house intended for one or two families.

Potsdam Being Prepared For Big 3 Conferences

House Is Found for Truman, Heavy Guard Planned

POTSDAM, July 5 (AP).—American and British signal men were setting up communications today for the forthcoming Big Three conference.

One crew first worked at the seat of the conference and then drove to another of Berlin's numerous suburbs where President Truman's temporary White House is being given a thorough cleaning. They said a direct line to Washington and New York would be installed.

The temporary White House is not of a kind which would attract attention. It is comfortable but by no means palatial.

There is much evidence that Mr. Truman will be heavily protected. American soldiers make no secret of the fact that they have established their camp sites with a view to seeing that no incident mars the American President's first visit to defeated Germany.

If pleasant surroundings are conducive to friendly discussion, then the spot where the Big Three will meet is ideal. The Potsdam area abounds in wooded districts with choice habitations of which the casual traveler has no knowledge, and the conference will be held in one of these.

In Washington the White House announced that newspaper men will not be permitted to cover the actual sessions of the conference. Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said that news coverage of the conference will be by official comuniques which will be issued "as may be decided on from time to time."

REPORTER INSPECTS NAZI CHANCELLORY

JUL 6 1945

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, July 5—(AP) If any evidence existed before the Russians seized the Reich Chancellory concerning the manner of Hitler's purported death, it has been obliterated since.

With one American and one English colleague, I spent an hour poking around in Hitler's air raid shelter through inch-deep water. Almost nothing remains as it must have stood originally.

Overturned chairs, sofas and tables; pictures and paintings torn from the walls and thrown into corners; medical supplies jumbled into a smeary mess with edibles, novels, telephone directories and party tracts scattered in patternless confusion—such is the chancellory "bunker" as it now presents itself.

I looked vainly for blood stains of which I had heard much talk. There may have been some on a chair or sofa backed against the wall. If so, they escaped our attention.

There also was no evidence outside that Hitler's body was buried by devoted followers in a ditch. True, there is a trench-like ditch outside but poking into it yielded no evidence of anything buried. So far as substantiating the death of Hitler by evidence now available on the spot is concerned, that appeared to us to be utterly impossible.

The Russians themselves seem most anxious to keep secret anything they know. One reason probably is the fact that they are preparing a dramatic motion picture depicting the Reich chancellory as they say they found it.

AMERICAN ARMY SEIZES CONTROL OF FARBEN PLANT

By DON WHITEHEAD

HOESCHT, Germany, July 5—(AP) In a sudden move today the American army seized complete control of the management, assets and plants of the vast I. G. Farben Industrie in the United States zone of occupied Germany and set in motion machinery intended to wipe out for all time the German ability to wage war.

Acting under general order No 2, issued by Lt. Gen. Lucius Clay as deputy military governor, armed American troops marched simultaneously into 24 Farben plants at 6 p.m. and assumed control of properties which had played a great part in building up and maintaining the German war machine.

The action was taken to smash I. G. Farben Industrie's worldwide cartel system and practices and break up the industry's war making power, which the United States group control council considers a "major threat to the peace and security of the postwar world so long as such industries remain within the control of Germany."

Control of the industry's management, assets and plants which produced more than 50 per cent of Germany's supply of chemicals and allied products is to be held for ultimate disposition by a four power government to be established for Germany.

The seizure was made pursuant to military government law dealing with the blocking and control of German prosperity. The entire management, under terms of the order, was "removed and discharged and deprived of all authority to act with respect to the corporation or its property." Shareholders' rights in the selection of the management or control of the industry also were suspended.

The great Farben plants produced about 80 per cent of Germany's entire nitrogen output, 100 per cent of the country's magnesium metal, 100 per cent of the tetra ethyl lead production, 100 per cent of the cellophane, approximately 80 per cent of the plastics, more than 50 per cent of the explosives and 100 per cent of the effective poison gas.

Clay delegated seizure authority to Col. Edwin S. Pillsbury, Berkeley, Calif., who personally directed the taking over of the giant Hoesch plant here, the largest of those seized.

Promptly at 6 p.m. jeeps mounting machine guns rolled through the streets to the plant and behind them marched armed troops under the command of Major William A. McKee, of Iowa City, Iowa.

Lt. Col. George M. Percival, of Richmond, Va., handed the seizure order to Carl Ludwig Lautenschlager, plant manager, who turned over the keys without protest.

Officers immediately took action to see that the plant's operating efficiency was not impaired during a period of temporary idleness. The research laboratory was sealed and all record books, patents and processes were impounded.

"So far as we know the seizure came as a complete surprise to the Farben management," Pillsbury said. "I have heard of no attempts at sabotage."

The plant, which normally employed 12,000 persons, was virtually empty at the time. Its 3,500 employes had finished the day's work an hour earlier.

dren on June 30, and a branch at nearby Irsee had another 468—all in various stages of malnutrition. Among the children found alive was a 10-year-old boy weighting less than 23 pounds.

Those under arrest included Dr. Valentin Falthauser, 69, charged with operating the station; Franziska Vill, his secretary-food administrator; and the head nurse of one of the children's wards, a woman named Worle.

The AMG's statement said the woman confessed to having poisoned or killed by intramuscular injection at least 211 minors for which she drew a monthly bonus of 35 reichsmarks, about eight dollars at the old U.S. exchange rate, or $3.50 at the present U.S. military exchange.

Linick and Murphy said they found in an uncooled morgue the bodies of men and women who had died from 12 hours to three days earlier as a result of the "experiments." Each body weighed only 58 to 66 pounds.

The men said the extermination program included injection of chemicals to produce direct starvation, intended to kill either within three months or to take six months or longer.

At stages of advanced malnutrition overdoses of sedatives were given, designed to induce pneumonia or other lung ailments, which were listed as the cause of death, the the victims, but that none had been positively identified as such. Some 587 bodies still are unidentified.

The march of death took place in the last weeks of the war as the Germans emptied their central and eastern prisons and concentration camps and tried to mass thousands of prisoners in the giant Theresianstadt camp north of Prague.

There was evidence from several sources that a small number of New Zealanders and Canadians were among those who started on the forced marches from several quarters.

Ghastliest part of the weeks-long 100-mile march was between Georgenstadt, near the Czech west border, and Theresianstadt. Many who reached Theresianstadt said hundreds were slain near Karlsbad because they were too weak to hike farther, and that others had died of fatigue.

Sixty Gestapo men were forced to open the graves during the past week. Identified last night were the bodies of 120 Poles, 87 Russians, 38 French, eight Italians, 15 Belgians, 12 Slovenes, six Czechs, one Greek and one Lithuanian. Forty-four were women and one was a child.

Nazi Scientific Starvation Station Claiming Victims until Few Days Ago

BY A. I. GOLDBERG

MUNICH, July 5 — (AP) — A Nazi "scientific starvation" station, whose grisly experiments on children and adults were claiming victims until only a few days ago, has been uncovered in Bavaria by two public health officials of the American Military Government.

AMG authorities announced last night that four German doctors and three hospital attendants had been arrested at the station in the Kaufbeuren area, 45 miles southeast of Munich. One woman nurse confessed killing 211 children, for which she drew an extra bonus, the statement said.

The station, masked under the title of a public sanatorium, was one of a series of systematic starvation and drug experiment laboratories scattered throughout Bavaria and Austria, the authorities said. Those who died were cremated.

Major Marvin Linick of New York City and Captain Loyal Murphy of Memphis, Tenn., who found the Kaufbeuren station, reported that it housed 1,578 men, women and children officers said.

More than 350 men, women and children had been cremated since last November, the officers said.

Other experimental stations included one at Harthausen near Linz in Austria, described as a major one, and smaller ones at Grafeneck, Duettemberg and Guensburg in Bavaria, it was reported.

Recover Bodies of 930 Victims of Nazi Gestapo

Veteran Airmen Remain in Europe

ROME, July 5. (AP)—Three heavy bombardment groups, one fighter group and two night fighter squadrons from the U. S. Army Air Forces in Italy—all veterans of more than two years overseas service—have been designated to remain in Europe as part of the occupational air command.

Major General J. M. Bevans, commander of the American air forces in the Mediterranean, announced that the units chosen are the Second, 97th and 99th Heavy Bombardment groups, the 79th Fighter group and the 416th and 417th Night Fighter squadrons.

The Second is the oldest U. S. heavy bombardment group, having originally been organized in France in 1918. It inaugurated shuttle bombing to Russia on June 2, 1944.

The 97th participated in the first high level daylight attack from England and was the first heavy group to reach North Africa. The 99th entered combat March 31, 1943, and holds two distinguished unit citations.

The 79th Fighter group arrived in the Middle East in October, 1942, fought as part of the British Desert Air Force and later with the U. S. Ninth and 12th Air Forces.

15th Army Group Dissolving

ROME, July 5 (AP).—The 15th Army Group, an over-all command of the American 5th and the British 8th Armies, will be dissolved at midnight tonight, General Mark W. Clark announced today.

The American personnel will be transferred to Clark's new headquarters of United States Forces in Austria. The date when American and British occupational forces will move into Vienna has not been announced. It was unofficially reported the movement would take place in mid-July.

Lieutenant General Geoffrey Keyes, commander of the 2d Corps of the 5th Army, already has established headquarters at Salzburg.

Nothing has been announced about the future of the 5th Army, although the general supposition is that it will be dissolved soon. The 8th also is slated for early dissolution.

General Strike Halts Traffic in Milan

MILAN, July 5 (AP)—Traffic was halted in Milan today as the city's several hundred thousand workers held an orderly general strike to protest mounting prices and demonstrate for higher wages. A similar strike was held in industrial Turin yesterday.

Since northern Italy's liberation prices have continued to spiral upward, recent increases including bread, milk, clothing and railroad fares.

TOKYO DIET ROUTED BY U. S. AIR BLOWS

Several Recent Meetings Halted by Attacks, Says Red Star—Railroads Militarized

MOSCOW, July 5 (AP)—The meetings of the recent special session of the Japanese Diet were broken up several times by American planes, a Red Star commentator reported today.

"This session met under serious conditions with the Japanese Army suffering heavy defeats, a sharpening military-political situation inside Japan and the successful Allied offensive operations in the Pacific Ocean," the commentator said.

Contrary to the usual practice, he said, the meeting of the Diet was not announced several days beforehand.

"But this caution didn't help. Although past special sessions ordinarily lasted three days, this session, in view of the critical situation, was calculated on lasting only two days. But instead of being the shortest session it turned out to be the longest of all special sessions. The fact that the session closed only on the fifth day of its meeting was facilitated by the flights of American aviation as a result of which the meetings were several times broken up.

Soviet Paper Says Pope Was in Fascist 'Camp'

'New Times' Charges Vatican Seeks Anti-Russian Bloc

MOSCOW, July 5 (AP).—An article in the magazine "New Times" today said: "People have seen the Pope not on the side of the fighters against Fascism, but in the opposite camp. During the pre-war period, the Vatican unchangingly supported reactionary forces all over the world."

The author, Dimitry Melnikov, charged that plans of the Vatican in regard to Poland and other central European countries are built around the plan of forming a bloc of eastern and central European countries as a new cordon sanitaire against the Soviet Union."

"New Times" is a successor to the former publication, "War and the Working Class."

The article accused the Vatican of looking with disfavor upon the decisions of the Crimea conference, of repeating through its organs "the fictions of Goebbels," and of wanting to see a strong Germany which could again become a "citadel of reaction in Europe."

Reds Say We Play Into Hands of Nazis

Moscow, July 5 (A. P.).—The New Times, Soviet magazine, successor to War and the Working Class, said today that the American and British commands in occupied Germany are playing into the hands of Nazis by forbidding meetings and the formation of political parties.

The complete destruction of Hitlerism can be brought about, it said, with the active participation of all enemies of Hitler among the German people themselves. "It is to this end that the Soviet occupation authorities are moving when they permit the formation of all anti-Nazi parties," the magazine said, and added that the Soviet policy in eastern Germany is already bearing fruit.

Red Cross to Work in Warsaw

MOSCOW, July 5 (AP)—Donald Castleberry, American Red Cross representative in Moscow, left today to make advance preparations for a permanent office in Warsaw, Johannes Bauer, now in London, will be permanent head of the Red Cross in Poland and is expected to arrive after American recognition of the new Polish Government.

SOONG TALKS TO HARRIMAN

Observers Report He Has Made Progress With Russians

MOSCOW, July 5 (AP)—Chinese Premier T. V. Soong's talks with Russian leaders have made progress, a well-informed source said today, as diplomatic observers expressed belief the Chinese-Soviet talks were of the highest importance to Allied unity.

Mr. Soong conferred at length today with W. Averell Harriman—his third discussion with the United States Ambassador. Mr. Soong has twice talked with Premier Stalin.

The Chinese Premier has been in Moscow six days.

CHINESE THREATEN 3 EX-U. S. AIR BASES

Close In on Paoking, Tanchuk and Kanhsien—Capture of Fahsien Menaces Hainan

MOOSA

CHUNGKING, China, July 5 (AP)—Chinese troops have closed to within five to fifteen miles of three more former United States air bases which were abandoned to the Japanese in 1944, and in the southern tip of China have recaptured Fahsien, highway hub on the approach to enemy-held Hainan Island, the Chinese High Command announced today.

The new thrusts threatened the enemy grip on former Fourteenth Air Force bases at Paoking, 235 miles northeast of Liuchow; at Tanchuk, 100 miles southeast of Liuchow, and at Kanhsien, in Kiangsi Province, 210 miles northeast of Canton, the Chinese said.

A triple-pronged Chinese attack had carried by last Sunday to points five miles west, six northwest, and nine and one-half southwest of Paoking and fighting continues with the Chinese gaining, a Chinese communiqué declared.

Paoking is a communications center fifty-eight miles west of Hengyang. Other Chinese punched to within two miles of Sinning, the communiqué added.

Chinese headquarters said enemy troops at Kanhsien to the southeast had pushed out eastward to a point six miles from the airfield city, and that fighting was in progress there.

Pingnam Is Captured

Southeast of Liuchow, Chinese forces on June 23 recaptured Pingnam on the West River, the High Command said, and fought to within less than fifteen miles from Tanchuk, where a United States air base was given up last Sept. 21.

Chinese troops pushing northeast of Liuchow toward Kweilin, the site of still another major base from which United States planes once harried the Japanese, reached the vicinity of Lojung, about one-fifth of the way between Liuchow and Kweilin, the communiqué continued.

Fahsien, 210 miles southeast of Liuchow, was recaptured Tuesday after a counter-attack, the communiqué announced, and the enemy retreated westward toward Limkong.

On the east coast of China, the Japanese retreating northward from Wenchow, apparently were heading for Hangchow, their main base in Chekiang Province.

Chinese headquarters said the enemy at Tiental, eighty miles above Wenchow, moved northward on Tuesday toward Chenghsien, sixty-five miles southeast of Hangchow and 120 southwest of Shanghai. These troops passed through Sinchang, seven miles from Chenghsien, "with our troops pursuing and attacking in various localities," the Chinese communiqué said.

In southwestern Honan Province, Chinese troops on Tuesday counter-attacked the Japanese twelve miles north of Sichwan, an enemy bastion guarding the approaches to Hankow and the west flank of the Peiping-Hankow railroad, the bulletin added.

It said the Chinese inflicted more than 300 casualties on the enemy, took booty and counted 154 enemy dead.

The communiqué also announced that the Japanese suffered 400 casualties in the fighting at Liuchow, reoccupied at midnight June 29, and that two prisoners were captured there.

An American communiqué said United States Mustangs in a sweep yesterday strafed more than 200 Japanese troops in junks and sampans skirting Tongkin Gulf east of French Indo-China and south of China.

Fighter missions are concentrating on enemy forces withdrawing from Indo-China through Hainan strait, but United States authorities here said there was no indication that the enemy withdrawal was in strength, and pointed to the small size of the force attacked.

Chinese Recapture Key Road Hub

Chungking, July 5 (A. P.).—The Chinese High Command said today its troops had recaptured the important highway center of Fahsien, 210 miles southeast of Liuchow, and had reached the Lojung area twenty miles northeast of the American air base city in a drive along the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad. The Japs fought to hold the road center to safeguard communications with Hainan Island.

The communique said that Chinese opened a three column-drive on June 29 against the communications center and former United States Air Base of Shaoyank (Paoking).

India Tribesman Leads Burma Guerrilla Band

New Delhi, July 5 (AP)—An Indian tribesman, graduate of an American university, led a guerrilla band in Burma against the Japanese for three years and mobilized resistance among half a million fellow countrymen, India army headquarters disclosed today.

The army announcement identified him as San Po Thin, about 45, a Keren tribesman who lived in th area west of Rangoon. He was graduated in music from Redlands (Cal.) University and later studied at the London School of Arts and Crafts.

From 1942, when the Japanese moved into Burma, until the British arrived this spring, San Po Thin repeatedly was under suspicion and once spent a month in a Japanese jail.

BOMBERS BLAST JAP CITIES FROM BASE ON OKINAWA

Yank Planes Unchallenged in Raids on Nips, MacArthur Reports.

AIRPORTS POUNDED

'This Is Just the Start,' Declares Gen. Kenney of New Raids.

MANILA, Friday, June 6—(AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur has flung his air forces against the Japanese homeland for the first time, operating from Okinawa, he disclosed today.

Thirty-six hours after they landed on Okinawa, fighters and bombers roared off on an unchallenged sweep over the southern Japanese island of Kyushu.

"This is just the start," declared Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the Far East air forces. "We will continue to hammer Japan until she accepts unconditional surrender."

The raids were staged July 3. The first blows landed on the cities of Tojimbara, Byu, Izumi, Chiran and Omura.

Speedy Mustangs darted down, strafing against moderate to heavy aintiaircraft fire as the raiders swept the skies for two hours. They found only three enemy float planes and sank them all in Fukuoka harbor.

It was the first blow struck by MacArthur against the Japanese homeland in more than three and a half years of war.

Forty-eight Mustangs of the Fifth Air Force's 38th Fighter group hit Fukuoka harbor, which is a major west coast shipping point from the empire to the Asiatic mainland.

Bombings Increased

The veterans of the air campaign that strangled the enemy's communications in the south seas thus joined the rising movement against the enemy's home islands—already rocked by giant superfortress raids and incessantly pounded by tactical planes from new-won bases.

The announcement that Gen. George C. Kenney's Fifth and 13th Air Forces had gone into action against Japan came soon after the war department in Washington disclosed the creation of a new and greater strategic air force to visit unparalleled destruction upon Nippon.

That announcement revealed that Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, whose forces smashed Germany from the air, was moving into the Pacific as head of the new U.S. Army strategic air force in the Pacific.

Under him will be the 20th Air Force of Superforts, commanded by Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, who has headed the 21st Bomber Command that has already smashed six great Japanese cities; and Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle's famed Eighth Air Force from Europe.

This change did not affect Kenney's command, a Washington dispatch said, but it was expected there that MacArthur's air general would concentrate on the use of Liberators, Flying Fortresses and medium bombers.

At the same time, MacArthur disclosed that the aerial blockade which has throttled Japanese communications in the South seas sank or severely damaged 164,800 tons of enemy shipping in June.

The June successes brought the total of enemy shipping sunk or severely damaged in the first six months of 1945 to 2,282,000 tons, testifying to the terrible attrition being inflicted on the once-great maritime power.

In June the air forces unloaded 18,500 tons of bombs in support of ground operations, flew 21,435 sorties and destroyed 45 enemy planes. This made a total for the six months of 88,500 tons dropped, 135,062 sorties and 1,265 planes downed.

The air blockade was imposed on a vast triangular expanse of land and sea—from Nanking and Shanghai 2,500 miles southward beyond Singapore to Java and thence east 3,000 miles through the East Indies to the Solomons.

AUSSIES CAPTURE BORNEO AIRFIELD

Big Oil Port and Refinery Town of Balikpapan Now in Allied Hands.

MANILA, Friday, July 6—(AP) The Australian Seventh division has captured Manggar airfield with its two 4,000-foot runways and won control of all of the big oil port and refinery town of Balikpapan in southeast Borneo, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Capture of the airfield, second taken in the Balikpapan area since the invasion of July 1, was accomplished on the afternoon of July 4, against light opposition.

It is 10 miles by air and 13 by road northeast of Balikpapan.

An Australian column, pushing on beyond the airfield along the bomb-cratered paved road, could see raging fires at Koeala Sambodja, once-great refinery and pumping station.

The Japanese apparently were methodically destroying all of the oil installations in Borneo's richest petroleum belt. Their fighting resistance to the Australian advance was spotty, with a profusion of land mines and booby traps as the principal hazards to the hard-slogging digger troops.

The main Japanese force in all southeast Borneo was retreating up the coast under Australian tank and artillery pressure and constantly harassed by Allied Tactical planes.

Both carrier-based and land-based planes participated, and one failed to return. They shot down two Japanese reconnaissance planes and also neutralized air fields across Makassar straits in the Celebes and in the Halmaheras. Twenty-five Liberators hit the Oelin and Tabanio oil areas southwest near Bandjermasin.

The Japanese apparently had abandoned to its fate a small force in the Pandansari refinery district directly northeast of Balikpapan. The Australians penetrated the defenses there, MacArthur said, and enemy fire slackened as the Aussies hammered away with their potent 25-pounders.

Powerful guns of the U. S. Seventh fleet added their weight of destruction to the offensive against this pocket of the enemy.

These Japanese troops were being engulfed by three encircling Australian columns, which with similar enveloping tactics had seized the heart of the vital Borneo port and all its dock area.

Mine sweepers plied the excellent anchorage of Balikpapan bay, clearing the waters so Allied ships could unload supplies and take off rubber and other raw material.

Engineers Land

Two landing craft bearing American engineers, without waiting for the mine sweepers, sailed right up the bay and tied up to the wharf, thereby becoming the first Allied ships to enter the harbor since the Japanese drove them out in 1942.

Heaviest fighting raged along the coast east of Balikpapan. There the Japanese in a fighting withdrawal were hotly engaged by Australians reaching for the Samarinda oil field some 50 miles from the port.

Allied warships kept up their hammering from the sea, tanks rumbled into spearhead positions along the Samarinda road, and artillery shells and bombs poured in on the naturally strong enemy positions.

Philippines Victory Proclaimed

MacArthur Declares Islands Will Be Base Comparable to Britain.

Manila, July 5 (A. P.).—All the Philippine Islands have been won back in "the greatest disaster ever sustained by Japanese arms," Gen. Douglas MacArthur proudly proclaimed today and their 115,600 square miles are being transformed into bases "comparable to the British islands" to spur the march on Tokyo.

In 250 days of campaigning, seventeen American divisions whipped twenty-three Jap divisions in "one of the rare instances when . . . a ground force superior in numbers was entirely destroyed by a numerically inferior opponent."

Roughly 420,000 Japs were slaughtered, including such hated outfits as the Sixteenth Imperial Division which tortured American and Filipino prisoners in the "Death March" after the 1942 fall of Bataan. A spokesman estimated that possibly 30,000 Japs survive until the archipelago, cut up into groups and driven into mountains where they are reduced to guerrilla activity.

American ground and air personnel casualties up to July 1 were listed as 11,921 killed, 410 missing and 42,569 wounded—a total of 54,891.

Cites Significance of Victory.

MacArthur stressed as accomplished goals of the reinvasion:

1. Acquisition of great land-sea-air bases "for future operations" comparable to the role played by the British Isles against Germany.

2. Collapse of the "imperial concept of a Greater East Asia co-prosperity Sphere and the reintroduction of democracy in the Far East."

3. Delivery of a "crippling blow" to Japan's Army, Navy and Air Force.

4. Severance of the enemy's sprawling, stolen empire so the north and south halves could "be enveloped and attacked in turn," while a sea-air blockade prevented raw materials from reaching Japan or reinforcements from reaching the East Indies.

5. Liberation of "our captured officers and men and our internees held in the Philippines."

Extent of Jap Disaster.

Possibly 12,000 Jap survivors are scattered through the wilds of Mindanao Island; 13,000 more are holed up in mountain areas north and east of Manila on Luzon, and 5,000 more are in isolated groups among the central islands.

A headquarters spokesman's summary, division by division, of the fate which befell the Japs, brought out that at least four divisions were sent down from Japan after the reinvasion at Leyte last October. Other divisions were jockeyed wildly from island to island in a frantic attempt to stem the tide of rising American power.

Finally, in the bitter fight for Manila, A Jap admiral sent forth naval forces to their slaughter. Naval troops under a second admiral have been reduced to remnants on Mindanao. Before the end, the desperate Japanese even threw in civilians and members of their merchant marine.

MacArthur, who recently was named overall commander of Army forces in the Pacific, shut the door on his Philippines assignment thus:

"This great land mass of 115,600 square miles, with a population of 17,000,000 is now freed of the invader."

Bombers Clear Way For Advance By Australians

BRINES

Balikpapan, Friday, July 6 (AP)—A swift 5-mile advance gave Australian troops possession of the Manggar airfield, 10 air miles northeast of here, Wednesday.

The thrust came after American planes eliminated strong last-ditch Japanese positions with some of the most spectacular bombing of this campaign.

Remainder Of Town Taken

Other Aussie units captured the remainder of the town of Balikpapan as a 5-mile-wide front on the left flank was advanced through one strong enemy line and overran delaying positions in the direction of Batochampar, which is about 4 miles northeast of Balikpapan.

One squadron of 13th Air Force Liberators piloted by Americans blew sky-high an entire dominating ridge packed with Japanese guns and troops. The bombers, operating under Australian command in the drive for Manggar airfields, dropped more than a score of 1,000-pound bombs on the important strong point.

"We could see Jap arms, legs, torsos and light artillery flying into the sky," said one returning bombardier.

One Of Series Of Redoubts

The heavily fortified ridge was one of a series of Japanese positions which steadily shelled the Australians as they made their way across and around a wrecked bridge over the 400-yard-wide shallow Manggar-Besar River at the southeastern end of the field.

Australian engineers cleared away numerous booby traps and mines and guided the assault columns past a 100-foot hole that had been burned in the bridge.

Across the stream, the Australians ran into heavy Japanese fire from light field guns and mortars and a few heavier coastal batteries. The first troops to reach the airfield were driven off by this shellfire, but Australian artillery and air support eliminated the gun positions.

The advance up the shell-cratered coastal road was paralleled by strong flanking patrols that probed 2 miles inland without finding the enemy.

Enter Refinery Zone

On the left flank of the whole front, the Australians blasted their way into the ruins of the Pandansari refinery zone and the native quarters after crossing the swampy Pandansari River mouth at the north end of Balikpapan town. Other units took and held positions a little more than 2 miles north of the town.

Less than 2 miles eastward, parallel columns broke a Japanese defense line in the hills opposite Pandansari, where the enemy had field-gun positions overlooking the only highway. An outflanking movement combined with a frontal assault took the positions, and one officer declared, "our casualties were remarkably light for the results achieved."

United States 7th Fleet guns continued to blast Penadjim point, across the bay from Balikpapan, meeting some return fire from Japanese guns there.

YANKS USE PORT OF BALIKPAPAN

Long Island Skipper Takes In First Vessel.

BRINES

Balikpapan, Borneo, July 5 (A. P.). — Australian infantrymen struck today at the last Jap footholds in Balikpapan, Borneo's major oil port, which already for all practical purposes is in Allied hands.

American engineers with the invasion celebrated Fourth of July by sailing two of their LCMs into Balikpapan Bay despite the fact it was not yet cleared of Jap mines. The landing of the LCMs at Japanese-built pontoon wharves marked the first entry of Allied shipping into the bay since the Nipponese took over in 1941.

The boats were from Company A of the 593d Engineers and Shore Battalion, and the operation was directed by Lieut.-Col. Brian P. Emerson, Island Park, L. I., commander of the 563d Boat and Maintenance Battalion. Corporal Peter Hersperger of Westfield, N. J., was in one of the boats.

Guns Duel Across Bay.

Artillery dueled, meanwhile, with strongly placed enemy guns across the three-mile-wide Balikpapan Bay, while the engineers rushed reconstruction of captured Sepinggang air strip and a column attacked strong opposition in a drive to envelope Manggar, last major enemy air field in the invasion territory.

Three columns which swept through the heart of the devastated central city yesterday, joined in a headlong attack against the final refinery area of Pandaniari, as the main Jap forces appeared to be withdrawing to the northeast toward Samardinda, in the heart of the oil producing region.

Aussies shoving to within four miles of Manggar airfield, more than ten miles north of Balikpapan, met strong opposition along the highway from Sepinggang, whose area was so pitted, mined and cratered that equipment for reconstruction had to be delivered by landing craft from the sea.

JAPANESE FLIERS IGNORE CHALLENGE

Iwo Based Mustangs Raid Enemy Airfields, Five Nip Planes Downed.

ERICKSON

GUAM, Friday, July 6 — (AP) Nearly 100 Iwo-based Mustangs of the USSTAF raided airfields in the Tokyo area yesterday for the second straight day and ripped dock and warehouse targets in Tokyo bay.

The Seventh fighter command revealed the record at the same time that fleet headquarters announced Navy privateers on July 4 made their first sweep over southwest Korea, disrupting a main railroad line.

The Japanese air force defending Tokyo again failed to show up against the Mustangs which the day before had broadcast a challenge to the foe.

Sustaining a daily attack on Japan and empire waters which now has been joined by planes of the Far Eastern air force, the Mustangs strafed Shimodate and Yatabe airfields northeast of the capital city.

Five enemy planes were destroyed and 10 damaged in yesterday's strike making a total of 48 shot down, destroyed or damaged in two days.

The raiders fired rockets into hangars and maintenance shops, sank a small boat and damaged 12 others.

Hitting southwest Korea in fair strength, Navy privateers Wednesday knocked out several tunnels of the main railroad line running north to Manchukuo, destroyed two railway bridges and two locomotives and damaged several others.

The fourth of July strike by the big bombers tightened the already severe blockade which is impeding Japanese communications and supply for Nipponese forces in China and Manchukuo.

The railroad attacks were centered on the north-south rail lines in the vicinity of Kanggyong, one of southwest Korea's largest cities.

Three railway bridges were damaged in addition to the two totally wrecked.

Huge Fourth of July Raid.

Guam, July 5 (A. P.).—Approximately 800 American planes set off Fourth of July fires and explosions in Japan, capped by an hour-long radio challenge of fighters circling three Tokyo airfields for the Jap air force to come up for battle. The dare went unanswered.

Fires in Nur ... cities burned so brightly they could be seen simultaneously by returning B-29 pilots.

Two Jap destroyers were hit in the Yellow Sea. Six Tokyo airfields were attacked. Everything from power houses to lighthouses was shot up. Photographic assessment was under way today to check the results of the greatest Independence Day celebration of the Pacific war.

It started when a fleet of 500 Superfortresses fire-bombed four mainland cities, leaving them in flames set off by 3,000 tons of incendiaries. Before the day was over, Army, Navy and Marine flyers had given Nippon's dwindling empire a thorough going over with bombs and strafings.

Mustangs on Rampage.

The B-29 attack was followed by a force of more than 150 Mustang fighters of the Seventh Air Force, which flew over hundreds of miles of Japan's home soil looking for Japan's air force and ground targets. The Mustangs, Iwo Jima headquarters announced today, found more installations than enemy pilots. They destroyed eight planes on the ground, damaged twenty-four more and then roamed at will, shooting up ... airfields, radio stations, freight cars, control towers, ammunition sheds, gas tanks and power plants. Imba and Nobara airfields at Tokyo proper were hit, and to the northeast Kashiwa, Tsukuba, Konoike and Kasumigaura were lashed.

One hundred and thirty Ryukyus-based Army and Marine planes struck Chiran and Kanoya airfields on Kyushu, unloading twenty-two and a half tons of fragmentation bombs on Chiran and destroying six enemy fighters and three bombers on the ground at Kanoya. Other planes were on missions over Kyushu and one Jap fighter was knocked down near Okinawa.

The pre-dawn B-29 mission was likewise spectacular as the big fleet bombed Tokushima, Takamatsu and Kochi on Shikoku Island, and Himeji on Honshu Island.

Capt George McCarthy, Woodhaven, L. I., said of the Takamatou raid: "It was a real Fourth of July—plenty of fireworks on the ground."

25 Miles of Paved Runways Will Be Built on Okinawa

By AL DOPKING

GUAM, Friday, July 6—(AP) Col. George Mayo, air engineer for the Army Air force, said today that airfield construction plans for Okinawa call for more than 25 miles of paved runways for the final all-out air assault on Japan.

He disclosed:

The paved aircraft parking areas, taxiways and service aprons of these airfields will have an area equal to 400 miles of two-lane highway and the smallest of these airfields will handle twice as much traffic as New York's LaGuardia field.

Soon "we shall see twice as many aviation engineers in the Pacific as ever served in the European and Mediterranean theaters combined."

To level some of the airstrips, aviation engineers, ground engineers and seabees have cut down coral hills 50 feet high and have filled ravines 40 feet deep.

The engineers mush move—with dynamite, shovels, bulldozers and trucks — approximately 21,500,000 cubic yards of coral earth, or a cone shaped mountain a mile high and 2,000 feet around the bottom.

Plans call for enough heavy duty roads paved with coral to equal a highway from Boston to Richmond, Va.

Completing an inspection of aviation engineer troops and projects in the Pacific, Mayo called airfield construction on Okinawa "the greatest concentration of military engineering effort ever seen in the world."

Because of military security, he did not disclose how many construction engineers are at work or the number of air strips being built on the newly conquered island.

Mayo declined to give the date when construction would be completed but expressed confidence that schedules calling for "the greatest island airbase ever seen" would be met if favorable weather holds out.

"On Saipan, we built B-29 bases where Japanese propaganda broadcasts said Superfortress strips were impossible," he said. "On Okinawa, we are going to build all kinds of bases much faster than the Japanese would every think possible."

He explained that much of the aviation engineers' speed was due to greater mechanization and that today on Okinawa "we are landing about 10 tons of machinery for every aviation engineer."

The engineers are working around the clock in two or three shifts.

Mayo praised the engineers, saying that while they do not win wars, they pave the way for the wars to be won.

Navy Privateers' Raids Block Korean Railways

Guam, Friday, July 6 (AP)—Navy Privateers attacked southwestern Korea for the first time in the war July 4, striking rail communications, powerhouses and other installations, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The Privateers, of Fleet Air Wing 1, sank a submarine chaser and one other small vessel going in and left two trawlers sinking off the China coast.

Rail Tunnels Blocked

Two railroad bridges were destroyed and several railroad tunnels blocked in the Korean attacks. Two locomotives were blown up and a number of others damaged. Power houses and other installations were bombed.

Similar bombing sweeps previously have been made against railroads in southeastern Korea by Rear Admiral John D. R. Price's Fleet Air Wing 1 flyers, but this was the first attack in force against the rail lines on the western side of the Korean peninsula.

Six Japanese vessels were sunk by the Fleet Air Wing 1 Privateers and Mariners in attacks off southern Korea, off the China coast and in the East China Sea July 4 and 5.

Tokyo ... Again

Nearly 100 Iwo-based Mustangs of the 7th Air Force raided airfields in the Tokyo area yesterday for the second straight day and ripped dock and warehouse targets in Tokyo Bay.

The Japanese air force defending Tokyo again failed to show up against the Mustangs which the day before had broadcast a challenge to the foe.

Sustaining a daily attack on Japan and empire waters which now has been joined by planes of the Far Eastern Air Force, the Mustangs strafed Shimodate and Yatabe airfields northeast of the capital city.

Five enemy planes were destroyed and ten damaged in yesterday's strike making a total of 48 shot down, destroyed or damaged in two days. The raiders fired rockets into hangars and maintenance shops, sank a small boat and damaged twelve others.

NAVY PRIVATEERS HIT KOREA TARGETS

GUAM, (Friday), July 6—(AP) Navy privateers attacked the land mass of Korea for the first time in the war July 4, striking rail communications, powerhouses and other installations, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The privateers, of Fleet Air Wing One, sank a submarine chaser and one other small vessel going in and left two trawlers sinking off the China coast.

Two railroad bridges were destroyed and several railroad tunnels blocked in the Korean attacks. Two locomotives were blown up and a number of other damaged. Powerhouses and other installations were bombed.

MacArthur Says Tydings Returned of Own Accord

Denies Story He Advised Senator to Leave Philippines

HEADQUARTERS, Army Forces of the Pacific, July 7 (AP).—General Douglas MacArthur today denied that he had advised Senator Millard Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland, to return to the United States because of the political situation in the Philippines, as reported by Columnist Drew Pearson.

"I did not discuss Philippine politics with Senator Tydings or any member of his committee," MacArthur said. "So far as I know, the length of the stay of his committee was determined entirely by the time necessary to accomplish its mission. It apparently finished its work and then left for home."

Pearson reported Tuesday that MacArthur was convinced the Filipino underground was the strongest political group in the Philippines. On this basis, the columnist said, MacArthur advised Tydings that a protracted discussion of independence and reconstruction loans with President Sergio Osmena's government would merely be carrying on negotiations with a government which would be out of power after November.

Japs Burn Oil Refinery

Manila, Friday, July 6 (AP)—An Australian column which pushed beyond Manggar airfield along a paved road, could see fires raging at Koeala Sambodja refinery and pumping station, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué reported today.

The Japanese apparently were methodically destroying all of the oil installations in Borneo's richest petroleum belt.

The main Japanese force in all southeast Borneo was retreating up the coast under Australian tank and artillery pressure and constantly harassed by Allied tactical planes.

Both carrier-based and land-based planes participated, and one failed to return. They shot down two Japanese reconnaissance planes and also neutralized air fields across Makassar Straits in the Celebes and in the Halmaheras. Twenty-five Liberators hit the Oelin and Tabanio oil areas southwest near Bandpermasin.

2 CORRESPONDENTS KILLED

Australians Caught in Japanese Fire on Balik Papan

NEAR BALIK PAPAN, July 4 (Delayed) (AP)—Two Australian war correspondents were killed yesterday by a burst of Japanese machinegun fire as they rested by a building in the ruins of northern Balik Papan.

They were William Smith, Australian department of information reporter sometimes called the Australian Ernie Pyle, and John Elliott, news commentator for the Australian Broadcasting Commission.

Officers said they wandered 700 yards ahead of the Australian lines to within 300 yards of the enemy. When the bodies were recovered, Smith's notebook was open and his pen was in his hand.

The entire press corps attended burial services today. Eighteen Australian correspondents and photographers have been killed in all theaters of war.

265,000 Okinawans Aided

Guam, Friday, July 6 (AP)—United States military government authorities are caring for about 265,000 civilians on Okinawa and 5,000 to 7,000 on the little island of Kume to the west, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

ECLIPSE AIDS SHIPS ATTACKED BY JAPS

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC, Friday, July 6—(AP) An eclipse of the moon aided three American destroyers which were under heavy air attack by from 10 to 12 enemy bombers and fighters at a forward area patrolling station.

Two enemy planes were shot down by the destroyers' anti-aircraft fire. The remainder were driven off.

When the raiders first appeared, one of the brightest full moons in many months silhouetted the destroyers. During the height of the attack, Seaman 1-c Colin Elliott, of Waco, Texas, a sky lookout aboard one destroyer called out:

"Moon eclipsing bearing 160 relative positions, angle 45."

Cmdr. A. E. Teall, of San Francisco, skipper of the destroyers, looked at the darkening moon, then ordered the gunners to keep blazing away "until they can't see you but they can feel you."

A few minutes later, the two planes crashed into the sea.

Then the eclipse became total, blanketing the area in darkness.

HERE'S SCRAP IRON JAPS WON'T GET

Balikpapan, Borneo, July 5 (A. P.).—Japs stacked the Balikpapan water front with scrap metal, but they never got a chance to ship it to the homeland industries.

The rust-coated piles cover a water front area equivalent to two city blocks. Much of it is bomb-wrecked equipment from oil refineries. There will be even larger piles—for Allied use—when the clean-up of wrecked refineries is started.

Australian troops are riding around on Jap bicycles found in warehouses. One Aussie is using a Jap officer's American-made sedan.

Gets New Command

OKINAWA, July 5 (AP)—Major General Keller E. Rockney of Washington, D. C., and Pensacola, Fla., who commanded the Fifth Marine Division in the Iwo Jima campaign, has succeeded Lieutenant General Roy S. Geiger as commanding general of the Marine Third Amphibious Force.

Geiger passed over the command June 30, before departing for Pearl Harbor to become commanding general of all fleet marine forces in the Pacific ocean areas where he succeeds Lieutenant-General Holland M. (Howling Mad) Smith.

Rockey's chief of staff is Brigadier General W. A. Worton, formerly of Bostotn, Mass., with temporary residence at Carlsbad, Calif.

TOKYO PREDICTS MASS RAIDS WITH 1,000 SUPERFORTS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5—(AP) Japan counted 300 American fighters and bombing planes attacking Tokyo airfields and Nagasaki port today and foresaw "a possibility" of mass raids by 1,000 Superfortresses.

Tokyo's radio and press dispatches, recorded by the Federal Communications commission, made no further mention, however, of U. S. warships previously reported to have shelled Karafuto island Tuesday.

The raiding planes were identified by the unconfirmed Japanese reports as P-38 Lightnings, P-51 Mustangs and B-24 Liberators from Iwo Jima and Okinawa. American announcements thus far of raids from these two most forward bases have not mentioned Lightnings or Liberators.

Domei news agency admitted the possibility of raids by 1,000 B-29s—raids which American air commanders have announced are in the making—but claimed Nippon had "nothing to fear" because the United States air forces "no matter how great" would lack sufficient bases.

Japan's silence on the reported Karafuto bombardment indicated the five warships, previously identified as slipping through the Kurile islands and 500 miles across the sea of Okhotsk to strike, had vanished in the fogs of that northern area.

Domei's propaganda assurances of "nothing to fear," intended for Japanese in occupied Asia, came as the same agency was announcing a change in the top military propaganda position. Maj. Gen. Masao Ueda replaced Maj. Gen. Shuitsu Matsumara.

Tokyo disclosed that Japan has militarized its railroads under the government's new decree power in order that munitions, food, coal and other vital shipments may be moved. The action was in line with a general renovation of land and sea transportation ordered Monday.

1,000-PLANE RAID HAUNTS JAPANESE

San Francisco, July 5 (A. P.).—Japan forecast "a possibility" today of being mass bombed by 1,000 American B-29s and took steps to cushion the impending blows with propaganda measures.

The Government-controlled Domei News Agency acknowledged concern over 1,000-Superfortress raids—which American Air Force leaders have announced as in prospect—but at the same time contended there was "nothing to fear."

Domei's dispatch, recorded by the FCC said, "No matter how great" the American air power became, it could not carry out "effective raids" against Nippon's mainland "because of lack of sufficient bases."

—The Japanese Domei news agency reported that Maj. Gen. Masao Ueda, formerly in an obscure army post, had been elevated to Japan's key military propaganda job as chief of the Imperial Headquarters Press Section. He replaced Maj. Gen. Shuichi Matsumara.

The dispatch also announced eight other army shifts, involving seven generals and the appointment of Lieut. Col. Prince Tsuneyoshi to the staff of the over-all army command.

Fear of invasion has forced Japan to militarize its heavily bombed railroads to speed delivery of critically needed war supplies throughout the home islands, the Tokyo radio disclosed today.

Munitions, foodstuffs, coal and other vital strategic goods create urgent transportation problems, said the broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission. The Government's action under the new decree power affects 150,000 rail workers.

Japan's acute transportation crisis under impact of Allied air attacks caused railway officials to assemble in Tokyo Saturday to plan emergency measures.

On Monday the Government ordered general renovation of land and sea transportation and mobilization of civilian workers to provide both with much-needed manpower.

The enemy radio asserted today that Japanese aircraft production was continuing steadily in underground plants despite intense Superfortress bombing of industrial areas. The dispatch said that Allied reconnaissance had failed to locate the underground plants.

Disrupted transportation has brought a large-scale campaign for production of lignite in areas that do not mine coal, the Tokyo radio said. Lignite is widely distributed in the home islands.

A Tokyo domestic broadcast stated that large munitions factories were taking over the agricultural tool making job from village blacksmiths. Tool shortages, Tokyo said, were threatening to reduce the food supply.

A Domei announcement said that Sweden had consented to represent Japan's interests in Mexico. Portugal recently asked to be relieved of the responsibility.

TOKYO ZONE RAKED HEAVILY

Attacks Follow Fourth of July by 800 U. S. Aircraft Over Wide Area.

San Francisco, July 5 (A. P.).—Three hundred American fighters and bombers striking from fields on Iwo Jima and Okinawa, made a twin air attack on Tokyo air fields and the port of Nagasaki today, Radio Tokyo reported.

Two-hundred Okinawa - based Lightning fighters and Liberator bombers pounded Nagasaki and the nearby city of Omura, on Kyushu Island of southern Japan, said the enemy broadcast recorded by the FCC.

A few hours earlier 100 Mustang fighters shepherded from Iwo Jima by nine Superforts lashed airfields north and east of Tokyo. It was the second successive day on which the Japs reported companion air blows against the two most important home islands.

'Pine Needle' Gasoline Being Tested by Japs

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5—(AP) Tokyo radio, bolstering hopes of a homeland whose aviation fuel plants have been primary among recent targets of B-29s, claimed today two Japanese technicians have developed a process to extract such fuel from pine needles.

The broadcast, monitored by the Federal Communications Commission, said the army already has issued orders for the collection of "pine leaves" and "the good children will probably be mobilized for this work."

ADM. ANDREWS RETIRES

HONOLULU, July 5—(AP) The retirement of Vice Adm. Adolphus Andrews was disclosed here today with the announcement he had been appointed American Red Cross commissioner for the Pacific Ocean areas. Andrews, a member of the Court of Inquiry on Pearl Harbor, succeeds Stanton Griffis, who is returning to private industry.

ARGENTINE REVOLT CALLED DESIRABLE

Santiago, Chile, July 5 (A. P.).—Dr. Pedro Cue, prominent Cuban editor and attorney, said here last night that Vice-President Juan Peron of Argentina told me he felt that civil war in Argentina might be desirable since there was no other way out of the present impasse."

Cue is the editor and owner of El Mundo of Havana. Arriving by plane from Buenos Aires, he told reporters that he had had a ninety - minute interview with Peron, and quoted him as saying: "I have no fear of civil war, because I am a military man and am prepared for it." Peron, he continued, also declared that it probably would be necessary to have fighting in the streets of Buenos Aires and cause some deaths," as a means of achieving the purposes of the revolution which put the military group in power.

"Peron told me he had nothing to lose in such a civil war," Cue added, "because he had in one hand an army of 200,000 men and in the other 4,000,000 workers armed with clubs, but for the struggle he foresaw that the workers alone would be sufficient and that it will be unnecessary to call on the army."

Toronto Rail Strike Put In Hands Of Board

Toronto, July 5, (AP)—A three-man board of arbitration was handed the task today of finding some solution to a wage dispute that reached its climax in a two-and-a-half-hour strike that brought most of Toronto's 900 streetcars to an involuntary halt this morning.

The cars stood still after about 75 electrical workers of the Toronto Transportation Commission shut off switches in four substations as a gesture of what they called "disgust with buck passing" in a dispute that dates back to May, 1944.

The T.T.C. termed the strike "illegal" and said that in "fairness" to the more than 3,200 other employés it "cannot yield to intimidation and unlawful action." It pointed out that the action "came without notice" and was taken "while active negotiations were being carried on" to solve the dispute.

The union charged that the T.T.C. was "not playing fair" with the electrical workers by requesting an appeal against a ruling of the Ontario Regional War Labor Board which granted 5-cent-an-hour wage increases in certain classifications.

Twin Border Cities of Sault Ste. Marie Join in Peace Celebration

By JACK I. GREEN

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., July 5 —(AP)—This community and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., across the international border, joined last night in asking the eace-conscious nations of the world to note how the nationalities can live in harmony for 130 years.

With high Canadian and Michigan notables attending, the two cities staged a eace banquet to commemmorate the 130th anniversary of the Treaty of Ghent which ended the War of 1812 and opened an unbroken eriod of peace between the United States and Canada.

Paul Martin, secretary of state for Canada, told 200 guests "Our countries are taken as an example throughout the world of eaceful relations. We are indeed two nations with separate aspirations, no desire to merge but living in complete friendship."

Martin asserted, "there have been disputes and frictions between us in those years, but we adopted the method of conciliation long before other nations were even talking about it."

The Canadian secretary said that Canada was grateful to the United States for promises of protection against aggression and for participating in joint military consultations for the defense of the American hemisphere.

Lieutenant Governor Vernon J. Brown of Michigan replied, "We have proven that treaties do not need just be scraps of paper."

"Indeed," Brown continued, "between peoples who can sit down at the conference table with trust and friendship, there need be no treaties — merely the pressing of palm against palm between friends."

Major General Lewis A. Hershey, United States selective service director, was another speaeker and he declared, "erhaps some day we can have the whole world know what can be done as the United States and Canada have done."

TRUMAN DECLINES TO DISCLOSE WHO HE WILL APPOINT

PLANS TO TAKE REST

To Return to Dutchess County Home, Will Seek No Other Office.

By MAX HALL

WASHINGTON, July 5. — (AP) Henry Morgenthau, Jr., resigned today as Secretary of the Treasury after 11 ½ years in the office.

He will remain as secretary for several weeks or until President Truman returns from the Big Three conference near Berlin.

Truman, announcing Morgenthau's decision to step out, said he has a successor in mind but won't name him until he gets back from Europe.

Until Morgenthau actually leaves office, the tall, bald, apple-grower from Hopewell Junction, N. Y., will remain No. 3 in the presidential line and would succeed to the presidency if anything happened to Truman and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

Morgenthau has been secretary since Jan. 8, 1934, longer than any other man except Albert Gallatin of Pennsylvania, who was secretary for 12 years in the early 1800's.

No Plans for Future

Smiling cheerfully, Morgenthau told reporters, "I have no plans other than to take a rest." He is 54 years old.

He said that when he leaves office, he will go to his farm in Dutchess county, N. Y., and after resting there—"I haven't the slightest idea what I will do next."

His friends said emphatically he is not seeking any other office and is "not interested" in any governmental job.

Ever since Morgenthau's friend and neighbor, President Roosevelt, died three months ago there have been persistent rumors Morgenthau was due to leave the cabinet. He submitted an oral resignation right after Truman took office, and Truman asked him to remain. Truman publicly expressed confidence in the Treasury secretary. But the rumors persisted.

This morning Morgenthau went to see Truman at the White House. After their talk, Morgenthau wrote a letter of resignation, saying that "when Franklin Roosevelt came to Washington, he asked me to come with him, stating that when he was through we would go back to Dutchess County together."

Morgenthau told Truman in the letter he preferred to have his resignation effective immediately, "but since you stated this morning that you wished me to remain until you return from Europe, I will of course comply with your wishes."

Reporters asked the President at his news conference why Morgenthau resigned and Mr. Truman said Morgenthau simply wanted to quit.

The President wrote a letter to Morgenthau, saying he was "indeed sorry" over the secretary's decision. He praised Morgenthau's work, particularly in raising taxes and selling war bonds.

He said that under Morgenthau's supervision a federal tax program had been formulated raising "unprecedented tax revenues with a minimum of disturbance to our economy."

Truman also said that under Morgenthau's supervision "the Treasury through the sale of bonds has raised over two hundred billion dollars with which to finance our defense and war activities. Raising this money was in itself a great achievement; but, in addition, it was accompanied by a substantial reduction in the average rate of interest on the public debt."

The President called Morgenthau "a steady champion of international monetary stabilization."

Morgenthau is the sixth member of the Roosevelt cabinet to resign, leaving only four:

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace, Secretary of War Henry Stimson and Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal.

In the immediate speculation over who will be the new Treasury secretary, many in Washington were putting Fred M. Vinson at the head of the list. Vinson now is war mobilization director.

Others mentioned included John W. Snyder, Federal Loan administrator, and Senator George (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Finance committee. But some believed the President plans to skip over these leaders in favor of a less-known man.

Morgenthau-Truman Letters

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—President Truman today released the following letter of resignation from Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau jr.:

My Dear Mr. President:

When Franklin D. Roosevelt came to Washington he asked me to come with him, stating that when he was through we would go back to Dutchess County together. For twelve of the most eventful years in American history, I was associated with him, actively participating in meeting the important problems confronting the country both before and during the war.

Immediately after President Roosevelt's death, I told you how I felt, and stated that I wanted you to know that your hands were untied as far as I was concerned. You were good enough to say that you needed my help and urged me to remain.

Since then, with your support, I have completed many of the most urgent tasks that were pending. As I told you, this morning, I feel the time has now come when I can appropriately be released from my responsibilities. Accordingly, I now tender my resignation as Secretary of the Treasury. My preference was to have this resignation effective immediately, but since you stated this morning that you wish me to remain until your return from Europe I will, of course, comply with your wishes.

Permit me to express my appreciation of the fine support you have given me since you became President.

I most fervently hope for the great success of your administration in solving the difficult problems which lie ahead.

If you wish to consult me at any time, I shall always be at your service.

Sincerely yours,

HENRY MORGENTHAU JR.

President Truman's reply:

Dear Henry:

I am indeed sorry to learn that you have come to the conclusion that the time has arrived to be released from your responsibilities as Secretary of the Treasury. I am grateful, however, that you are willing to remain until I return from Europe so as to carry on the arduous work of the Treasury during my absence.

Yours has been a very long and efficient service to our country—both in peace and in war; and your departure from the Treasury will be a distinct loss.

Your service to the nation began in 1933 in the days when you supervised the merger of the farm credit agencies into the Farm Credit Association, which has done so much to help the farmers of the nation.

Since you have been in the Treasury you have participated in formulating and administering a Federal tax program which has raised unprecedented tax revenues with a minimum of disturbance to our economy. These tax laws have seen an impartial and efficient administration under your supervision.

Under your supervision the Treasury through the sale of bonds has raised over two hundred billion dollars with which to finance our defense and war activities. Raising this money was in itself a great achievement; but, in addition, it was accompanied by a substantial reduction in the average rate of interest on the public debt.

You have been a steady champion of international monetary stabilization ever since the early days of your administration as Secretary of the Treasury. Through many years of activity and accomplishment in this field your efforts are now bearing final fruit in the Bretton Woods legislation now pending before the Congress of the United States. In this, and in other ways, you have helped bring about the close fiscal co-operation which this government has had with its allies during this war. Besides, in the days before the lend-lease statute was enacted, many measures of co-operation with our allies were formulated in your office.

I am sure that you must feel a great sense of accomplishment in this outstanding record of service to our country. On behalf of our people I extend to you the thanks of the nation.

I am appreciative of your offer of service in the future, and I am sure that there will be many occasions on which I shall seek your counsel.

With kindest personal regards, very sincerely yours,

HARRY S. TRUMAN.

JUSTICE ROBERTS RETIRING JULY 31

Member of Supreme Court Since 1930 Was Leading Dissenter.

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) Justice Owen J. Roberts, for years the Supreme Court's leading dissenter and the last member of the tribunal not appointed or promoted by President Roosevelt, retired today, effective July 31.

Since he has served more than 15 years on the high bench and recently became 70 years of age, he will receive full pay of $20,000 a year for life.

He had been a member of the court since 1930. Chief Justice Stone also was appointed to the high court before Franklin D. Roosevelt became President, but Mr. Roosevelt named him Chief Justice.

In the early days of the New Deal, Justice Roberts held a balance of power between "Conservative" and "Liberal" elements in the court, voting sometimes with one group and sometimes with the other.

He held that position until 1937 when the retirement of Justice Van Devanter upset the previous balance between the other eight members of the court.

In the first 27 important New Deal decisions by the court, he went with the administration 16 times and against it in 11 cases.

During the court term just ended, Justice Roberts illustrated his tendency to disagree by filing dissents in five cases.

President Truman, in accepting the resignation, wrote:

"I am indeed sorry that you have decided to retire from the bench after your long service.

"The Supreme Court, in the period during which you have served as a member, has been called upon to pass upon some of the most important economic and social problems in the history of our country.

"As I told you this afternoon when I saw you and finally agreed to accept your resignation as of July 31, 1945, I do so only on your promise to continue to give your country the benefit of your sound judgment and advice as occasion arises.

"I extend to you the gratitude of the nation for the service you have rendered."

Thurman Arnold Quits Judgeship

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Thurman Arnold, former Justice Department "trust buster," resigned a high judgeship today to re-enter private law practice and work for "a truly competitive economy in the postwar world."

In resigning from the United States Court of Appeals, District of Columbia, Arnold wrote to President Truman:

"I believe that economic forces are moving toward freedom of business opportunity and a truly competitive economy in the postwar world. Industrial invention and a new age of transportation have created industrial opportunities for all sections of this country which never existed before.

Accepts With Regret

Full production after the war, and the elasticity of our economy, depend on the release of new and independent initiative in industry. This, I think, must be the direction of a successful liberal movement in America."

The President accepted the resignation "regretfully" saying it represented a "great loss to the bench."

Arnold, former Yale law professor noted for his witty writings on economics, was head of the Justice Department's anti-trust division until elevated to the bench in 1943. In the Justice Department he instituted the record-breaking number of 230 cases under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Casey Also Quits

Another resignation today was that of Eugene Casey, an executive assistant to the President. He was one of the "secret six" aides chosen by President Roosevelt because of their "passion for anonymity."

Late in 1944, Casey went on active duty with the Navy and is now a lieutenant commander serving in the Pacific.

GEN. C. A. SPAATZ IS GIVEN JOB OF LEVELLING JAPAN

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP) Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, who directed the smashing of Germany from the air today was assigned to do the same thing to Japan.

The War department announced an expansion of the air command set-up in the Pacific, placing Gen. Spaatz in charge of the B-29s now levelling Nippon's cities and softening the enemy home islands for invasion.

The red-haired, poker-playing Spaatz, now in Washington for conferences, will be commander of the U. S. Army Strategic Air Forces in the Pacific.

It is the same type of job he had in the Mediterranean theater, in Great Britain and in Europe, an assignment that gravitated naturally to this most ardent disciple of strategic bombing in the air corps.

Spaatz' headquarters for the stepped-up bombing of Japan was not designated. His set-up will be this:

He will be in charge of the 20th and the 8th Air Forces, equipped with B-29s, with of course their own fighter cover.

Under Spaatz as deputy will be Lieut. Gen. Barney Giles.

The 20th will be under Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay.

The 8th will be under Lieut. Gen. James A. Doolittle, whose medium bombers electrified America when they hit Tokyo early in the war.

Over the whole show will be General of the Army H. H. Arnold, as commander in chief of the entire U. S. Army Air corps. Arnold, who up to now has personally commanded the 20th, will be the executive liaison with the joint Army-Navy chiefs of staff.

The 20th is the original Superfortress air force, set up specially for the job when the B-29 was put into operation. Headquarters, now in Washington, will be moved to the Pacific theater.

General LeMay has been chief of the 21st Bomber command of the 20th Airforce, whose Superforts have been roaring out of Saipan, Tinian and Guam for almost a year.

General Doolittle is briefing here now for his task in the Pacific once his 8th Air Force which pulverized Europe is equipped with the superbombers and redeployed.

Air Fleets Increased

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, announcing the new setup, commented at a news conference:

"The step has been found necessary because of the greatly increased size and activity of the B-29 effort made possible by redeployment from Europe."

Patterson also remarked that the big bombers already have eliminated six major Japanese cities as current targets, and now are going to work on 40 or more secondary cities.

While the new Spaatz command will have its own fighters for protection, there still will be tactical air forces operating from various bases in the Pacific, Patterson indicated. The 13th, 5th and 7th air forces probably will draw this assignment. The 7th is already redeployed onto Okinawa and its fighters raked the enemy homeland only yesterday.

Spaatz may set up his headquarters at Guam to be with Admiral of the Fleet Chester W. Nimitz.

The new arrangement does not affect the southwest Pacific command under General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. His air chief, Gen. George C. Kenney, it was explained, will concentrate on the use of B-24 Liberators and medium bombers, with perhaps some B-17 Flying Fortresses.

'Broad Policy' of Universal Military Training Is Approved

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) With only one member voicing opposition, the House Postwar Military committee today endorsed the "broad policy" of universal military training.

It brought to a head the long-pending controversy over compulsory military training in peacetime by urging that Congress give the proposition "prompt and thorough consideration."

Although only 16 members of the 22-man committee headed by Chairman Woodrum (D-Va.) signed the formal recommendation, only one, Representative Bradley (D-Pa.) flatly opposed it. Of the other five, Representative Sheppard (D-Calif.) was not available to study the report and four declined to sign it but were represented by Woodrum as being neither opposed nor in favor of the proposal. They are Representatives Bulwinkle (D-N.C.), Short (R-Mo.), Arends (R-Ill.), and Allen (R-Ill.).

The committee did not offer specific legislation—it has no legislative powers—but left that job to the Military Affairs committee which is expected to hold hearings after the summer recess.

A majority of the military committee is known to favor a peacetime draft requiring every youth to take a year of military training at some time between the ages of 17 and 22.

The Woodrum committee, which for two weeks heard Army, Navy, veterans' groups and others support the proposal and churchmen, educators, labor and farm groups oppose it, urged that "full consideration be given" to these matters when Congress is ready to act:

"1. It should be designed primarily to train men for military service under conditions of modern warfare.

"2. It should conform in its details with the requirements shown by experience in this war and by future technological developments, to be necessary to prepare men to serve in the armed forces effectively.

"3. It should be universal and democratic, applicable to rich and poor alike, and with a minimum of exemptions or exceptions.

"4. It should be fitted into the existing structure of the military and naval establishments as provided for in the national defense act of 1920 and other existing legislation, or into that structure as hereafter modified by this Congress.

"5. It should be consistent with the preservation of the position of the National Guard Officers Reserve Corps, the Reserve Officers Training Corps, the Enlisted Reserve Corps, the Naval Reserve and the Naval Militia as components of the military and naval establishments.

"6. It should provide for training of men in youth in such a manner and on such a basis as to cause the least interference with their normal education and careers consistent with the effectiveness of the training program.

"7. It should provide for training only and should not require any character of military service. Service would be required only in the event Congress should in the future order conscription to meet a national emergency."

Universal Service Is Indorsed

House Post-war Military Policy Committee Approves Principle of Training.

JUL 6 1945

Washington, July 5 (A. P.).—The House Post-war Military Policy Committee indorsed today the broad principle of universal military training in peacetime.

The committee recommended that Congress enact legislation to put the program into effect, and that the action be taken during the present session. The recommendation was approved by sixteen of the twenty-two members.

Committee members said that only one member, Representative Bradley (D.-Pa.), opposed the recommendation, though five others did not sign the formal report. The names of the five non-signers were not disclosed.

The committee, a non-legislative group, did not blueprint the form of legislation that should be enacted. That will be done by the House Military Committee following hearings expected to be held after the proposed summer recess.

Young Men Subject to Draft.

Generally, the legislation under consideration would require every able-bodied male to take one year of military training sometime between his 17th and 21st birthdays.

Prospectively trainees would not be subject to active military service except in event of a national emergency declared by Congress. The general plan is that, after their year of training, they will become members of a reserve component subject to call to service in time of war or emergency.

"It is not feasible to rest the future security of the United States upon a large standing armed force," the committee said. "Its cost would be prohibitive; the necessary men to fill its ranks could not be hired in time of peace, and it would be repugnant to the American people."

Urges Trained Citizenry.

The committee said "an alert and trained citizenry capable of prompt mobilization to meet and deal with any national or international emergency" must be an integral part of United States military power.

During two weeks of recent public hearings, strong support for universal training came from the Army and the Navy, veterans organizations and miscellaneous private organizations. The principal opposition came from organized labor, clergymen, educators and farm groups.

entering the field of legislation.

The committee welcomed and sought information and advice from citizen groups and organizations, from government officials and from individuals whose background and experience qualified them to speak on this important topic. All persons desiring to be heard were heard or given an opportunity to present written statements for incorporation in the printed record of the hearings. More than a hundred witnesses appeared and were heard. Among those who testified were representatives of churches and church groups, of educational institutions and organizations of educators, of labor unions and of veterans' organizations, and the Under Secretary of State (Acting Secretary of State while Mr. Stettinius was attending the world security conference in San Francisco), the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, the chief of staff of the Army, the chief of naval operations and other representatives of the armed services. On a day specially set aside therefor, several members of Congress appeared and presented their views.

House Report on Post-War Military Training

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—Following is the complete text of the House post-war military policy committee's report on universal military training:

Mr. Woodrum, from the select committee on post-war military policy, submitted the following:

Report on universal military training (pursuant to H. Res. 465 of the 78th Congress, 2d session, and H. Res. 55 of the 79th Congress, 1st session):

The select committee on post-war military policy, of the House of Representatives, between June 4th and June 19th, inclusive, conducted extensive hearings on the question, "Should the United States adopt as a matter of broad policy a system of universal military training in the post-war period?"

This committee realizes that several very important problems will be encountered in working out a final solution but is confident that the appropriate committees of the Congress are fully competent to solve them. Indeed, this committee, obedient to the resolution establishing it, confines its recommendations to the field of policy, and refrains from

In the light of these hearings and of the deliberations by its members on this subject, the committee deems the following propositions to be true:

1. The eminent position of the United States in the family of nations is supported by her balanced elements of greatness, one of which is commensurate military power.

2. The future security of the United States, as a sovereign nation, depends upon the continuing willingness and ability of our people to protect, by force if necessary, the principles and ideals which inspired the formation of the world security organization.

3. Because the success of the world security organization will depend upon the continuing efforts and abilities of the member nations to discharge the obligations jointly and mutually undertaken in the United Nations charter, a retrogression by the United States to her previous state of military unpreparedness would defeat the objects and purposes of peace-loving peoples throughout the world.

4. The retention by the United States of a degree of military power, in being or in reserve, adequate to her needs depends upon several component factors, an indispensable one of which is an alert and trained citizenry capable of prompt mobilization to meet and deal with any national or international emergency.

5. It is traditional in the United States that in time of peace our regular or standing armed forces are reduced to a minimum; that in time of emergency our able-bodied citizens of military age join with the regular forces in bearing arms in the preservation of the national security. This tradition should be maintained and preserved.

6. Future military and naval operations, whether they are to be employed in the defense of the nation against aggression or in the implementation by force of the decisions of the world security organization, cannot be conducted effectively by raw recruits or by partially trained men. In view of the technological advances in methods of warfare and of the intricacy of the weapons now in use and to be used, those who will be subject to military service in the future will require thorough training in order to be able to serve their country well and with a reasonable chance of survival.

7. There is no sound or safe basis for assuming that, before a future aggressor strikes, the United States will be given warning and an adequate interval to train her men and build up her military readiness. Yet the safeguarding of world security, if not the survival of the nation, may well depend on prompt and successful participation by the United States in large-scale military and naval operations.

8. It is not feasible to rest the future security of the United States, upon a large standing armed force; its cost would be prohibitive; the necessary men to fill its ranks could not be hired in time of peace, and it would be repugnant to the American people.

A trained citizenry is only one of several elements necessary to a respectable military posture for our nation in the post-war period. A program of continuing scientific research and development, recommended by this country on May 2, 1945, is likewise a vital element. A state of convertibility of our vast industrial machine to military production should be preserved. We must have a highly trained regular armed force, minimum in size but with modern mobile strength on the ground, on the sea and in the air. Yet, without minimizing the importance of any of these elements, this committee is convinced that the plan for giving adequate military training to all citizens is perhaps the most vital element of all.

Such a plan is in accordance with our best traditions. Such a plan will not change or regiment the character of our citizens or militarize our people. In the present war, long periods of intensive military training have in no degree altered or impaired the free spirit of the American citizen in uniform. Our national freedom has been indissolubly linked with the valiant performance of our citizen soldier. Upon his swift readiness to serve in the cause of world peace the nation's future welfare rests. But the time when the citizen could over night spring to arms, and fight and win, is gone. Nor can he depend on another training interval bought with the blood and substance of allies conveniently placed in the aggressor's path. He deserves a right to prepare himself to serve, when and if future need should come, with all the skill in modern methods of warfare that timely and intensive training can provide.

For these and for other reasons your committee, therefore, recommends that the Congress adopt, as a matter of broad policy, a system of universal military training for the critical years ahead. The committee has limited its consideration to questions of broad policy and has refrained from particular consideration of the ways and means in which such a policy would be put into effect, nevertheless, there are certain convictions which the members of the committee share, derived from the testimony of various groups, which are submitted to the Congress in the hope that they will be of assistance to the committee on military affairs and to the member of Congress in their consideration of specific legislation on the subject.

Your committee recommends that, in any system of universal military training provided by law, full consideration should be given to these features.

1. It should be designed primarily to train men for military service under conditions of modern warfare.

2. It should conform in its details with the requirements shown by experience in this war and by future technological developments to be necessary to prepare men to serve in the armed forces effectively.

3. It should be universal and democratic, applicable to rich and poor alike, and with a minimum of exemptions or exceptions.

4. It should be fitted into the existing structure of the military and naval establishments as provided for in the national defense act of 1920 and other existing legislation or into that structure as heretofore modified by this Congress.

5. It should be consistent with the preservation of the position of the National Guard, Officers Reserve Corps, the Reserve Officers Training Corps, the enlisted Reserve Corps, the Naval Reserve and the Naval Militia as components of the military and naval establishments.

6. It should provide for training of men in youth in such a manner and on such a basis as to cause the least interference with their normal education and careers consistent with the effectiveness of the training program.

7. It should provide for training only and should not require any character of military service. Service would be required only in the event Congress should in the future order conscription to meet a national emergency.

In this connection the committee would like to emphasize the distinction between "peacetime conscription," a term so frequently used by opponents of this proposal, and "universal military training," the proposal under consideration. In order that there may be no doubt as to what is in the mind of the armed services, the committee herewith quotes verbatim from the statement filed with the committee by Major General William F. Tompkins of the general staff of the War Department on that subject:

"From a planning standpoint the War Department wants to make it crystal clear to this committee that it does not recommend or desire that trainees be inducted into the Army for military service. They should be inducted into training organizations for training purposes only. When the year of training is completed, it is recommended that graduate trainees become members of the enlisted Reserve Corps of the Army for a period of five years, but during that time they are not to be subject to any further compulsory training or service except in the event of a national emergency declared by the Congress."

Your committee further recommends that the Congress give the subject of this report prompt and thorough consideration with a view to determining what course of action should be followed in this particular. It is manifest that those who are charged with the responsibility of planning the composition of the nation's military and naval establishments will be severely handicapped unless and until the Congress, by appropriate enactment, defines the future policy and thus lays the predicate for an orderly transition from the war-time to the peacetime military organizations. Moreover, your committee is convinced that timely adoption of the principle will provide assurance to the United Nations that this nation expects to retain the necessary military strength to stand behind and make to work the idealism which has inspired the Dumbarton Oaks and the World Security conferences.

Byrnes Names Cohen, Once of 'Brain Trust'

Ex-Team-Mate of Corcoran and Counsel to Vinson To Be Special Assistant

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—A routine governmental appointment revived today memories of the New Deal "Brain Trust."

The new Secretary of State, James F. Byrnes, announced the appointment of Benjamin V. Cohen, of New York, as one of three special assistants. Mr. Cohen not only was one of the early "Brain Trusters," but one of the few originals still in government.

Many of the members of the Roosevelt "Brain Trust," including Raymond Moley, Rexford Guy Tugwell and Adolf A. Berle, were college professors. Anti-Administration cartoonists invariably drew them in cap and gown, plotting the overthrow of the American system of free enterprise.

Two "Brain Trusters" who lingered longer than most were Mr. Cohen and Thomas G. Corcoran, who had studied at Harvard Law School under Felix Frankfurter, now an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

Had Early New Deal Role

The Cohen-Corcoran team functioned in the Department of Justice and had much to do with the early New Deal legislation regulating public utilities, stocks and bonds.

"Tommy the Cork," as President Roosevelt referred to Mr. Corcoran, eventually retired from government to practice law. The quiet, studious Mr. Cohen, never as much in the spotlight as his partner, remained.

Mr. Cohen served as a special assistant to four Attorneys General in a row between 1933 and 1941, then went to London as legal adviser to American Ambassador John G. Winant.

He returned to Washington in 1942 to take an active role in the home-front side of the war effort beside Mr. Byrnes. He was general counsel for Mr. Byrnes in the Office of Economic Stabilization, then in the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

Quit Post Under Vinson

Mr. Cohen, now fifty years old, retired recently as general counsel to War Mobilizer Fred Vinson, presumably to resume his relationship with Mr. Byrnes in the State Department. He is expected to serve the new Secretary in a top-level legal role.

Along with Mr. Cohen, Mr. Byrnes today appointed Donald S. Russell and Walter Brown as special assistants on temporary assignment.

Mr. Russell, like Mr. Byrnes, is from Spartanburg, S. C. He was an assistant in the Economic Stabilization Office and later assistant director of the Office of War Mobilization.

Mr. Brown, a resident of Thomson, Ga., was Washington correspondent for several Southern newspapers before he became press relations director for the War Mobilization Office about a year ago.

Judge Who Resigned Still Faces Investigation

Funds Voted as Truman Accepts Johnson's Resignation

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—President Truman today formally accepted the resignation of Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson, of Lewisburg, Pa.

Almost simultaneously with the announcement, the House voted an additional $7,500 to the Judiciary Committee to investigate the "official conduct" of Judges Johnson and Albert L. Watson of the Middle District Pennsylvania Court at Scranton. Under the judicial retirement act, which he specifically cited in submitting his resignation, Judge Johnson will continue to draw his full salary, $10,000 a year. He is seventy-two and has served more than twenty years on the Federal bench.

Full pay is provided all Federal judges who resign or retire after serving ten years or more, and who are seventy or older.

Chairman John J. Cochran, Democrat, of Missouri, of the House Accounts Committee, told the House that Judge Johnson's resignation was not a consideration in connection with the fund request.

"The House has instructed the Judiciary Committee to investigate the conduct of these judges," Mr. Cochran continued. "They have now found something they feel is of great importance. The resignation will not prevent the House from impeaching Judge Johnson if they find justification.

"If a judge would be immune from impeachment proceedings simply because he retired, naturally judges under investigation might take that course."

10 Agencies Without Funds As Aftermath of FEPC Fight

WASHINGTON, July 5 — (AP) Ten home front war agencies were stripped of their 1946 fiscal year funds—including money to meet soon-due payrolls—in a House fight today over the Fair Employment Practices committee.

Blocked by southerners in efforts to obtain funds for FEPC, backers of that agency decided to "force a showdown" by eliminatnig the money for the other ten agencies. They did this under parliamentary rules which permitted a single member to eliminate any item for which there had not been previous statutory authorization.

The result was that the war agencies appropriation bill was slashed from a total of $752,000,000 to $134,000,000. The House then passed the measure by a voice vote and sent it to the Senate.

There was brief but angry debate as all funds for the following agencies were removed:

War Labor board, $13,100,000; Office of Defense Transportation, $7,000,000; Office of Economic Stabilization, $196,250; Office of Scientific Research and Development, $70,000,000; Office of Inter-American affairs, $14,000,000; Office of War Information, $18,000,000; War Production board, $35,000,000; War Shipping administration, $437,000,000; Office of Strategic services, $20,000,000; Petroleum Administration for War, $3,968,200.

Those agencies thus have no funds with which to operate during the 1946 fiscal year that started last Sunday. Although separate emergency legislation permits them to incur obligations in anticipation of funds they hope to get eventually, it does not allow them to meet payrolls for work performed during the new fiscal year. Some of the payrolls will be due soon.

The Senate undoubtedly will restore all or most of the eliminated money, thereby putting the measure back on the legislative merry-go-round on which it has been whirling since July 1.

Once before the House passed the bill, leaving in some money for every agency except FEPC. The Senate added $250,000 for the FEPC and touched off a controversy with House foes of the FEPC, set up by President Roosevelt to combat job discrimination because of race, creed or color.

There are no indications that either side will give in soon in the fight that already has blocked a planned House adjournment slated to start next week.

Left in the bill as the House passed it while delegations of FEPC supporters sat in the galleries and buttonholed members in the lobbies were these funds:

Office of Censorship, $13,000,000; Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, $44,000,000; Selective Service system, $52,000,000; War Relocation authority, $25,000,000. In addition it retained authority for the smaller war plants corporation and the office of alien property custodian to operate with finances already available.

Senate Votes Farmers $48,331 For Bad U. S. Advice on Spray

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—Because a variety of Delaware apples turned out to be allergic to a Japanese beetle fumigant recommended by the Department of Agriculture, the Senate has voted $48,331.78 to thirteen growers who followed directions and lost money.

Reporting on the bill by Senator James M. Tunnell, Democrat, of Delaware, the Senate Claims Committee said that use of methyl bromide on thirty-six carloads of Williams Early Red apples in 1944 lowered their shipping value from nearly $70,000 to salvage receipts of about $21,000.

The Agriculture Department had recommended the treatment because of the shortage of wire screening which is usually used in packing plants to protect shipments from contamination by the beetles. In a letter to the Senate Committee dated March 7, the then Secretary of Agriculture, Claude R. Wickard, defended the department and asserted the loss was not the government's responsibility.

A letter from A. L. Kenworthy, associate horticulturist of the University of Delaware agricultural experiment station, asserted, however, that the Federal department had recommended too high a dosage for the Williams Early Red variety and had not conducted "extensive enough" experimental work.

The bill by Senator Tunnell, which now goes to the House, carries the following awards to Delaware growers: C. L. Cannon, of Bridgeville, $1,197.27; W. H. Chandler, of Milton, $16,618.63; C. F. Fifer, of Wyoming, $2,886.90; W. S. Jones, of Bridgeville, $2,436.32; E. L. Kratz, of Greenwood, $379.52; Lord Brothers, of Dover,

$2,290.33; Lord & Rickards, of Dover, $930.08; L. C. Newton, of Bridgeville, $3,773.03; O. A. Newton & Son, of Bridgeville, $1,968.07; Frank W. Richardson, of Camden, $4,095.75; George B. Ruos & Son, of Bridgeville, $3,742.66; T. S. Smith & Sons, of Bridgeville, $6,751.26; Townsend's, Inc., of Millsboro, 1,161.96.

TARIFF TRADE ACT SIGNED BY TRUMAN

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) President Truman took over today the tariff bargaining power which Congress granted on his plea that it was necessary to the "success" of his administration.

He signed into law a three-year extension of the reciprocal trade act, which carries authority to cut tariffs 50 per cent below the rates in effect Jan. 1, 1945, in return for concessions from other nations.

Republicans made a party-line fight against the new duty cutting authorization, though there was little opposition to the actual extension of the trade agreements program itself. The measure went through the House 239 to 153 and the Senate approved 54 to 21.

The old law carried power to cut import taxes as much as 50 per cent below the levels of the Republican Hawley-Smoot tariff act of 1930. Thus, on items on which the original authorization has been fully used, new rates may be 75 per cent below those in the Hawley-Smoot measure.

State department officials say that on an average basis the new law will permit a return to the tariff levels of the Underwood act of the Wilson administration. On specific items there may be broad variation from that average.

President Roosevelt recommended the additional tariff cutting power shortly before his death, and during the battle in Congress President Truman advised the legislators it was needed for the success of his administration.

Senate Group Refuses More Housing Funds

Washington, July 5 (AP)—A supplemental estimate of $18,373,000 for the national housing agency has been turned down by the Senate Appropriations Committee, a committee aide said today.

President Truman sent the estimate to the Senate Tuesday with a letter from the budget director advising that the funds would be used to provide for distressed families of service men.

Another budget-approved request for $25,000,000 cash and $75,000,000 to be given the Federal Works Agency for road construction, also received Tuesday, was approved as part of the Second Deficiency Bill, the committee aide said.

Asks Vote on Succession

Johnson, of Colorado, Points to Truman Trip to Berlin

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Democrat, of Colorado, today called for quick action on the Presidential succession bill in view of the 'hazardous" trip soon to be undertaken by Preesident Truman and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

The President and Mr. Byrnes, who under existing law is next in line for the Presidency, are to attend a Big Three conference in the Berlin area.

"There is no denying this trip is hazardous," Senator Johnson told a reporter. He said the Senate should act swiftly on the bill, already approved by the House, under which the House Speaker would move up to the Presidency when there is no President or Vice-President.

FEPC Advocates Employ House Rules Effectively

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 5—Supporters of the Fair Employment Practices Committee struck more than half a billion dollars out of the War Agencies Supply bill today, and left many such agencies broke, just by reading the House rules.

Any member can raise a point of order on the contention that the proceedings under way violate the rules. He must be upheld if he can cite a rule being violated. One member can do it, demanding and getting a return to the regular order.

The rules, filling a big book, prohibit inclusion of legislation in appropriation bills, such as providing funds for some activity not expressly authorized by law. The agencies whose funds were knocked out fall in that category.

A vote of two-thirds of the members may suspend the rules and block such points of order.

CANADA'S SURPLUS MEAT IS ORDERED

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) The agriculture department said today it would not be possible for this country to augment its short meat supply by imports from Canada because the latter has committed its exportable surplus to the United Kingdom and liberated areas.

The department made this statement in response, it said, to numerous inquiries as to why this country cannot secure supplies from its neighbor to the north.

A conference of state governors, meeting at Mackinac Island, Mich., yesterday considered but turned down a resolution of northeastern governors calling for importation of meat from Canada.

The department explained that most of the Canadian meat shipped to the United Kingdom is supplied under a mutual aid or free contribution program and that most of that shipped to liberated areas is a part of Canada's contribution to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

The statement said that Canada has already shipped slightly more meat this year to the United Kingdom than has this country.

CAB APPROVES 3 TRANSOCEAN AIR ROUTE BIDS

Trans-Atlantic Services Are Planned by Pan American, TWA and Export.

NEW EQUIPMENT IS PROJECTED

Post-war Expansion Into Many Countries Is Contemplated by U. S. Companies.

Washington, July 5 (A. P.).—The Civil Aeronatics Board authorized three United States air carriers today to operate air transportation routes across the North Atlantic. They are Pan American Airways, Inc.; American Export Airlines, Inc., and Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc. Simultaneously the board issued a decision approving the acquisition of the American Export Airlines by American Airlines, Inc. The certificates authorizing the new services were limited to seven years "in order that the operations thereunder, after a reasonable period, may be reviewed."

Pan American Airways is the only American air carrier which heretofore has had permanent authorization for flying service across the North Atlantic. American Export Airlines has been operating under a temporary certificate and heretofore has been authorized to provide service to Lisbon, Portugal, and Foynes, Eire.

JUL 6 1945

Additional Air Services.

Today's decision will provide additional services to Portugal, Spain, Eire, the British Isles, Scandinavia, Russia, other European countries, North Africa, the Near East and India. New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago and Detroit were terminal points designated by the CAB, The decision was approved by President Truman.

The CAB said it recognized that the routes established cannot be operated into and through the foreign countries involved until those countries have granted necessary permits. Some already have done so and the board said it believed that operations over parts of the new routes could be started without awaiting the conclusion of diplomatic arrangements with all the countries.

Today's decision extends Pan American's existing route to London through Europe and the Near East to Calcutta, India, via Brussels, Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest, Istanbul, Ankara, Beyrouth, Baghdad, Teheran and Karachi. Between Vienna and Istanbul, some schedules will serve Budapest and Bucharest and others will serve Belgrade while between Ankara and Karachi some schedules will serve Teheran and others Beyrouth and Baghdad. Barcelona is added to Pan American's present seille.

American Export Route.

American Export, heretofore authorized to provide service to Lisbon and Foynes, is authorized to provide service via Labrador, Greenland and Iceland to Stavanger, Stockholm, Helsinki, Leningrad and Moscow and via Newfoundland, the Azores and to Foynes, Glasgow, London, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, Berlin, Warsaw and Moscow.

TWA was authorized to operate from points in the United States through Newfoundland over a northern leg to Foynes, Paris, Berne, Rome, Athens, Cairo, Jerusalem, Basra, Dhahran and Bombay. It also received permission to operate over a southern route to Lisbon, Madrid, Algiers, Tunis, Tripoli, Bengasi and Cairo and to operate via Lisbon and Madrid to Rome, where it will connect with services over the northern leg of its route.

In its decision authorizing American Airlines to acquire control of American Export Airlines, the CAB said that the acquisition would be in compliance with its order of July 30, 1942, requiring American Export Lines, Inc., a steamship company, to divest itself of control of American Export Airlines. Under the terms of the agreement American Export Airlines is to sell American Airlines 120,000 shares of its unissued capital stock at $25 a share, or a total of $3,000,000. As a result American would hold not less than 51.4 per cent of the total of 233,331 shares of outstanding capital stock of American Export Airlines. American Export Lines, the steamship company, will retain approximately 24 per cent of the Airline's capital stock. The dissolution of American Export Airlines, Inc., is not contemplated, the decision said, and the company is to remain as a separate corporation.

Joint Statement Issued.

At the American Airlines office, 100 East 42d street, Ralph S. Damon, president, and Sumner Sewall, president of American Export Airlines, issued the following joint statement today:

"We view the permission to combine the experience and operating ability of American Airlines and American Export Airlines as an opportunity to render a completely new and higher standard of public service in the field of air transportation.

"Combining these two experienced companies will have a beneficial effect upon those who travel abroad by air to and from points within the United States. The services at present rendered will be substantially increased just as soon as world conditions permit. In the mean time, the services now operated will be continued and improved."

American Airlines, serving as a contract carrier for the Army Air Transport Command, since 1942, has made a total of more than 7,800 over-ocean flights, including more than 7,000 crossings of the Atlantic as of May 31, 1945. American Export Airlines has been operating as a trans-ocean carrier since 1942, both in commercial service and as a carrier for the ATC and the Naval Air Transport Service, using four-engine airplanes for its trans-Atlantic crossings.

Mr. Sewall said that American Export Airlines is negotiating for giant Constellations for future trans-Atlantic service, and expressed the hope that they would be coming along last next spring.

Passengers will be able to fly from Chicago to Moscow without changing planes and to travel in 120-place planes from New York to London in about eleven hours, as a result of today's decision by the CAB, it was further announced by American Airlines.

Half Pullman Cars in Civilian Service Taken Over by Army

WASHINGTON, July 5 — (AP) Half the pullman cars now in civilian service will be shifted to transportation of troops in the immediate future, the Office of Defense Transportation disclosed tonight.

This announcement came in the wake of a statement by Undersecretary of War Patterson that returning veterans have been compelled to ride long distances in day coaches, without conveniences and the Army has taken steps to correct it.

Some additional day coaches also will be shifted to the military pool, but the percentage will be relatively small.

There are more than 6,000 pullman cars, and 50 per cent of these already are in the military pool.

The new shift will place an additional 1,500 pullmans in the pool, leaving about that many for civilian trains.

Actually, however, the shift will reduce the space available to civilians by more than 50 per cent.

This is because military authorities already have space reservations on practically all civilian trains, and presumably there will be no substantial reduction in these demands.

Day Coach to Coast

Patterson's comment was given in answer to question about the incident of 500 soldiers who rode day-coach, three in a seat, from Boston to San Francisco, complaining that they saw German prisoners of war in pullman coaches enroute.

Said Patterson:

"The part of the story about German prisoners of war being carried in pullmans is not true. The part of the story about our troops being carried without sleepers but in day coaches of the commuter type, is true."

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the ODT said however the cars were standard day coaches.

He remarked that it was "perfectly impossible" to supply all the needed pullman cars and day coaches "without any warning whatever."

Johnson said that information furnished his agency had indicated 154,000 troops would arrive in this country by ship during June, plus 50,000 by air.

Actually, he said, 200,000 arrived by ship and 50,000 by air.

Johnson said he would ask the War department to "give us as much advance notice as possible" in the future when changing requirements demand additional transportation equipment.

WLB Warns Newspaper Deliverers Of Loss Of Benefits

Washington, July 5 (AP)—The War Labor Board today notified the Newspaper Mail Deliverers Union, which is striking against New York newspapers, to take steps to return to work at 10 A.M. tomorrow or face the loss of retroactive pay adjustments.

The board wired Joseph Simons, president of the union, and Louis Waldman, attorney for the 1,700 strikers, saying that unless the board is notified by 10 A.M. Friday "that the union has taken the necessary steps promptly to terminate the strike, the board in executive session will take under consideration the advisability of amending the June 14, 1945, interim order of the newspaper commission in so far as benefits accrue to the union and to its members under that order."

Had Expected Contract Terms

The commission's order had extended terms of the old contract, which expired at midnight June 30, with the proviso that any adjustments made in a subsequent agreement would be effective as of July 1.

This would mean that any pay increases or agreement by the newspapers to meet the union demand for a three per cent royalty on pay rolls for a union welfare fund, would become effective as of July 1.

The board would take away the retroactivity of any ultimate benefits under its new move to hasten the deliverers back to their jobs on the metropolitan newspapers.

Union Head's Statement

In New York, Simons told a radio audience tonight that "I didn't get any word from the WLB about going back to work tomorrow."

The union president and Edwin S. Friendly, general manager of the New York Sun, spoke over station WMCA at the station's invitation to tell both sides of the dispute.

Simons said he had ordered a general meeting of union members at which he intended to tell them "every piece of business that was transacted" at a WLB hearing on the case yesterday in Washington.

Before the broadcast he said the meeting would be either Sunday or Monday.

Board Called In Union

Friendly said:

"The union was called to Washington, not by us, but by the War Labor Board to show cause . . . why it had not returned to work. Instead of explaining why they had not gone back to their jobs (as ordered by the WLB) the union representatives at the hearing merely agreed to call a meeting of the full membership and acquaint it with what had transpired at Washington—nothing more. So far as we know, a meeting has not been called."

NAVY TAKES OVER BIG TIRE FACTORY

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Plants Seized Under Presidential Order.

By LARRY SMITH

AKRON, O., July 5—(AP) The 20-day strike at Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., ended today with Navy seizure of five sprawling plants under presidential edict and an ultimatum to 16,700 C.I.O. United Rubber Workers to be back on the production lines tomorrow.

Capt. H. K. Clark, U.S.N.R., assumed control of the strike-bound concern shortly after noon, pickets cheering as he and his staff walked through the main gate to the office of Goodyear President Edward J. Thomas, where the Truman order was read.

Thomas, shaking hands with Captain Clark, assured him:

"We will cooperate 100 per cent."

And a few minutes later, after placards announcing government seizure had been placed at all gates, C. V. Wheeler, local president of the Goodyear union, sent this message to the strikers:

"Under the circumstances, and because of the necessity of continued war production, we are happy to work under government supervision pending settlement of disputes with the company. The officers of your local union hereby advise you to return to work immediately."

During the stoppage, which Goodyear officials said cost the war effort some 320,000 plane and truck tires, the strikers had seven times spurned back-to-work orders issued by the WLB, had asked President Truman to not seize the plant, and had demanded a Senate committee investigation of the merits of the strike.

But President Truman, finding the war effort would "be unduly impeded or delayed" by production interruptions, ordered the seizure and told the Secretary of the Navy government possession should terminate "within 60 days after he determines that the productive efficiency of the plant x x x prevailing prior to the existing interruptions x x x has been restored."

At the neighboring Firestone Tire and Rubber plant, where 16,500 C.I.O.-United Rubber Workers have been on strike since Sunday, local President Isaac H. (Ike) Watson of the union said:

"We are not going back to work on the conditions under which we went out."

Delay Corsair Delivery

Company officials estimated the Firestone strike has caused loss of 15,000 tires and tubes daily, and Army-Navy spokesmen said completed Corsair and Avenger planes are unable to leave for the Pacific because of lack of tires, brake materials and self-sealing gas tanks, and next week completed Hell Divers will be tied up for the same reason.

In taking over the Goodyear plant, Capt. Clark announced he had offered the company an agreement to continue the present management subject to his orders, but reserved for himself and his staff full authority to direct all labor relations of the company.

He informed strikers that failure to return to work on regular shifts Friday might bring about cancellation of draft deferments, immediate induction of those not otherwise subject to induction, refusal of referral cards and statements of availability, and cancellation of supplementary gas rations.

Following an early statement by Wheeler that he had no statement because "I have not been formally notified of the seizure," Captain Clark intimated there would be no notification of the union.

"I am dealing with the company and the employes," the naval officer said.

The Goodyear strike started June 16 when the company and union failed to get together on 32 disputed wage, hour and working condition points. The Firestone strike also resulted from contract negotiation failure."

STRIKES HELD HARD TO STOP

Wagner Talks At Ceremony For New NLRB Head

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Senator Wagner (D., N.Y.) said on the tenth anniversary of the National Labor Relations Act today that "only under fascism do you have no strikes, and that is too high a price to pay."

Wagner, father of the act, spoke briefly at the swearing in of Naval Lieutenant Paul M. Herzog as new chairman of the National Labor Relations Board. Herzog, 38-year-old former chairman of the New York State Labor Relations Board, succeeds Harry A. Millis, who resigned because of ill health.

Mead's Election Forecast

Wagner, during his brief speech, predicted that Senator Mead (D., N.Y.) would be the next Governor of New York. Mead attended the ceremonies, together with Lewis B. Schwellenback, who took oath as new Secretary of Labor last Saturday, and Representative Mary Norton (D., N.J.), all of whom had a part in pressing for action on the measure.

Herzog took the oath from Associate Justice Henry W. Egerton, of the Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia.

U. S. MADE 45 P. C. OF '44 WAR ARMS

Washington, July 5 (A. P.).—J. A. Krug, War Production Board chairman, reported today that the United States produced 45 per cent of the world's munitions in 1944 while keeping Americans the best fed—the best housed—the best clothed civilians in the world.

In the first annual report ever issued by the WPB, Krug stated that American war plants have sustained better than a $5,000,000,000 monthly munitions pace since the summer of 1943.

"The nation has supplied the best equipment to the largest Navy, the largest air force and one of the largest armies in the world," the report declared.

"In 1944 alone, the country produced 96,359 planes, including 16,048 heavy bombers, built 30,889 ships, 17,765 tanks, 595,330 Army trucks, and produced 3,284 heavy field guns and howitzers and 7,454 light ones, 152,000 Army aircraft rocket launchers, 215,177 bazookas and 1,146,774 tons of ground artillery ammunition."

In 142 pages, the report described the rise of synthetic rubber production from 8,000 tons in 1941 to 753,000 in 1944; the trebling of aluminum output from 1942 to 1944; the fifty-fold rise of magnesium production in five years and the eighty-fold increase in penicillin output in one year.

MURRAY HITS NLRB

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP)—C.I.O. president Philip Murray today accused the National Labor Relations board of intending "to sanction the practice of setting up 'Jim Crow' locals" in unions.

Murray said in a letter to the board that in its recent decision in a General Motors corporation case, the board ordered an election on petitions of two unions "in the face of an allegation that such unions do not admit negroes into membership."

"The sole answer of the board to this allegation is that it was sufficient that these unions claimed that they would represent all employes of the appropriate unit," said Murray.

"Of course it is farcial to declare that a union will represent all the employes in a unit but will exclude negroes in such unit from membership in the union. This is a second class citizenship to which no American should be relegated."

Halifax Sees President.

Washington, July 5 (A. P.).—The Earl of Halifax, the British Ambassador, conferred with President Truman at the White House today preparatory to Mr. Truman's conference with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin.

The Ambassador plans to go to London later this month, but said he will not take part in the Big Three conference.

He said he did not discuss a London trip by the President, but explained to reporters that such a visit had been suggested frequently to the late President Roosevelt and that "undoubtedly Mr. Truman has it in mind."

He told reporters the outcome of the British election will not affect in any way Britain's attitude toward "the defeat of Japan, the United Nations Charter or any of the big affairs of the world."

Lehman Flies to Europe

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Herbert H. Lehman, director general of the United States Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, leaving here by plane today for Europe to inspect relief missions and consult with Governments, disclosed that UNRRA had financed provision of more than 1,200,000 tons of relief supplies to Italy, Greece, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Poland during the first six months of 1945 and that if goods and shipping were available planned to send nearly 4,000,000 tons during the second half of the year.

SHIP BUILDING DECLINES

107 Merchant Boats Made in June, Compared to 112 in May

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Merchant ship building continued to decline in June in line with reduced production schedules, the Maritime Commission reported today.

A total of 107 ships aggregating 1,010,519 dead weight tons were delivered last month. This compares with 112 ships of 1,120,594 dead weight tons in May.

Construction in the first six months of the year totaled 693 ships of 6,959,254 dead weight tons. About 5,000,000 dead weight tons are scheduled for delivery in the last half year.

BAR NEWSPRINT IMPORTS

Two Boards Declare Europe's Needs Must Be Met First

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—The United States will make no newsprint purchases from northern European countries "until the minimum essential needs of other countries have been met," it was announced jointly today by the War Production Board and the Combined Raw Materials Board.

A free press on the continent of Europe, the agencies said, could be possible only through an adequate flow of newsprint, although some wood pulp may be available for import by the United States during the next twelve months if shipping is available.

The statement said that supplies of paperboard and newsprint would be seriously short during the next year, even with supplies available from Sweden and other northern European countries.

Parcel Post Service Resumed

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Resumption of limited parcel post service to additional liberated European countries was announced today by the State Department.

Parcel post service to Greece was re-established June 30. Service to Belgium, Denmark, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Norway was resumed July 2.

Bradley To Keep Army Rank

Washington, July 5 (AP)—President Truman signed a bill today which will permit Gen. Omar N. Bradley to retain his army rank and pay while serving as head of the Veterans Administration. General Bradley, now in Germany, expects to return to this country late in the summer.

Big 3 To Meet In Next 3 Weeks, Truman Says

Washington, July 5 (AP) — The Berlin Big Three meeting will be held in the next three weeks, President Truman said today, extending his own previous deadline for the conference by nine days.

On June 7 the President said he expected his meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin to occur within 40 days. That time will expire July 17. The new period, ending July 26, coincides precisely with London reports that the parley will take place while votes in the British general election are being counted.

B-29 Which Hit Tokyo First Will Tour U.S.

Washington, July 5 (AP)—The Superfortresses "thumper" which participated in the first B-29 raid on Tokyo, has been brought back from the Pacific with its crew to tour the principal B-29 production plants.

Announcing this today, the War Department said the crew of five officers and five enlisted men, first to be returned from the 21st Bomber Command after completing 30 combat missions, will visit eleven cities throughout the country to tell aircraft workers of the importance of keeping up Superfortress production.

IWO JIMA PICTURE ON NEW U.S. STAMP

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) The Iwo Jima flag raising postage stamp to be issued July 11 will be green instead of the purple color usually used for three cent stamps, the Post Office department has announced.

No reason was given for the change of colors.

The stamp, honoring the Marine Corps, reproduces the famous flag-raising photograph made on Iwo Jima by Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal. The department said an initial printing of 100,000,000 copies of the stamp had been ordered.

The first sales will be at Washington.

Truman Signs Second Deficiency Fund Bill

Washington, July 5 (AP)—President Truman today signed the $3,636,203,479 second deficiency appropriation bill carrying 1946 fiscal year funds for the lend-lease program and the Office of Price Administration.

It also finances several other agencies and authorizes sixteen home-front war agencies to incur obligations in anticipation of their regular funds tied up by a controversy over the Fair Employment Practices Committee.

PATTERSON SAYS ARMY PROUD OF NEGRO SOLDIERS

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) Undersecretary of War Patterson said today the army is proud of its Negro soldiers and that he knows of no high ranking general who has condemned their performance.

Patterson thus took issue with Senator Eastland (D-Miss). The latter declared last week during senate debate on the fair employment practices committee that high ranking generals told him on a recent overseas trip the negro troops "would neither work nor fight." Eastland called them an "utter and abysmal failure."

Asked at a news conference whether Eastland's views represented those of the army, Patterson replied that he had no knowledge of any high ranking general making such a statement and that the expressed opinions of General Eisenhower, MacArthur and others "do not support any such conclusion."

"The war department" Patterson added "is proud of its troops and that includes negroes as well as other groups."

He added that General Eisenhower had commended volunteer negro platoons in Europe and that the army's inspector general had praised the work of the 24th infantry regiment, a negro outfit in the Marianas.

Eight Army Art Prize Winners

Washington, July 5 (AP)—The War Department today announced the names of eight prize-winning soldiers in the national army arts contest.

Their entries, best of 9,000 submitted by soldiers in every service command in the United States, are now on exhibit here at the National Gallery of Art. The prize winners, each of whom received a $100 war bond, follow:

Class 1 (Oil Paintings and Tempera)—"Between Trains," by Tech. 4/g Robert Niles, Jr., Portland, Maine, stationed at Fort Williams, Maine.

Class W (Water Color and Gouche)—"And Then There Were Three," by Tech. 3/g David F. Klein, Los Angeles, stationed at Fort Knox, Ky.

Class 3 (Mural Designs)—"Color Sketches for Mural in Ocean Front Returnee Mess," by Staff Sergeant Sante Graziani, Cleveland, stationed at AG and SF redistribution center, Miami Beach, Fla.

Class 4 (Sculpture)—"The Pfc.," by Sergt. Michael B. Tatti, New York, stationed at Chanute Field, Illinois.

Class 5 (Renderints)—"Purple Heart," by Sergt. Louis Dorfsman New York, stationed at 8th Service Command Headquarters, Dallas.

Class 6 (Drawings)—"Waiting Room, ATC, LaGuardia Field N.Y.," by Corporal Anne B. Poe of New York city, N.Y., station at Fort Totten, N.Y.

Class 7 (Prints)—"Soldiers Resting," by Tech. 4/g Max Fierto of Detroit, stationed at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

Class 8 (Photographs)—"Doughboy in Africa," by Private George A. Aarons, New York, stationed Yank, in New York city.

3,260,000 REGAIN HOMES IN EUROPE

Washington, July 5 (A. P.).—Of nearly 5,800,000 displaced persons found by the Allies in Germany, 3,260,000 have been returned to their home countries.

They include 1,243,600 Frenchmen, of whom 142,693 were returned by air, and 1,393,902 Russians.

Announcing these figures today, the War Department added that Russians constitute by far the largest group of those not yet repatriated. The reason, it said, is that there was no feasible method for returning Soviet citizens until Germany fell and Allied and Russian fronts were linked.

Others already repatriated by June 22, the announcement said, include 247,790 Belgians, 195,000 Dutchmen, 136,043 Italians, 33,488 Czecho-Slovaks 2,051 Yugoslavs and 6,000 Luxembourgers.

Casualties Rise 6,258 to Reach 1,036,937 Total

U. S. Losses at Okinawa Listed at 44,198, Against 117,624 of Japanese

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—An increase of 6,258 casualties reported in the last week raised the total for the armed forces in the war to 1,036,937 today.

The Navy listed 125,540 and the Army 911,397 on the basis of individual names reported to the War Department through June 29.

Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, in announcing the over-all totals, reported that Army and Navy casualties in the Okinawa campaign through June 27 aggregated 44,198 against Japanese casualties of 117,624 through June 28.

The American casualties in the campaign included 8,252 killed, 34,165 wounded and 1,781 missing. Japanese losses included 107,046 killed and 10,578 taken prisoner.

A breakdown on Army casualties in all areas since the beginning of the war as reported today and corresponding figures for the preceding week: Killed, 191,684 and 190,277; wounded, 566,117 and 264,302; missing, 38,343 and 39,255; prisoners, 115,253 and 114,191. Mr. Patterson said 342,869 of the wounded have returned to duty and 92,080 of the prisoners have either been exchanged or returned to military control.

Similar figures for the Navy: Killed, 47,849 and 46,458; wounded, 62,236 and 60,986; missing, 11,237 and 10,985; prisoners, 4,218 and 4,225.

Most of this week's increase reflected fighting in the Pacific, the War Department said.

Only a few European casualties are still being reported, and some of these occurred after hostilities ceased. For example, some men have been injured by stepping on mines which have not been removed.

MEDAL OF HONOR GOES TO TWO DEAD HEROES

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—The War Department announced today the posthumous award of the Congressional Medal of Honor to two soldiers.

Pfc. George Benjamin Jr. of Carney's Point, N. J., who insisted on giving an intelligence officer information on Japanese positions while he lay dying in an aid station, was one of these.

Private Benjamin, an Army radio operator, was in the rear of his tank-supported platoon when it was stopped by a hail of Japanese fire last Dec. 21 on Leyte. He rushed to the front of his company with a pistol in one hand and the radio set under his other arm, and shouted to the others to follow him.

He plunged uphill toward the enemy and killed five men before he drove into the enemy positions and was cut down by machine-gun fire, it was stated.

The other Medal of Honor was awarded to Pfc. Richard E. Cowan, who mowed down more than forty Germans with a machine gun last Dec. 17 in Belgium during the big German counter-offensive in the Ardennes.

The 22-year-old Wichita, Kan., infantryman survived that engagement but was mortally wounded the following day. The medal will be given to his father, Ralph E. Cowan of Wichita.

The Trigger Is Overdue; Submarine Carried 80

45 U. S. Undersea Craft Lost or Presumed Lost in War

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—The submarine Trigger, with a war-time complement of eighty to eighty-five officers and men, is overdue from patrol and is presumed lost, the Navy announced today in a communique.

This brings to forty-five the number of American submarines lost since the start of the war, including four announced as sunk, tw destroyed to prevent capture and thirty-nine overdue and presumed lost.

The Trigger, 1,525-ton craft, was built at the Mare Island, Calif., Navy Yard and was commissioned Jan. 4, 1942. Her captain was Commander David R. Connole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Connole, of Madison, Ill. His wife lives at Annapolis, Md.

The Trigger won a Presidential Unit Citation for outstanding performance in combat during her fifth, sixth anr seventh patrols. Three years ago in the Battle of Midway, she was part of the force under Vice-Admiral Jack Fletcher, senior task force commander.

SUICIDE PLANES DAMAGE NEWCOMB

American Destroyer Survives Terrific Attack, Reaches Port.

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) The Navy told today how the destroyer Newcomb survived hits by four Japanese suicide planes which "literally disemboweled" the ship and caused 91 casualties.

"Superhuman firefighting" was credited with saving the vessel, and the report paid high tribute to Newcomb gunners who shot down three other kamikazes.

The seventh suicider made a double strike, skidding across the Newcomb into the stern of the destroyer Leutze which had come to the stricken ship's aid. The Leutze counted 84 casualties—a total of 175 for the two warships.

The 2,100-ton Newcomb, veteran of Pacific campaigning, fought the Kamikaze pilots for two terrific hours April 6 near Ie Shima in the Ryukyus off southern Japan and "is afloat today because her heroic crew, many with hair aflame and clothes burned off, refused to give her up even when all power and communication was lost and more than half of the ship was enveloped in flames," the Navy said.

The Newcomb, which had outfought suicide pilots at Mindoro, Lingayen Gulf and Okinawa, was supporting heavy units of the fleet when at 4 p. m. a very large formation of enemy planes was reported. American fighters intercepted the flight but some slipped through.

The gunnery officer, Lt. (J.G.) H. B. M. Harris-Warren, Coronado, Calif., counted 40 enemy planes at one time, 21 in the water.

At 4:25 p. m., the first enemy dived at the Newcomb whose gunners sent it crashing 20 feet away without damage to the ship.

Turn Saved Ship

Almost immediately the second suicider started his run. As the ship's guns scored hits, the commanding officer, Comdr. Ira McMillian, Fort Worth, Tex., gave orders at the last minute for a sharp turn. The plane crashed in the Newcomb's wake.

The third Japanese tried a low level attack and landed. Flying through a curtain of steel, he caromed off a gun mount into the afterstack. Gasoline, steam from a boiler, metal from the superstructure and the plane mingled with the resulting fire to make the amidship section an inferno.

Then came suicider No. 4, anxious for an easy kill. The Newcomb was ready and one of the first salvos sent him splashing.

Kamikazers No. 5 and 6 started simultaneously. With a partial loss of power, McMillian tried to change course fast. One plane struck another body blow, amidships. A terrific explosion indicated the plane's bombload had let go.

The wounded ship lost all electric and steam power, her engine rooms in rubble, ammunition magazines afire and gun handling rooms blazing. The afterstack, torpedo mounts, amidships structure and 40 mm mounts were blown over the side. She came to a stop as smoke and flames shot 1,000 feet high.

Ships in the vicinity watched in amazement as from the scene of destruction gunners hurled steel with accuracy at the sixth suicider.

Although hit, No. 6 plowed into the forward stack, spraying more gasoline over the melting mass amidships.

In spite of heavy seas and the danger of a blast from the Newcomb's magazines, Lt. Leon Grabowsky, Paterson, N. J., commanding officer of the Leutze, maneuvered the Leutze into rescue position.

Men's Spirit Unbroken

"The Newcomb was littered with debris," the Navy related. "Burned and wounded men lined her decks. Wounded were carrying wounded. Amidships firefighters were trying to use portable pumps to extinguish fires billowing from the deep cavity where the firerooms had been. Yet, when the Leutze pulled alongside she was greeted with cheers and waving hands."

The heat forced about 100 men on the Newcomb's fantail to hit the water. Forward, firefighters and rescuers thought the stern of the ship was gone because of the flaming curtain between.

This was the scene as Kamikazer No. 7 essayed to crash dive both ships. Both destroyers met him with steel, the Leutze firing across the Newcomb which was forced to fire and train manually.

"With Lt. Harris-Warren shouting ranges and bearings, and with Theodore H. Agidius, gunner's mate 1-c, the Dalles, Ore., and Paul H. Edwardson, Jr., boatswain's mate 1-c, Allston, Mass., gun captains of the forward five-inch guns, loading and directing their crews, the Newcomb again pulled the near-impossible," the Navy said.

The suicider, hit in the wing, skidded across the Newcomb's deck and rammed the stern of the Leutze. The hardhit rescue ship began to drift away as her crew fought her own fires and aided wounded. Lines were cast off and another destroyer quickly came alongside the Newcomb.

Within 30 minutes the Newcomb's fires were out and soon she was in tow for a repair base.

The Leutze was having a struggle. Lt. (J.G.) John G. Grelis, Philadelphia, was credited by Grabowsky with saving the ship. Grelis took charge of repair and damage control parties after he recovered from being blown across the fantail into lifelines. He descended into four and half feet of oil and water, directing pumping and shoring of the holes punched in the ship. The Leutze also reached a base for repairs.

The Navy described Grabowsky, who is 27, as one of its youngest destroyer captains. He took over at Iwo Feb. 17.

The Navy commended John Robert Stuck, fireman 1-c, aboard the Leutze, for dragging two stunned and shocked men from a flooded magazine. Stuck, 20, lives at Bell Gardens, Calif.

The Newcomb lost 17 enlisted men killed, 20 missing in action, seven officers and 47 enlisted men wounded. The Leutze lost two enlisted men killed, 14 missing, one officer and 67 enlisted men wounded.

McMillian took command of the Newcomb Nov. 7, 1944. It was commissioned Nov. 10, 1943, and early in 1944 was operating in the Marshalls.

The Navy told stories of individual heroism aboard the Newcomb in the engagement. Here is part of its account:

Lt. (J.G.) C. H. Gedge, River Forest, Ill., directed the firing of the 40 and 20 mm machine guns until the action was over and then supervised the jettisoning of depth charges. He was assisted by William P. Footlil, seaman 1-c, Pittsfield, Mass.

Praise Danbury Sailor

Donald J. Keeler, machinist's mate 2-c, Lake avenue extension, Danbury, Conn., was the center of a fire fighting crew aft which probably did more toward saving the ship than any one other group. Keeler, whose battle station was in after steering, put controls in manual when power was lost and then joined the men on the smok-covered stern. Keeler located a portable pump somewhere in the smoke and managed to get it started.

Richard C. Tacey, machinist's mate, 1-c, Malden, Mass., member of a repair party, was killed when he attempted to reach some engineering personnel trapped by the flames.

Peter Kizilski, machinist's mate, 2-c, Raynor street, Southington, Conn., was killed near the forward stack while trying to secure additional equipment. Kizilski had fought fires forward during the earlier hit.

Iverson A. Carter, gunner's mate, 3-c, remained at his amidships gun throughout the first plane crash and was firing at the second when it hit. Carter, whose wife, Andrea, lives at 117 Greenwich avenue, New Haven, Conn., is listed as missing in action.

Lt. J. J. McNeil, medical corps, Everett, Mass., rescued several wounded men, took them to a [illegible] of safety, took charge of all ca[illegible] ties and performed surgical work on a table in the wardroom.

Other men who have been commended for outstanding leadership and resourcefulness under fire include:

Melvin C. Farnsworth, chief gunner's mate, 2 Highland Park, Cambridge, Mass.

Roger L. Birch, pharmacist's mate, 3-c, 17 Perley street, West Lynn, Mass.

Eisenhower Is on Way To Capital After Rest

Fished and Golfed a Few Days at White Sulphur Springs

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 5 (AP).—General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower has left for Washington after a brief rest period in Lee cottage at Ashford General Hospital here, it was disclosed today.

At his request there was no public mention of his stay at this former resort, where the supreme commander of the Allied forces played golf and fished. An officer related that "he was down at the club the other night, his shirt open at the neck, no insignia except the five stars on his cap, holding a string of fish this long and wearing a grin from ear to ear."

During his stay the general attended the world premiere of "G. I. Joe," a picturization of the war experiences of the late Ernie Pyle. Loud applause from hospital patients greeted General Eisenhower as he entered the post theater.

With the general was his wife, with whom he celebrated his twenty-ninth wedding anniversary July 1, and Sergeant Michael McKeough, of Corona, Queens, New York. Sergeant McKeough became the first member of the Eisenhower invasion team in 1941 at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

LOSE MONEY IN LOANS TO SON OF LATE PRESIDENT

Get only Part of Money Back When Roosevelt Network Venture Fails.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., July 5 (AP)—Avid G. Baird, New York insurance executive, described as "private and personal investments" the loans totalling $120,000 made by himself and a business acquaintance to Elliott Roosevelt in 1939 in which the two lost approximately $70,000 when the Texas radio network business venture of the late President's son failed.

The loans were "entered into for profit because the loan carried for the lenders an option to purchase stock in the network at the original offering price," Baird said, "and the gains could have been substantial. The companies did not turn out to be profitable, and the loans were liquidated at losses to the lenders."

He said that through "payment and salvage" he recovered about $30,000 on a $70,000 loan and that his acquaintance, Maxwell M. Bilofsky, a radio tube and electrical apparatus manufacturer, recovered about $20,000 on a $50,000 loan.

Baird said the lenders never purchased stock in the network.

He said he recovered as much as he did because Roosevelt gave him some Transcontinental Broadcasting company stock as collateral. He said he had known young Roosevelt, now a brigadier general in the army, for a number of years, but only in a business way, and added that, as far as he knew, President Roosevelt was never apprised of the loan. He termed himself a political independent with no political connections, and said he had never had any government contracts or negotiations.

Counsel for John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, revealed recently that Hartford had lost $196,000 of a $200,000 loan to Roosevelt and written it as a bad debt in his 1942 income tax return.

When queried about the tax angle of his loan, Baird replied, "no comment."

The insurance man said he had "nothing to add" to a statement made Tuesday by Bilofsky, a Loch Arbour resident and Newark manufacturer, that he loaned Roosevelt $50,000, took as collateral 500 shares in Texas radio network stock, which later proved worthless, and recovered a total of $20,800 on the loan.

The loan was arranged by Baird, Bilofsky said, when he was helping Roosevelt raise funds to buy the network.

Interlochen Musicians Ask Curb On Petrillo

Interlochen, Mich., July 5 (AP)—Young musicians at the National Music Camp here struck up a new tune today in the form of letters demanding passage of a bill to give them the right to broadcast.

The letter-writing obligato was suggested to the students by Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, camp president.

Representing 37 states, the letters ask an end to the fight with James C. Petrillo, czar of the American Federation of Musicians, by passage of the Vandenberg-Pondero bill giving the camp the right to broadcast nationally.

The bill is now in the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce committees.

Petrillo banned national broadcasts from the camp in 1942. Early this year he ordered the camp placed on the union's "unfair" list and threatened suspension of any union member who took part in the camp program.

BOEING TO PRODUCE BIG TRANSPORT PLANES

SEATTLE, July 5 — (AP) The Boeing Aircraft company plant here, which has been turning out B-29 Superfortresses for the air strike at Japan, will start production of C-97 transport planes in the near future, Board Chairman C. L. Egtvedt said today.

He said the Army contract for the planes as a service test offer involving a limited quantity. The production of B-29s will continue at the plant, Egtvedt added.

The C-97 is the transport counterpart of the Superfort and recently set a transcontinental speed record by flying fom Seattle to Washington, D. C., in six hours, three minutes, 50 seconds.

TO AWARD BUCKNER POSTHUMOUS MEDAL

NEW YORK, July 5—(AP) Capt. Alejandro Fernandez Ortiz, Venezuelan consul-general, said today his government would award the decoration of the Order of Liberator, First Class, posthumously to Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, commander of the 10th Army, who was killed June 18 on Okinawa.

Speaking in the absence of Caracciolo Parra Perez, Venezuelan foreign minister, Fernandez told the Pan American Society the award would be presented to Buckner's widow, the former Adele Blac of Louisville, Ky. Buckner was born near Munfordville, Ky.

Fernandez said he hoped Buckner—like Simon Bolivar, his namesake—would become the "symbol of faith and strength to all Americans of the north and south."

Plot To Assassinate MacArthur Reported

New York, July 5—Merrill Mueller, NBC correspondent, reported from Manila tonight that seven Japanese snipers and spies recently have been executed in Manila, "among them men who have shown a singular interest in the office, home and activities of Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur."

Indicating that possibly an assassination plot was involved, Mueller said "MacArthur personifies the Japanese hate for America and Tokyo is blaming him for Japan's troubles."

Harry Hopkins Takes Job As Garment Industry Czar

NEW YORK, July 5—(AP) David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, said today that Harry L. Hopkins, former special presidential adviser, had accepted the post of impartial chairman of the New York women's coat and suit industry.

Dubinsky said Hopkins was expected to assume the post after a rest of several weeks.

Hopkins succeeds former New York Mayor James J. Walker, who was named to the post in 1940 and occupied it until June 30, 1945. It was stated that Hopkins' salary would be "in the neighborhood" of $25,000 a year.

Dubinsky said in a statement that as impartial chairman, Hopkins would preside over collective agreements covering 50,000 employes and 1,300 employers with an annual production output valued at $500,000,000. Dubinsky said the production comprised 80 per cent of the coat and suit output for the nation.

He said the collective agreements in the industry were formed in 1910 when machinery for the settlement of labor-management difference was established under a "protocol of peace."

Dubinsky said he headed a committee which offered Hopkins the job. He named others on the committee as being Israel Feinberg, general manager of the New York Cloak Joint board; Charles Baker, executive director of the Infants' and Children's Coat association; Joseph L. Dubow, executive director of the Merchants' Ladies' Garment association; Samuel Klein, executive director of the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers, Inc., and Charles M. Sussman, executive director of the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers association.

"It is a source of utmost satisfaction to us that Mr. Hopkins has acceded to our earnest request that he accept the impartial chairmanship of the New York cloak and suit industry," Dubinsky said. "His past experience and broad vision will have a great constructive meaning to all factors in our industry. He will unquestionably perpetuate the industry's tradition of progress in sound and equitable labor-employer dealing in which our industry has enacted a pioneer's role."

PEACETIME DRAFT ASSAILED BY TAFT

NEW YORK, July 5—(AP) Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) said tonight that compulsory military training would "destroy every hope of peace in the world," and declared he was opposed to the program "because we would be adopting the essence of the very totalitarianism which we denounce."

In an "America's town meeting" program debate on the subject "should we have universal military training after the war," Dr. Edward C. Elliott, president of Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., another speaker, declared compulsory military training was necessary to provide American youth the "basic preparation for their duties as protectors of the American faith."

Other speakers included Actor Burgess Meredith, former Army Air corps captain, and Dr. Felix Morley, president of Haverford College, Haverford, Pa. and former editor of the Washington Post.

JUL 6 1945

"The Army wants to make every boy a soldier, thinking as a soldier, for the rest of his life," Taft said. "That would make this nation a militaristic, aggressive force. It would set the pattern and every nation in the world would have to follow us.

"It would thus destroy every hope of peace in the world." x x x

Declaring "we must be prepared to live dangerously," Dr. Elliott said:

"While we have the task of dreaming and doing for peace, at the same time we have the solemn and continuing obligation of being fully prepared to protect all that which is ours to protect." x x x

Dr. Morley said "a year out of every professional student's life for compulsory military training x x x would inevitably interrupt continuity and diminish accomplishment."

Meredith declared "we need an American army—a people's army—a total army which can spring to the total defense of America."

4 SHIPS BRING 7,000 TROOPS

Bulk Of Returning Veterans Due For Reassignment

New York, July 5 (AP)—Four ships steamed into this port o embarkation today with a combined passenger list of more than 7,000 overseas veterans, the bulk of them reassignment troops.

Among the arrivals were three brigadier generals, 2,541 wounded men and the Associated Press correspondent, Wade Werner. With the one-star generals aboard the Marine Dragon when she docked at Piermont, N.Y., were advance detachments of their 5th Corps divisions and elements of the 96th reconnaissance troops mechanized.

The Marine Dragon carried 3,088 reassigned men, but an even larger group of returning soldiers were aboard the transport George Washington, which was President Wilson's peace conference ship in December, 1918.

2,541 Wounded Aboard

The George Washington had aboard 2,514 wounded and 1,027 reassigned troops.

The ship brought home advanced detachments of the 86th and 94th Chemical Mortar Battalions, and the 661st and 820th Tank-Destroyer Battalions.

The one star generals on the Marine Dragon and their commands were: Alan D. Warnock, of Atchison, Kan., 5th Division; John L. McKee, of Washington, 87th Division, and Robert L. Dulaney, of San Antonio, Texas.

Two other ships, the Robert Harrison and the Charles Goodyear, landed an additional 737 army personnel, including a number of former war prisoners.

Those On Harrison

The Harrison's passengers included members of the 1st and 3,444th ordnance companies, the 7th General Dispensary Company of the Medical Corps, the 311th Army Postal Unit and the 68th Finance Disbursing section.

Warnock, who started his army career 28 years ago as a National Guard sergeant in Arizona, said infantrymen "took a greater beating from the standpoint of hardship" in the present war than in the first World War.

Dulaney, a native of Marshall, Ill., and a West Point graduate, told how the 71st Infantry, a National Guard unit made up of New York city residents, attacked a German position in the Austrian Alps in six inches of snow, a feat which the enemy thought impossible.

Enemy Was Confused

The attack, he said, "completely confused the Germans because they believed it was impossible for an infantry outfit to cover the mountain trails on foot. We sent a detachment to a mountain pass to attack them from the rear."

The Germans, he said, "believed we had landed paratroopers. They were so confused that the movement put an end to their heavy resistance in the area. They were so completely demoralized we were able to pass the Inn River."

One of the division's accomplishments, Dulaney said, was to pick up two children of Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop.

SABU BACK IN U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5—(AP) Staff Sgt. Sabu Dastagir, better known to movie-goers as Sabu, has returned to the United States from the Southwest Pacific after completing 42 missions and logging 427 combat hours as a ball-turret gunner on a B-24 Liberator.

Sabu is at Fort FcDowell in San Francisco, prior to transfer to Camp Beale, Marysville, where he will receive a furlough to visit his home in Hollywood.

Sabu wears the Asiatic theater ribbon with four battle stars, Philippines liberation ribbon, Air Medal with three oak leaf clusters, Presidential unit citation and Distinguished Flying Cross. He earned the DFC for his participation on a flight credited with the sinking of six Japanese freighters off the coast of Borneo.

JUL 6 1945

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP)—U. S. Senator Brien McMahon, in a Connecticut statewide broadcast which originated from his office here, tonight declared the San Francisco conference was certain to be ratified "because the people of the United States have made their will known."

McMahon told of the stirring events in the Senate during the past week in regard to the charter, beginning with the speech last Thursday by Senator Tom Connally, chairman of Foreign Relations committee. On Friday Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, another delegate to the San Francisco conference, reported to the Senate, while on Monday President Truman delivered the charter to the Senate in person and urged ratification.

Furthermore, the Senate will remain in session until the charter is ratified. That is a decision in which I concur heartily, I believe that we must demonstrate to the other nations of the world that this time the United States Senate is squarely in back of our President.

"There is no question in mind about ratification. I am convinced that the Senate will give the most heartening demonstration of unanimity when the roll is called on the charter. In fact, I would not be surprised if the vote were unanimous.

"To my mind that is a splendid testimonial to the will of the American people. This could not happen unless the people were squarely in support of this great objective. The people understand the issues involved, and the people have made their will known."

Manifold Problems

"But we have not yet thought through the manifold problems of the reorientation of entire world policy that must result from these agreed facts. This thinking through and definite formulation of our future world policy is one of the most urgent tasks before our country."

Stassen suggested that our policy should include agreements for use of our armed forces in support of the "stability and security of the world" through the United Nations organization; that this country remain a strong military power and obtain "complete authority" for the use of bases in both the Pacific and Atlantic.

He also proposed these bases for an American world policy:

"That we are and propose to remain a democracy of free citizens, that we will explain our system to the world, but that we will leave it to the peoples of each nation to decide for themselves their own form of government so long as they do not trample on basic human rights or threaten the peace of the world, or [illegible]ess upon their neighbors; that we will permit our own citizens to learn of any other form of government that they wish to study, but will not permit any other government to seek actively to undermine our men.

"That x x x we will constantly emphasize and recognize the basic dignity of man and his inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Stassen, who said the unusual public discussion of high national policy which marked the United Nations deliberations at San Francisco, during the charter framing, should be applied to this country's world policy.

Should Inform Public

"Except for military security, the American people should be promptly informed of every definite international proposal that is made by our government x x x this policy of keeping the people informed will, of course, mean an end to some of the old methods of devious diplomacy."

Stassen said that while he recognizes that the finished charter has some weaknesses, "these weaknesses or shortcomings should not cause us to minimize the great measure of advance that has been made."

He also expressed the hope that the charter would be unanimously ratified by the United States Senate, telling his audience:

"The United States Senate was unanimous in its declaration of war. I hope it can be unanimous in its declaration for a just and lasting peace."

Stassen made his final report as a conference delegate to President Truman today.

2 British Sisters Brought to U. S. by Romance

Miami, Fla., July 5 (A. P.).—Two pretty young British sisters who lost their hearts to a pair of American sailors arrived in Miami last night after a three-month journey from South Africa that will end for both of them at the altar.

Kathleen Sullivan, blonde and sparkling-eyed, met William Case, merchant marine seaman from Albany, early in 1944. With other survivors he had been brought to Cape Town after a Nazi sub torpedoed his ship.

Case was becoming a regular visitor at the Sullivan home when Kathleen's pretty dark-haired sister Theresa met Lawrence Joscher of Jamaica, L. I., a sailor spending his leave in Capetown. "From then on, it was double courting," the sisters said.

The demands of war parted the foursome but the sailors managed to persuade their sweethearts by mail to join them in the United States—and at the altar.

Kathleen will become the bride of her merchant seaman when she reaches Albany in a day or two—but Theresa's courtship-by-correspondence must continue a while longer.

While the sisters were en route Joscher sailed with his ship for the Pacific area where he is now serving.

"I'll go to Albany with my sister, then visit Lawrence's people," Theresa said.

They left by train for New York this morning.

PEACE CHARTER TO BE RATIFIED, M'MAHON SAYS

Both Senators Connally and Vandenberg discussed the charter extensively, he said, explaining the controversial points and making a substantial case for the manner in which the controversies were settled.

Begin Hearings Monday

"As you know," McMahon said, "the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations will begin hearings on the charter next Monday. The hearings will be thorough and extensive.

Stassen Cautions Charter Adoption Is No Cure-All

JUL 6 1945

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) Cmdr. Harold E. Stassen tonight cautioned against any feeling that mere adoption of the United Nations charter will insure peace or solve world problems.

"When the charter is ratified by the United States Senate, by the other four major powers, and by at least a majority of the other members, it is of terrific importance that the people of this country and of the world do not feel that they have thereby automatically insured further peace, or that they have ipso-facto solved the problems of tomorrow," said the commander, who participated in the drafting of the charter as an American delegate.

About to return to naval service in the Pacific, the one-time Minnesota governor declared in a prepared address:

"The success in obtaining the goal will depend upon the good faith and continued alert interest of the peoples of the world. No charter and no machinery overcome widespread bad faith or ill will or malice or complacency."

That, he told a meeting sponsored by 33 national organizations, is why this country's adherence to the charter "is only a step in the whole field of our world policy."

"We in the United States are now thoroughly and almost unanimously agreed that the walls of isolation are gone forever x x x and that we should join in a United Nations organization dedication to peace and progress.

WITH BRITISH ELECTIONS

LONDON, FRIDAY, JULY 6-(AP)-THE CONSERVATIVE PRESS EARLY TODAY CLAIMED A VICTORY FOR PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S CONSERVATIVE PARTY IN YESTERDAY'S GENERAL ELECTIONS WHILE LABORITE NEWSPAPERS PREDICTED GAINS FOR THE OPPOSITION LABOR PARTY.

"MR. CHURCHILL'S GOVERNMENT IS ALMOST CERTAINLY IN," SAID THE DAILY EXPRESS OF LORD BEAVERBROOK WHO IS LORD PRIVY SEAL IN THE PRESENT CHURCHILL CARE-TAKER CABINET.

"ON THAT THERE WAS GENERAL AGREEMENT AMONG ELECTORAL EXPERTS OF ALL PARTIES WHEN THSPOLLING CLOSED LAST NIGHT. BUT THERE AE SO MANY COMPLICATING FACTORS NONE WOULD ATTEMPT ANY CLOSE FORECAST OF THE SIZE OF THE MAJORITY."

THE LABORITE DAILY HERALD SAID, ON THE OTHER HAND, THAT "WHEN THE POLLING ENDED LAST NIGHT LABOR CONFIDENCE WHICH HAD BEEN RISING STEADILY DURING THE LAST DAYS OF THE CAMPAIGN WAS AT ITS HEIGHT. XXX THERE WERE CONFIDENT PREDICTIONS THAT THE TORY (CONSERVATIVE) VOTE WAS A MINORITY OF THE TOTAL CAST. AT DISSOLUTION (OF THE LAST PARLIAMENT) LABOR HELD 166 SEATS XXX AND THE LEAST OPTIMISTIC FORECAST GAVE THE PARTY A GAIN OF 100 SEATS."

THE ACTUAL RESULTS OF THE ELECTION WILL NOT BE KNOWN UNTIL JULY 26 WHEN ALL OF THE MILITARY SERVICE VOTES ARE IN AND COUNTED.

FAHSIEN WAS RETAKEN THREE DAYS AGO IN A COUNTERATTACK STARTED JULY 2. THE JAPANESE WERE BELIEVED TO HAVE FOUGHT TO HOLD THE ROAD CENTER TO SAFEGUARD COMMUNICATIONS WITH HAINAN ISLAND. THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THE NIPPONESE RETREATED WESTWARD.

THE HIGH COMMAND ANNOUNCED BELATEDLY THAT REGULARS AND LOCAL MILITIA ON JUNE 23 RECAPTURED PINGNAM ON THE WEST RIVER, 85 MILES SOUTHEAST OF LIUCHOW AND LESS THAN 15 MILES FROM THE FORMER AMERICAN AIR BASE AT TANCHUK. MAJ.GEN.CLAIRE L.CHENNAULT'S FLIERS ABANDONED TANCHUK LAST SEPT. 21.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THE CHINESE OPENED A THREE-COLUMN DRIVE ON JUNE 29 AGAINST THE COMMUNICATIONS CENTER AND FORMER U.S. AIR BASE OF SHAOYANG (PAOKING) GATEWAY TO THE MAJOR RAIL JUNCTION OF HENGYANG WHERE THE HUNAN-KWANGSI RAILROAD CROSSED THE CANTON-HANKOW LINE. THE CHINESE WERE DECLARED TO HAVE REACHED POINTS BY JULY 1 ONLY FIVE MILES WEST, SIX MILES NORTHWEST AND NINE AND A HALF MILES SOUTHWEST OF SHAOYANG. BALIKPAPAN, JULY 5 (AP)-NATIVES STARTED STREAMING TOWARD ALLIED LINES TODAY WITH HOUSEHOLD PETS, POSSESSIONS AND STORIES OF HOW THEY ESCAPED THE JAPANESE WHO WERE TRYING TO TAKE THEM NORTHWARD.

NETHERLANDS INDIES COLONIAL ADMINISTRATION AUTHORITIES REPORTED THAT 700 NATIVES, INCLUDING A NUMBER OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN, WERE RECEIVING MEDICAL CARE.

THERE WERE AMONG THEM EIGHT INDONESIANS WHO HAD BEEN PRISONERS OF WAR OF THE JAPANESE. THEY WERE THE ONLY SURVIVORS FOUND SO FAR OF THAT THIN GARRISON WHICH WAS OVERWHELMED BY THE JAPANESE WHO CAPTURED BALIKPAPAN IN 1942. THEY WERE EMPLOYED AS LABORERS THROUGHOUT THE OCCUPATION.

HUNDREDS CAME IN TODAY FROM HIDEOUTS ALONG THE ROAD TO THE SAMARINDA OIL FIELDS NORTHEAST OF HERE.

SOME WERE COMPARATIVELY WELL FED. THEY HAD LIVED OFF THE PRODUCE GROWN AROUND THEIR OWN HOMES, BUT OTHERS, PARTICULARLY IMPORTED JAVANESE LABORERS, WERE LITTLE MORE THAN SKELETONS.

THEY CAME IN GROUPS DOWN THE ROAD WITH CHICKENS, DUCKS, CAGED BIRDS AND LITTLE BUNDLES OF PERSONAL POSSESSIONS. MANY MEN WORE MOHAMMEDAN HATS. IT WAS A HAPPY, RACIALLY POLYGOT LOT.

ARTILLERY BOOMED AROUND THE REFUGEE COMPOUND AND MANY SURVIVORS CROUCHED IN FEAR. THE NATIVES TOLD NETHERLANDS OFFICIALS THEY WERE CARRIED AWAY WITH THOUSANDS OF OTHERS BY THE JAPANESE BUT MANAGED TO SLIP AWAY BY NIGHT.

MINDANAO (420)

BY RICHARD BERGHOLZ

WITH U.S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, MINDANAO, P.I., JULY 5-(AP)-THE MINDANAO CAMPAIGN WAS A MASTERPIECE OF DARING MANEUVERS AND INDIVIDUAL COURAGE. THE CLEANUP OF THIS SECOND LARGEST ISLAND OF THE PHILIPPINES HAS BEEN FAR AHEAD OF THE ORIGINAL TIMETABLE.

AS A RESULT THE VETERAN EIGHTH ARMY IS READY TO HELP OUT WHEREVER NEEDED AND TO PREPARE NEW BLOWS AGAINST THE JAPANESE.

WHEN LT.GEN.ROBERT L.EICHELBERGER'S FORCES FIRST LANDED AT PARANG APRIL 17 THEY WERE OUTNUMBERED BY THE JAPANESE AND FACED WITH AN ENEMY HOLDING MOST STRATEGIC POSITIONS.

WITHIN 10 DAYS THE TOUGH DOUGHBOYS OF MAJ.GEN.ROSCOE B. WOODRUFF'S 24TH DIVISION HAD SLASHED ACROSS THE WAIST OF MINDANAO AND BROKEN OUT ON DAVAO GULF. WITHOUT STOPPING, WOODRUFF TURNED NORTH AND SENT ONE REGIMENT IN A COLUMN MOVING TOWARD DAVAO CITY SO FAST THE JAPANESE WERE UNABLE TO ORGANIZE A DEFENSE AT THEIR PREPARED POSITIONS AND THE ONETIME JAPANESE DOMINATED CITY FELL.

MEANWHILE TROOPS OF MAJ.GEN.CLARENCE MARTIN'S 31ST DIVISION MOVED IN BEHIND THE 24TH BUT WHEELED NORTH IN CENTRAL MINDANAO AND STARTED A RELENTLESS DRIVE UP THE SAYRE HIGHWAY.

PRESSING HIS LUCK AND STILL WORKING ON A SHOESTRING, EICHELBERGER SENT ONE REGIMENTAL COMBAT TEAM FROM THE 40TH DIVISION, BACKED UP BY A BATTALION FROM THE AMERICAL DIVISION, INTO MACAJALAR BAY ON THE NORTH COAST OF MINDANAO AND STARTED A DRIVE SOUTH ALONG THE SAYRE HIGHWAY TO JOIN THE 31ST.

THE BITTEREST SUSTAINED FIGHTING OF THE CAMPAIGN OCCURRED IN THE HEMP GROVES NORTHWEST OF DAVAO AND IT WAS THERE THAT BOTH SIDES TOOK THEIR HEAVIEST LOSSES. MORE THAN 100 ARTILLERY PIECES RANGING FROM 75 MILLIMETER TO SIX INCHERS WERE DESTROYED AND NUMEROUS ROCKET PIECES RANGING UP TO 14 INCHES WERE KNOCKED OUT.

THE JAPANESE FOUGHT A BITTER DELAYING ACTION AROUND DAVAO BUT THEY NOW HAVE BEEN DRIVEN OUT OF THEIR LAST PREPARED DEFENSE LINE AND SCATTERED THROUGH THE WILD MOUNTAINS ON THE FLANKS OF THE 9,000-FOOT VOLCANO, MOUNT APO.

THE JAPANESE FORCE WHICH ATTEMPTED TO STEM THE AMERICAN DRIVE THROUGH THE SAYRE HIGHWAY HAS FLED TO THE RUGGED, UNEXPLORED MOUNTAINS EAST OF THE HIGHWAY AND ARE HOPELESSLY ISOLATED IN THE AREA BETWEEN THE PULANGI AND AGUSAN RIVERS.

A11FX

ALTHOUGH AMAZINGLY SUCCESSFUL, THE CAMPAIGN WAS NOT WITHOUT COST. AND ALTHOUGH NO MORE LARGE ORGANIZED ENEMY FORCES REMAIN AS OFFENSIVE THREATS, THERE WILL CONTINUE TO BE FIGHTING FOR A LONG TIME BEFORE THE MOPPING UP STAGE IS COMPLETED. SOME AMERICAN LIVES ARE BOUND TO BE LOST.

CPL.JAMES POWELL, JR., OF 250 COKE AVE., KNOXVILLE, TENN., CAME OUT OF THE FRONT LINES TO SUM IT UP:

"MY OUTFIT KILLED 27 JAPS YESTERDAY," HE SAID, "AND I CAN TELL YOU THEY WERE MIGHTY WELL ORGANIZED."

WITH U.S.EIGHTH ARMY ON MINDANAO, JULY 5-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS ARE TAKING A HIGHER PERCENTAGE OF JAPANESE PRISONERS ON THE ZAMBOANGA PENINSULA OF MINDANAO THAN THEY HAVE IN ANY OTHER CAMPAIGN IN THE PHILIPPINES.

FORTY-FIRST DIVISION MEN AT ZAMBOANGA HAVE SEIZED ONE JAPANESE PRISONER FOR EVERY 8 1/2 KILLED--A RATIO OF 12 PER CENT.

LUZON RANKS NEXT, WITH ONE PRISONER FOR EACH 23.7 NIPPONESE SLAIN--A RATIO OF FOUR PER CENT.

IN THE ONLY OTHER MAJOR LAND CAMPAIGN NOW UNDER WAY--THE MAJOR MINDANAO FIGHTING--ONLY ONE JAPANESE HAS BEEN MADE PRISONER FOR EVERY 71.8 COUNTED DEAD--A RATIO OF 1.4 PER CENT.

BLOODY LEYTE SAW ONLY ONE PRISONER FOR EVERY 79.7 JAPANESE KILLED--THE LOW RATIO BEING 1.2 PER CENT.

MANILA,FRIDAY,JULY 6 (AP)-.HE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, LIBERATED FROM A ONCE-POWERFUL JAPANESE FORCE NOW REDUCED TO A FEW THOUSAND MEN, WILL PROVIDE THE UNITED STATES WITH A GREAT BASE FOR STRIKES AT JAPAN, CHINA AND FORMOSA.
GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY THE ISLANDS WERE "NOW FREE OF THE INVADER" WITH THE DESTRUCTION OF AN ENEMY FORCE OF APPROXIMATELY 450,000 IN THE GREATEST DISASTER IN NIPPON'S MILITARY HISTORY.
ALL THAT IS LEFT IS MINOR JAPANESE GROUPS ISOLATED IN MOUNTAINOUS AREAS, MOSTLY IN LUZON AND MINDANAO ISLANDS. A HEADQUARTERS SPOKESMEN ESTIMATED THE SURVIVORS AT POSSIBLY 30,000.
THE JAPAN HOMELAND IS 1,040 STATUTE MILES NORTHEAST OF LUZON, A MUCH SHORTER DISTANCE FOR SUPERFORTRESS FLIGHTS THAN THE 1,450 MILES THE BIG BOMBERS NOW MUST FLY FROM SAIPAN IN THE MARIANAS TO REACH NIPPON.

MACARTHUR SAID ONE PURPOSE OF THE AMERICAN CAMPAIGN TO FREE THE PHILIPPINES WAS TO ACQUIRE LAND, SEA AND AIR BASES FOR FUTURE OPERATIONS "COMPARABLE TO THE BRITISH ISLANDS" IN THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST GERMANY.
IN KILLING AROUND 420,000 JAPANESE DURING THE CAMPAIGNWHICH STARTED LAST OCT. 20 WITH THE AMERICAN ANDING ON LEYTE ISLAND, THE AMERICANS INCURRED GROUND AND AIR CASUALTIES UP TO JULY 1 OF 54,891. THEY WERE LISTED AS 11,921 KILLED, 410 MISSING AND 42,569 WOUNDED.
SEVENTEEN AMERICAN DIVISIONS OF THE SIXTH AND EIGHTH ARMIES CLEANED UP 23 JAPANESE DIVISIONS AND NAVAL UNITS FIGHTING ON LAND.
MACARTHUR CALLED THIS "ONE OF THE RARE INSTANCES WHEN IN A LONG CAMPAIGN A GROUND FORCE SUPERIOR IN NUMBERS WAS ENTIRELY DESTROYED BY A NUMERICALLY INFERIOR FORCE."

A2KX
IMPORTANCE OF PARTS PLAYED BY THE AMERICAN NAVY AND AIR FORCE WAS STRESSED BY MACARTHUR. THE NAVAL BATTLE OF LEYTE GULF LATE IN OCTOBER WAS AMONG THE ACTIONS WHICH, HE SAID, "REDUCED THE JAPANESE NAVY TO PRACTICAL IMPOTENCE."
JAPANESE LEADERS DECLARED AT THE OUTSET OF THE AMERICAN LANDING IN THE PHILIPPINES THAT THE OUTCOME OF THE FIGHT FOR THE ISLANDS WOULD DETERMINE THE VICTOR IN THE ENTIRE PACIFIC WAR.
CAPTURING ONE ISLAND AFTER ANOTHER, THE AMERICANS ESTABLISHED AIR BASES FROM WHICH PLANES CHOKED OFF JAPAN'S AIR AND SEA COMMUNICATIONS WITH OIL, RUBBER AND OTHER WAR MATERIAL SOURCES IN THE EAST INDIES AND OTHER CONQUERED SOUTHERN AREAS.
LIBERATION OF THE PHILIPPINES ALSO PRODUCED THE "COLLAPSE OF THE ENEMY'S IMPERIAL CONCEPT OF A GREATER EAST ASIA CO-PROSPERITY SPHERE" AND REOPENED THE FAR EAST TO DEMOCRACY, MACARTHUR SAID.

HONOLULU, JULY 5-(AP)-THE HONOLULU STAR-BULLETIN, IN A FRONT PAGE STORY, TODAY RAISED THE QUESTION OF THE LEGALITY OF HAWAII'S CURFEW, WHICH ORDERS PEOPLE FROM THE STREETS BETWEEN 10 P.M. AND 5:30 A.M.

THE QUESTION WAS RAISED AFTER THE STATEMENT BY LT.GEN.ROBERT C. RICHARDSON,JR., COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE HAWAIIAN DEPARTMENT, THAT THERE NO LONGER IS ANY "MILITARY NECESSITY" FOR THE CURFEW.

CONTENDING THE PRESIDENT'S EXECUTIVE ORDER GIVING AUTHORITY TO IMPOSE THE CURFEW IS DEPENDENT ON THE FINDING BY THE COMMANDING GENERAL THAT "MILITARY NECESSITY" EXISTS, THE STAR-BULLETIN ASKED, "IF THERE IS NO MILITARY NECESSITY, IS THERE NOW ANY LEGAL BASIS FOR THE CURFEW?"

RICHARDSON SAID AT A PRESS CONFERENCE HE WAS READY TO LIFT THE CURFEW ANY TIME BUT THERE WAS NO PUBLIC DEMAND FOR SUCH ACTIONZN HE ADDED THAT RESCINDING THE CURFEW WOULD IMPOSE HEAVY DEMANDS ON TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES AND OTHER CIVIL FUNCTIONS.

MACKINAC ISLAND, MICH., JULY 5-(AP)-THE POSSIBILITY THAT PRICE CONTROLS AND RATIONING MAY BECOME PRIME ISSUES IN THE FORTHCOMING POLITICA

CAMPAIGN EMERGED TODAY AS THE NATION'S GOVERNORS TOOK A HAND IN THE GROWING FOOD CONTROVERSY.

ALTHOUGH THEY ACTED ON A NON-PARTISAN BASIS IN PLEDGING COOPERATION TO SOLVE THE DINNER TABLE SHORTAGE PROBLEM, THERE WAS EVERY INDICATION AS THE 37TH ANNUAL GOVERNORS' CONFERENCE ENDED HERE YESTERDAY THAT THE TOPIC WILL BE ONE FOR FUTURE POLITICAL DEBATES.

BEHIND THE SCENES THERE WAS TALK THAT THE OPA MAY WELL BECOME THE CENTER OF ATTACK FOR OPPONENTS OF THE DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION, UNLESS SOMETHING IS DONE SOON TO STRAIGHTEN OUT THE RED POINT TANGLE THAT HAS LEFT BUTCHER SHOPS BARE OF MEAT IN MANY SECTIONS OF THE COUNTRY

THE GOVERNORS, HOWEVER, SAID NOTHING PUBLICLY OF THIS AS THEY ADOPTED A RESOLUTION UNDER WHICH THREE OF THEIR NUMBER ARE EXPECTED TO BE NAMED IN THE NEXT 10 DAYS TO "CALL ON THE PROPER AGENCIES AND OFFICIALS IN WASHINGTON IN AN EFFORT TO BRING ABOUT AS SPEEDY A SOLUTION OF THE PROBLEM AS POSSIBLE."

UNANIMOUS APPROVAL OF THE PROPOSAL ENDED A DAY IN WHICH THE STATE EXECUTIVES HEARD REPORTS ON THE WAR SITUATION FROM TOP ARMY AND NAVY COMMANDERS, ADOPTED SEVERAL OTHER RESOLUTIONS AND NAMED GOV. EDWARD MARTIN, PENNSYLVANIA REPUBLICAN, TO SUCCEED GOV. HERBERT B. MAW, UTAH DEMOCRAT, AS CONFERENCE

B. MAW, UTAH DEMOCRAT, AS CONFERENCE CHAIRMAN.

THE MILITARY REPORT CAME FROM GENERAL GEORGE C. MARSHALL, ARMY CHIEF OF STAFF, AND ADMIRAL ERNEST J. KING, COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE FLEET. BOTH SPOKE AT A CLOSED SESSION BUT GOVERNORS PRESENT DISCLOSED THAT THE MILITARY LEADERS HAD URGED ADOPTION OF POSTWAR UNIVERSAL MILITARY TRAINING TO KEEP THE COUNTRY PREPARED FOR POSSIBLE FUTURE CONFLICTS.

MARSHALL REPORTEDLY SAID THE ARMY PLANS TO DEMOBOLIZE 2,000,000 MEN, INCLUDING 900,000 WOUNDED, IN THE YEAR FOLLOWING V-E DAY. BUT HE ALSO SAID THAT NEW INDUCTIONS WILL BE MADE AT THE RATE OF TWO FOR EVERY FIVE MEN DISCHARGED.

KING WAS SAID TO HAVE REPORTED THAT PROGRESS IS BEING MADE IN COMBATTING JAPANESE SUICIDE ATTACKS ON AMERICAN NAVAL UNITS, BUT DID NOT REVEAL THE NAVY'S SOLUTION TO THIS PROBLEM.

ADOPTION OF THE FOOD RESOLUTION CAME ON MOTION OF GOV.DWIGHT GRISWOLD OF NEBRASKA AFTER THE GOVERNORS HAD ARGUED SEVERAL HOURS OR MORE OVER A DETAILED PROPOSAL OFFERED BY NORTHEASTERN STATE EXECUTIVES.
THIS INVOLVED SUGGESTED CHANGES IN DISTRIBUTION METHODS, PLUS THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A NEW KIND OF RATION STAMP FOR MEAT ONLY.

IN A LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT, GOV.HERBERT B.MAW, RETIRING CONFERENCE CHAIRMAN, SAID HE IS CONVINCED THAT THE CONSIDERATIONS WHICH PREVENTED ACTION WHILE THE WAR CONTINUED IN EUROPE NO LONGER SHOULD PREVENT STEPS BEING TAKEN.
AS AN ADDED FILLUP TO THEIR INDORSEMENT OF THE SAN FRANCISCO CHARTER, THE GOVERNORS ADOPTED A RESOLUTION URGING LOCATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS ORGANIZATION'S HEADQUARTERS IN THIS COUNTRY.
IN OTHER RESOLUTIONS, THE GOVERNORS CALLED FOR POSTWAR MAINTENANCE OF THE NATIONAL GUARD AS A STATE ADJUNCT AND PROPOSED A NATIONAL SURVEY OF ALL GOVERNMENTAL TAXING POLICIES.
AS THEY USUALLY DO, THE GOVERNORS SPOKE OUT FOR LOCAL ADMINISTRATIONS OF PROGRAMS IN WHICH THE STATES COOPERATE WITH THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT. AS A CASE IN POINT, THEY ASKED FOR EARLY TRANSFER FROM FEDERAL TO STATE CONTROL OF UNEMPLOYMENT OFFICES TAKEN OVER MORE THAN THREE YEARS AGO.
IN A RESOLUTION, THEY ALSO URGED THE SOCIAL SECURITY BOARD "FORTHWITH" TO MAKE FUND ALLOCATIONS TO STATE AGENCIES FOR UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE COMPENSATION "ON THE BASIS OF THE IMPERATIVE NECESSITIES OF THE EXISTING SITUATION."
THE GOVERNORS DEMANDED THAT FEDERAL AGENCIES DEALING WITH VETERANS AFFAIRS BE REQUIRED TO COOPERATE WITH STATE UNITS TO AVOID OVERLAPPING EFFORTS.
THEY ASKED FOR CHANNELING OF EXPECTED FEDERAL AID FOR AIRPORT CONSTRUCTION THROUGH THE STATE GOVERNMENT, REQUESTED EARLY APPROPRIATIONS BY CONGRESS FOR A POSTWAR HIGHWAY PROGRAM AND PLEDGED RENEWED EFFORTS TO MAINTAIN HIGHWAY SAFETY.

SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 5-(AP)-LT.GEN.HOLLAND M.SMITH, WHO COMMANDED MARINE CORPS OPERATIONS FROM TARAWA TO IWO JIMA, EXPRESSED CONFIDENCE TODAY THE JAPANESE SOLDIERS WOULD STOP FIGHTING OVERNIGHT WHEN THEIR LEADERS GAVE THE ORDER.

"THE INDUSTRIALISTS WILL HAVE A MAJOR INFLUENCE IN MAKING THAT DECISION TO END THE WAR," THE GENERAL SAID AT A PRESS CONFERENCE.

HE DECLINED TO SPECULATE ON WHEN THE END MIGHT COME.

THE OFFICER TEMPERED HIS OPTIMISTIC REPORT WITH A REMINDER OF THE DIFFICULTY IN COMPREHENDING WHAT HE TERMED THE WARPED JAPANESE MIND.

"GOOD JUDGMENT EVENTUALLY WILL PREVAIL ALONG THE LINE, AND IT'S JUST A QUESTION OF HOW LONG THE JAPANESE LEADERS WILL TAKE BEFORE ACTING AFTER READING THE HAND WRITING ON THE WALL," SMITH SAID.

THE GENERAL ARRIVED TODAY FROM HONOLULU AFTER TURNING OVER HIS POST OF COMMANDING GENERAL, FLEET MARINE FORCE, PACIFIC--THE MAJOR OPERATING ARM OF THE MARINE CORPS--TO LET.GEN.ROY S.GEIGER. SMITH WILL LEAVE TOMORROW FOR SAN DIEGO TO TAKE OVER THE MARINE TRAINING AND REPLACEMENT COMMAND.

SMITH PAINTED THIS PICTURE OF THE ENEMY:

JUL 6 1945

"THE JAPANESE FLEET IS ABOUT DESTROYED. HIS MERCHANT MARINE IS

30.24 78175

ON ITS LAST LEGS. IT IS GROWING MORE DIFFICULT FOR THE JAPANESE TO MAINTAIN ANY SEA COMMUNICATIONS WITH CHINA.

. "NATURALLY, THE JAPANESE SUPPLY OF MATERIALS IS DECREASING. THEY ARE DENIED THE USE OF OIL AND GASOLINE FROM THE EAST INDIES, BORNEO AND SINGAPORE. THEIR CITIES ARE BEING SYSTEMATICALLY RAZED. THEIR AIR ARM IS ALMOST IMPOTENT. I DO NOT BELIEVE IT WILL BE NECESSARY TO CLEAN THE JAPANESE OUT OF CHINA, AND I BELIEVE THE SOLDIERS WILL GIVE UP WHEN THE HOMELAND FALLS. HOW LONG THE ENEMY CAN TAKE WHAT HE IS GETTING IS ANYBODY'S GUESS. I WON'T MAKE A GUESS."

PRAISING THE SIGNIFICANT ACTION IN THE ASSOCIATED PRESS PHOTOGRAPH OF THE FLAG RAISING ON MT.SURIBACHI ON IWO JIMA, SMITH SAID "THAT PICURE MEANS THERE WILL BE A MARINE CORPS FOREVER."

HE SAID THE COURAGE AS DEPICTED IN THE PICTURE AND AS DISPLAYED ON IWO SUBSTANTIATED THE ENTIRE EXISTENCE OF THE MARINE CORPS.

THE DISPUTE WAS IN THE HANDS OF WILLIAM H.DAVIS, ECONOMIC STABILIZER, AND TURNING IT OVER TO HIM WAS REGARDED AS THE FIRST STEP LEADING TOWARD GOVERNMENT POSSESSION, UNDER PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S ORDER. THE WAR LABOR BOARD GAVE THE CASE TO DAVIS AFTER THE STRIKERS DEFIED ITS SEVERAL DIRECTIVES TO RETURN TO WORK.

WLB'S BACK-TO-WORK ORDERS TO THE 16,500 STRIKING EMPLOYES OF THE FIRESTONE TIRE & RUBBER COMPANY IN AKRON ALSO HAVE BEEN IGNORED. THEY HAVE BEEN OUT SINCE SUNDAY, AND WITH GOODYEAR'S 16,700 IDLE, THE 33,200 STRIKERS IN AKRON CONSTITUTED THE BULK OF THE SOME 50,000 MEN AND WOMEN OFF THEIR JOBS ACROSS THE COUNTRY BECAUSE OF LABOR DISPUTES.

THE WLB ALSO ACTED TO EFFECT SETTLEMENT OF THE STRIKE OF 1,700 NEWSPAPER DELIVERYMEN WHOSE WORK STOPPAGE LAST SATURDAY NIGHT HAS HALTED DISTRIBUTION OF 14 NEW YORK CITY NEWSPAPERS. THE WLB HELD A HEARING FOR THE NEWSPAPER AND MAIL DELIVERERS' UNION AND PUBLISHERS BUT FINDINGS WERE TO BE SUBMITTED TO THE UNION'S EXECUTIVE COUNCIL AND TO UNION MEMBERS. THEY THEN WILL VOTE TO DECIDE WHETHER TO RETURN TO WORK. WLB CHAIRMAN GEORGE W.TAYLOR EXPRESSED CONFIDENCE THE STRIKE WOULD BE SETTLED.

OTHER CONTINUING STRIKES ALONG THE LABOR FRONT APPEARED UNCHANGED FROM EARLIER IN THE WEEK. THESE INCLUDED STOPPAGES AT MACK MANUFACTURING CORPORATION PLANTS IN NEW BRUNSWICK AND PLAINFIELD, N.J., AND ALLENTOWN, PA., AFFECTING 7,900 AUTO PARKS WORKERS; AT THE GULF SHIPBUILDING CORPORATION IN MOBILE, ALA., WHICH EMPLOYS 8,000; THE R.R.DONNELLEY AND SONS COMPANY IN CHICAGO, KEEPING 1,100 PRINTING TRADESMEN OFF THE JOB; FIVE LUMBER COMPANIES IN DETROIT AFFECTING 700 EMPLOYES AND THE TEXAS OIL COMPANY IN PORT ARTHUR, TEX., IDLING 530 WORKERS.

JAPANESE SILENCE TODAY INDICATED A SMALL AMERICAN TASK FORCE WHICH REPORTEDLY KNIFED TO THE INNERMOST RECESSES OF ENEMY WATERS HAS SLIPPED BACK INTO THE NORTH PACIFIC AFTER A HIT-AND-RUN BOMBARDMENT.

THERE WAS NO CONFIRMATION OF YESTERDAY'S REPORT FROM TOKYO THAT FIVE U.S. WARSHIPS SHELLED KARAFUTO ISLAND OFF THE NORTH ASIATIC COAST TUESDAY, TOPPING OFF A PERIODIC TWO-DAY SUBMARINE BOMBARDMENT OF SHORE INSTALLATIONS. NOR WAS THERE ANY FURTHER REPORT FROM TOKYO.

CONCEIVABLY THE BOMBARDMENT GROUP COULD STILL BE IN WATERS NORTH OF JAPAN, BUT IT HAS BEEN THE PRACTICE OF SMALL AMERICAN TASK GROUPS TO MAKE ONLY QUICK SORTIES LHROUGH ENEMY WATERS, AND TOKYO USUALLY REPORTS AMERICAN SURFACE SHIP MOVEMENTS WHICH ARE UNDER JAPANESE OBSERVATION.

ASSUMING THE ORIGINAL NIPPONESE STORY TO BE TRUE, IT WOULD INDICATE THAT VICE ADM.FRANK JACK FLETCHER'S NINTH FLEET HAS BEGUN SCOUTING WATERS NORTH OF JAPAN. LAST WEEK A SMALL GROUP OF CRUSIERS AND DESTROYERS SLIPPED THROUGH THE KURILE ISLANDS AND KNOCKED OUT A NIPPONESE CONVOY.

A FAST TASK UNIT OF THIS TYPE COULD COVER THE 500 MILES EACH WAY THROUGH THESEA OF OKHOTSK FROM THE KURILES TO OKHOTSK IN TWO DAYS.

FOGS COMMON IN THE WATERS NORTH OF JAPAN AT THIS TIME OF YEAR MIGHT HAMPER SCOUTING EXPEDITIONS BUT AT THE SAME TIME THEY WOULD PROTECT THE SURFACE UNITS FROM PATROLING JAPANESE AIRCRAFT.

OKINAWA,-(AP)-A PACIFIC WAR EXPERIMENT - A MARINE EVACUATION HOSPITAL ORIGINALLY MANNED ENTIRELY BY NAVY PERSONNEL - IS READY TO CLOSE, ITS JOB OF EVACUATING THE WOUNDED COMPLETED.

NINE WARDS WERE IN CELLARS DUG 10 FEET DOWN. THESE WERE RESERVED FOR PATIENTS WHO COULD NOT BE MOVED NO MATTER HOW CLOSE ENEMY BOMBS FELL DURING THE CAMPAIGN TO WREST OKINAWA FROM THE JAPANESE.

TWENTY-ONE WARDS WERE IN SANDBAGGED REVETMENTS AND THE REMAINDER WERE IN TENTS WITH FOXHOLES FOR THE WALKING WOUNDED.

TRAGEDY HIT THIS HOSPITAL IN MAY WHEN A BOMBING AND STRAFING BY JAPANESE PLANES COST 13 LIVES AND WOUNDED 31.

"A REAL HERO WAS KILLED," SAID CAPT. WALTER F. KARBACH, 115 LEWIS ST., SAN ANTONIO, TEX., COMMANDING OFFICER OF THE HOSPITAL.

"HE WAS ONE OF OUR LOYAL HOSPITAL CORPSMEN OFF DUTY AND COULD HAVE JUMPED INTO A FOXHOLE. BUT INSTEAD HE RUSHED INTO THE WARDS TO HELP WITH THE WOUNDED.

"WHEN THE GOING WAS ROUGHEST HE SHOVED A PATIENT AGAINST A WALL AND THREW HIMSELF IN FRONT OF THE MAN. BOTH WERE HIT. THE WOUNDED MAN WAS SLIGHTLY INJURED BUT THE CORPSMAN WAS KILLED."

OPERATING ROOMS BURIED IN THE GROUND LOOK LIKE SOMETHING FROM A FANTASTIC STORY, BUT IN THOSE ROOMS COUNTLESS LIVES WERE SAVED.

"NINETY PER CENT OF OUR CASES WERE SURGICAL," SAID CAPT. DANIEL W. WHEELER, 1711 WALLACE AVE., DULUTH, MINN., THE EXECUTIVE OFFICER.

"THE CASUALTIES WERE MORE MUTILATED THAN ANY I EVER HAD SEEN BEFORE," KARBACH DECLARED.

ON THE PEAK DAY 540 PATIENTS WERE EVACUATED BY THE HOSPITAL, MOSTLY BY AIR.

"IT REALLY WAS A HARD JOB, BUT A SPEEDY ONE," KARBACH SAID. "THE MOST UNUSUAL PART WAS THE BRINGING TO US BY CUB PLANES FROM THE FRONT LINES MEN WHO HAD BEEN HIT ONLY 20 MINUTES BEFORE."

600 B-29s Attack Japan, Fire-Bomb 4 Small Cities, Smash Big Oil Refinery

JUL 7 1945

Big Oil Refinery Near Osaka Is Hammered by Giant Bombers.

INDUSTRIES BLASTED

Kofu, Chiba, Shimizu, Akashi and Shimotsu Hit by Raiders.

DOPKINS

GUAM, Saturday, July 7—(AP) Conflagrations raged through Japan's greatest aluminum-producing city of Shimizu after this morning's 4,000-ton bombing of that war industrial center, three other Honshu cities and the Maruzen oil refinery at Shimotsu near Osaka by a force of 600 Superfortresses.

Returning crews said explosions and fires glowed through the clouds of Shimotsu.

Kofu and Chiba near Tokyo and Akashi on the inland sea were hit through cloud cover which [illegible] results.

It was the fourth strike against Japan by the giant bombers in six days during which more than 11,000 tons of incendiary and demolition bombs have been expended by 1,750 planes.

The first targets tied the June 22 record of cities hit on any one mission.

Kofu, Chiba and Shimizu, in the Tokyo area, and Shimotsu and Akashi were the cities raided.

It was the first fire bomb attack by B-29s on Kofu, Chiba, Shimizu and Akashi. Both Akashi and Chiba have [illegible] point bombing before.

Mustangs Hit Tokyo Area

More than 100 Iwo-based Mustang fighter planes prowled the Tokyo area less than 12 hours before, for the third straight day in their challenging search for the reluctant Japanese air force.

Thirty-three Japanese planes were destroyed or damaged in the air or aground in yesterday's Mustang sweeps, making a three-day total of 81.

The Mustangs found virtually no opposition again yesterday; one squadron covered nine Japanese airfields but saw only piles of junked planes.

Of nine Japanese planes sighted in the air one was shot down and six others damaged. The Mustangs strafed a dozen Tokyo airfields, losing only one plane.

Lt. Haviland Russell, Fort Worth, Tex., took his Mustang low over nine Tokyo-sector airfields "and saw not a single operational Jap plane on any of them."

In Manila, the headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed that Okinawa-based fighter-bombers of the Fifth Air force made their second straight raid on Kyushu Wednesday.

Hit Second Time in Week

Bombing of the Maruzen oil refinery, 35 miles southwest of Osaka, with high explosives marked the second time within a week that it has been struck by Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay's 20th Airforce Superforts.

It was hit last Monday by 50 B-29s and photographs taken while fires still were raging showed one unit of the refinery seriously damaged and at least two storage tanks destroyed in that attack.

With today's raids, made shortly after Friday midnight (after 11 a. m., Friday, EWT, the 21st Bomber Command had pushed its total of Japanese cities struck in 41 incendiary missions over the home islands to 30.

Shimotsu, where the Maruzen Oil refinery is located, is one of the empire's most vital oil refinery centers.

Shimizu, population 69,000, is the site of the largest alumina plant in Japan. The factory produces about half of the nation's total. This port and industrial center, 66 per cent destroyed in an incendiary attack May 2, is located on the northwest coast of Suruga bay 20 miles southwest of Mt. Fuji. Its built-up area covers four square miles.

The Japan Light Metals company which processes bauxite ore for the alumina factory is located on the inner harbor side of the peninsula. Nearby installations include a boat-building and repair yard, a light metals plant, an oil refinery and an engineering company and iron works.

Kofu, 70 miles west of Tokyo, is one of the largest Japanese inland cities, population about 100,000. It is the home of important railroad shops, spinning mills, machine shops and military barracks.

Chiba, 20 miles around the bay shore from Tokyo has three important railroad lines, with warehouses and supply depots which are being almost entirely used for military shipments. The city has about 75,000 inhabitants.

Also in Chiba are infantry officers' training school and barracks, several railway units and their warehouses and the Chiba ordnance branch depot. The city's most important industry is the Hitachi Aircraft company plant, which was attacked May 2 by Superforts. In this earlier raid clouds prevented visual bombing and the results were poor.

Akashi, home of the Kawasaki Aircraft company, already has been attacked four times by Superforts of the 21st Bomber Command, and is 71 per cent destroyed.

Targets Scarce

The Iwo-based Mustangs of Brig. Gen. Ernest (Mickey) Moore's 7th Fighter Command destroyed six grounded Japanese planes, probably a seventh, and damaged nineteen others in low-level strafing attacks on Katori, Tokorozawa and Irumigawa airfields yesterday. The P-51's also fired a building and damaged a gas-storage tank at Tokorozawa, and strafed shipping at Katori, Uachimata and Miyawata.

Flyers returning to their Iwo Jima base reported there "weren't enough targets to go around."

ERICKSON

Fourth of July Results.

Guam, July 6 (A. P.).—A single Fourth of July Superfort strike knocked out 74 per cent of Tokushima, largest city on Japan's Shikoku Island, the Twenty-first Bomber Command announced today in a report raising the total area destroyed in Nipponese industrial cities to 120 square miles.

Major-Gen. Curtis E. LeMay said that 1.7 square miles were burned out of Tokushima, and 2.13 square miles razed in Okayama, on Honshu Island 100 miles west of Osaka. Reports on a half dozen other fire-bombed cities have yet to be made.

With the exception of small portions in the extreme east and west outskirts, the [illegible] of Tokushima was virtually by the July 4 fire raid, LeMay said. It was the greatest percentage destruction ever achieved by B-29s on any Japanese city. Tokushima was a prewar textile center which was converted into a city of war plants.

The Okayama incendiary strike June 29, LeMay said, ravaged four aircraft factories, four war industries, an oil refinery and a military airport.

63 Per Cent of City Wrecked.

Destruction was 63 per cent of the built up area in Okayama, an important transportation hub and military training center on the inland sea. The city's last reported population was 163,000.

Reconnaissance photographs made over Japan in the first days of clear weather in some time disclosed new damage to the Kawasaki aircraft plant and the Mitsubishi aircraft works at Kagamigahara, the Aichi aircraft works Eitoku plant at Nagoya and the Kawasaki aircraft plant at Akashi.

JUL 7 1945

New damage to key war plants as reported at the Atsuta artillery and anti-aircraft gun factory in Nagoya arsenal. Further destruction was sighted at the Nippon Vehicle Manufacturing Company and the Sumitomo duralumin plant, also in Nagoya, and the Sumitamo light metal industry plant at Osaka.

Oil Refinery Blasted.

Also hit were the Utsube River oil refinery near Yakkaichi and the Kagamigaraha military airport.

All industrial targets were hit in daylight pinpoint demolition raids June 26.

Okyama was fire-bombed with three other cities in the darkness early June 29.

The Utsube oil plant was a secondary target in the daylight raid June 26 and the night of June 29.

Here are some damage calculations:

Kawasaki Kagamigahara aircraft plant, near Nagoya—27 per cent new damage makes total to this plane building unit 65.5 per cent.

Mitsubishi aircraft works, near Nagoya—20 per cent destruction of total roof area.

Aichi aircraft works, Eitoku plant, Nagoya — Slightly hurt with 4.3 per cent new damage, total 19 per cent.

Plane Plant Damaged.

Fawasaku aircraft plant, Akashi—New damage 26 per cent original roof area. Cumulative total 71 per cent roof area.

Atsuta gun factory, Nagoya—29 per cent roof area to total damage of 55 per cent.

Nippon Vehicle Manufacturing Company, Nagoya—40.5 per cent new damage to total 82.3 per cent. Once was Japan's second largest producer of locomotives, steam boilers and electric cars.

Sumitomo Duralumin Plant, Nagoya—20 per cent damage brings total to 32.5 per cent in this large new plant producing Dural sheets and other airplane parts.

Kagamigahara Airport—50 per cent of roof installations wiped out.

Utsube River Oil Plant—30 per cent of roof areas destroyed. Ten small by-products tanks, one large crude oil storage tank demolished.

Sumitomo Light Metal Industry Company, Osaka—12 per cent destruction in first strike. Ten buildings destroyed or damaged.

Five Industrial Cities on Home Island of Honshu Are Attacked.

NEW BLOW STRUCK BY NIGHT

Follows on Heels of Assault by 250 U. S. Bombers and Fighters.

Washington, July 6 (A.P.).—A very large task force of Superfortresses — possibly 400 or more — today renewed the attack on Japan's industrial cities, hitting five centers on the home island of Honshu with fire and explosive bombs.

They reached their targets at night.

The five cities were Shimotsu, an oil refining center attacked by a medium force of B-29s four days ago; Kofu, a railway and war production center; Akashi, site of aircraft engine plants; Chiba, producer of machine tools and military equipment, and Shimizu, home of one of Japan's largest aluminum plants and a deep water port.

Privateers Sink 2 Ships

GUAM, July 7 (Saturday) (AP).—Privateer search planes of Fleet Air Wing 1 from Okinawa bases sank two small Japanese coastal steamers and damaged three others in strikes Thursday south of Korea and in the East China Sea, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported in his communique today.

Marine and Army aircraft damaged two large enemy cargo ships near the Amami group of islands north of Okinawa, the communique said. Military installations ashore in the Amamis also were hit in rocket and strafing runs.

The Japanese meanwhile reported that the United States already had thrown 11,000 planes into the assault on the home islands. Of the growing force of bombers available, 250 United States bomber and fighter planes from Iwo and Okinawa today made a two-pronged attack against the Japanese mainland for the third consecutive day, Tokyo said.

Line-Up of Air Forces

With the entry of the American 5th Air Force, formerly operating only in the Southwest Pacific, into the air war against Japan proper, the line-up of Allied air forces against the Japanese homeland and adjacent areas, The Associated Press points out, is as follows:

Twentieth Air Force, comprising the 20th and 21st Bomber Commands of Superfortresses, operating from bases in the Marianas, including Guam, Tinian and Saipan.

Tactical Air Force, based on Okinawa, comprising Army Mitchell medium bombers, Thunderbolt P-47 fighters and Corsair fighters, and Avenger torpedo planes of the 2d Marine Aircraft Wing.

Army 7th Fighter Command Mustang fighters, based on Iwo Jima.

Fleet Air Wings 1 and 18, based on the Okinawa area, comprising Privateer search planes and seaplanes.

Fifth Air Force Mustangs are based on Okinawa, while other planes of this command still operate from Philippines bases, covering Indo-China, the China coast and Formosa.

To the line-up soon will be added the 8th Air Force, transferred from the European theater of operations. This will include some Superfortresses.

In addition, the 11th Army Air Force is operating in the North Pacific—the Aleutians area—while the 13th Air Force, the Royal Australian Air Force and the Royal New Zealand Air Force are all operating in the Southwest and South Pacific.

2 JAPANESE STEAMERS SUNK BY NAVY PLANES

GUAM, Saturday, July 7—(AP) Lumbering privateer search planes of Fleet Air wing one from Okinawa bases sank two small Japanese coastal steamers and damaged three others in strikes Thursday south of Korea and in the East China sea, today's Fleet communique reported.

Marine and Army aircraft damaged two large enemy cargo ships near the Amami group of islands north of Okinawa, the communique said. Military installations ashore in the Amamis also were hit in rocket and strafing runs.

Liberators of the 11th Army Air force meanwhile struck Katoaka naval base on Shumushu island in the Kuriles.

YANKS AGAIN RAID KYUSHU

West Coasts Of Jap Home Isle Hit By Fighter-Bombers

Manila, Saturday, July 7 (AP). Fighter-bombers of the United States 5th Air Force again have swept over the west coasts of Kyushu without meeting any enemy interception, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

It was the second consecutive day that MacArthur had announced blows against the Japanese homeland by the 5th Air Force, newly moved from the Philippines to bases on Okinawa.

His communiqué also reported continued heavy bomber blows at Formosa and maintenance of the tight blockade of the Asiatic coast, bombing arsenal facilities in the Canton area.

11,000 Planes, Japs Say

The Japanese meanwhile reported that the United States already had thrown 11,000 planes into the assault on the home islands.

The 5th Air Force blows at Kyushu were made by more than 45 speedy Mustangs which bombed and strafed Omuta, about 40 miles northeast of Nagasaki, and the smaller air centers of Chiran and Komeotsu. Anti-aircraft fire—the only opposition they faced—was moderate to heavy.

Other Mustangs, still based on Luzon in the Philippines, bombed Basco town and an airdrome on the Bataan Islands midway between Luzon and Formosa, while more than 100 Corsair and Dauntless planes slammed Kavieng, New Ireland, and Rabaul, on New Britain, which have been under air attack constantly for three years.

The growing assault on Japan itself held the spotlight, however.

Tokyo Fields Hit

Tokyo radio said about 250 bombers and Mustang and Thunderbolt fighters from Iwo Jima and Okinawa struck early Friday afternoon.

About 160 of the raiders hit at Tokyo airfields, the broadcast declared, and the others roared over the southern part of Kyushu Island but "because of bad weather were unable to accomplish anything."

These unconfirmed Japanese reports, picked up by the FCC, followed major American-announced moves in the intensified aerial assault on Nippon, including:

The first raids by American planes on Korea, with navy craft of Fleet Air Wing 1 strafing and bombing Japan's vital rail arteries to Manchuria Wednesday.

Extension of the United States (Cont... Force's attacks to Japan's ...land, by 48 Mustang fighters newly arrived at Okinawa from the Philippines. The attack Tuesday marked the first blow at the heart of Nippon by aircraft of General MacArthur's command.

Disclosure by Maj. Gen. Curtis LeMay's 21st Bomber Command at Guam that more than 120 square miles of Japan's industrial cities have been destroyed by B-29 raids.

Announcement from Washington Thursday that Gen. Carl A. Spaatz had been named commander of a new strategic air setup, to include the B-29's of the 20th Air Force under LeMay and the 8th Air Force under Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle.

A report at Guam by Col. George Mayo, Army Air Forces engineer, said that Okinawa was being developed into "the greatest island airbase ever seen"—plans calling for 25 miles of paved runways to be completed "much faster than the Japanese would ever think possible."

Pilots of the Fleet Air Wing 1 Privateers which attacked Korea said they destroyed or damaged five railroad bridges, three tunnels, seven trains, three power stations, one dam, a lighthouse and a radio station.

Reconnaissance photographs of B-29 raid damage, on which the destruction estimate of 120 square miles in Japan's cities was based, showed 75 per cent of Tokushima knocked out in a July 4 attack.

Korea Is Blasted

Okinawa, July 4 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Ranging to Korea for the first time, Yank flyers today bombed the main line railroad between Manchuria and shipping ports to Japan, blew up trains, tunnel entrances, bridges and a lighthouse. For good measure, the Navy pilots worked over Korea's largest airfield.

The boxscore showed five railroad bridges destroyed or damaged, three tunnel entrances blasted, seven trains fired, three power stations attacked, one dam damaged and a lighthouse and radio station attacked.

"It was one of the most successful attacks yet made by Fleet Airwing 1," said Lieut.-Commander E. B. Benning of Brentwood, Tenn., one of the flight leaders. "We hit both double and single track railroads which carry the heavy traffic to Manchuria and to seaports for transshipment to Japan. We struck Fusan, the principal south Korea shipping point which connects both with Manchuria and Japan."

With Benning was Co-pilot F. E. Van Dyke of Flushing, Queens.

AUSSIES CROSS BALIKPAPAN BAY, SMASH INLAND

Allied Naval Gunfire Covers Troops During Amphibious Operation.

SEIZE JAP BATTERIES

Secure Both Entrances to Borneo's Largest Oil Harbor

MANILA, Saturday, July 7.—(AP) Australian Seventh division troops hopped three miles across broad Balikpapan bay under intense Allied naval gunfire cover Thursday and secured both entrances to Borneo's largest oil harbor, Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed today.

This new amphibious operation secured Penadjam point, where the Japanese had mounted strong coastal batteries, and then the Aussies thrust inland against scanty opposition.

Close in on Refineries

Other Australian units are closing in on refineries still held by the enemy in the Balikpapan area, MacArthur announced.

In all Borneo operations, including those on the north coast, 3,031 Japanese dead nave been counted and 274 prisoners taken, the communique said.

Allied casualties are 211 dead, 22 missing and 420 wounded, MacArthur announced.

While the Australians met little opposition in their new landing opposite Balikpapan, they were engaged in tough close-quarters combat with Japanese naval personnel defending the Pandansari oil refinery north of the burned city.

The Australians, who now hold 18 miles of the coast, from Penadjam to Manggar airfield on the northeast, met strong resistance as they pushed farther northward towards the Sambodja oil fields.

Japanese coastal guns and 75-millimeter field artillery slowed the advance, but the Aussies were still hot on the heels of the main Nipponese force withdrawing toward the marshy oil field.

Samarinda, 55 miles northeast of Balikpapan, is the last Japanese-held oil producing area in southeastern Borneo.

Set Fire to Refinery

The Japanese, pounded by Allied aircraft and Australian artillery during their withdrawal, have set fire to the refinery and pumping installations at the coastal town of Koealasambodja, about half way between Balikpapan and Samarinda.

The Australians completed the occupation of Balikpapan Thursday, then pushed on from the ruins of the oil port to pierce Nipponese defenses in the Pandansari refinery district just north of Balikpapan.

(Tokyo radio said the Japanese were undergoing heavy Allied naval and air pounding and were fighting 15,000 enemy troops which had been put ashore from the time of the invasion Sunday through Wednesday. The broadcast claimed the Allies had suffered 2,000 casualties to Tuesday. Allied reports have said their casualties were light.)

With the capture of Manggar airfield the Allies hold two important airbases around Balikpapan, the Sepinggang strip having been taken and put into use shortly after the Australian landing.

While American engineers installed repair facilities in Balikpapan, Yank minesweepers were clearing the bay of explosives.

Bombers Rip Airfields

Twenty-five Liberator heavy bombers of the U. S. 13th Air force supported the Australians around Balikpapan and struck the Oelin and Tabanio airfields south of there, while ten other Liberators neutralized three airfields across Makassar straits on the Celebes.

Thirty-five Liberators and medium bombers assaulted western Borneo airfields through which the Japanese might be able to bring up aircraft from Singapore and Indo-China.

Aussies Gain on Borneo

Make a Five-mile Advance in Thrust for Last Big Oil Field.

DAVIS JUL 7 1945

Manila, July 6 (A. P.).—Australian invaders pushed across heavily mined areas today toward the last remaining Japanese-held oil field in southeast Borneo, guided by the towering fires of Koealasambodja, a large refinery and pumping station put to the torch by retreating Nipponese.

The battle-hardened Seventh Australian Infantry occupied the remaining Japanese-held part of Balikpapan yesterday, overran Manggar Airfield in a five-mile advance to the northeast and plunged on toward the great salt-marsh oil fields of the Samarinda district.

DAY

The Samarinda fields are approximately fifty-five air miles northeast of Balikpapan, now a giant junk pile of burned and blasted refinery equipment and oil pipes.

Koealasambodja, on the pipe line approximately halfway between Balikpapan and Samarinda, is on the coast.

[Radio Tokyo said today that the Allies had poured ashore 15,000 men by Wednesday. It claimed the Japanese garrison had inflicted 2,000 casualties up to Tuesday, but Allied sources had reported casualties as light.

The enemy broadcast reported daily strafing of Japanese positions by an average of 150 fighter and bomber planes, with "persistent" night naval bombardment. Tokyo claimed that despite furious Allied attacks the garrison was fighting spiritedly.]

The capture of Manggar, with its two 4,000-foot runways, gave the Allies control of the only two worth-while air bases in the Balikpapan area. Sepinggang airstrip, already in use by the Australians, fell early this week.

Enemy Takes 974 Sick Off Island With U.S. Consent

ERICKSON

Guam, July 6 (AP)—In an act of mercy unique in the Pacific war, the United States Navy permitted a Japanese hospital ship to remove 974 sick and wounded Nipponese soldiers and sailors from storied Wake Island on Independence Day.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz disclosed the incident today. It was another chapter in the drama which has surrounded Wake, a United States possession, since it fell to the Nipponese December 24, 1941, after a gallant little Marine garrison had exacted a high cost from the overwhelming enemy force that attacked it.

Yanks Search Ship

Evacuation of such a large number of Japanese from Wake apparently means the island could be retaken by the Americans at will, although at present there is no indication this might be attempted. It is 2,300 miles directly west of Honolulu.

The enemy vessel, the Takasago Maru, was intercepted by the United States destroyer Murray as it approached Wake and again after it approached Wake and again after parties searched the ship each time, with the co-operation of the Japanese commander.

When first stopped and searched, the Japanese commander informed the Murray's skipper, who was not identified by Nimitz, that he was en route to Wake to evacuate disabled personnel. He was allowed to proceed. That was on Tuesday.

Malnutrition In Most Cases

The Takasago Maru was again intercepted the following day, after leaving Wake. Americans who boarded the vessel found that the bulk of the 974 patients she carried were suffering from malnutrition, stark evidence of the efficiency of the United States sea and air blockade of this and other bypassed islands in the Pacific.

Nipponese medics estimated fifteen per cent would not survive the long voyage back to Japan. Fifteen per cent of the evacuees were suffering from tuberculosis. The wounded totaled fourteen.

Wake has often been shelled by American warships and raked by Yank carrier planes or land-based bombers. The last reported attack was a raid by bombers of the 7th Air Force on June 27.

Sentiment And Strategy

Sentimental considerations for reoccupying Wake's three sand islets, so valiantly defended by Major James P. S. Devereux's band of 400 Marines, are great. Strategic considerations, however, call for the capture of islands of greater military value.

With American development of intermediate naval bases in the Marshall Islands, Wake can fill no military need. To reoccupy it would mean another base to maintain and supply.

The Japanese removed from Wake must have made up the bulk of the garrison that survived American bombardments. Wake does not have room for many more than the 974 men.

The evacuation suggests that other isolated garrisons, on such enemy islands are Nauru, Wotje, Jaluit and Mili, may be similarly desperate.

MANILA, Saturday, July 7 (AP)—Rains and landslides of the typhoon season hampered American and Filipino mopping-up operations against the Japanese in the Philippines today, but some gains of the last few days were reported.

Navy Lets Japs Take 974 From Wake

Many Nipponese Near Death Removed by Enemy Hospital Ship.

ERICKSON JUL 7 1945

Guam, July 6 (A. P.).—A Japanese hospital ship evacuated 974 wounded and sick Japanese soldiers and sailors from Wake Island with the permission of the United States Navy, Pacific Fleet Headquarters announced today. The incident was unprecedented in the Pacific war.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported that the enemy ship was stopped and searched by an American destroyer as it approached and again as it left Wake Island, where United States Marines held out gallantly early in the war [illegible] overrun by overwhelming numbers of Japanese assault troops.

DAY

American boarding parties found that the bulk of the 974 taken off Wake were suffering from malnutrition, testifying to the effectiveness of the long American air and sea blockade of the island 1,985 miles southeast of Tokyo. Nipponese medical officers estimated 15 per cent of the rescued enemy garrison taken off were suffering from tuberculosis. Fourteen were wounded.

The evacuation presumably removed most of the Japanese garrison and was a virtual admission that American forces could take Wake any time they wish.

In one of the most dramatically humane incidents of the Pacific war, the U. S. S. destroyer Murray intercepted, stopped and searched the Japanese hospital ship Takasago Maru about 300 miles north of Wake Tuesday.

Searched the Ship.

The Murray's commander reported that a boarding party from his ship searched the Takasago with the full co-operation of the Japanese commanding officer, who said his vessel was on the way to Wake to evacuate the garrison's sick and wounded.

The Nipponese officer said that his ship would remain at Wake for a few hours and then proceed to Japan. The American commander permitted the hospital ship to continue its voyage.

The Murray intercepted the Takasago Maru again yesterday, about forty miles north of Wake, and again a boarding party searched the ship. They found it was carrying 974 military patients from Wake. Of these 490 were Navy personnel and 484 Army personnel. After this visit and search, the Murray's commander told the hospital ship to continue her voyage to Japan.

Carried Crew of 157.

When the Takasago Maru was first stopped by Murray en route to Wake, 2,300 miles due west of Honolulu, the boarding party found she was carrying a crew of 157, including civilians, a Navy boat crew and communications personnel, and 189 naval medical personnel.

When the Japanese attacked Wake, the island was defended by 400 Marines in the First Defense Battalion Detachment commanded by Major James P. S. Devereux with a small plane force of the 211th Fighter Squadron under the command of Major Paul A. Putnam.

In addition there were 1,0[illegible] civilian workers develop[illegible] Wake's airstrip and lagoon [illegible]bor on the island.

29 FLIERS SAVED BY U.S. SUB FROM WATERS OFF JAPAN

ERICKSON

GUAM, July 6—(AP) A submarine skipper and a B-29 group commander joined today in describing exploits in which a single submarine rescued 29 fliers from waters off Japan in six days.

With one more man picked up earlier on its five-week patrol, the submarine, skippered by Cmdr. Hiram Cassidy, Brookhaven, Miss., (wife, Groton, Conn.) amassed a record rescue total of 30—and then took aboard 22 more fliers from another submarine for the jam-packed journey back to base.

One of the most dramatic B-29 crew rescues since the Superforts began [illegible] was a close brush with death for the group Commander, Col. George W. Mundy, Cedartown, Ga., and the crew of the plane "City of Galveston," commanded by Capt. John A. Miranda, Galveston, Tex.

NIGHT

Leaving its daylight demolition bombing target, the plane was hit by a 120-millimeter anti-aircraft shell.

Steadily losing altitude, they headed out to sea, searching for a friendly vessel.

The City of Galveston's radio was out. Lt. Robert L. Spaulding, Eagle Rock, Calif., and Lt. John H. Pulley, 201 West Baltimore St., Jackson, Tenn., brought their planes over the City of Galveston to protect her. Spaulding located a submarine and guided the crippled B-29 toward it.

When Mundy and Miranda followed the crew in bailing out, they were only 800 feet above the sea. The pl[illegible]e quickly crashed in the water [illegible] exploded.

All [illegible] scattered along a mile [illegible] 12 men were picked up [illegible] hour.

DESTROYER SET TO GO HOME IS SUNK, 152 LOST

DOPKINS

GUAM, July 6 (AP)—The only three officers who survived the loss of the destroyer U. S. S. Twigg told in a Navy hospital today how a torpedo and suicide plane attack off Okinawa sent their ship to destruction just as she was ready to leave for home.

The end came on the night of June 16 after thirteen months of grim action. The crew had just cheered word that the Twigg was to return to the United States for overhauling. Now, 152 of her 316 men are dead or missing. Thirty-one others are in hospitals.

The three surviving officers are Lieut. James H. Black, 23, executive officer, of San Francisco and Hugo, Okla.; Lieut. Oscar N. Pederson, 32, of Kilgore, Tex., and Ensign Gilbert C. Gayler, 21, of Long Beach, Calif.

Black is suffering from a fractured leg, Pederson from scalp wounds and broken ribs and Gayler from scalp wounds.

DAY

Black was in the emergency [illegible] talking with Comdr. George Philips, the skipper, about plans for the trip home. They were to deliver a last bit of harassing fire at the Okinawa capital of Naha before departure.

"I heard the sound of a plane across our bow," said Black. "We started toward the bridge and the next thing I remember I was on top of the fire control box on top of stack number one above the bridge.

"The plane had hit us on the forward deck, and there was fire there. I could see the wounded lying around. The skipper had been killed instantly by the explosion. I was dazed."

Black and Gayler, assistant gunnery officer, crawled to the main deck where the wounded were being treated. Within ten minutes a crewman rushed up and told Black that the ship was beginning to flood in the engine room. Black ordered the crew to leave the Twigg.

"Other destroyers and LCIs were alongside and we had no worry about not being picked up," he declared.

Okinawa Geishas Like New Jobs as Nurses

By the Associated Press. WILEY

OKINAWA, July 5 (Delayed).—Geisha girls imported to entertain Jap soldiers have a new job—working as nurses in civilian hospitals. Medical officials said they make excellent nurses.

"We like this work very much, and everybody is nice to us," the leader of 14 geishas told me.

"When the invasion started I told all my girls they were free to marry or leave me, but they all decided to stay with me."

Cost 8000 Yen Apiece.

She said that she and her husband, now a Jap slave laborer, paid 8000 yen each for the girls, bringing 50 to the Ryukyus six months ago from Japan and Korea.

"In the months we worked here, some of the girls made enough money to pay me back, so they no longer are mine," their leader related.

"We worked in Naha until March, putting on singing and dancing shows every night. The girls sold tickets to the show for any money the soldier wanted to pay."

Hid in Caves.

When the invasion opened on Easter Sunday the geishas began moving south, hiding in caves by day and fleeing by night. Each carried a sack of rice. They had to leave behind trunks of elaborate costumes.

"We lived in caves and foxholes two months and 20 days," their leader said.

Unlike the Okinawans, the geishas used heavy makeup. One wore a pretty silk dress. The leaded of the geishas, short, slender and attractive, wore a blue slack suit and a pearl necklace.

Filipino Says Japanese Torture Was Cure for His Stomach Ulcers

MORTON

HOLLANDIA, Dutch New Guinea (AP).—The story of Anastacio Ramoran, a Filipino who asserts that Japanese mistreatment cured him of disabling stomach ulcers, was related here by Lieutenant Colonel Carl C. E. Mellberg, United States Army chaplain. Colonel Mellberg, a Methodist minister of Springfield, N. J., said he believed Ramoran's strange experience was true.

Here is the story:

In the grim days of the Japanese inavsion of the Philippines, an American plane was forced down on Saipari Island in Luzon's Lingayen Gulf. The pilot and mechanic were sheltered by the Filipinos until the Japenese came looking for them. Then the Americans escaped by boat and the Filipinos fled to the hills—all but Anastacio Ramoran.

"He was still in his bed," Colonel Mellberg related, "when the frustrated Japs arrived, demanding to know about the Americans. In a Christian manner, he courteously told them he did not know. 'For three years I have been bedridden,' he said. 'I know they were here, but I cannot tell you where they are. I do not know.'"

Colonel Mellberg said the Japanese dragged the Filipino to the seashore and forced him to drink ocean water until he was near bursting. "Then," he continued, "they placed his almost lifeless body on the sand and began to march back and forth across his face and stomach. The sea water gushed forth from his mouth, nose and ears. Finally he was abandoned as dead and the Japanese patrol returned to the mainland."

The Filipinos returned from their hiding places and carried Anastacio Ramoran back to his bed, more dead than alive.

"After three days," Colonel Mellberg said, "consciousness returned and eager hands nursed him back to life again.

"Anastacio Ramoran, bedridden for three years, is now working his rice fields and has full use of his body. The ailment from which he suffered was cured. Due to the atrocity of the Japanese, the ulcers in his stomach burst, and we can assume the sea water acted as an irrigating solution that cleansed the abdominal cavity."

Colonel Mellberg said the story was vouched for by the Rev. C. M. Ferrer, Methodist superintendent of Luzon's central Pangasinan district. He quoted the healed Anastacio Ramoran as declaring: "All things work together for the good of them who love God."

[At headquarters of the American Medical Association in Chicago, physicians said that in the lack of scientific evidence of Ramoran's "cure," they would not comment on its possibilities.]

Exiled Poles in London Urge Troops to Go 'Underground'

SINGLETON

LONDON, July 6—(AP) The exiled Polish government in London—apparently casting itself into the role of an "underground government"—called upon the 250,000 men of the Polish armed forces abroad today to remain loyal and support its claim to speak for the nation.

The action presumably challenged the plan of the major powers to give Poles in the armed forces the choice of returning home to help in Poland's reconstruction, or remaining under the British flag.

Less than 24 hours after Britain and the United States formally recognized the new Provisional Government of National Unity at Warsaw [illegible] regime of Premier Tomasz Arciszewski reaffirmed its determination to refuse to surrender its authority until a new government is formed in free elections "on free Polish soil."

Then in an order of the day, Lt.-Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (Gen. Bor) commander-in-chief of the Polish armed forces and leader of the Warsaw uprising, told his troops that the proclamations of President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz of the London regime "remain binding" upon them.

The pattern of development indicated the London group intended to preserve at least the skeleton of an organization despite the imminent withdrawal of British financial support except for the pay of the armed forces and to personnel essential for liquidating activities of the exiled group.

Meanwhile, the newly-formed Warsaw government initiated action to lay claim to the assets of the London regime. Polpress, organ here of the Warsaw government, said the new government had named a three-member commission "authorized to take over and secure all property of the Polish state in Great Britain."

This, however, may run into a legal tangle, for the exact status of such assets as the Bank of Poland's gold and the merchant marine have never been clarified, at least publicly.

Britain went ahead with arrangements to form a special commission to deal with the problem.

A spokesman for the exiled regime refused to comment on published reports that it had called upon all Polish merchant ships in Soviet-controlled waters to go to British ports, and thus deprive the Warsaw government of their use.

In a statement issued through the Polish Telegraph agency, Arciszewski's administration declared it would hand over its authority "solely" to a government formed on free Polish soil, and stipulated that it must be one which "reflects the will of the people as expressed in free elections."

The first exiled agency to close was the Polish radio here, which went off the air last night. Today an attache at the ministry of information said that "the press department has stopped." Several newspapers and magazines also were expected to cease operations.

Exiled Poles Appeal to Troops

Challenge Seen in Move to Carry On Regime No Longer Recognized by Allies.

DOANE

London, July 6 (A. P.).—The Polish Government in Exile, stripped of recognition by the United States and Britain, today called upon the 250,000 men in its armed forces to remain loyal—an action which apparently challenged the pending plans of the Big Three to give these men a choice between returning home or remaining abroad.

The Polish Telegraphic Agency said that Lieut.-Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (Gen. Bor), commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the exiled administration, had issued an order of the day maintaining that the proclamations of President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz of the exiled group "remain binding upon all Polish service men."

The exiled regime, headed by Premier [illegible] Arciszewski, at the same time declared that it would hand over its authority solely to a government formed on free Polish soil. In a statement issued through the Polish Telegraphic Agency, the exiled administration said that any Polish government to which it would turn over its authority must be one which "reflects the will of the people as expressed in free elections." This statement came as a clear indication of Arciszewski's intentions to carry on the exiled regime despite the handicaps of non-recognition and the imminent withdrawal of British financial support.

Warsaw Bids for Assets.

On the other hand, the newly formed Polish Provisional Government of National Unity in Warsaw started action to take over the assets of the exiled administration. Polpress, the Warsaw Government's official news agency, announced the appointment of a three-member Polish commission "authorized to take over and secure all property of the Polish State in Great Britain."

Meanwhile today the British took steps to liquidate the administrative machinery of the Exiled Government.

The Foreign Office announced the creation of an Interim Treasury Committee for Polish Questions to supervise the task of liquidation, and also announced that only such essential activities of the London Poles as educational and hospital services for Polish citizens in England and the care of refugees abroad will continue to be financed by the British Government.

What to do with the exile government's army of 250,000 was about the only remnant of the Polish problem left to plague the Allies. The Polish forces which have been serving with the Allies, receiving supplies from the British Government and pay from military credits advanced to the London Polish Goverament, will have arrangements for supplies and pay "safeguarded pending further decisions," the announcement added. The troops will be maintained until a plan is worked out letting them choose whether to remain abroad—serving henceforth under the British flag—or to accept the Warsaw government's invitation to all "devoted to democratic principles" to come home.

Other questions remaining to be settled included control of the Bank of Poland's gold reserve, and determination of whether the new Polish Government is at war with Japan.

12 YANKS WHIPPED 115 GERMAN PILOTS

Squadron Honored For Bagging 23 Without Loss

JAMESON

London, July 6 (AP) — Twelve American fighter pilots who took on 115 German dive bombers and shot down 23 of them without a single loss in a rough-and-tumble air battle over Belgium last New Year's Day, have been cited for "extraordinary heroism" by the President of the United States.

They are members of the veteran 487th Mustang Squadron in the 8th Air Force and have the distinction of being the only individual squadron in that air force to receive the coveted White House citation. This honor usually goes to a group which is composed of several squadrons.

Forward Airbase Saved

The full story of the victory, for which the Distinguished Service Crosses and four Silver Stars were later awarded, could not be told at that time because it was not supposed to be known that the 487th had been moved from England to advanced airstrips near the front lines.

Outnumbered ten to one, the twelve pilots turned back the whole Nazi force and saved the forward airbase from what might have been a disastrous attack. It was at the height of the Ardennes offensive and the Luftwaffe was attempting to take advantage of the bad weather to pull a sneak raid and destroy more than 100 planes on the ground.

Each Pilot On His Own

Most of the free-for-all air battle took place at a height of less than 3,000 feet in full view of the ground troops, who were kept busy dodging shrapnel and parts of falling German planes.

Just as the Mustangs were taking off they bumped into the first wave of Fulke Wolfe 190's. There was no time for them to form themselves into flights for protection. They took off shooting and each pilot was on his own.

Lieut. Col. John C. Meyer, Forest Hills, N.Y., knocked down the lead Nazi plane at 400 feet. He got another one some fifteen minutes later.

Kansan Bags Four Planes

"Watch Whiz," shouted Sergt. Elmer T. Harter, of New Albany, Ind., from "Foxhole," referring to Capt. William T. Whisner, Jr., Shreveport, La., who was hot on the tail of two FW 190's.

"There goes one, Whiz," called Harter. Captain Whisner got another FW 190 and two ME 109's during the encounter.

Another pilot who did a lot of shooting was Capt. Sanford K. Moats, Mission, Kan., who also bagged four German planes.

A few hours after word of the spectacular battle got around Generals Spaatz and Vandenberg, along with some other generals, were on their way to the airbase to hear the story at first hand and to congratulate the flyers personally.

Moats, Whisner and Meyer all received the Distinguished Service Cross. Silver Stars were awarded to Lt. Col. William T. Halton Jr. of Providence, R. I., the squadron commander; Capts. Henry M. Stewart of Braintree, Mass., and Raymond Littge of Altenburg, Mo., and Lieut. Alden P. Rigby of Fairview, Utah.

Among others participating in "the show" was Capt. Wilson R. Jessup of Greenwich, [illegible]

AGREE IN PRINCIPLE ON WAR TRIAL PLAN

London, July 6 (A. P.).—Justice Robert H. Jackson said today that the four major Allied Powers have agreed in principle on the American plan for the collective trial of major war criminals before an international military tribunal.

As Chief Prosecutor for the United States, Jackson told the Association of American Correspondents in London that a number of questions of procedure remain to be worked out by the United States, Britain, France and Russia, including that of reconciling the trial methods of the various countries. He reiterated his hope that the trial itself may get under way by late summer.

The prosecution of arch-war criminals of the Axis, he said, must not be carried out on a note or simple vengeance but must serve instead as a concrete lesson to prevent future wars of aggression. Just where war crime trials will be held remains uncertain. A delegation, however, will leave for the continent within a few days to study possible sites. Unsettled also is the question of whether the major German and Italian war criminals will be tried together or separately.

Record Vote is Cast.

London, July 6 (A. P.).—A record number of 23,000,000 votes was believed cast in yesterday's general election, surpassing the largest previous turnout of 22,648,375 in 1929. The concensus was that fully 75 per cent of 33,000,000 eligible votes were cast.

The shifting of population and the German air blitz played havoc with election records. It was estimated that thousands who tried to vote found themselves disqualified because their names had been lost from the polling registers.

Meanwhile today, with a strenuous campaign behind him, Churchill looked forward to a few days of rest at some undisclosed retreat before going to Germany for a meeting with President Truman and Premier Stalin.

An announcement from No. 10 Downing Street said that the Prime Minister will shortly be going abroad, but that his whereabouts would remain secret "in order that his rest may be as complete as possible."

A Paris dispatch quoted a Bordeaux newspaper as saying Churchill was expected to vacation near Hendaye on the Franco-Spanish border.

Foreign Secretary Eden will preside over the caretaker government during the Prime Minister's absence.

Planes Scour Atlantic For Missing Liberator

British San Francisco Officials on R. A. F. Craft

LONDON, July 6 (AP).—British and Canadian search planes and ships continued to scour the North Atlantic tonight for trace of a Royal Air Force Liberator carrying Sir William Malkin, legal adviser to the British Foreign Office, and fourteen other passengers and six crewmen which has been missing since Monday on a flight from Montreal to London.

With Sir William on the missing plane were other members of the British group at the San Francisco conference, including six women secretaries. They were en route home from the conference.

Three Americans are among the missing crew members. They are Captain G. P. Evnas, pilot, of Marlboro, Mass.; Captain J. W. Ross, co-pilot, a native of Portland, Ore., and G. B. Swancy, flight engineer, a native of Dayton, Ohio. Wives of all three are now living in Canada.

Hopes were raised during the day by a report from Halifax that search planes had sighted a party of survivors in rubber dinghies 300 miles off Newfoundland. An R. A. F. rescue plane found that the occupants were five Canadian Air Force men whose plane had been forced down. They were picked up and landed at their base at Gander, Newfoundland.

EUROPEAN DANGER SEEN

Sulzberger Says Hunger in Europe May Weaken Democracy

LONDON, July 6 (AP)—Unless the fight against hunger and disease in western Europe is successful, "our Allies may be forced to give up some of their democracy," says Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

In an interview in Stars and Stripes, Mr. Sulzberger declared: "Europe—and Germany—must be made to survive the coming winter. We fought together for a common purpose, to defeat the physical and moral assault of the Germans against our western Allies. * * * So long as hunger and disease remain or threaten as a result of that assault, we must continue to fight."

The democratic order in Europe "is still threatened," he said, adding that "it is still our job to see that democracy in Europe is preserved."

Amnesty For Germans Who Surrender Guns

London, July 6 (AP)—Allied authorities have offered amnesty to all Germans who surrender guns or explosives in their possession, in the week of July 9-15, the Hamburg radio said tonight.

The amnesty offer, broadcast coincident with expressed military government concern over the number of German-possessed weapons and rumors of underground activity in Germany.

The broadcast said Germans possessing arms or explosives after July 15 would be sentenced to death or forced into labor battalions.

CANADIAN TROOPS MOVED AFTER RIOT

ALDERSHOT, Eng., July 6. — (AP) Approximately 2,500 Canadian soldiers were moved today from Aldershot to an undisclosed destination, and civilians in this southern British town braced themselves against a possible third night of rioting.

More than 100 Canadians had been taken in custody after two nights of vandalism blamed on troops protesting at delay in being returned home.

The police station in Union street, along which window-smashing soldiers had surged, was converted into a miniature barracks. Reinforcements were assembled in the building and a large number of military police gathered in its walled yard.

Not a pane of glass remained in buildings on Union street.

Canadian Military headquarters announced the town would be cleared of remaining troops tomorrow.

CANADIAN TROOP RIOTERS ARRESTED

Aldershot, England, July 6 (A. P.).—More than 100 soldiers were taken into custody today and a heavy guard was placed in this town, where Canadian troops have smashed windows in downtown stores two nights in a row in protest at delays in being sent home.

Where sufficient warrants, the soldiers will be charged and court-martialed, Canadian military authorities declared.

Military headquarters said the town would be cleared of troops as soon as possible.

Approximately 2,500 soldiers will be moved to embarkation ports immediately, another 500 tomorrow and the remaining 1,600 will be transferred to outlying depots.

The business district is littered with shattered glass and debris.

9TH AIR FORCE TO FIGHT JAPS

Flyers Coming Home on Their Way to Pacific.

Paris, July 6 (A. P.).—Mass redeployment of the United States Ninth Air Force to the Pacific via the United States started today when 5,612 men left the Reims assembly area for Le Havre to embark.

In the shipment were the Fiftieth and 358 Fighter Groups plus aviation, ordinance, medical, supply and operations units. Bombardment crews are expected to fly their B-26 Invaders home.

The Fiftieth (Skymasters) Fighter Group had the first air cover outfit over the Normandy beaches on D day. It scored its greatest knockout at Bad Aibling Airdrome near Munich where it destroyed ninety-eight grounded planes and damaged fifty-seven.

The 358th (Orange Tail) Group finished the war in Europe with a record of 4,000 enemy trucks, 200 armed vehicles, 300 planes, 3,000 railcars and 300 locomotives destroyed.

As the redeployment program gathered speed, supreme headquarters announced that the 30th Infantry Division was scheduled to arrive at Camp Oklahoma City, near Sissone, France, on July 10, for shipment home. The division fought at St. Lo, Avranches, Aachen, the Ardennes and in the breakthrough to the Elbe.

The Fifth Infantry Division, oldest in the European theater, left Camp St. Louis, near Mourmelon, yesterday en route to Le Havre to embark. The Fifth Division went overseas almost four years ago, garrisoning Iceland in September of 1941.

Developments by divisions included:

44th Infantry—Three ship loads shuttled to United Kingdom for immediate transhipment home; rest embarking today from Le Havre.

30th Infantry—Scheduled to arrive at Camp Oklahoma City near Sissone July 10 on way home.

28th Infantry—Advance units arrived at Reims assembly area.

De Gaulle Coming To U.S. In August To Visit Truman

Paris, July 6 (AP)—The French Government announced today that Gen. Charles de Gaulle would go to Washington in August for conferences with President Truman.

Responsible quarters indicated problems affecting France both in Europe and overseas would be the subject of the talks.

De Gaulle's office said he had accepted a formal invitation from Truman.

[There was no immediate comment at the White House in Washington.]

After Big 3 Conference

Since the meeting will come after the Big Three conference in Potsdam, French Government circles assumed that decisions taken there would form the basis for de Gaulle's discussions.

It was believed here the three principal topics would be French economic problems in relation to Germany, French participation in the Pacific war and questions arising from Franco-American controls in Germany.

It also was considered likely that France's difficulties in Syria and Lebanon might be brought under examination.

RAPE STORY UNSUPPORTED

6th Army Group Says Stuttgart Inquiry Finds No Basis for It

PARIS, July 6 (AP)—Sixth Army Group headquarters said today that an investigation found no basis in fact to a story related in the United States Senate that French Senegalese troops locked 5,000 German girls in a Stuttgart subway and raped them.

Senator James O. Eastland, Democrat, of Mississippi, told the Senate the incident had been reported by American officers.

The Sixth Army Group statement said "all United States liaison officers with the French Army Corps and lower units which could have been in or near that city at any time have submitted written reports to this headquarters that, to their knowledge and belief, incidents such as alleged did not take place."

French Honor 6 Brigadiers

PARIS, July 6 (AP)—Six American Brigadier Generals and other air force officers were decorated today by the French Government. Among those listed were:

Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre With Palm—Brig. Gen. Myron R. Wood of Washington, D. C., Commander of the 9th Air Service Command; Brig. Gen. Richard E. Nugent of Garden City, Long Island, N. Y., Commander of the 29th Tactical Air Command; Brig. Gen. Edward N. Backus of Orlando, Fla., Commander of the 97th Bombardment Wing; Brig. Gen. James W. McCauley of Shreveport, La., Commander of the 7th Fighter Wing, and Big. Gen. Ned Schramm of St. Petersburg, Fla., Commander of the 71st Fighter Wing.

DE GAULLE ACCEPTS

Paris, July 6 (A. P.).—Gen. de Gaulle's headquarters announced today he has accepted an invitation from President Truman to visit Washington next month.

In Washington there was no immediate White House comment.

DENY LEOPOLD HELD PRISONER IN AUSTRIA

BRUSSELS, July 6 — (AP) The Supreme Allied Headquarters mission in Brussels today denied a charge printed by the pro-Leopold newspaper La Libre Belgigue that King Leopold III was being held a prisoner in Austria by U. S. troops.

The mission acknowledged that an order for the Belgian monarch's detention may have been issued by some American subzordinate, but said that, if such was the case, it was unauthorized and in error.

Meanwhile Premier Achille Van Acker flew to St. Wolfgang, Austria, with a group of government officials for his fourth series of conferences with Leopold. He was believed to have gone to renew pressure for the King's abdication.

"The American guard at St. Wolfgang," where Leopold now is staying at a villa, "is not a guard of honor, but just a plain guard," La Libre Belgigue said, adding that Leopold was held as a "prisoner" at the instigation of Van Acker's resigned government.

The paper said that Belgian officials going to see Leopold "are stopped at checkpoints every 300 yards."

GIs Accused of Holding Leopold as Prisoner

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, July 6.—La Libre Belgique, pro-Leopold newspaper, asserted today American troops were holding King Leopold II a prisoner in the Austrian Alps at the instigation of the resigned government of Achille Van Acker, Socialist Premier.

The newspaper said the American guard at the King's ornate villa at St. Wolfgang "is not a guard of honor, but just a plain guard."

"Belgian officials who have gone there are stopped at check-points every 300 yards," the newspaper said.

"American officers make no mystery of these measures."

It was expected Van Acker or the public prosecutor, M. Cornil, or both, would fly to St. Wolfgang tomorrow for a showdown on whether Leopold will abdicate.

SEES KING LEOPOLD ABOUT ABDICATION

Brussels, July 6 (A. P.).—Former Premier Achille Van Acker flew to St. Wolfgang, Austria today with a group of Government officials for his fourth series of conferences with King Leopold.

Van Acker resigned recently in protest to Leopold's intention to return to the throne. It was believed that Van Acker had gone to the King's Bavarian villa to renew pressure for the monarch's abdication.

Confusion and contradiction mounted here following an attack by the pro-Leopold newspaper La Libre Belgique on Supreme Allied Headquarters and the Belgian Government, charging Leopold was being held prisoner.

The SHAEF mission to Brussels denied the allegation but acknowledged there may have been an order for Leopold's detention issued by some American subordinate but that this was unauthorized and in error.

U.S. FORCES SEIZE HUGE NAZI PLANT, SPY IN CUSTODY

WHITEHEAD

HOESCHT, Germany, July 6. — (AP) The man who headed the espionage activities of the great I. G. Farbenindustrie was in military custody today as the Army completed seizure of the management, assets and plants of the organization in the American zone of occupied Germany.

Records of the United States Group Control Council listed him as Dr. Max Ilgner, 47, an ardent Nazi.

Ilgner and Dr. Herman Schmitt, principal director of Farbenindustrie, were held in Frankfort for questioning about the intricate affairs of the industry whose war-making powers the American group has branded as a "major threat to the peace and the security of the postwar world."

Ilgner was the head of Farbenindustrie's central financial administration known as Zefi, a contraction of Zentralfinanz-Verwaltung, which handled the industry's financial transactions and controlled its foreign currency credits.

"As head of Zefi, Ilgner procured foreign currency which the Reich required in its dealings throughout the world," said Col. Edwin S. Pillsbury, of Berkeley, Calif., who directed the seizure of the 24 Farben plants in the American zone late yesterday.

"We know that Farben was the largest source of foreign currency which the Nazi's had," the colonel said.

Was Active Agent

Pillsbury said that his office had information showing that Farbenindustrie, through Ilgner's agents, carried on industrial espionage throughout the world and that Ilgner himself was one of the most active agents.

He said that American investigators had discovered that Ilgner made many trips to the Far East, to China, India and other oriental countries in 1934 and 1935 and that he visited South and Central American countries in 1936 and in later years.

"We also have information that there were Nazi agents on the Farben payroll posing as salesmen," he asserted. "Their real jobs were to spread propaganda and carry out other espionage for the Nazis."

Seize Plant Quietly

Pillsbury also reported that the seizure of the giant Farben plant at Hoescht was carried out so quietly that employes living in the town did not know what had happened until they reported for work this morning and found guards stationed at the gates to permit the entry of only a few carefully selected personnel.

There were no reports from troops occupying any of the 24 plants of any attempts at sabotage nor were there any reported cases of resistance.

"The takeover was carried out smoothly and efficiently," Pillsbury said. "There was no need to use force in any seizure."

He said that Lt. Col. Robert Parcival, of Richmond, Va., permitted a few hundred workers to return at Hoescht to maintain the operating efficiency, of the plant and to produce essential pharmaceutical items for the army, such as insulin, hydrochloric acid, sulphuric acid, ether and methyl chlorine.

Other plants also were given permission to turn out certain supplies for the Army medical corps, ordnance and quartermaster departments, he said.

At Darmstadt, Capt. Charles Smith of 146 Detroit street, San Francisco Calif., took over a synthetic gasoline and diesel oil plant and said that he expected to be producing 63 000 gallons of gasoline and 100,000 gallons of diesel oil a month within a few days.

Pillsbury said that a uniform wage scale of 65 reichsmarks per week had been established temporarily for all workers, regardless of what they may have earned previously.

U.S. RULE DELAYED IN ONE BERLIN AREA

Contradictory Orders Blamed In Schoeneberg District

DELUCE

Berlin, July 6 (AP)—An American officer said today that contradictory orders from "high levels" are delaying American Military Government representatives from taking over control of the assigned central area of Berlin, currently occupied by Soviet forces.

The Red Flag and the Stars and Stripes both fly over Schoeneberg district adjoining the Tiergarten, but two Soviet lieutenant colonels still are issuing orders to their appointed burgomeister, Ferdinand Greandorf, a pre-Hitler member of the Communist party.

Friendly Relations

Lieut. Col. [illegible] Maginnis, of Worcester, Mass., received instructions to become the military officer of the Schoeneberg district two nights ago. His detachment occupied offices in the bomb-damaged Rathaus yesterday but moved today to a near-by apartment building.

"My Soviet opposite number told me he had been ordered not to withdraw from Schoeneberg," Colonel Maginnis said. "I told him I had been ordered to come in. We have established most friendly relations between us while waiting for higher levels to clear up the matter."

Roles Of Observers

Thousands of Soviet and American troops are billeted in the district, which had a wartime population of 300,000.

It is one of the hardest hit districts of Berlin and like other areas of the city faced food, fuel and transportation problems. American military authorities estimate 50 per cent of its buildings have been destroyed, 25 per cent damaged seriously and 25 per cent left habitable.

Until the Russians leave the district, however, Colonel Maginnis said the American Military Government representatives were confined to the roles of observers.

Questioning Later Slated

He said that apparently Russian investigators had carefully screened the present civil administration, but that the Americans intended to do their own questioning later.

Whether Burgomeister Greandorf will be retained by American officers is yet to be determined, observers pointed out. If he is, they said, he will be the first Communist to hold such a post in any American-ruled area of Germany.

To date the correspondents have received no official announcement of the exact boundaries to be occupied here by any power.

Veteran and Wife Reunited in Berlin

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 6.—An American sergeant who fought under two flags against Germany was reunited in Berlin today with his wife, whom he left behind five years ago when he volunteered for the British navy.

Edgar L. Clark, San Francisco, Calif., a front correspondent for the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes, and Katherine L. Clark, a news broadcaster for Station WCAU in Philadelphia, found each other after he got word only last Sunday in Paris that she had arrived in Europe.

He set out to join her after cutting through red tape and surmounting international frontiers in record time.

Sgt. Clark, wearer of the Croix de Guerre with palm, the Bronze Star and Purple Heart, is scheduled to be released from the Army soon.

Almost the first words he spoke to his wife were, "Hows Sandy?" Sandy is their 11-year-old son, whom he last saw in 1940.

Sgt. Clark was a reporter for the New York Journal-American. He is a nativ eof Westfield, N. J., while his wife was born in Fort Totten, N. Y.

SAVED PATCH'S LIFE

Seventh Army Headquarters, Germany, July 6 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. Alexander M. Patch, former commander of the Seventh Army, narrowly escaped death on April 18 when the Cub liaison plane in which he was flying was attacked by a German fighter, it was disclosed today.

Patch now is in the United States. His adventure came to light with the award of the Distinguished Flying Cross to his pilot, Sergt. Robert Stretton of Oak Park, Ill. The citation mentioned the pilot's skill in taking the unarmed plane to tree levels and threading down valleys in dodging a Messerschmitt-109.

SWASTIKAS WORN TO MARK DISGRACE

Vienna, (A. P.).—Delayed.—The Nazi swastika still is worn by the Germans—but it's a badge of disgrace now. Germans and collaborators arrested by the occupation troops in northern Czecho-Slovakia have been formed into labor battalions to help mend the roads and repaid buildings. To distinguish them, each wears a swastika band.

SALZBURG SETS FESTIVAL

Mozart Opera Feature of Three-Week Program Starting Aug. 12

SALZBURG, Austria, July 6 (AP)—This former center of the musical world will take a first step toward regaining its cultural prestige with a three-week summer festival, starting Aug. 12.

Baron Heinrich de Puthone said that the festival would be built around six performances of Mozart's opera, "The Abduction From the Seraglio." Five symphony concerts and hour-long choral programs will be presented in Kollegien Church. There will be six serenades in the Festspielhaus courtyard.

Capt. George Selke is cultural director for the regional military government here while waiting to go to Vienna with a British-American task force. Captain Selke is on leave from St. Cloud (Minn.) State Teachers College.

Austria's Currency Firm

Miss Dulles Says Black Market Is Not Extensive There

SALZBURG, Austria, July 6 (AP).—About a dozen women, including Miss Eleanor Dulles, economist, and a group of secretaries, are waiting here to go into Vienna with an American and British occupation force.

Miss Dulles, a sister of John Foster Dulles, American foreign affairs expert, said a two-week study of Austrian finances left her optimistic about the current economic situation.

"So far," she said, "there has been no extensive black market discovered in our occupation area. There was no frantic rushing around bidding for goods or currency. The old German mark seems to be holding at anywhere from 15 to 30 cents on a commodity-buying basis, as against the 10-cent value we placed on the specially printed occupation mark for use of our troops."

CHIANG CONFIDENT AS CHINA STARTS 9TH YEAR OF WAR

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Saturday, July 7. —(AP) Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, marking the start of China's ninth year of war, declared today "we anticipate an Allied landing on Japan," and pledged that China would bear the main burden of battle against the enemy on the Chinese mainland.

A Chinese Army spokesman asserted that China's armies were turning from the defensive to the offensive, and that the enemy was changing from offensive to defensive tactics.

He said the eight years of fighting—began July 7, 1937 with the Marco Polo bridge "incident" near Peiping—had cost the Chinese 3,178,063 casualties and the Japanese 2,521,737, including 1,179,774 enemy killed, 1,315,670 wounded, and 23,293 captured. He listed Chinese casualties as 1,310,224 killed, 1,752,591 wounded, and 115,248 captured.

Chiang in his anniversary message urged his people to redouble their efforts for final victory, asserting "our first duty is to hasten the enemy's collapse and unconditional surrender."

But he warned, too, that the Japanese would become more desperate as the war approached an end.

Recapture Pingsiang

The Chinese high command announced recapture of Pingsiang, 11 miles from the Indochina border town of Dong Dang, and said the Japanese "fled toward French Indo China with our troops at their heels." Loss of Pingsiang was announced a week ago by the Chinese.

The army spokesman, Maj.-Gen. Kuo Chi-Chih, said the Japanese retreating up China's east "invasion coast" now were in Chenghsien, 60 miles southwest of Hangchow and 120 south of Shanghai. Chinese forces, he said, are only a few miles from Chenghsien, and all points south of the coastal highway town have been retaken, including Linhai, Tientai, and Sinchang.

Chenghsien is 110 airline miles north of Wenchow, abandoned by the enemy June 18, and 260 airline miles north of Foochow, which the Japanese evacuated May 19 in the early stages of their long strategic withdrawal.

Explains Tactics

Kuo also explained Chinese tactics in the area 140 miles northeast of Canton, where the high command eight days ago announced recapture of Kiennan, Lungnan, and Tingnan, all in southwestern Kiangsi province.

Kuo said a Chinese retreat from those centers earlier had frustrated a Japanese plan to establish communications along the Kan river to the Yangtze through Nanchang, which the Japanese had intended as an alternative line of retreat for their forces in the Hong Kong and Canton areas in the event the Chinese punctured the enemy-held Canton-Hankow railroad corridor.

The high command said mopping up operations continued north of Liuchow, recaptured city where the U. S. 14th Air Force once had a base. Chinese troops moving up the highway toward Kweilin, site of another abandoned U. S. air base, reached a point 12 1-2 miles northeast of Liuchow, it edded.

More than 350 miles to the northeast, fighting was reported continuing six miles east of the former American air bases at Kanhsien.

The Japanese are showing much activity in their defense plans, said General Kuo, formerly acting military attache in Washington.

He reported the Japanese had divided China into five defense areas—one around Shanghai, a second around Hankow, a third in North China, a fourth in Hunan and Kwanksi provinces, and, the fifth in south China.

ChiangPredicts Allied Landing On Japan Itself

Urges Nation, on Eighth Anniversary, to Hasten Collapse of the Enemy

CHUNGKING, July 7 (Saturday) (AP).—President Chiang Kai-shek said today: "We anticipate an Allied landing on Japan."

In a "Double Seventh" message marking the anniversary of the beginning of the Japanese-Chinese War July 7, 1937, he reiterated pledges that China would carry the main burden of continental operations against the Japanese, and exhorted the nation to redouble its efforts for final victory.

"Our first duty is to hasten the enemy's collapse and unconditional surrender," he said. He warned that the nearer the end of the war the more desperate Japan would become.

A Chinese Army spokesman, Major General Kuo Chi-chih, asserted that China's armies were turning from the defensive to the offensive and that the enemy was changing from the offensive to the defensive. He said the Japanese had divided occupied China into five defense areas—around Shanghai, around Hankow, in North China, in Hunan and Kwangsi Provinces and in South China.

General Kuo said the eight years of fighting had cost the Chinese 3,178,063 casualties and the Japanese 2,521,737, including 1,179,744 Japanese killed, 1,318,670 wounded and 23,293 captured. He gave Chinese casualties as 1,310,224 killed, 1,752,591 wounded and 115,248 captured.

The Chinese high command announced recapture of Pingsiang, eleven miles from the French Indo-China border town of Dong Dang, and said the Japanese "fled toward Indo-China with our troops at their heels." Loss of Pingsiang was announced a week ago by the Chinese.

The high command said mopping-up operations were continuing north of Liuchow, recaptured city where the United States 14th Air Force had a base. Chinese troops moving up the highway toward Kweilin, site of another abandoned American air base, reached a point twelve and a half miles northeast of Liuchow, it added.

The Army spokesman said the Japanese retreating up the east coast of China were in Chengsien, sixty miles southeast of Hangchow and 120 miles south of Shanghai. Chinese forces, he said, are only a few miles from Chenghsien, and all points south of that coastal highway town have been retaken, including Linhai, Tientai and Sinchang.

their beachhead on the Sittang river bend ... headquarters announced tonight.

The heaviest attack was launched from the east bank Tuesday night and was repulsed in fighting which lasted all the next day, it said, adding that at least 159 enemy dead were counted.

The Japanese also attacked strongly 24 miles east of Toungee where a road runs through the hills, but were beaten back, the communique said.

Enemy forces trapped in western Burma, and harried by military action, hunger and disease, are striving desperately to rejoin the large east Burma force across the Sittang bend, headquarters said.

Moslems May Reverse Old Stand At Simla

Simla, India, July 6 (AP) — The powerful Moslem League may reverse the attitude expressed by its president, Mohammed Ali Jinnah, and come out in favor of participation in a new national government for India, the League's working committee indicated tonight.

League officials announced that the committee would continue its sessions and prospects apparently were that the conferees might drop opposition advanced by Jinnah and submit nominees to the proposed Indian governing council instead.

Informed observers said that such a step virtually would commit the League to participation in the new government recommended by British Viceroy Lord Wavell.

Two minority groups, the Sikhs and the Nationalists, submitted lists of nominees during the day, and it was understood that the India Congress party would submit its list tomorrow.

Defends Strategy

Reviewing the Okinawa campaign, where he served as commander of the Third Amphibious Corps, he defended the strategy employed in the closing phase.

Asked his opinion of criticism in the United States because no subsidiary landing was attempted behind the enemy lines, Geiger said he had proposed such a landing; the proposal was studied by the highest officers; the decision was that the disposition of the troops and the shipping available made such a landing impractical.

"I think the proper course to take was the one we took," Geiger added.

As the campaign closed, the Japanese were fighting among themselves on Okinawa, Geiger said, pointing out that the surrender of 7,500 combat troops and 3,400 labor troops showed the "weakening Japanese morale."

"At the beginning of the war, we thought they were 'super men,'" Geiger continued, "but at heart they have an inferiority complex. They haven't near the stamina we have and haven't the brains we have got.

"When they got into bad straits, they kill themselves."

Geiger looks for resistance by civilians, including women, when Japan is invaded.

"They won't be any worry to us," Geiger said.

A number of women in uniform were found on Okinawa.

Asked if he thought Japanese industrialists would take over and sue for peace when they see their cities are being destroyed, he replied:

"The question is whether the industrialists will be able to get sufficient control. I believe they would have stopped it before now if they could."

Praises Cooperation

He praised the cooperation of all services on Okinawa and the superiority of their equipment. The Air Force was so efficient it was able to drop supplies by instrument without even seeing the troops.

Geiger said the Okinawa forces of the enemy comprised the 32nd Japanese army with two regular divisions, an independent mixed brigade, an independent regiment and six regiments of artillery.

He explained that the defenders were outwitted all around. They apparently had expected the Americans to land either north of Naha or on the southern tip. The landing was made on the west coast.

Geiger said the Japanese obviously expected the Americans to push only far enough to take the airfields and establish a perimeter. The enemy then planned to deal heavy attacks.

"I assume the Marines will continue until we get to Japan," their commander said.

"I hope so."

GEN. BUCKNER HONORED

DSC Is Awarded to Commander, Slain on Okinawa

HONOLULU, July 6 (AP)—The Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action has been awarded posthumously to Lieut. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, it was announced today by Lieut. Gen. Robert C. Richardson Jr., commander of mid-Pacific Army Forces.

The award was made for action which resulted in General Buckner's death by Japanese artillery fire on June 18 near Mezato, Okinawa.

The citation said his "outstanding leadership, tactical genius and personal courage" inspired his command and brought final victory on Okinawa.

PERON ADMONISHED BY BRADEN, REPORT

El Diario Says "Serious Incident" Concerned Writers

Montevideo, July 6 (AP)—The newspaper El Diario said today that Spruille Braden, United States Ambassador to Argentina, had told Vice President Colonel Juan Perón that if Argentina "decided to attack the integrity or the freedom of North American correspondents it would have to abide by the consequences."

The paper, quoting a "very good source," said the "serious incident" showed Braden was acting "according to extremely severe instructions, perhaps emanating from the new Secretary of State Byrnes."

Publication of the alleged "incident" followed a series of anonymous telephoned threats to United States correspondents in Argentina and assurances from the Government that the newsmen would be protected.

"Banging The Door"

El Diario said that Braden went to see Colonel Perón on July 3 over the head of the Foreign Minister and told the Vice President that "the Argentine Government might take whatever measures it deemed convenient with the Argentine newspaper men, but that if it decided to attack the integrity or the freedom of North American correspondents it would have to abide by the consequences."

The paper said that Colonel Perón was "irritated," and asked Braden "in behalf of whom he was speaking in such a way."

El Diario said the Ambassador answered that he was "speaking in the name of the Government of the people of the United States," and that he left, "banging the door after him."

Whaler Coming From Antarctic

CAPETOWN, July 6 (AP).—The first whaling vessel to brave the Antarctic since the war halted operations in 1940 was headed for the United States today with 145,000 barrels of whale oil. The ship, the 14,000-ton Norwegian whaler Sir James Clark Ross, has been at sea since last October, when she set out on a secret expedition. Her cargo will be divided between the United States and Europe.

SEE PLANE GROUP ON RAFT IN OCEAN

Halifax, N. S., July 6 (A. P.).—Newfoundland-based searchers hunting for an R. A. F. Liberator missing on a flight from Montreal to London have sighted a party of survivors on a rubber raft, air force officials announced today.

The plane carried Sir William Malkin, legal adviser to the British Foreign Office, and other members of the Foreign Office staff returning home from the San Francisco conference. There were fifteen passengers on the plane, which disappeared Monday.

Three other members of the Foreign Office staff were on the plane, which was returning personnel from the San Francisco conference.

Three Americans were among the six crew members. They are Capt. G. P. Evans, pilot; Capt. J. W. Ross, co-pilot, and G. B. Swaney, flight engineer. The Air Ministry said air and sea rescue ships and long-range aircraft are continuing the search along lanes of the charted course.

Evans is from Marlboro, Mass.; Ross is a native of Portland, Ore.; and Swaney is a native of Dayton, Ohio. Wives of all three Americans now are living in Canada.

Meat Rationing To Be Resumed In Canada Soon

Mackenzie King Cites Need in Europe in Lifting 18 Months' Suspension

OTTAWA, July 6 (AP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today that rationing of meat in Canada, suspended eighteen months ago, would be resumed "shortly for the purpose of reducing consumption and making available more supplies for relief in Europe.

The Prime Minister did not set a specific date for resumption of rationing, but the Prices Board (Canadian O. P. A.) will immediately impose control over all commercial slaughtering.

Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, said Canadians would get about one and one-third pounds a person a week. Meatless days on Tuesdays and Fridays will be enforced in restaurants beginning Friday, July 13.

The new ration will represent a reduction in the allowance of ordinary meats a person, compared with the previous period of meat rationing.

In that period each consumer could use two coupons a week of varying values depending on the type of meat purchases. These values ranged from one-half pound a coupon for smoked and cooked meats to 1¼ pounds for such cuts as blade roasts of beef and a number of lamb and veal cuts with the bone left in.

Poultry will not be covered by the new ration system. All meats will be included. Ratino tokens will be introduced which may be used to make purchases of small amounts of perishable meats.

Declaring that the need for increased supplies of meat for Europe was "very urgent," the Prime Minister urged Canadians to begin voluntarily reducing their consumption at once to help the starving peoples of the continent.

King said that control of slaughtering would put the Prices Board in a position to stamp out black market operations, which had appeared in this country recently due to heavy export demands.

President Truman had said he had a man in mind for the post but would not name him until he returned from the Big Three conference in Germany several weeks from now.

Apparently Mr. Truman changed his mind and settled the matter today. A White House aide made the announcement, disclosing that the actual appointment will be made on the return from Europe.

Morgenthau Stays on Job

That means Morgenthau will continue in the post for the time being, as announced yesterday.

Vinson, 55 years old, has had a richness of governmental experience few men ever achieve. He has been an ace in the legislative, judicial, and executive branches of the government, all within the space of a few years.

Now he is director of war mobilization and reconversion. As soon as it became known that he is the man who will take over Morgenthau's job as chief of the nation's financial functions, observers were quick to wonder whether he will take into the treasury with him his present task of "war mobilizer."

The White House gave no indication as to this but some thought it was logical for the whole field of taxes, public debt management, and reconversion to be consolidated under the big, shaggy man whose rise from office to office has been so rapid.

Familiar with Taxes

Vinson is not merely familiar with taxes—he is known as an honest-to-goodness tax authority.

For years, as chairman of the tax subcommittee of the House Ways and Means committee, he whipped together tax bills, and led the fight to put them into law.

He served 14 years in the House, in most cases battling down the line for President Roosevelt's ideas.

In 1938 he was appointed by Roosevelt as an associate justice of the U. S. court of appeals, District of Columbia. He served for five years and then was drafted into the executive branch in the mammoth assignment of [illegible] the line against rising prices that threatened to twist the nation's economy into the spiral of inflation. As director of economic stabilization, Vinson was tough. He built a reputation for resisting pressures.

Early this year, when President Roosevelt ousted Jesse Jones as Federal Loan administrator and Congress refused to permit Henry Wallace to fill the job, Mr. Roosevelt's next choice was Vinson. Hardly had the Kentuckian gotten started with a study of his powers when James F. Byrnes resigned as war mobilization director and Vinson was called to succeed him there.

Opposed Reductions

Interesting to those who want to know the shape of taxes to come is the fact that Vinson has been outspoken against any reductions in tax rates until the end of the Japanese war. In this, Vinson, Truman and Morgenthau were thoroughly agreed.

Meantime, it was learned that Morgenthau turned in his resignation because he had become weary of frequent rumors that he was about to be replaced. From a person who should know the facts but who cannot be identified came this account:

Morgenthau took the position that he could only carry on his duties in an atmosphere of confidence and, in view of the recurring rumors, he went to President Truman yesterday and requested assurances as to his status.

The fact that he resigned soon afterward was taken as evidence that he was not satisfied with the reply he got from the President. The resignation came as a surprise to even his closest colleagues.

President Truman still left the capital guessing today about his choice to fill another major government vacancy, created yesterday by the resignation as Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts.

The names of Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Federal Circuit Judge Sam D. Bratton of Albuquerque, N. M., and others bobbed up in the speculation.

Friends of Barkley, the Senate majority leader, expressed belief he would like a post on the high tribunal.

They have frequently predicted in the past that he might one day receive such an appointment.

STONE MAY ALSO LEAVE COURT

Roberts's Resignation Starts Report on Chief Justice.

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—Owen J. Roberts's surprise resignation from the Supreme Court spurred speculation today that he may be followed soon by Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone, oldest man on the tribunal.

President Truman announced Roberts's resignation late yesterday, to become effective at the end of this month. He has served on the high court fifteen years, becoming its leading dissenter. He turned in a new high total of fifty-one dissents in the court term just ended.

On his seventieth birthday last May 2, friends said that he had given no thought to leaving the bench.

With yesterday's sudden resignation, persons close to the court recalled that Stone at 72 has been eligible since 1942 to retire at full pay of $20,500.

Stone has served on the bench twenty years.

With Roberts gone, Stone will be left to preside over a frequently disagreeing court having seven members appointed by President Roosevelt. Stone was appointed by President Coolidge, but President Roosevelt elevated him to Chief Justice. Roberts was appointed by President Hoover.

President Truman said that he had no successor in mind for Roberts.

Friends of Senate Majority Leader Barkley (D.-Ky.) said they believed he would like a Supreme Court place.

Senate colleagues also mentioned as possible appointees Senator Hatch (D.-N. M.) and former Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana, now on the Seventh Federal Circuit Court. Other sources say Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson is President Truman's choice for Chief Justice, if Stone retires.

Henry Morgenthau Jr. will step down as Secretary of the Treasury when President Truman returns from the Big Three meeting in Berlin. At that time Mr. Truman will name a successor.

The Chief Executive told reporters yesterday he has a man in mind for his sixth Cabinet appointment, but he wouldn't say who he is. War Mobilizer Fred Vinson topped the list of names heard in speculation today.

Morgenthau has been Secretary longer than any one except Albert Gallatin, who served twelve years, under Presidents Jefferson and Madison.

TRUMAN WARNS AGAINST 'MISUSE' OF FEDERAL FUNDS

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP) President Truman officially alerted his administration today against any "misuse" of the government's multi-billion dollar funds.

The White House offered no explanation for the surprise memorandum which Mr. Truman sent all government bureau heads, men directly or indirectly responsible for the spending of one of the biggest government budgets in history.

The order, coming shortly after the start of a new fiscal year, directed agency heads to take "vigorous disciplinary action" on any evidence of misuse or careless handling of federal funds.

The President expressed satisfaction that there has been "so little evidence of abuse" and told his official family that record must be preserved.

The text of the memorandum which went to the heads of all departments and agencies:

"Throughout the war period I have been concerned with the necessity of extreme care in the handling of government funds, especially when expenditures are at such unprecedented levels and so many officials are charged with disbursement of these funds. I am certain that you share my satisfaction that there has been so little evidence of abuse, and that you also share my strong desire that this good record shall be preserved.

"Therefore, I am asking you and the other department and agency heads to express and underscore my determination to insure the most exacting review of expenditures in every instance where there is the slightest ground to suspect either misuse or careless handling of government funds. Any such instance should be investigated promptly and, where appropriate, a vigorous disciplinary action should be invoked. I trust that you will transmit this message to your staff and supplement it with appropriate instructions of your own."

TRUMAN SIGNS POSTAL PAY RISE

First Salary Increases Since 1925 Are Approved

JUL 7 1945

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—President Truman signed legislation today giving postal employees their first general pay raise since 1925. For regular postal employees in so-called automatic grades, the legislation provides a 20 per cent increase in base pay, whichever is the lesser. In no event will the raise be less than $300.

It provides for overtime payment at the rate of time and one-half for time worked in excess of a basic 260-workdays annually, the payment to be in money or compensating time off, and for a differential of 10 per cent for employees who work regularly at night. The overtime provisions do not apply to supervisors, rural carriers, traveling mechanics and some employees of the railway mail service and the air mail service.

It changes the salary rates of postmasters by putting them on a basis of 100 per cent of the gross receipts of their offices instead of the present 85 and 90 per cent. Postmasters in first-class offices, except those receiving $6,000 or more, will get increases of from $300 to $400 annually; second class, $400 to $600; third class, $300, and fourth class, 20 per cent of their present base, which varies.

Clerks and Carriers.

Clerks in third-class offices working not less than forty hours weekly are placed in automatic grades ranging from $1,200 to $1,700. The base pay of most postmasters and supervisory workers in their offices varies according to the postal revenues of the offices.

The legislation provides eleven grades of classification for city-delivery carriers, clerks and employees with work comparable to that of carriers and clerks. The pay of the grades ranges from $1,700 to $2,700, depending on type and length of service.

For carriers in the rural delivery service, who had been paid on a mileage basis, the legislation provides fourteen pay grades, with automatic promotions for meritorious service. It provides for a pay scale of $3,000 to $6,000 for inspectors, who are paid on a scale ranging from $2,600 to $5,400.

All ordinary postal employees, including clerks, are eligible for the overtime pay provisions of the legislation, though some designated supervisory workers are not. While the law excludes some railway mail and air mail service workers from the overtime sections, the House Post Office Committee, which drafted the legislation, said that ordinary clerks in those services are eligible.

House Votes Tax Change As Aid to Reconversion

Would Improve Cash Position of Business by Five Billions.

WASHINGTON, July 6 — (AP) Legislation revising tax laws to improve the cash position of business by $5,500,000,000 in the reconversion period won speedy House approval 246 to 91 today and was forwarded to the Senate.

JUL 7 1945

The House rejected 120 to 95 an effort to reduce excess profits taxes by $235,000,000 this year through a retroactive increase in the exemption under this levy. The boosted exemption will become effective next January.

Approval of the bill came after turbulent debate, in which opponents shouted that it "cuts a melon" of millions of dollars for some railroads and "benefits those who made excess profits out of the war."

Proponents argued that the five-point tax revision is needed to hasten reconversion — especially small business—and thereby aid employment. They said it makes very little change in ultimate tax liabilities of corporations.

Individual Tax Stands

No change is made in individual or corporation income tax burdens.

Specifically the five-point measure provides:

1. Increase in the excess-profits tax specific exemption from $10,000 to $25,000, effective beginning with the 1946 tax year. Tax experts estimated this would reduce excess profits obligations by $160,000,000 in 1946.

2. That the postwar credit of 10 per cent of the 95 per cent excess-profits tax be taken currently with respect to the tax liability of 1944 and subsequent years, reducing tax payments in 1945 on 1944 liabilities by about $830,000,000 and in 1946 with respect to 1945 liabilities by about $710,000,000.

3. Advance to Jan. 1, 1946, the maturity date of outstanding excess-profits tax postwar refund bonds, hastening the availability of $1,300,000,000 that otherwise would be paid from two to four years after the end of the war.

4. Speed up refunds resulting from carry-backs of net operating losses and of unused excess-profits credite. Under present law these refunds, amounting to $1,000,000,000, would be paid over an indefinite period from 1947 to 1950.

5. Hasten refunds resulting from the recomputation of deductions for amortization of emergency facilities, affecting perhaps $1,700,000,000 otherwise to be refunded over an indefinite period.

The big battles pivoted on the proposal by Rep. Slaughter (D-Mo) to make the excess profits exemption boost retroactive, and a provision that would let a reorganized railroad, operating under a new charter, retain the tax base which its preceding corporation had.

Chairman Sabath (D-Ill), of the Rules committee, declared that under the railroad provision the Wabash railroad would benefit by $8,500,000 and Representative Eberharter (D-Pa) said "those who get the benefits are those who bought the railroads in at one-half or one-third their value; the old stockholders get nothing."

Representative Carlson (R-Kas), who sponsored the railroad provision, told the House "the government won't lose under this plan."

Representative McCormack (D-Mass), House Democratic leader, said "I am informed there is a nice steal in the bill for the railroads. Is that correct?"

"Yes," Sabath replied. "Most of the money goes to that poor Pennsylvania railroad which is always willing to grab anything in sight."

Railroad Amendment Blocked

But despite all the shouting, those who wanted to do something about the railroad provision were blocked. By the rules under which the bill came to the floor only one amendment was allowed. Slaughter got that spot with his unsuccessful move to make retroactive the $10,000 to $25,000 increase in the excess profits tax exemption.

Representative Knutson (R-Minn) senior Republican on the Ways and Means committee, disputed Sabath's statements about the railroad provision and said the Rules committee chairman had 'incorrect information."

Carlson said the railroad provision removes discrimination as between states, and declared:

"The provision gives the railroads that reorganize the same advantages in every state that they now have only in a very few states where they must reorganize under a new charter."

VETERANS' BILL GAINS APPROVAL

Measure Would Allow Servicemen to Work Without Joining Union.

WASHINGTON, July 6—(AP) The House Veterans committee today approved legislation permitting honorably discharged war veterans to work in closed or union shops without joining a union.

The legislation provides that no honorably discharged veteran "shall be required, as a condition of employment, to be or become a member of, or to maintain membership in, any labor organization, club, association, or other organization or, as a non-member thereof," to pay dues.

It gives veterans the right to obtain mandatory injunctions to require enforcement of the proposed law.

"The object of this bill," Chairman Rankin (D-Miss.) said, "is to give to our veterans the first freedom—that is, the freedom to work for their daily bread."

The measure, introduced several weeks ago by Rankin, is in the form of an amendment to the GI "Bill of Rights." Rankin said it was approved by the committee in executive session without a record vote.

No House action is expected before the summer recess, tentatively scheduled to start about mid-July.

There is no indication that it is part of administration leaders' program.

Justice Dept. to Concentrate On Black Markets, Clark Says

WASHINGTON, July 6—(AP) Attorney General Tom Clark announced tonight the Justice department will concentrate for the present on black markets, anti-trust violations, war fraud and tax evasions.

Asserting he has "intense feelings" on the subject of black markets, Clark, who took office June 30, declared that over-price dealings in everyday necessities such as gasoline, meat and clothing will receive first attention.

He disclosed in an address prepared for broadcast over the NBC that he has directed all U. S. attorneys "to double their efforts to put black marketeers in the penitentiary."

Clark promised to work closely with the Internal Revenue and Treasury departments to see "that all tax evaders are punished," adding that one evil of black markets is concentration of large sums of money which are not reported for taxation.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover sees eye to eye with him on these problems, he said, and "together we shall solve them."

Asserting that America obtained a late start in war production because of collusive control of markets, Clark said these "malpractices" will not again be permitted. He added that his department does not intend to allow reestablishment of the practice of alien business control "that crept on us after the last war."

American people and intelligent business leaders desire to preserve free enterprise, Clark continued, "and this means an end to selfish protection of the entrenched, an end to domination and extermination of the small to protect the advantages of the large, an end to the 'right' of dollars to stifle brains and incentive, an end to 'supernational' cartel conspiracies."

SEE MORAL DEFEAT FOR U.S. IN WARSAW

Chicago, July 6 (A. P.).—Charles Rozmarek, president of the Polish American Congress, said today that American recognition of what he called the "illegal communist-dominated Warsaw Government" would encourage Soviet Russia "to continue manufacturing governments for all countries."

The United States and Great Britain jointly recognize the reconstituted Warsaw Government last night as one step toward fulfillment of the Yalta Big Three agreements.

Rozmarek, whose organization claims to represent 6,000,000 Americans of Polish descent, declared in a statement that recognition represents a grave historical blunder and a moral defeat for all democracies. He continued: "Europe emancipated from the chains of Nazi slavery is being fastened with Russian nails to the cross of suffering with the assistance of American lend-lease. What is now taking place in Poland, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, Jugoslavia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Austria is only a preview of misfortunes in store for the world.

"We warn our Government that the course of appeasement we are now pursuing is paving the way for world chaos. If Russia is to decide what governments are to rule in Europe and Asia, then all democracies are doomed to an untimely end."

SENATORS ASSAIL MUNITIONS SNARLS

Some Lend-Lease Arms Ought to Be Recalled, Committee Says.

WASHINGTON, July 6—(AP) A Senate committee complained today of weak American representation abroad which it said was snarling up war surplus problems, lend-lease and other economic dealings.

The committee also suggested the desirability of maintaining permanent American Army and Navy bases "at some points in the European theater." It criticized what it called lack of "sensitivity" on the part of procurement agencies at home to changing munitions demands from the front.

The report was issued by the Senate war investigating committee on the basis of a report by a subcommittee headed by Senator Kilgore (D-WVa). Kilgore's group is just back from a visit to Europe.

Seven Specific Counts

The report set up seven specific counts in its criticism of this country's foreign representation, and had this to say on the general subject:

"The difficulties recited result from the failure of our government agencies abroad to obtain all the considerations we should have received in return for the huge contributions we have made in this war. Lack of a clearly established foreign policy over a very long period of years is a major contributing cause."

The seven specific counts:

1. Disposition of surpluses abroad in a manner not apt to bring the highest return or fill the greatest need. Coordination under a single agency recommended.

2. "American rights to fixed installations which we have erected abroad have not been clearly defined. It is essential that immediate and careful study be given to . . . future disposition."

3. Large quantities of captured goods and munitions not yet inventoried, with no plan for its disposal nor coordination with the Allies, particularly on the possibility of turning it to account against Japan.

4. "As a result of the impending evacuation of our troops in France and their occupation of Germany the Army has shown a disposition to have no further interest in the French economy, while it finds it necessary to strengthen the German transportation and industrial system in order to assure itself of proper supply in Germany. While this is a natural attitude on the part of the armed forces, it must be counteracted if we are to avoid a situation where our enemies fare better at our hands than our friends."

5. "The division of Germany into four zones of occupation has resulted up to this time in vesting the control of what has been a highly integrated nation into four wholly uncoordinated elements."

6. Lack of itemized invoices for reverse lend-lease services and goods, preventing reliable accounting.

7. Artificially fixed foreign exchange rates which the committee said have imposed a financial burden on American servicemen and also created problems in settlement of lend-lease accounts and disposal of surpluses; also great amounts of Axis currency and other profits in the hands of collaborators who served the enemy, with impounding made more difficult by delay.

370 Bases Abroad

On the point of foreign installations, the committee said disposition of 370 air bases and other facilities in Europe may hold the answer to "our future security and the prosperity of our international commerce."

Mentioning the possibility of Army and Navy need for European theater bases, the committee said:

"And now while we are still in a good bargaining position, negotiations could be engaged in with the countries involved for the rights to maintain them. Our international air commerce will find many of the airfields built for war air transport indispensable to any network of international air routes."

The committee called for recasting of the military procurement system under which it said armies short of artillery ammunition to fight the Germans received aerial bombs of types they did not want.

The shell shortage, the report said, was not the result of failure in factories, but of failure to order in time.

The committee held that arms lend-leased to our Allies still belong to the United States and failure to move for their recovery shows a "lack of vigor and attention to our interests." They are needed to fight Japan, the report said,

The committee suggested that trade concessions, transportation operating privileges, "or other less tangible concessions embodying some assurances of future peace" might be acceptable in lend-lease settlements.

Senators Urge Prompt Return Of Lend-Lease Arms to U. S.

Kilgore Investigating Board Says Weapons Are Needed for War in the Pacific—Lack of Jet Planes Is Decried.

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—The Senate War Investigating Committee demanded today prompt recovery of lend-lease arms from European Allies for use in the Pacific war. A report based on an overseas investigation by a sub-committee headed by Senator Kilgore (D.-W. Va.) said that "nothing has been done" along this line, nor toward concentrating captured German arms against the Japanese.

"The committee believes that all sources of supply for the Pacific war should be exploited to the maximum," the report stated, "and that existing stocks of armaments and supplies should be drawn upon first where possible, and certainly they should include captured enemy materiel."

Noting that legal title to lend-lease materials rests with the United States and that master lend-lease agreements specifically provide for their return, the committee said that failure to act constitutes "a lack of vigor and attention to our interests."

Urgency of Situation.

The report viewed the situation as one of "extreme urgency and serious implications," saying that it is increasing war costs and delaying reconversion by causing "manufacture of items identical with those now idle in the hands of our Allies." Also, the committee said, there always is the possibility that Allies allowed to keep arms given to them under lend-lease to fight Germany might use them later in fighting among themselves.

"So far as the committee was able to find out," its report said, "no one has even given any thought to the exploitation of this source for filling the requirements of the Pacific war. So far as the committee was able to learn, there is no agreement between the Allied armies for pooling captured equipment and using it in the Pacific theater. Each of the Allies seems to be operating on the theory that it is the sole owner of the supplies it has captured."

The committee sharply criticized "a tendency of many to treat lend-lease accounting as a matter of little consequence, on the theory that lend-lease accounts would never be settled." It said that the State Department had "anything but a championing of United States interests" in mind in instructing Great Britain "not to give itemized invoices of reverse lend-lease charges."

Foreign Policy Called Weak.

Contending that "our representation abroad has been weak," the committee said that "the time has come for the United States to establish a firm foreign policy and to enforce it vigorously."

American armies fighting Germany with cannon sometimes idle for lack of ammunition received huge tonnages of air bombs they couldn't use, it also was disclosed today by the investigative committee. American delay in sending jet-propulsion planes to Europe very nearly allowed the Germans, already far ahead in their production, to regain air supremacy over Europe, the committee added.

"For over a year," the committee said, in reporting on extensive investigations here and abroad, "our Air Corps in the field had been advising procurement officials at home of the imminence of this situation. Yet, up to the cessation of hostilities, only two American jet planes had found their way to the European theater of operations."

Mixup Over Air Bombs.

The unwanted air bombs, the committee said, were one type of twenty-pounders in 500-pound clusters and another of 260-pound fragmentation bombs. The report said that air officers in the field testified "they had no use for one (the former) type and a very limited use for the other. . . . On some occasions the Air forces were without more useful types of bombs which they desired to enable them to complete missions."

While reporting that "as a whole, the colossal task of supplying our victorious troops was a tremendous success," the committee called for an overhaul of the procurement system to reflect more rapidly the changes in requirements. The movement of American troops out of France and into Germany for occupation is giving the Reich a head start toward recovery over neighbors it once conquered, the committee reported.

"In order properly to maintain and supply the army of occupation in Germany, vigorous efforts are being made to re-establish its transportation system and put into production some of its industry. The result is that while all that is being done in Germany is for use of our own troops, the indirect benefit to the German economy is very large.

"It is essential that German military production and its war-supporting economy be totally eliminated as a factor for future wars. A thin veneer of either army or civilian supervision of German industry will not be sufficient to prevent the old management and the old employees from re-establishing the old system."

OPPOSES FEDERAL AID FOR COLLEGES

Washington, July 6 (A.P.).—Frank H. Sparks, president of Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind., declared today that Federal aid to colleges and universities would do them an irreparable injury.

Opposing a bill to assist institutions that have suffered more than 40 per cent reduction in tuition income during the war, Sparks told the House Education Committee that he objected to the principle of Government subsidy of private institutions.

"Perhaps certain colleges may not survive the financial strain that is placed upon them by existing conditions," he said. "It will be difficult to demonstrate, however, that the educational system of the country will be permanently weakened by the withdrawal of these institutions from the national scene.

"Too many of our citizens and organizations have developed the attitude and habit of running to the Federal Government for succor at the first sign of troubled weather. Our colleges and universities are supposed to offer leadership in example and thought. This is an appropriate time for such leadership to come to the fore. An open bid for our colleges to go on public relief would do our institutions and our society an irreparable injury."

Sparks said he had raised $425,000 during the past year for Wabash College and that it had balanced its budget for the last six years.

TRUMAN, BYRNES PAY TRIBUTE TO CHINA

WASHINGTON, July 6 — (AP) President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes paid tribute to China today on the eighth anniversary of the start of Chinese resistance to Japanese aggression.

Because of the time differential, the messages which the President and Byrnes sent to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and Premier T. V. Soong arrived in Chungking July 7th, anniversary of the Marco Polo bridge incident at Peking, which marked the beginning of China's long fight.

Mr. Truman told Chiang Kai-Shek he wished to reaffirm "the deep friendship" of the American people for China and "our admiration of the valiant struggle" China has waged.

The President asserted that the task of crushing Japanese militarism was "in its final phase."

Secretary Byrnes told Dr. Soong it was a privilege to honor "unconquerable spirit that has spired the Chinese people to ca on so bravely despite long t and grievous sacrifices."

House Told of Wall St. 'Swindle' Costing Billions to Taxpayers

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—Representative Lyle H. Boren, Democrat, of Oklahoma, declared today a group of Wall Street bankers and holding companies has launched "a trick corporation plan" for "swindling the Federal taxpayer of billions of dollars."

He told the House that "shrewd manipulators" have discovered "ways of reaping fortunes" through loopholes in the holding company act which governs regulation of the private utility industry.

Naming several persons and firms, Representative Boren referred to them variously as a "boodle bund" and "Swindle, Inc." He listed Guy C. Myers, whom he identified as "a Wall Street promoter with a questionable past," and Howard L. Aller, president of the American Power and Light Company, as "chief instigators" of the project.

At his home in Lakeville, Conn., Mr. Aller said: "I do not know Mr. Boren. I do not know of any tricks, and I have no comment to make on Mr. Boren's ridiculous statements." Mr. Myers was not available for comment.

Representative Boren made his accusation after being named chairman of a special House Commerce Subcommittee to investigate operations under the holding company act. Representatives John W. Murphy, Democrat, of Pennsylvania and B. Carroll Reece, Republican, of Tennessee, will serve with him.

Representative Boren described the alleged operations as a "simple scheme." He said:

"Wall Street bankers would convert the $18,000,000,000 private utility industry to a form of tax-free but fake public ownership by the formation of 'non-profit' corporations. These corporations then issue bonds against the revenue of the property. But the bankers, in estimating annual revenue to determine the amount of bonds that can be issued, include as revenue the amount of money formerly collected from customers and paid to the Federal government."

He said the former tax revenue "would not be passed on to the public in reduced electric rates, but diverted to their own pockets in the form of interest on these revenue bonds.

"The stakes are high—this bonanza . . . dwarfs the swag of Teapot Dome. But with this difference: it appears to be legal."

Mr. Boren said the subcommittee would attempt to draft remedial legislation.

"Information brought to me indicates that two men, one a Wall Street promoter with a questionable past, and the other the president of a holding company, are the chief instigators of Swindle, Inc.," Representative Boren said.

"The first and most important figure is a Wall Street financial agent, one Guy C. Myers, known as Flash Myers to his friends back in Montana before he made a hurried exist from that state some years ago. His opposite number among the holding company gang is Howard L. Aller, president of American Power and Light Company, of New York City.

"It was Aller who unloaded the common stock of Nebraska Power Company on Myers's synthetic 'non-profit' corporation, the Omaha Electric Committee, Inc., for $14,400,000—stock that cost the American Power $815,000 and which had a legitimate earning value that might possibly justify a price of $5,000,000.

"The Omaha Electric Committee, Inc., sets the pattern for Swindle, Inc. Aller's company received three times the rightful price for his property, and Flash Myers got an agent's commission of a known $530,000. A sweet deal for everybody—exceut for you and me and the rest of the taxpayers.

"The Omaha Citizens Committee, Inc., is ostensibly only a middle man . . . but it deliberately purchased the property at a fictitiously high price.

"Meantime, Aller and his pal Flash are cooking up other and even more ambitious deals."

Representative Boren asserted that investment bankers are the "immediate market" for the revenue bonds issued by the corporation and added:

"Some of the blue-chip banking outfits of the country are involved: Blythe and Company, Nuveen and Company, First Boston, Dillon-Reed and others." He did not elaborate regarding these firms, however.

WANTS STETTINIUS IN CABINET POST

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—Senator Wiley (R.-Wis.) introduced legislation today to designate Edward R. Stettinius Jr. as Secretary of Peace in a new Cabinet post.

The former Secretary of State already has been named by President Truman as American representative on the Security Council of the projected United Nations peace-keeping organization.

Wiley, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said in an address prepared for Senate delivery that enactment of his bill "would restore Ed Stettinius to the Cabinet alongside plain-speaking, straight-shooting Jimmy Byrnes," the new Secretary of State.

Wiley added that establishment of a Peace Department would help to breathe the spirit of life into the United Nations charter.

No new Cabinet positions have been created since 1913, when the departments of Commerce and Labor were established.

Washington Believes 'Pole Problem' Fading

Washington, July 6 (AP)—All signs in Washington today indicated that the international headache known generally as "the Polish problem" will be written off soon by the big powers as completely cured.

Feeling here was that it might not even make the agenda at the forthcoming Big Three meeting.

Washington developments during the day which stimulated this belief included:

1. Disclosure that the United States Ambassador, Arthur Bliss Lane, already has left Washington for Warsaw to present credentials to the Polish Government of National Unity which this country, Britain and China all recognized yesterday.

2. An announcement by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration that a temporary UNRRA delegation, including six Americans, will leave immediately for Warsaw.

The UNRRA announcement cleared up a controversy which started when the Russian armies first began the liberation of Poland. It was charged that Russia would not permit UNRRA personnel in Poland until the United States and Britain withdrew recognition of the London Poles and sanctioned the Soviet-sponsored Polish Government.

It was announced that the UNRRA delegation, headed by Michail A. Menshikov, of Russia, was going to Warsaw on invitation of Premier Osubka-Morawski.

PERMANENT BASES IN EUROPE ADVISED

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—The Senate War Investigation Committee held out the possibility today of this country maintaining permanent military bases on the European continent. A report said that the proper utilization of 370 United States air bases, together with other war installations in Europe, may hold the answer to "our future security and the prosperity of our international commerce."

The report added: "It may be desirable for the Army and Navy to maintain bases at some points in the European theater, and, now, while we are still in a good bargaining position, negotiations could be engaged in with the countries involved for the rights to maintain them. Our international air commerce will find many of the airfields built for war air transport indispensable to any network of international air routes."

FAKE DISCHARGE RACKET NIPPED AT MITCHEL FIELD

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., July 6—(AP) Col. T. G. Wold, air inspector for the First Air force, said today a "huge racket" in fraudulent discharges and transfers of soldiers had been "nipped in the bud" at Mitchel Field.

"This loophole has now been plugged," Col. Wold said at a press conference held after the First Air force announced that a "complex, organized racket" had been discovered.

Col. Wold said about six soldiers were found to have obtained "fraudulent" medical discharges, on payment of "several thousand dollars," and that an equal number had "purchased" transfers to units not alerted for shipment overseas.

"We were fortunate in nipping this in the bud," he said. "There are indications that it was being built up to a huge racket."

He said the discharged men—now back in the Army—were referred by a civilian to certain medical administration officers, not doctors, at Mitchel Field, and that the discharges followed.

Two officers, he said, are "under guard" in the post hospital, free to move about since "it isn't customary to put officers behind bars."

Col. Wold said he would complete his investigation in several weeks and made recommendations to Maj. Gen. Frank O'D. Hunter, commanding general of the First Air force, who ordered the investigation last April.

He said a "loophole" was created when, early in the war, it became necessary to streamline the medical administration, and he expressed the opinion that "it all stems from the outside." FBI agents, he added, are working on civilian aspects of the investigation.

U. S. Explains Why P.W.s Rode In Pullman Cars

War Department Says Nazis Jeering G. I.s in Coaches Were Mental Patients

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—The War Department explained today why 500 Texas overseas veterans, traveling in overcrowded day coaches, saw a trainload of German prisoners of war riding in Pullmans.

The incident occurred at Indianapolis, Ind., June 13, and was described in a letter to Representative J. M. Combs, Democrat, of Texas, by Clifford Hybarger, of Beaumont, Tex. Mr. Hybarger, in the air forces, was shot down over Germany and spent several months as a prisoner of the Nazis.

He said the German prisoners jeered the returning Americans in their crowded coaches as the two trains stopped near each other in Indianapolis. The Texans had landed at an east coast port and were headed for Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio.

Representative Combs asked the War Department to check up on the incident and received the following reply from Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson:

"Our returning soldiers are entitled to first-class accommodations, and we try hard to obtain them, but with the unprecedented troop movements we have today, Pullmans frequently are not available.

"As to the movement of German prisoners of war in Pullmans, the train which Mr. Hybarger saw was one composed of 12 Pullman tourist sleepers and one coach carrying 200 German prisoners of war who are mental patients and 100 United States soldiers who were acting as guards, from a prisoner-of-war camp in Oklahoma to Mason General Hospital in New York.

"It was only because the German prisoners of war were mentally deranged that sleeper accomodations were furnished. Pullman accommodations for enemy prisoners of war are furnished only for hospital cases and cases requiring segregation from the public."

Pullman company, but also to those sleepers owned and operated by some individual railroads.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson of the Office of Defense Transportation said in a statement:

"I am mindful that this action will result in considerable inconvenience to civilians but on the other hand I feel they will cheerfully accept the situation when they realize that it is one way in which they can make another important contribution to the war effort."

The War department explained today that in one incident about which soldiers had complained, the Germans occupying pullman accommodations were mental patients, plus their guards, who were being transferred from a camp in Oklahoma to a hospital in New York.

The department also said that the only Italians who got pullman accommodations were sick and disabled men in process of being repatriated. In one movement of 103 Italians to the west coast, they were put aboard pullman tourist coaches but not sleepers.

Consultations between military and railroad officials preceded issuance of the new order by the ODT. The 450-mile distance was chosen, an ODT spokesman explained, as the one most likely to release sufficient cars to meet present needs. Should the demand for sleeper space for troops increase, he said, further action might be necessary.

Sleeping Car Travel Restricted To Provide Space for Troops

WASHINGTON, July 6 — (AP) No more sleeping cars can be operated between cities 450 miles or less apart after July 15, the government ordered today, so that better accommodations can be provided troops.

Imposition of this new control on civilian travel followed complaints of soldiers on transcontinental trips that they had been forced to make the long journey in day coaches while German and Italian prisoners of war were seen riding in pullman cars.

The new order issued late today by the Office of Defense Transportation applies not only to those sleeping cars operated by the Troops Leaving Camp Shanks Protest Rail Accommodations

3066 Departing by Day Coaches and With Converted Freight Cars as Diners Beat Dust Out of Seats.

Camp Shanks, N. Y., July 6 (A. P.).—Nine troop trains, composed of day coaches and including converted freight cars used as diners, left here today with 3,066 troops for various parts of the country. The men arrived here yesterday from Europe aboard the transport Marine Dragon.

Many protested to their officers over the accommodations. To emphasize their protests, some soldiers carried seats from the coaches and, placing the seats on the station platform, beat clouds of dust from them.

None of the coaches was air-conditioned. Three men were assigned to every two seats; it was understood that they would have to take turns lying down. Officers inspected the drinking water and sanitary facilities before the troops boarded the trains.

Transfer to Pullman.

Salt Lake City, July 6 (A. P.).—Two hundred veterans of ground and aerial warfare in Europe were transferred to well equipped Pullman sleepers today after riding almost across the country in antiquated railroad coaches. For the rest of the way they'll ride in standard Pullmans on the Union Pacific Railroad en route to Fort MacArthur, Cal., and on the Western Pacific to Camp Beale, Cal.

The men were veterans of the 95th Division and of the Eighth Air Force. Sergt. Jack Frank of Los Angeles expressed the sentiment of most men when he observed: "We ride in chair cars for four days and four nights and one day from home they give us Pullmans."

The men left Camp Myles Standish, near Boston, last Monday. At stops all across the country they complained of their accommodations. When the three remaining coaches of the train arrived here, they were without water, railroad officials said, and the toilet facilities generally were out of order.

To add to their discomfiture, the men said that at Kansas City they observed members of Italian service units transferring from chair cars, in which they had ridden from the east coast, to tourist Pullman's to complete the trip to Sacramento, Cal. The railroad authorities said that the situation developed because of the rapid movement of troops from east to west. As a result, railroads have been unable to get the Pullmans moved east again quickly enough to accommodate all troops.

Civilian Pullman Cut Due.

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—With redeployment running ahead of schedule, civilian Pullman space will be reduced at least 50 per cent in the near future when half of the 3,000 Pullmans now in civilian service will be transferred to troop trains.

While this is in line with earlier estimates, the shifting of Pullmans to the military pool will come as rapidly as it can be done, instead of the first of next month.

The shift means a greater cut for civilians, since the military has first call on space on civilian trains.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, also disclosed last night that some additional day coaches will be assigned to the military pool. He said it had been impossible for the railroads to provide all the Pullmans and day coaches needed for troop movements without warning. He explained that redeployment was running far ahead of estimates made as late as June 2.

Still hopeful of avoiding rationing of civilian train space, the ODT indicated that railroads would be left free to use what equipment they have left as they see fit.

Bill Would Permit Wives To Go to Mates Overseas

WASHINGTON, July 6—(AP) Legislation permitting the Army and Navy to send wives overseas to be with their servicemen husbands was introduced today by Rep. Fulton (R-Pa).

A bachelor, Fulton served overseas as a Navy lieutenant until early this year.

"The men in the services are mighty interested in this," he told a reporter.

Hoffman Introduces 'Work Or Fight' Bill

Washington, July 6 (AP)—Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.) introduced a "work-or-fight" bill today to make every able-bodied male between 21 and 55 liable for war service if needed.

The legislation would permit the induction for one year of service of any registrant who for five days refused to work at his regular job or to accept a job in a war-connected industry.

100,000 Captives to Harvest

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—The Agriculture Department says it has been promised 100,000 prisoners of war for farm work during the heavy harvest season of October through mid-November.

67 Senators for Ratification

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—Senator McFarland, Democrat, of Arizona, said today he would vote for adoption of the United Nations charter. This brought to sixty-seven the number of Senators who have said in an Associated Press poll that they favor ratification of the instrument.

Elliott Roosevelt For Treasury Post?

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—Brig.-Gen. Elliott Roosevelt was proposed in the House today as the next Secretary of the Treasury.

The suggestion came from Representative Rich (R.-Pa.), a frequent critic of the Roosevelt administration, who said:

"He knows how to get the money and settle the debts."

New Interior Post For Edwin G. Arnold

Washington, July 6 (A.P.).—Secretary of the Interior Ickes announced today the appointment of Edwin G. Arnold, formerly of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, as director of the Division of Territories and Island Possessions.

Ickes announced also the appointment of Jack B. Fahy, former head of the Puerto Rico section of the division, as assistant to Arnold, who replaces Benjamin W. Thoron, who resigned effective July 2.

Wiesbaden Is Forward Quarters Of Red Cross

Washington, July 6 (AP)—Wiesbaden has been selected as forward headquarters for the American Red Cross in the European theater, Basil O'Connor, national chairman, said today.

It's 25 miles west of Frankfurt, the location of Supreme Allied Headquarters.

Frank DeGenahl has been named deputy commissioner of all of United States-occupied Germany except Berlin, O'Connor added. A former president of the Venture Exploration Corporation, DeGanahl's home is in Riverton, N.J.

Bradley Nominated As Veterans' Chief

Washington, July 6 (AP)—President Truman today formally nominated Gen. Omar N. Bradley to be Veterans Administrator and submitted his name to the Senate.

The Chief Executive announced a month ago that he had chosen Bradley to succeed Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines as head of the Veterans Administration. General Bradley now is in Europe, but is expected to return to Washington late in the summer.

Mr. Truman also sent to the Senate the nomination of Jesse M. Donaldson, of Illinois, to be First Assistant Postmaster General.

Col. William Henry Kasten was nominated to be Army Chief of Finance with the rank of major general.

Maj. Gen. H. K. Loughry was the former Chief of Finance, but he left that post some time ago and Brig. Gen. R. P. Hueper has served as acting chief since then. The finance chief is in charge of distribution of funds for the entire Army and also is fiscal officer for selective service.

Hull Leaves Hospital, In Since Last October

Physicians Call His Recovery 'Most Satisfactory'

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—Cordell Hull, seventy-three-year-old former Secretary of State, who had been under extended treatment for a throat ailment, left the United States Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md., today.

Mr. Hull, a patient at the hospital since last October, had made a "most satisfactory recovery," physicians said.

Friends reported that Mr. Hull would probably remain around Washington for several weeks, at least until the United Nations charter has been acted upon by the Senate.

Mr. Hull was named senior adviser to the American delegation to the United Nations Conference, but was unable to go to San Francisco because of his health.

TARAWA AS U.S. SHRINE SUGGESTED TO BRITAIN

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP)—The Foreign Office has received a suggestion that Great Britain release Tarawa to the United States as a memorial to marines who won it from the Japanese.

Representative Anderson, Republican, of California, who made the suggestion in a speech in the House in April, today released a letter from John Balfour, British Envoy Extraordinary, advising that the subject is being called to the attention of the Foreign Office.

"It will be interesting to know the attitude of this office when ample consideration has been given to the entire subject," Mr. Anderson commented in inserting the letter in the Congressional Record.

Mr. Anderson also made public a letter from Under-Secretary Grew reporting that no negotiations with the British with reference to acquisition of Tarawa had been undertaken. But Mr. Grew added:

"I am sure our British Allies share with us the same feelings with regard to the beaches of Tarawa that we would, without doubt, share with them with regard to American beaches on which British blood had been shed in defense of our common cause."

Navy Men Defy Fire to Save Tanker

Face Raging Inferno From 6-million-gallon 'Gas' Cargo in Convoy Off East Coast.

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—Carrying millions of gallons of high octane gasoline and ablaze from stem to stern, the tanker St. Mihiel was rescued from destruction by Navy firefighters last April 10.

Disclosing this today, the Navy said that the tanker burst into flame when she was rammed by another tanker, the Nashbuck, in convoy off the East Coast. Six million gallons of fuel fed the inferno.

Deadly fumes added to the flames and a number of the crew died before they could reach boats, but the Navy did not estimate the casualties.

Flames Beaten Back.

Unmanned, the tanker flamed from end to end when the first destroyer escort to reach the scene pulled alongside. The D-E Stewart, poured streams of water on the blazing ship, beating down the flames so that firefighters could board with other apparatus.

In constant danger of being trapped the Stewart's party cooled the decks, forced the flames back and killed them. Canvas hose lines smoldered on the hot decks and the men could not forget that an explosion might come at any time.

The Stewart, commanded by Lieut.-Commander Alvin Chesley Wilson Jr. of Knoxville, Tenn., was forced to pull away because her own explosive-filled magazines could not be long subjected to the heat.

Stewart Gets Relief.

Then the D-E Edsall came as relief for the Stewart. The Edsall's executive officer, Lieut. William W. Yoemans of 9 St. Lukes Place, New York, took aboard a volunteer salvage party. They fought small fires that started and set about rigging the ship to get her to port. The Edsall's commanding officer, Commander Malcolm MacLean of Savannah, Ga., relayed instructions for handling the tanker and the Edsall acted as its seeing eye in completing the rescue which for a time was impeded by dense fog.

Aboard the St. Mihiel the Edsall's engineering officer, Lieut. Stephen Luzaich of Milwaukee, assisted the tanker's head engineer who had been brought back aboard. The St. Mihiel was finally brought back to New York.

Struck by Suicide Planes.

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—Attacked by seven Japanese suicide pilots, the destroyer Newcomb bagged three but was turned into a scene of wreckage by the others.

The Newcomb suffered ninety-one casualties while another warship, the destroyer Leutze, counted eighty-four as the last Japanese fanatic skidded across the Newcomb and into the stern of the Leutze which had pulled alongside to give aid. Both survived.

The Navy, recounting another tale of American heroism at sea, said that the battle occurred late on April 6 when the Newcomb was supporting heavy fleet units near Ie Shima in the Ryukyus. The Leutze's commanding officer was Lieut. Leon Grabowsky of Paterson, N. J.

Among those commended by the Navy for outstanding leadership and resourcefulness under fire is John E. Dooley, storekeeper 3/C, missing in action, whose wife, Frances Margaret, resides at 573 South Clinton street, East Orange, N. J.

SPEEDY APPROVAL OF PEACE CHARTER URGED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, July 6—(AP) Calls for speedy ratification of the United Nations peace charter were voiced in the House today, and Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee reiterated he was hopeful of such action.

Connally told newsmen he hoped hearings would be completed by July 14 and he believed any proposed amendments could be beaten down on the floor without excessive delay.

The House pleas for speed came from Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) of the Foreign Affairs committee and Rep. Eaton (R-N.J.), the ranking minority party member, in reports on their role as delegates to the San Francisco conference at which the charter was drawn.

"May the Congress of the United States lead the rest of the world in ratifying this new magna carta of peace and security for mankind," Bloom told the House.

Early ratification will "satisfy the will" of the people, Eaton declared, and "will confirm the nation's leadership in establishing a lasting peace."

Bloom declared the charter "has all the machinery we need to make a brave beginning for a new and a better world."

Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) introduced legislation to add a "secretary of peace" to the cabinet and designate Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., for the job. President Truman in accepting Stettinius' resignation as secretary of state named him American member of the Security council in the United Nations organization.

Connally Says Attempts to Curb Charter Will Fail

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Sen. Connally (D., Tex.) predicted today that all attempts to attach reservations to United States ratification of the United Nations Charter will be beaten down.

Saying he had been informed that at least two Senators plan to present reservations, Sen. Connally added to a reporter:

"I'm of the firm conviction that we shall be able to defeat all reservations and ratify the Charter without amendment."

At the same time, Sen. Connally said hearings before the Foreign Relations Committee he heads will be shortened as much as possible.

"I hope that we can finish them in a week," he said.

The hearings open Monday in the Caucus Room of the Senate Office Building.

The House, meanwhile, arranged an 11 a. m. (EWT) session to hear reports on the Charter from Chairman Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.) and Rep. Charles A. Eaton, ranking Republican member of that chamber's Foreign Affairs Committee. Both were delegates to the San Francisco Conference.

It has been reported that Cmdr. Harold Stassen, who, like Messrs. Bloom and Eaton and Sens. Connally and Arthur Vandenberg were delegates at San Francisco, might testify before his return to active duty in the Pacific.

In an address here last night Cmdr. Stassen said it is of terrific importance for people of this country and the world to realize that mere adoption of the Charter will not of itself insure peace.

SAYS WORLD FATE HANGS ON CHARTER

Washington, July 6 (A.P.).—Representative Eaton (R.-N. J.) told the House today that upon the success or failure of the United Nations Charter hangs the fate for good or ill of all mankind.

The ranking Republican member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee reported that the document is only a beginning, that it will take generations of trial and error and free cooperation among all people before there will finally be evolved the new world civilization envisioned in the Charter.

He added that the San Francisco conference and the Charter it created, regardless of whatever imperfections it may develop in practice, is the greatest and most hopeful public event in history.

The earliest possible ratification by the Senate was urged by Eaton, not only to satisfy the will of the people but also to confirm the nation's leadership in establishing a lasting peace.

"We did not meet in San Francisco to set up a super world government to which all sovereign States and peoples must give allegiance," Eaton said. "We were there for the primary purpose of finding ways and means to prevent future wars and to insure and maintain peace and security throughout the world."

SENATORS URGE BRETTON PLAN

Banking Group Calls It Instrument for Peace.

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—The Senate Banking Committee declared today that United States participation in the Bretton Woods program "will help to preserve peace by making possible an expansion of international trade."

In a formal report recommending passage of the Bretton Woods legislation, the committee said that "by providing for the elimination of unfair and discriminatory currency practices the ($8,800,000,000 international monetary) fund will remove an important source of discord among nations." The report was presented to the Senate by the chairman, Senator Wagner (D.-N. Y.) and Senator Tobey (R.-N. H.).

"Healthy competition is a vital part of commerce; but if we permit this competition to degenerate into economic warfare, we shall recreate the economic nationalism which contributed to the present war.

"A repetition of this kind of warfare will inevitably undermine a world security organization. No world peace organization can succeed unless there is economic co-operation among nations."

In addition to the international monetary fund to be used to stabilize monetary exchange and eliminate competitive exchange depreciation, the legislation calls for United States participation in an international bank with capital stock of $9,100,000,000 which would provide long term loans for reconstruction and development.

This nation would subscribe $2,750,000,000 of the fund and $3,175,000,000 of the bank's capital.

"The fund will help expand American investment abroad by reducing the risks of exchange fluctuations and restrictions on the transfer of earnings from such investments," the report said. "The bank will provide a direct stimulus to foreign investment by making and guaranteeing international loans for productive purposes."

CANADIAN POULTRY SMUGGLERS SEIZED

Detroit, July 6 (A. P.).—The United States Customs Patrol reported today that fourteen pleasure craft were seized in the Detroit area during June while attempting to smuggle poultry out of Canada in violation of the Dominion embargo. A customs official said the boats, ranging from a rowboat to a $2,000 cruiser, were taken into custody in the Detroit River and St. Clair area.

JUL 7 1945

The spokesman said the smugglers are required to pay a $100 fine for failure to report to customs, double the value of the undeclared item, and are also assessed the value of their boats.

Penalties in June totaled $18,000, as boat owners were permitted to reclaim their craft on payment of the full assessments.

The Canadian embargo on shipments of meat and poultry in the Windsor, Ont., area was put into effect last month, he said.

Gen. Van Fleet, Phantom Corps, Arrive At Boston

Boston, July 6 (AP)—Maj. Gen. James A. van Fleet and his III (Phantom) Corps—the outfit that won fame for seizure of the Remagen bridgehead—arrived today aboard the Coast Guard-manned troop transport Wakefield for an undisclosed assignment.

There were two generals—Brig. Gen. Paul V. King, commander of the III Corps (Artillery) also was aboard—and there were more than 6,000 troops and nine American Red Cross girls.

Veteran fighters of four major campaigns against Germany, the troops will disperse to various sections of the country for a month's recuperation before assembling at an undisclosed camp for renewed duty.

NEWSPAPER STRIKERS FAIL TO HEED DEMAND

NEW YORK, July 6. — (AP) A War Labor Board demand late today that delivery workers end at once their six-day strike affecting 14 New York newspapers was met with silence by officials of the Newspaper and Mail Deliveries union.

No one at the offices of the independent union would comment on this latest WLB action and Louis Waldman, union counsel, was said by an associate to be out of town.

The WLB, in Washington, had directed union officials by telegram to recommend "without delay" an end to the walkout. The agency said the union's offer to consider returning to work at a membership meeting next Sunday was not "sufficiently expeditious or forthright."

The board urged Waldman and Joseph Simons, union president, to "put aside every other consideration save that of the public interest in time of war."

MIAMI BEACH, July 6 (AP).—General Carl A. Spaatz, who has been assigned to direct the smashing of Japan from the air just as he did to Germany, is resting briefly at the Army Air Forces redistribution station here. General Spaatz will be commander of the Army Strategic Air Force in the Pacific, which will include the 20th and the 8th Air Forces.

JAPS MOBILIZE CIVILIAN CORPS

Women Are Included in Combat Group.

San Francisco, July 6 (A. P.).—Japan has begun mobilization of civilian volunteer workers—both men and women—into combat corps to battle expected invaders of the home islands, radio Tokyo revealed today.

The combat corpsmen will become members of the Imperial Army, but will continue their war jobs while awaiting the time when they may have to engage in actual fighting, said the broadcast, recorded by the FCC.

First to be militarized as Japan tightened its defenses were 150,000 railroad workers. Domei Agency said male railway workers between 16 and 60 years and women between [illegible] and 40 were included and [illegible] other industries will follow. Top commander is the army chief of staff.

Relentless bombing has played havoc with Japan's transportation facilities and Tokyo broadcasts have reflected a crisis in movement of munitions, foodstuffs, coal and other war supplies.

The enemy radio sought some consolation amid bombings by reporting that in "raid devastated areas" of Tokyo residents are making kitchen knives from the cases of incendiary bombs dropped by American B-29s. The cases were admittedly of such good quality that plans are under way to make frying pans and shovels of them, Tokyo said.

The Japanese Cabinet, meeting to discuss the new slash in food rations, offered a well-publicized example, by eating eratz food. The Cabinet members munched a combination of rice cakes and hardtack made from sweet potato refuse, radio Tokyo said.

Concentrated bombing of industrial centers has caused the Government to seek stepped-up production in small plants. Tokyo radio said the purpose was to guarantee the necessary minimum of war materials if big war plants are halted. At the same time, production experts were ordered to concentrate on output of aircraft fuel, ammunition and electrical aircraft devices.

The effect of the bombings on civilians has led the Japan Political Association, mass totalitarian party, to start an investigation designed to expedite relief and rehabilitation.

250 in Earlier Blow.

San Francisco, July 6 (A. P.).—Two hundred and fifty American fighter and bomber planes striking from Iwo Jima and Okinawa bases hit the Japanese home islands in a two-pronged attack today for the third consecutive day, Radio Tokyo reported.

Ninety Iwo Jima Mustangs, led by a single Superfort, attacked airfields and military installations in the Tokyo area, said the broadcast, recorded by the FCC. An hour later 160 Mustang and Thunderbolt fighters from Okinawa were over southern Kyushu but were limited to reconnaissance by bad weather, Tokyo said.

Enemy Using 11,000 Planes Against Japan, Tokyo Says

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6—(AP) Radio Tokyo reported today that Japan's enemies were hurling an "estimated 11,000 planes" into the air war against Nippon and said 250 of these made new attacks on Kyushu and Honshu.

This and other unconfirmed broadcasts, recorded by the FCC, reflected the agitation in the enemy homeland over the sharply increased tempo of the aerial assault.

Domei news agency broadcast the 11,000 plane estimate in connection with its report of the Australian invasion of Borneo which it said was a drive for oil to help fuel the great armada flying over Japan.

Today's raids, Tokyo reported, were made against targets on Kyushu and airfields near Tokyo. It said the planes came from Okinawa and Iwo Jima and that one group was shepherded by a single B-29.

Other enemy broadcasts said manufacture of special weapons for the civilian corps, including "special-attack (suicide) weapons," had been started and told of added emphasis being placed on the output of aircraft fuel and electrical devices.

One emission said cabinet members had sampled a new "rice cake" delicacy made out of sweet potato refuse. Prime Minister Suzuki supposedly nibbled one and observed, "one can live on these; they are excellent wartime food."

NEW U. S. SHELLING IN OKHOTSK SEA TOLD

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6 (AP)—The Tokyo radio belatedly added another warship shelling today to its unconfirmed version of American surface attacks Monday and Tuesday during a deep penetration of the Sea of Okhotsk.

An enemy broadcast monitored by the Federal Communications Commission said "three enemy warships" shelled Kaihyo Island, south of Taraika Bay off the eastern coast of Karafuto, Tuesday. Karafuto is the Japanese-held half of an island—Russian-owned Sakhalin is the other half—just off the Asiatic mainland north of Japan.

Tokyo previously had reported that five warships shelled Shikuka in Taraika Bay on Tuesday. The earlier broadcast said a submarine also shelled Shikuka Tuesday and Kaihyo Island Monday.

Sees 11,000 U. S. Planes.

San Francisco, July 6 (A. P.).—The United States is using 11,000 planes against the Japanese homeland, Radio Tokyo said today. To fuel these planes, the broadcast added, Allied forces seized Balikpapan, the great oil center in Dutch Borneo. With Borneo oil available, United States tankers will be able to haul ten times as much fuel because of the shorter distance.

Four More Jap Admirals Killed

San Francisco, July 6 (A. P.).—A Japanese vice-admiral and three rear admirals today joined the enemy's long death list of top officers. Radio Tokyo listed the dead as Vice-Admiral Katsukiyo Shinoda and Rear Admirals Gosaburo Noguichi, Uroku Rashimoto and Kirezo Yamauchi in a broadcast recorded by the FCC. No details were given.

STRIKERS RETURN AT STEEL PLANT

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation's South Chicago works, the world's second largest steel mill, resumed production of military steel late last night with the termination of a walkout of 96 C. I.O. United Steelworkers.

The work stoppage, which company officials estimated cost approximately 25,500 tons of steel, forced a shutdown of the big U. S. Steel subsidiary plant employing 13,900.

Workers began returning shortly after Army and Navy officials and union officers appealed to them to get back to work. The 96 employes operated narrow-gauge railroads at the plant, and thus tied up the entire establishment. The company said the walkout apparently was due to previous layoffs of rail crews on a seniority basis because another stoppage had left the crews without work.

ELECTIONS

BY DON DOANE

LONDON, JULY 6-(AP)-THE CONSERVATIVE PRESS MAINTAINED TODAY THAT YESTERDAY'S GENERAL ELECTIONS HAD "ALMOST CERTAINLY" RESULTED IN A VICTORY FOR PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S GOVERNMENT BUT LABOR PARTY ORGANS HELD THE CONSERVATIVES HAD LOST THEIR ABSOLUTE MAJORITY IN PARLIAMENT.

RESULTS WILL NOT BE KNOWN UNTIL JULY 26, AFTER THE ABSENTEE SOLDIER VOTE IS COUNTED.

OBSERVERS AGREED THERE WAS A NEAR RECORD TURNOUT ESTIMATED AT ALMOST 24,000,000 VOTERS -- 80 PER CENT OF THE ELIGIBLE ELECTORATE OF 30,000,000 -- LURED BY GOOD WEATHER AND A HECTIC CAMPAIGN BATTLE BETWEEN THE CONSERVATIVE PROGRAM OF FREE ENTERPRISE AND THE LABOR PLATFORM OF PARTIAL NATIONALIZATION OF INDUSTRY.

THE DAILY HERALD, LABOR NEWSPAPER, CLAIMED "THE LEAST OPTIMISTIC FORECAST" GAVE LABOR 266 SEATS IN THE NEW HOUSE OF COMMONS AS AGAINST THE 163 MEMBERS IT HAD IN THE DISSOLVED PARLIAMENT. IT SAID "THERE WERE CONFIDENT PREDICTIONS THAT THE TORY (CONSERVATIVE) VOTE WAS A MINORITY OF THE TOTAL CAST."

THE CONSERVATIVE DAILY EXPRESS SAID "MOST CAUTIOUS" ESTIMATES GAVE A MAJORITY OF 60 TO 90 SEATS "FOR THE GOVERNMENT."

AT THE TIME OF DISSOLUTION THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY HAD 358 OF THE 615 SEATS IN COMMONS, BUT WITH ALLIED PARTIES IT HAD A WORKING MAJORITY OF NEARLY 200 SEATS. WITH 640 SEATS IN THE NEW COMMONS IT WILL TAKE 321 FOR A PARTY OR BLOC TO HAVE A MAJORITY.

COMPLICATING FACTORS INCLUDED THE SOLDIER VOTE, POPULATION SHIFTS BECAUSE OF WAR WORK, AND THE 10-YEAR LAPSE SINCE THE LAST ELECTIONS, WHICH MEANT THAT ABOUT ONE-THIRD OF THE ELIGIBLE ELECTORATE NEVER HAD VOTED BEFORE.

THE SHIFTING OF POPULATION AND THE GERMAN AIR BLITZ PLAYED HAVOC WITH ELECTION RECORDS. IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT THOUSANDS WHO TRIED TO VOTE FOUND THEMSELVES DISQUALIFIED BECAUSE THEIR NAMES WERE LOST FROM THE POLLING REGISTERS.

AMONG THOSE DISENFRANCHISED WAS CHURCHILL HIMSELF. HE SPENT ELECTION DAY INSTEAD TOURING HIS CONSTITUENCY BY CAR, SHOUTING "HAVE YOU ALL VOTED?"

THE EXPRESS PREDICTED CHURCHILL WOULD WIN BY 20 TO ONE OVER HIS INDEPENDENT OPPONENT AND CALLED FOREIGN SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN A "CERTAINTY." IT CONCEDED THE LIKELY REELECTION OF LABORITE LEADER CLEMENT ATTLEE AND POSSIBLY OF HIS LIEUTENANTS ERNEST BEVIN AND HERBERT MORRISON, ALL MEMBERS OF THE FORMER COALITION CABINET.

SEVERAL BIG NAME CONSERVATIVES WERE LISTED BY THE NEWSPAPER AS "DOUBTFUL" OF RETAINING THEIR SEATS, INCLUDING FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY BRENDAN BRACKEN, MINISTER OF WAR SIR JAMES GRIGG AND MINISTER OF NATIONAL INSURANCE LESLIE HORE-BELISHA.

PLYMOUTH, ENG., JULY 6-(AP)-- A MAN WHO FLED THE "BUREAU[C]RACY AND RED TAPE" HERE OF HIS NATIVE ENGLAND FOR THE "PEACE AND QUIET" OF A WEST INDIES PLANTATION RETURNED HOME TODAY AFTER ENDURING A LOSING BATTLE WITH THE STORMY SEA HE TRIED TO CROSS IN A SMALL YACHT.

HIS BOAT SUSANNA, WHICH HE DESCRIBED AS "THE LOVELIEST BIRD THAT EVER SAILED THE SEVEN SEAS" -- LAY AT THE BOTTOM OF THE OCEAN, HIS 19-YEAR-OLD SON WAS IN A HOSPITAL WITH A BROKEN SPINE AND HE HIMSELF FACED POSSIBLE DIFFICULTIES WITH THE LAW FOR LEAVING ENGLAND IN WARTIME WITHOUT PERMISSION.

JUL 7 1945

BUT HE STILL WAS RESOLVED TO REALIZE HIS DREAM OF PEACE IN THE WEST INDIA HE HAS LEARNED TO LOVE.

THE PRINCIPAL FIGURE IN THIS EPIC IS WILFRED WEEKS, A 51-YEAR-OLD DENTIST WHO SAILED THE PACIFIC FOR 12 YEARS BEFORE ACQUIRING A PLANTATION ON TOBAGO ISLAND NEAR TRINIDAD.

HE BROUGHT HIS FAMILY BACK TO ENGLAND IN 1939, AND WAS TRAPPED HERE BY THE WAR. WHEN THE GOVERNMENT REFUSED HIM PERMISSION

30.24 78191

TO LEAVE THE COUNTRY HE MADE A SECRET ATTEMPT TO SAIL TO TOBAGO IN 1949 ONLY TO BE CAUGHT FIVE DAYS OUT AND BROUGHT BACK.

"BUT I HAD BEEN LIVING ON THE EDGE OF BRITISH BUREAUCRACY FOR YEARS," HE SAID. "I LOVE FREEDOM. I HATE OFFICIALDOM, THIS INSUFFERABLE RED TAPE."

JUL 7 1945

SO HE BEGAN PLANNING FOR ANOTHER ATTEMPT, HOARDING SKIMPY FOOD RATIONS AND GASOLINE TO STOCK SUSANNA. AT LAST, WITH HIS SON GEOFFREY, HE SET OUT MAY 28, 1945 "DETERMINED THAT NOBODY WAS GOING TO STOP US THIS TIME."

THEY REACHED SPAIN SAFELY AND HEADED OUT INTO THE ATLANTIC--BUT THEN THEIR TROIBLES BEGAN. STORMS BUFFETED THE LITTLE 10-TON SHIP. THE ~~EIZZENZ~~ MIZZENMAST FELL ON THE SON, PARALYZING HIM. THEY DRIFTED FOR DAYS IN HEAVY SEAS.

FINALLY WEEKS HAD TO GIVE UP. SIGHTING A BRITISH NAVAL REPAIR VESSEL HE HOISTED HIS FLAG UPSIDE DOWN AS A ~~EEEN~~ DISTRESS SIGNAL, AND HE AND HIS SON WERE ~~ZEEEEZ~~ TAKEN ABOARD. WEEPING, HE CONSENTED TO THE SINKING OF ~~HE~~ SUSANNA BY SHELLFIRE.

JUL 7 1945

"IT WAS THE END OF SUSANNA AND THE END OF SO MUCH FOR ME," HE LAMENTED.

"BUT I STILL WANT TO GO BACK TO TOBAGO," HE ADDED, "BACK TO MY PLANTATION AND MY NEGROES WHO ARE WAITING FOR ME. I LOVE EVERY MAN ON THE ISLAND, AND EVERY MAN THERE LOVES ME. I MUST GO BACK."

PARIS, JULY 6-(AP)-THE MAXIMUM NORMAL RATION FOR GERMAN CIVILIANS HAS BEEN INCREASED FROM 1,150 TO 1,550 CALORIES DAILY, U.S. 15TH ARMY HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED TODAY, BUT IT WILL BE EFFECTIVE ONLY IF THE GERMANS THEMSELVES CAN PRODUCE THAT MUCH FOOD.

IN MANY AREAS THEY HAVE NOT BEEN ABLE TO PRODUCE ENOUGH FOR RATIONING EVEN ON THE PREVIOUS BASIS, AND CIVILIANS WERE GETTING ONLY ABOUT 1,000 CALORIES.

BESIDES THE NEW 1,550 CALORY MAXIMUM FOR NORMAL CONSUMERS, OTHER INCREASES INCLUDED: CHILDREN SIX TO NINE YEARS OLD, 1,600 CALORIES INSTEAD OF 1,500; CHILDREN 10 TO 17, 1,750 INSTEAD OF 1,600; EXPECTANT MOTHERS DURING THE LAST FIVE MONTHS OF PREGNANCY, 2,700 INSTEAD OF 2,200.

IN COMPARISON THE ARMY GAVE THESE CALORY FIGURES OF AMERICAN DIET: U.S.ARMY, APPROXIMATELY 4,000 CALORIES PER DAY, CIVILIAN PEACETIME AVERAGE 2,500 TO 3,000 PER DAY.

COMPARED WITH RESIDENTS OF AMERICAN-OCCUPIED THURINGIA, BERLINERS LOOK EMACIATED, WORRIED AND HUNGRY.

FORCED LABOR IS ORGANIZED ON THE PRINCIPLE THAT THE NAZIS MUST WORK SEVEN DAYS A WEEK AND OTHERS SIX. THE NAZIS ALSO MUST DO EXTRA CHORES.

ROBERT F.SCHILDBACH, FOR MANY YEARS AN ASSISTANT EDITOR IN THE ASSOCIATED PRESS BERLIN BUREAU AND NOW OBMANN (CHIEF) FOR ABOUT 10 HOUSES, EXPLAINED THE SYSTEM THIS WAY:

A67

"THE RUSSIAN-APPOINTED CITY REPRESENTATIVE FOR THE ENTIRE BEZIRK (DISTRICT) INFORMS US: 'THE RUSSIAN COMMANDER DESIRES 200 FEET OF RUBBLE REMOVED FROM SUCH-AND-SUCH A STREET.' THE BLOCK OBMANN THEN INFORMS EACH APARTMENT HOUSE OBMANN TO ASSIGN THE TENANTS TO CLEARANCE WORK, AND AFTER THEIR NEIGHBORS HAVE FINISHED THEIR JOBS THE NAZIS MUST PULL THE TRUCK OR CART TO THE DUMPING POINT.

"ALL THIS LABOR MUST BE DONE WITHOUT PAY. SOMETIMES, HOWEVER, THE RUSSIANS ORDER CERTAIN BIG ENTERPRISES TO SUMMON THEIR EMPLOYES FOR DEBRIS REMOVAL. THESE MUST THEN PAY THEIR WORKERS."

NO MATTER HOW MUCH DEBRIS IS REMOVED, HOWEVER, WHOLE STREETS STILL SMELL EVILLY FROM DECAYING BODIES BURIED UNDER THE RUINS.

ONE SEES MANY GRAY-HAIRED WOMEN WHO EVIDENTLY HAVE SEEN BETTER DAYS CLIMBING AROUND ON RUINS TO GATHER WOOD FOR FIRE PURPOSES. PEOPLE ALSO RUSH OUT EAGERLY FOR HORSE MANURE WHICH THEY DRY TO USE AS FUEL LATER.

THE MEN AND WOMEN WHO LIVED LIVES OF LUXURY AND ENJOYED THE BEST THAT THE REICH HAD TO OFFER SINCE 1933 MUST GET ALONG NOW ON THE SAME RATIONS AS THE LOWEST OF FIVE CATEGORIES INTO WHICH BERLIN'S CITIZENS ARE DIVIDED--THAT OF PERSONS NOT ENGAGED IN A PRODUCTIVE OCCUPATION.

FOR FOOD PURPOSES BERLINERS ARE CLASSIFIED AS FOLLOWS: FIRST, WORKERS DOING THE HEAVIEST LABOR; SECOND, ORDINARY LABORERS; THIRD, OFFICE WORKERS; FOURTH, CHILDREN; FIFTH, NAZIS AND PERSONS WITHOUT OCCUPATION.

THOSE IN THE FIFTH CLASS ARE ENTITLED TO A DAILY RATION OF 10.5 OUNCES OF BREAD, 0.7 OF MEAT, 0.24 OF FATS, 1.05 OF FLOUR, 0.52 OF SUGAR AND 14 OF POTATOES, PLUS A MONTHLY ALLOWANCE OF 0.88 OUNCES OF BARLEY COFFEE, 3.5 OF ERSATZ COFFEE, 0.7 OF TEA AND 14 OF SALT.

COMPARE THIS WITH THE ORDINARY LABORER'S DAILY ALLOWANCE OF 16.5 OUNCES OF BREAD, 2.29 OF MEAT, 0.52 OF FATS, 2.11 OF FLOUR AND 0.7 OF SUGAR, WITH 2.11 OUNCES OF BARGEY COFFEE MONTHLY. ONLY THE POTATO, COFFEE ERSATZ, TEA AND SALT RATIONS ARE THE SAME FOR BOTH CLASSES.

PACIFIC AERIAL (620)

MANILA, JULY 6-(AP)-U.S. FIFTH AIR FORCE PLANES NEWLY MOVED FROM THE PHILIPPINES TO OKINAWA ARE STRIKING JAPAN, IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY, ADDING THEIR WEIGHT TO THE ARMY SUPERFORTRESSES, MEDIUM BOMBERS, FIGHTERBOMBERS AND MARINE AND NAVY AIRCRAFT ALREADY HITTING THE ENEMY HOME ISLANDS.

AS GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR AND HIS AIR CHIEF, GEN.GEORGE C. KENNEY, ANNOUNCED THIS NEW POWER SHIFT IN THE AIR WAR AGAINST THE JAPANESE, DISPATCHES FROM GUAM AND IWO JIMA RECORDED A SERIES OF BLOWS BY ASSORTED ARMY, NAVY AND MARINE PLANES AGAINST THE MAIN ISLANDS OF HONSHU AND KYUSHU, THE RYUKYUS AND VITAL RAIL TRANSPORT IN KOREA.

FORTY-EIGHT MUSTANGS OF THE 35TH FIGHTER GROUP HIT SIX PLACES ON KYUSHU ON TUESDAY, WITHIN 36 HOURS OF ARRIVING AT THEIR NEW FIFTH AIR FORCE BASES ON OKINAWA. KENNEY DISCLOSED THE STRIKE WITH THIS PROMISE:

"THIS IS JUST THE START. WE WILL CONTINUE TO HAMMER JAPAN UNTIL SHE ACCEPTS UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER."

SLAM-BANG ENTRY OF THE FIFTH AIR FORCE FOUND THESE AIR UNITS ALREADY ENGAGED IN THE SAME CAMPAIGN:

20TH AIR FORCE, SUPERFORTRESSES, BASED IN THE MARIANAS AND COMMANDED BY MAJ.GEN.CURTIS E.LEMAY, NEWLY-PROMOTED FROM COMMAND OF THE 21ST BOMBER GROUP;

ARMY MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS, THUNDERBOLT FIGHTERS AND SECOND MARINE AIRCRAFT WING CORSAIR FIGHTERS AND AVNGER TORPEDO PLANES OF THE TACTICAL AIR FORCE BASED ON OKINAWA;

FLEET AIR WINGS ONE AND 18, PRIVATEERS AND SEAPLANES BASED IN THE OKINAWA AREA; AND

ARMY SEVENTH FIGHTER COMMAND MUSTANGS BASED ON IWO JIMA.

TO THIS LINEUP SOON IS TO BE ADDED THE ARMY EIGHTH AIR FORCE OF EUROPEAN FAME, UNDER LT.GEN.JAMES H.DOOLITTLE, WHICH IS TO INCLUDE SUPERFORTRESSES.

THE STRATEGIC AIR FORCES, THE EIGHTH AND THE 20TH, HAVE BEEN PLACED UNDER COMMAND OF GEN.CARL A.SPAATZ, WHOSE STRATEGIC AIR FORCES DELIVERED THE LONG-RANGE AERIAL KNOCKOUT BLOW TO GERMAN INDUSTRY.

THERE HAS BEEN NO ANNOUNCEMENT CONCERNING KENNEY'S 13TH AIR FORCE, NOW SUPPORTING BORNEO OPERATIONS.

WITHOUT WAITING FOR ADDITIONS, OR FOR COMPLETION OF THE PLANNED 25 MILES OF RUNWAYS ON OKINAWA, THE AIR FORCES ALREADY WITHIN REACH OF JAPAN WERE POUNDING AWAY STEADILY IN A WAR OF ATTRITION.

THE FIFTH AIR FORCE FIGHTERS HIT THE KYUSHU CITIES OF TOJIMBARA, BYU, IZUMI, CHIRAN AND OMURA, AND SANK THREE ENEMY FLOAT PLANES IN THE NORTHERN KYUSHU HARBOR OF FUKUOKA. THOSE WERE THE ONLY ENEMY PLANES THEY SIGHTED IN A TWO-HOUR SWEEP OVER JAPAN, ALTHOUGH ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS MODERATE TO HEAVY.

NAVY PRIVATEER PLANES IN A FOURTH OF JULY STRIKE BLOCKED SEVERAL RAILWAY TUNNELS AND DESTROYED TWO BRIDGES AND TWO LOCOMOTIVES ON THE MAIN LINE TO MANCHURIA IN THEIR FIRST OPERATION AGAINST SOUTHWESTERN KOREA. THE TARGETS WERE IN THE VICINITY OF KANGGYONG.

NAVY SEAPLANES AND MARINE FIGHTERS AND TORPEDO-CARRIERS SANK SIX SMALL JAPANESE VESSELS NEAR SOUTHERN KOREA AND IN THE EAST CHINA SEA WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY, AND THE MARINES ALSO RAIDED OKINOYERABU AND KIKAI ISLANDS NORTH OF OKINAWA.

TIGHTENING THE AERIAL BLOCKADE OF JAPAN ALL THE WAY DOWN THE ASIATIC COAST, MACARTHUR ANNOUNCED NEW BLOWS WEDNESDAY AGAINST FORMOSA'S WEST COAST NANTO SUGAR REFINERY AND A MANGANESE PLANT AT GIRAN IN THE NORTHEAST. AND SWEEPS OVER SOUTH CHINA AND INDO-CHINA WHICH INCLUDED SETTING FIRE TO THE HONAW ARMS PLANT IN THE CANTON AREA.

DURING JUNE, THESE BLOCKADING PLANES HAVE SUNK OR BADLY DAMAGED 164,800 TONS OF ENEMY SHIPPING, BRINGING THEIR TOTAL FOR SIX MONTHS TO 2,282,000 TONS IN THE BLOCKADE AREA FROM SHANGHAI SOUTHWARD TO JAVA.

A STRIKE LED BY LT.CMDR.A.F.FARWELL OF PENSACOLA, FLA., HIT FOUR BRIDGES, ONE TRAIN, ONE TUNNEL, ONE WATER DAM AND POWER STATION NEAR SUSAN AND BOMBED GUNZAN, KOREA'S LARGEST AIRSTRIP. IN THE SAME PLANE WERE CO-PILOT W.P.WHITMORE OF CHICAGO AND NAVIGATOR W.B.BOWERS OF BATLE CREEK, MICH.

HIS WINGMAN WAS PILOT LT.JOHN DOOLEY OF SCITUATE, MASS., WITH CO-PILOT ENS.R.D.MONTI OF ST.LOUIS.

ANOTHER STRIKE LED BY PILOT J.D.SERRELL OF MINNEAPOLIS, AND CO-PILOT H.R.JONES OF JOLIET, ILL., AND NAVIGATOR J.E.HAYS OF SOUTH ACTON, MASS., EXPLODED FOUR TRAINS, CAVED IN A TUNNEL ENTRANCE, HIT A POWER STATION, DESTROYED A DOUBLE TRACK RAIL BRIDGE, A LIGHTHOUSE AND A RADIO STATION AND LANDED A 500 POUND BOMB ON A DAM.

SERRILL'S BOMBARDIERS WERE P.J.HERRILL, MEDFORD, JUL 7 1945 MASS., AND S.A.PHILLIPS OF CALUMET, OKLA.

ANOTHER FLIGHT LED BY LT.CMDR.BENNING KNOCKED OUT A SINGLE TRACK BRIDGE AND EXPLODED A FREIGHT LOCOMOTIVE, DESTROYED A POWER STATION, STRAFED AND FIRED ANOTHER LOCOMOTIVE PULLING A FREIGHT PASSENGER TRAIN, AND CAVED IN A TUNNEL AND DESTROYED A LIGHTHOUSE.

WITH BENNING WAS CO-PILOT F.E.VAN DYKE OF FLUSHING, LONG ISLAND, N.Y., NAVIGATOR GEORGE A.TODD OF HANNIBAL, MO., CO-PILOT J.B. YOUNT OF VANDERGRIFT, PA., AND NAVIGATOR W.A.WELSH OF WILMINGTON, DEL.

AT ONE TIME, BENNING CIRCLED A TRAIN AND GAVE THE PASSENGERS AND CREW TIME TO RUN INTO A NEARBY WHEATFIELD FOR SAFETY BEFORE HE FIRED THE TRAIN.

FARWELL SAID THERE WAS WIDESPREAD ACTIVITY OVER KOREA WITH HEAVY TRAFFIC MOVING TOWARD MANCHURIA AND JAPAN PORTS.

LT.GEORGE MCDONALD OF SANTA BARBARA, CALIF., AND LT.ROBERT J.MONAHAN OF (2834 NORTH MURRAY AVE.) MILWAUKEE, SANK FOUR SHIPS--ONE MEDIUM AND THREE SMALL FREIGHTERS--AT THE MOUTH OF THE YANGTZE RIVER 20 MILES EAST OF SHANGHAI.

"WE MADE PERFECT HITS ON TWO FREIGHTERS WHICH BROKE IN TWO AND STOOD UP IN THE WATER IN A V SHAPE WITH BOW AND STERN HIGH IN THE AIR. WITHIN 60 SECONDS THEY PLUNGED UNDER THE WAVES."

THE FLIERS SAID THERE WERE MANY WRECKS IN THE MOUTH OF THE YANGTZE, SOME OF THEM BIG SHIPS.

OKINAWA, JULY 6-(AP)-GEN.JOSEPH W.STILWELL, COMMANDING THE U.S.TENTH ARMY AND AMERICAN FORCES ON OKINAWA, TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE TODAY THAT IN HIS OPINION "WE MUST MEET THE JAP IN HIS HOMELAND AND KILL HIM," BECAUSE AIR ASSAULT ALONE WOULD NOT WIN THE WAR.

30.24 28/99

"VINEGAR JOE" THEN LAUGHED AND ADDED THAT HE HAD BEEN WRONG ON SO MANY PREDICTIONS THAT ANOTHER MISTAKE WOULD NOT AFFECT HIS BATTING AVERAGE ONE BIT.

DURING THE DAY HE HAD CONFERRED WITH TWO AIR GENERALS.

"WE TALKED ABOUT JAPS," STILWELL SAID MEANINGFULLY.

A GREAT PART OF JAPANESE INDUSTRY HAS BEEN DEVASTATED AND "WE ARE WORKING ON SECOND-RATE CITIES NOW," HE DECLARED.

"BUT NO MATTER WHAT THE AIR PEOPLE SAY, IT IS MY OPINION THAT AIR WAR ALONE WON'T WHIP THE JAPS."

HE SAID THERE WAS NOT SUFFICIENT ROOM ON THE PACIFIC ISLANDS THE AMERICANS NOW HOLD FOR ALL THE AIRFIELDS WE WOULD LIKE TO HAV ADDED THAT "WE'D PROBABLY FEEL THAT WAY ABOUT IT REGARDLESS O HOW MUCH ROOM WE HAD."

A142FX

THE GENERAL ASSERTED HE HAD FOUND NO EVIDENCE OF JAPANESE MORALE CRACKING; IN FACT, "ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS LOOK AROUND AT PRISONER OF WAR CAMPS ON OKINAWA. THEY DON'T LOOK TOO BAD." THE JAPANESE MUST FEEL DEPRESSED OVER RESULTS OF THE OKINAWA, CAMPAIGN, HOWEVER, HE ACKNOWLEDGED.

STILWELL SAID THE UNITED STATES ARMY, NAVY AND MARINES ARE AS GOOD AS ANYTHING THE WORLD EVER PRODUCED, AND THAT ON OKINAWA FOR THE FIRST TIME IN HISTORY NON-BATTLE CASUALTIES WERE FEWER THAN BATTLE CASUALTIES--A TRIBUTE TO AMERICAN MEDICS, METHODS, LOGISTICS AND MILITARY GENIUS, HE ASSERTED.

"THIS TEAM NOW HAS HAD A LOT OF PRACTICE TOGETHER AND IT'S GOOD," HE CONCLUDED.

BALIKPAPAN, JULY 5-(DELAYED)-(AP)-AMERICAN AMPHIBIOUS TRACTOR CREWS FOUND JAPANESE WERE "ROTTEN MARKSMEN," IN A BRIEF FLURRY OF ARTILLERY FIRE DURING THE SHORT-TO-SHORE MOVEMENT IN WHICH AUSTRALIANS CAPTURED PENADJAM POINT AND SECURED BALIKPAPAN BAY

"THEY DROPPED A FEW MORTARS AND 20 MILLIMETER SHELLS BUT DIDN'T COME CLOSE," SAID SGT.ORRIE R.MAGNIN, 316 ADAMS, OCONTO FALLS, WIS., WHO WAS IN ONE OF THE LEADING TANKS.

MORE THAN 50 AMTRACS OF THE 672ND AMPHIBIOUS TRACTOR BATTALION FERRIED THE AUSSIES ON THEIR FOUR-HOUR TRIP FROM THE BEACHHEAD TO THE NARROW POINT OF LAND ACROSS THE BAY.

"AFTER ALL THAT, WE RAN INTO HEAVY MUCK ASHORE," SAID TECHNICIAN 5TH CLASS EDWARD SCHEARER, HOAGLAND, IND., IN MAGNIN'S TRACTOR. "THE TOUGHEST JOB WAS PULLING OURSELVES OUT AFTER THE TROOPS LANDED."

THIS AMTRAC--THE VIOLATOR II--WAS THE FIRST BACK TO THE BEACHHEAD, WINNING A BET FROM OTHER CREWS. SGT.RICHARD CLUKEY, 20 PRENTISS ST., OLD TOWN, MAINE, ALSO WAS ABOARD.

THREE TANKS AND OTHER EQUIPMENT WERE FERRIED IN LCM'S OF COMPANY A, 593RD ENGINEER BOAT SHORE BATTALION, COMMANDED BY CAPT. JOHN C.SEALE, GREENVILLE, ALA.

BALIKPAPAN, SATURDAY, JULY 7-(AP)-ALLIED WARCRAFT ALREADY HAVE FIRED MORE THAN 1,250 TONS OF SHELLS, AND BOMBERS OF ALL TYPES HAVE DROPPED MORE THAN 3,000 TONS OF BOMBS IN SUPPORT OF THE BALIKPAPAN INVASION, REAR ADM.ALBERT G.NOBLE, IN DIRECT COMMAND OF THE LANDING, SAID TODAY IN AN INTERVIEW.

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THIS THEATER OF WAR, LANDING FORCES STRUCK SQUARELY IN THE CENTER OF THE ENEMY'S STRONGEST DEFENSES.

AUSTRALIAN FIELD COMMANDERS SAID THIS WAS DONE BECAUSE BALIKPAPAN HAD TO BE TAKEN--AND THAT MEANT SMACKING INTO THESE DEFENSES SOONER OR LATER.

THE INVASION COULD HAVEBEEN "ANOTHER IWO JIMA," THEY ACKNOWLEDGED, EXCEPT THAT HERE THE JAPANESE HAD ROOM TO FLEE FROM THE TERRIFIC PREINVASION BOMBARDMENT.

ADMIRAL NOBLE SAID THE PRELIMINARY BOMBARDMENTS WERE SO THOROUGH "NO BUILDING REMAINED UNDAMAGED" AND THE JAPANESE WERE DRIVEN INLAND.

"I SHOT UP ONE PLANE ON THE GROUND AT IRUMIGAWA AIRFIELD," SAID CRIM, "AND OUT OVER SAGAMI BAY MY FLIGHT WAS JUMPED BY FIVE JAPS--TWO ZEKES AND THREE JACKS.

"TWO OF THE JACKS MADE A STERN ATTACK. I BROKE INTO THEM, FIRING, AND ONE BLEW UP."

JUL 7 1945

CRIM HAS FIVE AIR KILLS TO HIS CREDIT.

CAPT.J.B.BAKER OF LAKE CORMORANT, MISS., PURSUED ANOTHER JACK FIGHTER DOWN FROM 17,000 TO 5,000 FEET AND LEFT THE ENEMY BURNING BUT DID NOT SEE HIM CRASH.

LT.JOSEPH MORRISON, JR., OF 1410 PORTER ST., RICHMOND, VA., LED A STRAFING RUN ACROSS KATORI FIELD AT 15-FOOT ALTITUDE AND REPORTED, "I SAW THREE JACKS PARKED TOGETHER. I HIT ONE AND IT BURST INTO FLAMES AND SEEMED TO GO ALL TO PIECES."

(ADVANCE FOR PMS FRIDAY, JULY 6--EDITORS NOTE DATE)
(ADVANCE)...WASHINGTON, JULY 6-(-0)-ATTACKED BY SEVEN JAPANESE SUICIDE PILOTS, THE DESTROYER NEWCOMB BAGGED THREE BUT WAS TURNED INTO A SCENE OF WRECKAGE BY THE OTHERS.

THE NEWCOMB SUFFERED 91 CASUALTIES WHILE ANOTHER WARSHIP, THE DESTROYER LEUTZE, COUNTED 84 AS THE LAST JAPANESE FANATIC SKIDDED ACROSS THE NEWCOMB AND INTO THE STERN OF THE LEUTZE WHICH HAD PULLED ALONGSIDE TO GIVE AID. BOTH SURVIVED.

THE NAVY, RECOUNTING ANOTHER TALE OF AMERICAN HEROISM AT SEA, SAID THE BATTLE BLAZED TWO HOURS LATE ON APRIL 6 WHEN THE NEWCOMB WAS SUPPORTING HEAVY FLEET UNITS NEAR IE SHIMA IN THE RYUKYUS OFF SOUTHERN JAPAN. THE SUICIDE PLANES TRICKLED THROUGH A SCREEN OF INTERCEPTING U.S. FIGHTERS WHICH HAD BLOCKED A VERY LARGE FORMATION OF ENEMY FLYERS.

VIRTUALLY DISEMBOWELED, THE NAVY SAID THE NEWCOMB, "SEASONED VETERAN OF PACIFIC WARFARE FROM THE MARSHALLS THROUGH IWO, IS AFLOAT TODAY BECAUSE HER HEROIC CREW, MANY WITH HAIR AFLAME AND CLOTHES BURNED OFF, REFUSED TO GIVE HER UP EVEN WHEN ALL POWER AND COMMUNICATION WAS LOST AND MORE THAN HALF OF THE SHIP WAS ENVELOPED IN FLAMES."

JUL 7 1945

THE FIRST KAMIKAZE PILOT WAS CUT DOWN 20 FEET FROM THE NEWCOMB, AND ONCE. A SECOND TRIED HIS LUCK BUT WAS HIT AND, AS THE COMMANDING OFFICER, COMDR. IRA E. MC MILLIAN, FORT WORTH, TEX., TURNED THE DESTROYER SHARPLY, THE JAPANESE PLOPPED HARMLESSLY INTO ITS WAKE.

THE THIRD JAPANESE STRUCK AMIDSHIPS, ALTHOUGH HIT. THE PLANE SPRAYED GASOLINE, STEAM SHOT FROM A BOILER AND THE AMIDSHIP SECTION BECAME AN INFERNO.

THE FOURTH JAPANESE WAS CUT DOWN FAR OFF BY THE NEWCOMB GUNNERS, MANY OF WHOM HAD BEEN THROWN BODILY FROM THEIR STATIONS BY THE HIT. THEN TWO MORE PLANES TOOK UP THE ATTACK AT THE SAME MOMENT. ONE SLAMMED INTO THE NEWCOMB AMIDSHIPS WITH A TERRIFIC BLAST.

ALL POWER WAS LOST, THE ENGINE ROOMS WERE WRECKED, AMMUNITION MAGAZINES WERE ABLAZE AND THE GUN HANDLING ROOMS ON FIRE. SMOKE AND FLAME SHOT 1,000 YARDS INTO THE AIR. THE SHIP STOOD STILL.

THE SIXTH JAPANESE, STRUCK BY ACCURATE GUNFIRE THROWN FROM THE MIDST OF THE SMOKE AND FLAME, KEPT COMING, SLAMMED INTO THE FORWARD STACK AND MORE GASOLINE SPLASHED INTO THE MOLTEN WRECKAGE AMIDSHIPS.

THE LEUTZE WAS COMING AT HIGH SPEED, DARING HEAVY SEAS AND THE PERIL OF THE NEWCOMB'S FLAMING MAGAZINES. THE LEUTZE'S COMMANDING OFFICER, LT. LEON GRABOWSKY, PATERSON, N.J., MANEUVERED ALONGSIDE, AND HER FIREFIGHTERS, DOCTORS AND HOSPITAL CORPSMEN POURED ABOARD THE NEWCOMB.

A86WX
AT THIS MOMENT, THE PILOT OF THE SEVENTH JAPANESE PLANE AIMED FOR BOTH SHIPS, SETTING HIS COURSE FOR THE NEWCOMB'S BRIDGE. BOTH DESTROYERS OPENED FIRE, AND THE PLANE'S WING WAS HIT, SWERVING IT FROM THE BRIDGE, BUT IT SCRAPED THE DECK OF THE NEWCOMB AND RAMMED INTO THE STERN OF THE LEUTZE.

JUL 7 1945

ANOTHER DESTROYER RACED TO THE NEWCOMB'S AID AS THE HARD-HIT LEUTZE BEGAN TO DRIFT AWAY, HER CREW FIGHTING HER OWN FIRES AND AIDING HER WOUNDED. THE NEWCOMB'S FIRES WERE OUT IN ANOTHER HALF HOUR AND BOTH REACHED REPAIR BASES.

AT ONE TIME THE LEUTZE'S FANTAIL WAS TWO FEET UNDER WATER.

AMMUNITION
(ADVANCE)..WASHINGTON,JULY 6-(AP)-AMERICAN ARMIES FIGHTING GERMANY WITH CANNON SOMETIMES IDLE FOR LACK OF AMMUNITION RECEIVED HUGE TONNAGES OF AIR BOMBS THEY COULDN'T USE.

DISCLOSING THIS TODAY THE SENATE WAR INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE ALSO SAID AMERICAN DELAY IN SENDING JET PROPULSION PLANES TO EUROPE VERY NEARLY ALLOWED THE GERMANS, ALREADY FAR AHEAD IN THEIR PRODUCTION, TO REGAIN AIR SUPREMACY OVER EUROPE.

"FOR OVER A YEAR," THE COMMITTEE SAID IN REPORTING ON EXTENSIVE INVESTIGATIONS HERE AND ABROAD, "OUR AIR CORPS IN THE FIELD HAD BEEN ADVISING PROCUREMENT OFFICIALS AT HOME OF THE IMMINENCE OF THIS SITUATION.

"YET, UP TO THE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES ONLY TWO AMERICAN JET PLANES HAD FOUND THEIR WAY TO THE EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS."

THE UNWANTED AIR BOMBS, THE COMMITTEE SAID, WERE ONE TYPE OF 20 POUNDERS IN 500 POUND CLUSTERS AND ANOTHER OF 260-POUND FRAGMENTATION BOMBS. THE REPORT SAID AIR FORCE OFFICERS IN THE FIELD TESTIFIED "THEY HAD NO USE FOR ONE (THE FORMER) TYPE AND A VERY LIMITED USE FOR THE OTHER.

"THESE BOMBS WERE SIMPLY ALLOWED TO ACCUMULATE, DESPITE THE FACT THAT ON SOME OCCASIONS THE AIR FORCES WERE WITHOUT MORE USEFUL TYPES OF BOMBS WHICH THEY DESIRED TO ENABLE THEM TO COMPLETE MISSIONS. X X X

"WITNESSES IN THE UNITED STATES CONTEND THAT THE THEATER ORDERED THESE QUANTITIES TO BE SHIPPED, WHEREAS THE UNANIMOUS TESTIMONY OF OFFICERS IN THE THEATER WAS THAT THEY DID NOT DESIRE THESE BOMBS AND THE BOMBS IN EFFECT WERE FORCED UPON THEM."

THE COMMITTEE SAID AN ARTILLERY AMMUNITION SHORTAGE IN 105 AND 155-MILLIMETER CALIBERS DEVELOPED IN OCTOBER, 1944, AND NEVER WAS OVERCOME, REQUIRING THE SEVENTH ARMY TO TAKE SOME OF THE AVAILABLE SUPPLIES FROM THE ITALIAN FRONT SO IT COULD LAND IN SOUTHERN FRANCE.

A8WX

"IT WAS ALSO TESTIFIED BY THESE (SEVENTH ARMY) OFFICERS THAT ON SOME OCCASIONS DECISIONS TO REFRAIN FROM ATTACKING WERE PREDICATED ON AN INSUFFICIENCY OF ARTILLERY AMMUNITION TO SUSTAIN THE PARTICULAR ATTACKS," THE COMMITTEE STATED.

IT SAID THERE HAD BEEN "A GENERAL MISCONCEPTION" AT HOME THAT THE FAULT WAS DUE TO A FAILURE ON THE PART OF THE PLANTS PRODUCING THE AMMUNITION.

SAYING THIS WAS ENTIRELY UNTRUE, THE COMMITTEE LAID THE WHOLE BLAME TO A "FAILURE TO PLAN PROCUREMENT FOR SUFFICIENT QUANTITIES OF THE DESIRED TYPES OF AMMUNITION IN TIME TO OBTAIN THEM."

WHILE REPORTING THAT "AS A WHOLE, THE COLOSSAL TASK OF SUPPLYING OUR VICTORIOUS TROOPS WAS A TREMENDOUS SUCCESS," THE COMMITTEE CALLED FOR AN OVERHAUL OF THE PROCUREMENT SYSTEM TO REFLECT MORE RAPIDLY CHANGES IN REQUIREMENTS.

THE RETURN TO WORK OF 16,700 CIO-UNITED RUBBER WORKERS TO THE GOVERNMENT SEIZED GOODYEAR TIRE AND RUBBER COMPANY PLANTS IN AKRON, O., WAS EXPECTED, FOLLOWING A 20-DAY STRIKE, BUT OTHER STOPPAGES THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY KEPT IDLE SOME 50,000 MEN AND WOMEN.

THE SOUTH CHICAGO PLANT OF THE CARNEGIE-ILLINOIS STEEL COMPANY, A COMPANY SPOKESMAN SAID, WAS FORCED TO SHUT DOWN TODAY, IDLING 13,000 EMPLOYES, FOLLOWING A WORK STOPPAGE BY 50 PLANT CIO RAILROAD OPERATORS. THE PLANT'S NORMAL PRODUCTION OF STEEL FOR THE WAR EFFORT IS 10,500 TONS EVERY 24 HOURS, AND IT RANKS SECOND TO THE COMPANY'S HUGE GARY (IND.) PLANT IN SIZE.

IN CLEVELAND, REPUBLIC STEEL CORPORATION'S HUGE CONTINUOUS STRIP MILL WAS CLOSED BY AN "UNAUTHORIZED" STOPPAGE BY 100 CIO UNITED STEELWORKERS AND LABOR DISPUTES KEPT IDLE 4,100 COAL MINERS IN EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA, CUTTING ANTHRACITE PRODUCTION 12,500 TONS DAILY.

A COMPANY SPOKESMAN AT THE CARNEGIE-ILLINOIS COMPANY SAID THE STOPPAGE BY THE RAILROAD OPERATORS STEMMED FROM A STRIKE LAST WEEK BY 30 MAINTENANCE MEN, WHICH RESULTED IN THE LAYING OFF OF RAILROAD WORKERS. THEY CHARGED THAT SENIORITY RIGHTS HAD BEEN IGNORED IN THE LAY-OFFS.

REPUBLIC STEEL OFFICIALS SAID THE STOPPAGE AT THE STRIP MILL, WHICH STARTED MONDAY, MAY CAUSE COMPANY FINISHING UNITS TO SHUT DOWN FOR LACK OF MATERIALS. CIO OFFICIALS SAID THEY WOULD URGE THE STEEL-WORKERS TO RETURN TO THEIR POSTS.

MacArthur's Fliers Continue Attacks—Nimitz Bags Nine Ships

Guam, SUNDAY, July 8—(AP)—More attacks on Japanese shipping and air bases extending from the Ryukyus up to the coast of Honshu, where 600 Superfortresses heavily raided five homeland cities without loss Saturday, were disclosed today in latest communiques.

NIGHT

Kyushu, southernmost Japanese island, has been raided for the third straight day by Fifth Air Force planes newly based on Okinawa, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported fram Manila headquarters which covers the Fifth's operations. They shot down four of six planes encountered Thursday and probably destroyed the other two, without loss to themselves.

Off the south coast of Honshu, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported today, Mitchell bombers of the Fourth Marine Aircraft Wing sent rockets into four Japanese ships Friday.

Enemy air bases north and south of Okinawa were pounced on Friday and Saturday by Marine aircraft which set seven grounded planes ablaze.

Nine Jap Ships Blasted

In all, Nimitz listed a bag of nine enemy ships, including five cargo vessels damaged while at anchor off the China coast in the Yellow Sea yesterday.

The B-29s, making their fourth attack in six days, burned and blasted five aluminum, oil, rail and industrial centers with 4,000 tons of bombs in the pre-dawn hours of Saturday.

No Japanese fighters challenged the raiding mission, probably the largest yet, the Twentieth Air Force announced today. Anti-aircraft fire was meager and inaccurate.

The attacks brought to 30 the number of Japanese homeland cities hit by B-29 fire raids. Reconnaisance photographs showed the total area of runs, now accurately observed in 25 of the cities, had reached more than 126 square miles.

Fires Blaze Around Fuji

Crews of the Superfortresses in Saturday's mission saw fires blazing through clouds around Nippon's majestic Mt. Fuji.

The 12,000-foot peak, highest in Japan, reflected towering infernos above the Shimizu aluminum producing center, Nippon's largest, and the cities of Kofu and Chiba.

Long lines of refugee vehicles were sighted fleeing from Kofu.

The flames at Shimizu raged to the waterfront.

Other targets, outside the Mt. Fuji area, were the Maruzen Oil Refinery, 35 miles southwest of Osaka, and Akashi, aircraft producing city near Kobe.

Most spectacular of the conflagrations was at Shimizu, 20 miles southwest of Fuji. The flames literally burned the clouds apart, reported Lieut. Samuel Hooks, of Goldsboro, N. C. He explained the phenomenon was caused by thermal air currents.

Fires were observed blazing through the clouds above Kofu, about 15 miles northwest of Fuji, and smoke columns rose 20,000 feet above Chiba, 40 miles northeast of Fuji, across Tokyo Bay.

The conflagration at the Maruzen Refinery blazed through the early morning darkness "like a terrific tropical sunset," reported Capt. Carleton Lee, of Atlanta, Ga.

Japs Admit Raids

(Japanese Army and Navy district communiques, as broadcast by Tokyo radio and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, claimed the B-29s struck around midnight Friday and during early Saturday and that fires were under control by dawn. The communiques estimated more than 400 B-29s participated and failed to claim any was shot down.)

The returning B-29 crewmen said Japanese fighter opposition was nil and anti-aircraft fire generally light.

Latest reconnaissance photographs of previous raid damage showed five square miles of ruins in Himeji, Kure, Kumamoto and Ube on Honshu Island and in Hochi on Shikoku Island.

The Hitachi Engineering Works near Sukegawa was shown almost completely knocked out. Light damage was observable at the Nippon Oil Refinery near Kudamatsu.

Seventh Air Force Mustang fighters from Iwo Jima reported they destroyed eight Japanese planes and damaged 25 others in a strafing sweep over the Tokyo area and Kyushu Island airfields, Friday. They found few Japanese planes in the air. Most of those hit were on fields.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Saturday communique announced Fifth Air Force fighters newly based at Okinawa, made their second raid on the Japanese mainland July 4. As in the initial attack the previous day the raiders struck at airfields against "light opposition."

600 B-29s Hit 5 Cities.

Guam, July 7 (A. P.).—New fires, touched off by about 600 night-raiding Superforts, swept through five Japanese cities today, adding major aluminum-producing and oil refinery areas to the 126 square miles of industrial Japan already knocked out by B-29s.

As jubilant airmen returning from today's pre-dawn strike told of gigantic conflagrations, the Twenty-first Bomber Command announced reconnaissance photographs showed five additional square miles burned out in recent strikes on five other cities. They were Kure, Himeji, Ube on Honshu Island and Kochi on Shikoku. This makes the 126 square mile total.

Another major oil refinery hit today in perhaps the largest raid of the war blazed through the clouds "like a terrific tropical sunset." The greatest blaze lighted by the Superforts' 4,000 tons of incendiaries and high explosives was in Japan's largest aluminum producing center.

[The Twentieth Air Force Headquarters in Washington reported that no planes were lost on the five-way raid. Jap fighter plane opposition was described as absent and anti-aircraft fire as meager and inaccurate. At Kofu, returning flyers reported, huge fires were burning and a long line of vehicles were observed leaving the city. The strike against the port city of Shimizu started fires that raged to the water front.]

The mission was the fourth in six days in which the B-29s have dumped 11,000 tons of bombs on Japan.

JUL 8 1945

Two Cities Burn.

Targets in today's big B-29 strike in the dark hours between midnight and dawn were:

Shimizu, twenty miles southwest of Mount Fuji and site of a plant that produced half of Japan's aluminum;

Shimotsu, thirty-five miles southwest of Osaka and site of the big Maruzen oil refinery, one of the empire's most vital plants;

Kofu, seventy miles west of Tokyo, city of 100,000, with rail shops, spinning mills and military barracks;

Chiba, twenty miles southeast of Tokyo on Tokyo Bay, railway junction and military depot center; and Akashi, home factory of the Kawasaki Aircraft Company, hit in four previous raids and already 71 per cent destroyed.

Most spectacular blow of the five was struck at Shimizu, where returning flyers used the word "conflagration"—superlative in the fiery language of B-29 crews—to describe the results.

Fires Cause Currents.

"The fires were so terrific they caused thermal currents that broke up the clouds and permitted good visibility," said Lieut. Samuel Hooks of Goldsboro, N. C.

Glowing gold and crimson through the clouds, the Maruzen refinery looked "like a terrific tropical sunset," said Capt. Carleton Lee of Atlanta, Ga.

"The clouds below us were like a solid sheet of flame."

Lieut. David Ricaud of 259 Fisher avenue, White Plains, N. Y., reported six enemy fighters made continual passes at his plane but the pilot, Major William Hensley, San Antonio, Tex., balked them by evasive action.

[The Tokyo radio, acknowledging the raids, said fires were started at Chiba and "a few other lesser cities," but contended all were put out this morning. The enemy broadcast, recorded by the FCC, identified one city hit as Kainan, but this is so near Shimotsu that apparently the same locality was meant. The Japanese said the raids lasted three and one-half to four hours.]

Bombers who hit Kofu reported sighting large fires burning beneath the clouds, while those at Chiba set fires which pushed up towering smoke columns 20,000 feet into the clear sky above the undercast. Observation at Akashi was limited.

126 Square Miles Are Laid Waste By U. S. Raids on 25 Jap Cities

Guam, July 7 (A. P.).—The ruin wrought by Superfortress fire raids covers more than 126 square miles in twenty-five Japanese industrial cities. Reconnaissance photographs today disclosed five square miles of new damage in five more cities—Himeji, Kure, Kumamoto and Ube, on Honshu, and Kochi on the south central island of Shikoku. Raid damage in five other cities remains to be assessed.

Today's photographs further disclosed the almost complete ruin of the Hitachi Engineering Works near Sukegawa and light damage to the Nippon oil refinery near Kudamatsu on the south coast of Honshu, fronting on the Inland Sea.

Here are the burned-out areas of each of the twenty-five cities:

Tokyo, 56.30 square miles; Nagoya, 12.33; Yokohama, 8.94; Osaka, 16.93; Kawasaki, 3.37; Kobe, 6.80; Hamamatsu, 1.81; Kagoshima, 2.085; Shizuoka, 2.28; Yokkaichi, 1.23; Toyohashi, 1.70; Amagasaki, .71; Fukuoka, 1.30; Omuta, .11.

Moji, .32; Shimonoseki, .51; Sasebo, .41; Nobeoka, .515; Tokushima, 1.70; Okayama, 2.13; Himeji, 1.38; Kure, 1.50; Ube, .42; Kumamoto, .80; Kochi, .92.

24 Liaison Planes Make Long Flight

Okinawa, July 5 [AP—Delayed]. In close formation, unarmed and skirting Japanese-held islands, 24 little army liaison planes flew today from northern Luzon to Yontan airfield on Okinawa, 748 miles, in seven and one half hours.

It was the longest overwater hop ever made by the L-5 planes, which are only slightly modified from the two-place civilian sport ships of the "cub" classification, which are used for evacuation of wounded, movement of personnel and artillery spotting or messenger work.

Little Planes Protected

Pilots of larger planes frankly were skeptical that the small craft could make it.

Two army air search rescue Catalina amphibians mothered the little planes on the long trip. Each was prepared to pick up liaison pilots from the water in event of a crash landing.

Not an engine failure, not a sign of major difficulty was reported over the phones with which all of the L-5 pilots were in constant communications with the "Cats" and flight leaders.

BALIKPAPAN BAY NOW COMPLETELY IN AUSSIE HANDS

Invasion Ahead of Schedule —First Phase Has Ended —Casualties Light.

Manila, July 7 (A. P.).—First phase of the fight for southeast Borneo's flaming oil centers has ended ahead of schedule, Russell Brines, Associated Press correspondent, reported today from the swiftly moving Aussie front.

Australia's veteran Seventh Division crossed the three-mile-wide mouth of Balikpapan Bay Thursday in American-manned Amtracs and LCMs to secure both shores and complete their immediate tasks. These were: Capture of the town, seizure of Sepinggang and Manggar airstrips and control of the bay.

Hours—even minutes—there were vital as the Aussies first landed among some of the strongest Japanese defenses in the southwest Pacific now are secondary, Brines reported.

Casualties, which Brines said

30.24 - 28205

could have equalled Iwo Jima's toll, actually were only 214 Australian dead, twenty-two missing and 420 wounded, primarily because at Balikpapan "the Japanese had room to flee from the terrific pre-invasion bombardment." On tiny Iwo there was no room.

3031 Japs Killed.

Japanese have lost 3,031 dead and 274 prisoners in all Borneo operations, including those on the north coast, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported.

The Australians' hop across Balikpapan Bay secured Penadjam Point, site of Japanese coastal batteries, and troops were thrusting inland across swampy ground against light opposition.

Tough, close-in fighting was reported at the Pandansari refinery near Balikpapan, and the enemy also was resisting strongly as his main force withdrew toward the Sambodja oil fields.

The Aussies now hold eighteen miles of the coast from Penadjam to Manggar Airfield, ten air miles northeast of Balikpapan. Sambodja is fifteen miles north of the airfield.

A few mortar shells harassed the bay crossing, and coastal guns and 75-millimeter artillery hampered the Sambodja drive.

North of Balikpapan other Aussie units proved enemy positions around the Baroe Peninsula across the Pandansari River. Farther eastward a parallel push progressed slowly along the road to Samarinda, fifty-five miles northeast of Balikpapan — the last enemy-held oil producing area in southeast Borneo.

Allied warships which supported the invasion fired more than 1,250 tons of shells, and bombers dropped more than 3,000 tons of high explosives on shoreline defenses, Rear Admiral Albert G. Noble disclosed.

ported today.

Other elements of the same Australian division were driving northward towards the Sambodja and Samarinda Oil Fields, 23 and 55 miles, respectively, northeast of Balikpapan. Mined roads and artillery fire were used by the withdrawing enemy to defend these last two important Japanese-held oil areas.

One Japanese plane raided the Balikpapan area without result, and Allied planes supporting the ground offensive "ranged at will over Borneo," Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique said. Two Japanese freighters were destroyed at the southern port of Bandjermasin.

Jungle Dangers Cited

In their flight northward, the Japanese had the choice of a death stand, surrender in the marshy oil lands, or escape into the unexplored jungle domain of the head-hunting Dyaks to the westward.

"The Dyaks probably will finish them off," said Capt. J. W. Zylstra, of Amsterdam, commander of a Netherlands unit of Indonesians and West Indians scouting for the Aussies. Poisonous snakes and insects are other hazards of the jungle.

Balikpapan was secured Thursday with a swift cross-bay thrust in which the Australians captured Penadjam Point, putting Japanese coastal batteries out of action.

But the Aussies met stiff opposition in hand-to-hand fighting with an enemy naval ground force defending the Pandansari refinery north of Balikpapan.

Drive Ahead of Schedule

Capture of Penadjam Point, achieved with the aid of American-manned amphibious craft, put a swift end to the first five-day phase of the campaign, which is ahead of schedule, Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines reported from the battle zone.

The speedy five-day initial operation gave the Aussies command of 18 miles of the coast, from Pendjam to Manggar Airfield to the northeast, and two airfields—the 4,000-foot strip at Manggar and Sepinggan Drome.

Brines said the Japanese around Balikpapan had some of the strongest defenses Allied forces had encountered in the Southwest Pacific, but the enemy chose to withdraw its main force from the invasion poundings of Allied warships and planes.

Rear Adm. Albert G. Noble said the Allied warships had fired more than 1,250 tons of shells, while bombers had hit the Japanese shore positions with 3,000 tons of explosives.

Australian casualties, which would have been heavy had the Nipponese stayed to fight on the shore, were remarkably low. Headquarters reported yesterday 214 Aussies had been killed, with 22 more missing and 420 wounded.

Japanese dead, counted through all Borneo operations including the Australian invasions on the north coast, were 3,031, headquarters said. Prisoners totaled 274.

Drive Inland From Penadjam Port as Japs Flee North —Foe Faces Death Stand, Surrender, or Retreat Through Unexplored Jungle

Manila, SUNDAY, July 8—(AP)—Australian Seventh Division troops have pushed six miles northeastward beyond the now-secured Borneo oil port of Balikpapan and are thrusting steadily inland from Penadjam Point, across Balikpapan Bay, a Southwest Pacific communique reported today.

12 JAPANESE SPIES AND ONE FILIPINO HANGED IN MANILA

Caught in Civilian Clothes, They Were Attempting to Locate MacArthur.

Manila, July 7 (A. P.).—The Japanese sent spies into Manila after the capital's liberation with instructions to determine the location of Gen. MacArthur's headquarters—and a dozen of them were caught and hanged in June, military authorities disclosed today.

One officer said that the spies insisted they were given no instructions for any action against the American commander but were only to find where he was living.

One Filipino also was hanged. All were caught in civilian clothes. Some had hand grenades and written instructions. They were arrested by the counter intelligence corps as they entered Manila and were condemned by military court on pleas of guilty.

Officers declined to disclose details of how the spies were apprehended, but they described the enemy's methods as crude.

Most of the Japanese were former civilian residents of Manila who were taken into the enemy's military before the American invasion of Luzon.

The spies were also instructed to obtain the location of military objectives and find out the current value of the yen.

One officer said that none of the spies was believed to have returned to the Japanese with any information. Usually they did not even reach Manila. Some of those picked up said that they were sent out because the earlier spies had never returned.

The Japanese spies insisted that their lives were already forfeited when they accepted the mission and they refused to worry about death sentences. Instead they were happy to be alive as long as they were.

COL. JOCK CLIFFORD KILLED IN ACTION

With Twenty-fourth Division Near Davao, June 24 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The famed old "Rock of Chickamauga" Infantry regiment has lost one of the finest leaders in its long line of heroes.

Col. Thomas E. (Jock) Clifford Jr., Commander of the Nineteenth Regiment of the Twenty-fourth Division, was killed by successive enemy mortar shells while directing the bloody assault on the village of Tamogan.

Simple burial services for the former West Point football star were attended by the division commander, Major-Gen. Roscoe B. Woodruff. Otherwise, it was a typical soldier's burial as Jock would have wanted it.

Clifford won nationwide acclaim as center of the Army football teams of 1933, 34 and 35. His home was Ceredo, W. Va.; his mother lives at Ronceverte, W. Va. He won the Silver Star and the Distinguished Service Cross and the battalion he led during the Leyte fight won a Presidential citation.

His death came without warning. The first mortar shell crumpled Clifford to the ground, seriously wounded. His operating officer, Capt. Robert B. Chapman of Chicago, Ill., ran to his aid. A second mortar burst landed almost on top of the two men, killing Clifford and wounding Chapman. The Yanks promptly surged out of their holes and blasted the Japanese out of Tamogan.

THINKS JAPS MAY LOSE THEIR HEADS

Balikpapan, Borneo, July 7 (A. P.).—Head-hunting Dyak tribesmen probably will wipe out any Japanese soldiers who try to flee through the jungles to escape Allied troops in Borneo, a Netherlands Army officer declared today.

Capt. J. W. Zylstra of Amsterdam, commanding a Dutch unit attached to Australian forces, said that the fierce Dyaks are formidable fighters and very clever in the jungles.

"In addition to the head hunters the Japs will have to survive snakes, insects and terrain," Zylstra said." But the Dyaks probably will finish them off."

Soong's Trip To Moscow Spurs Talk Russians May Fight Japan

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

London, July 7—(AP)—Chinese Premier T. V. Soong's mission to Moscow raised increasing speculation in diplomatic quarters today over the possibility that Russia's role in the Pacific War would occupy a top place on the agenda of the approaching Big Three conference.

Responsible, but non-attributable sources, said flatly that it would be impossible to discuss Chinese-Soviet relations in the Far East without taking into consideration the outcome of the Japanese war and its impact upon Far Eastern affairs.

The belief Russia eventually would enter the war against Japan has been based on three factors:

1 — Long standing suspicion, which has resulted in both countries' maintaining strong armies on Russia's eastern border.

2—Russia's demonstrated determination, as evidenced by a request to participate in the Tangier discussion, to have a voice in settlements involving areas important to the preservation of world stability.

3—Soviet determination to surround the country with friendly governments, as demonstrated by the pressure which forced the creation of a new Polish government.

One American source said that discussions of co-ordinated European settlements would be handicapped unless an agreement is reached—at least on a general basis—on Russia's future in the Far East.

He took this position with the argument that any such settlements would set a precedent for future agreements in the Far East and that questions such as the use of international waterways, bases and control of former enemy territory, must be settled on a worldwide rather than a sectional basis.

The London Sunday Chronicle, in its principal page one story, said tonight:

"There are many indications Russia intends to change her neutrality toward Japan and come in with Great Britain and the United States to finish the war in the Far East in the shortest possible time. It is expected this matter will be fully discussed during the forthcoming meeting of the Big Three."

The Chronicle said the reported change in Russia's attitude was "due to the fact Stalin is aware that a future peace conference in Europe will have to be postponed till the war in the Far East is brought to a victorious end."

CHURCHILL SEES CHINA MINUS JAPS

London, July 7 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill predicted today "the day is not far distant" when the Japanese will be driven from all Chinese territory. This message to Chiang Kai-shek was made public soon after Churchill departed for Hendaye, France, where his office said "he hopes to have a few days' rest before attending the [illegible] conference."

He and Mrs. Churchill arrived at Bordeaux late today.

Churchill pledged Britain would concentrate all its efforts in cooperation with the Allies to win a final victory in the Pacific. His message marked the eighth anniversary of the war between China and Japan.

The last six weeks have been strenuous for the Prime Minister. He conducted a bitter election campaign and attended to many of the duties of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who is ailing.

The announcement from 10 Downing Street said that the French Government had been consulted on the visit, which "is purely of private character."

Papers Urge Unified Control

LONDON, July 7 (AP)—Unified Allied control over all Germany was urged by four leading British newspapers today in simultaneous editorials opposing splitting the Reich into four zones of occupation with different policies in each zone.

Declaring the dismemberment of Germany was creating grave economic and political problems, all insisted the question of an occupational government be threshed out at the coming Potsdam conference of the Big Three.

"Maintenance of German unity under supervision of the principal powers and through their joint action has become a first condition of the unity of Europe," the influential Times editorial said.

"A serious responsibility rests on the United States, Britain and Russia to work out in common new and constructive policies for that gradual rehabilitation, political and economic, of a defeated Germany which cannot be ignored or left to chance without incurring the gravest perils."

The conservative Yorkshire Post editorial said that the continuation of the Reich splitup "would mean a shortage of industrial goods in some parts and of food in others, with great curtailment of Germany's capacity to effect reparations."

The Laborite Daily Herald editorial declared that "for want of a consistent Allied policy, the seeds of difficulty and dispute are being sown."

The Daily Telegraph editorial asked the Allies "to avert a catastrophic [German] collapse which would indefinitely postpone world recovery."

AFL UNDER ATTACK BY SOVIET MAGAZINE

LONDON, July 7 (AP)—The New Times, organ of Russian trade unions, today accused the American Federation of Labor of attempting to "disrupt international unity among the organized workers." The Moscow radio gave excerpts from the New Times article in an English language broadcast recorded here by the Soviet monitor.

The Soviet magazine named William Green, president of the AFL, and his "colleagues" of undermining efforts to organize the International Trade Union Federation."

"During the last two years," the article said, "the activities of the eaders of the American Federation of Labor have been directed not so much toward protecting the interest of American workers as to perpetuate the split among the organized workers of America. It must be said that the AFL leaders pursue the same object in the sphere of international relations. They imagine that their main task is to disrupt international unity among organized workers."

JUL 8 1945

The New Times asserted the AFL was "conducting an unremitting campaign against the Soviet trade unions and is attacking French and British trade unions for supporting the International Trade Union organization."

The magazine said the AFL had set aside huge funds to wreck the international Federation on a promise of helping "free unions of Europe," thereby trying to "make capital out of the financial straits of trade unions in European countries that were impoverished during the war."

Greek Regent Asks UNRRA Continuance

London, July 7 (A. P.).—Archbishop Damaskinos, the Regent of Greece, said today that "Greece's survival depends on the continuation" of assistance by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. His telegram to Herbert H. Lehman, director-general of the UNRRA, was made public by the British Foreign Office.

It said: "You may be assured that the (UNRRA) mission's contribution to our recovery is a major factor in our economic and political life and is felt as such by the whole country." The UNRRA has been in operation in Greece for three months.

British Districts Continue Election

London, July 7 (A. P.).—Political parties renewed their campaigns today in twenty-four northern districts where local holidays forced postponement of Thursday's general election voting, and [illegible] predicted those twenty-four seats might decide the contest between the Labor and the Conservative parties.

Twenty-three constituencies vote July 12 and one on July 19. The outcome for all Britain will be announced July 26 after the absentee soldier vote is counted.

EDEN'S SON MISSING

London, July 7 (A. P.).—Sergt. Simon Eden, eldest son of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, was reported missing today on an operational flight in Burma. The Air Ministry said that the British aircraft on which he was flying as a crew member has been unreported for several days.

Sergt. Eden, 20 years old, trained in Canada as a navigator with the R. A. F. after attending Eton.

Also today the Air Ministry reported "no developments" in the search for a missing R. A. F. Liberator bringing a Foreign Office group home from the San Francisco conference. Airplanes continued to scan the Atlantic for the plane, which left Montreal on Tuesday. The passengers included Sir William Malkin, legal adviser to the Foreign Office; two other British officials and six women employees.

The searching planes sighted five men of a missing Royal Canadian Air Force plane. They were rescued from rubber boats and returned to their Newfoundland base.

John Amery in Britain

Son of Secretary for India Held for Pro-Nazi Talks in Italy

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—Scotland Yard said tonight that John Amery, thirty-three, accused of making pro-Nazi broadcasts in Italy, was arrested today on his arrival in Great Britain. Amery, described by Scotland Yard as the son of L. S. Amery, British Secretary of State for India, had been held in Italy since last April.

Police officials said he was "taken to Bow Street (police station) and charged and will appear before a magistrate Monday." They declined to amplify the statement even as to how he returned to this country.

No Sign of Lost Liberator

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—The Air Ministry reported today "no developments" in the search for a missing Royal Air Force Liberator bringing a Foreign Office group home from the San Francisco conference. Airplanes continued to scan the Atlantic for the plane, which left Montreal Tuesday. The passengers included Sir William Malkin, legal adviser to the Foreign Office, two other British officials and six women employees.

Ex-Gestapo Chief Seized in Norway

London, July 7 (A. P.).—The Norwegian Information Office here said today that a former Gestapo chief in Norway was among fifty Gestapo agents discovered in a German military camp at the Terningsmoen Reservation near Elverum. He was identified as SS Gruppenfuehrer Spurrenburg, who succeeded Gen. Rediess.

Norwegian and British troops raided the camp Thursday. Some 30,000 German soldiers were ordered out of their barracks. The agents were picked out with the aid of Norwegian patriots and Quislings who had served as Gestapo informers.

Two-Week Vacation Granted

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—Half a million British railway workers have won a year-long campaign for two weeks' annual paid vacation instead of one, the National Union of Railway Men announced today.

Belgians Repair 1,000 Ships

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—Belgian workers repaired 1,000 Allied vessels during the first six months of this year, using materials hidden from the Germans for four years, the British Admiralty announced today. Most of the work was done at Antwerp, which was the target for concentrated enemy flying bomb and rocket attacks during most of the period.

British Kites Back

London, July 7 (AP)—Kites, banned during wartime, may be flown again and toy shops find the demand is greater than the supply.

Had Six Strenuous Weeks

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—The British government announced that Prime Minister Churchill, accompanied by Mrs. Churchill, departed today for southern France, "where he hopes to have a few days' rest before attending the Berlin conference."

TO DISSOLVE SHAEF BY NEXT FRIDAY

Paris, July 7 (A. P.).—Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, will be dissolved and the combined command of the Allied Expeditionary forces will end on or about Friday, July 13, SHAEF announced today.

Gen. Eisenhower will have returned from the United States by that time, and the delay will give him a chance to say farewell to his commanders and staff, it was explained.

Text of Announcement

PARIS, July 7 (AP).—The text of the S. H. A. E. F. announcement today follows:

"Termination of the combined command of Allied Expeditionary Forces and dissolution of Supreme Headquarters will become effective on or about July 13, 1945, the exact date to be set later. It was explained that the action in this respect was being delayed to permit readjustment of certain troops, and until return of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, who desires the opportunity of saying farewell to his principal commanders and members of his staff.

"At the time of termination, General of the Army Eisenhower will relinquish command of all elements of the Allied Expeditionary Force, including Supreme Headquarters, and its attached or assigned units.

"Upon termination of the combined command, the following changes become effective:

"Operational control of the 12th and 6th Army Groups, of the 9th Air Force, of the communications zone, and of the United States element of the Allied naval command expeditionary force, and of Supreme Headquarters missions to France, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxemburg and Norway will pass from General Eisenhower as supreme commander to General Eisenhower as commanding general of United States forces in the European theater.

"The 21st Army Group and British elements of Supreme Headquarters missions to France, the Netherlands and Norway will revert to British War Office control. British Army elements of Supreme Headquarters missions to Belgium and Denmark will pass to command of the 21st Army Group.

Other Command Changes

"Command of all Royal Air Force elements of Supreme Headquarters missions will be assumed by the Air Ministry.

"Command of Allied land forces in Norway will pass to the War Office, with the British chiefs of staff acting as agents to the combined chiefs of staff.

"The Norwegian naval and air forces will continue under present control until, at some later date to be announced, they will revert to control of the Norwegian government.

"Command of British elements of the Allied naval command expeditionary force, British naval forces in Normay and British naval elements of all Supreme Headquarters missions will be assumed by the Admiralty.

"The French high command will assume command of the French 1st Army and of the Army Detachment of the Alps; however, command of the latter will be passed, as formerly agreed, at midnight, July 10-11.

"It has been supposed that certain residual matters of a combined nature which cannot be transferred to appropriate United States or British agencies will be handled by a combined liquidation agency of Supreme Headquarters, which will be responsible to the British chief of staff and the commanding general, United States forces in the European theater, and this liquidating agency will begin its functions on the dissolution of Supreme Headquarters."

MISS MORGAN IN PARIS

Begins Work on Extensive Survey of French Relief Needs

PARIS, July 7 (AP)—Miss Anne Morgan of New York started work today on a comprehensive survey of French relief needs to serve as the basis for expanded activities of American Relief for France, of which she is a director.

A spokesman for the 72-year-old sister of J. P. Morgan said she would remain here about two months before returning to the United States to direct the organization's program.

Miss Morgan, formerly a resident of France for many years, landed at Le Havre yesterday with nine men and women who will be part of the agency's permanent staff in Paris.

She directed a campaign that raised $5,000,000 for French relief after World War I.

France Gives Back Armies To Levant

Paris, Sunday, July 8 (AP)—The Foreign Office announced today that France has agreed to restore control of native Syrian and Lebanese armies to their respective governments in what obviously was a first step toward reopening negotiations with the two Middle-East states.

The French said the transfer would be effected within a maximum of 45 days.

The Foreign Office released a declaration from Gen. Paul Etienne Beynet, French delegate general to the Levant states, which said in part:

"Considering the fact that because of the end of European hostilities nothing further blocks the legitimate desire of Syria and Lebanon to organize their national armies, the French Government declares that these troops are to be transferred to the Syrian and Lebanese governments following formulation of methods therefor, which will be worked out within a maximum of 45 days."

This action will place between 20,000 and 25,000 troops, the total force for both countries, under the control of their respective governments. Heretofore they have been commanded by French officers and paid by the French Government.

The situation constituted one of the principal points of controversy between France and the two countries.

The Foreign Office spokesman said France hoped that today's action would lead to the reopening of conferences interrupted six weeks ago when violence flared in Syria.

The change-over would not affect the position of French troops already stationed at Damascus, he said.

French Marquis Jailed As High Nazis' Friend

Paris, July 7 (AP)—The Marquis of Devillefranche, a member of one of France's oldest aristocratic families, was sentenced at Versailles today to six months imprisonment for friendliness with high German officers during the occupation. His marquise, the Belgian-born Princess of Merode, was acquitted on similar charges.

A golden guest book found in the marquis' chateau at Villarseaux contained the names of Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, Field Marshal Erwin von Witzleben, and others..

Surrender Site May Be Shrine

Paris, July 7 (AP)—Gold and silver-plated keys to the room in the red schoolhouse at Reims where the Germans signed their surrender two months ago were turned over to the Mayor of Reims today by Maj. Gen. Royal B. Lord; who said, "The world hopes you will enshrine it."

France Honors WAC

Paris, July 7 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Anna W. Wilson, former WAC director in the European theater, today received France's highest military decoration, the Legion of Honor, Degree of Chevalier.

Music Of Mendelssohn Returned To Germany

SHAEF, July 7 (AP)—The Allied victory has brought the music of Mendelssohn back to Germany.

His suite from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be played by the Munich Philharmonic Orchestra Sunday afternoon during the first symphony concert in the American-occupied zone of Germany since the end of the war. Also on the program are Mozart's C Minor Symphony and Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony.

A permit for the concert was granted by the Psychological Warfare Department at SHAEF, which has control of German press publications, films, theaters and musical performances.

Under the Nazi regime the music of Mendelssohn, a Jew, was banned in the Reich.

Churchill Flies To Hendaye for Short Vacation

Prime Minister Is Taking Few Days' Rest, His First Since Illness in 1943

BORDEAUX, July 7 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill arrived here today in a four-engined American plane en route to Hendaye for his first real vacation since his illness in 1943. He was accompanied by his wife and their daughter Mary, who was wearing an Auxiliary Territorial Service officer's uniform.

After a brief meeting by local officials, the party left immediately by automobile for Hendaye, near the Spanish border, where the Chateau Bordaberry, owned by a Canadian, Brigadier General Raymond Brutinel, has been made ready for them.

British and French police guarded the area near the chateau, and a special radio transmitter and telephone and telegraph lines were installed to enable the Prime Minister to maintain constant contact with London.

REDS RETAIN CONTROL OVER BERLIN AREA

JUL 8

U. S., British Have Not Taken Over Any District

DELUXE

Berlin, July 7—(AP)—A temporary lack of co-ordination among the Allies on the governing of Berlin formed a disappointing overture tonight in the approaching Big Three meeting at Potsdam.

Soviet authorities continued in complete control of the military government here and the common question in the minds of American Military Government officers was, "Why did we come to Berlin?"

High officials of the United States Russia and Britain were reported attempting to solve the complex problems of food and boundaries.

Neither U.S. nor British Military Government detachments had taken over any district. U. S. forces supposedly occupied their zone Wednesday, when the Stars and Stripes were raised over the shattered capital. The British flag-raising ceremony was yesterday

The German municipal administration remained under the supervision of Russian commanders acting on Soviet instructions.

Food reserves in the Soviet zone were not being made available to sectors allotted to the other Allies. It was reported a barter deal was under discussion on the highest levels under which the Russians would be paid "in kind" for such food.

Warm cordiality marked the direct relations of Russian officers with Americans, who were puzzled by the haphazard arrangements for the Anglo-American sharing of Berlin with the Soviet Union.

The embarrassment was even more acute for French officers, who were continuing as house guests of the Americans while a decision was awaited on the designation of the area French troops would occupy.

Operate Security Patrol

American occupation forces confined their operations to a security patrol in the areas where U. S. troops are billeted. The patrols were forbidden to interfere in any way with the Russian troops or with Soviet truck crews that might be removing supplies from retail stores and wholesale warehouses. The patrols were ordered not to ask Russians to show their identification papers.

A senior U. S. officer in a supposedly American-ruled borough was informed by a Soviet-appointed mayor that he had been told by a Russians commandant that the Russians would withdraw their supervision next Tuesday.

There were no food supplies of any substantial size and almost no German civilian transport in that borough.

More than a million impoverished city dwellers will become the wards of the Western Allies when they assume full control of their designated areas.

(Four leading British newspapers today published demands for unified Allied control of Germany. The editorials criticized the present plan of splitting the country into zones of occupation with different policies in each zone.

(All insisted the question of occupational government should be settled at the forthcoming Big Three meeting.

("Maintenance of German unity under supervision of the principal powers and through their joint action has become a first condition of the unity of Europe," said the London Times.)

RUSSIANS KEEP CONTROL OVER ALL OF BERLIN

U. S. Military Government Still Without Any Zone to Rule Over.

BRITISH ARE IN SAME BOAT

Americans Supposedly Had Taken Over District at Midnight of Last Wednesday.

DE LUXE

Berlin, July 7 (A. P.).—The Soviet authorities maintained a tight grip on the entire Military Government of Berlin today while high officials of three Powers tried to solve two complicated problems—food and boundaries.

No district has yet been taken over from the Russians by either American or British Military Government detachments, although the American military forces supposedly had formally occupied their Berlin zone on July 4, and the British held a flag-raising ceremony in their zone yesterday.

The Soviet commanders in all the Berlin districts obeyed Soviet instructions to stay on the job and supervise the German city administration.

Due on Wednesday.

The United States plan was to take governmental control of its zone at midnight of Wednesday. The British had hoped to get their Berlin government operating by tomorrow, but this appeared indefinitely delayed.

The Soviet representatives, it was learned, declined to make food reserves in the Soviet zone available to any district controlled by the other Allies pending conclusion of a barter deal on the highest levels under which the Russians would be paid "in kind" for such food.

Although this was the third day of the governmental muddle as far as the Americans were concerned, their direct relations with Russian officers in the various boroughs continued to be marked by warm cordiality. But the Americans were visibly puzzled, if not chagrined, that the Anglo-American sharing of Berlin with the Soviet Union should have been so haphazardly arranged in advance. The common question among American Military Government officers today was why they came to Berlin.

Berliners Impoverished.

They pointed out that the Anglo-American entry into Berlin was facilitated by a withdrawal from the area of Mecklenburg, Madgeburg, Thuringia and Saxony. In those areas, neither the British nor the Americans engaged in any large-scale dismantling of factories or in the removal of livestock from the countryside. The areas were left in an improved economic condition over what they were when first conquered.

In return, the western Powers in Berlin are trying to assume responsibilities over more than a million impoverished city dwellers whose economic capacity has been reduced almost literally to what can be produced with their bare hands.

The only operation now being carried out in Berlin by the American and British forces is a security patrol of the areas where their troops are billeted. The patrols have been ordered not to interfere in any way with the Russian troops. They have been forbidden to ask the Russians to show their identification papers, and are not to intervene if the Germans complain that supplies in retail stores and wholesale warehouses are being removed by Soviet truck crews.

French Keenly Embarrassed.

French embarrassment has been even keener than that of the other two Western Powers. French officers continued to be house guests of American officers, but there was no positive indication when the French troops would reach Berlin, and at least two different areas were reported still under consideration for French occupation.

A Soviet-appointed Mayor in one supposedly American-ruled borough told a senior United States officer today he had been informed by the Russian commandant that the Russians would relinquish responsibility next Tuesday. From that time on, the Mayor quoted the commandant as saying, there would be American control of food and services.

Rob U. S.-owned Reich Firms

American Chamber of Commerce Secretary in Berlin Says Machinery Is Removed.

JUL 8 19

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

Berlin, July 7 (A. P.).—Arthur E. Dunning of Bath, Me., secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce in Germany, said today that great concerns owned by American interests had been stripped of their machinery during the Russian occupation of the German areas in which the plants were situated.

"National Cash Register, Frigidaire, Ford, Opel (owned by General Motors), Hollerith (owned by International Business Machines), Singer, Mix & Genest and Woolworth all have been raided," Dunning declared in an interview.

"In many cases, delicate precision instruments were involved which are now lying around in Berlin railway stations awaiting shipment. Some of these needed to be kept at a certain even temperature which, of course, was impossible if they lay exposed outdoors. Much of this machinery, in my opinion, is now junk.

Dunning estimated the value of American holdings throughout Germany at $200,000,000. He said virtually all the plants were compelled to work for Hitler's war machine, once war with the United States started.

Dunning further asserted that a German attorney, Heinrich Richter, who in peace-time was legal representative of General Motors and associated with other American firms, had been held incommunicado for the last eight weeks because he opposed the Opel plant.

Personally, Dunning has been treated respectfully by the Russians who also allowed the American Chamber of Commerce offices to remain intact. He said he was on friendly terms with local Soviet commandants who were courteous and told him they wanted to help but were bound by instructions.

The Chamber of Commerce secretary is probably the only American who lived in Germany as an enemy through two world wars. His wife was an invalid in 1941 when Hitler's Reich declared war on the United States. The Dunnings' passports were extended by the State Department, working through the Swiss Legation.

Dunning said the Nazis arrested him once in September 1942, but freed him after eight days. He has lost forty pounds and appeared emaciated.

At present, he said, 95 per cent of Berlin residents are suffering from dysentery and the water is badly polluted.

"In the subway, from the Anhalter to Stettiner stations," Dunning declared, "There is now water instead of open tunnels and hundreds of bodies still float around. The Spree River stinks from decaying bodies."

feet of water rushed into the tunnels, survivors said. Nearly all were drowned.

A few near the so-called emergency escape hatches reached the streets.

10,000 Berlin Civilians Drowned When Elite Guard Flooded Subway

Bodies of Those Who Clamored for End of War Still Seen—Horthy Armistice Signaled Murder of Hungary's Jews

JUL 8 1945

LOCHNER

BERLIN, July 7 (AP)—One of the last acts of the Nazi regime in Berlin was to murder in cold blood about 10,000 citizens.

The victims had taken shelter in subways. Living in a veritable hell, they became unruly and demanded the cessation of useless resistance. In a rage the Elite Guard commander decided on the supreme penalty for them, and SS troopers flooded the subways.

Even today the subway system from the Anhalter to Stettiner stations and from the Potsdamer Platz to Kaiserhof stations is flooded and bodies are still found floating.

As the Russian Army approached Berlin thousands of women with their children and most valuable belongings took refuge in the subway tunnels.

When the city's light and water systems were wrecked in the fighting, people fought in the dark for possession of a bottle of water. Babies cried for lack of food. Soldiers wounded in the street fighting screamed for help. Women went through premature childbirth without medical assistance. The noise of exploding aerial bombs and artillery shells added to the inferno.

The climax came when the SS troops, pressed by the Russians, tried to escape to other parts of the city via the tunnels and found escape impossible because the masses there rebelled.

The SS commander placed powerful explosives at points where the underground traffic lanes lead under the Spree River and the Landwehr Canal. Special concrete reinforcements were blasted away and 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 cubic

BERLIN STORES BARE OF ALL MERCHANDISE

LOCHNER

BERLIN, July 7 (AP)—All goods except food have virtually disappeared from Berlin stores and only the repair shops are doing business.

Aside from groceries, meat markets and bakeries, the city is stripped of consumer commodities.

If you want shoes repaired, you must bring the leather or patches along. If you desire clothes mended you must fetch the proper thread or yarn. If you want a wedding ring, you must bring your own metal.

The fact is that even with coupons allegedly entitling you to underwear, boots, hat or whatnot, you cannot buy these things except on the black market.

That goes for regular authorized trade, too. Among themselves, however, the citizens do much trading. Nobody is interested in money—everybody wants goods. Cigarettes against potatoes, butter against stockings, cameras against suits of clothes—such are some of the varieties of barter life.

As a direct result of the lack of goods, cabarets, night clubs and dancing places are springing up like mushrooms, for those are the only places where such money as still circulates seems to have any value. Cheap ersatz coffee, uninspiring beer and herb tea are served.

Russians Remove Stores

BERLIN, July 7 (AP)—American occupation forces continued today to confine their operations to a security patrol in the areas where United States troops are billeted. The patrols were forbidden to interfere in any way with the Russian troops or with Soviet truck crews that might be removing supplies from retail stores and wholesale warehouses. The patrols were ordered not to ask the Russians to show their identification papers.

A senior United States officer in a supposedly American-ruled borough was informed by a Soviet-appointed Mayor that he had been told by a Russian commandant that the Russians would withdraw their supervision next Tuesday.

There were no food supplies of any substantial size and almost no German civilian transport in that borough.

Skorzeny Directed Terror

IN CENTRAL EUROPE, July 7 (AP)—Jews and other known anti-Nazis were shot in droves in October, 1944, after the pro-Nazi Arrow Cross forces of Ferenc Szalasi had overthrown the Hungarian Government of Admiral Nicholas Horthy.

The revolt was inspired by Otto Skorzeny, who had engineered the escape of Benito Mussolini from Italian guards and plotted against the life of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The unvarnished story of the Arrow Cross organization's terrorism makes one of the bloodiest pages in Hungary's history under the Nazis.

The Arrow Cross started its reign of terror as soon as Admiral Horthy announced an armistice with Russia. It outdid the Nazis in the viciousness of its treatment of Jews.

Under the Horthy regime Budapest Jews lived in houses marked with the yellow Star of David. They were permitted on the streets at specified times to market if they wore a similar star. Many Jew toiled in menial labor regiments recruited by Denoe Racz, Minister of the Interior.

Treatment of Jews in provinces outside the capital was more cruel, and Hungarian police were feared more than German SS men. In concention camps where Jews were penned before they were sent to German torture camps they were guarded by other Jews armed with clubs. The latter had been forced to the task by threats. The only medical care came from captured doctors, who lacked medicines and instruments.

Herded in Brickyards

Hungarian brickyards served as collection stations where railroad cars were packed with Jews being sent to death at Dachau and other German concentration camps. The loading was directed by an Austrian Nazi leader named Eichmann.

Skorzeny reached Budapest a week before the Horthy regime fell. He held numerous conferences with Emil Kovarcz, Minister for Total War, and others. Skorzeny complained that Kovarcz was not furnishing enough Arrow Cross men for the putsch he was planning.

Skorzeny turned to Budapest SS Commander Zehender for help. He also gained assistance from advisers and members of Horthy's Cabinet, including Gabor Vajna, Minister for Internal Affairs, who reputedly was anti-Semitic.

An attack on the Royal Castle in Budapest was to be the signal for the Arrow Cross uprising. Preparations had been carefully masked.

Horthy went on the air to proclaim an armistice with the Russians. The Army Chief of Staff followed immediately with a broadcast urging Hungarians to continue fighting.

Later ghetto occupants were marched periodically to piers along the Danube, lined up in rows and shot by Arrow Cross men.

DR. ILGNER IS HELD AS NAZI SPY CHIEF

Hoechst, Germany, July 7 (A. P.).—Dr. Max Ilgner, described by United States Army authorities as chief of espionage activities of I. G. Farbenindustrie, was held today for questioning into the affairs of the huge company whose war-making powers the United States Group Control Council terms a major threat to the peace and security of the post-war world.

Ilgner and Dr. Herman Schmitt, principal directors of Farbenindustrie, were in military custody in Frankfurt-on-the-Main following Army seizure of the management, assets and plant of the organization in the American zone of occupied Germany.

Col. Edwin S. Pillsbury of Berkeley, Cal., who directed the seizure late Thursday of the twenty-four Farbenindustrie plants in the American zone, said his office had information showing that Farbenindustrie, through Ilgner's agents, carried on industrial espionage throughout the world.

Ilgner, an ardent Nazi, was head of Farbenindustrie's central financial administration.

"We also have information that there were Nazi agents on the Farben payroll posing as salesmen," Pillsbury said.

Lieut.-Col. Robert Parcival of Richmond, Va., permitted a few hundred workers to return to the plant at Hoechst to produce essential pharmaceutical goods, while at Darmstadt, Capt. Charles Smith of San Francisco, Cal., took over a synthetic gasoline and Diesel oil plant.

U. S. RAID MAKES NAZIS DISGORGE STOLEN ART

NEUWIED, Germany, July 7 (AP)—A special Army force raided the homes of two second-rate Nazi underlings today and discovered another cache of famous European art works—along with proof that the Nazis were double-crossing each other.

The art collection, valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars, included paintings owned by Lady Astor. They were seized by the Germans [illegible] as they were being moved to England from the Astor castle at Hoffmansthal, Austria, at the outbreak of war.

Works by Rembrandt, Van Dyke and Hoffman were among those recovered. The most valuable was believed to be Van Dyke's "Professor in His Study."

The Americans first raided the home of Heinrich Aviszius, former agent for Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi ideological chief.

Rosenberg apparently aspired to be another Herman Goering in the matter of collecting art, and it was comparatively easy for him to obtain many objets d'art with his agents watching shipments.

But Aviszius kept many paintings, antiques and valuable rugs for himself instead of turning them over to Rosenberg.

The second cache, with art works identified as belonging to Amsterdam and Antwerp museums, was found in the home of District Gauleiter Rudolf Reppert at Remagen.

British Allow Germans Week to Turn In Arms

Amnesty Granted Civilians Within That Period

21ST ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, Germany, July 7 (AP).—In their first concession to the defeated Germans, British authorities today gave German civilians a week of amnesty, from July 9 to 15, in which to turn in concealed weapons and explosives without fear of punishment.

The move was believed prompted by frequent reports that Germans were taking "pot-shots" at British soldiers at night and by the increase in the number of persons arrested for concealing firearms.

Unlawful possession or control of any kind of firearms or of ammunition or explosives is an offense punishable by death. Six Germans already have been executed by the guillotine in the British zone for this offense.

Resistance Leader Heads Norse Army

Oslo, July 7 (A. P.).—The Norwegian Government announced today the appointment of Major-Gen. Otto Ruge as commander in chief of Norwegian armed forces, replacing Crown Prince Olav. Ruge led resistance forces against the Germans in 1940, and was released recently from a prisoner of war camp in Germany.

Norway also announced it was sending Japan a formal declaration of war, withheld until the Norwegian Government returned to its own soil.

REDS SEEK END TO REICH PERIL

Soviet Views On Verge Of Big Three Parley Analyzed

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, July 7 (AP)—The Russians as they approach the "victory" conference of the Big Three are determined to reach agreements with their Allies that will snuff out German imperialism forever and ensure that a Hitler never again will rise to power.

The Soviets do not want just a stopgap measure this time. In this connection, they believe that their allies are making a serious mistake in handling the German people.

First of all, the Russians believe it is imperative that a better Germany must swell from the German people and not develop from repressive measures imposed upon them.

Discredit Allied Judgment

They feel that the Allies are guilty of bad judgment when they outlaw all political parties and do not allow mass gatherings of Germans for political discussions. The Red Army occupying forces have legalized all anti-Fascist parties in their zones. They have recognized trade unions and they allow meetings.

It goes without saying that the Soviets are keeping an eye on every organization which calls itself anti-Fascist and on every meeting dedicated to German democracy. The first sign that any of these gatherings might be used as an undercover for Nazism or for the revival of German militarism to even the slightest extent will see quick countermeasures.

No More Loans

The Russians also are concerned with the international cartel situation and unquestionably will bring this up. They will wish proof and definite reassurances that German industrialists have not gone underground and found other places of work, possibly in other countries.

The U.S.S.R. also probably will require assurances, especially from the United States, that there will be no more loans to Germany whereby she might be able to rearm. This question undoubtedly will be talked out and assurances asked for.

A closer co-ordination among the Allied policies in Germany must be on the agenda, and in this respect the Russians will give full airing to their apprehensions as to how British and Americans treat proved Nazis in their areas.

Crimes Trials In Russ Eye

The Soviets also are keenly interested in the trial of war criminals. They believe that the Allies have been very slow in handling this question. With most of the high Nazi Germans in British and American hands, they feel these "arch criminals" should long ago have been brought to trial.

Certainly this matter will be brought up in the discussions, and the U.S.S.R. will ask for a speedup in the process. The longer these Germans remain untried the greater their menace, in the opinion of most Russians.

The Soviets probably will have something to say also about the larger number of Germans who are running around free in Allied occupied zones, some of them with executive jobs.

Reparations, of course, also are of paramount interest to the U.S.S.R. as the major sufferer at the hands of the German invaders Reparation leaders, if not their missions, are expected to attend the conference.

Foreign diplomatic circles report the Russians are ready to discuss with their Allies the status and relations of such former enemy European States as Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Austria.

The Polish question should take little time at this meeting, now that the new government of National Unity has been formed and recognized by the Allies.

The Soviets unquestionably will point out to the Western Allies the need for aid in European countries this Winter, and probably will assert that the Allies, principally the United States, are expected to play a major role in bringing help.

The status of Generalissimo Franco of Spain most certainly will be brought up by the USSR at the meeting. They have for years branded him as one of the world's leading Fascists. They have accused him of giving sanctuary to Nazis and Fascists and even worse crimes.

The Russians are sure to ask the British, Americans and French to do something about Franco, something more concrete than a speech or a declaration. They simply do not feel Europe can be secure with Franco playing a role in it.

Argentina, too, will come up for review.

Many in Russia Returning to Poland Homes

Jews and Others Forced Out by Nazis Now Able to Re-enter Native Land

MOSCOW, July 7 (AP).—The signing of an agreement between Russia and Poland permitting exchange of nationality and residence by citizens of either country has opened the way for the return to Poland of many persons now in the Soviet Union.

All Poles and Polish Jews who were citizens of Poland before Sept. 17, 1939—the day when Russian armies invaded Poland while the Germans were invading that country from the west—were given permission to abandon Soviet citizenship and settle in Polish territory, provided they apply for such a transfer before Nov. 1 of this year.

The agreement, signed yesterday, specified that the transfer applied only to persons who had blood ties with the country they were going back to. It was expected to facilitate the return home of many thousands of Russians, White Russians and Ukrainians who were forced westward by advancing German armies.

The agreement emphasized that a change in citizenship by either group was entirely voluntary. Those deciding to take the step, the announcement said, could carry two tons of personal property if they were rural residents and one ton if they were city dwellers.

MOSCOW, July 7 (AP)—The Very Rev. Dr. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, who has been on a lengthy tour of the Soviet Union, was received by Premier Joseph Stalin last night.

Gain In Russian Births Attributed To Decrees

Moscow, July 7 (AP)—G. A. Miterev, Commissar of Public Health, said today that motherhood decrees issued a year ago had brought a large increase in Russian births.

He said in an interview with Tass agency that the birth rate was advanced by the expansion of hospital maternity facilities and substantial financial aid for mothers and infants. He asserted the mother and child mortality rate had been reduced.

Thousands of mothers without husbands, he said, were paid 1,500,000,000 rubles in state aid. During the next year the state plans to spend 2,452,123,000 rubles in aid to mothers and children.

CHUNGKING, July 7 (AP)—Gen. Lui Wei-chang, Vice Minister of the Chinese Board of Military Operations, estimated today that American bombing of Japan had reduced the enemy's plane production from 2,500 to 1,000 aircraft a month.

Russia Honors King Michael

MOSCOW, July 7 (AP).—The Soviet government has conferred its highest military honor, the Order of Victory, on King Michael of Romania for his "courageous act" in bringing his country from the Axis into the United Nations camp, it was announced today. The Soviet press front-paged the young king's portrait.

USO Show Member Weds Service Captain

Rome, July 7 (AP)—Capt. John D. Sullivan of Worcester, Mass., aide to Lieut. Gen. Willis Crittenberger of Indiana, and Grace Helen Collins, from Philadelphia, a member of the USO "Parlor Me" show troupe, were married today in the Milan Cathedral by Cardinal Schuster.

General Crittenberger gave the bride away. Monsignor Walter S. Carroll, of Pittsburgh, a member of the Vatican Secretariat of State, assisted Cardinal Schuster.

SMUTS PRAISES CHARTER

Calls Coast Parley 'Last Great Battle of War in Europe'

MILAN, Italy, July 7 (AP)—Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts arrived here today en route home to South Africa and took time off to describe the San Francisco Conference as the "last great battle of the war in Europe."

In an interview after the first leg of his flight from London, Marshal Smuts compared the United Nations meeting with the League of Nations gathering he attended twenty-six years ago.

"I look upon the San Francisco Conference as the last great battle of the war in Europe," he continued, "for this war would not have been won without a charter to set the way for world peace. Therefore San Farncisco was more important than any other event in the war."

FIFTH ARMY TO BREAK UP

85th Division Will Lead Way Home and Be Deactivated

CASERTA, Italy, July 7 (AP)—The veteran United States Fifth Army, which battled up the Italian boot from the Salerno shinbone to the Tyrolean kneecap, is about to be broken up.

The Eighty-fifth (Custer) Infantry Division will lead the movement back home starting in August. This division, which underwent fourteen months combat duty in Italy, will be the first all-Selective Service division in the United States Army to be deactivated. Fifth Army headquarters announced.

Headquarters gave this line-up of the disposition of the Fifth:

Thirty-fourth Infantry Division, with more combat time against the enemy than any other outfit, to be redeployed to the United States and placed in tactical reserve for possible Pacific service.

Eighty-fifth Infantry Division, to be deactivated after return home.

Eighty-eighth Infantry Division, now guarding 300,000 German prisoners in Italy, to be deactivated after return home.

Ninety-first Infantry Division, which entered combat here last July, to be redeployed to the Pacific by way of the United States.

Ninety-second Infantry Division, to be returned to the United States.

First Armored Division, veterans of African and Italian campaigns, already moved to Germany as part of the occupation force.

Tenth Mountain Division, serving as occupation force in Trieste area for time being.

442d Regiment of Japanese-Americans, to be returned home and placed in tactical reserve.

473d Regiment, to be returned home and placed in tactical reserve.

Officers said while the divisions being redeployed would retain their identification the troops comprising them would be radically changed in some instances.

The Thirty-fourth already has dispatched most of its men with at least eighty-five service points to the Eighty-fifth or Eighty-eighth Divisions. In exchange the Thirty-fourth now has received thousands of men with less than eighty-five points from those two divisions.

When the trip home starts the Thirty-fourth probably will be made up entirely of troops who have less than eighty-five points or are classified as essential.

Fatalities Reported In Beyrouth Riots

Beyrouth, July 7 (A. P.).—Rioting broke out between French soldiers and civilians at Lattaquie on Thursday after a child was run over and killed by a French military vehicle, it was announced last night. A British account said ten persons were killed and forty-five wounded, while a French statement reported twenty-three were killed.

British patrols took over the seacoast town at night and were still patrolling yesterday.

CHINESE DRIVE INTO INDO-CHINA

Chungking, July (A. P.).—Chinese troops who recaptured Pingsiang have advanced eleven miles beyond to the French Indo-China frontier, reaching Chennankwan, South Guard Pass, where fighting is now raging, the Chinese High Command said today.

The recapture of Pingsiang, lost a week ago, was announced earlier.

The advance to South Guard Pass, which connects China with Indo-China, meant that the gap in the ruptured Japanese transcontinental corridor was stretched from the Indo-China border to beyond Liuchow, about 250 miles.

The Chinese also announced that Chinese troops Friday captured the village of Tungchaunchen, twelve miles west of Chungtu, and were advancing on Chungtu, thirty miles northeast of Liuchow on the Liuchow-Kweilin highway.

JAP MARINES CARRY OUT NEW CHINA LANDING

Drive Ashore on Southeast Coast in Move to Stop Allied Invasion

Chungking, July 7 — (AP) — The Chinese Central News Agency reported tonight that Japanese Marines had landed on the coast of Southeast China 140 miles west of Formosa in an apparent attempt to frustrate any Allied plans for an invasion of the Asiatic mainland.

Several enemy landing parties beached on the bay-cut shores of Fukien Province near Changpu, an important coastal highway center 35 miles southwest of the former treaty port of Amoy, the agency said.

The landings—second Japanese coastal operation in six weeks—were made June 30, but the invaders were tackled by local Chinese militia and "severe fighting" is in progress, the front dispatch said.

The definite purpose of the landings was not stated, but Chungking observers believed they may have been actuated by an enemy desire to test Chinese strength in the coastal region south of Japanese-held Amoy and to learn whether any preparations for an Anglo-American invasion were in progress.

It also was believed that the Japanese operation was designed to safeguard the depleted Japanese garrison in Amoy—the only Japanese-held strongpoint along the coast of Fukien Province — from Chinese attack.

Chinese military authorities recently estimated that the enemy garrison in Amoy, originally placed at 10,000 troops, had dwindled to about 2,000 through withdrawals to the Hong Kong and Canton areas, 245 miles to the southwest.

Japanese Marines recently landed on the Fukien coast above Foochow after the abandonment of that strategic treaty port 130 miles northeast of Amoy. Joined by enemy forces falling back from Foochow, they withdrew northward into Chekiang Province toward Shanghai, from which Chinese forces now are only 103 miles.

As China entered her ninth year of war against the Japanese, the Chinese High Command said that Chinese mountain fighters, extending to 160 miles their battle front along the Indo-Chinese frontier, had plunged into heavily-fortified Chennankwan Pass 85 miles northeast of Hanoi.

Braving Japanese cross-fire in the narrow 1,500-foot defile on the shortest route to the capital of the French colony, troops under Gen. Chang Fah-kwei fought into the frontier pass after retaking Pingsiang, 11 miles from the Indo-Chinese town of Dong Dang.

Striking along the Liuchow-Dong Dang highway, the Chinese engaged the Japanese defenders in bitter fighting in the pass, a Chinese communique said. How far the Chinese were from Dong Dang was not disclosed.

Front Widened to 160 Miles

The Chinese advance into the pass broadened to 160 miles the front that extended along the mountainous Indo-Chinese frontier to Malungchai, 21 miles north of Hagiang, in the northernmost area of the Japanese-occupied French colony.

The new gain also widened to 240 miles the gap in the ruptured Japanese transcontinental corridor to Southeast Asia, where an estimated 200,000 enemy troops are isolated by land. The break in Japan's supply line reaches from Chennankwan Pass northeast to beyond captured Liuchow in Kwangsi Province.

In the Liuchow area, the Chinese Command said, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's veterans recaptured Tungchuanchen, 12 miles west of Chungtu, strategic Japanese stronghold on the Luichow-Kweilin Highway.

The Chinese were driving toward Chungtu and threatening the defenses on the approaches to the town, 60 miles southwest of the former American airbase at Kweilin, the high command added.

Fierce fighting continued in Kiangsi province near the former American airbase of Kanhsien, where the Japanese two days ago attacked Chinese forces 6 miles east of Kanhsien, presumably to remove any potential Chinese threat to the city.

VICTORY CERTAIN, CHIANG DECLARES

Bid To Chinese Communists For Sessions Futile

Chungking, July 7 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told the Fourth People's Political Council today that "final and total victory is no longer in doubt" and that Chinese preparations for a general counteroffensive against the Japanese were proceeding according to schedule.

At the same time, Government quarters said all efforts, including the dispatch of a six-man nonparty appeasement delegation to Yenan, had failed to induce the Chinese Communists to attend council sessions which opened in Chungking this morning. The council makes recommendations to the Kuomintang's Central Executive Committee.

Army Units Reorganized

Addressing the opening meeting of China's advisory body, Chiang disclosed that a considerable part of China's widely scattered army units under his command had been reorganized and brought up to strength.

Though promising ultimate victory, Chiang warned that the hour of victory would be determined by the extent to which the Chinese dedicated themselves to their eight-year-old war, adding:

"The burden of liquidating the enemy in the China theater must be borne by us." . . .

Serious Economic Situation

The treatment, equipment and training of Chinese soldiers, Chiang said, had been improved, and "particularly gratifying to us all is the co-operation between Chinese and American military authorities, which has become even more intimate."

Chiang dealt at length with China's serious economic situation and told the representative body that the national budget remained unbalanced and the problem of commodity prices was grave.

Chiang reiterated that the Government was determined to inaugurate constitutional rule in China.

JAPANESE FAIL IN BURMA ATTACK

Calcutta, July 7 (A. P.).—British forces in Burma have cleared enemy positions which had been established across the British line of communications in the Sittang River Bend, twenty-five miles north of Pegu, Southeast Asia Command headquarters said today.

It was announced yesterday that Japanese [illegible] the Sittang River Bend had launched fierce, artillery supported actions designed to broaden their beachhead, and today's communique said there were indications the enemy was endeavoring to reinforce his troops.

Two hundred Japanese who attempted to cross the Sittang in boats and on rafts sixteen miles southeast of Pyu, eighty miles north of Pegu on the Rangoon-Mandalay railroad, were intercepted.

Three village in Te area, sixteen miles southeast of Tharrawaddy, northwest of Pegu, have been reported cleared of Japanese troops.

10 P.M. Curfew Ended For Hawaii's Residents

Honolulu, July 7 (AP)—Hawaii's 10-P.M. curfew, in effect since the attack on Pearl Harbor, was abolished today.

"With the seizure of Okinawa and as a result of a careful study of security orders, it has been decided to abolish the curfew immediately," announced Lieut. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., commanding general of the mid-Pacific area.

"This action has been under study for about a month and is in accord with the policy of refraining from exercising authority on what normally are civil functions, consistent with military responsibilities."

The rigid regulation prohibited anyone remaining on the streets from 10 P.M. until 5 A.M. unless by special permission.

Richardson in a recent press conference said he could not defend retention of the curfew from a military standpoint and offered to lift it whenever the community asked him to do so.

JAP MAINLAND SEEN WIDE OPEN

Geiger and Stilwell Urge Invasion to End War.

Honolulu, July 7 (A. P.).—The Japanese home islands are wide open for invasion and the United States can move in any time "with no trouble at all" in the opinion of the new commanding General of Marines in the Pacific.

Lieut.-Gen. Roy S. Geiger, back from the Okinawa wars, where he led the Third Amphibious Corps, asserted that victory could be won only by the invasion, that the Americans would be met by men and women civilian fighters, but all that "won't be any worry to us."

"It's only a question now of wading in and finishing this war," he told a press conference here yesterday upon his arrival to take over as Marine commanded from Lieut.-Gen. Holland H. Smith.

Geiger scoffed at the idea, current at the outbreak of the war, that the Japanese as fighters were "super men."

"At heart they are cowards and they have an inferiority complex," he said. "They haven't near the stamina we have and haven't the brain we have got. When they get into bad straits they kill themselves."

ARGENTINE CHIEFS PLEDGE ELECTIONS

Buenos Aires, July 7 (A. P.).—The people of Argentina will be called upon to elect their representatives "before the end of the year," President Farrell declared in a speech at the annual army and navy dinner last night.

"We are approaching the completion of another stage in the revolution—to see to it that the people become real electors by their representatives," he said. "We will complete it in accordance with our pledged word."

Farrell asserted Argentina had an aspect of general unrest created by elements which he said did not always have the good of the country at heart. He referred to the recent student strikes, conflict between capital and labor and "damaging rumors" by the press.

Vice-President Col. Peron said the country was menaced by disunity promoted by "demoniac agents of evil."

Fessenden Sloop Found But Colonel Isn't Aboard

Hull of Craft Missing 2 Weeks Discovered Off Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda, July 7 (AP).—An American Army crash boat reached the half-submerged and damaged hull of Colonel Reginald K. Fessenden's missing auxiliary sloop today and reported that he was not on board.

The boat was identified positively as Colonel Fessenden's. It was rightside up and full of water. A sail still flapped against the mast. Fessenden, whose home was in Short Hills, N. J., left his north shore dock at Bermuda June 22 for a pleasure jaunt and has not returned.

Army and Navy planes and crash boats searched the area for two weeks. Yesterday the boat was sighted by a Pan-American Airways clipper, which was Lisbon-bound, about sixty-three miles due east of Bermuda.

Canada Recognizes New Polish Regime

Ottawa, July 7 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced last night that the Canadian Government had recognized the Polish Provisional Government of National Unity.

POWER SOUGHT FOR TRUMAN

Leaders Hope To Arm Him With 3 Bargaining Clubs

Washington, July 7 (AP)—Congressional leaders expressed hope today they could arm President Truman with three big legislative clubs to help him bargain with Winston Churchill and Josef Stalin at the forthcoming "Big Three" meetings.

All three deal with international relations, and one of them already has been handed to Mr. Truman. It extended the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, which authorizes the President to negotiate trade programs with other nations.

The other two are in the legislative mill. One is the Bretton Woods monetary bill, the other the United Nations Charter worked out at San Francisco.

Bretton Woods Bill

Already passed by the House and scheduled for Senate action the week after next, the Bretton Woods legislation implements the international financial agreements worked out last summer in the hills of New Hampshire. The agreements mean nothing unless both branches of Congress approve them by legislation and set the example for other nations to follow suit.

The United Nations Charter is strictly a Senate proposition. Its ratification by that body after hearings starting next week is a foregone conclusion.

House Approval Necessary

The House has nothing to do with treaty making, although its approval is necessary for any implementing legislation that may be required.

On the theory that the Senate will pass the Bretton Woods legislation within two weeks, House leaders are planning to keep that body in session as late as July 21 in order to act on any Senate amendments. Once the Bretton Woods legislation has been sent to the President, the House will adjourn probably until late September.

Congressional program-shapers believe the psychological effect on other nations would be tremendous if, during or just prior to the "Big Three" meetings, the President could sign into law the Bretton Woods bill demonstrating the willingness of the United States to cooperate with other nations in the field of international economics.

Promise And Hope

At the Yalta meetings between Churchill, Stalin and Roosevelt, they pointed out, Mr. Roosevelt could hold out only the promise and the hope that this country would come into the Bretton Woods program, would continue to carry on its reciprocal trade activities, and would go along on any agreements worked out subsequently at San Francisco. But, in all three cases, there was an "if," contingent upon what Congress thought about it.

For Mr. Truman to be able to say just what the United States "will do" instead of what he hopes it "might do," Capitol Hill spokesmen say, would give him a big talking point when he sits down with the leaders of Great Britain and Russia.

BYRNES WILL NOT FLY WITH TRUMAN

Washington, July 7 (A. P.).—If President Truman and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes do any traveling by air on their planned trip to Berlin for the Big Three conference they will ride in separate planes.

Although the date of departure and method of travel is being kept secret, White House Press Secretary Eben Ayers made this clear at his news conference today.

Secretary Byrnes would succeed to the Presidency, under existing law, should anything untoward happen to the President. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, (soon to be succeeded by War Mobilizer Fred M. Vinson), is next in line.

"I am not saying how the trip is going to be made," Ayers told reporters, "but if the President and Secretary of State do any traveling by air the two will not travel together in the same plane."

Mr. Truman has proposed legislation making House Speaker Rayburn his successor in event of his inability to serve, but pending action on it, the first seven members of the Cabinet, under the present law passed fifty-nine years ago, succeed to the Presidency in the order in which their departments were established.

London Poles' Ambassador To U. S. Holds Final Press Parley, Hits Warsaw Rule

Washington, July 7—(AP)—A chapter in the history of American-Polish relations closed in the best diplomatic manner today.

Jan Ciechanowski, whom the United States recognized as the ambassador of Poland from March 6, 1941, until July 5, 1945, summoned newsmen to his chancery to say goodbye as he put it, "with great pain."

He had strong—but polite—words to say about United States recognition of what he termed the "so called" Polish Government in Warsaw. That recognition cost him his job and caused his exiled regime in London to cease legal existence in American eyes.

In a polite manner, Ciechanowski said Russia was imposing on Poland "a government and a political, social and economic system alien to her."

Throughout the half-hour session, the dapper, baldish man with the finely-chiseled features showed little emotion. Wearing a black suit with black bow tie, he stood and read his statements in flawless English with an even pitch.

And when he referred to Poland as "but a home on wheels, to be pushed eastwards or westwards as may suit the imperialist aims of either of its mighty neighbors," he was still imperturbable.

His manner was impersonal from start to finish although the news might mean Ciechanowski never can return to his native land.

Opening the conference, Ciechanowski thanked the press for its "fairness and understanding of the Polish problem."

His functions now, he added, were being "interrupted" by withdrawal of recognition from "the constitutional Polish Government," and he planned to leave the embassy shortly. It would be up to the United States, he indicated, to transfer the embassy and other Polish Government property to representatives of the Warsaw Regime. Ciechanowski himself will stay in Washington for a time, but he said any orders he takes will come from London.

"I wish to make it quite clear that I will not perform any functions or duties which, even by implication, might be considered as being performed by me on behalf of the government of Messrs. Beirut and Osubka-Morawski," he said.

Then, in a more formal printed document, Ciechanowski asked how Poland could explain to her "indomitable fighters" that "after the United Nations victory, the principles in defense of which they fought would not be applied to them."

"Some day, answers to these questions will have to be found if justice is to survive," he said.

Ciechanowski said all Polish-Russian problems could have been solved if the Russians had shown "goodwill" in discussing them with Polish Government and underground representatives.

U. S. WARSAW MOVE PAINS ENVOY HERE

Washington, July 7 (A. P.).—Preparing to quit the Polish Embassy, Jan Ciechanowski, Ambassador of the Polish exile government in London, said today he felt his country "has been left under the continued occupation of a foreign power." He told a news conference he was leaving his post "with great pain," as the result of United States recognition of the Polish Provisional Government of National Unity in Warsaw.

Asserting that "the Polish people are deeply attached to their traditions of individual and national freedom," he declared: "They will never cease to fight for these ideals. They will never sacrifice them as the price of agreement. They will never accept any system of Government contrary to these principles and imposed upon them by any foreign power or group of powers."

Although he is moving out of the embassy, Ciechanowski indicated that he is not immediately leaving the city of Washington. This Government announced yesterday that Arthur Bliss Lane had already left Washington to go to Warsaw as United States Ambassador to the new government there.

Washington Mum on De Gaulle

White House and State Department Won't Confirm or Deny French Report on Visit

JUL 8 1945

Washington, July 7 (A. P.).—A French announcement that Gen. de Gaulle has accepted an invitation to visit President Truman here met with silence in official Washington today. Neither the White House nor the State Department would comment on the announcement—an unusual reception to an exchange of greetings between two Government heads.

The French, through an official announcement, said that the General has received an invitation to visit President Truman in August, and has accepted.

The announcement produced only a crisp and puzzling "no comment" from the White House, which normally might be expected to confirm promptly such an invitation and acceptance.

Bonnet Confirms.

Later in the day Henri Bonnet, the French Ambassador, visited Mr. Truman and afterward told reporters that the De Gaulle visit has been arranged in every respect except a date. He said that he had not discussed the trip with the President because it had been settled previously, and he guessed that the General would come here in August. He said that an official invitation had been tendered.

Again the White House and the State Department remained silent. There were off-the-record indications to reporters that the French announcement was unexpected, to say the least.

Although there is no fixed rule of protocol on an exchange of invitations and acceptances between government heads, frequently the announcement of an impending official visit is made simultaneously in both capitals. On other occasions the accepted invitation has been announced first by the host nation.

Washingtonians Puzzled.

Washingtonians—puzzled by the official silence on the French announcement—recalled the diplomatic coolness which existed for months between the French General and the late President Roosevelt. The atmosphere was cleared amiably a year ago when De Gaulle came to Washington and visited at length with the Chief Executive.

President Truman told a news conference on Thursday that he does not expect to see De Gaulle during his forthcoming trip to the Berlin area for his first conference with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin. He gave a non-commital answer to a question whether he expected to visit with De Gaulle during later travels.

At a news conference shortly after the death of President Roosevelt, Mr. Truman told reporters that he would be glad to see De Gaulle.

General Food Situation Still Offers Problem

Washington, July 7 (AP)—While civilians will get a little more butter for fewer ration points next month, the nation's egg supply tightened further.

With egg production running below a year ago, the Agriculture Department reported that during June and early July, demand exceeded the available current supply by an increasing margin. Many grocers limited customers to as little as three eggs each.

Live and dressed poultry supplies at terminal markets continued far below trade demands, reflecting heavier consumption nearer points of production.

Meat Still A Problem

The meat situation, like some of the meat, remained tough. Adequate supplies apparently are several generations of cattle and pigs away. The Agriculture Department said civilian supplies of meat are expected to remain below demand at ceiling prices during the remainder of this year and in the first half of 1946, despite prospects for a slightly greater output of meat during the Spring and Summer of 1946.

First-of-the-month slaughter quotas brought slight but highly temporary improvement in the meat situation at a few scattered places.

With pork and lard growing scarcer daily, critical situations developed at many points regarding shortening. This, combined with sugar shortages, forced some bakers to shut down until they could catch up on supplies.

Truck-Crop Situation

Washington reported that commercial truck crops for the most part made good progress during the last half of June, but that in most northern sections they are one to three weeks late.

Truck crop harvesting is drawing rapidly to a close in the Southern States.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson formally took over the department at the start of last week. The former House member from New Mexico was succeeded in his former post of chairman of the special House Food Investigating Committee by Representative Pace (D., Ga.).

Allied supreme headquarters announced it had become necessary to use imported wheat in Germany to supplement the bread ration for miners.

SERVICE MEN RACE TROUBLE ALLEGED

Negro Leader Tells Of Clashes On Pacific Island

Cincinnati, July 7 (AP) — Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said today a group of Marines on an important Pacific island threw hand grenades and smoke bombs into camps occupied by Negro navy men in a series of incidents that resulted in a clash.

White, who returned recently from a four-month tour of the Pacific theater, told a radio audience that he accepted an invitation from the island commander to serve as defense counsel before a navy board of inquiry appointed to investigate the clash.

"For weeks," he related, "a few Marines had been throwing bricks, empty beer bottles and, upon three occasions, hand grenades and smoke bombs into camps occupied by Negro navy men.

Assault On Christmas Eve

"When no attempt was made by the authorities to stop the attacks or punish the attackers, the colored men in despair determined to defend themselves when next attacked.

"The next assault took place a few days later on Christmas Eve," White said. "A group of white service men fired upon colored sailors and ran them out of the main town on the island. Shortly after midnight, a truckload of white Marines went to the Negro camp charging that one of their number had been hit by a stone thrown by a Negro navy man. The Marines threatened to 'take the matter into their own hands.'

No Details On Inquiry Results

"On Christmas Day one Negro service men was shot and killed, and another shot by white service men. These and other assaults infuriated the men who had been attacked to the point that twice they attempted to go into own to take vengeance. On one occasion they were turned back; on the second they were arrested, charged with rioting and unlawful assemblage."

White did not disclose the outcome of the Board of Inquiry investigation.

The Navy Department at Washington had no comment on White's account. Neither was information available there tonight about such a board of inquiry.

He said the point he wanted to make in telling of the clash was not to emphasize such happenings but "to presonalize the corrosive effective of ignorance and bigotry on the progress of the war in the Pacific and at home."

Comment By Bilbo

He declared that the Japanese eagerly capitalize instances of friction between white and Negro personnel and give wide publicity among the Pacific's colored peoples to "the anti-Negro rantings of congressmen like Rankin and senators like Bilbo in filibustering a proposal to establish a fair employment practice committee."

At Washington, Bilbo commented that "any statement made by White would be prompted because I have consistently opposed any and all efforts of him and his organization to integrate the Negro race into the white race socially."

Japanese Ack Ack Fire Reported Much Improved

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 7 — The accuracy of Japanese anti-aircraft fire has improved 100 per cent in the last three months, presumably because of expanded use of radar control, an American airman reported today.

Lieut. Col. Patrick B. McCarthy, commander of an aerial reconnaissance unit operating over the enemy homeland, told a news conference today that apparently the Japanese had trained enough radar operators to man many more AA guns. Until recently the enemy gunners apparently depended to a large extent on visual aiming and tracking.

As to Japanese fighter plane opposition, Colonel McCarthy said it was his own opinion that the enemy now was able to get no more than 20 per cent of his interceptor planes off the ground.

Civilians Helping War Are Eligible for Medal

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—President Truman has established a Medal of Freedom to be awarded to American civilians for meritorious services outside the United States in furthering the prosecution of the war.

The medal, created by Executive order, may be awarded by the Secretaries of State, War and Navy.

Cruiser Columbia, Back In Action, Survived Bomb Hit in Philippines

Washington, July 7—(AP)—The Navy disclosed today that the light cruiser Columbia, veteran of Pacific battles, was hit by a Japanese bomb in the Philippine campaign but is back in action.

Casualties totaled 184, of which 60 were killed, the Navy said. The cruiser put back to sea after a visit to the Terminal Island, Calif., naval drydock, where an average of 875 workers spent 77 days repairing her wounds.

Hit by a large bomb aft on the main deck while engaged in shore bombardment prior to the Lingayen landings, the Columbia stuck to her post for three days until the beaches were secure before she retired from the battle area.

Now the Columbia, her damage repaired is back in action.

She saw action at Guadalcanal, Rennel Island; New Georgia, Rendova, Treasury, Bougainville, Empress Augusta and Palau before being disabled.

For more than two months she had operated in Philippine waters. At Leyte she helped cover the Sixth Army landings.

She participated in the battle of Surigeo Straits, where she threw more than 85 tons of steel at the enemy. She remained in the Leyte area for more than 30 days, furnishing protection against surface and air attacks.

The Columbia was one of the first ships to enter the Mindanao and Sulu Seas to cover the Mindoro landings.

Then came the Lingayen Gulf action, beginning January 6. In mid-afternoon of the first day, two "Zekes" came out of the clouds to strafe and bomb. One, although hit and burning, crashed close aboard. Gasoline sprayed over the ship, but prompt action prevented serious fires. In late afternoon a "Val" scored a hit, and resulting fires put half of the ship's main battery out of action.

Damage control parties worked feverishly to keep the ship afloat while its remaining guns stayed in action.

After the beachhead was secured, and the Columbia retired, her task force commander sent this message to Capt. M. E. Curts of Washington: "Regret to lose you at this time. The courageous conduct of your officers and crew has added to the luster of our Navy."

Utility Charges AreInvestigated By Committee

Boren, in House, Accused Wall Street Bankers of 'Swindling' theTaxpayers

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—A House group began today an investigation of charges that "shrewd manipulators" in Wall Street had worked out a "trick corporation plan" that would swindle taxpayers.

Chairman Lyle H. Boren, Democrat, of Oklahoma, of a House Commerce subcommittee, announced yesterday the investigation of activities, which he termed "Swindle, Inc."

In a House speech he said some Wall Street bankers and corporations had found "legal loopholes" in holding-company legislation which is offering them a "bonanza that dwarfs the swag of Teapot Dome."

Chairman Clarence F. Lea, Democrat, of California, told a reporter he had named Rex Boren and Representatives John W. Murphy, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, and B. Carroll Reece, Republican, of Tennessee, to make the investigations—with a view to recommendations for tightening up the holding company act of 1935.

Representative Boren charged that the . . . "scheme already has worked in Omaha, where the $32,000,000 Nebraska Power Company has been sold to a fake 'non-profit corporation' of four men for the swindle price of $45,000,000."

Mr. Boren named two men as "the chief instigators of 'Swindle, Inc.'" He listed the "first and most important" as Guy C. Myers, whom he identified as a Wall Street financial agent formerly of Montana. The other, he said, was Howard L. Aller, president of American Power and Light Company, of New York.

At his Lakeville, Conn., home, Mr. Aller said he did not know "of any tricks" and had no comment on Representative Boren's "ridiculous statements." Representative Boren also asserted "some of the blue chip banking outfits of the country are involved," and listed these: Blythe & Co., Nuveen & Co., First Boston and Dillon Read & Co.

The offices of Mr. Myers and Dillon Read & Co. said there was no immediate comment. The others could not be reached.

In Omaha T. H. Maenner, chairman of the board of the Nebraska Power Company, said he would welcome a Congressional investigation of the financial transactions involved in the sale of the utility. "We have already completely submitted all the facts before an Omaha investigating committee and . . . the Nebraska State Legislature . . . but we are still willing to submit to an investigation by Congress if they so desire," he said.

William Ritchie, Omaha attorney representing preferred stockholders fighting sale of Nebraska Power Company to the non-profit group, disclosed in Omaha he has been asked to testify before the Boren committee on Tuesday morning, "at the latest."

The Europa to Help Bring U.S. Soldiers Home in Fall

Third Biggest Ship Is in a German Drydock

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—The Europa, third largest ship afloat, will be used this fall as a troopship for redeployment of soldiers to the United States, the War Department said today.

The 52,000-ton German ship, once the fastest on the Atlantic run, is expected to make two round trips monthly. She carried a peace-time load of 2,126 passengers but is being increased to a capacity of more than 5,000.

The Europa was moved recently, for the first time in four years, from a silt-ridden bed at Bremerhaven to a near-by drydock, where German workmen are now reconditioning her. Her only war damage was inflicted by a small bomb dropped between her stacks by a Royal Air Force plane.

Before the Europa can put to sea, a three-mile channel will have to be dredged. The ship will be manned by an American crew.

ENGEL CHARGES WASTEFUL USE OF ARMY FUNDS

He Asserts 'Swivel Chair Gentlemen' Toss Money 'Down Rat Hole.'

SAYS MUCH IS NOT JUSTIFIED

JUL 8 1945

Criticism Not Directed Against Any One in the Theaters of War Operations.

Washington, July 7 (A. P.).—Representative Engel (R.-Mich.), unofficial Appropriations Committee watch dog of Army spending, asserted today that the War Department was "throwing hard-earned tax dollars down a rat hole."

Engel, a member of the Appropriations Subcommittee handling war funds, in a statement in the Congressional Record, said that billions of dollars have been spent on projects which the War Department has not justified before any congressional committee.

He emphasized that his criticism of Army spending was not directed at any one in the theaters of operation, but was aimed at "some of these swivel-chair gentlemen who get on a plane and in a few weeks come back with more ribbons on their chests than Eisenhower, Bradley, Clark or MacArthur ever received."

Since 1941, he said, Congress has given the Army more than $192,000,000,000 and it has spent more than $150,000,000,000, exclusive of $21,000,000,000 recently voted for the current fiscal year.

By the middle of 1946, Engel estimated, total Army appropriations since 1941 will exceed by $64,000,000,000 the assessed valuation of every piece of property, real and personal, in the forty-eight States as it was assessed in 1941.

As a result of many first-hand investigations, Engel said, he has complained often of "the outrageous waste" of the taxpayers' money on various Army projects. He added the War Department was apparently oblivious and kept on wasting money.

"I wonder what would happen if the public got a complete resume of the dollars wasted by this and other departments of government, as I hope they will some day," he said.

Engel estimated Army cantonment costs for the first 1,200,000 men in this war were four times as much for less than one-third the number of men during the last war.

"Right there was the beginning of the inflation in America," he commented.

The War Department, he added, should be given every dollar for which it can justify an expenditure in time of war, but is not entitled to one thin dime for any purpose which they cannot or will not justify.

Engel explained that he made his statement "in the hope that I may finally get under somebody's skin and keep them from throwing hard-earned tax dollars down a rat hole."

World Cartel Is Laid to U. S. Match Concern

JUL 8 1945

House Study Says Diamond and Swedish Company Seem to Control Market

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—A House small business committee investigator's report said today that the Diamond Match Company "appears to pretty well control" the world market through a cartel agreement with the Swedish Match Company.

The committee chairman, Representative Wright Patman, Democrat, of Texas, released the report of the investigation which he ordered. The report said that the American and Swedish firms, through agreement, "apparently control the British Match Corporation, the Japanese match industry and the Russian match pro-termed "substantially correct" reports, published at Montevideo, that Mr. Spraden had told Vice-President Colonel Juan Peron that if Argentina "decided to attack the integrity or the freedom of North American correspondents it would have to abide by the consequences."

Although declining to discuss details of the reported Braden-Perone meeting, a department spokesman said it was customary for American ambassadors to intervene in behalf of Americans having difficulties with foreign governments.

Thus it could be assumed that Mr. Braden took a strong line with Argentine officials over reported threats against North American correspondents for articles criticizing the Farrell-Peron regime, the source said.

GERMANY PICTURED AS A WHIPPED DOG

Washington, July 7 (A. P.).—"Germany is a whipped dog. There's no arrogance there now." That's the picture brought back by Representative Holifield (D.-Cal.) from a month-long-inspection trip through Europe with a House military sub-committee.

"Commanders of prisoner of war camps say Germans are the best workers in Europe," he said. "They are the best skilled and the most intellignent," and there's no necessity of discipline to force them to work."

It is in this "obedience to authority," if the authority is used wisely, that Holifield sees the possible key to the problem of stamping out the militaristic spirit in Germany. He concedes, however, that it will take a long time.

Both Holifield and Representative Johnson (R.-Cal.), another sub-committee member who made the trip, fear new dictators may spring up unless the unstable economic, political and social conditions now present in war-torn Europe can be eradicated quickly.

CORPSMEN GET RAISE

Washington, July 7—(AP)—President Truman today signed legislation boosting by $10 a month the pay of Army Medical Corpsmen whose service record entitles them to a medical badge.

The badge and the pay boost are similar to recognition given recently by Congress to expert infantrymen.

JAP KAMIKAZES THEIR TARGET

Squadron 94 Specialized in Attacking Them.

JUL 8 1945

Washington, July 7 (A. P.).—Japanese suicide tactics? The Navy's Composite Squadron Ninety-four knows all about them.

It has specialized in knocking down these fanatic, Japanese pilots in the five strenuous months it has spent in the western Pacific, operating from a Casablanca class escort carrier.

The squadron, now home for rest and reassignment, participated in the Luzon and Iwo Jima invasions, and then went into sixty-two consecutive days of action off Okinawa.

Operating Wildcat fighters and Avenger torpedo bombers, the squadron had more than its normal share of experience with enemy suicide planes.

A division of Wildcat fighters led by Lieut. (j. g.) Carl J. Rieman of Brentwood, Md., helped in the destroyer Laffey's fight for life against an attack of twenty-five Kamikazes on April 16. The four-man division shot down four of them, but six of the twenty-five got through to hit the Laffey. The destroyer returned to the West Coast for repairs under her own power.

Four days earlier, another division of Wildcats led by Lieut. Leland E. Terry of Houlton, Ore., squadron commander and senior fighter pilot, tangled with two suicides over another destroyer.

Planes of the squadron discovered a fleet of Japanese suicide boats assembled and camouflaged in an inlet at Lingayen, prepared to cripple the American amphibian force.

They immediately launched an attack and destroyed or disabled every boat.

NORSTAD GETS NEW POST

Washington, July 7 — (AP) — Army Air Forces announced today that Maj. Gen. Lauris Norstad, chief of staff of the 20th (Superfortress) Air Force, had been named assistant chief of the AAE air staff.

He will retain his position with the 20th Air Force while headquarters of the 20th are being moved to the Pacific.

Norstad, 38 years old, is a native of Minneapolis, Minn.

Patch Assigned To Train Men For Pacific War

Ex-Chief of 7th Army Will Command 4th Army at Fort Sam Houston, Texas

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—Lieutenant General Alexander M. Patch jr., who led the 7th Army through southern France and into Germany, was assigned today to command the 4th Army at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

The War Department said that General Patch, in his new post, will have charge of training thousands of troops for duty in the Pacific, where he himself saw action against the Japanese on Guadalcanal.

The 4th Army served during the European war as a training organization and presumably will continue in that capacity.

General Patch, fifty-five, replaces Major General John P. Lucas, who has served as deputy commander or commander of the 4th since March, 1944. General Lucas's next assignment was not immediately announced.

General Patch has returned to the United States, having relinquished command of the 7th Army to Lieutenant General Wade Haislip.

Under General Patch the 7th Army landed in southern France in August, 1944, and within nine months had captured Munich, birthplace of the Nazi party, and was driving on into Austria. With the French 1st Army at its side, the 7th battled 900 miles through France, Germany and Austria to link up with the 5th Army in the Italian Alps.

General Patch, a veteran of the World War, led the Americal Division to Guadalcanal in October, 1942, when that division relieved the marines. A few months later he was named commander of the 14th Corps after it was organized there.

He returned to the United States in April, 1943, as commander of the 4th Corps at Camp Young California, took the corps to the Mediterranean and then became commander of the 7th Army. He is a native of Fort Huachuca, Ariz.

The Army Air Forces announced today that Major General Lauris Norstad, chief of staff of the 20th (Superfortress) Air Force, has been named assistant chief of the A. A. F. air staff. He will retain his position with the 20th Air Force while headquarters of the 20th are being moved to the Pacific. General Norstad, thirty-eight, is a native of Minneapolis.

Navy Plans Radio Photos Direct From Beachheads

Studies Transmission From Ship at Invasion Scene

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—The Navy disclosed today that experiments are in progress for radio photo transmission direct from shipboard at the scene of an invasion landing to expedite the delivery of news from the Pacific war.

Facilities have already been provided for war correspondents to file copy or broadcast on a Navy vessel lying off the beachhead, for transmission via Guam to San Francisco. Four communications ships were provided at the Iwo Jima and Okinawa beachheads for that purpose.

Radio photo transmission from Guam to the mainland has long been in operation. The famous Iwo Jima flag-raising picture taken by Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal was transmitted in seven minutes after it was flown from Iwo to Guam.

The Navy is now using mobile units on the beachheads ashore to give press and radio correspondents direct contact with communications ships offshore, and the Navy said: "It is believed this service will be available direct from beaches in the Japanese home islands when the invasion takes place."

B-29 Output Up 4 P. C.; Plane Total Below Quota

Superfortresses Beyond June Schedule, Krug Reports

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—Production of Japan-bombing B-29 Superfortresses ran 4 per cent ahead of schedule in June, the War Production Board reported today.

J. A. Krug, W. P. B. chairman, announced that despite this achievement total aircraft output during the last month fell short of the objective by 228 planes. This ended a three-month record of schedule attainment. The total of aircraft accepted during June was 5,794, against an objective of 6,022 planes.

Mr. Krug, while stating that the over-all June showing was a "disappointment," reported that B-29 production was on schedule in all plants, with two companies "exceeding their quota to such an extent" as to account for the 4 per cent increase over the number of super-bombers scheduled.

The W. P. B. said that in terms of air-frame weight, 65,300,000 pounds were produced in June, compared with 71,600,000 pounds in May. This put June acceptances, in terms of both numbers and air-frame weight, 9 per cent below those of May, which is largely in line with declining aircraft-production schedules.

The average rate of aircraft output a working day in June was 223, compared to 235 the previous month.

Mr. Krug reported that the chief production losses occurred in the bomber and transport categories. In the bomber group, he added, one plant producing patrol bombers was "far short of schedule, according to a large degree for the over-all deficit in the class."

In the over-all bomber category, production ran 5.5 per cent behind the objective.

For other classes the June record was as follows: Fighters and naval reconnaissance, 2,778 acceptances, against a schedule for 2,853—a 2.6 per cent reduction; transport, 555 acceptances, schedule 616, down 9.9 per cent; trainers, 150 acceptances, which was on schedule; communication and special purpose, 396 acceptances, against a schedule for 376, bettering the objective by 5.3 per cent.

42 Yank Divisions Will Leave Europe Before End Of Current Year

JUL 8 1945

Washington, July 7—(AP)—The War Department announced tonight that 42 of the 68 divisions which fought in Europe and the Mediterranean will be back home or on the way by the end of the year.

Three full infantry divisions — the 86th, 97th and 95th — already have arrived and most of a fourth division — the 104th Infantry — is back.

Advance detachments of seven other divisions, the Second, Fourth, Fifth, Eighth, 44th and 87th Infantry and the 13th Armored, have reached this country and the remainder of the units will arrive shortly.

Under present plans, which may be changed later, 31 divisions will embark for home from August to January; eight will remain in Europe as occupation forces and 18 divisions will remain in Europe at least until the end of this year.

The shifting of the 42 divisions will involve the movement of more than 500,000 men.

The War Department said that although security considerations were involved in releasing the information on the movement of the divisions, it was believed that instead of bringing aid and comfort to the Japanese, the information will demonstrate "conclusively" that the Army intends to throw against Nippon the largest force possible.

The 11 divisions which have returned or are now arriving have been ticketed for the Pacific front. In addition, complete headquarters of the First Army has returned en route to the Pacific.

The War Department emphasized that the men who will fight with those divisions against the Japanese will not necessarily be the same ones who fought with the units against the Germans.

In practically all cases, the department said, the personnel of units returning to the U. S. for deployment to the Pacific are men who do not have sufficient point scores for discharge. Most men with the minimum 85 points for release, the department added, either have been returned to this country or have been weeded out of the divisions while overseas to await return to the United States.

Here is the schedule for embarkation of the divisions for the five months beginning in August. For reasons of military security, the department said, no information is being given as to whether these units will be re-deployed to the Pacific, assigned to the reserve in the United States, or disbanded.

August: 85th, 28th, and 30th Infantry Divisions and the 20th Armored Division.

September: 14th, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Armored Divisions; the 17th Airborne Division; 88th, 91st, 35th, 45th and 103d Infantry Divisions.

October: Ninth Armored Division and the 92d, 26th, 79th and 99th Infantry Divisions.

November: Tenth Armored Division; Tenth Mountain Division; 13th Airborne; 83d, 63d and 106th Infantry Divisions.

December: Second and 11th Armored Divisions; and the 34th, 90th, 80th and 76th Infantry Divisions.

The Second Armored Division, booked to sail in December, recently entered Berlin.

The eight divisions which currently are designated as occupation forces in the European and Mediterranean theaters are the First and Fourth Armored Divisions; and the First, Third, Ninth, 29th and 36th Infantry Divisions and the 82d Airborne Division.

The 18 divisions scheduled to remain in the European theater for the remainder of 1945, presumably as a result of the tight shipping situation, are the Third, Eighth, 12th and 16th Armored Divisions; the 101st Airborne Division; and the 42d, 65th, 66th, 69th, 70th, 71st, 75th, 78th, 84th, 89th, 94th, 100th and 102d Infantry Divisions.

The War Department renewed its request that relatives and friends of soldiers scheduled to return to this country not telephone or otherwise contact points of embarkation for further information. The returning soldiers will get furloughs at home and ,the department said, the transportation corps is making "every effort" to speed the homeward journey.

Praised by Admiral King

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King today marked the eighth anniversary of China's struggle against Japan with an expression of the Navy's "admiration and praise" for China's "fortitude, courage and determination."

He expressed confidence that "the progress made in forcing Japanese troops along the coast between Shanghai and Hong Kong to fight a defensive war is the forerunner of more successes to come in spite of all difficulties."

duction."

In carrying out the cartel agreement with the Swedish company, said the report, Diamond agreed to cease production in its plant at Savannah to restrict production at Barberton, Ohio, and to limit to not more than 20 per cent of capacity the plants at Chico, Calif.; Oswego, N. Y.; Oshkosh, Wis., and Springfield, Mass.

"It is very evident from research made in the match industry that it is perhaps one of the most highly monopolizde industries in the United States," the report said. "In fact, it far exceeds a monopoly and is definitely one of the world's largest cartel arrangements."

The report said of the domestic industry:

"It is interesting to note that the Diamond Match Company, which is controlled by William A. Fairburn, its president and general manager, through the William Gordon Corporation, a personal holding company of Mr. Fairburn's, which in turn owns the majority of the stock of the Diamond Match Company, also owns, through Mr. Fairburn, the William Gordon Corporation and its stockholders control the other four largest match companies in the United States, namely, the Universal Match Corp., the Ohio Match Company, Berst-Forster-Dixfield Corporation (known as BFD) and the Lion Match Company. . . .

"It further appears that Diamond's wholly owned subsidiary, Uniform Chemical Corporation, Inc., controls virtually the entire source of match-making chemicals available in the United States, this company in turn being dependent upon the successors to the Swedish and German-controlled potash supplier, 'Chemische Fabrik Grieshein Elektron...

"Diamond Match Company is also the principal manufacturer of match-making machinery in the United States, having acquired most of the companies engaged in the manufacture of such machinery. Those not wholly owned by Diamond have entered into exclusive agreements with Diamond which restrict them from selling machinery to any person other than Diamond."

A novelty match folder circulated by Representative Patman led to the investigation. The folders contained data outlining the size, virtues and resources of Texas and a map of the state printed on the back and front of the folder.

A recent news story about the matches said that, while they extolled the greatness of Texas, they were made in another state. Representative Patman thereupon set out to get a factory in his home town of Texarkana but ran into obstacles.

The study of the match industry followed.

Southerners Consider Compromise In Month-Old Deadlock On FEPC

JUL 8 1943

Washington, July 7—(AP)—Southern foes of the Fair Employment Practice Committee considered today a suggested compromise to keep it alive as a temporary agency so as to block a move to make it permanent.

The compromise was advanced informally by a Southern House leader in an effort to break the month-old FEPC deadlock that has tied up funds of sixteen home front war agencies in a $752,000,000 supply bill for the fiscal year already a week old.

It provides for granting the FEPC as now constituted—a temporary agency created by executive order and lacking legal power to enforce its orders—a "token" fund of perhaps as much as $200,000 to continue to operate.

The agency's budget estimates for the fiscal year are $599,000.

By allowing FEPC to continue without giving it legal backing, the agency's foes believe they might slow down a drive to give it permanent and legal status.

Lying on the speaker's table in the House is a discharge petition which, if signed by 218 members, would bring to a vote legislation setting up a permanent commission intended to prevent employment discrimination because of race, creed or color. The petition now has approximately 130 signatures.

Many friends of FEPC are displeased with the permanent proposal because they believe it is too far-reaching and have declined to sign the discharge petition.

But the originator of the compromise, who declined to permit use of his name, said that if the deadlock continues and it becomes apparent that FEPC will get nothing at all, "the heat will be on and we may find ourselves with a permanent FEPC."

"It would be far better to give them a small amount to operate without legal power to act, than to have them set up as a statutory body," he explained.

The compromise was advanced as House Appropriations Committee members indicated they may reverse themselves and recommend that the House accept the $250,000 voted by the Senate, or at least a part of it. That would break the deadlock, provided it could get the support of the House itself.

There has been no record vote in the House on the FEPC this year, its opponents blocking it through parliamentary moves.

Should the FEPC deadlock holding up the funds for the war agencies continue much longer, thousands of employes of those agencies will go payless for work performed since July 1. Congress has authorized the agencies to operate in anticipation of funds to be provided eventually but has not allowed them to do any actual spending.

CLAYTON IN UNRRA JOB

Washington, July 7 (A. P.)—Designation of Assistant Secretary of State William L. Clayton as the United States member of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration Council was announced today by the State Department.

Clayton was chosen by President Truman to replace Assistant Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson of the UNRRA Council in a letter to UNRRA Director General Herbert H. Lehman, the President said Acheson had asked to be relieved "because of the pressure of other duties." Mr. Truman told Lehman that Clayton, as Assistant Secretary of State in charge of economic affairs, "will be in a position most effectively to lend the support of this Government."

Clayton will attend the third meeting of the UNRRA Council in London beginning in August the President said.

Three Transports Dock With 1,144 Soldiers

New York, July 7—(AP)—Three transports, the Benjamin Huntington, Eleazer Wheelock and Justin Morrill, arrived today with 1,144 Army men from Europe.

Aboard the Justin Morrill were 379 troops, returned because of high point scores of over-age and were not for redeployment, Army officials said.

The 14th Chemical Company, the 187th Signal Repair Company and 53 liberated prisoners of war were among 383 on the Benjamin Huntington.

The Eleazer Wheelock carried 382 men, including the 634th M. P. Escort Guard Company, Headquarters and Headquarters Company of the Eighth Tank Destroyer group and some reassignment men.

Civilians Face 3 To 5-Month Ban On Pullmans For Short Journeys

JUL 8

Washington, July 7—(AP)—The Association of American Railroads predicted today the ban on Pullman cars for short runs might last three to five months as troop redeployment sends passenger mileage to record-smashing levels.

Arrivals of Pacific-bound troops from Europe were one-third greater than expected in June and apparently will run 40 per cent greater this month, it was reported.

This will shorten the coming crisis in domestic transportation—which had been expected to run until March—but will throw un unprecedented burden on the nation's railroads through the entire vacation-travel peak.

The Office of Defense Transportation, which last night prohibited the use of sleeping cars on runs under 450 miles, said the order would apply to soldiers and sailors on furlough travel as well as to civilians. Railroads simply will not assign Pullmans to short runs after July 15, thereby freezing nearly 900 cars for organized troop movements.

Although some confusion regarding effect of the order remained, these points were cleared up today:

1. Persons going less than 450 miles may take Pullman space on trains scheduled for longer runs, if the space is available.

A spokesman for the AAR, however, predicted that very little such space would be available; since long-run passengers probably would speak for virtually all accommodations at major rail terminals.

2. Baseball clubs will travel day coach on short trips between league cities, or take their chances with other civilians.

3. A firm "no exceptions" policy will be followed, according to the AAR.

JUL 8 1945

4. The Army said it would take care of transporting individual wounded service men who are deprived by the ODT order of their automatic priority on Pullman passenger space on short trips. The War Department's own facilities will be used if necessary.

Besides throwing an additional burden on buses and airlines, the action was expected to aggravate congestion in day coaches. ODT Director J. Monroe Johnson previously has announced that 10 to 12 per cent fewer coaches would be available through the redeployment period and those left will have to carry those passengers denied Pullman space.

In estimating that that pinch would last three to five months, the AAR spokesman said the peak of military travel was coming earlier than expected and might end sooner.

ODT acknowledged it was powerless to prevent persons who are traveling less than 450 miles from buying tickets for longer runs and then using only part of the ticket. The agency said it looked to the railroads to hold such abuses to the minimum.

The AAR spokesman pointed out that U. S. railroads have 30 per cent fewer passenger-carrying cars of all kinds than in the First World War, but expect this year to set a new record of 105 to 110 billion passenger miles.

This compares with last year's record of more than 95 billion passenger miles, which in turn was three times the 1941 travel and four times the 1939 passenger movement.

The railroads are confident they can do the job without a breakdown, AAR said, and will see that the troop traffic is handled whatever the effect on civilian transportation.

The problem of re-deployment is greater than it would appear from the number of troops involved, AAR said, since each soldier is moved at least six times. The pattern is: from arrival port to staging area; to distribution center nearest his home; to his home; to an assembly center; to West Coast staging area, and finally, to shipside.

Fights for Single Air Line

McCarran Wants All Overseas Flights Made by One Company

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—Senator Pat McCarran, Democrat, of Nevada, expressed his determination today to keep fighting for Senate approval of a bill to establish a single overseas air line. The Senate Commerce Committee failed to approve it yesterday by a 10-to-10 tie vote, after the Civil Aeronautics Board Thursday awarded trans-Atlantic routes to Pan American, American Export and T. W. A.

"The fight for a united front in maintaining American leadership in international aviation has just begun," Senator McCarran told newsmen.

"I plan to request the chairman of the committee (Senator Josiah W. Bailey, of North Carolina) to report the bill to the Senate. Because of the tie vote, it will be reported adversely, but I will submit a minority report, supported by an equal number of members, favoring adoption of the American-flag-system bill."

102 American Soldiers Executed During This War, Army Discloses

JUL 8 1945

Washington, July 7—(AP)—The Army disclosed today that 102 soldiers have been executed during this war—all except one for murder or rape.

The exception was a man twice convicted of deserting under fire in Europe—the first soldier to be put to death for a purely military offense since the Civil War.

Of the others, 47 were condemned for murder, 43 for rape and 11 for both murder and rape.

200 Others Sentenced

In addition, more than 200 death sentences have been imposed by general courts martial but have been commuted to life imprisonment or lesser terms.

The Army declined to identify the man executed for desertion.

The Navy, without going into details, reported that no Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard man has been executed by court martial order during this war. As of mid-April 22,000 members of those services were in confinement.

In the last year, 18,000 soldiers were sentenced by courts martial for offenses, comparable to felonies in civilian courts, which carry penalties of at least six months imprisonment.

At present, 33,519 soldiers convicted and sentenced by general courts martial are in confinement in the U. S. or overseas. Virtually all were sentenced since the Selective Service Act was passed in 1940.

These figures, which do not include soldiers given lighter punishment by special and summary courts martial, were issued by Undersecretary of War Patterson at a news conference discussion of the operation of military justice.

Emphasizing that the 33,519 in confinement represent the total number from the 10,000,000 who have entered the Army since the adoption of Selective Service, Patterson said:

"The manner in which the soldiers have conducted themselves has reflected the highest credit on the American Army."

"Severe" sentences are imposed by courts martial but not any stiffer than the circumstances call for, Patterson said.

"You cannot," he added, "make the serving of a sentence an attractive thing for men who want to avoid combat."

Fair Hearings

Patterson stressed that military justice aims at giving a soldier a fair and speedy hearing, with reviews and other safeguards.

In combat areas operations may slow proceedings, he said, but an average case in the United States will be "cleaned up" within a month, including review.

To facilitate the restoration to duty of as many men as possible, the Army two years ago set up rehabilitation centers to retrain convicted soldiers and get them back into service.

The centers have handled 23,674 men and the measure of their success is reflected in the record. More than half, or 12,206, have been restored to duty.

Many Return To Duty

About 90 per cent of those restored to duty have "acquitted themselves well," Patterson reported. He gave the present population of the rehabilitation centers as 7,457.

Patterson also cited as an example of the Army's rehabilitation program the restoration to service of 115 soldiers convicted in the Paris black market trials last Winter. These men, many under long sentences, were given a second chance as soldiers and were placed in a special unit for combat training.

The unit did not get into action in Europe but is ticketed for the Pacific, Patterson said.

About 40 others involved in the cases either did not seek a chance for rehabilitation or were leaders in the black market operations and were denied the opportunity.

In the European theater as a whole, Patterson reported, only 10,289 of the 4,182,261 American soldiers under General Eisenhower's command were convicted and sentenced by general courts martial from January, 1942, to June 1, 1945. Of those, 2,235 have been returned to duty.

Obtaining Clemency

The regular review of sentences and assignment to rehabilitation centers are not the only processes by which a soldier may obtain clemency.

A five-man clemency board, composed of two civilians and three Army officers, has been set up to review sentences. This board makes recommendations to the undersecretary of war who may reduce or remit sentences. Judge Sherman Minton of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals is chairman.

Patterson said that so-called military offense—such as desertion, being absent without leave and disobedience—constitute approximately 60 per cent of the cases handled by the court martials.

Minor offenders sentenced by summary and special courts martial are not included among the 33,519.

8 Critics To Testify At Charter Hearings

JUL 8 1945

Small Number Ask to Speak Against United Nations Pact—Talks Begin Tomorrow—Names of Prospective Opponents Withheld

Washington, July 7—(AP)—Only eight critics had asked the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today for permission to appear against the United Nations Charter in hearings which will open Monday.

Edward R. Stettinius Jr., former Secretary of State, will be the first witness in the hearings.

Aiming at only a week's hearings on the 50-nations document approved at San Francisco, Chairman Connally, (D.-Tex.), told a reporter the committee might act later to limit the time of witnesses to 15 minutes each. The witnesses would be permitted to expand their remarks in the record.

Names of the prospective opponents were withheld temporarily, but Connally said no Senator had asked to testify. An Associated Press poll of the Senate has yet to show a flat negative vote on the question of ratification.

Hopes For Vote August 1

Connally said he would like to bring the peace-keeping organization charter before the Senate July 16. He hoped debate could be concluded for a final ratification vote about August 1.

Connally in a speech prepared for later broadcast over NBC said it would be impossible to complete action on the charter before President Truman completes his forthcoming meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin near Berlin.

"The main thing is that we're going head with it as fast as possible without interruption," the Texas Senator said. "That's testimony enough of our good faith, if any is needed after San Francisco."

Senator Burton, (R-Ohio), said on the same program that he thought undue haste might have a bad effect.

"We want to examine the manuscript with a microscope," he said. "I think it will help President Truman in his negotiations if we make our hearings and debate a model of Democratic procedure under our Constitution.

"Full and fair discussions of the charter will make America's final support of it that much more significant," he continued. "It will demonstrate that only an agreement that is fair and just and that can pass a critical examination at the bar of American opinion can win the approval of the United States Senate. This will strengthen the position of the President in securing other agreements that can meet that test."

Opposition Slight

Burton forecast the possibility that the United Nations organization might become a going concern by next January 1, but Connally stressed that other nations are likely to wait until they see what the Senate does before acting to ratify it.

The paucity of direct oppposition in the Senate to the charter, which binds the United Nations to seek peaceful settlement of international disputes but provides for use of force if that fails, was considered remarkable by members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

In the past, the committee customarily has had scores of requests from opponents to testify on almost every major international proposal laid before Congress.

(Please Turn to Page Two)

The committee's roster of witnesses is likely to include, besides Stettinius, several who played active parts in drafting the charter at the lengthy San Francisco Conference. Dr. Leo Pasvolsky, State Department adviser, is expected to follow Stettinius to the witness chair Monday.

Senator Vandenberg, (R.-Mich.), has said that he wants John Foster Dulles, who served as Gov. Thomas E. Deweys Foreign Affairs adviser in the last campaign, as a witness. The appearance of Dulles, who became the "trouble shooter" for the American delegation in controversies that developed at San Francisco, is expected to illustrate the nonpartisan aspect of support for the charter.

The large Democratic caucus room of the Senate office building was made ready today for the opening of the hearings, with space partition d off for diplomats who may want to report the progress of the document to their own governments.

Congressional leaders expressed hope today they could arm President with three big legislative clubs to help him bargain with Winston Churchill and Josef Stalin at the forthcoming "Big Three" meetings.

All three deal with international relations and one of them already has been handed to Mr. Truman. It extended the reciprocal trade agreement act which authorizes the President to negotiate trade programs with other nations.

The other two are in the legislative mill. One is the Bretton Woods Monetary Bill; the other is the United Nations Charter worked out at San Francisco.

Already passed by the House and scheduled for Senate action the week after next, the Bretton Woods legislation implements the international financial agreements worked out last Summer in the hills of New Hampshire. The agreements mean nothing unless both branches of Congress approve them by legislation and set the example for other nations to follow suit.

Senate Must Act on Charter

The United Nations Charter is strictly a Senate proposition. Its ratification by that body after hearings starting next week is a foregone conclusion.

The House has nothing to do with treaty-making, although its approval is necessary for any implementing legislation that may be required.

On the theory that the Senate will pass the Bretton Woods legislation within the next two weeks, House leaders are planning to keep that body in session as late as July 21 in order to act on any Senate amendments. Once the Bretton Woods legislation is sent to the President, the House will adjourn probably until late September.

Cite Psychological Effect

Congressional program-shapers believe the psychological effect on other nations would be tremendous if, during or just prior to the "Big Three" meetings, the President could sign into law the Bretton Woods bill demonstrating the willingness of the United States to cooperate with other nations in the field of international economics.

At the Yalta meetings between Churchill, Stalin and the late President Roosevelt, they pointed out, Mr. Roosevelt could only hold out the promise and the hope that this country would come into the Bretton Woods program, would continue to carry on its reciprocal trade activities, and would go along on any agreements worked out subsequently at San Francisco. But, in all three cases, there was an "if" contingent upon what Congress thought about it.

For Mr. Truman to be able to say just what the United States "will do" instead of what he hopes it "might do," Capitol Hill spokesmen say, would give him a big talking point when he sits down with the leaders of Great Britain and Russia.

WANTS PRIORITY FOR CHARTER

JUL 8 1945

Connally Says Nothing Must Interfere With Hearings.

Washington, July 7 (A. P.).—No Senate business of any character will be permitted to interfere with the Foreign Relations Committee's hearings on the United Nations Charter, Representative Connally (D.-Tex.), chairman, declared today.

His insistence that the Charter have absolute priority when hearings begin on Monday came with the Senate facing at least four other pieces of unfinished business, any of which might cause protracted debate.

They are:

1. The bitter row over inclusion of funds for the Fair Employment Practice Committee in a $752,000,000 supply bill for homefront war agencies.

2. The Bretton Woods monetary legislation, which Senator Wagner (D.-N. Y.) wants to take up July 16.

3. A $500,000,000 post-war Federal aid airport construction bill, which Senator McCarran (D.-Nev.) will attempt to call up Monday.

4. A corporation tax bill, passed by the House yesterday, designed to speed reconversion of industry to peacetime uses.

Connally said the charter hearings would continue with morning and afternoon sessions "until we've made a prima facie case for ratification."

His attitude was to let the Senate meet if it is necessary, but to hold the hearings regardless.

However, some of the twenty-three members of the committee may feel compelled to attend the Senate sessions, if something of particular interest to their States comes up.

The squabble over the FEPC funds holds perhaps the greatest potentiality for delay, with several Southern Senators ready to filibuster. Administration leaders of both chambers will seek some sort of a compromise solution on the legislation on Monday.

NAMED TO ANNAPOLIS

Washington, July 7—(AP)—The first Negro appointed to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., since 1937 reported to the institution June 30, the Navy said today.

He is Wesley A. Brown, 2329 Seventh Avenue, New York City, and 1305 Q St., N. W., Washington, D. C. A former student at Howard University, Washington, he was appointed to the academy by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., Negro member of Congress from New York City.

Five Negroes have been appointed to the academy in its history. There have been no Negro graduates.

Service Mail Average Is 6.04 Letters a Week

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—Each member of the United States armed forces writes an average of 6.04 letters a week, the Post Office Department disclosed today.

In an annual report, former Postmaster General Frank C. Walker said that with 11,500,000 men and women in service June 30, 1944, the postal department was handling their mail at the rate of 3,611,920,000 pieces annually. Postage was being paid on an average of 568,100,000 pieces, the rest being sent free.

If regular postal rates had been paid the revenue would have exceeded $100,000,000.

JUL 8 1945

VINSON MAY KEEP HIS PRESENT POST

Washington, July 7 (A. P.).—Fred M. Vinson will succeed Henry Morgenthau Jr. as Secretary of the Treasury, and, with that question settled, a new one arose today:

Who will succeed Vinson as Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion?

That one caught official Washington flat-footed. President Truman's decision to appoint the 55-year-old Kentuckian to the Cabinet, announced by a White House aid yesterday, leaves open a job that is so important its holder has been called "Assistant President."

Vinson will not actually be appointed Secretary of the Treasury until Mr. Truman returns from the Big Three meeting in Germany, later in the summer.

When he does take office, it will be his fourth lofty executive position in a little more than two years.

NEWSPAPERS WAIT ON UNION

New York Deliveries Depend On Strikers' Action

New York, July 7 (AP)—The Publishers Association of New York city said today in a statement that delivery of the city's newspapers would be resumed when striking deliverymen complied with War Labor Board decisions.

"The policy of the publishers will continue to be one of strict compliance with the orderly and legal machinery provided by the Government for the settlement of such disputes," the statement said.

"The daily newspapers will again be delivered when the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers' Union agrees to the same processes."

No Union Statement

Meanwhile officers of the Independent Newspaper and Mail Deliveries Union remained unavailable for comment on yesterday's War Labor Board order that the union end its seven-day-walkout "without delay" or face possible loss of retroactive pay benefits and the closed shop arrangement.

Officials of the union informed the WLB yesterday that a membership meeting had been called for tomorrow afternoon to consider ending the strike, which has prevented distribution of fourteen major newspapers. The board said this was not "sufficiently expeditious or forthright."

Truman Helps G. I. See Ill Son

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 7 (AP).—With what he said was the personal aid of President Truman, Sergeant John R. Merrill came home today from New Guinea to the bedside of his dangerously ill two-month-old son. Sergeant Merrill, attached to the 25th Air Corps, said his request for a furlough was refused after his wife had notified him that the baby had been operated on for a spinal tumor. He then appealed directly to the President, the sergeant said, and obtained a thirty-day leave.

Iwo Flag Raiser Weds in Baltimore

Baltimore, July 7 (A. P.).—Pfc. Rene A. Gagnon of Manchester, N. H., one of the Marines who participated in the Mount Suribachi flag raising on Iwo Jima recorded pictorially by Associated Press Photographer Joseph Rosenthal, married his boyhood sweetheart in Baltimore today. His bride was Miss Pauline Hernois, 19 years old, also of Manchester, who came here last week to attend an American Legion War Bond ball at which 20-year-old Gagnon was a guest of honor.

Pharmacist's Mate John H. Bradley, of Appleton, Wis., hospital corpsman who was also one of the flag raisers, was best man.

Jap Students Warned On 'Possible Sacrifice'

San Francisco, July 7 (AP)—Japan called on students of high school age today to prepare to "sacrifice themselves" if necessary in defense of Nippon's home islands.

Domei news agency, in a broadcast picked up by the FCC, said that Okinawa high school students who "died gloriously" fighting American troops would be honored, and that they should be emulated by Nippon's school children.

Tokyo Reports British Clear Route to Singapore

Japanese, Fearing Offensive, Evacuate Civilians

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7 (AP).—A British naval task force has "cleared mines" southeast of Car Nicobar Island, at the northwest approaches to Singapore, the Tokyo radio reported today. Fourteen warships and two aircraft carriers were the force's mainstay in its operations yesterday, said the broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

The Japanese fear an Allied offensive to recapture the great British naval base of Singapore and are evacuating unnecessary civilians.

Japs Off Australia Reported Active

San Francisco, July 7 (A. P.).—Shipping movements in the harbor at Sidney, Australia, were halted from Thursday night to Friday morning because of reported enemy activity along the coast, the Melbourne radio reported today.

"Nature of the suspected enemy activity has not been disclosed," said the broadcast, heard by the Federal Communications Commission.

Wild Boars Spur Japanese Production

San Francisco, July 7 (A. P.).—Radio Tokyo said today that workers in a Japanese aircraft factory who were not too bored with their tasks to overcome production difficulties received a reward of six wild boars. They immediately "made a delicious boar soup and distributed it among the plant workers," said the FCC recorded broadcast, "and then were very eager to increase production by exerting their utmost efforts."

Presentation of the boars was made at the factory by Lieut.-Gen. Saburo Endo, of the Aircraft Ordnance Bureau.

Tokyo Says Allied Fleet Is Sweeping Mines From Approaches to Bastion—Not One B-29 Lost in 600-Plane Raid.

JUL 6 1945

By Associated Press.

A British task force is sweeping mines out of the invasion seaway leading to the Malay Peninsula and Singapore, Tokyo radio reported today.

Tokyo said a task force of sixteen warships, including two aircraft carriers, yesterday began clearing mines out of waters southeast of Car Nicobar Island, 300 miles north of Sumatra. This is on the invasion route to the Malay Peninsula. Japanese are already evacuating non-essential civilians from the Singapore naval base, at the tip of the peninsula, in anticipation of an invasion.

STOPPAGES END AT RUBBER AND STEEL PLANTS

Akron, Chicago Strikes Over—Paper Delivery-men Still Idle

By the Associated Press

Return to work of 13,000 steelworkers at the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation's South Chicago works, and nearly all the 17,600 employes of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, yesterday portrayed the brightest picture on the nation's labor fronts in more than a week.

The number of idle because of labor disputes totaled about 40,000.

One new dispute, involving composing room employes at the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Journal Gazette, forced suspension of morning and afternoon issues of the Gazette and News-Sentinel. The dispute involved a new contract with publishers.

Here is the labor situation by cities or areas:

Akron: Capt. H. K. Clark, Navy officer in charge of Goodyear's five plants since the Navy took over operations Thursday, said production was "virtually normal" with the return of about 79 per cent of the 17,600 workers. The strike of United Rubber Workers (CIO) tied up operations 20 days.

At the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., plant, 16,500 CIO-URWA workers weighed a War Labor Board back-to-work order, and the plea of their international president to return to work "immediately." The Firestone strike started last Sunday.

Steel Stoppage Ends

Chicago: The 24-hour work stoppage at the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation South Chicago plant ended with resumption of production beginning at 11 P. M. Friday. Full production was resumed Saturday. Some 13,000 steelworkers were idle when 164 United Steel Workers (CIO) protested against a system of layoffs. They were employed on a narrow gauge railroad which carries finished and raw materials.

Eleven hundred employes of the R. R. Donnelley and Sons Company Printing plant out since June 5, remained on strike. The dispute involved maintenance of the company's 40-year open shop policy.

(Please Turn to Page Two)

Detroit—A new strike, involving 889 Graham-Paige workers, halted production of aircraft connecting rods. The strike by United Automobile workers, (CIO), was in protest against the company's refusal to promote two workers to replace instructors on leave. Company officials said the instructor classification would be abolished.

Some 700 AFL lumber employes at 12 Detroit yards remained out on strike.

New York-New Jersey—A strike, voted June 28, among 30,000 independent Western Electric employes Association members was postponed indefinitely. Had the strike begun, production of electronics and communications equipment would have been tied up in 13 New Jersey and three New York plants.

Four Plants Idle

New Jersey-Pennsylvania — Four plants producing automobile parts for Mack Manufacturing Company remained idle. The dispute, involving 7,900 UAW-CIO workers, started Monday over seniority in the company's New Brunswick, N. J., plant. Sympathy work stoppages spread Thursday to the International-Plainfield Motor Company plant at Plainfield, N. J., the Mack Plant at Plainfield, and the Mack Plant at Allentown, Pa.

New York City: Seventeen-hundred striking newspaper deliverymen remained idle, ignoring a War Labor Board recommendation to end their seven-day dispute or face possible loss of retroactive benefits and a "closed shop" arrangement. Fourteen papers were affected by the dispute.

Connellsville, Pa.: A WLB directive ordering return to work was defied by 150 striking A. F. L. machinists whose jurisdictional dispute with the A. F. L. glass blowers union kept 1,000 idle at the Anchor Hocking Glass Company. Workers walked out May 19 after the dismissal of four machinist's union men, also members of the Glass Blowers Union.

The WLB said the strike violated the no-strike, no-lockout agreement.

Manheim, Pa.: Failure of maintenance men to return to work forced 1,000 production employes of the Raybestos-Manhattan Company's U. S. Asbestos Division plant to continue idle. A plant executive said the dispute involved failure of a WLB directive to fulfill demands of the AFL textile workers for new job classifications and wage rates.

Toledio, O.: Six thousand UAW-CIO workers, idle since July 5, remained on strike at the Spicer Manufacturing Company Plant. The company makes jeep parts. The dispute began after the discharge of a woman employe in the accounting department.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.: A dispute among 4,100 United Mine Workers in Eastern Pennsylvania over seniority rights cut anthracite production 12,500 tons a day, a Solid Fuel Administration spokesman said.

Arnold Comments

Washington, July 7—(AP)—General H. H. Arnold said today that unless full production is resumed immediately in strike-affected rubber plants fighters and bombers may have to be withdrawn from the attack on Japan.

The chief of Army Air Forces said in a statement that a "critical" situation has been created in the A. A. F. as a result of work stoppages.

"Some aircraft in this country are grounded for lack of tires," Arnold said, adding that Air Force inventories are now at a "minimum level." Shipment of tires to the fighting fronts, he said, is "seriously in danger."

Arnold said that the planes most seriously threatened by the work stoppages are the B-29 Superfortresses, which have been spearheading the aerial war on Japan, and the P-47N Thunderbolt, long-range fighter plane.

New York, July 7—(AP)—The Publishers Association of New York City said today in a statement that delivery of the city's newspapers would be resumed when striking deliverymen complied with War Labor Board decisions.

"The policy of the publishers will continue to be one of strict compliance with the orderly and legal machinery provided by the government for the settlement of such disputes," the statement said.

"The daily newspapers will again be delivered when the newspaper and mail deliverers' union agrees to the same processes."

Meanwhile officers of the Independent Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union remained unavailable for comment on yesterday's War Labor Board order that the union end its seven-day-walkout "without delay" or face possible loss of retroactive pay benefits and the closed shop arrangement.

Officials of the union informed the WLB yesterday that a membership meeting had been called for tomorrow afternoon to consider ending the strike, which has prevented distribution of 14 major newspapers. The board said this was not "sufficiently expeditious or forthright."

Cecil Dislikes Veto Power But Calls Charter 'Good Step On Right Road'

JUL 8 1945

Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, one of the original drafters of the League of Nations covenant and a Nobel Peace Prize winner, here appraises the United Nations Charter drawn at San Francisco. Lord Cecil is the younger brother of the present Marquess of Salisbury and an uncle of Lord Cranborne, one of Britain's chief delegates at San Francisco.

By VISCOUNT CECIL OF CHELWOOD

[Written for the Associated Press]

London, July 7—The most important thing about the San Francisco conference is that it reached a unanimous agreement in spite of the doubts and difficulties usual in such meetings.

The result is what President Truman very rightly called a "solid structure."

The Charter is an elaborate and detailed scheme with more than four times as many articles as were contained in the covenant of the League of Nations.

That does not mean that there are a number of new proposals in it. For the most part, it is built—very properly—on the principles and practice of the League. The actual machinery with its general assembly, its council, its international court of justice, its secretariat, its department for dealing with nonself-governing territories, and even its economic and social council, all had their counterpart at Geneva.

League Seen As Basis

They have been clarified and expounded; but the conference very rightly availed itself of the experience gained in working the earlier organization. That is the only way to build a really "solid structure." Even the Constitution of the United States owed not a little to the parliamentary and other institutions developed from Magna Carta.

That does not mean that there is nothing new in the Charter. Very far from it. Take for instance the Chapters XI, XII and XIII establishing the international trusteeship system in some eighteen articles. They represent the single Article 22 of the covenant. But they establish better and wider principles.

They provide for the extension of the system and more elastic machinery. Above all, they specifically insist that the primary consideration in the whole system must be the well-being and prosperity of the peoples concerned.

Economic And Social Chapters

So two chapters—IX and X—take up the great work done by the League in economic and social matters and the unavailing efforts of Monsieur Briand to improve the machinery for that purpose, and propose to create a new council which will carry on the work done in this direction by the council of the League, together with the activities of several committees and commissions. It will operate in direct connection with the new assembly.

All this co-ordinating and clarifying work ought to be of great advantage, particularly if some one of the same energy and ability as Monsieur Albert Thomas and his successors can be found to direct such activities. Indeed, to one school of thought it is on the success of international co-operation in these directions that the success of the organization will ultimately depend.

Attention On Peace Plans

And yet it is due to a perfectly just instinct of the peoples represented at the conference that public attention has been chiefly concentrated on the proposals for the maintenance of peace. That is what really matters. Peace is essential to all international progress.

In the nineteen years of its full existence the League did a great deal for the improvement of the conditions of life in its member states. But when war broke out all this was suspended or destroyed and we have now got again to build up the whole complicated system of credit and confidence without which no prosperity is possible.

It is therefore essential to realize what are the basic changes now proposed in the peace-keeping provisions of the older system.

Separation Of Functions

In the first place, the direct security functions of the new organization are divided from the rest of its duties. They are placed under the Security Council which is given a position independent of the assembly in security matters, though it is to report to the latter body any action taken.

Next, it is to have the assistance of a military staff consisting of the chiefs of the staffs of the permanent members of the council, that is, of the Big Five. Its duties are to deal with all aggressions, threatened or actual, and with all disputes and other circumstances which threaten the maintenance of peace.

Its action is to be primarily the promotion of the settlement of disputes by peaceful means. But if they are inadequate, it is empowered to sue international forces contributed by the members of the league in numbers and conditions to be agreed.

"More Businesslike" Scheme

Evidently this is a much more businesslike arrangement for forcible action than anything that existed under the League, though in principle no great change is made except that the military staff is nominated by the Big Five, a reasonable arrangement since they will supply most of the fighting force.

Then comes the question of how this machinery is to be set in motion, in other words, how the Security Council is to act. Here a distinction must be drawn between responsibilities and rights. The Council is to consist of eleven members, of which six are to be periodically appointed by the assembly and five are to be permanent representatives of the Big Five.

No complaint can be made of this, which substantially follows the precedent of the League.

Responsibility On Big Powers

It is evidently right and necessary that a chief responsibility for peace should be placed on those powers whose strength enables them to maintain it against any assailants. It was, indeed, the failure of the great powers in the League to discharge this duty which brought about the war. Therefore, if that was all, there would have been little or no criticism.

Unfortunately, as I think, in order to meet the anxieties felt in certain quarters, it was provided that no action for the maintenance of peace should be taken unless the Big Five were unanimously in favor of it, even though one of them was charged with actual or threatened aggression. That, in the discussions, came to be called the veto of each of the Big Five, as it obviously is.

"International Oligarchy"

This amounts to giving to each of these powers immunity from the coercive powers of the organization. In other words, it changes it from an international democracy to an oligarchy. I cannot see how this can be defended.

The organization is expressly stated to be based "on the sovereign equality of all its members." That is the right principle. It is not in any way infringed by laying upon certain of its members a special responsibility for maintaining peace any more than the doctrine of equality before the law of all the subjects of a state is infringed by giving to the police a certain duty to enforce the law.

But no one would suggest that a policeman who broke the law should not be compelled to keep it except with his own consent.

Prospect Of Revision

No doubt in an international conference questions should be settled by agreement and that involves compromise. It may well be that in this case practical harm may not ensue, particularly for the first few years, and I welcome, therefore, the prospect that is held out that the terms of the Charter may be reviewed in ten years or less when it is seen how it works.

Meanwhile full power is given to the assembly to discuss any question unless it is being dealt with by the Security Council. Since such a discussion must necessarily be in public, that is a valuable safeguard for justice.

On the whole, then, the peace machinery of the Charter ought to be enough. In that connection we must not forget the very valuable powers given to the secretary-general to call attention to any threat to peace. That is a great improvement on the convenant.

Praise Of Truman's Speech

But to me the most encouraging event was the great speech delivered by President Truman at the close of the conference, to which I have seen no objection in any quarter. I venture to quote some of the valuable statements he then made. He said: "The Charter will be expanded and improved as time goes on," and that "if we fail to use it we shall betray those who have died. . . . And if we seek to use it selfishly or for the advantage of one nation we shall be equally guilty of that betrayal," and finally that "by their own example the strong nations of the world should lead the way to international justice."

"Good First Step"

Those are great words. If these ideals are adhered to, not only in speech or on paper but continuously in action, the framers of the Charter will be justified. All depends on the use that is made of it or the support it receives.

Our Foreign Secretary, Mr. Eden, told us the other day that the Charter is the first step. I believe it is in the main a good first step on the right road.

TASKS OF WORLD RECONSTRUCTION, ON THE BASIS OF OUR COMMON IDEALS OF DEMOCRACY, INTERNATIONAL HARMONY AND GOODWILL."

THE LAST XXX AS BEFORE.

NIGHT LEAD JAPCASTS (300)

SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 7 (AP)-TOKYO ACKNOWLEDGED THE BIG B-29 RAID ON THE HOME ISLAND OF HONSHU TODAY, BUT CLAIMED DAMAGE INFLICTED ON THE TARGET CITIES WAS LIGHT AND FLAMES WERE BROUGHT UNDER CONTROL BY DAWN.

QUOTING COMMUNIQUES ISSUED BY THE JAPANESE CENTRAL AND EASTERN ARMY DISTRICT COMMANDS, THE TOKYO RADIO ESTIMATED THE NUMBER OF ATTACKING PLANES AT 410 IN CONTRAST TO OFFICIAL AMERICAN REPORTS THAT ABOUT 600 SUPERFORTRESSES PARTICIPATED.

TARGET CITIES AS ANNOUNCED BY AMERICAN SOURCES WERE KOFU, SHIMOTSU, AKASHI, CHIBA AND SHIMIZU. TO THIS LIST TOKYO ADDED KAINAN IN THE OSAKA VICINITY.

"FIRES WERE STARTED IN ALL THE AREAS UNDER ATTACK. HOWEVER, THE DAMAGE DONE WAS BELIEVED NOT TO BE HEAVY," SAID THE JAPANESE CENTRAL DISTRICT ARMY COMMUNIQUE AS RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION.

JAPAN'S FOOD PROBLEM WAS THE SUBJECT OF ANOTHER BROADCAST WHICH SAID RESEARCH HAD DEVELOPED MEANS OF TRIPLING PRODUCTION OF POTATOES. AN ACRE USUALLY WILL PRODUCE 11,880 POUNDS OF POTATOES, BUT THE NEW METHOD, SAID TOKYO, INCREASES THIS TO 30,800 POUNDS PER ACRE.

THE SECRET OF THE NEW "METHOD" WAS NOT DISCLOSED.

APPARENTLY JAPAN HAS OTHER PROBLEMS, TOO. DOMEI NEWS AGENCY REPORTED THAT JUSTICE MINISTER HIROMASA MATSUZAKA HAD URGED "STRICTER ENFORCEMENT OF OFFICIAL DISCIPLINE IN JAPAN." HE SAID COURTS "MUST CRUSH ALL ATTEMPTS OF PRIVATE AND OTHER ORGANIZATIONS TO BRIBE PUBLIC OFFICIALS OR TO ENGAGE IN OTHER CORRUPT PRACTICES."

SINCE THE FALL OF OKINAWA, ANOTHER BROADCAST SAID, "INCREASED TENSION" HAS BEEN NOTED AMONG JAPANESE RESIDENTS OF OCCUPIED CHINA, BUT THESE PEOPLE ARE NOT "DISMAYED" AND ARE "CONTINUING NECESSARY PREPARATIONS SHOULD THE DECISIVE WAR EVER BE FOUGHT ON THE CHINA CONTINENT."

TOKYO REPORTED THAT A BRITISH TASK FORCE INCLUDING 14 WARSHIPS AND TWO AIRCRAFT CARRIERS CARRIED OUT MINE SWEEPING OPERATIONS SOUTHEAST OF CAR NICOBAR ISLAND ON THE NORTHWEST APPROACH TO SINGAPORE YESTERDAY. JAPAN FEARS AN ALLIED MOVE TO RECAPTURE THE FORMER BRITISH NAVAL BASE.

Fliers from Iwo Jima Blast 49 Jap Planes In Sweep Over Tokyo

JUL 9 1945

SEVEN MUSTANGS FAIL TO RETURN; 8 JAP SHIPS SUNK

Enemy Air Opposition Increases Over Homeland; Airfields Hit.

RAIL LINES BLASTED

Tokyo Announces 200,000 Refugees Moving to North After Air Attacks.

GUAM, Monday, July 9—(AP) American warplanes destroyed or wrecked 49 Nipponese aircraft, sank eight small Japanese coastal vessels and damaged six others in week-end sweeps which continued to exact heavy toll of the enemy's home island communications and installations, it was announced today.

Iwo-Jima-based Army Mustang fighters alone destroyed or damaged 45 Japanese planes in sweeps over the Tokyo area Sunday—their fourth challenge to the defenders of the heart of the empire in five days. The challenge met occasional extremely aggressive action from Japanese fighters for the first time in the recent forays.

Striking the Tokyo airfields at noon, a large Mustang force destroyed 33 planes outright and probably knocked out five more. Seven others were damaged.

Seven Mustangs failed to return—the only American aerial losses announced in the far-reaching attacks by Army, Navy and Marine planes.

Tokyo Reports Raid

The Tokyo radio first reported the Mustang strikes, saying 150 planes were in a force paced by three Superfortresses. The radio predicted heavier raids would be forthcoming and called for additional air raid shelters [illegible] metropolitan area.)

JUL 9 1945

At Tokyo's Kyakurigahara airfield, one of two hit by Mustangs, the hangar area was left burning from rocket fire. An electric train also was destroyed, powerhouses were strafed and three power shovels were damaged.

Returning from the target the Mustangs strafed and damaged a 250-foot vessel.

Okinawa-based Navy and Marine aircraft accounted for a Japanese vessels sunk and damaged, except for the one strafed by the Iwo Mustangs.

Corsairs Blast Ships

Largest score for the day, announced by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz headquarters communique, was by Second Marine Wing Corsairs which burned four coastal ships and capsized one in sweeps over the Amami island group Saturday.

The Corsairs also strafed a small submarine and blew up two fighter aircraft on the ground. Other planes of the same group knocked out two twin-engined aircraft, set a large building afire and damaged a lighthouse in attacks on the Hirara airfield area in the Sakishima group Sunday.

The Fifth Air Foorce fighters, also Okinawa-based, destroyed locomotives and freight cars and set some warehouses afire on southern Kyushu island. The area was not otherwise identified in the communique which announced their operations, issued by Gen. Douglas MacArthur from Manila.

Fleet Air Wing 1 Privateers shot down an enemy plane and strafed a launch Saturday west of Kyushu. Marine planes of the same wing damaged two luggers and a trawler off the north China coast and left another lugger burning in the Yellow Sea Sunday.

Army Thunderbolts of the Okinawa tactical air force hit the Goto group off Kyushu, firing a lighthouse and radio installations.

Fleet Air Wing 18 planes sank a small coastal ship and a lugger south of Honshu, and the Fourth Marine Wing attacked the Palaus and Yap again Sunday.

Navy and Marine planes from Okinawa damaged nine Japanese ships and seven aircraft in raids from the Sakishima islands in the southern Ryukyus to waters off the south coast of Honshu in the Nipponese homeland, American headquarters announced yesterday.

(A Tokyo broadcast claimed that 10 or more B-29s raided Marcus Island yesterday in the first attack by Superforts on the by-passed Japanese base 1,150 miles southeast of Tokyo. American communiques have said nothing about B-29 attacks on Marcus, which is 800 miles northeast of the Saipan island base of the big planes).

Suicide Planes Damage Three British Carriers

JUL 9 1945

Guam, July 8 (AP)—Three carriers of the British Task Force attacking the Sakishima Islands between Okinawa and Formosa were struck by five kamikaze planes but suffered only minor injuries and continued operations, United States Pacific Fleet advanced headquarters announced today.

Two of the carriers were announced as H.M.S. Indefatigable and Victorious. The identity of the third was undisclosed. Previously it had been announced the British carriers Illustrious and Indomitable also were operating in the Pacific.

30.24-28225

140 Jap Planes In 2 Months

The Japanese paid a heavy price for the damage inflicted, fleet headquarters said. They lost 140 aircraft in the two months beginning March 26 during which the British task force lashed the Sakishima Islands.

Only one British ship was rendered inoperative during the campaign—the destroyer Ulster.

The Indefatigable was hit twice on the same day; another carrier was hit twice on successive days and the Victorious was hit once.

Damage control and firefighting parties on all three carriers were able to clear the flight decks so aircraft within a short time after the explosions were taking off and landing, and none was forced to withdraw from action.

Two Others Brush Decks

Three near misses also were suffered by the carriers—two kamikazes actually brushing the decks but their own momentum swept them overside where they exploded harmlessly in the sea. A third, touching the superstructure of a carrier, dived across the ship above the flight deck and went crashing into the ocean.

The British reported that since the Sakishima strikes began they had lost 70 men killed and 34 seriously wounded.

British ships which have been listed as operating in the Pacific include two battleships, four carriers, four cruisers and numerous destroyers.

3,824 More Dead Japs Counted In Philippines

Manila, Monday, July 9 (AP)—An additional 3,824 Japanese dead have been counted and 386 prisoners have been taken in mopping-up operations on the Philippines, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Added to enemy casualties announced July 2, this brought Japanese losses for the entire eight-month Philippines campaign to 423,236.

American casualties for the latest period were placed at 34 killed and 210 wounded. These presumably would be added to the total American casualties of 54,000 killed, missing or wounded announced by a headquarters spokesman on July 5.

MacArthur Praises Filipinos In Speech To First Congress

JUL 9 1945

Manila, Monday, July 9 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today told a cheering session of the First Congress of the Philippines, "the magnificent resistance of great masses of your people have given to the world a true measure of the strength of your character and established your spiritual capacity for self-government under any standards."

Disputing arguments that the Filipinos lack racial characteristics essential to self-government, the commander in chief of United States Army forces in the Pacific said:

"It is the courage, fortitude and resiliency of your people that has permitted this city of Manila to rise above the destruction of last February without starvation, without food riots, or other disorder, and without an epidemic.

Meets In Schoolhouse

"There was exemplified the strength of Filipino character—height of your stature as a race—an adequate answer to those who would question your spiritual capacity for self-government."

The General, an honorary citizen of the Commonwealth, was presented to the Congress by Senate President Manuel Roxas and House Speaker Josef Zulueta. With their legislative buildings in ruins, the Congress met in a frame schoolhouse.

MacArthur told the Congress he was "fully confident that the Americans will extend to you the full measure of trade advocated by your late great President Manuel Quezon and do everything else within their power to assist you along the road to your national destiny."

Prior to the war, MacArthur said, "the question of national defense offered the most serious obstacle to reality of your political independence. Altered world conditions resulting from the war have removed this obstacle.

"Defense is no longer national. It has become international. No nation, however powerful, may in future with safety rely exclusively upon its own defense potentiality, but must resort to international defense in concert with other nations.

"This does not mean that you may with impunity fail to take such defensive dispositions as are reasonably within your power but rather that in addition to such dispositions you must bring yourself into such international alignment that offers the best hope for preservation of future peace in the Pacific basin."

Warns Against Jealousy

The General counseled the Philippine Congress to operate without undue friction, and warned that "petty jealousy, selfish ambition and unnecessary misunderstanding must not be permitted to impede progress and rend your country.

"The success of your joint venture with America offers one great hope for solution to conflicting problems of East and West."

General MacArthur promised that the Army would progressively give the Philippines all aid in reconstruction which the military situation would permit.

The General concluded with a prayer that the Filipino people will face the future erect and unafraid and that under the Commonwealth Government's leadership "they may march proudly forward to a high destiny of honor and dignity among all the peoples of the earth."

AUSSIES DRIVE FOR OIL FIELDS

Steady Advance From Balikpapan Cuts Off Japs

Manila, Monday, July 9 (AP)—Australian troops are advancing steadily inland from the big oil port of Balikpapan on southeast Borneo against meager opposition, cutting off Japanese death-stand forces in the area's biggest refinery district, it was disclosed at headquarters here today.

There was nothing as yet to indicate that the Australians had won the Pandansari refinery zone, however. It was there that the Japanese have been putting up their bitterest resistance in an effort to deny the Allies its use as long as possible.

Stiff Fight To Northeast

Northeast of Balikpapan the Japanese also were offering stiff resistance beyond the Australian-held Manggar airfield, which is 13 road miles from the port. The enemy was turning coastal defense guns and some mortars against the slowly advancing Australian 7th Division forces who are aiming at the rich Sambodja and Samarinda oil fields still northward in the swamps.

Across Balikpapan Bay other 7th Division troops had pushed inland westward from 1 to 2 miles without meeting opposition.

American cruisers and destroyers continued to pound Japanese gun positions up and down the entire east coast of Borneo.

Planes Destroy Guns

American and Australian Mustangs, Kittyhawks, Spitfires and Liberators strafed and bombed Japanese-held areas continually, destroying guns, small craft offshore, and warehouses and barracks.

More than 30 tons of bombs were dropped on the Nipponese in the Manggar area Friday by thirteen Liberators and thirteen Lightning fighter bombers.

A communiqué from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters did not give exact troop positions in the southeast Borneo drive, but said that Australian 9th Division troops on the northwest coast of the big island had pushed 3 miles northeastward along the railroad toward the Japanese base of Jesselton.

Australian Spitfires and Kittyhawks strafed a number of small vessels off Jesselton and set fire to the Victoria barracks near the town. They also pounded enemy positions throughout western Borneo.

FIRST B-29 TO HIT TOKYO LOST IN SEA

Ten Die As Dauntless Dottie Crashes On Way To U.S.

ERICKSON

Seventy-third Bombardment Wing, Saipan, July 8 (AP)—The Superfortress Dauntless Dottie, the first B-29 to drop bombs on Tokyo and veteran of 53 missions against Japan, crashed into the sea off Kwajalein atoll in the Marshall Islands, killing ten of its thirteen occupants en route to the United States, it was announced today.

Ironically, Pfc. Lowell B. Spivey, of Winsor, N.C., one of the passengers who lost his life, was flying back to the United States on orders assigning him to "nonhazardous duty" because two of his brothers had been killed in action in other theaters.

He was the sole surviving son of Mrs. Helen Spivey.

After Predawn Takeoff

The three crew members who survived the crash, which occurred after a predawn takeoff from Kwajalein for Hawaii, were Lieut. John F. Neville, of Joliet, Ill., copilot; Staff Sergeant Charles S. McMurray, Memphis, Tenn., gunner, and Staff Sergeant Glenn F. Gregory, Waldron, Ind., tail gunner.

The men killed, all of whom had flown 30 missions over Japan, were Capt. William A. Kelley, Tifton, Ga., plane commander; Lieut. Roy E. Shanklin, Jr., Radford, Va., bombardier; Lieut. William Kovack, Detroit, navigator; Lieut. Carl W. Stammerjohn, Chicago, engineer; Staff Sergeant Albert Desimone, Schenectady, N.Y.; Tech. Sergt. Glenn W. Hones, Salt Lake City; Staff Sergeant Herman Walling, Wichita, Kan., and Staff Sergeant O. B. Pence. Conway, Ark.

The name of the second passenger killed was not disclosed.

Leader In First Raid

Flown by Brig. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, commander of the 73d Bombardment Wing, Dauntless Dottie led the first 21st Bomber Command mission against Tokyo last November 24. O'Donnell flew with the plane's regular crew commanded by Lieut. Col. (then Major) Robert K. Morgan, Asheville, N.C. The plane was named in honor of Morgan's wife.

Dauntless Dottie performed 44 bombing missions and nine reconnaisance flights over the Japanese islands. She had flown 880 hours and 176,000 combat miles and was being returned to the United States for use in training crews.

Kelley and the crew flying Dottie home were not regularly assigned to the craft. The bomber's regular commander, Lieut. Andrew G. Mayse, Tulsa, Okla., had remained behind to complete his tour of duty.

Dottie's crew chief, Mast. Sergt. Milton H. Brinkmeyer, St. Louis, said the plane had used up ten engines. Her last mission was over Kobe, June 5.

FRENCH TROOPS BEGIN OCCUPATION OF SAAR

WITH UNITED STATES TWENTY-THIRD CORPS, Saar Basin, Germany, July 6 (Delayed)—French occupation troops marched into Germany's rich Saar Basin today, making an ostentatious display of arms as they passed streets lined with glum German civilians.

The French troops, white and Senegalese, entered the Saar in disorganized columns made partly mobile by the immediate requisitioning of German vehicles. No outbreaks of violence between French and civilians were reported to American headquarters. "There was some small-scale looting—"requisitioning" of local beer stocks and food from German gardens—but no "reign of terror" such as the Germans had predicted.

French occupation officers attributed the German apprehension, which had become almost hysterical when the Americans began to leave, to Nazi propaganda that they could expect a vengeful and bloody French regime.

French troops moved into the Saar ten and a half years after the plebescite of 1935, in which an overwhelming majority of civilians, voting under the eyes of German troops, stated a preference to return to the Third Reich.

France will run the Saar coal mines, which normally produced 32,000 tons daily. However, distribution of the present 8,000 tons daily will be under the European coal organization, which has members from all of the European United Nations except ssia.

CURFEW LIFTED FOR HONOLULU

JUL 9 1945

HONOLULU, July 8—(AR) Honolulu had the first night out in three years and seven months last night and she behaved like a lady.

The curfew that forced her residents off the streets at 10 p.m., was lifted, but most residents—possibly from habit—went to bed early anyway.

Police reported only a light increase in drunkenness—the liquor supply being what it is—and there were no unusual disturbances.

Famed Maikiki quieted down at 11 p.m.

Service personnel with overnight passes walked the streets but there was no entertainment and they soon tired of it.

Entertainment houses for the most part closed at the usual time. Residents away from home after 10 p.m. had to walk because the city's transit lines are short on personnel and they quit running at the usual curfew hour.

The number of automobiles using the streets increased, but gasoline rationing still will hold traffic to a minimum.

The Army and Navy still held firm control over their men, who are required to be in barracks before 10 p.m., unless they have overnight passes.

Wac From Hidden Valley In Hawaii on Way Home

Two Rescued Flyers in Group Heading for Washington

HONOLULU, July 8 (AP).—Wac Corporal Margaret Hastings, of Owego, N. Y., and two Army Air Force men with whom she was marooned for thirty-seven days in a lost valley in New Guinea, arrived at Hickam Field near here today en route to the United States.

The two airmen are Lieutenant John McCollom, of Trenton, Mo., and Sergeant Kenneth Decker, of Kelso, Wash. With them was Major George Gardner, of Cleveland, public relations officer for the Far East Air Forces.

"They call it 'Shangri-la,' but I think 'Hidden Valley' is a more appropriate name," said Corporal Hastings in describing the place from which she and the others were rescued by glider after a plane crash. Handling a souvenir bow and arrows from the valley, she added that the place was "beautiful to stand and look at but not to live in."

The party will report to Army Public Relations at Washington.

VIOLENCE FLARES ON GREEK BORDER

E. D. SHAPPELL

Tito Claims Thousands Are Fleeing to Yugoslavia in 'Reign of Terror'.

LONDON, July 8 — (AP) Yugoslav Premier Marshal Tito today accused Greek forces of firing across the Greek-Yugoslav border in an effort "to provoke us" and said that thousands of Macedonians had fled northern Greece to Yugoslavia to escape Greek terrorism.

At the same time, Moscow dispatches said the national front of federal Macedonia had laid a strong protest before the Yugoslavia government accusing "Fascist" Greek organizations, supported by units of the Greek regular army, of carrying out a reign of terror in Greek Macedonia.

Describes 'Savagery'

The Macedonian organization, a Tass dispatch said, described the terror campaign as comparable in savagery with "the most horrible in the times of Turkish enslavery."

Tito, in a sharp speech broadcast over the Belgrade radio, asserted the Greeks were firing with machine-guns across the Yugoslav frontier and added: "Our soldiers have not replied with a single shot." He declared Yugoslavia would not undertake more than partial disarament "as long as other armies stand under arms."

Tito first observed that the Greek minister of the interior recently had denied that "a single Greek or Slav citizen in Greece had left Greece for Yugoslavia."

"I declare today before you and the whole world that there are thousands, not only of Macedonians, but of Greeks who have escaped to Yugoslavia," Tito said. "There people came over to us in order to escape the persecution of Greek reaction.

"I can tell you that despite all our efforts to remain on the best relations with the Greeks, Greek provocateurs and reactionaries are shooting with machine-guns over the frontier.

"We do not yield to the provocation of the reactionaries as a matter of fact we do not regard this as a danger. I am certain that the overwhelming majority of the Greek nation will check and foil the efforts of those Greek reactionaries who are hostile to the country."

Quick Measures Urged

Tass reported the Central Committee of the National Front of Federal Macedonia had declared that the "Greek Government cannot fail to know what its civil administration and army are doing."

The Central Committee asked the Yugoslav Government "to take quick energetic measures in order to put an end to the bloody terror over the Macedonian population of Greek Macedonia."

The protest said the Macedonians' only "guilt" was that they "deeply believe in democratic principles," and said Greek terror included murder, rape, beatings, imprisonment and the burning of villages.

Soviet And Poland Sign Trade Pact

London, Monday, July 9 (AP)—The Moscow radio said today that Russia and Poland have signed a trade treaty giving each other a "most favored nation" status.

The agreement was described as providing for an exchange of goods totaling $120,000,000 during the second half of this year, compared with a trade turnover of only $28,000,000 for a whole year under the Polish-Soviet trade treaty of 1939.

The broadcast said Poland will deliver to Russia 5,000,000 tons of coal and coke, 67,000 tons of steel and iron, 5,000 tons of zinc, 70,000 tons of cement, 25,000 tons of calcinated salt and cotton and wool fabrics prepared from raw materials delivered to Poland by the Soviet Union.

"Conclusion of the trade treaty and agreement on a mutual exchange of goods creates favorable conditions for further development of the economic ties between the two countries, which completely corresponds to the friendly relations which have been created," the report added.

British To Start War Trials Soon

London, July 8 (AP)—War criminals to be tried in zones occupied by the British Army will face possible penalties of death, imprisonment, confiscation of property or fines.

A special army order, announcing this today, said the military trials would start soon, but would not hear major war criminals, who are to be dealt with by Allied action.

British commanders will convene courts for the trial of those accused of murder or ill-treatment of prisoners of war or of inhabitants of occupied countries.

"The power to confiscate and to impose a fine provides a ready means of enforcing legal restitution in cases in which property has been wantonly destroyed or looted," the announcement said.

Army Redeploys 3,500 Planes To Pacific Area

London, July 8 (AP)—The United States Army has flown 3,500 planes with 51,184 crew members to the United States for redeployment to the Pacific theater, Brig. Gen. Earl S. Hoag announced today.

Hoag said this transfer, starting in May, had been accomplished with only two aircraft lost. Tentative plans call for the return of approximately 1,850 twin-engine planes and 4,115 four-engine bombers within the next nine weeks.

The first group of A-26's and C-47's has been deployed to the United States from the Air Transport Command base at Marseille. Because of heavy air traffic of four-engine bombers over the North Atlantic route, twin-engine craft are being flown from Marseille to Savannah, Ga., via North Africa, Ascension Island and Brazil.

A chain of ships has been established across the Atlantic and is notified by the ATC of departures of aircraft so rescue can be speeded in event of accident.

16,350 Canadians Sail From Britain After Riot

London, July 8 (AP)—Twenty-four hours after a group of Canadian soldiers had smashed store windows in Aldershot because of bitterness about delay in being shipped home, 16,350 Canadians sailed for the Dominion aboard the Queen Mary and the Ile de France.

The Queen Mary also carried about 8,000 Americans when she sailed from Scotland Friday night.

A Canadian Army spokesman said the movement of the Canadian troops was routine and not as a result of the demonstrations at Aldershot.

Ammunition Dump Blast Kills One, Injuries Many

Marlborough, England, July 8 (AP)—One American soldier was killed and a number of other soldiers and four civilians were injured by an explosion and fire yesterday in a United States Army ammunition dump in the Savernake Forest.

The original blast was followed by explosions in two near-by dumps. The concussion jarred the countryside.

Because of danger from exploding shells, firemen from Marlborough and other near-by villages were unable to begin fighting the flames until this morning.

'AP' War Correspondent Believed Slain by Nazis

ROME, July 8 — (AP) An investigation by the Associated Press left little doubt today that Joseph Morton, AP war correspondent who distinguished himself by his coverage of the war in the Mediterranean, was executed by the Germans on Jan. 24, 1945 after being captured in Slovakia.

Morton had accompanied a military mission of 17 Americans and British who went to assist Slovak patriots in a revolt last fall and the entire group was taken prisoner at Banska Bystrica, in central Slovakia, 125 miles north of Budapest. Apparently all were killed.

Lynn Heinzerling, veteran Associated Press reporter who went to the area several weeks ago to determine Morton's fate, returned here yesterday and said he was satisfied from questioning of German officials and guards that Morton was executed at the Nazi concentration camp in Mau Hausen, a small Austrian town on the Danube 10 miles southeast of Linz.

Heinzerling said he was told the body had been cremated. The full story of Heinzerling's trip and his findings now is in process of being reviewed by censorship, since it concerns war crimes investigations.

Eight Years with 'AP'

Morton expressed a burning ambition to become a foreign correspondent when he first joined the staff of the Associated Press in Lincoln, Neb., eight years ago.

When the opportunity came he achieved a brilliant and an extraordinary record of exclusive and significant reporting under most difficult and hazardous conditions. Morton was fired with determination to go where no other correspondent had gone, and get the story that no one else could get.

One of his most spectacular achievements was his reaching Bucharest, Romania, last August to witness the arrival of the Red army, and to obtain the story of the overthrow of the German-dominated dictatorship in that country. He had flown in aboard a 15th Air Force bomber, and was the only Allied correspondent there.

His exclusive interview with King Mihai, of S[illegible]t. 7, 1944, was one of the great r[illegible] stories of the year. The New Y[illegible] Times, in an editorial, said it [illegible] in it all the elements "of [illegible]or, romance, comedy, dramat[illegible] suspense and rapid action. . . . the 'Prisoner of Zenda' all over again."

Interviewed Tito

Only a few months previously, Morton had made journalistic history with his interview with Marshal Tito. Morton sent to the Yugoslavian leader a series of questions, to which the marshal replied to the extent of 1,600 words on April 30, 1944. The story was delayed by censorship, however, until May 21, and the efforts to obtain its release served to spotlight censorship problems in the Mediterranean and elsewhere, and brought assurances from the late President Roosevelt that there would be no political censorship.

In the summer of 1943, Morton was one of the first American correspondents to see Rome since the start of war. He flew over the city in an American bomber and reported in vivid eye-witness accounts the air assault upon the historic city.

Morton's war correspondence began in West Africa, where he accompanied a secret military mission. In May of 1942, he went on a troop ship which carried the first Negro task force to Liberia. He visited bases throughout central Africa. When he learned American troops were headed for Dakar, Morton went there overland and reached there 20 days before any other correspondent. In January of 1943, he obtained permission to make the trip to the United States on the French battleship, Richelieu, the only correspondent aboard.

Later that year, he did outstanding work in covering the Allied air forces in North Africa, during the course of which he made the flight over Rome in a bomber. During the Sicilian invasion, Morton talked the air forces into flying his jeep into Sicily, which enabled him to enter several cities on the heels of the invasion forces.

Native of Missouri

Morton was born in St. Joseph, Mo., in 1911, son of Joseph Morton, an attorney. In 1935, he married Letty Miller of St. Joseph, who now resides there with their 11-months-old daughter, Melinda Ann, who was born several months after his last departure from the United States.

He attended the University of Nebraska, and the University of Iowa, and worked on newspapers in St. Joseph, Wichita, Des Moines and Omaha, where he was night telegraph editor of the Bee-News, when he joined the A.P. staff in 1937. He worked in A.P. bureaus in Lincoln, Omaha and Cleveland, before coming to New York in 1940 as an editor in AP-newsfeatures.

So far as is known, he was the first Allied war correspondent executed by the Germans.

MEMORIAL PLANNED

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, June 22—(Delayed)—(AP) Slovakian government officials said today that they were planning to erect a memorial to Associated Press War Correspondent Joseph Morton, who was captured and killed by the Germans while reporting the Slovak partisan uprising in the Banska district last Autumn.

Dr. Joseph Lettric, co-president of Slovakia representing the Democratic party whom Morton interviewed at Baneka Bystrica during the height of the uprising last October, said that Morton's death "was a brutal assassination."

Speaking at a dinner at the Hotel Savoy Carlton honoring the first two American correspondents to reach the Slovakian capital in six years, Lettric declared:

"In the person of Joe Morton, a representative soldier and newspaperman, we met a daring man, a great democrat and the son of a great free nation. We saw in him also a hero.

"The Slovak nation will consider it its duty to commemorate the bravery of such soldiers who lost their lives in our cause."

John Trachta, a reporter for the Narodna Obroda, independent government newspaper, who was in the uprising center as chief of the Slovak news agency, said that he had last seen Morton on Oct. 27. He said he was leaving with the patriot army and had asked Morton to accompany him. "His last statement," Trachta said, "was that he would try to make it to Zollen and fly out."

Julius Sfranek, editor of Pravda, the Communist party newspaper here, said that he was the last person to see Morton alive in the Banska district and that he was convinced Morton was no longer living.

He added that he had last seen Morton at a party which included a Russian captain from the Soviet Information Bureau "who was insisting Morton fly with him to Moscow to visit Ilya Ehrenburg (Russia's outstanding newspaperman)."

"Morton told me he had written a number of stories about the Slovakian uprising," Sfranek said, "and although I knew we got a couple of planes out I am not sure whether he ever got his stories out.

Reported Captured

"I saw him last just before I left with the partisan group for the Nashitalni mountains where later I heard he was captured."

Lettric exhibited a clipping from "Slovak," a Tiso newspaper, dated last Jan. 25. The newspaper quoted a Berlin dispatch as saying that 18 Britons and Americans captured in Banska Bystrica in October had been taken to Germany, tried as spies and shot. The dispatch said the men were caught wearing civilian clothing.

Lettric stated, however, that Morton always wore his American uniform with war correspondent insignia.

Morton went to the mountain area with 17 British and American members of a military mission which went into aid patriots in a revolt that kept the Germans marking time for two months while the Russians pushed westward.

The dinner was held for this correspondent and Howard Byrne, reporter for the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes, the first Americans to reach the Slovakian capital in six years.

Italian Partisans Kill 47 Political Prisoners

Milan, July 8 (AP)—A dispatch to the newspaper Corriere d'Informazione today said a group of fifteen Partisans raided the Schio jail near Venice Friday night, killing 47 and wounding 26 political prisoners. Thirteen of the slain were women.

A band of supposed Fascists also attacked a prison near Genoa recently, overpowering guards and kidnapping twelve prisoners, six of whom had been sentenced to death.

Pope Pius XII Grants Audience to Lehman

Vatican City, July 8 (AP)—Pope Pius XII granted an audience today to Herbert H. Lehman, former governor of New York, and staff members of Lehman's United Nations Rehabilitation and Relief Administration mission to Italy.

The Pope, in a brief speech, praised the organization's work in countries devastated by war.

Herriot Re-enters Politics

Will Take Active Part in First Eelection; May Become Candidate

LYON, July 8 (AP). — Edouard Herriot, former French premier, told a meeting of the Radical Socialist party today that he would take an active part and might even become a candidate in France's first general election since the German occupation. In a speech, he said: "I am ready to defend the republic as I have always defended France."

No election date has been set. France at present is governeed by General Charles de Gaulle and a provisional consultative assembly.

Herriot, last president officer of the old Chamber of Deputies, was given a hearty official reception last May when he returned to Paris after Russian troops liberated him and his wife from a Nazi concentration camp.

SPY EXECUTIONS TOTAL 31

U. S. Officer Reveals Convictions in Europe Before V-E Day

PARIS, July 8 (AP)—United States military commissions convicted thirty-one spies and war criminals before V-E Day, and sentenced them to death, Brig. Gen. Edward O. Betts, acting director of the legal branch of the United States group of the Control Council for Germany, said tonight.

Minimum publicity was given to the executions before Germany surrendered because of the possibility of reprisals against Allied war prisoners, General Betts added in a broadcast.

General Betts said that early in the Normandy campaign Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had ordered an investigation and the recording of all German acts against defenseless and imprisoned American paratroopers and other prisoners.

He said that the trial of Nazi party leaders was the task of Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson but that subordinated criminals found within the American zone of occupation were the responsibility of military authorities.

CHURCHILL BEGINS VACATION IN HENDAYE

His wife and his daughter, Mary, went for a swim in the ocean.

The Prime Minister arrived yesterday for the first vacation since his illness in 1943.

CHICAGO PIANIST IN BERLIN

Wife of State Opera Violinist Plays Chopin Selections

BERLIN, July 8 (AP)—A Chicago-born pianist whose home was hit seven times by artillery shells in the Battle of Berlin gave a recital of Polish music today for American soldiers and German civilians. Mrs. Miriam Ulrich Wagner, daughter of Mrs. Alma Ulrich of Chicago, played Chopin selections in a flak-damaged former film theatre.

She said she came to Germany in 1938 and, after her marriage to Hans Wagner, a State Opera House violinist, stayed on during the war. She had a consular letter certifying that she had retained her American citizenship.

She said the only difficulty she experienced with the Nazi Government was because her first name was adjudged to be Jewish. She changed it professionally to Mariana and the Nazis appeared satisfied.

Germans Bomb, Loot And Burn Property In Berlin

BERLIN, July 8 (AP)—Bombed, looted and burned, only the walls are standing today of the once beautiful United States Embassy in Berlin—the Blucher Palais.

Hundreds of trunks and valises were rifled and set afire by persons who broke into the air-raid shelter of the building during the last days of the siege of Berlin. The Embassy safe was broken open and robbed of valuables.

Swiss Staff Helped

Russian-born Margarita de Kudriafzev, for many years receptionist at the Embassy, said the Swiss diplomatic staff, which represented American interests until the Russians arrived, was able to function almost normally until last spring although the building received its first heavy bomb damage as early as November 23, 1944.

"Then only the top story was really badly hit, whereas on the first and second floors we were able to continue our functions," she said. "After the big January attack this year, only the basement was available for work. The Swiss personnel then no longer lived in the Embassy but was scattered in three castles on the outskirts of Berlin.

Made Into Fortified Place

"The siege of Berlin by the Russians began on April 21. On May 2, SS guards stormed and occupied the Embassy, altohugh they were warned it was diplomatic property. They converted it into a fortified place.

"I was ill for several days and did not return until May 4 to this section of Berlin, when I saw the building aflame. I was told the SS had parked a munitions truck before the Embassy which was hit. Returning the second time on May 6, I found the Russians in control.

"The Russians withdrew but when I went to the ruined building once again I found that all trunks, valises and bags on the basement had been looted. Eye-witnesses told me it was German civilians who broke into the air-raid shelter and helped themselves."

Church Records Taken

Mrs. Kudriafzev said the big looted Embassy safe contained many things belonging to the British embassy which were handed over to the Americans when Britain entered the war. Records of the American church and the British embassy chapel, along with much silverware, vanished from the safe.

Mrs. Kudriafzev said when the Russians came they thoroughly interrogated her. She added that she told them of having been married to a Russian Imperial Guard officer and they then released her saying "it was your luck. You answered all questions truthfully. We had your whole record."

FOOD, FUEL LACKING

Marshal Zhukov Orders Reds to Retain Control of Entire City.

BERLIN, July 8 — (AP) Col. Frank Howley, chief of the military government of the United States occupation zone in Berlin, told a press conference tonight he expected the major powers to decide within a few days on an overall plan of government for the German capital.

He said he had no personal knowledge of immediate issues—food and fuel for the city's millions which caused Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov to order his Soviet commanders to retain control of the entire city administration.

He declared, however, that "when the overall plan for the city is approved, we will get functioning."

Three Possible Plans

There are three possible plans for running Berlin, Col. Howley declared. One would be to divide the city into air-tight zones with a major power runnnig each one. A second would be to have combined control over police and other major functions, but keep each powers' troops and German subjects in their own neighborhoods. The third would be an integrated control, with jointly-named city department heads, and liaison officers from each power operating in the other powers' zones.

"An overall plan should have been drawn in advance," said Col. Howley, a Philadelphian who was Gen. Eisenhower's civil affairs officer for Paris during the first weeks of its liberation.

Howley declared it would take some time for the Western Allies and the Russians to understand each other's methods, but he said the Russians were sincerely trying to cooperate and had stopped pulling down United States proclamations posted in the American occupation zone.

While Howley looked forward to adoption of an overall plan of government for Berlin, the highest officials representing the major powers in the capital had failed to break a deadlock over feeding the city, an issue that may be given to the Big Three to decide.

Issue Is Serious

In the eyes of American and British officials the issue is so serious that withdrawal by the Western Allies from Berlin may be considered unless a practical solution is reached.

The issue is whether the areas of Berlin taken over by U. S. and British troops shall receive food from the Russian-held outskirts, where American and British experts say Berlin ordinarily gets most of its edibles.

A long conference last night ended without agreement. It was attended by Marshal Zhukov, Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay for the United States and Lt. Gen. Sir Ronald Weeks for Britain.

It was learned that Clay proposed that commodities produced in the various occupation zones of Germany be bartered among the Allies, and that as a part of this arrangement, the Russians might be able to supply all of Berlin with food in exchange for products from American and British zones in the other parts of Germany.

There are an estimated 750,000 civilians in the American zone of Berlin, 900,000 in the British zone and 1,100,000 in the Russian area.

Anglo-American food experts, asserting that Berlin ordinarily was supplied from the countryside up to a radius of 50 miles, say that for the British and Americans to truck in supplies from hundreds of miles to the west would be impractical.

Affects Fuel

The deadlock also affects fuel, and American and British sources said that unless they have control over the food and fuel situation in their respective zones, there can be no real British and American military governments in Berlin.

Both American and British military governments originally were scheduled to be operating by July 5, but neither has taken over any district from the Soviet command to date. An order by Marshal Zhukov, issued at noon July 5, forbade his district officers to withdraw.

American and British officials refrained from trying to set up administrtions under the circumstances, to prevent any inter-Allied friction.

The French occupation zone in Berlin has not yet been defined by tripartite officials although about 1,000 French soldiers are reported to be billeted in the borough of Reinickendorf, in the British zone.

Both American and British officers expressed the opinion that "it would have been far better to have decided the French zone before we came here, just as it would have been better to have agreed regarding food and fuel—problems we had long foreseen."

There are authoritative but still unofficial estimates that 50 per cent of all the factory machinery in the American and British zones of Berlin have been removed by Soviet authorities. In some individual cases this ran as high as 99 per cent.

Writers Hear Report

A graphic report on the Berlin situation was given Allied correspondents by Brig. W. R. N. Hinde, military governor of the British occupation zone in Berlin.

He emphasized that apart from problems of food and fuel the Russians had been helpful to his detachment, supplying 30 administrative officers and 70 experts to help obtain information on the German municipal government and Soviet policies.

Hinde said the Berlin police had been "completely purged of Nazis" by the Soviet command and that police efficiency had suffered somewhat as a result, at least temporarily.

He said the legal profession also had been completely de-Nazified but he did not know how far the process had been carried out in the courts and in the schools. Both courts and schools are functioning.

The British brigadier asserted that it had been planned for Berlin to be governed by a tripartite command headquarters, scheduled to hold its first meeting within two or three days, and composed of Soviet Col. Gen. Gorbatov, British Maj. Gen. L. O. Lyhes and American Maj. Gen. Floyd Parks.

It was anticipated, he said, that food rations for the entire city would be held at an identical scale, "although we talk in terms of calories and the Russians speak of grams."

He said an agreement also was expected to permit the free movement of German civilians between different city zones, but that large migrations would be blocked. Interzone movements of Allied troops probably will be more restricted, he added.

Hinde declared he had not concerned himself with the problem of Anglo-American approval for political parties, which already are authorized by the Russians in the Anglo-American districts and are now united in an "anti-Fascist democratic bloc" with the Communists as a nucleus.

"Whatever orders I receive I shall execute," he added.

He made clear, however, that the British would screen municipal employes for possible Nazi ties when taking over the zones, regardless of any prior screening by the Russians.

He indicated that he might reluctantly be forced to close the schools in the British zone for a brief period while screening Soviet-authorized teachers.

The Berlin radio, listened to by all Germany, may come under tripartite control and the Russians already have expressed the hope that this will be done, Hinde asserted.

He said the British would "not do anything about any German machinery already removed from our zone by Soviet or identifying them or detailing the type of munitions or secret weapons they planned to use.

JUL 9 1945

Allied Screening Thorough

An unspecified number of Nazi underground leaders are still scattered in prison cages throughout the occupation area and now are getting a thorough screening by Allied authorities.

The "Werewolf" underground movement at first was discounted when German troops surrendered in droves and apparently all efforts to keep resistance alive had been smashed. The speed of the Allied drive, however, and unpreparedness to handle thousands of prisoners left many in the hands of German officers and military groups for dispersal, thereby working against their identification.

One Distinctive Mark

The SS men were known to have had one distinctive mark, a blood-type code tattooed under the armpit. When a German protested he was not of the SS, American soldiers then demanded, "let s see under your arm." That was effective until Germans in huge prisoner cages resorted to their own plastic surgery to remove the tattoo.

Since then, the search for SS and Gestapo leaders has intensified.

Most regular German army prisoners have been released to go back to farming, transport and trades work. No one knows how many SS leaders may have slipped through with them.

Yanks Seize Man In Russ Uniform

JUL 9 1945

Berlin, July 8 (AP)—A United States military police officer reported today a man wearing a Russian army officer's uniform and carrying a pistol had entered the barracks room of an American WAC Friday night and attempted to molest her.

The officer said the girl's screams attracted American soldiers, who overpowered and disarmed the intruder and turned him over to Soviet authorities. He apparently had been drinking, the report said. Under Soviet military law, such an offender would be liable to a five-year prison term.

The military police said they were preparing a report on the German 'Redoubt' Area Used To Hide Men And Munitions

Rosenheim, Bavaria, July 8 (AP)—Nazi underground leaders hid men and munitions in the "redoubt" area of Germany in hopes of keeping a core of resistance going. This is now known, but details cannot be passed through censorship on grounds of security. (twenty-six words of this dispatch were excised).

It can be said that German SS leaders were at the bottom of all the plans, but restrictions prevent incident for higher authorities.

A detachment of 72 American service women arrived in Berlin from western Germany Friday. They were assigned to quarters in a large German residential building and were tidying up when the incident occurred, the military police said. The WAC was alone in her room when the stranger entered, the report added.

Stockholm Jap Listening Post

Stockholm, July 8 (AP)—Stockholm has become one of Japan's last major listening posts for information concerning the Western Allies.

There is unhampered telegraphic communication between Stockholm and Tokyo and Allied quarters say that lengthy excerpts of Allied publications are cabled regularly to Japan.

Although Japan maintains diplomatic representatives in a few other major European cities, Stockholm seems to have become her clearing center for all kinds of information about the Allies.

Other Capitals Open To Japs

Other capitals still open to Japanese diplomats include Bern, Moscow, Lisbon, Madrid and Dublin.

The situation has been discussed in the Swedish press and the newspaper Aftonbladet recently quoted Danish Foreign Minister Christmas Moeller as saying:

"There is a Japanese legation in Stockholm and we have experienced how the Nazi legations were used."

Now Get London Papers

In the early years of the war British and American newspapers and technical magazines were virtually impossible to buy in Stockholm. But today London papers and magazines, especially picture magazines are flown regularly to the city and old copies of American magazines arrive by boat. American newspapers, however, still are generally unobtainable.

Allied quarters said even the mails could be used to send information to Japan.

Fleming In Sweden To Study Problems

Stockholm, July 8 (AP)—On President Truman's initiative, Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming has come to Sweden to study this country's steps to meet its postwar problems.

Fleming, United States Federal Works Administrator, will pay special attention to plans for house and road construction, with the hope of drawing benefits for the United States. Norway, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, France and Italy also are on his itinerary. He visited Russia and England last autumn.

10,000 Slavs Reported In Flight From Greece

Bitolj, Yugoslavia, July 7 [AP—Delayed]—Unofficial estimates today said that 10,000 Slavs had fled northern Greece recently to escape a reign of terror in which Greek armed bands and Greek militia reportedly were sacking entire villages. (Greek Government spokesmen have discounted reports of terrorism near the Yugoslav border, and said any outbreaks there were by outlaw bands.)

Nearly 2,000 refugees from Greek Macedonia, where Greek bands reportedly were plundering the countryside, robbing, raping and driving Slavs from their homes, have entered Yugoslav Macedonia through this border town alone, according to the best available information.

More than 100 Slav refugees are living here temporarily, with the aid of Yugoslav relief.

Stories Of Terror Told

From this side of the frontier, it was impossible to learn Greek explanations of the situation, but it appeared that Slavs remaining on the Greek side of the Macedonian frontier were considered enemies of Greece in an aftermath of the Bulgarian occupation of Greek Macedonia.

The volatile border situation is closely allied with the open and long-standing conviction of some Macedonians that Greek, Bulgarian and Yugoslav Macedonia should be combined into a single Macedonian state. Such a program, however, appears to have no official backing.

Asserting that Greek armed bands were using terror and intimidation against them merely "because we are Macedonians," men, women and children, many barefooted and in patched, torn clothes, clamored to tell their stories.

Whole Village Sacked

Dimitri Gaskeff, a 60-year-old automobile accessories dealer in the village of Sorovich (Greek name—Amindeon), said raiders came to his village in March hunting for his nephew. The raiders, he said, shot his nephew through the arm and carried him away after killing the nephew's wife.

Gaskeff, who once worked in Granite City, Ill., and Toledo and Canton, Ohio, said the Greeks also arrested 30 others in Sorovich.

STALIN AND SOONG MEET THIRD TIME

China And Soviet Reported Progressing On Problems

Moscow, July 8 (AP)—Generalissimo Stalin last night held his third meeting within a week with Chinese Premier T. V. Soong as evidence accumulated that China and the Soviet Union were making progress in solving problems of the highest interest to Allied statesmen.

A well-informed foreign diplomatic source said that while by no means all questions had been settled, there was reason to be optimistic enough to remember one of the last messages sent to Moscow by the late Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese republic.

Sun Yat-Sen Message

This message was: "Bidding you farewell, I hope a day will come when the Soviet Union will find in a powerful China a brother and an ally, and both will work hand in hand for the liberation of the nations."

A diplomatic source said that every effort was being made by the two statesmen to come to an agreement on virtually every mutual question.

"Nothing is being passed up," the informant said. "This is a frank discussion between two very serious, intelligent peoples bent on settling a number of matters."

Conferees Speak Plainly

It was stressed that last night's talk, like the two previous ones, was carried on in an atmosphere of warm cordiality, but that this friendliness did not keep the conferees from speaking plainly.

Soong went to see Stalin this third time after communicating with Chungking. The fact that Stalin was willing to push aside other business almost on the eve of the Big Three meeting to see the Chinese Premier three times within a week impressed the diplomats.

Neutral diplomats said the Japanese in Moscow were buzzing with conversation about the meeting and otherwise showing great interest in the situation.

German War Damage To White Russia Listed

Moscow, July 8 (AP)—Statistics on German damage to the White Russian Republic are given in a petition signed by 2,547,360 citizens and forwarded to Generalissimo Stalin.

The petition says the Germans destroyed 1,215,200 houses and village buildings. It may have an important bearing on reparations discussions now under way in Moscow.

CHINESE BEAT LANDING FORCE

JUL 9 1945

Reported Pursuing Japs In Retreat South Of Amoy

Chungking, July 8 (AP)—The Chinese high command reported tonight that Japanese marine raiders who landed on southeast China's "invasion" coast southwest of Amoy were in full retreat under the blows of pursuing Chinese veterans.

Confirming front dispatches that the Japanese had effected beachheads on the coast below the Japanese-held former treaty port 140 miles west of Formosa, a Chinese communiqué asserted that enemy landing parties had suffered heavy casualties.

6 Miles South Of Port

The communiqué said the Japanese took off from island-bound Amoy, crossed Hsiamen River estuary and landed on the Fukien province coast about 6 miles south of the seaport June 30.

After massing for a blow, the Chinese swept against the Japanese landing forces and by yesterday afternoon had driven the enemy along the coast to a point east of Changpu, 35 miles southwest of Amoy.

The high command report put a new light on the possible objectives of the Japanese landings. The communiqué made it appear that the enemy effort was designed primarily to strengthen the mainland defenses around the island city and port of Amoy.

For almost 400 miles to the northeast, the invasion-vulnerable coast of China was clear of Japanese forces as a result of enemy withdrawals and Chinese occupation.

Drive Toward Shanghai

At the northern end of the Japanese-free coastline only 340 miles west of American-held Kume Island in the Ryukyus, the Chinese were plunging up the Chekiang province coast toward Shanghai.

While some advance spearheads, following in the wake of Japanese retirement, battled at the gates of Chenghsien, 116 miles south of Shanghai, the high command announced that the Japanese stronghold of Tientai on the Wenchow-Hangchow highway had been recaptured. Japanese rear guards in Tientai, 146 miles south of Shanghai, had held out behind Chinese lines.

Meanwhile Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops in Kwangsi province gained in drives from Liuchow along the railroad and highway leading to Kweilin, 90 miles to the northeast.

20 Miles Beyond Liuchow

A communiqué said that forces pushing along the railroad had captured a point six miles from Lojunghsien, 20 miles northeast of Liuchow, and advance guards were reported converging on Lojunghsien.

Another column, thrusting along the highway to Kweilin, scored a 3-mile advance and reached a point 9½ miles west of Chungtu, 30 miles northeast of Liuchow.

Some 185 miles northeast of Canton, Chinese forces in Kiangsi province were reported driving from Sinfeng in the direction of Kanhsien, 32 miles to the north.

Planes Hit Jap Vessels

American China-based fighters returned anew to Japan's shipping and sea supply lines to southeast Asia Saturday, hitting enemy vessels off the coast of French Indo-China in the gulf of Tonkin.

Heavy attacks were made against port and river installations in the Haiphong area while enemy ships passing through Hainan Strait off the South China coast were strafed.

Supporting Chinese ground troops driving toward Kweilin, P-51 Mustang fighter-bombers blasted Japanese fuel storage and transport parking depots at Yangsha, 43 miles south of Kweilin.

Communists Claim Toll

Chinese Communists headquarters in Yenan claimed in a communiqué recorded by the FCC Sunday that Communist armies had inflicted 335,275 casualties on Japanese and puppet troops in China from June, 1944, to May, 1945.

The communiqué asserted the Communist 8th Route Army, the new 4th Army and the South China anti-Japanese brigade had liberated 33,590 squares miles of territory in the year.

The Communist troops, the communiqué said, chalked up these victories in 30,342 engagements at a cost of 37,759 wounded and 14,310 killed.

British Take 2 Villages 70 Miles From Rangoon

Resurgence of Enemy Activity on Sittang River Reported

CALCUTTA, July 8 (AP).—Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters reported today a resurgence of Japanese fighting activity in the Sittang River bend seventy miles northeast of Rangoon, but said British forces have captured two villages in the area.

Japanese artillery, a communique said, shelled the village of Nyaungkashe, twenty-five miles northeast of Pegu, on two successive nights. The Japanese were reported established northeast, northwest and southwest of the village.

Headquarters also announced the sinking or damaging of eight enemy ships by Liberator bombers off the east coast of the Kra Isthmus, part of the Malay Peninsula.

Jinnah, Wavell Confer On Deadlock At Simla

Simla, India, July 8 (AP)—Mahomed Ali Jinnah, president of thte Moslem League, conferred today with Viceroy Lord Wavell on deadlocked negotiations for the formation of a proposed new Indian interim government, and later reported to the league's working committee.

There was still no indication as to whether the league would submit to Wavell a panel of nominees for executive council posts, all but two of which would be held by Indians under the British-proposed plan.

Wavell has invited the league and the Congress party as well as minority groups to submit nominations, but the league has demurred, saying the Congress party might nominate Moslems and that it would not participate in any government with nonleague Moslems.

U. S. WRITERS RIDICULED

Argentine Radio Calls Cortesi and Newman Victims of 'Jokes'

BUENOS AIRES, July 8 (AP)—A news announcer for El Mundo radio station broadcast a commentary today ridiculing Joseph Newman, correspondent for The New York Herald Tribune, for having taken refuge in the United States Embassy last week after receiving threatening telephone calls.

The fact that all radio programs are controlled by the Government aroused speculation whether the commentary had been officially inspired.

Mr. Newman and Arnaldo Cortesi of THE NEW YORK TIMES have recently received calls warning them against writing "false and tendentious" dispatches regarding the Argentine political situation.

The radio program referred to the calls as "jokes" and added "for a man used to telephone, telegraph, radio and even television as a modern newspaper man ought to be, especially if he's a North American, it is surprising this means of communication could have affected his nerves in this manner."

SENATE TO OPEN HEARINGS TODAY ON PEACE CHARTER

Stettinius Will Testify on United Nations Pact at Washington.

SCAN DELEGATE POWER

Move to Define Authority in Committing U. S. Is in Prospect.

JUL 9 1945

WASHINGTON, July 8—(AP) A proposal that Congress define the authority of the American delegate on the projected World Security Council as equivalent to the President's constitutional power to employ troops was advanced today by Senator Hatch (D-N.M.).

With the Senate Foreign Relations committee opening hearings on the United Nations charter tomorrow with testimony by Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., former Secretary of State, the question of limiting the Security Council representative's authority by a treaty reservation claimed new attention.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the committee has urged that Congress settle this in separate legislation. But Senator Millikin (R-Colo.) told a reporter he thought the issue must be met head-on while the charter is under consideration. Senator Taft (R-Ohio) has indicated he will have a reservation of this nature to offer.

Hatch, siding with Connally, said in an interview that he believed the difficulty of drawing a line over which the American representative should not step in voting for the use of United States troops without prior consent of Congress could be met in a thoroughly constitutional way.

Hatch, a Foreign Relations member who was an early advocate of all-out international cooperation to prevent war, argued that the President has the well-defined right to order this country's military forces into action to police international disturbances that interfere with American rights.

Hatch Proposes Bill

He suggested that the whole question of giving Stettinius—selected by President Truman as the American representative—instructions as to how he may vote on the council might be solved by writing into a bill setting up the office of delegate a clause saying that nothing in the measure should alter the constitutional authority of the President as commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

This would leave intact the Congressional right to declare war, an authority that several senators who intend to vote for ratification of the charter say they wish to see preserved.

Connally insisted that the question of the Security Council representative's power is a domestic issue to be determined in a measure for presentation after the charter is ratified. He said it was undecided whether this would be offered immediately after charter debate ends or be delayed until enough other countries act on the document to make it certain the new international organization will be created.

Says Senate Should Act

But Millikin argued that the Senat ought, as a matter of good faith, to make its position clear on the delegate's authority before it approves the charter. Any subsequent limitation on this power that would act as a restriction on the council, he said, might put the Senate in the position of breaking the covenant it made when it voted for ratification.

In the same vein, Senator Moore (R-Okla.) told a reporter he thought adoption of the charter without any reservations would bind the Senate morally not to impose any later restrictions on the American representative in voting for the use of force by the council. For that reason, he said he wants the delegate's authority defined no[illegible]

Congress Acts To Control U. S. Fiscal Agencies

Bill to Regulate Government Corporations Approved by House Committee

JUL 9 1945

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP).—Congress moved today to get tighter control over the nation's pocketbook.

The action, indorsed in principle recently by President Truman, came in approval by the House Committee on Executive Expenditures of a far-reaching bill for regulation of Federally owned corporations.

These agencies, such as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, largely determine the government's fiscal policies and control its money spending, the committee said in a report to be printed this week.

Under the legislation, introduced by Representative William M. Whittington, Democrat, of Mississippi, the corporations would be required to submit an annual budget and program of anticipated operations for approval or rejection by Congress. In addition, a yearly independent audit of most of the agencies would be directed.

Reporting that 101 of the government-owned corporations are in existence, the committee said that "in the case of many (of them) the Congress has not adequately exercised its power" of controlling their purse strings and general procedure.

A Senate banking subcommittee has approved a similar measure by Senators Harry F. Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia, and Hugh Butler, Republican, of Nebraska, and Administration spokesmen told a reporter its passage in some form is likely this session.

Mr. Truman's support was in a letter to Chairman Carter Manasco, Democrat, of Alabama, of the House group. Commenting on the Byrd-Butler proposal, he said:

"I heartily favor this proposal. It is a long-delayed, forward step." . . .

The House committee said the Whittington bill is very similar to the Byrd-Butler measure, but does not impose "as stringent financial controls." It specifies, for instance, that action cannot be taken under the bill to change the substantative law under which the corporations do business. Also, it exempts the Farm Credit Administration agencies from an independent audit.

"It is not the purpose of the bill to attack or destroy any government corporation or to place any in a straitjacket," the committee report stated.

"Rather the bill is designed to co-ordinate the financial operations of the corporations."

EUROPE GRAIN OUTLOOK POOR

650,000,000 Bushels Needed From This Continent

Washington, July 8 (AP)—The Agriculture Department's Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations reported today that the outlook for grain production in Europe this year is the poorest of the entire war period.

Wheat prospects were said to be particularly unfavorable.

Factors contributing to the poor outlook were said to include a severe drought in much of the Mediterranean area; reduced seedings in most of the war-affected regions; land reform programs, notably in Eastern Europe; lack of fertilizers, and shortages of machinery, transportation facilities and other difficulties.

JUL 9 1945

650,000,000 Bushels Needed

Food allocation officials of the Department of Agriculture estimate that 650,000,000 bushels of American wheat will have to go to Europe in the next year, half from this country and half from Canada.

The situation varies from country to country, the OFAR said. Best prospects are in northern Europe, while the least favorable outlook is in the Mediterranean area. A severe drought in the latter region has taken a heavy toll of wheat and barley crops of French North Africa, of wheat in Portugal, Spain, central and southern Italy, and parts of the Balkans.

Reduced seedings in France, the Netherlands, central and eastern Europe, along with a shortage of fertilizers, are expected to give the smallest outturn from these areas in many years.

Land Reforms A Factor

The OFAR said land reforms extensively introduced in Poland, the Baltic states, Hungary, and other sections of the Balkans, Czechoslovakia, and eastern Germany during the crop season also appear to be having a disruptive effect upon production.

Northern Europe, especially Denmark and Sweden, and Switzerland are the principal countries on the Continent with about normal crop indications. The outlook in the United Kingdom is said to continue better than during the prewar years, but less favorable than last year.

The Soviet Union was said to be the only important country with grain seedings reported much above 1944. Prospects there indicate the best crop since 1940.

Polish Envoy Reported Trying to Deed Embassy

Paper Says London Aid Would Deprive Warsaw of Building

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP).—"The Sunday Star" said today that Jan Ciechanowski, Ambassador of the Polish Exile Government in London, made an unsuccessful attempt to deed the Embassy to the Polish American Congress.

He wished, "The Star" said, to keep the property from the Warsaw Government of National Unity, which was recognized by the United States Thursday. Mr. Ciechanowski declared at a press conference yesterday the recognition left him without official status.

The Polish American Congress, incorporated in Illinois, claims to represent 6,000,000 Americans of Polish descent who contend the London exile regime is still the legal government of Poland.

A deed conveying the Embassy to the congress was filed with the recorder of deeds last Tuesday, "The Star" said, but on Friday a second deed was recorded which transferred the property back from the congress to the "Republic of Poland."

The newspaper quoted Mr. Ciechanowski as saying he had found it was "not possible" to transfer the property. A 1941 executive order froze Polish assets in this country, along with those of other nations overrun by Germany, and prohibited transfer of property except by special Treasury Department permission.

FREEDOM OF RADIO ESPOUSED BY TRUMAN

WASHINGTON, July 8—(AP) Radio, "by its very nature must be maintained as free as the press," President Truman said in a letter made public today by Broadcasting Magazine.

The letter to Sol Taishoff, editor and publisher of the Trade Journal, was included in a copyrighted article marking the 25th anniversary of radio's operation on a regular schedule.

"Our lawmakers demonstrated admirable foresight," the President observed, "by decreeing that America as the birthplace of radio, should have a free, competitive system, unfettered by artificial barriers and regulated only as to the laws of nature and the limitation of facilities."

"The American system has worked and must keep working," Mr. Truman declared. "Regulation by natural forces of competition, even with the obvious concomitant shortcomings, is to be preferred over rigid governmental regulation of a medium that by its very nature must be maintained as free as the press."

TRUMAN REPORTED ENROUTE TO BERLIN

WASHINGTON, July 8—(AP) A radio broadcast said tonight that President Truman already has left for Berlin and his meeting this month with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill. The White House declined to confirm or deny.

A. F. L. PROPOSES 72 CENT MINIMUM

JUL 9 1945

WASHINGTON, July 8—(AP) The American Federation of Labor today called for an "immediate return to collective bargaining within price ceilings" and a minimum wage of 72 cents an hour.

A.F.L. President William Green has already presented this program to President Truman, the A.F.L. Monthly Survey said, adding that Mr. Truman "expressed grave concern about the danger of sharp wage reductions and promised a thorough investigation of the problem."

Noting that some War Manpower commission controls have already been relaxed, the A.F.L. publication said reduction of the work week and layoffs at war production plants have already cut deeply into many workers' pay checks.

"We must take immediate steps to build up the consumer market by raising workers' buying power," the A.F.L. said. "That is why we must return immediately to collective bargaining within price ceilings."

The "Little Steel" formula, the publication continued, prevented workers from receiving wage increases in proportion to their increased productivity, with the result that corporation profits shot up:

"Now is the time to restore to workers their rightful share in this great increase of wealth produced by the joint effort of management and workers," the survey said.

"Now, when workers' pay is being cut back, when their living standards and buying power are threatened.

"Collective bargaining is the one sure way to make good the wage increases workers have earned, and at the same time avoid all danger of inflation. By collective bargaining, workers and management in each plant can agree on a wage increase which the plant can pay without increasing prices. Return to collective bargaining within price ceilings is a No. 1 requirement for reconversion."

Declaring that reconversion will be seriously hampered by manpower shortages in basic industries which have low wage rates, the publication said "a minimum wage of 72 cents, which could be adopted by collective bargaining without War Labor Board approval and made a legitimate basis for price adjustments if necessary, would go far to solve the manpower problems of industries like these."

Uncle Sam 'Playing Santa Cla. In Latin America, Dr. Hardy Say

JUL 9 1945

LOS ANGELES, July 8 — (AP) Dr. Osgood Hardy, back from two and a half years service with the State department in Panama and Santo Domingo, said today Uncle Sam has been playing the role of Santa Claus in building Latin American good-will.

"The United States has spent billions of dollars to build Latin American good-will for the sake of a united war front," the Occidental College history professor declared in an interview.

"We have achieved that unity, but we cannot go on forever playing Santa Claus.

"One error we North Americans make is the assumption that the aid we give Latin American countries necessarily furthers the cause of democracy.

"In some cases, it doesn't. Not all Latin American countries are democratic, whatever their pretensions. Indeed, some so-called democracies there are actually dictatorships.

"In our over-anxiety to be nice to Latin Americans during the war, we have coddled them and short-changed ourselves. We have denied ourselves structural steel in order to ship quantities of it to Latin America where, as a result, the people have hardly been aware that a war is being fought.

"Moreover, the United States has been content merely to ship a quota of supplies to each Latin American country without bothering to trace the disposition of the goods.

"Often these supplies have found their way into the orbit of those in power, while the average man has received no benefit.

"American building materials, for example, are often used in Latin America to erect mansions for public officials rather than school buildings for the people."

Preceding his departure from here approximately 30 months ago, Dr. Hardy spent six months in Washington investigating economic conditions in Latin American countries. It was his seventh in a series of visits to Latin America, during which he studied economic and sociological programs.

Foe Tells of Sinking Allied Ship

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8 (AP).—Sinking of a 3,000-ton Allied transport in Balikpapan anchorage off the Borneo oil port was claimed today by the Japanese in a broadcast beamed in English to the United States. The Domei news agency, in making the unconfirmed claim recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, asserted also that an 8,000-ton transport was damaged. The broadcast told of a purported raid by Japanese small surface craft on the anchorage last Wednesday.

Survivors Of Porter Reach Treasure Island

San Francisco, July 8 (AP)—The 12th Naval District announced today that 249 enlisted men survivors of the destroyer U.S.S. William D. Porter, sunk off Okinawa by a suicide plane, arrived at Treasure Island for reoutfitting and "well-earned leaves at home."

Sixty-one of the Porter's crew were injured when the kamikaze exploded under the ship, crippling her so badly she sank three hours later. There were no fatalities.

Unit Claims Champion Father Of Armed Forces

San Francisco, July 8 (AP)—The Army post office detachment here put forth the claim today that one of their number, Pfc. Wilbert L. [Pop] Fleury, is the champion father of the armed services.

An Army release said Fleury had thirteen children, one more than Corporal Chester J. Barrett, of Concord, N.H., who previously was suggested for the title.

Fleury was a mail carrier at Port Huron, Mich., before his induction. He and his family draw a net total of $354 a month from the Army. That exceeds the base pay of a colonel.

JAP REFUGEES MOVING NORTH

200,000 Said To Be Going To Hokkaido To Avoid Raids

San Francisco, July 8 (AP)—The Japanese announced today that 200,000 air-raid refugees would be moved to the northernmost home island of Hokkaido to get them out of the path of American warplanes. Sky raiders were reported hammering Japan for the eighth straight day.

One broadcast said that the vanguard of the homeless—240 bombed-out residents of Tokyo—had arrived at Hakodate, southern Hokkaido port.

Predict Heavier Raids

The Japanese said that even heavier raids would come with the end of the rainy season, which is almost over, and called for more air-raid shelters.

Another Tokyo radio program carried at length an article by Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, Japanese Ambassador to Washington at the time of the Pearl Harbor attack, declaring that the Allies' policy of unconditional surrender was only costing them higher casualties.

"As long as the enemy asks for Japan's unconditional surrender," he wrote, "she will have to shed blood proportionate to the time and intensity of each battle."

Nomura conceded there was no evidence of war weariness among the Allies although "enemy personnel losses since Pearl Harbor and Singapore and after the Okinawa battle have been more than very heavy."

Cites David Lawrence

Nomura [illegible]rticles such as David Lawrence's report on the Okinawa campaign have caused considerable repercussions."

Lawrence wrote a column, quoting a front correspondent, saying that American lives might have been saved by a second amphibious landing on southern Okinawa. This prompted Admiral Chester W. Nimitz to reply that such a plan had been studied and discarded as unfeasible.

Medium, Small Cities Hit

The Japanese reported that 27 "medium and small cities" had been bombed by Superfortresses from the Marianas between June 17 and July 3.

The Domei agency said an Allied submarine had tried to approach Sabang, Dutch East Indies port on an island off Sumatra's northwest coast, but had been forced to submerge by fire from shore batteries.

A Domei dispatch without Allied confirmation claimed that Japanese "small surface craft" had slipped into the anchorage at Balikpapan, sunk a 3,000-ton transport and damaged one of 8,000-tons from the big invasion fleet supplying the southeast Borneo operations.

Wounds More Serious As Yanks Near Japan

Seattle, July 8 (AP)—Wounds suffered by American servicemen are becoming more severe the closer United States forces approach Japan, a navy doctor aboard a transport returning wounded and others from Okinawa said here today.

"It's been particularly noticeable since we've been bringing in casualties from Okinawa," said Lieut. (jg) Seymour Sholder.

"Originally most of the wounds were fairly simple fractures. But the number of amputations is increasing and so is the number of eyes lost. It's an indication that the Japs are using more desperate tactics all the time."

Trip by War Prisoners In Pullmans Explained

Cars in Nebraska Would Have Been Empty Otherwise

DALLAS, Tex., July 8 (AP).—The 8th Service Command public relations office said it was advised today that two tourist pullman cars in which members of an Italian prisoner of war service unit traveled from Monticello, Ark., to Omaha, Neb., would have made the trip empty if the prisoners had not been aboard.

The command said it was told by representatives of the Western Military Bureau at Little Rock, Ark., the pullmans were being deadheaded" from Arkansas to the northwest for use of troops.

The announcement said that since the Italians were traveling in the same direction, the unit was put aboard until the critical travel area was reached.

The 7th Service Command announced at Omaha last night that the Italians, who were en route from the Monticello prison camp to work at the Sioux Ordnance Depot at Sidney, Neb., were taken off the pullmans at Omaha and continued the trip by coach.

SOLDIER IN UTAH KILLS 8 GERMANS SLEEPING IN TENT

Burst of Machine Gun Fire from Guard Tower Injures 20 Others.

PROBE UNDERWAY

New Orleans Private in Custody for Shooting, Commander Says.

SALINA, Utah, July 8—(AP) Three bursts of machine gun bullets fired by an American soldier from a guard tower plowed into tents at a prisoner of war camp here today killing eight sleeping Germans and injuring 20 others.

Col. Arthur Ericsson, commander of the prisoner of war camp at Ogden, of which the camp here is a branch, said preliminary investigation had not determined the motive for the shooting.

He named Pfc. Clarence Bertucci, 23, of New Orleans, La., as the American soldier. The latter was taken into custody and an investigation ordered.

Ericcson said questioning of soldiers and prisoners yielded this story:

Bertucci went on duty at midnight. About a half hour later Lt. Albert I. Cornell, the branch camp commander who was at work in his office only a few feet from the tower, was startled to hear a burst of machine gun fire.

He leaped to the window, saw that the bullets were being fired into the tent area and rushed out the door just as a second burst of fire rang out.

He yelled to the guard to quit firing but as he reached the base of the tower a third volley sounded.

Called for More Ammunition

That exhausted the guard's ammunition and Cornell said Bertucci called out for a new supply.

The firing lasted no more than 15 seconds, Ericcson estimated, and approximately 250 bullets were expanded.

The guard was within 20 or 30 feet of the nearest tent in which the German prisoners were sleeping with other tents as far as 300 feet distant.

Guards and prisoners throughout the camp were aroused by the shooting and treatment of those injured was begun immediately.

Served in England

Ericcson said Bertucci served eight months in England, assigned to a field artillery unit. He has not seen battle action.

He will be questioned here, Ericcson said, along with others at the camp and a report will be made to the security and intelligence officer at Ninth Service Command headquarters at Fort Douglas.

Of those injured, six were taken to the station hospital at the Kearns overseas replacement depot near Salt Lake City. Twelve were taken to Bushnell General hospital at Brigham, Utah, and two, only slightly hurt, were treated here.

The camp, 150 miles south of Salt Lake City, houses approximately 250 prisoners engaged in farm work in central Utah fields.

At Fort Douglas, Ninth Service Command headquarters named the dead as Otto Broms, Gottfried Gaad, Ernst Fuchs and Hans Meyers, all underofficers, and Walter Bogel, Fritz Stockman, Georg Liske and Adolf Paul.

Points Chinese Problem

Yellow Springs, Ohio, July 8 (AP). T. Z. Koo, adviser to the Chinese delegation at San Francisco, told an Antioch College peace institute tonight there can be no central government-Communist coalition in China unless the Communists agree to abandon their separate government and incorporate their divisions into the national army.

3 U.S. WARSHIPS SENT DOWN WAYS

Two Carriers And Submarine Are Launched

Philadelphia, July 8 (AP)—Three naval craft—the aircraft carriers Princeton and Saipan and the submarine Tusk—splashed down the ways along the Deleware River today to add their might to the United States fleet.

Highlighting the ceremonies at various shipyards was the launching of the 27,000-ton Essex-class carrier Princeton before an estimated 70,000 persons, the largest crowd ever to attend a Philadelphia Navy Yard launching.

"Vengeance" Replacement

Assistant Secretary of the Navy H. Struve Hensel told navy yard authorities the Princeton, a "vengeance" replacement for the 10,000-ton converted carrier Princeton, sunk by the Japs in the battle of Leyte Gulf, "will be a symbol of our national unity and of our faith. She will bear within her not only our sons and brothers but also the hopes and aspirations of the entire nation."

Saipan First Of Class

Across the river at Camden, N.J., the 14,500-ton light carrier Saipan, first of its class, slid down the ways of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, after being delayed a half hour by the tide. Mrs. John W. McCormack, of Boston, wife of the majority leader of the House, christened the vessel.

The submarine Tusk was launched from the Cramp Shipbuilding yard, where Mrs. E. W. Mills, wife of Rear Admiral E. W. Mills, assistant chief of the Bureau of Ships, christened the underseas craft.

Chinese Bishop Warns Big Nations on Charter

Delegate to Parley Bids Them Acknowledge Their Duties

PHILADELPHIA, July 8 (AP).—Bishop Paul Yu-pin, of Nanking, Chinese delegate to the San Francisco Conference, said today that while a world peace charter has been drawn up, it is another thing "to put its principles into application."

The Roman Catholic prelate who represented thirty-five Chinese non-governmental organizations, chiefly cultural and educational at the conference, said:

"The great powers must acknowledge their responsibilities, and they must not feel that they have more rights than other nations. Big nations must be big brothers. They, most of all, must exhibit a sense of duty, co-operation and sincerity. There can be no spirit of competition, no domineering."

The Bishop envisoned China as a "great democratic industrial nation" before long and added that, "You may be sure she will always remain friendly with the United States."

He also indorsed Philadelphia's bid for the capital of the United Nations.

NOMURA ATTACKS OUR PEACE TERMS

Admiral Says Allied Demand for Unconditional Surrender Means Heavy Bloodshed

As long as the Allies insist on unconditional surrender terms for Japan, they will have to "shed blood proportionate to the time and intensity of each battle," Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, Japanese special envoy to Washington at the time of the Pearl Harbor attack, said yesterday, according to the Toyko radio.

"Japan's set method in this war has been and is to take the heaviest toll of the enemy so as to make the enemy realize his folly," Nomura said in an article in yesterday's issue of the Tokyo Mainichi, according to the English-language broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Nomura continued:

"Enemy personnel losses since Pearl Harbor and Singapore and after the Okinawa battle have now been more than very heavy. Japan's enemy, however, has not become war weary, although articles such as David Lawrence's report on the Okinawa campaign have caused considerable repercussions."

David Lawrence in several articles criticized the high American casualties on Okinawa.

The Tokyo radio said that 200,000 of Japan's bombed-out city-dwellers would be evacuated to rural villages in Hokkaido, northernmost of the Japanese home islands, under the Government's new program of resettling urban air attack victims on farmland in order to solve the food supply problem. No figures were offered for other resettlement areas.

The new "back-to-the-farm movement" first was disclosed by the Japanese Domei Agency ten days ago in an overseas dispatch that said that the Government had launched a program envisaging the resettlement of 450,000 persons in rural communities throughout Japan.

At that time Domei said that the "first mass movement" would involve 100,000 persons, only 20,000 of whom were to be sent to farms in Hokkaido. Today, however, the Tokyo radio reported that preparations for the reception of 50,000 families totaling 200,000 persons, already had been started by the Hokkaido Development Corporation.

The domestic broadcast, recorded by the FCC, said that the first evacuees, presumably a group of 240 which previously were reported to have left Tokyo last Thursday, had arrived at the port of Hakodate at the southern tip of the island.

Citizens' volunteer corps of the type formed recently in the Japanese homeland "will be dispensed with in North China in establishing a self-fighting and self-sufficiency structure," Lieut. Gen. Sanetake Kusumoto disclosed at a press conference in Peinping, the Tokyo radio said.

Kusumoto, Japanese Minister to the puppet North China regime, added that the Japanese residing in North China would "remain to the last."

ABOARD ADM.JOHN S.MCCAIN'S FLAGSHIP, WESTERN PACIFIC, JULY 8-(AP)-THE NEW U.S. ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF NAVY FOR AIR, JOHN L.SULLIVAN, SWUNG OFF THIS CARRIER TODAY BY BREECHES BUOY FOR A VISIT WITH ADM.WILLIAM F.HALSEY ON HIS THIRD FLEET FLAGSHIP.

SULLIVAN WAS A PASSENGER YESTERDAY IN A TORPEDO BOMBER WHICH SWOOPED IN FOR LANDING NO. 10,000 ON THIS SHIP. THE PILOT WAS LT.RICHARD PALAND, 189--15 QUENCER ROAD, ST.ALBANS, N.Y., WHO HAD BEEN PILOTING SULLIVAN ON TRIPS TO OTHER CARRIERS OF THIS HALSEY-MCCAIN TASK FORCE.

PALAND, WHOSE PARENTS RESIDE AT14 CARDINAL AVE., ALBANY, N.Y., HAS FLOWN 1,200 HOURS IN THE NAVY. A TRADITIONAL DINNER MARKED THE SHIP'S 10,000TH AIRPLANE LANDING AND A HUGE CAKE, INSCRIBED IN HONOR OF THE EVENT, WAS SERVED AT DINNER.

REFERRING TO THE BREVITY OF TRIPS WHILE FLYING SULLIVAN TO OTHER CARRIERS, PALAND DECLARED "I OFTEN GET 'CHARLIES' (SIGNALS MEANING PERMISSION TO LAND) BEFORE I GET LAUNCHED OFF THE CATAPULT."

THE TRANSFER OF SULLIVAN, ADM.AUBREY W.FITCH, DEPUTY CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS FOR AIR, AND AN AIDE TO THE SECRETARY, SENT THEM ACROSS A TAUT ROPE FROM SHIP TO SHIP IN A BREECHES BUOY MADE FROM A DISCARDED AIRPLANE SEAT. SOME WAG HAD DECORATED IT WITH BUGGY FRINGE, GIVING IT THE APPEARANCE OF A SEDAN CHAIR--BUT IT WAS NO CINCH RIDE FROM THE LOFTY DECK OF THIS CARRIER TO A ROLLING LITTLE DESTROYER WHICH TOOK THE PARTY TO HALSEY'S FLAGSHIP.

SEAMEN WATCHING THE TRANSFER SAID ADMIRINGLY "THAT SECRETARY SURE IS ONE HELL OF A FELLOW FOR FINDING OUT WHAT'S GOING ON IN THIS MAN'S NAVY."

550 Superforts Hit Nip Homeland—Fighters Aid in Attacks.

DARING

GUAM, Tuesday, July 10—(AP) Nearly two thousand American warplanes, ranging from giant B-29s to naval carrier planes and Mustang fighters, piled destruction on the Japanese homeland today.

It was the greatest single day air assault of the Pacific war.

NIGHT

Virtually all land-based airforces in the western Pacific collaborated in preparing the way for a surprise 1,000 plane dawn raid on Tokyo by the fast carrier force of the powerful third fleet, which steamed close to the home island to launch an attack that is still in progress.

550 Superforts in Attack

Up to 550 Superfortresses opened the attacks on the Nipponese homeland with 3,500 tons of fire and demolition bombs hurled on five cities. The Superfortresses strikes, spread over wide areas of the empire, carried as far North as Sendai, 180 miles north of Tokyo and the most northern city of the home islands yet reached by the B-29s.

A large force of the Army's Seventh Fighter Command Iwo Jima-based P-51 Mustangs made their fifth strike at Tokyo area airfields in six days on Monday, pinning down Japanese search planes and blocking enemy discovery of the carrier task force.

Meanwhile, other forces of Corsairs, Mitchells and Thunderbolts swept over the southern home islands and ranged as far as the Yellow sea, striking airfields, communications and shipping in a steady wave of attacks focusing attention away from the approaching carrier force.

Also in preparation for the strike, Fifth Air Force Mustangs from Okinawa hammered steadily at Kyushu island airfields.

When Adm. Chester W. Nimitz released his daily communique the great carrier plane strike was already underway and the navy planes were over Tokyo at that very moment.

Nimitz' communique disclosed for the first time that Liberator heavy bombers of the Army's tactical air force also were operating over the Japanese home islands, where yesterday they bombed Omura airfield on Kyushu, starting large fires. Thunderbolts fighters of the same force shot down 104 Japanese training planes as they escorted the Liberator mission.

Thirty-five hundred tons of bombs were dumped on these cities of around 200,000 population on the main home island of Honshu:

Sendai, largest city of northeastern Japan 180 miles north of Tokyo.

Gifu, 18 miles north of Nagoya and one of the principal electric-power producing areas of Japan.

Wakayama, industrial city of steel and chemical works south of Osaka.

Yokkaichi, oil-refining center east of Osaka and the site of the largest Japanese plant still turning out aviation gasoline.

Sakai, industrial suburb of Osaka, Japan's second city.

Sendai, Gifu, Wakayama and Sakai were hit by incendiary bombs. It was the first fire raid for each.

Explosives On Yokkaichi

Yokkaichi has been hit twice by incendiaries and today the Superforts worked it over with high explosives. They previously had burned out 1.23 miles of the city.

The raiders who took on Sendai made the longest mission of the war, a round trip of 3,960 miles from Marianas bases. The farthest north the big bombers previously had traveled was Koriyama, 110 miles north of Tokyo.

With Sendai, Gifu, Wakayama and Sakai added to the list, the total number of Japanese cities hit in 45 fire-bomb raids reached 34.

Barracks Among Targets

Choice targets at Sendai, a Government seat and commercial center for the Kitakami lowlands to the north, are military barracks, railways and two power plants.

Sendai, with a population of 223,630, occupies 26 square miles. It also is the site of the largest radio station in northern Honshu.

Gifu, with a population of 172,340 and covering 44 square miles, has eight large textile mills, railroad yards and repair facilities for most small types of machinery.

It is surrounded by one of the most heavily forested areas of Japan and the paper industry is established there.

Produces Aircraft Parts

Wakayama, 40 miles southwest of Osaka, and Sakai each have a population silghtly less than 200,000. Wakayama produced heavy aircraft parts, chemicals, ordnance, high quality steel and dyes. Sakai produecs machine tools, textiles and chemicals, and also is the site of ordnance and marine engine plants.

The Utsube oil refinery at Yokkaichi, the target of high explosive bombs, was damaged in the two previous raids and 30 percent of its roof area was damaged.

The Fortresses struck at a time when United States fighter planes were seeking out the hoarded Japanese air force after meeting and defeating the enemy's newest fighters in a bruising battle over Tokyo Sunday.

They were maintaining the ceaseless campaign of aerial destruction which in the last 39 days saw Superfortresses alone unload bombs on Japanese cities at the rate of more than 1,000 tons daily.

Good Targets Scarce

A Marine pilot back from strafing raids declared that already good targets were growing scarce "even in the heart of the Japanese empire."

The Japanese called on new, fast-climbing fighters capable of speeds in excess of 400 miles an hour in a vain attempt Sunday to stop Mustang raiders from Iwo Jima and lost 45 of their planes. Seven Mustangs were shot down.

The enemy fighters, known to the Marines as "Jacks," came barreling down from an ambush in the clouds, and melee was on. It was the first aggressive attempt at interception in several days.

[The Japanese have claimed that their new fighters would turn the tide of air battle and would check the devastating raids by Superfortresses.]

In all, Allied communiqués covering week-end action listed 64 Japanese planes destroyed, fifteen enemy vessels sunk and 25 probably sunk or damaged in raids ranging all the way from Honshu southwestward to the Malay Peninsula.

Fifth Air Force pilots, before hitting Japan for the fourth straight day, were told by Gen. George C. Kenney, their commander, on a visit to new bases on Okinawa:

"You are on Japan's doorstep and no holds are barred now, for everybody's an enemy up there. The bars are down—go and get them."

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May's 20th Air Force reported how its Superfortresses were moving in the accelerated air war.

42,250 Tons In 3. Days

Through 39 days of June and early July the air fleets from the Marianas unloaded 42,250 tons of fire and high explosive bombs on 69 missions comprising 6,500 sorties (individual flights). Thirty-nine Superforts were lost.

They burned out 36.297 additional square miles of urban and industrial areas as they shifted their sights to smaller cities because most of the important targets in larger cities have been erased.

This made a total of more than 130 square miles of built-up urban areas which have been destroyed.

35 Plants Bombed

Thirty-five war industry and oil plants were hit by demolition bombs.

The summary of B-29 operations also disclosed for the first time the scope of mine-laying operations which are tightening the blockade of Japan. It said that more mines were laid in enemy home waters in three months of operations than were laid by the Royal Air Force at the peak three months of its campaign against Germany.

Superfortresses, in fact, sowed far more mines in that period than had been laid by all Allied forces in the entire Pacific Ocean area since the start of the war.

GREATEST SINGLE DAY'S AIR ASSAULT IN PACIFIC MARKED BY FLEET BLOW

ERICKSON

Land-Based Forces Collaborate In Preparing For Surprise Attack On Japanese Aerial Power. Nimitz Names Vessels And Commanders

Carrier Based Planes Blast Jap Capital

GUAM, Tuesday, July 10—(AP) The mighty Third Fleet carriers of Adm. William F. (Bull) Halsey are hurling more than 1,000 planes into the crumbling aerial and ground defenses of Tokyo today.

The gigantic blow achieved complete surprise, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced in a precedent-shattering communique which named 26 of the ships and ten of their commanding admirals and was issued while the strike was in progress.

Nimitz identified only four of the carriers—obviously only a fraction of the flattops required to launch a thousand planes—together with four battleships, four cruisers and 14 destroyers.

700 Over Target At Once

With 1,000 or more planes in the striking force, presumably at least 700 were actually over their targets simultaneously at the moment Nimitz issued his communique describing the daring strike. The assault still is in progress, Nimitz made clear.

Vice Adm. John S. McCain is in command of the first carrier force, the first to hit Tokyo since Fifth Fleet planes under Adm. Raymond A. Spruance and Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher scored what Nimitz called a "decisive victory" over the enemy capital Feb. 16 and 17 and 25.

Officers' Names Given

Nimitz named these flag officers in command of "subordinate units" of the vast American fleet:

Rear Adm. J. F. Shafroth; Rear Adm. O. C. Badger; Rear Adm. L. E. Denfeld; Rear Adm. J. C. Jones; Rear Adm. L. J. Wiltse; Rear Adm. G. F. Bogan; Rear Adm. A. W. Radford; and Rear Adm. T. L. Sprague. Several of them evidently command groups of carriers.

Ships named as participating include:

Carriers: Lexington, Essex, Independence, and San Jacinto.

Battleships: Indiana, Massachusetts, South Dakota and Iowa.

Cruisers: Chicago, San Juan, Springfield and Atlanta.

Destroyers: De Haven, Samuel N. Moore, John Rodgers, Schroeder, Cogswell, Heerman, Southerland, Ault, John W. Weeks, Colohan, Wedderburn, Rowe, Caperton and Frank Knox.

Japan's dwindling air force and her airfield installations were priority targets for the howling Hellcat strafers and the Avenger and Helldiver bombers that ripped into the Tokyo area at dawn.

The main objective of the Third Fleet's return to a direct assault on the homeland was acknowledged to be destruction of Japanese airpower.

Japs Cautious

Since they lost more than 4,000 planes in futile support of their Okinawa garrison, the Japanese have used their remaining air strength cautiously—and probably have pulled back most of their available planes into bases on Honshu and possibly as far north as Hokkaido, northernmost of the major home islands.

The Kanto plain area around Tokyo, however, is the site of Japan's greatest single concentration of airfields and aircraft installations.

Several dozen operational fields are spread over the plains area about 100 miles in breadth. Damage and destruction in this area as well as the toll of planes knocked out will achieve an important step toward the American goal—making the enemy airforce as impotent as was Germany's Luftwaffe before the Normandy invasion.

Admiral Halsey returned to the western Pacific with his powerful Third Fleet June 1 "ready to go anywhere—even into Tokyo Bay," as he said, after Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's 5th Fleet carrier planes had struck the Nipponese homeland two crushing blows in support of Iwo Jima and Okinawa invasion forces.

Halsey said he was returning "to take care of some unfinished business," and asserted his plans were to "knock" hell out of the Japs wherever we find them."

He said he hadn't much hope that the remains of the enemy fleet would come out as a gesture.

"I wish they would, but they've got damned little left to gesture with," he sighed.

The last previous carrier blow at Tokyo was by Mitscher's force Feb. 16 and 17 and Nimitz termed that victory "decisive."

March 18 and 19 the Fifth Fleet under Adm. Raymond A. Spruance and the carriers of Admiral Mitscher struck Kyushu bases and swooped down on Japan's own inland sea, crippling Nipponese fleet fugitives and destroying or damaging 731 Japanese aircraft. The carrier planes continued their sweeps across the enemy's "back yard sea" March 20 and 21 and wound up the daring venture with a surface bombardment of the Ryukyus.

Superfortresses carried on a continuous hammering of the enemy empire afterward, in preparation for the invasion of Okinawa on Easter Sunday.

Several Ships Destroyed

Thunderbolt fighters of the Okinawa tactical force probably destroyed one medium sized ore ship and damaged another and set a small ship afire in strafing and bombing attacks at Uku island, west of Kyushu. A fishing craft also was destroyed.

Buildings, motor transport, docks, lighthouses and radio installations also were damaged and one enemy plane was shot down.

Corsairs of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing strafed installations and small craft at Yoron and Okinoyerabu Islands Sunday, starting fires and damaging two whale boats.

Monday a substantial force of Army Mitchells of the tactical airforce, supported by Marine Corsairs struck targets at Tokuno and Okinoyerabu Islands and another group of Corsairs attacked Kikai, Amami and Tokuno Islands.

Liberators of the tactical force bombed Conura airfield Monday again starting large fires and Thunderbolts of the same force shot down 10 Japanese training planes over Kyushu island the same day.

Striking again at shipping in the Yellow Sea around Southern Korea, Fleet Air Wing One search privateers Sunday destroyed two luggers and two small cargo ships. Two luggers and two other coastal ships were damaged.

A pier was destroyed by the privateers and a lighthouse damaged.

Since the beginning of Okinawa operations Fleet Air Wing One aircraft have sunk 159 enemy ships totaling 145,850 tons and damaged 194 ships totaling 138,981 tons. Planes of the same Wing have destroyed 41 enemy planes and damaged 29.

Palaus Under Attack

The Palaus again were under attack of Marine Aircraft Wing Four on Monday.

Carrier fliers and the fleet's mighty force of supporting battleships, cruisers and destroyers had been resting briefly since the last carrier attack on Kyushu June 8—which ended more than 80 days of continuous operations in preparation and support of the Okinawa conquest.

Less than a month after that tough assignment, the Third Fleet's Fast Carrier Task forces again are able to return in full strength and strike at the heart of Japan's military power.

In covering the Okinawa forces, Admiral Mitcher's carrier pilots caught and sank the super-battleship Yamata on April 7 off Kyushu.

From the carriers' inland-sea strike of March 18-19 through may 27, when the Third fleet relieved the Fifth fleet, 3,534 Japanese planes were destroyed — 2,330 of them by carrier planes and the remainder by land-based planes, ack-ack, or Japanese suicide crashes.

Carriers of the Pacific fleet have been in almost continuous action against Japan since they beat down enemy air strength in Formosa and the Philippines last September and October to open the way for the Leyte invasion.

In supporting these invasions—in the Philippines, at Iwo Jima and at Okinawa — the fleet's fast carrier forces have met and defeated the strongest land-based air forces the Japanese could muster.

Very Large Task Force Hits Honshu Centers in New Night Assault.

ENEMY USING NEW FIGHTER

Hurls 'Jack' Planes at Yank Flyers From Iwo and Okinawa Bases.

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—A very large task force of Superfortresses rained incendiaries on industrial targets at five Japanese cities on Honshu Island today.

A Twentieth Air Force headquarters announcement said that Gifu, Sakai, Wakayama, Sendai and Yokkaichi were hit in a night incendiary and demolition raid today (July 10 Japanese time). The Superfortresses were from Major-Gen. Curtis E. LeMay's forces based in the Marianas.

The announcement said details of the raid will be released after the bombers have returned.

Target Areas Described.

Gifu, a transprtation center located eighteen miles northwest of Nagoyo, has a considerable number of machinery and metal working plants and a large number of textile mills. Its population of 172,000 includes most of the labor force of the Kawasaki and Mitsubishi aircraft plants located at Kagamigahara, about five miles to the east.

Sakai is an industrial suburb of Osaka and the site of ordnance and marine engine plants, machinery and machine tool factories and chemical and explosive works. At least three of the city's large textile mills have been reported converted to aircraft ordnance manufacture. It has a population of 182,000.

Wakayama lies thirty miles south of the Osaka-Kobe industrial area. Having a population of 195,000, it is an agricultural marketing center that has been industrially expanded for war production. Large steel works, a chemical plant and numerous small marine engine and metal and wood-working plants are located there.

Sendai has a population of 224,000 and is the largest city in northeastern Japan. A major rail hub, it is the administrative center for the northern area of Honshu and has extensive wartime industrial and munitions plants. Yokkaichi, located near Nagoya, is the site of the Utsube oil refinery. It was attacked by Superfortresses on June 22 and 26.

New Jap Fighters Fail To Halt Growing Air Attacks

JUL 10 1945

"Jack" Planes Put Up Fight.

Guam, July 9 (A. P.).—Flying new "Jack" fighter planes, Japan's recently idle combat pilots jumped into the aerial warfare over the homeland again yesterday, trying vainly to stem the assault of long-range American Mustangs from Iwo Jima, which attacked Tokyo airfields for the fourth time in five days.

The "Jack" fighter is a new first line, single engine Navy plane with a 35-foot wing spread. It is 32 feet long and has a combat radius of 300 miles.

The Iwo-based Mustangs, Okinawa-based Marine Corsairs and Navy search planes destroyed or damaged fifty Nipponese planes—many on the ground—sank eight small coastal ships and damaged six others. Seven Mustangs were the only American planes reported missing from the day's far-ranging forays which struck nearly every section of Japan's shrinking empire.

Fifth Air Force Mustangs from Okinawa swept Kyushu for the fourth straight day after Gen. George C. Kenney told them: "You are on Japan's doorstep and no holds are barred now, for everybody's an enemy up there."

Says 'the Bars Are Down.'

Until now, he said, fighting has ben over Jap subjugated territory where caution was necessary to avoid injuring friendly populations—but now "the bars are down—go and get them!"

Marine Major-Gen. Louis Woods, Tactical Air Force commander, complained: "Good targets are growing scarce even in the heart of the Japanese empire. Our pilots really have to search for targets now, but we will do anything to kill more Japs because that's our job."

Flyers of Woods's force hit Kyushu Island and nearby waters, destroying four vessels and damaging nineteen craft. Seven grounded planes were riddled and airfields were bombed, rocketed and strafed.

"Jack" fighter planes encountered by Mustang pilots froh Iwo Jima's Seventh Fighter Command have been described as Navy interceptors, capable of more than 400 miles per hour.

Formosa Bombed

While his Fifth Air Force fighters were hammering Kyushu, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported from Manila, Far East Air Force fighters and bombers pummeled other communications of the enemy and supplies centers in Formosa and along the China invasion coast.

Navy patrol bombers continued their constant harassing of the big Canton, China, arms plant, and the Fifth Air Force Liberators over Formosa destroyed two Japanese bombers and damaged other enemy planes grounded at Heito Airfield. A 20-attack bombers ripped Taien and Ryutan Airfields, the Takao docks and Toko seaplane base.

MUSTANGS HIT 4 AIRFIELDS

Army Planes Down 12 Japs. Liberators Raid Kyushu

Guam, Tuesday, July 10 (AP)—A large force of Army Mustangs from Iwo Jima strafed four airfields around Nagoya and Osaka Monday, their fifth strike in six days, in helping to prepare the way for today's carrier-plane blows on the Tokyo area.

The Mustangs ran into only cautious opposition but shot twelve Japanese interceptors out of the air, probably shot down four more, and damage one, with a loss of one of their own planes.

RYUKYUS FIGHT RAIDERS

One of Eight Enemy Fighters Downed by American

OKINAWA, July 9 (AP)—Encountering the first enemy fighter opposition in raiding northern Ryukyu targets, Major John Hussey of Sea Cliff, N. Y., downed one of eight enemy fighters.

Two American pilots were lost. A fishing boat, a 300-foot ore ship and two small boats were destroyed and one ore ship, a 150-foot boat, a tanker and a freighter were damaged by Okinawa-based fighter-bombers.

100 MacArthur Planes Strike Blows At Formosa

Manila, Tuesday, July 10 (AP)—More than 100 Liberators and Mitchell bombers of the 5th Air Force struck some of the strongest neutralizing blows of the war at the Japanese island of Formosa Saturday as bad weather interrupted the daily attacks on Kyushu by Okinawa-based Mustangs of the same force.

The northern Formosa airfields of Matsuyama and Takioku and the west coast field of Rokko were hit by the Liberators and Mitchells, along with industrial targets, gun positions, storage areas and railways. One Mitchell failed to return.

Smoke [illegible]

Moto Island, off southeast Formosa, was left covered by a mass of smoke and flame, and big patrol bombers struck the Mako coaling wharf, the Taiharo sugar refinery on the east coast, and installations in the Pescadores Islands, to the west.

The incessant aerial blockade of the Asiatic coast continued. Large fires were set among Canton military installations, an enemy housing area in Amoy was bombed, and a freighter-transport left aflame and sinking off Hainan Island.

Other American and Australian planes ranged through the East Indies, hitting at Borneo, Celebes and Java.

For the first time in four days MacArthur's communique contained no word of operations by his 5th Air Force Mustangs now based on Okinawa. Bad weather prevented them from flying.

CARRIER PLANE RAID CONTINUES

Fighter-Bombers Still Hitting Tokyo, Says Correspondent on Warship.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9—(AP) Norman Paige, American Broadcasting Company correspondent, in a broadcast from a battleship of the U. S. Third fleet directly off Tokyo, reported tonight (Tuesday, Japanese time) that eight hours had passed since the first American carrier planes struck Tokyo and not a single enemy plane had yet appeared.

"The Japs, as before, were again caught flat-footed," he said.

"No sporadic raid, this," added Paige, "right now hundreds of our carrier-borne aircraft are carrying out pinpoint attacks against greater Tokyo, to hit its 70 to 80 airports and especially-designated targets over some 2,400 square miles. x x x it means that the war has really come home to the Japanese mainland x x x in all the fury and determination of our combined American fighting forces.

"Hundreds upon hundreds of Corsairs, Hellcats, Avengers and Helldivers are carrying out their signal strike of violence and destruction that must make it clear to the loneliest Jap peasant plowing his rice paddy over there that complete surrender or complete annihilation is the only answer."

Paige said that it was "a brilliantly clear and calm day" off Tokyo and that eight hours after the first plane left the carrier deck no Japanese planes had yet appeared.

"No greenhorns to Jap suiciders or Jap attacks of any kind—thousands of seasoned and hardened Navy veterans are standing alert at their guns, looking toward Tokyo, inviting the Japs out," added Paige.

Okinawa Cemetery Dedicated

WITH THE 96TH INFANTRY DIVISION, Okinawa, July 9 (AP).—The 96th Division's cemetery was dedicated today as the division's commander, Major General James L. Bradley, and his staff laid wreaths on the graves of men killed in the battle for this island. A firing squad fired three volleys and taps were sounded. Five hundred men formed an honor guard.

DUTCH COLONIALS LAND ON BORNEO

Secure Positions in Balikpapan Swamps; Aussies Move Ahead.

MANILA, Tuesday, July 10—(AP) Dutch colonial troops made two amphibious landings and secured positions in the swampy inner limits of Balikpapan Bay in southeastern Dutch Borneo Saturday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters disclosed today.

The Dutch forces were mostly Indonesians led by Netherlands officers, but included a force of volunteers from the West Indies.

They met small-arms fire and gunfire from small Japanese boats as they went ashore on the east coast of the Balikpapan peninsula but quickly secured their beachhead. Simultaneously another Dutch force crossed the 150-yard mouth of the Soember river and occupied the Kariango peninsula.

These operations, first official word of Dutch troops' participation in the Balikpapan campaign to free the great oil-producing island, extended and solidified Allies control of the bay that is Borneo's chief oil outlet.

Aussies Move Ahead

Australian troops who invaded Balikpapan on July 1 continued to push northward beyond captured Manggar airfield, 13 road miles northeast of Balikpapan, and encountered blazing oil drums in their path, adding to generally stiffening Japanese resistance.

The fiery road blocks were but the latest effort of the enemy to delay Allied seizure of the prized Sambodja oil fields in the swamps to the northward. Japanese coastal guns also had been turned inland to rake the Australian line of advance.

More than 40 U. S. 13th Air Force Liberator heavy bombers came to the Aussies' aid, pounding enemy gun positions in the Manggar area while American Lightning fighter bombers strafed westward from the Australian-held Sepinggan airfield in the dense Borneo rain-forest.

Other units of the Australian seventh division pushing south and west across the bay from the town of Balikpapan crushed an enemy counterattack 15 miles north of the Sesoempoe river. Still other Australians fanning out north from their positions on the south side of the bay captured a Japanese supply dump.

There was no word of progress of the Australian Ninth Division which previously had been reported thrusting northeastward along the north coast of British Borneo towards the enemy stronghold of Jesselton.

Blast Jap Positions

While the Japanese guns pointed inland, Allied warships steamed in close off shore and plastered the positions with heavy fire.

Overhead fighters and Liberators of the Australian and American air forces cut loose with bullets and bombs, smashing gun positions, warehouses and barracks.

The oil fields extend 5 miles up the coast from Balikpapan, where the invaders hit the beaches July 1. The Australians last were reported beyond Manggar air field, 13 miles northeast of Balikpapan.

The reduction of the Japanese garrison trapped in the northern refinery district of Balikpapan went ahead steadily as other Australian forces pushed on inland.

Across Borneo, Australians who opened the invasion of the island with a landing on the west coast were striking for the enemy base of Jesselton.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Monday communique announced a three-mile gain in this push, but did not give the location of advanced forces. Jesselton is about 50 miles north of Brunei Bay [illegible] of the landings.

Tokyo Reports Raiders Are Active From Many Bases; Coastal Waters Are Mined

San Francisco, July 9—Tokyo radio reported a "considerable number" of American submarines and mine laying Superforts attempted to blockade Japanese harbors while raiding planes swept widely over the home islands today in their daily strikes.

The Domei News Agency claimed that "at least seven" submarines have been sunk in Japanese waters since the beginning of June and Nipponese planes were "continuing their assaults on enemy submarines. This claim and all reports of air action were without American confirmation.

Air raiders from Iwo Jima hunted new targets, Tokyo said, in their daily attacks on Honshu and Kyushu Islands.

Fifty Okinawa based Liberators, escorted by 40 Thunderbolts and Lightnings, reportedly raided the vicinity of Omura, naval air station guarding the Sasebo naval base on northwestern Kyushu.

Tokyo said 50 Mustang fighters from Iwo Jima attacked air fields around Kyoto, Osaka and Kobe, while another 40 strafed Hamamatsu and Toyahashi. All Mustang targets are on Central Honshu.

Superforts flying alone or in groups of three were reported on extensive missions over Honshu, main island of PJapan. Several of them flew over and around Tokyo.

Chichi Island in the Bonin group was reconnoitered by another 50 Mustangs from Iwo Jima Saturday and Sunday, a second broadcast reported, while 150 bombers and fighters attacked Marcus Island in the Central Pacific.

Japanese propagandists, heard by the Federal Communications Commission, claimed four Liberators were shot down over by-passed Truk Island in the Marianas Sunday.

Attempting to analze the Allied air offensive, radio Tokyo said "the U. S. is making a serious and calculated attempt to raze the Japanese mainland thoroughly before invasion and thus try to weaken all resistance before the decisive battle of the mainland is fought."

To do this, the U. S. has already assembled more than 2,000 planes in the Philippines, 1,000 B-29s in the Marianas group, more than 200 P-51s on Iwo Jima and about 1,000 in the Okinawa Archipelago.

3 BRITISH CARRIERS HIT BY KAMIKAZES

Guam, July 9 (A. P.).—The Indefatigable, the Victorious and another unidentified British aircraft carrier were struck by Japanese suicide planes in the Ryukyus during the Okinawa campaign but all three escaped with minor damage and remained in operation, United States Pacific Fleet Headquarters disclosed Sunday.

Two other British fleet carriers, the Illustrious and the Indomitable, have been identified as part of the Royal Navy's Pacific Fleet, but it was not stated whether either was one of the ships hit by the Japanese Kamikaze flyers.

Two suicide crashes were made upon the indefatigable in one day. The Victorious was hit once, and the unidentified carrier was hit twice on consecutive days. Two other Kamikazes actually touched the flight decks and another touched a carrier's superstructure, but all crashed harmlessly into the sea. The incidents occurred during the British strikes against the Sakishima group of the Ryukyus in a two-month period beginning March 26, during which 140 Jap aircraft were destroyed.

The numerous enemy suicide attacks succeeded in rendering one British ship inoperative—the destroyer Ulster.

Total British casualties during the Sakishima operations have been announced at seventy killed and thirty-four wounded seriously.

Aussies Push On in Borneo

Gain on All Fronts With Close Support of Warships and Air Forces.

Manila, July 9 (A. P.).—Closely supported by American warships and aircraft, Australian jungle veterans advanced against sporadic Jap resistance today on all fronts of the southeast Borneo invasion coast around Balikpapan.

The naval units ranged the length of the coast, pounding Jap gun positions while Mustangs, Kittyhawks and Liberators of the Australian and American air forces kept up a steady attack on Jap positions, smashing guns, warehouses, barracks and small coastwise craft.

One column of the Aussie Seventh Division infantry, driving inland from captured Balikpapan, completed isolation of the Pandansari refinery area in the northwest tip of the town where the rearguard has put up its stiffest fight. Across Balikpapan Bay, where Nipponese field pieces harassed the Australians in the early days of the invasion, another column of the Seventh Division advanced inland from one to two miles without opposition.

Northeast of the rich oil port, forces which overran Sepinggang and Manggar airfields pushed toward the great oil producing regions of Sambodja and Samarinda, which entend fifty-five miles up the coast from Balikpapen in an area of salt marches and swamps. Japs blocking the way to the oil fields turned coastal guns and mortars on the slowly advancing Australians and battled desperately to stave off as long as possible Allied occupation of the vital oil centers.

Across the big island, Ninth Australian infantrymen pushed three more miles northeast on their advance toward Jesselton, but today's communique by Gen. Douglas MacArthur failed specifically to locate them. Australian Spitfires and Kittlyhawks strafed a number of small coastal vessels, fired the Victoria barracks near Jesselton and harassed the enemy's field positions.

JUL 10 1945

MACARTHUR SEES ISOLATION ENDED

Manila, July 9 (A. P.).—In a wildly applauded address to a joint session of the Philippines Congress, Gen. Douglas MacArthur asserted today, "no nation, however powerful, may in the future with safety rely exclusively on its own defense potentiality."

Even the greatest of nations,

30.24-28239

he said, "must resort to international defense in concert with other nations.

"Defense no longer is national," he added. "It has become international."

paying tribute to the Filipino people for their loyalty to the United States and resistance to the Japs, MacArthur observed that the principal defense obstacle to Philippines independence had been removed because of "altered world conditions resulting from the war."

The General's twenty-minute address was interrupted nearly a dozen times by applause from the fourteen Senators, seventy-three Representatives and several hundred spectators who jammed every available corner in the plain school auditorium which substitutes for the destroyed legislative buildings.

Once MacArthur's voice faltered as he said, "Relations between the American and Filipino people are sanctified by the blood of both, nobly and selflessly shed upon the Philippines soil. From north to south and from east to west, the stark white crosses dot your landscape where we laid our mutual dead to sleep forever."

JAP LOSSES GROW IN THE PHILIPPINES

Manila, July 9 (A. P.).—Counting of 3,824 Jap dead in the Philippines in the past week and capture of 386 has raised total enemy casualties in the campaign to 423,245, Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed today. American casualties for the week were placed at thirty-four killed and 210 wounded for a campaign total of 54,000.

While MacArthur announced formal liberation of the Philippines July 5, the cleanup continued.

In northern Luzon rains and landslides of the typhoon season were impeding but not stopping American flamethrowing tanks in the wild mountains east of Baguio. Igorot tribesmen, who use spears as well as modern carbines, are co-operating with the American regulars in hunting down the fugitive enemy remnants.

Air supply is the key to operations in the mountains, with an average of sixty big flying box cars delivering supplies daily.

On Mindanao, in some of the world's worst fighting terrain, the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division continued through the forests and jungles in pursuit of the remnants of the once-proud Jap 100th Division in hiding northwest of Davao.

Flag Officers Identified

GUAM, Tuesday, July 10 (AP)—Admiral Nimitz named these flag officers in command of "subordinate units" of the vast fleet:

Rear Admirals J. F. Shafroth, O. C. Badger, L. E. Denfeld, J. C. Jones, L. J. Wiltse, G. F. Bogan, A. W. Radford and T. L. Sprague.

Several of them evidently command groups of carriers.

Admiral Halsey returned to the Western Pacific with his powerful fleet June 1 "ready to go anywhere—even into Tokyo Bay," as he said, after Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's Fifth Fleet carrier planes had struck the Japanese homeland two crushing blows in support of Iwo and Okinawa invasion forces.

Admiral Halsey said that he was returning "to take care of some unfinished business," and asserted that his plans were to "knock hell out of the Japs wherever we find them." He said that he had not much hope that the remains of the enemy fleet would come out as a gesture. "I wish they would, but they've got damned little left to gesture with," he said.

Ten Killed on 'Dauntless Dottie'

B-29 That Led First Tokyo Strike Had Done Her Job and Was Bound for U. S.

Saipan, July 9 (A. P.).—"Dauntless Dottie," the Superfortress that led the first B-29 strike against Tokyo and for fifty-three missions carried without faltering the high spirit of her name, has been lost in the Pacific, carrying to their deaths ten of the thirteen men aboard.

Like "Dauntless Dottie," those who lost their lives had completed their combat missions and were returning to the United States.

One of those killed was Pfc. Lowell B. Sorey, of Windsor, N. C., who was returned to non-hazardous duty because his two brothers had been killed in action.

The three who survived were Lieut. John J. Neville, Joliet, Ill., co-pilot; Staff Sergt. Charles S. McMurray, Memphis, Tenn., and Staff Sergt. Glenn F. Gregory, Waldron, Ind.

Crashed on Take-Off.

The plane crashed shortly after taking off from Kwajalein for Hawaii, the announcement yesterday said. Date of the accident was not revealed.

Brig.-Gen. Emmett (Rosy) O'Donnell, commander of the Seventy - third Bombardment Wing, flew in the Dottie on her first mission, leading the first strike of the Twenty-first Bomber Command against Tokyo last November 24. The regular crew stayed behind to complete their combat tours when the plane started home—loaded with men who had completed thirty missions or more against the Japanese.

"Dauntless Dottie," after her first mission, flew forty-three other bombing assignments and made nine reconnaissance flights over the Nipponese islands.

RUINS SOUVENIRS

MANILA, July 2—(Delayed)—(AP) Pfc. Adelbert Henderson shot too straight. The Saratoga, Wyo., soldier killed a Jap officer. The bullet cut the Nip's sword in two and shattered his wrist watch—ruining two perfectly good souvenirs.

SAVED BY SHIP HE HELPED BUILD

Guam, July 9 (A. P.).—Ensign Charles D. Klein, 23, of 156 Clark street, Jersey City, crashed into the ocean in an Avenger bomber when the catapult failed on his escort carrier, the Manila Bay.

A few minutes after Klein and his crew hit the water they were picked up by the U. S. S. Lardner, a destroyer which Klein helped build when he worked for the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company at Kearney, N. J., before entering service.

G. I.'s Replacement Was His Brother

Manila, June 30 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Pfc. Hubert J. Mulrooney of Wilmington, Del., packed his things, said good-by to his artillery buddies with the Forty-third Division and prepared to leave for home under the Army's point discharge system.

Then he learned who his replacement would be.

It was none other than his brother, Private Francis Mulrooney whom he hadn't seen in five years.

DOLLAR NO GOOD ON OKINAWA

Pearl Harbor, Oahu, July 9 (A. P.).—American troops invading Okinawa carried yen currency printed under the supervision of the United States Treasury Department, Commodore J. L. Herlihy, Navy fleet supply officer of the Pacific Fleet Service Force, announced today. United States coin and currency is not legal tender on Okinawa, and American armed forces are forbidden to use it.

Herlihy said the reasons are to keep American money from falling into enemy hands; to eliminate the problems of more than one type of money circulating at the same time, and to help check inflation.

forces.

The pledge came from the North Pacific commander, Vice Adm. Frank Jack Fletcher.

The Japanese "are pretty well dug in but we will give them no peace and rest," said the hero of America's first naval successes of this war—in the Battles of Midway and the Coral Sea.

List Accomplishments

Admiral Fletcher listed these accomplishments:

The first raid on Japan's Kuriles, northern flank of the Nippon homeland, was made by eight Army Mitchell bombers on July 10, 1943 from a base at recaptured Attu. Since then Yank fliers of the North Pacific, using Mitchells, Liberators, Catalinas, Venturas and Harpoons, have flown one of the world's most dangerous air routes to get at Japanese bases.

North Pacific Command naval units have swept the foggy, storm-tossed ocean clear of Japanese shipping and recently they boldly moved into the Okhotsk Sea and almost wiped out a six-ship convoy. They have practically driven Japan's important fishing fleets from these waters.

Eighty-seven Japanese ships of all types have been sunk or damaged in the vast northern Seu areas. Ten surface bombardments have been carried out against Matsuwa and Paramushiro, strong bases in the northern Kuriles.

Yanks Escape Casualties

No damage has been inflicted or a single casualty sustained by any of the American men-of-war operating in the Kuriles.

American planes from Aleutian bases have flown more than 270 combat missions in the Kuriles and have destroyed or damaged 109 Japanese planes. Their main target has been the strategic naval base at Kataoka on Shumushu, northernmost of the Kuriles.

These results have been achieved by American fliers despite incredible hazards and the handicaps of weather and distances unequalled in any other combat zone.

Admiral Fletcher succeeded Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid as commander of North Pacific offensive operations in October, 1943. He hails from La Plata, Md.

Maj. Gen. John B. Brooks recently succeeded Maj. Gen. Davenport Johnson as commander of the 11th Air force which operates under Fletcher's command.

Unremitting Attack Planned Against Northern Jap Bases

ADAK, Aleutian Islands, July 9—(AP) Unremitting aerial and surface warfare against Japan's northern island strongholds was pledged here today on the eve of the second anniversary of the first American land-based bombardment of those positions by North Pacific

BRITAIN'S POLES FACING CRISIS

Showdown May Come Over Army Arrest Incident.

London, July 9 (A. P.).—A showdown on control of the 250,000 Polish soldiers and sailors abroad appeared possible today as the British started investigating a charge that a Polish captain had been arrested for attempting to transfer allegiance to the new Warsaw government. The Foreign Office said the inquiry resulted from a report by Polpress, the Warsaw government's news agency, that Polish military authorities in Great Britain had arrested Capt. Waclaw Kostecki, lecturer at a Polish training center.

Warsaw government representatives arrived over the week end under instructions from the newly recognized regime to take over property previously controlled by Premier Arciszewski's exiled regime. The incident brought into the open the potentially dangerous question of what is to be done with Polish forces here, on the Continent and in Italy, and of whether the forces will remain under present command. Many Polish officers have refused to recognize the Warsaw regime. The British Government thus far has sidestepped the issue by saying Polish forces abroad are under British operational control.

In an order of the day late last week, Gen. Tadeusz (Bor) Komorowski told the troops they still were duty bound to heed proclamations of President Raczkiewcz of the exiled regime. But the President no longer is recognized by the United States and British governments and the troops draw their pay from the British.

British to Transfer Property.

The situation has been complicated by a British act of 1940 which gave Allied forces extra-territorial rights to conduct their own courts-martial. The act apparently does not apply to non-recognized governments.

It was learned authoritatively that the British Government is planning within twenty - four hours to take over property of the Polish state in Britain, including the embassy, to transfer the properties to the Warsaw government. A special treasury committee will be named soon to consider such questions as the ownership and control of other assets such as the Polish merchant marine.

[BBC in a broadcast recorded by NBC yesterday said 4,000 Polish troops, now in Switzerland have asked to be shipped back to Poland.]

RAF OUTLINES LOSSES TO BERLIN FACTORIES

LONDON, July 9 (AP)—The British Air Ministry said today that the bombing of Berlin had cost one manufacturer of electrical equipment $70,000,000 and 14,000,000 manhours.

A preliminary survey by Royal Air Force experts of the bomb damage to Berlin's most important factories revealed that the British and American attacks had cut the average production of the Siemens and Halske electric equipment plants 30 to 35 per cent from the beginning of the Battle of Berlin to the end of the war.

At one stage the Siemens and Halske production was down to 15 per cent of its 1942 level and the Germans dispersed machinery into the country south and east of Berlin.

The examination, which began since the British occupied their section of Berlin, also confirmed that 50 per cent of the big Rhinemetal Borsig armament plant in eastern Berlin was destroyed in a single night raid on Nov. 26, 1943.

The Siemens Schukert plant lost 17,000,000 manhours, including 1,500,000 as the result of RAF Mosquito plane raids, which became almost nightly affairs in the closing stages of the war.

The R. A. F. usually hit Berlin by night, while the American bombers made nineteen major daylight raids on the Nazi capital, pinpointing industrial targets. In the later stages of the battle for Berlin the bombers passed up factories in order to concentrate upon rail yards.

TITO SAYS GREEKS FIRE ACROSS LINE

London, July 9 (A. P.).—Yugoslav Premier Marshal Tito said in a Belgrade broadcast yesterday that Greek forces were firing machine-guns across the Greek-Yugoslav border in an attempt "to provoke us" and that thousands of Macedonians had fled northern Greece to Yugoslavia to escape a Greek reign of terror.

An Associated Press dispatch from Bitolj, Yugoslavia, said that according to official estimates 10,000 Slavs had fled northern Greece to escape terrorism which refugees asserted included robbery, rape and the sacking of entire villages by armed bands and Greek militia.

[Greek Government spokesmen have discounted reports of terrorism and have said that any outbreaks were by outlaw bands.]

Tass dispatches from Moscow said the National Front of Federal Macedonia had laid a strong protest before the Yugoslav Government accusing "Fascist" Greek organizations, supported by units of the Greek Army, of carrying out a reign of terror.

The dispatch said it was impossible from that side of the frontier to learn the Greek explanation of the situation but that it appeared that Slavs remaining on the Greek side of the Macedonian frontier were considered enemies of Greece in an aftermath of the Bulgarian occupation of Greek Macedonia.

Eden Returns to Duty Today

LONDON, July 9 (AP).—A Foreign Office spokesman said today that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden would return to his desk tomorrow after an illness which limited to one speech his activities in the recent election campaign.

No British Comment On U. S. Match Report

London, July 9 (A. P.).—Officials of the British Match Corporation declined to comment today on a report of the Small Business Committee of the United States House of Representatives which said that the Diamond Match Company "appears to pretty well control" the world market through a cartel agreement with the Swedish Match Company.

A report of the committee, released Saturday by Chairman Patman (D.-Tex.), said the American and Swedish firms, through agreement, "apparently control the British Match Corporation, the Japanese match industry and the Russian match production."

Officials of Bryant & May Ltd., big match manufacturing subsidiary of the British Match Corporation, likewise declined to comment.

Both firms took the position that they had nothing to say in view of the lack of any official communication from the United States.

Zionist Urges Big Three To Act Now on Palestine

Dr. Goldstein for Jewish State Under Joint Allied Control

LONDON, July 9 (AP).—Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the Zionist Organization of America, appealed today to the Big Three to take immediate steps to establish a Jewish commonwealth in Palestine under the "joint responsibility of the United Nations."

Asserting the question of a Jewish national home was one of "life and death" for the 1,000,000 surviving Jews in Europe outside of Russia, Dr. Goldstein told a press conference:

"To deny Palestine to the Jewish people would be to confer a posthumous victory upon Hitler."

He said he planned to visit France, Italy, Switzerland and Belgium to study Jewish rehabilitation work.

British Order Investigation

LONDON, July 9 (AP)—The British Government arranged an investigation today into the arrest of Captain Kostecki.

NAZI BOASTS OF A HANGING

Admits Tightening Noose on Fellow-Captive as 'Traitor'

LONDON, July 9 (AP)—The body of German Sgt. Wolfgang Rosterg was strung up in a Scottish prison camp last Dec. 23 as a symbol of what happens to traitors, one of seven Nazi prisoners of war accused of murdering him told a military court today.

As Corp. Joachim Goltz, 20 years of age, finished his testimony, the deputy judge advocate asked him: "Why did you want to hang up a dead man?" Goltz replied: "This traitor to his fatherland had to be found hanging by British authorities."

Goltz previously admitted tightening the noose around Rosterg's neck. Several defendants said they helped to hang him.

The trial is expected to end Wednesday.

Canada Outlines Plans For Ex-Service Men

London, July 9 (AP)—Training, security and employment opportunities are the keynotes of Canada's rehabilitation program for former service personnel, Ian Mackenzie, Canadian Veterans Affairs Minister, said today.

Mackenzie told newsmen he believed the program to be "the broadest in scope of any in the world" but added "we expect experience will show the need for various amendments."

The Minister said it was inevitable that the rehabilitation policy would be the chief topic at the next session of Parliament in August and said the purpose of his three weeks' overseas visit was to find out "what the boys overseas are thinking to that whatever revisions or adaptations of our legislation are required may be ready for the consideration of Parliament without delay."

Dunkerque Arms Dump Blows Up, French Report

London, July 9 (AP)—The Paris radio said tonight that a big munitions dump exploded at Dunkerque this afternoon and that sporadic explosions were continuing.

[The French Press Agency, in a dispatch recorded by the FCC, said it was feared there were many victims. The ammunition depot was not far from the center of the town.]

The broadcast said the first blast occurred at 2.30 P.M. and that "the explosions succeeded themselves with tremendous speed and fearful noise."

Moslem League Chief Reported Cold To Bid

London, July 9 (AP)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Simla today said Mahomed Ali Jinnah, president of the Moslem League, had told Viceroy Lord Wavell that the league would not submit nominees for posts in the proposed new Indian interim Government.

The dispatch added the reason for Jinnah's refusal was absence of assurance from Wavell that the league would be given the exclusive right to nominate Moslem members of the executive council.

"A very delicate situation has arisen as a result of the Moslem refusal to submit a panel of names," the dispatch said. The Congress party and minor parties previously agreed to submit nominees.

London Expects Truman.

London, July 9 (A. P.).—A foreign office spokesman said tonight that it was "pretty likely" that President Truman would visit London after the Big Three conference.

"He will stop on his way back to America, I suppose," the spokesman said.

Scotland Expects Rise In Exports Of Whisky

London, July 9 (AP)—Americans should be getting more Scotch whisky next year.

Farmers in North Scotland have a bumper crop of barley growing and it is reported that the number of distilleries operating next year is expected to be triple the present.

Primary object of the distillers is to make more for export.

Britain to Build New Ocean Liner

London, July 9 (A. P.).—The London Daily Mail said today the principal British shipyards have received Government permission to resume building ships for private owners and that they have enough orders on hand to keep them busy for years.

The biggest contract, which will be placed within a few weeks, calls for a 35,000-ton sister ship to the Mauretania for the Cunard White Star line, the paper said.

PROPOSE FRENCH ELECTION OCT. 14

PARIS, July 9 — (AP) Gen. de Gaulle's council of ministers today called a national election for Oct. 14 to create a new national assembly and announced that the assembly, when elected, would frame a new constitution and submit it to a national referendum.

If the proposed constitution is rejected by the voters, the council said, the assembly will "elect a chamber of deputies and proceed to the election of a Senate conforming with the constitution of 1875," by which France is now governed.

In effect, the announcement meant that the voters will decide what form of government France will have.

The announcement came as a complete surprise to political circles, which had believed that De Gaulle would simply submit to the voters a plan for revision of the existing constitution.

De Gaulle previously had promised that national elections would be held "before the end of the year."

Whether he himself and his present ministry will be candidates is unknown, but it is assumed that he will run. Consequently the elections in some respects might become a vote of confidence in him, or a rejection of him.

The council's announcement, which followed a six-hour meeting, said "temporary measures are being taken to regulate the organization of public authority until the application of future constitution."

Bicameral Or Unicameral?

One of the major questions to be decided is whether France will retain two legislative bodies comparable with the American Senate and House or will elect only one.

A bitter behind-the-scenes struggle developed between de Gaulle and extreme Leftists on this point.

The Leftists have advocated a unicameral system while de Gaulle has held out for two chambers. The Leftists' opponents have alleged that the Leftists wanted a unicameral system in the belief they could more easily control a single house.

In effect, the council decided today to place this dispute before the French people.

The election will indicate the extent of the popular support of de Gaulle's provisional government and the Communist, Socialist and other political parties.

Six Divisions Ready to Ship From Le Havre

2d, 5th, 28th, 87th Infantry, 13th and 20th Armored Await Shipment Home

PARIS, July 9 (AP).—The presence of six American divisions at Le Havre awaiting shipment home today marked a general speeding up of the redeployment program.

Communications zone headquarters said the program was 30,000 men ahead of schedule and that by the end of June 396,001 soldiers had left Europe.

Now at Le Havre are units of the 20th Armored Division, with the remainder arriving soon; the 87th, 2d, 5th and 28th Infantry and the 13th Armored.

Redeployment developments were announced at follows:

2d—Advance units sailed from Le Havre June 30. The rest now at Le Havre for shipment July 10, 11 and 12.

4th—On the high seas.

5th—Advance units sailed from Le Havre June 30. The rest are now loading for shipment July 12.

8th—On the high seas.

28th—Advance units at Le Havre for shipment July 12. The rest are at an assembly area.

30th—Now arriving at an essembly area.

44th—Entire division now in the United Kingdom for reshipment.

87th—To complete loading at Le Havre today.

95th—In the United States.

104th—Bulk of the division in the United States, with the rest on the high seas.

13th—Advance units sailed from Le Havre June 30. The rest are moving to the port for shipment later this month.

20th—Advance units arrived at Le Havre today. The rest are en route to the port for July shipment.

REDEPLOYMENT FAR AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

PARIS, July 9 (AP)—The redeployment program is two full divisions — 30,000 men — ahead of schedule, communications zone headquarters announced today.

By the end of June, 396,001 American soldiers had left Europe for home, the announcement said. Of these, 280,000 left during June, when the quota was 250,000.

The Twentieth Armored Division has by-passed the assembly area in a move toward Le Havre for shipment. It is the second armored division that has been ticketed for redeployment. Some units have reached the port and the whole outfit is due to sail this month.

Five other divisions are now at Le Havre awaiting ships. These are the Eighty-seventh, Second, Fifth and Twenty- eighth Infantry and the Thirteenth Armored.

The progress of redeployment at present follows:

Ninety-fifth Infantry—In the United States.

104th Infantry—Most of the division is in the United States and the reste are at sea.

Fourth and Eighth—At sea.

Eighty-seventh—To complete loading at Le Havre today.

Forty-fourth—Entire division now in the United Kingdom for reshipment.

Second—Advance units sailed from Le Havre on June 30. The rest are now at Le Havre for shipment on July 10, 11 and 12.

Fifth—Advance units sailed from Le Havre on June 30. The rest are now loading for shipment on July 12.

Thirteenth Armored—Advance units sailed from Le Havre on June 30. The rest are moving to the port for shipment later this month.

Twentieth Armored—Advance units arrived at Le Havre today. The rest are en route to the port for July shipment.

Twenty-eighth Infantry—Advance units are now at Le Havre for shipment on July 12. The rest are at an assembly area.

Thirtieth Infantry—Now arriving at an assembly area.

31 Spies Executed Before V-E Day

Paris, July 9 (A. P.).—Brig. Gen. Edward O. Betts, acting director of the legal branch of the United States group control council, said last night in a broadcast that thirty-one spies and war criminals were convicted by United States military commissions and executed before V-E day.

The executions were given minimum publicity because of a possibility of reprisals, Betts said.

Plans Made To Destroy Property Of Combine

Paris, July 9 (AP)—An advisory board for the direction and control of the I. G. Farbenindustrie today adoptd a three-point program to destroy the chemical combine's property devoted only to the German war machine, transfer by repatriation to the United Nations any assets which might be used for the Japanese war, and disperse the trust's ownership.

This was announced by the United States Group Control Council for Germany, which said the newly appointed advisory board was headed by Col. Charles S. Reid, former chief justice of the Georgia Supreme Court.

A program to manage the combine's 24 plants is to be carried out by subcontrol officers now in charge of the plants. The advisory board's program is subject to revision through agreements by the quadripartite government council.

Nazi Broadcaster Seized by French

Paris, July 9 (A. P.). — The French News Agency said today that Jean Herold Paquis, who broadcast Nazi propaganda during the German occupation of France and previously broadcast for Generalissimo Franco during the Spanish civil war, was in custody of the National Surete.

Paquis had fled to Sigmaringen with the Vichy government.

G.I.s Vote to Keep Wives Home

PARIS, July 9 (AP).—"Gold Brick," Army publication at a redeployment camp, polled 835 soldiers on this question: "Do you think wives and sweethearts should be allowed to come to Europe at this time?" The answers: 594 said no; 183 said yes; the rest weren't sure.

500 German Schools To Open by August

Paris, July 9 (A. P.).—By August, 50,000 German children are expected to be attending classes in the first four grades of 500 elemental schools which are reopening as fast as possible in the American occupation zone, Supreme Headquarters announced today. All elemental schools probably will be reopened for the 3,000,000 children of that school age in the American zone.

818 Freed Jews Sail for Haifa

MARSEILLE, France, July 9 (AP).—Gathered from German concentration camps, 818 European Jews embarked today for Haifa, Palestine, on voyages arranged by supreme headquarters and the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. It was the first trip of its kind, and many more may follow. The refugees were from fifteen days to eighty-two years old. Many were under detention for years.

Army Heads Meet Wednesday To Discuss Berlin Problems

BERLIN, July 9 — (AP) Russian, American and British officers responsible for the government of Berlin arranged today to meet Wednesday to discuss problems affecting nearly 3,000,000 German civilian residents.

The Russians retained control of the entire city administration, however, and British and American sources insisted there could be no British and American military government here unless the Russians made food and fuel available for the Western Allies' occupation zones.

Maj. Gen. L. O. Lyne, commander of British occupation troops in Berlin, issued a sharp denial that negotiations with the Russians had broken down.

Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, military commander in the American sector, also dismissed any idea that the tripartite government in Berlin would not work and stressed that only a short time had elapsed since the occupation began.

He said he felt justified in predicting that the final result would be "highly satisfactory".

Deny Food Shortage

Parks, talking to correspondents, denied there was a food shortage in Berlin and said there was no actual hunger. It was indicated, however, that he spoke on the basis of reports furnished American army officers by Russian officers and not an actual first hand checkup as to whether rations authorized on ration cards actually would be purchased.

Both Parks and Lyne are to meet Wednesday with Russian Col. Gen. Gorbatov in an effort to solve the current Allied difficulties over food, coal and military government.

Meanwhile, word was received that President Truman already was on his way to Europe for the Big Three conference with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill. The President left Newport News by ship Saturday, a Washington announcement said, accompanied by Secretary of State Byrnes and an advisory staff.

Preparations neared completion for the President's arrival at the "Little White House" in the Potsdam Area. A network of cables and wires was set up by American army signal experts to enable the President to keep in touch with Washington during the meeting.

Additional American and British sentries were stationed in the area and guards from elite Red army regiments were increasingly in evidence.

Parks told correspondents that he thought the "Big Three" might not be compelled to concern themselves with the Berlin problem and might simply take a sightseeing tour through the bomb-wrecked city.

Find Russians Co-operative

"I have found the Russians most cooperative" Parks told newsmen. "I believe that they realize as earnestly as we the delicacy of the situation that obtains in a transitory stage."

Waving aside individual cases of difficulties cited by the correspondents, Parks asserted that all this was due to transition rather than to fundament differences.

"What we'd like to do is establish a city government that is applicable to the entire city" and operate it until a German city administration would emerge capable of running itself under Allied control, he said, adding, ordinances and laws should be city-wide.

Three meeting.

Averell Harriman, United States Ambassador to Moscow, is to land at the Tempelhof Airdrome this afternoon and take quarters near the "Little White House" prepared for President Truman in the heavily guarded Potsdam area. A procession of American limousines started regular service from the airdrome to Potsdam, carying distinguished visitors.

American Army signal experts virtually completed stringing a thick network of cables and wires by which Mr. Truman will be in touch with Washington while he confers with Generalissimo Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

Guards from elite Red Army regiments were increased throughout the Potsdam area. A heavy sprinkling of American and British sentries were in the area.

Question of Food Supply.

The Berlin governmental impasse over the issue of supplying food and fuel for the districts occupied by the Americans and British still was unsettled and the possibility increased that the Big Three might have to solve it.

Major-Gen. L. O. Lyne, commander of British occupation troops, issued a sharp denial that negotiations with the Russians had broken down.

A further meeting is arranged for the very near future to discuss food, coal and military government," the statement said.

Col. Frank Howley, chief of the military government of the United States occupation zone, declared last night he expected the major Powers to decide within a few days on an overall plan of government for Berlin, but he disclaimed personal knowledge of the immediate issues of food and fuel.

Earlier American and British sources asserted that unless they have control over the food and fuel situation in their respective zones there can be no real British and American military governments in the German capital. The issue, which may be given the Big Three to decide, was viewed by American and British officials as so serious that withdrawal by the western Allies from Berlin may be considered unless a practical solution is reached.

The question to be decided was whether the areas of Berlin taken over by the British and Americans shall receive food from the Russian-held outskirts, where British-American experts say the German capital normally gets most of its edibles. These experts said it would be impractical for the western Allies to truck in supplies from hundreds of miles away.

Howley would not comment on what was discussed at a conference attended by Soviet Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, who has ordered his commanders to retain control of the entire Berlin municipal administration, Lieut.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay for the United States, Lieut.-Gen. Sir Ronald Weeks for Great Britain, and others. The conference ended without having reached any agreement, but Howley optimistically predicted that "when the overall plan for the city is approved, we will get functioning."

There are an estimated 750,000 civilians in the American zone in Berlin, 200,000 in the British and 1,100,000 in the Russian zone.

Howley said reports by his detachments disclosed that the people in Berlin were not starving, but in fact were getting larger rations, "at least on paper, than other Russian-held German cities."

Not Enough Coal in City.

"The Berlin ration is virtually equivalent to 2,000 calories daily —nearly one-fourth larger than that prescribed by the Allies in western Germany in modification last month of the sub-starvation standard previously set in May," Howley added.

He said nearly 3,000 tons of food were needed daily to feed Berlin, of which more than 600 tons were required in the American zone. The city is getting 4,000 tons of coal monthly, about half of what it needs. Because of the lack of coal and gas with which to boil water, there are many cases of dysentery, he added.

Barred Last Rites for Doomed

Hitler Ordered 90 High Germans to Hang Without Sacrament After July Plot.

Berlin, July 9 (A. P.).—The Rev. Peter Buchholz, Catholic chaplain at the Berlin Ploetzensee Jail, said that Adolf Hitler personally ordered religious ministration denied to the Junkers generals and others who were hanged for the bomb plot of July, 1944, on Hitler's life.

Only as they walked to the gallows, Father Buchholz said, were the condemned men allowed to hear a few last comforting words from him and his Protestant colleague, Chaplain Poelscher.

As Father Buchholz told the story of some ninety Germans executed at Ploetzensee alone, his face revealed what he had gone through watching field marshals, generals, diplomats and high-ranking political figures hanged, eight in a row, because they tried to rid Germany of Hitler.

Among those that Father Buchholz or Pastor Poelscher accompanied to the gallows were Gen. Von Fellgiebel, Lieut.-Gen. Paul von Hase, Major-Gen. Erich Hoeppner, Gen. Otto von Stuelpnagel, Count Helmut von Moltke, Count Peter Yorck von Wartenburg, Ambassador Ulrich von Hassell, Mayor Karl Goerdeler of Leipzig, Count von Schulenburg, Consul General Otto Keipt and Prussian Minister Otto Popitz.

Most Were Unbroken in Spirit.

Father Bucholz said most of those condemned to death showed an unbroken spirit. He praised the courage particularly of Kiept, who was counselor of the German embassy in Washington under Hans Luther.

"He had been horribly mutilated and brutally treated, yet he walked to the gallows proudly and defiantly after a brief last word said to him by Poelscher," Father Bucholz stated. "Everything possible was done to humiliate these men as they arrived (on August 8, 1944). They were put in striped clothes and wooden slippers, which made them stumble. Nazi photographers gleefully snapped such scenes. The condemned were unshaven, many were bruised from blows, and all were more or less emaciated from hunger so that they looked anything but presentable.

"In the execution room, special lamps were installed so photographers could take movie and still pictures of the men in their death agony."

Big Night Exhausted Hangmen.

At Ploetzensee, unlike some other jails where others implicated in the plot were executed, there was no slow, painful hanging. The regular procedure was followed. There were eight gallows and they were hanged in groups of eight.

"Another exceedingly brave man" Father Buchholz said, "was Ewald von Kleist, an estate owner. He is the man who definitely told President Paul von Hindenburg that if he appointed Hitler Chancellor, he would go down as the President who led Germany into ruin. Von Kleist marched to the gallows unbroken."

Father Buchholz became a jail priest in 1943. He estimated there were "several thousand" executions at Ploetzensee alone. "The biggest single night," he said, "was during September, 1943, when 186 out of a scheduled 300 were hanged. When the hangman and his two assistants had delivered the 186th into eternity, they simply were too exhausted to continue. So the rest were saved for the following night."

First U. S. Women in Berlin

6 Red Cross Doughnut Girls Beat Wacs to German Capital

BERLIN, July 9 (AP).—Six Red Cross doughnut girls claim the distinction of having been the first women in American uniforms to enter Berlin officially, even ahead of the Wacs. They arrived with the 2d Armored Division July 3, while the first Wacs arrived a day or two later.

They are Martha Stengel, of Newton Square, Pa.; Betty Gross, of Minneapolis; Libby Wooddell, of Green Bank, W. Va.; Janet Zimmerman, of Maplewood, N. J.; Areta Kelble, of the University of Chicago and St. Joseph, Mich., and Patricia Teague, of Fort Worth, Tex.

The girls are billeted in two small houses in the woods of Schlachtensee op the extreme southwest end of greater Berlin. All say they were never more comfortably lodged. The housewives who own these two artistic homes come daily to clean, and the girls' only regret is they can't set up a mess of their own in two such snug habitats.

Jersey Soldier Saves German Boy

Berlin, July 9 (A. P.).—A New Jersey soldier saved a German boy from drowning last night as a British gunner lost his life attempting to make the rescue.

Pfc. Frank Giordano of 12 Davis street, East Newark, took the 5-year-old youngster from the hands of struggling British Gunner Albert Lippard of London, and carried him to the edge of a concrete water storage basin.

Lippard, who had plunged into the water fully clothed in an effort to save the boy, sank from sight. He had been fighting the Germans six years.

Two other Americans, Pfcs. Gordon Allen of Fullreton, Cal., and Joe Congress of Cleveland, both members of the 759th Railway Operating Battalion, recovered the Englishman's body.

Non-fraternizing May End

British May Lift Ban Now That Russians Have Changed Toward Germans.

Twenty-first Army Group Headquarters, July 9 (A. P.).—Speculation that the non-fraternization policy might be lifted by the end of July flared anew among British troops today after Berlin dispatches reported open fraternization among Russians and Germans. High medical authorities in the British zone support the non-fraternization rule at present, as one specialist said, "It is impossible to carry it on indefinitely."

"Troops, for their own well-being, must be made to look forward to the time when the ban will be lifted so they can have normal relations with the German people," he said. A British psychiatrist said: "No one is harmed by doing something he knows to be right."

Restrictions at Lake.

He said that soldiers know that until the German army is demobilized and the nation is disarmed non-fraternization is the right policy, "otherwise the Germans will play on our sympathies to gain their own ends." German girls seem willing to fraternize.

At Lake Hannover, soldiers are restricted to one side and Germans to the other. Girls have a habit of lolling on the lake's only diving board, making soldiers step over them if they want to take a plunge.

The majority of German girls, however, are not believed to be deliberately trying to sabotage the morale of troops by going about clad mostly in just atmosphere. This seems to be an old German custom, as is that of undressing down to their bathing suits in full view of troops.

Venereal Disease Increase.

Medical records show that the incidence of venereal diseases among British trops has nearly doubled since crossing the Rhine.

Meanwhile, the British military Government ordered the disconuance of German marriage loans and subsidies for large families—a Nazi-sponsored scheme to promote a higher birthrate in the "master race" program.

Under this system, the German birthrate increased from 14.7 per 1,000 in 1933 to 20.3 per 1,000 in 1939. In England and Wales, during the corresponding period, the rate increased from 14.4 to 14.9.

The British ordered the unexpired parts of marriage loans repaid in full. Children born after May 8 will not count toward reducing the loan. Under the German regime, repayment was reduced by one fourth for each child born.

21st Venereal Disease Cases Nearly Doubled

Twenty-first Army Group Headquarters, July 9 (AP)—Veneral disease cases have nearly doubled in this command (mainly British and Canadian) since the troops crossed the Rhine from Belgium and France, where they were busy fighting. This was shown today by venereal disease graphs.

Other medical records disclosed the demand for prophylactics had increased steadily, with supplies exhausted in some sections of the British zone for the first time since D-day.

Germans Must Repay Nazi Marriage Loans

British Order Couples to Pay Installments

TWENTY-FIRST ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, July 9 (AP).—Germans who received marriage loans from the Nazi regime must repay them in installments, under an order issued by the British Military Government. No further loans are being issued.

A Nazi-sponsored measure designed to increase the birth rate, the marriage loans were introduced in 1933, and provided up to 1,000 marks ($400 at that time) for young [illegible] and needy couples. The loans were repayable in monthly installments. For each child born the loan was reduced by one-quarter, so that four children would cancel it.

A survey showed that the birth rate in Germany increased from 14.7 each 1,000 in 1933 to 20.3 each 1,000 in 1939. The birth rate in England and Wales increased from 14.4 to 14.9 in the same period, a military government official said.

ernment, was under way today.

With [illegible] already in custody, Col. Charles [illegible]egan, Bavarian military governor and former New York city councilman, said "This will show the German small fry we really mean business in the de-Nazification of Bavaria."

Keegan said it was assumed that the men had some association with the Nazis because of their leading positions.

Speedy Nazi Planes Found By U.S. Troops Near Munich

MUNICH, July 9 —(AP) Americans have found a German warplane which has propellers in the nose and tail and easily runs away from our fastest fighters. The plane, which did not see action, was nearing the production stage necessary for combat.

About 40 of the craft, some in flying condition, were seized by the Americans in the field after Germany's surrender. Others partly destroyed, were found at other fields. The plane was built by Dornier and was designated the DO-335.

Flight tests by U. S. pilots showed the cruising speed to be 450 miles an hour above 25,000 feet altitude. Its top speed is considerably higher. Using only the nose engine the plane made 350 miles an hour at 19,000 feet.

In a test flight across France the German plane landed 40 minutes ahead of a P-51 Mustang supposed to be escorting it.

Another feature of the DO-335 which a group of visiting aviation writers inspected at the Riem airfield near Munich is its versatility. It is usable as a fighter, bomber, night interceptor or reconnaissance plane.

The plane is unusually large for a single place aircraft. It sits high on the ground on a tricycle landing gear and has thick, rather short wings. It is powered by 12-cylinder V-shaped aircooled engines turning three-bladed propellers. It has a moderate-sized bomb-bay ahead of the rear engine.

Huge German Flying Boat Destroyed by U. S. Planes

HAMBURG, July 6 — (delayed) — (AP) The German aircraft industry had completed the world's largest flying boat, only to have it destroyed by American fighter planes, had tried unsuccessfully to replace buzz bombs with cheaper glide-bombs, and had at least one new high altitude fighter ready for production when the surrender came.

These facts about German warplane production were disclosed to touring aviation writers today by Dr. Richard Vogt, chief designer for Blohm and Voss, the big German shipyard and aircraft firm.

200 Ton Monster

The mammoth seaplane was a 100-ton, six-engine monster built by Blohm and Voss in 1943 from plans drawn by Dr. Vogt from an ultra-long-range reconnaissance craft for use over the Atlantic. It was about 25 tons heavier than the Martin Mars, currently the biggest American plane, and half the weight of the 200-ton Kaiser-Hughes flying boat now nearing completion at Culver City, Calif.

The Blohm and Voss giant, the "B V 238," never was used for either transportation or reconnaissance, because soon after its completion Dr. Vogt was summoned to Berlin and told that all production and fuel resources would have to be concentrated on fighter planes for defense. After two years of hiding, the big plane was spotted last April on Lake Schaal, near Hamburg, by six American P-51 Mustang pilots who destroyed it.

Develop Glide Bomb

Dr. Vogt said the glide-bomb was developed when the Nazis were experiencing numerous difficulties with buzz bombs. It was a torpedo-shaped affair with narrow wings about 23-feet long and small twin rudders, weighing about 1,650 pounds, of which 1,000 pounds was warhead. Launched from a bomber or even a fighter plane at an altitude of 23,000 feet, it could strike a target 130 miles away at a speed of 300 miles an hour, he declared.

The designer said the glide-bomb required only about one-third the materials, labor and fuel needed for a buzzbomb, but that it traveled 50 per cent slower, thus making it an easier target. Few were produced and none ever was used against the Allies, he added.

The new high altitude fighter built by Blohm and Voss before Germany surrendered was unusually large for German design, weighing over 14,000 pounds. Designated the "B V 155," it was designed for speeds exceeding 400 miles an hour and altitudes of more than 30,000 feet, with a top ceiling of 48,000 feet. It carried three cannon with provisions for adding two more and the cabin was pressurized to maintain the equivalent of 24,000 feet altitude. Unusual features included a tremendous new turbo supercharger located behind the pilot and huge radiators intended to solve the cooling problem at great altitudes.

Another plane in the planning stage at Blohm and Voss, according to Dr. Vogt, was a new jet night fighter to have two engines, both in the fuselage, designed to carry fuel for one hour of flight, and a crew of three.

American Airforce officials visited by the touring aviation writers are proud of one prediction—that Germany would be unable to last more than six weeks after her fuel production was cut below 50,000 tons a month. They said intelligence reports indicated that this was achieved in March—just six weeks before the surrender.

Nazis Had Biggest Plane In World; Couldn't Fly It

U. S. Pilots Wrecked Seaplane, Grounded by Lack of Gas

HAMBURG, Germany, July 5 (Delayed) (AP).—American fighter pilots destroyed the world's largest flying boat by penetrating a two-year-old camouflage two weeks before the Germans surrendered.

The Nazis completed the seaplane, weighing a hundred tons and powered with six 2,000-horsepower engines, early in 1943, but test flights were limited by fuel scarcity. Further construction of the model was put aside because of the demand for fighter planes.

Dr. Richard Vogt, chief aircraft designer for Blohm & Voss, related the story of the V-238 today. American officers verified the essentials and took visiting aviation writers to a plant where a sister plane had been started.

Dr. Vogt said he designed the monster plane in response to a request for an ultra long-range reconnaissance craft for use over the Atlantic, but when he was nearly ready to fly it, Vogt said, he was summoned to Berlin and told by General Gerhard Milch, then director of aircraft production, to forget it because "the house is burning" and efforts should be concentrated on fighter models.

Heavy raids on Hamburg were then under way, so the seaplane was flown to near-by Lake Schaal and hidden in an inlet where it remained until last April, when six P-51 Mustang pilots flying over the area spotted it. One dropped down and set an engine afire with bullets. The others followed and soon all six engines of the giant seaplane were burning.

Germans Had Largest Flying Boat Destroyed

Hamburg, July 6 (AP—Delayed). The German aircraft industry had completed the world's largest flying boat, only to have it destroyed by American fighter planes, had tried unsuccessfully to replace buzz-bombs with cheaper glide bombs, and had at least one new high altitude fighter ready for production when the surrender came.

AP WAR WRITER, 13 OTHERS SHOT

Group Slain by Germans in January After Capture in Slovakia.

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LINZ, Austria, July 7.—(Delayed)—(AP) German officials now in custody and former inmates of the Nazis' notorious Mauthausen concentration camp assert that Joseph Morton, Associated Press war correspondent, and 13 American and British companions were shot to death by the Germans last Jan. 24 after their capture in Slovakia.

Morton accompanied the group—nine Americans and four Britons—on a flight into Slovakia to help bring out stranded American aviators.

All 14 were killed in the Mauthausen camp 10 miles east of Linz, and their bodies were cremated, these witnesses said.

(A Rome dispatch said the names of Morton's companions could not yet be disclosed.)

Morton, 34, of St. Joseph, Mo., a daring correspondent who wrote some of the war's outstanding stories, including the first interview with King Mihai of Romania last year, was captured near Plomka, in Slovakia, last Dec. 26. Subsequently he was taken to Bratislava and in January arrived at Mauthausen, a major Nazi extermination camp where thousands of men and women were executed or starved to death. Mauthausen is on the Danube 10 miles east of Linz.

One of the Germans held, an interpreter, who was present at the interrogation of Morton and his companions in Mauthausen, said some were beaten and tortured in an effort to make them talk, but Morton "underwent the interrogation without difficulty or hardships." The interpreter said the camp commandant, Standartenbuehrer Franz Zeireiss, who attended all the executions, was shot while trying to escape the Allies and later died.

The interpreter declared the executions were ordered in a telegram to Zeireiss signed by Ernest Kaltenbrunner, who was Heinrich Himmler's right-hand man and chief of the German security police. He added Morton had insisted that he was a reporter and tried to get permission to send a message to the Associated Press.

The interpreter said that the day the telegram arrived and before the interrogation of Morton and his companions was completed they were marched toward an execution chamber in the basement of a long, stone building, but were not informed as to their fate.

The interpreter was called into an anteroom where Zeireiss was trying to get one of Morton's group to sign a paper. Zeireiss was holding a half sheet of paper on which there was typing over a blank sheet and was demanding that the prisoner sign the blank sheet.

Sign Blank Sheets

The interpreter, whose identity can not be disclosed, asserted the typewritten sheet read: "I have been informed that I am being transferred to a prisoner of war camp and that if I try to escape, the guards have been instructed to use their weapons." The commandant apparently wanted signatures of all members of the group on blank sheets upon which he could write later anything he wished. The blank sheets finally were signed by all members under protest.

At the same time an SS doctor was pretending to examine men in another room and the prisoners were told to remove their uniforms and put on prison clothing. Later they were lined up and marched out, accompanied by Zeireiss and four other SS officers.

William Ornstein, a Polish Jew who was a prisoner at Mauthausen and whose duty it was to remove the bodies from the execution room, said the 14 were shot about 4 p. m., Jan. 24. He removed the identification tags of two of the Americans (not Morton's) and turned them over to American investigators later. The bodies were cremated.

After the shootings, the sadistic and swaggering Zeireiss laughed and said: "I am glad to be rid of them. They were here too long. I need the cells and I need some of their things for my men, especially shoes."

Morton flew to Slovakia last October 10 from Italy in one of six Flying Fortresses sent to evacuate a group of flyers collected at a landing strip in the hands of Czechoslovak Partisans near Banska Bystrica. While some flyers were flown out, Morton remained at Banska Bystrica with a number of British and American officers assigned to collect more stranded airmen.

How They Were Captured

The Germans were heavily counterattacking Czechoslovak Partisan forces at that time and Morton's party was forced to move to Brezno, returning to Banska Bystrica a week later. After that place was heavily bombed, the party went to Donlavy but the German advance was swift and forced the group to head into the lower Tatra Mountains and try to reach Russian lines about 5 miles away. The group battled through rain, sleet and cold.

Subsequently Morton and his group escaped when the Germans attacked a mining camp near Dolnia Lehota on November 30 and went to Polomka, arriving on December 14. The party remained there to rest in a shack until December 26 when they were taken by German troops.

One of the Germans held, an interpreter who was present during the interrogation of the group in Mauthausen, said that some were beaten and tortured in an effort to wring information from them, but Morton "underwent the interrogation without difficulty or hardships."

Some of the men were beaten with a stick held by one of the interrogators, he said. The wrists of one man were tied behind his back, and he was suspended from the ceiling by a chain attached to his wrists. This treatment usually tars the victims shoulders from their sockets.

Officials in Custody Say Joseph Morton Was Put to Death at Mauthausen.

HEINZERLING

Linz Austria, July 7 (Delayed by Censorship) (A. P.).—German officials now in custody say that Joseph Morton, Associated Press war correspondent, who was captured after he flew into Slovakia during a Czecho-Slovakian uprising, was executed in the Mauthausen concentration camp on January 24 on orders from Heinrich Himmler's staff in Berlin.

Morton, 34 years old, an imaginative and energetic correspondent who came out of Romania with the first interview of King Michael after Romania made peace last year, was captured near Plomka in Slovakia the day after last Christmas.

He was taken to Bratislava and arrived in Mauthausen, fifteen miles east of this city, early in January.

Nine other Americans and four Britons—all members of a group which flew into Slovakia in October to help bring out American flyers stranded there—were shot to death with Morton and their bodies were cremated, according to these witnesses.

A number of American and British officers and men went on the same flight to remain and help in the collecting of escaped fliers. The planes were received enthusiastically by Slovaks at the airfield.

Mauthausen is rated fifth in the list of major Nazi extermination camps. Thousands of men and women were executed there, or allowed to starve to death.

Asked About Fate.

"When we questioned Morton," the interpreter said, "he asked about his fate and stressed that he was no soldier. He reported he had nothing to do with the group officially.

That same day, according to the interpreter, the men were told to change their uniforms for prison garb and were led down to the execution room.

Morton flew to Slovakia October 7, 1944, from Italy in one of six Flying Fortresses sent to evacuate a group of flyers massed at a landing strip in the hands of Czecho-Slovakian Partisans near Banska Bystrica.

CONFER WITH LEOPOLD

SALTZBURG, Austria, July 9—(AP) Officials of the U. S. Second Corps said that Count Pirenne, member of the Belgian parliament, and three other Belgians arrived here by plane today and went on to St. Wolfgang for conferences with King Leopold.

Prime Minister Achille Van Acker and Leon Frederick, King Leopold's special emissary in Brussels, arrived Saturday for talks with the king.

Dutch Regime Calls In All 100-Guilder Notes

Move Aimed at Black Market and War Profiteers

AMSTERDAM, July 9 (AP).—The Netherlands government today declared bank notes of 100 guilders (about $37.50) no longer legal tender, in a move to smash the black market, penalize war profiteers and forestall inflation.

The 100-guilder note is the largest in circulation in the Netherlands. The public has until July 13 to turn in the bills at banks. The depositors will be able to draw on the deposited guilders only for payment of present and future taxes.

Experts estimate that the measure will take out of circulation 4,000,000 guilders of the present banknote circulation of 5,000,000,000.

Lidice Butcher Caught by Czechs

Prague, July 9 (A. P.).—The arrest of Hans Forster, Gestapo officer accused of directing the Lidice massacre, was announced today. The Czecho-Slovak police said that Forster had been hiding in a forest near Karlsbad since the surrender of Germany.

BULGARIA STILL CLOSED COUNTRY

GOLDBERG

BUDAPEST (delayed)—(AP) Bulgaria, under Russian occupation, remains closed territory to military units and correspondents of the western allies.

The fact that it is impossible for Americans to enter Bulgaria proved a trial to a party of which Sgt. Louis Bibisi of Middletown, Conn., was a member.

Bibisi, a motor pool sergeant for the American section of the allied control commission in Budapest, tried late in March with his party to bring several American sedans into Hungary for the commission, then located at Debrecen.

Russian occupation authorities refused the party right of way across Bulgaria from Greece, where the automobiles had been unloaded from a freighter.

"We spent a month trying to get out of Greece; trying to find a road out without going through Bulgaria," Bibisi said. "Once we found ourselves by mistake at the Bulgarian border and were turned back.

"Then we cut through a corner of Greece and a corner of Yugoslavia and were able to make it to Debrecen. But there was one spot where for 10 miles we had to build a road in front of the lead car as we went.

It took us five hours to make that 10 miles.

"We flew American flags in the convoy and everywhere we went in Yugoslavia, through scenery that tops the California redwoods, we found towns with wonderful medieval structures, American flags flying and pictures of the late President Roosevelt displayed. There also were numerous pictures of Tito, Stalin and Churchill."

ARMENIANS HIT VATICAN

Church Congress Calls It Pro-German and Political

MOSCOW, July 9 (AP)—Pravda said today that the Armenian National Church Congress had issued an "appeal to the Christian world," asserting that the Vatican's position did not correspond "with the lofty ideas of Christianity."

The signed declaration of opinion said:

"Regretfully, the Vatican heading the Roman Catholic Church entangles itself in political ambitions, thereby hindering the bringing into life of the lofty aims of Christianity, and it defends destructive German forces that are the source of harm of all humanity. For this reason, the National Church Congress denounces the position of the Vatican as not corresponding with the lofty ideals of Christianity."

Mongol Marshal Q... Moscow.

Moscow, July 9 (A. P.).—Marshal Choi Bol-san, Prime Minister of the Mongolian People's Republic, was en route home from Moscow today. His unexplained visit here last week coincided with the presence of T. V. Soong, Premier of China. The two did not meet.

Danes Buried During Eclipse

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, July 9 (AP)—Just as the sun's eclipse reached its climax and daylight dimmed, the bodies of twelve Danish freedom fighters were carried through Copenhagen's streets today for burial. The bodies were found recently in a house where the victims had been executed by the Gestapo.

3000 Danes Enlist To Fight Japanese

Copenhagen, July 9 (A. P.).—The newspaper Extrabladet said today that at least 3,000 Danish volunteers were going east to fight Japan. The government has approved the recruiting. The Danish brigade which was trained in Sweden for use in liberating Denmark will be demobilized tomorrow and many of its personnel are expected to volunteer for service in the Pacific.

Interned Planes Leaving Sweden

STOCKHOLM, July 9 (AP)—A four-engine bomber and a Mosquito, the last of more than eighty interned warplanes that United States fliers have been ferrying back to depots in England since late in May, are scheduled to leave Sweden this week. The planes, which had been forced to land in Sweden because of damage or fuel shortage after raids over Germany, were put in good flying condition again by utilizing parts of bombers that crash-landed and burned.

Hundreds Missing in Trieste

British Say Many Will Prove to Have Been Fascists

ROME, July 9 (AP).—A British officer in the Trieste area said today that Allied military authorities are in possession of several hundred names of persons reported missing from that district since the Yugoslav occupation.

The officer said many of the persons were reported taken away from their homes during the first few days after the German withdrawal. "Trieste had one of the worst Fascist records of any Italian city," he said, "and no doubt many of the missing will be shown to have been Fascists."

NAB COUNTERFEITERS

Rome, July 9 (A. P.).—A $3,000,000-counterfeiting ring—one of the largest ever discovered in Italy—has been smashed by United States Fifth Army agents, it was announced today. Seven of its operators were arrested at Milan. The ringleader was described as a well-dressed Milan resident who told his captors: "I outwitted the rich so I could give to the poor and needy."

An investigation disclosed that the gang printed a large sum of counterfeit money six months before the Allied occupation of Milan and began unloading it the day the Allied troops arrived.

Two Italian-speaking criminal investigation division agents, disguised as Italian hoodlums, tracked the gang down. They were Alfred Assaglia of Chicago, and Vincent Armenio of 1072 Findlay avenue, the Bronx, N. Y.

VATICAN CHARGES REDS CARRY FLAGS FALSELY

VATICAN CITY, July 9 —(AP) The Newspaper Observatore Romano said today that in several places in Italy groups carrying red flags have attended the funerals of persons who never publicly declared they belonged to leftist parties, or expressed sympathy for them.

The paper denounced the practice as intolerable. It indorsed the action of a Rome parish priest who recently refused to participate in a funeral procession until communist emblems had been removed.

"On several occasions," said the newspaper, "groups of persons carrying red flags appeared at the funerals of noted catholics, as if the deceased had campaigned under these banners, much to the surprise of their relatives and fellow parishioners.

"We know that in at least one case, upon being asked to furnish proof the deceased belonged to such a party, someone was delegated to go to party headquarters, and returned with a membership card.

"Questioned as to why the membership card was at party headquarters and not at the deceased's home, no explanation was given."

FIRE FALLS FROM SKY LIKE RAIN IN SPAIN

MADRID, July 9—(AP) Provincial authorities said today that fire tumbles out of the sky like rain in a two-square mile area of the Province of Almeria.

Since June 16, when the phenomon first was noted, they said, "fire from the sky" has set afire the clothing of more than 30 farm workers and women and children.

Spanish scientists were enroute to the region. Several scientists writing in the Madrid Press said they believed the phenomenon was related to "Saint Elmo's Fires"—phosphorescent glows which occasionally surround the tops of ships' masts but cause no damage.

Almeria authorities at first dismissed reports of the "rain of fire" as mere country gossip.

However, they said today investigations showed that not only have peasants been injured but the walls of farm houses and barns and laundry laid out in the fields to dry mysteriously have begun to blaze on hot days.

In every case, the authorities said, the affected clothing and buildings have been white.

The director of the National Geophysical Institute noted that land in the area is a particularly good conductor of electricity.

BORDER TROUBLES WORRIES TURKEY

ISTANBUL, July 8—(Delayed)—(AP) There is much uneasiness in Turkey over the situation along the southern frontiers of the Balkans, especially those of Bulgaria and Yugoslavia adjoining Turkey and Greece.

Istanbul receives reports, some of them apparently authentic, many only rumor, of Russian and Yugoslav military dispositions, of political agitation in Bulgaria and Macedonia.

(Reports from Ankara recently have said that Russia was exerting pressure for a new treaty with Turkey under which the Soviet would obtain a privileged position regarding the Dardanelles and cession of the Eastern Turkish districts of Kars and Ardahan.

(One Ankara broadcast said a Russian demand was reported for "a more democratic" Turkish government and that this was causing "concern in Turkish circles.")

Russians Massing Troops

The Turkish press recently published an unconfirmed report, attributed to the Paris radio, that Russian troops were massing near the Turkish-Bulgarian border. Bulgaria is under Russian occupation.

The apparent basis for this was the fact that last Sunday, July 1, Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, was the scene of a parade in which units of the Russian Third Urkrainian army and the Bulgarian First Army corps participated. The Russian units left Sofia after the parade and their whereabouts has not been reported since.

(Associated Press Correspondent A. I. Goldberg, in a delayed dispatch from Budapest, said that for days in late June Russian troops had been streaming through Hungary's battered capital. They were said to be en route home by the southern route; many of them were heading south and southeast.)

Building Fortifications

Reports from the border say Bulgarian and Russian work units are building fortifications along Bulgaria's borders with Turkey and Greece. The explanation given British and American members of the Allied Armistice Control Commission in Bulgaria is that the fortifications are "defensive."

Other reports are that airfields in Bulgaria are being extended and equipped under joint Bulgarian and Russian supervision.

(The Russians have been silent concerning any such developments. Bulgaria has been closed territory to American and British news correspondents.)

Other reports current here are:

Twenty-five thousand troops of Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia are reported in southern Albania (adjoining Greece). All Albania is heavily garrisoned and tightly controlled by Tito's men. The Greeks are reported moving reinforcements toward the Albanian frontier.

There are rumors that Soviet fleet units are arriving at the Bulgarian ports of Varna and Burgos.

(Marshal Tito, in a Sunday broadcast over the Belgrade radio, accused Greek forces of firing across the Yugoslavia frontier "to provoke us," and asserted that thousands of Macedonians had fled northern Greece to Yugoslavia to escape "the persecution of Greek reaction.")

CHINESE CAPTURE FOURTH AIRSTRIP

Jap Forces Driven from Former American Base at Tanchuk.

CHUNGKING, July 9—(AP) Chinese forces have thrown the Japanese out of the former American air base of Tanchuk in south China, the fourth big airstrip recaptured from the Japanese in recent months, the Chinese command announced tonight.

A Chinese communique said that other troops of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies had captured the rocky Chennankwan (South Guard) pass between China and Indo-China, 35 miles northeast of the French Colonial capital city of Hanoi.

All of southern Kwangsi has been cleared of Japanese forces by the Chinese occupation of the strongly-fortified border pass, the Chinese command said.

Recapture Tengyun

Tanchuk lies 270 miles northeast of the Indo-China frontier in the western part of Kwangsi. Simultaneously with the fall of Tanchuk July 1, Chinese troops recaptured Tengyun, 25 miles to the east, and Mosun, 57 miles to the west, the communique said.

(If the Chinese report is true, the capture of Tanchuk, Tengyun and Mosun indicates that Gen. Chiang's forces have cut a corridor across Japan's last flimsy land lines to southeasternmost Asia and have established a link between Chungking and the South China coast.)

Tanchuk, in the Si (West) river 500 miles southeast of Chunking, was destroyed and abandoned by Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's 14th Air Forces fliers Sept. 21, 1944.

Liuchow airbase, 100 miles to the northwest, was recaptured a week ago. Two others which have reverted to Chinese-American control are Yungning (Nanning) in southern Kwangsi, and Suichwan in Kiangsi province.

Tengyun, which has changed hands several times in recent weeks was reoccupied by Chinese regulars with the help of local militia. This capture put the Chinese within 38 miles west of the important former treaty port of Tsangwu (Wuchow) on the Si river.

Mosun, headquarters said, was taken by two columns which converged on the strategic highway center from Laipin, on the east, and Kweihsien, 38 miles south.

Chinese forces striking from Liuchow along the Hunan-Kwangsi highway and railroad toward their northern Termini at Hengyang yesterday recaptured Lojung, 20 miles northeast of Liuchow, the high command said.

Retreat Toward Liuchai

The Japanese were said to be retreating toward Liuchai, 28 miles northeast of Liuchow and 6- miles southwest of Kwellin, with the Chinese on their heels.

Headquarters said that the Chinese stormed and captured Chennankwan pass on the Indo-China frontier Thursday and soldiers under Gen. Chang Fah-Kwei were believed battling at the gates of the border town of Dong Dang.

China-based American fliers hammered enemy shipping from Haiphong south to Tourane, damaging a wide range of enemy vessels from steamers to Junks.

U. S. dive-bombers attacked river shipping on the Yangtze river in Central China, blasted rail lines north of the Yellow river and killed 300 Japanese troops in a strike against an enemy troop train on the Peiping-Hankow railroad.

CAPTURE INDO-CHINA GATEWAY

Chungking, July 9—The Chinese High Command announced today that Chinese forces had captured South Guard Pass (Chennakwan) on the border between China and French Indo-China and said the Japanese were retreating in confusion toward Dong Dang, south of the frontier.

With the capture of the Pass, gateway to Indo-China, the whole of Southwestern Kwangsi Province has been cleared of the enemy, the High Command said.

Chinese forces striking from recently recaptured Liuchow along the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad toward its northern terminal at Hengyang. Enemy forces retreated toward Luchai, 28 miles northeast of Liuchow on the highway to Sweilin, with the Chinese in hot pursuit, the High Command said.

Belated announcement was made of the recapture July 1 of Tanchuk, a former U. S. 14th Air Force base city which was abandoned Sept. 21. Tanchuk is situated on the West (Si) River, a little more than 100 miles southeast of Liuchow. It was the fourth abandoned American air base to revert to Chinese control. Liuchow, Yungning (Nanning) and Suichwan were recaptured previously.

The Chinese also announced the recapture on July 2 of Tengyun, some 20 miles east of Tanchuk on the West River and about 40 miles west of the important inland and former treaty port of Wuchow. Both Tanchuk and Tengyun were recaptured by Chinese regulars, aided by local militia.

BRITISH STEP UP BURMA ASSAULTS

CALCUTTA, July 9—(AP) British troops, stepping up assaults against pocketed Japanese forces in South Central Burma, have captured nine enemy-held villages in the Irrawaddy River valley northwest of Rangoon, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters said today.

Six villages were overrun by British 14th Army troops in an area 42 miles southeast of the river town of Prome, and three others were wrested from the Japanese 12 miles east of Letpaden, 73 miles northwest of the Burmese capital, a communique said.

Swarms of Allied planes meanwhile spearheaded a combined air-ground assault against attacking Japanese forces in the Sittang river bend area, 40 miles northeast of Rangoon.

The Japanese, making fighting withdrawals toward French Indo-China, battled in the Myitkyo area, 29 miles northeast of Pegu, as two enemy parties of 100 and 150 men moved out. The Japanese attacked the undefended village of Gwegyi Auk, one mile southeast of Myitkyo and forced Indian troops to withdraw from Nyaungkashe, 25 miles northeast of Pegu.

The British however, dispatched a relief force to assist Gurkhas pulling out of Nyaungkashe, and the Japanese were engaged in a fierce fight.

Spitfires of the Eastern Air Command bombed and strafed enemy positions near Nyaungkashe, blasting bunkers and silencing Japanese machinegun nests. Japanese building and jungle huts were destroyed or set afire.

Bomb-carrying Thunderbolts also hammered Japanese trenches, gun sites and troops in the Nyaungkashe-Mokpalin area yesterday, an air communique said.

Eighty-eight miles northeast of Rangoon, a British patrol hand-grenaded a gang of 20 or 30 Japanese soldiers building rafts under the steep bank of a mountain river.

Chinese People's Council For Closer Tie to Soviet

By The Associated Press.

CHUNGKING, China, July 9—The People's Political Council unanimously adopted today a resolution declaring that China and the Soviet Union should "cooperate more closely" and further cement their relations.

K. C. Wu, Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs, reporting to the council, said that after the war Japan should "fully and substantially compensate China for her war losses."

"Japan should be completely disarmed and all occupied Chinese territories should be completely restored to China," he added.

Mr. Wu asserted that the Chinese would cooperate more closely with the Allies to hasten Japans unconditional surrender.

Brazilian Cruiser Bahia Is Lost in Mid-Atlantic

Ship May Have Struck Mine; U. S. Sailors Reported Aboard

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 9 (AP)—The Brazilian Navy Department announced today the loss of the 3,150-ton cruiser Bahia in an explosion in mid-Atlantic, and said "reports indicate" the ship struck a drifting mine.

Some United States Navy radio operators were reported to have been aboard the vessel, which had a complement of twenty-eight officers and 355 enlisted men. There was no announcement of casualties.

The Navy Department said tonight that thirty-three survivors had been taken on board the English packet ship Balfe and about a hundred others had "arrived at Fernando de Noronha," an island off the Brazilian coast.

American and Brazilian ships were searching for other survivors. Vice-Admiral William R. Munroe, commander of the United States South Atlantic Fleet, directed the American search.

The Bahia, built by an English company and commissioned in 1910, went down in the South Atlantic midway between the Brazilian and African coasts.

The Bahia had recently been patrolling along the course of the African Natal Air Line as insurance for Americans returning by plane from the European campaign. It was a veteran of both world wars.

Brazilian Cruiser Blows Up

30.24-28245

Rio de Janeiro, July 9 (A. P.).—The 3,150-ton Brazilian cruiser Bahia has been lost in a mid-Atlantic explosion, probably with heavy casualties among its complement of 383 men, the Navy announced today.

United States units searched for survivors. A number of men were reported picked up. The cause of the explosion has not been determined. One opinion was that the cruiser had struck a mine.

The Navy Ministry said the cruiser was operating near the Sao Pedro and Sao Paulo rocks when she sank.

The ship was constructed by Vickers Armstrong in England and commissioned in 1910. She operated off Dakar in the first world war, and in the present war served as a convoy escort leader between Rio de Janeiro and Trinidad. More recently the Bahia had been patrolling along the course of the African-Natal air line to help insure safety of thousands of United States airmen and troops returning by plane from Europe.

Brazilians Shocked.

In Washington a Brazilian embassy spokesman said the Bahia has been on patrol duty since the day Brazil declared war against the Axis. Shocked at the loss, embassy officials received first word of the tragedy in Associated Press dispatches from Rio de Janeiro. The Bahia was built in England in 1910.

FESSENDON'S BOAT IS FOUND EMPTY

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 9 (A. P.).—A half-submerged and damaged hull identified as the long-missing twenty-six-foot auxiliary sloop of Col. P. Kenneth Fessendon, of Short Hills, N. J., was sighted by a Lisbon-bound Pan American Clipper Saturday, about sixty-five miles due east of Bermuda. An American crash boat reached the hull and reported Fessendon was not aboard. The boat was right side up and full of water.

A two-weeks search of the area has been conducted by Army and Navy planes and crash boats after Fessendon failed to return to port.

BIG CORSAIR BAGS FIRST JAP PLANE IN TWO MINUTES

JUL 10 1945

Navy Reveals New Fighter-Bomber Is in Action in the Pacific.

DOES 425 AN HOUR

Powerful Vought Plane Carries 2,000 Lbs. of Bombs, Plus Rockets.

WASHINGTON, July 9 — (AP) The first Japanese pilot to get a glimpse of the Navy's new Corsair fighter never got home to tell about it.

He was shot down in two minutes flat by Lt. Douglas M. West, U. S. Marine corps, Excelsior, Minn., off Amami O Shima.

The Navy told the story today in describing for the first time its powerful new aerial weapon, the Chance Vought F4U-4, which has already left the assembly lines by the hundreds.

Enemy airmen were all too familiar with the earlier versions of the gull-winged Corsair with which Marine and Navy fliers rolled up stunning records.

'Chews Holes in Sky'

The F4U-4 is a composite, improved model of all the earlier Corsairs. Its four-bladed propeller, driven by a 2,100 horsepower Pratt Whitney radial engine, measures 13 feet, two inches from tip to tip and literally "chews holes in the sky" in flight the Navy said.

It has tremendous speed and maneuverability, lands easily and carries six 50-caliber machine guns in its wings. Its radio equipment has "push button" receiving and transmitting sets which enable the pilot to change frequencies in combat.

The major change in the new plane, designed by Chance Vought aircraft and to be built also by Goodyear aircr ft, is the incorporation of the Pratt and Whitney double Wasp 2800-C engine in the design. The new power plant gives the already speedy Corsair considerably more horsepower both for normal flying and in combat emergencies, the Navy announcement said, and its rated 2,100 horsepower can be substantially increased by water injection.

Very little weight has been added, so that nearly all the added horsepower has been transformed into increased speed, climb and ceiling. It is in the 425-miles-an-hour class. Climb has been increased nearly 1,000 feet a minute, and the ceiling has been increased to give it advantage over high flying, land-based Japanese aircraft.

Based on Okinawa

In their first ten days of use by Okinawa-based Marine pilots, the new Corsairs literally "tore up the skies," flying more than 3,000 combat hours, in 271 missions totaling 883 individual sorties, the Navy reported.

Lt. West, flying with a squadron of the Second Marine Air Wing commanded by Maj. Gen. Lewis E. Woods, Fredonia, N. Y., was in a fighter sweep over the Jap home islands when an enemy airman appeared 1,200 feet below.

West spotted the enemy plane through a break in the clouds, pushed over, followed him down to 300 feet and opened fire with his six 50-calibers. The enemy plane went into frantic evasive turns, but the second burst bracketed the cockpit, and a third sent him spinning over on his back and he crashed into the ocean from 300 feet, the Navy related. West had expended only 100 rounds from each or his six guns.

Marine engineering officers said the design greatly increases the Corsair's operating efficiency at high altitudes and at the same time insures greater safety to the pilots because of tighter fuel induction which reduces the possibility of gasoline and oil leaks.

Newspapermen Given Preview of Plane

A new Corsair fighter-bomber—the Navy's fastest flying machine—has hit the Japanese skies. It is an almost incredible speedy and maneuverable plane that does 425 miles an hour and better, can carry 2,000 pounds of bombs plus rockets, when desired, and can climb faster and farther than any of its predecessors.

A lot of aerial had news has been industriously building up for the Japs at the big Chance Vought works of the United Aircraft corporation in Stratford for months past but only yesterday did the Navy consent to release the closely guarded secret.

At a press preview a few days ago, high ranking Naval and Marine officers, together with a large group of newspapermen, saw a squadron of the new F4U-4's, skippered by Commander John T. (Tommy) Blackburn of Solomon island campaign fame, do some amazing things.

Blackburn, who hails from Chevy Chase, Md., and whose exploits as leader of the famous Skull and Crossbones Corsair squadron in the early part of the Pacific war included downing 154 planes (he got 11 of them himself), has been training a new flying outfit at Otis field, Mass., preparatory to expected assignment to one of the recently launched big carriers.

Blackburn's men, flying 32 of the improved Corsairs, stormed down from Massachusetts and hit the airport, which adjoins the Chance Vought like so many tornadoes.

In simulated strafing runs, they crossed and recrossed the field at altitudes as low as 75 feet, went into rat-chases and did a lot of other fancy combat tricks.

As one of them climbed up to the clouds, barrel-rolling as he went, Commodore Dixie Kiefer, veteran carrier commander, exclaimed with enthusiasm:

"Boy, the Japs won't like these."

SENATE PROPOSES 15 YEAR WATCH OVER NAZI ARMS

WASHINGTON, July 9 — (AP) A Senate committee proposed today that the U. S. Congress keep an eye on German disarmament for at least 15 years, warning that the defeated nation is in beter shape to fight than she was in 1918.

The report, submitted by the military sub-committee which visited European battlefields and conducted hearings, urged:

1—Complete analysis of records of the German government and its industrial setup.

2—For the next three or five years, quarterly reports to Congress by the Allied Control Council on the progress of steps to prevent the German war potential from getting a start again. Annual reports for at least 15 years on the same subject.

Chairman Kilgore (D.-W. Va.) declared in the report:

"Germany in defeat remains a major threat to the peace of the world . . . is better prepared to implement her plot for world conquest than she was at the end of World War I."

The Germans' major resources still available, unless kept tightly in leash, Kilgore said, are "(1) the world's third strongest industrial economy (2) tremendous recuperative power (3) a world-wide network of economic and political reserves and a system of commercial interrelationships penetrating the economies of other nations (4) the science of aggression perfected by her leading industrialists, militarists and politicians to reverse the decisions of the battlefield."

The report reviewed testimony of German cartel arrangements, infiltrations abroad and money manipulation. It said there are some misconceptions, principally that the war was waged by "Nazi fanatics." Rather, the committee concluded, the war was fought by the German industrialist, and the Junker behind the Nazi front. The whole German setup, it added, is "a desperate scheme of a determined and skillful group of German leaders who have thoroughly indoctrinated their own people and systematically deceived the rest of the world."

SAYS JAPS TREAT CAPTIVES BETTER

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—An American flyer recently released after months of Japanese imprisonment said today that he noticed improvement in the enemy's treatment of war prisoners beginning February last.

Major Wesley Werner, 10th Air Force Liberator pilot, said that he believed the apparent change in prisoner treatment policy was due to Japanese realization that they will lose the war and reaction to the American report in February on the Manila atrocities.

He told a news conference that at the Rangoon, Burma, prison, where he was held, it appeared that the order for a policy change came from high authorities in Japan.

Wernell fell into Japanese hands in November, 1943, when his plane was shot down. After being listed as missing in action for nineteen months, the major was declared officially dead. British forces advancing in Burma in April released the group of several hundred prisoners, many of them British and American airmen.

COURTS MARTIAL SENT 102 TO DII

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—Army courts-martial have imposed more than 300 death sentences during this war, but only 102 actually were carried out. Commutations to life or lesser terms were ordered for the others.

In a report on military justice, the Army said all of those executed with a single exception were found guilty of murder or rape. The exception, not identified, was convicted twice of deserting under fire in Europe.

A total of 33,519 soldiers convicted by general courts-martial were reported under confinement in this country or abroad at the present time.

The Navy, saying none of its personnel has been executed by court-martial order during this war, added that 22,009 sailors, Marines and Coast guardsmen were in confinement as of mid-April.

In submitting the Army report, Under-Secretary of War Patterson compared the number in confinement to the 10,000,000 men who have entered the service since the draft act was passed in 1940 and added:

"The manner in which the soldiers have conducted themselves has reflected the highest credit on the American Army."

Five Navy Captains Named for Promotion

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—President Truman today nominated five Navy captains for promotion to the temporary rank of commodore. The five, all pay directors in the Supply Corps, included Gerald A. Eubank of 655 Park avenue, New York city.

Truman on Ship at Sea, Headed for Big 3 Parley

JUL 10 1945

WASHINGTON July, 9—(AP) President Truman today was two days out of Newport News, Va., headed for Europe and the Big Three conference.

Mr. Truman left Saturday aboard ship. He was accompanied by a group of advisers including Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

He will meet Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill in the Potsdam area near Berlin for their discussion at an unstated date.

In London, a foreign office spokesman said it was "pretty likely" that Mr. Truman would visit that city after the Big Three meeting.

"He will stop on his way back to America, I suppose," the spokesman said.

Although Mr. Truman is absent from the United States, he still functions as President. When a cabinet officer leaves Washington, his second in command becomes acting secretary, but this is not true in the case of the President.

Despatches from Berlin told of elaborate preparations for Mr. Truman to keep in touch with Washington. Signal experts of the U. S. Army strung a network of cables and wires to the Potsdam area.

In advance of the President's arrival, a number of high diplomats began arriving at the conference scene. American limousines were running a regular service, carrying visitors from Templehof airdrome to the Potsdam vicinity.

10 Spies Convicted in 1945; FBI Reports Busiest Year

WASHINGTON, July 9 — (AP) Ten spies and 45 saboteurs were convicted in the United States during the past year, the busiest in FBI history, the Justice department announced today.

At the close of the fiscal year ending June 30, the FBI had investigated 19,396 cases of reported sabotage, but none was found to be enemy-directed, the department said.

Convictions of all sorts based on FBI investigations reached an all-time high of 13,813 during the year. The previous high total, that for 1944, was 13,616, the department reported.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said that while much of the bureau's work during the year was allied directly with the war effort, increasing attention was given to general criminal violations, and convictions resulted in 96.9 per cent of the cases brought to trial.

Hoover said convictions for bank robbery jumped from 29 in 1944 to 53 in 1945. Theft from interstate shipments resulted in 1,426 convictions, more than double the 668 of last year.

Convictions for theft of government property rose to 1,815 from 1,143 in 1944 and 634 in 1943. Thirty-four kidnaping victims were reported during the fiscal year.

Frauds against the government brought 348 convictions, as compared with 235 the preceding year. Selective Service convictions during the year totaled 3,093 and to date the FBI has handled approximately 500,000 draft cases.

There were 974 convictions for illegal wearing of a uniform, compared wtih 695 the previous year.

GREEKS DENY ATTACKS UPON MACEDONIANS

WASHINGTON, July 9—(AP) A categorical denial of Yugoslav reports that Greeks are persecuting Slavs in Northern Greece was reported from Athens today by the Greek office of information in Washington.

"On the basis of data put at my disposal by all local military and civil authorities, I am able to deny most emphatically everything reported about persecutions of the Macedonia 'Slavs,' and about their fleeing from Greek territory," said a statement from Denis Zakythinos, undersecretary of the press in the Greek capital.

Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia charged in a broadcast from Belgrade yesterday that thousands of Macedonians were fleeing from Greece and that Greek forces had fired machineguns across the Yugoslav border.

31 DIVISIONS RETURN LISTED

Half Million Men Are Due Back Before January.

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—On the theory it will bring no comfort to the Japanese, the War Department has issued a timetable for the return of thirty-one divisions from Europe between August and January.

With eleven others either back or in the process of returning, the movement will involve more than 500,000 men. Plans still subject to change call for eight divisions to remain in Europe as occupation forces and eighteen still to be there at the year's end, presumably to await shipping facilities.

Divisions already back in this country are the Eighty-sixth, Ninety-seventh and Ninety-fifth Infantry, with most of the 104th Infantry also home. Advance detachments of the Second, Fourth, Fifth, Eighth, Forty-fourth and Eighty-seventh Infantry and the Thirteenth Armored have arrived with the remainder of their units soon to follow.

These eleven have been scheduled for Pacific action, although the War Department stressed that the men who fight in them will not necessarily be the same ones who opposed the Nazis.

In announcing the schedule for the thirty-one divisions due for embarkation beginning next month, the Army said that for security reasons no information is being given as to whether they will go to the Pacific, be assigned to the reserve in this country or be disbanded.

The schedule:

August—Eighty-fifth, Twenty-eighth and Thirtieth Infantry divisions and the Twentieth Armored.

September—Fourteenth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Armored, Seventeenth Airborne; Eighty-eighth, Ninety-first, Thirty-fifth, Forty-fifth and 103d Infantry.

October—Ninth Armored and Ninety-second, Twenty-sixth, Seventy-ninth and Ninety-ninth Infantry.

November—Tenth Armored; Tenth Mountain; Thirteenth Airborne; Eighty-third, Sixty-third and 106th Infantry.

December — Second and Eleventh Armored; Thirty-fourth, Ninetieth, Eightieth and Seventy-sixth Infantry.

The eight divisions ticketed for occupation duty are the First and Fourth Armored and the First, Third, Ninth, Twenty-ninth and Thirty-sixth Infantry and the Eighty-second Airborne.

The eighteen not now scheduled for return this year are the Third, Eighth, Twelfth and Sixteenth Armored; the 101st Airborne, and the Forty-second, Sixty-fifth, Sixty-sixth, Sixty-ninth, Seventieth, Seventy-first, Seventy-fifth, Seventy-eighth, Eighty-fourth, Eighty-ninth, Ninety-fourth, 100th and 102d Infantry.

Lawrence Advises Japan to Surrender

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—The Office of War Information broadcast to Japan an argument by David Lawrence today for unconditional surrender "before the political and international situation in the Far East becomes complicated by the demands of other Powers." Lawrence, Washington publisher and newspaper columnist, was replying to a Tokyo broadcast by Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, last Japanese Ambassador to the United States. Nomura referred to Lawrence's writings on casualties in saying that the Allies' unconditional surrender policy would cost them higher casualties. The Lawrence broadcast said, in part:

"Japan's only chance for survival as an economic factor in the world lies in surrender not a year or two hence, after Allied losses have been heavy—but now—in the next thirty to sixty days—before the political and international situation in the Far East grows complicated by the demands of other powers besides the United States."

Grenade Blows Off Foot, But Soldier Saves 5 Lives

Private on Okinawa 'Just Did as I Was Told'

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP).—A Lamar, Col., Army private stamped a Japanese grenade into the ground on Okinawa—and sacrificed a foot, but saved five lives.

The Navy today told how Henry Elwood McKibbon, a nineteen-year-old infantryman, lost his right foot when the grenade exploded. But he figured he was "just doing what I had been told to do."

The account of Private McKibbon's action was given to a Navy medical officer aboard the naval hospital ship.

Private McKibbon and four other soldiers were sent into battle as replacements and had dug two adjoining foxholes. A Japanese sneaked within a few yards of the foxholes. Private McKibbon tossed a grenade at him but missed.

"As I was watching him," Private McKibbon related, "I saw his grenade coming at us. I was standing up by then and could see the Jap flattened out on the dirt ahead of us. Then the grenade landed at my feet in the foxhole.

"I just put my foot over it and ground it into the mud as deep as I could. I held my foot over it and it went off. I was just doing what I had been told to do."

Nazi V-2 Rocket Bomb Is Shown In Washington

Washington, July 9 (AP)—The Army has put on display here a captured German V-2 rocket bomb seized last April in a tunnel in Europe.

The bomb, which is 46 feet long and 5½ feet in diameter, weighs about 27,000 pounds when loaded with fuel and explosive. It carries a one-ton warhead and two aluminum tanks, one holding 7,500 pounds of alcohol and the other one 11,000 pounds of liquid oxygen for the propelling machinery.

The bomb has a range of a little more than 200 miles and the time of flight is about five minutes.

Soviet Entry Into War With Japs Held Certain

Washington, July 9 (AP)—Final phases of the struggle with Japan will take place in northern China and Manchukuo, Representative Mansfield (D., Mont.) predicted today in the House.

The Montanan, who last winter served as a personal observer for President Roosevelt in the China-Burma-India theater, said he "should not be surprised if the Japanese move their seat of government to Manchukuo as we step up our attacks against Japan itself, and I feel a long struggle is in prospect for us."

The only alternative to a drawn out war is Russia's entry into the conflict, which is not a question of "if" but only a matter of "when," Mansfield said.

Army Requires Fewer Shoes For September

Washington, July 9 (AP)—The Army announced today a reduction in shoe production requirements for September.

The output of combat boots will be reduced in September from 2,100,000, the July-August production rate, to 1,500,000 and service shoes will be lowered from 700,000 to 350,000 pairs.

This decreased schedule will be continued throughout the fourth quarter of the year, the Army said, adding that announcement at this time of the downward trend will provide a 60-day period for the industry to prepare for increased civilian production.

20 NAVY MEN CITED

Capt. Astor and Comdr. French of Jamaica Among Them

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP)—Secretary Forrestal today authorized awards for twenty Navy men. They include:

Capt. William Vincent Astor, now on inactive duty, whose wife, Mrs. Mary Cushing Astor, lives at 120 East End Avenue, New York City, letter of commendation.

Comdr. Reginald H. French, Coast Guard, 42, whose birthplace was Hasbrouck Heights, N. Y., and whose wife lives at 166-25 Eighty-ninth Avenue, Jamaica, L. I., the Legion of Merit.

Gen. Sultan Made Inspector-General

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—President Truman today nominated Lieut.-Gen. Daniel I. Sultan to be inspector-general of the Army with the rank of major-general.

Sultan has just returned from the China-Burma-India theater. He held the temporary rank of lieutenant-general by virtue of his command.

Mr. Truman also named Luther Deck Miller, a chaplain with the temporary rank of brigadier-general, to be chief of Army chaplains.

WASTE AT MEADE CHARGED BY ENGEL

Building Costs And Failure To Use Facilities Alleged

Washington, July 9 (AP)—Representative Engel (R., Mich.) said Fort George G. Meade, Md., represents "one of the most outrageous cases of waste of the taxpayers' money" in this war.

Engel, self-appointed watch-dog over army spending, cited the Maryland army post as an example of what he called the evils of the cost-plus system in contracts.

In a lengthy report inserted in the Congressional Record recently, Engel said he hopes "that I may finally get under somebody's skin and keep them from throwing the hard-earned tax dollars down a rat hole."

Comparison With Camp Dix

He compared Fort Meade with Camp Dix, N.J., built under a competitive-bid system, where overtime labor costs came out of the contractors' lump-sum payments. Overtime there, Engel said, amounted to $233,946, while at Fort Meade, "where the overtime came out of the taxpayer, it amounted to $1,808,000."

"I took a 63-man barracks as a typical building," Engel said in recounting his investigation of army camp construction in the early days of the war.

"At Camp Dix, a 63-man barracks built under a competitive-bid system cost $9,822. At Camp Meade it cost $17,364.

Wage Rate Higher

"The wage rate at Camp Dix was higher than at Camp Meade and they were both built in the same climatic zone. The fourteen contractors at Camp Dix employed at the peak 5,655 men, while the cost-plus contractor at Camp Meade employed 19,990 men at the peak.

"Both of these camps were formerly National Guard camps in the same climatic zone. The construction cost at Camp Meade under the cost-plus system was duplicated at practically every one of the other cost-plus contracts."

Engel said the War Department estimated before the start of construction that Fort Meade would cost $9,053,187, whereas the actual expenditure was more than $23,000,000.

During the first World War, he said, the post housed 43,000 men; during the present war "the War Department wanted a camp for approximately 20,000 men."

"One Of Most Wasteful"

Asserting that the post construction was one of the most wasteful projects in the nation, Engel continued:

"On the one side I saw a ghost town where 43,000 World War I troops had been cantoned and trained in 1917. The buildings were all gone but the site was still there intact.

"On the other side I saw a new camp being built on what was practically a complete new site.

"On the old site I saw miles of streets, including some ten miles of concrete roads, where World War I buildings, barracks and warehouses had been built. The buildings were gone but the streets with a little work on them could have been put back in condition.

"Good Roadbeds Were There"

"The War Department could have started construction within 48 hours without the necessity of grading, with good roadbeds to build upon. Only a short distance from there on the new site I found new roads being built at a cost of over $931,000."

Likewise, Engel declared, sewer and water lines constructed in the first World War could have been utilized had the old site been selected for the new camp.

"They built a hospital unit on one side of a hill and an anti-tank battalion unit on the other side," he continued. "Then they dug a 1,200-foot tunnel through the hill some 35 to 40 feet underground to connect the two.

Possible Saving Cited

"I was informed that they could have saved 1,500 feet of sewer lines, electric lines and telephone lines and roads had the World War I site been selected for this unit. Forty per cent of the building material for these two units had to be hauled on site in mudboats with a caterpillar tractor. . . . .

JUL 10 1945

"The engineers informed me that over $1,000,000 could have been saved on the new hospital site alone had the old site been chosen. I asked the engineer why he did not build these two units on the old site. He referred me to the construction quartermaster.

"The construction quartermaster after some hesitancy told me that he stood there in that very spot and pleaded with the corps area commander recommending that site.

Says Commander Cursed

"He said the corps area commander cursed and replied, 'Over there (pointing to the new site) is where I said it is going to be built' and that is where it was built."

The congressman did not identify the corps area commander.

He recalled that on April 3, 1941, in a partial report to the House on the Fort Meade experience, he said that there were officers in the Army who "are responsible for the wilful, extravagant and outrageous waste of the taxpayers' money (and) ought to be court-martialed and kicked out of the Army."

"I have not changed my mind since then," he said. "Millions of dollars were wasted on this project under the cost-plus system."

NEW PRINCETON SWORN TO AVENGE

Philadelphia, July 9 (A. P.).—With her new skipper pledging her to the task of avenging her namesake lost in Leyte Gulf last October, the mighty aircraft carrier Princeton slid down the ways yesterday into the Delaware River.

Capt. John M. Hoskins of Belleville, Md., told a crowd estimated at 65,000: "I can and do promise you now that the captain, officers and men of this ship will do all in their power to avenge that marvelous fighting ship of the same name."

"We are counting on this new Princeton to pay for us a very personal debt with Japan," said Capt. W. H. Baracker of Washington, commander of the last Princeton.

Mrs. Harold W. Dodds, wife of the president of Princeton University, smashed the champagne bottle across the bow of the fifth fighting ship to bear the name of the New Jersey university. The band swung into "Princeton, Forward March," as Mrs. Dodds, who also christened the fourth Princeton, lifted the bottle.

The 27,000-ton Essex-class vessel was the first carrier to be launched at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. The crowd was the largest ever to witness a launching along the Delaware.

H. Struve Stensel, Assistant Secretary of the Navy and a 1922 Princeton graduate, said the vessel "will be a symbol of our national unity and of our faith."

The fourth Princeton was an 11,000-ton carrier which distinguished herself in thirteen major engagements before she was sunk off Leyte with the loss of 108 of her officers and crew.

The new Princeton is more than 850 feet long, carries a normal emplacement of eighty planes and has a surface speed in excess of thirty knots.

Two other ships were launched in a gala Navy celebration along the Delaware. The 14,500-ton carrier Saipan, first of its class, was launched at New York Shipbuilding Corporation, Camden, N. J., sponsored by Mrs. John W. McCormack of Boston, wife of the majority leader of the House.

URGE DRAFT ROLL

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—A national public opinion poll on the question of peacetime military training was urged today by two Congressmen.

Representatives Smith (R.-Wis.) and Taylor (R.-N. Y.) said they had developed "a workable, legal method for the poll" because they think the people, and not Congress, ought to decide the issue.

Under their plan, incorporated in legislation they have introduced, the President would be authorized to certify this question to the States for submission in the next congressional election:

"Do you favor the passage of a law by the Congress to compel one year of military training for young men in time of peace?"

Study Asked On Claim Marine Was Denied Care

Washington, July 9 (AP)—The House Military Committee was asked today by Representative Gearhart (R., Cal.) to investigate reports that Walter Reed Hospital, an army institution, had denied a shell-shocked Marine emergency treatment.

Gearhart suggested that hospitals adopt a "humanitarian" policy so that "none who are in need of emergency treatment, whether they be soldier or civilian, are turned away."

An official at Walter Reed said preliminary reports indicated that the Marine became upset by a fireworks display but the condition was only temporary and emergency attention was not necessary.

The Marine, identified by the hospital as Wallace Reid, of Wayside, Ga., was taken to Mount Alto, a veterans' hospital, given treatment there and resumed his studies.

job, as soon as he can be replaced by a returning veteran.

In June, the Army had a total of about 1,300,000 of which 5,500,000 were overseas.

Of the 2,800,000 in the United States, 1,300,000 already had been marked for overseas duty and put into training. About 200,000 were in Army hospitals. The remaining 1,350,000 were in administrative or service jobs, with 750,000 of this group designated for limited service.

G.I.'s with Less Than 6 Months Overseas Will Be Moved Abroad

WASHINGTON, July 9—(AP) The Army ordered today that all personnel who have less than six months overseas service be given foreign assignments if they are qualified and can be replaced in their present tasks.

Returning veterans will step in their places as fast as the program can be carried out. The order called for their replacement by May 1, 1946.

The announcement said that while all physically qualified male military personnel are affected, "special emphasis" will be placed on those under 35.

A War Department order to ground, service and air forces said that as rapidly as possible all operating jobs in the United States are to be filled by returnees, civilians, personnel physically disqualified for overseas service, over-age personnel, female military personnel and those specifically exempt from overseas service.

Specialists to Remain

Men not included in the order are special groups specifically exempted by the War department; enlisted men over 38 unless they request overseas assignment in writing; physically disqualified officers and enlisted men, and those covered by the policy exempting members of families from which two or more persons have been killed, prisoners or lost.

The Army said the orders is in line with the statement of President Truman in his message to Congress that "it is our plan that every physically fit soldier in the United States who has not yet served overseas, be assigned to foreign duty when he completes his training or, if he is fulfilling an essential administrative or service

Jobless Benefit Of $25 a Week Before House

Doughton Presents Truman Plan for Reconversion; Hard Fight Indicated

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP).—President Truman's plan for reconversion unemployment benefits, with payments running up to $25 a week for six months, was placed before Congress today.

Representative Robert L. Doughton, Democrat, of North Carolina, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he offered it "by request" of the Administration and reserved his own opinion.

The legislation would blanket under the unemployment compensation program around 3,000,000 Federal workers and 160,000 maritime workers and open the way for other groups not now covered to participate in the jobless benefits.

Immediate indications were that the legislation will travel a rocky road, with its ultimate fate in doubt.

Representative Harold Knutson, Republican, of Minnesota, senior Ways and Means Republican, quickly predicted its defeat, pointing out that the committee flatly rejected a similar proposal last fall "and the complexion of the committee hasn't changed."

Representative Doughton said the committee will assemble Wednesday to discuss it.

Specifically the legislation provides:

1. Maximum unemployment payments to be raised from present averages of $15 to $18 weekly (varying by states) to $25 weekly.

2. The number of weeks of compensation to be increased to twenty-six in any year. In approximately one-third of the states no worker now can receive more than eighteen weeks of benefits in any one year.

3. Grant to Federal and maritime employees the same rights to unemployment benefits as now are available to other workers.

In addition, agreements with states under the legislation could provide for coverage of other groups of workers, not now included in the program, and for higher weekly benefits to all covered workers up to two-thirds of the individual's previous weekly earnings, not to exceed $25 a week.

The Federal government would pay the bill for the Federal and martime workers, and would reimburse the states for the cost of the increased payments under the legislation. The increased benefits would be paid by state unemployment compensation agencies, and no change would be required in the laws of the states, which handle the compensation programs.

Mr. Truman, in a special message to Congress May 28, said the major remaining gap in the reconversion program is "the lack of adequate benefits for workers temporarily unemployed during the transition from war to peace."

N.Y. STRIKERS GET WLB FIAT

Deliverers Told To Go Back Or Lose Past Benefits

Washington, July 9 (AP)—The War Labor Board today warned striking New York city newspaper deliverymen that unless they return to work by 8 A.M. Wednesday they will be deprived of closed shop and of preferential hiring clauses of their contract and retroactivity of any future wage increases.

The board's stand was made public in a telegram to the officers of the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers' Union (unaffiliated) which began the strike nine days ago.

The WLB said the union also would lose the provision barring a publisher from giving assistance to any newspaper-distributing company against whom the union had declared a valid strike on dispute.

Louis Waldman, union counsel, said he could not comment on the WLB directive until he had seen the full text of the telegram. Other union officials were unavailable for comment.

Plan Local Slaughtering To Help in Meat Shortage

WASHINGTON, July 9—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Anderson today set in motion the plan to increase slaughtering by cleanly-operated local packinghouses and add their meat to the nation's general supply.

An agriculture department spokesman said the program should increase the civilian supply, aid in equitable distribution, and have "some effect in curbing the black market." He added that results must not be expected immediately but said they "would likely have a noticeable effect in the fall when the heavier slaughtering starts."

The program results from an amendment sponsored by Rep. Patman (D-Tex) which congress added to the bill extending price control for another year.

It provides for unlimited slaughter by non-federally inspected plants, if they are certified by the Agriculture Department as being operated in a sanitary manner. Their meat is to be made eligible to move in interstate commerce and to be bought by the government.

Prepare Regulations

Anderson announced that regulations under which slaughterers will apply for certification are being prepared and will be ready in a few days. He stressed that the government must be satisfied on the following points:

1. That OPA price, rationing and other regulations are being and have been observed.

2. That the meat will move in legitimate trade channels within legal price ceilings.

3. That the plant meets sanitary standards which will be prescribed in the regulations.

4. That meat production will be conducted under the supervision of qualified veterinary inspectors.

5. That the plant will participate in providing meat for governmental agencies as may be required.

Recognize Local Inspection

Anderson said local or state inspection would be recognized provided it is conducted in a manner that will satisfy him that these conditions are being met.

No specific date was announced when the program would be effective, but it was expected to begin soon.

At present, about two thirds of the meat slaughter comes from federally inspected plants, while the other one-third goes through plants which are not federally inspected, are under quotas and cannot ship the meat across state lines.

Blame Price Policies

Anderson's announcement followed issuance of a Department of Agriculture report which expressed the view that government price policies are partly responsible for the meat shortage.

CAN QUIT WORLD GROUP ANYTIME, SENATE IS TOLD

JUL 10 1945

Vandenberg Steers Charter Through First Shoal in Congress.

STETTINIUS SPEAKS

Ex-Secretary Presents Document to Foreign Relations Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 9. — (AP) Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) steered the United Nations charter past its first major shoal in the Senate Foreign Relations committee today by assuring the members that the U. S. could quit the organization at any time.

The committee engaged in a brisk exchange over the withdrawal provisions of the charter soon after the momentous hearings on ratification opened with a plea by Edward R. Stettinius for approval.

Senator Millikin (R-Colo.) touched off the debate by contending that the security council set up by the treaty could, in effect, prevent a nation from quitting.

Vandenberg, a signer of the charter, asserted that the U. S. is free to withdraw "at its own unrestricted option" with only the obligation of saying why.

The penalty, he said, would be "adverse public opinion" if the reasons did not satisfy the "conscience of the world." Then this nation would be in the same position as if it never had joined, subject to the organization's discipline "if we threaten the peace and security of the world."

Millikin insisted though that Dr. Leo Pasvolsky, State Department advisor on the treaty, develop for later submission what "rights" the United States would have to quit without suffering on us for that action.

Stettinius Speaks

Pasvolsky was taken over the document line by line in committee questioning after Stettinius guided the charter into the machinery of the Senate.

The former secretary of state, designated as this country's chief delegate to the world security agency, presented the charter to the committee as a workable plan for achieving world peace and other high aims of mankind.

His reception, in 50 minutes of prepared testimony in the crowded caucus room, was obviously sympathetic.

Speaking in a deep voice pitched to a tone of earnest appeal for the plan he helped work out, Stettinius told the committee:

"The purposes and principles of the charter are those in which the great majority of the human race believe.

"I believe our experience at San Francisco offered a convincing demonstration that this charter can be made to work."

Stettinius outlined the general program but left the pinpoint detail to his technical advisers.

He said the charter is not perfect but he unhesitatingly called it "a truly effective instrument for lasting peace."

He said it is a system of "checks and balances" extending as far as the nations of the world are now ready to go. It will improve with experience, he declared.

Our Stake Greatest

Pleading for ratification, he concluded:

"No country has a greater stake than ours in a speedy beginning upon the task of realizing in fact the promise which the United Nations charter offers to the world."

Thus Stettinius formally completed his role of helmsman for the charter, a task he performed through the Dumbarton Oaks and San Francisco conferences. He turned further progress over to Chairman Connally (D-Tex) and Senator Vandenberg, committee members who also are signatories.

The big crowd, sprinkled with G. I.'s cheered Stettinius when he arrived and when he concluded. Many who could not get into the room for the historic hearings stood outside in a queue, waiting for seats.

Committee Sympathetic

The sympathetic air of the committee—no one expects any determined opposition to ratification—was allowed to make his address without interruption and even without questioning afterward. Moreover, Senator Vandenberg commented:

"The secretary made a brilliant record at San Francisco and his work was in the finest American tradition. He deserves the grateful appreciation of his country."

Chairman Connally seconded that, adding that he wished Stettinius well in his forthcoming assignment as principal American representative in the organization set up by the charter.

The unusual Senate interest in the hearings was demonstrated by attendance of 19 of the committee's 23 members. Another dozen senators came as observers.

At the right of Connally sat Senator Johnson (R-Calif), opponent of the League of Nations 25 years ago. He brought a bulky package of papers. He said he hasn't made up his mind about this treaty.

When Stettinius concluded, a message from former Secretary of State Cordell Hull, sometimes called "father" of the treaty, was read. Hull, recovering rapidly from an illness that kept him hospitalized for months and prevented him from going to San Francisco, extolled the skill, patience and ability of Stettinius.

Stettinius in his 6,000 word outline described the machinery the treaty establishes — the security council, the general assembly, the economic and social council, the court of justice, the trusteeship council and the secretariat.

Ex-Secretary Terms It Truly Effective Agency for Lasting Peace.

COMMITTEE ROOM CROWDED

Vandenberg Explains That U. S. Is Free to Quit World Body if It Ever So Choose.

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—Edward R. Stettinius Jr. told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today that the United Nations Charter offers "a truly effective instrument for lasting peace."

The former Secretary of State testified as the first witness as the fifty-nation agreement reached at San Francisco started officially through the Senate amid indications that it may be ratified without amendment or reservation.

The historic session got under way four minutes late. Chairman Connally opened the proceedings by inserting in the record the speech of President Truman to the Senate the day the treaty was delivered, together with a copy of the treaty itself.

The caucus room was jammed with visitors, including some standees in the rear. They let out a cheer first when Stettinius arrived and then when Connally strode in.

Nineteen of the twenty-three committee members were present and several other senators sat on the sidelines as the hearing opened. Connally formally announced that fifty United Nations had approved the charter in San Francisco. By a slip of the tongue he called it "ratified" and quickly caught himself.

Vandenberg Clarifies Moot Point.

Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) declared at the afternoon session of the hearing that the United States will be free to withdraw from the United Nations organization whenever it chooses. Acting to clear up a controversy which developed during testimony of Dr. Leo Pasvolsky, State Department expert, over the charter's lack of a withdrawal provision, Vandenberg, a delegate to the San Francisco conference, said there were three conditions affecting possible American action to quit the league in the future. He listed these:

"The United States can withdraw at its own unrestricted option, its only obligation being to state its reasons.

"The only penalty is an adverse public opinion if our reasons do not satisfy the conscience of the world—and the action of the San Francisco conference simply suggests certain criteria upon this score.

"When we withdraw, we are simply in the same position as if we had never joined. We are subject to the organization's discipline if we threaten the peace and security of the world."

Speaking from a prepared manuscript in the room where the late Wendell L. Willkie once expounded his one-world views, Stettinius declared: "I believe the five major nations proved at San Francisco beyond the shadow of any doubt that they can work successfully and in unity with each other and with the other United Nations under this charter."

No country has a greater stake, he continued, than the United States "in a speedy beginning upon the task of realizing in fact the promise which the United Nations charter offers to the world."

Defends Voting Procedure.

The former Secretary, designated by President Truman as the American representative on the proposed World Security Council, defended the voting procedure under which the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France and China—plus two small nation members—must approve before the Council can take positive action to settle international disputes.

"These nations possess most of the military and industrial resources of the world," he asserted. "They will have to bear the principle responsibility for maintaining peace in the foreseeable future. The provisions of membership recognize this inescapable fact. I submit that these five nations, possessing most of the world's power to break or preserve peace, must agree and act together if peace is to be maintained, just as they have had to agree and act together in order to make possible a United Nations victory in this war."

But Stettinius added that the Security Council, with all its authority to use military force to prevent war, could not insure the peace "if men and women have no security in their homes and in their jobs." He said the Economic and Social Council proposed under the new league has power to study, report and recommend action toward "translating humanitarian aspirations into human gains."

"In the next ten or fifteen years," he continued, "the work of the Economic and Social Council and its related agencies in helping to restore a shattered world and to achieve better living conditions for all people will be of paramount importance.

Emphasizes Economic Factor.

"If the United Nations co-operate effectively toward these ends, they will have gone far toward eliminating in advance the causes of another world war a generation hence. If they fail, there will be instead widespread depressions and economic warfare which would fatally undermine the world organization."

Explaining the charter in some detail, Stettinius said he did not consider it "a perfect instrument." He felt, he said, that as time goes on democratic principles and technics will gain headway in the international field.

"In short," he said, "the course which is charted by this document is one which I believe to be within the capacity of the nations at this period of world history to follow, and it is a course which leads in the direction of our highest aspirations for human advancement in a world at peace."

He emphasized that the War and Navy departments "have certified that they are of the opinion that the military and strategic implications of the charter as a whole are in accord with the security interests of the United States."

The 'Battle of Peace.'

While he was testifying, the White House made public Stettinius's 50,000-word report to Mr. Truman on the San Francisco conference. In it Stettinius reviewed the projected organization, then wrote:

"The battle of peace has to be fought on two fronts. The first is the security front where victory spells freedom from fear. The second is the economic and social front where victory means freedom from want. Only victory on both fronts can assure the world of an enduring peace."

He said worldwide freedom of speech and assembly, unfettered access to world information and abolition of racial, religious or sex discriminations must form the groundwork on which to lay the foundation of lasting peace.

"Only so far as the rights and dignity of all men are respected and protected," the report said, "only so far as men have free access to information, assurance of free speech and free assembly, freedom from discrimination on grounds of race, sex, language or religion and other fundamental rights and freedoms, will men insist upon the right to live at peace, to compose such differences as they may have by peaceful methods, and to be guided by reason and good will rather than driven by prejudice and resentment."

In discussing United States cooperation for the betterment of other nations, the report declared: "We cannot provide jobs for the millions now in our armed forces and maintain prosperity for ourselves unless the economy of the rest of the world is restored to health. Continuing poverty and despair abroad can only lead to mass unemployment in our own country."

United Nations Urged to Grant Press Freedom

Senator Wiley Protests Lack of Information in Russian-Held Areas

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP).—Senator Alexander Wiley, Republican, of Wisconsin, called today for an immediate end to what he termed a "news blackout" in Europe.

Declaring that lack of information and misinformation from Russian-occupied countries is the "gravest single menace" to peace, Senator Wiley introduced a resolution to open to newspaper men all the areas occupied by the United Nations.

"Such journalists," the measure stated, "should be permitted to file dispatches unhampered by censorship for reasons other than those of military security. The fidelity with which this international freedom of the press is actually observed in any one United Nations should be regarded as a mark of friendship."

Senator Wiley told the Senate that this country is so ill-informed on activities in eastern and southeastern Europe that "it is absolutely essential that we get reliable information . . . (in order to) head off any explosions in that area."

"Mere promises of press freedom at some mythical date will not suffice." he said. "The time for international press freedom is now, before more regrettable episodes such as the civil war in Greece occur."

"Our press," Senator Wiley asserted, "is one of the foremost institutions making for the peace and pregress of the world's peoples.

"The world cannot exist half in news darknes, half in news light, anymore than it can exist half-slave, half-free."

Representative A. Leonard Allen, Democrat, of Louisiana, told the House today President Truman and the American people "should demand" that Great Britain "do her part in the Pacific war."

Representative Allen said Britain has "made all sorts of promises" about helping out in the Japanese war "but I have looked in vain to find where a single British foot soldier has landed" in that theater.

Republican, of Michigan, then told the House that General of the Army George C. Marshall was asked recently by the appropriations committee about the function Britain will play in the Pacific "and he assured us England is anxious to do her part."

Tells Senators Charter Is 'Truly Effective Instrument for Lasting Peace'

Former Secretary Stresses Role of Economic Council

Stettinius Says Task of Raising World's Living Standards Will Be of Paramount Importance, in Explaining Charter to Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP).—The complete text of the statement by former Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius jr. to today's opening of Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the United Nations charter:

Mr. Chairman and members of the Foreign Relations Committee:

You have asked me to appear before you as the first witness in your consideration of the United Nations charter and the statute of the International Court of Justice. I am honored to accept your invitation.

One week ago today the President submitted the charter to the Senate for ratification. May I also formally submit to you on his behalf the report which I made to him as chairman of the United States delegation at the San Francisco Conference. This report deals with the results of the conference and is fully documented. It was prepared quickly because we felt it important that the full and specific information it contains should be made available to the Senate and the public at the earliest possible moment.

I have been informed that the committee desires to begin the hearings by receiving from me an introductory statement summarizing the principal provisions of the charter, and then to ask me such questions as the members may consider pertinent. I am prepared to make such a statement.

I

First, however, I wish to make full acknowledgement of the great part taken by members of Congress, and particularly by members of the United States Senate, in making this charter possible and in framing its provisions.

The Connally and Fulbright resolutions, passed in the fall of 1943 by the Senate and the House of Representatives respectively, expressed the will and purpose of Congress that the United States join with other sovereign nations in establishing as soon as possible an international organization to maintain peace and security.

These resolutions, giving full support to the Moscow fournation declaration, gave renewed impetus to the preparatory work which had been undertaken in the Department of State under the direction of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull. Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and of the House Foreign Affairs Committee participated in all these preparations. Their advice was constantly sought and was invaluable. In July, 1944, a United States draft proposal was completed as a result of this work. This draft, together with similar drafts submitted by the Soviet Union, Great Britain and China, became the basis of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, just as the Dumbarton Oaks proposals themselves became the basis of the charter.

Half of the United States delegation at the San Francisco Conference was composed of members of Congress. Your chairman, Senator Connally, and his distinguished colleague, Senator Vandenberg, acted as vice-chairmen of the delegation. They played outstanding roles in the writing of this charter. They were leading figures at the United Nations Conference and their contributions to its success did honor to themselves, the Senate and the country.

I wish also to pay high tribute to Congressman Bloom and Congressman Eaton, who represented the House with such distinction, and to the two able and influential public members of the delegation, Dean Gildersleeve and Commander Stassen. Mr. Hull, whom President Roosevelt rightly called "the father of the United Nations," was not present, but we were in daily communication with him and his wise counsel was invaluable. Finally, President Truman, your colleague for so many years, guided our efforts with clear vision and a sure hand. His leadership contributed greatly to our success.

From first to last Congress and the executive branch of the government have worked hand in hand and with no thought of partisanship in this endeavor. The whole American people have also participated directly to an extent never approached before. The Dumbarton Oaks proposals were submitted to their scrutiny, criticism and advice seven months before the San Francisco Conference began, and the results of that public examination are reflected in many of the changes made at San Francisco. Forty-two non-governmental organizations representing labor, agriculture, industry, the churches, veterans and other groups were represented by consultants to the United States delegation at the conference. They, too, exercised an important influence in the construction of the charter.

This charter is not the work of any single nation. It is the work of fifty nations. But the influence of the United States in the framing of its provisions has been of the utmost importance. I believe that this is due in a very large degree to the close working relationship developed between the Executive and Congress, with direct participation by the public. This has made it possible for all America to speak more surely with a united and compelling voice in international affairs.

II

PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

The United Nations Charter is both a binding agreement to preserve peace and to advance human progress and a constitutional document creating the international machinery by which nations can co-operate to realize these purposes in fact.

The purposes of the United Nations are: The maintenance of international peace and security; the development of friendly relations among nations based on respect for the equal rights and self-determination of peoples; co-operation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural and humanitarian character and in promoting respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all.

Members of the organization are pledged to carry out in good faith the obligations of the charter. They are pledged: To settle their disputes peacefully in such a way that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered; not to use force or the threat of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations; to give the organization every assistance in any action it takes under the charter, and to refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action.

The organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its members. It is not authorized to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state. However, a claim of domestic jurisdiction cannot be used to prevent enforcement measures by the Security Council in dealing with a threat to the peace, breach of the peace or act of aggression by any future aggressor.

The charter provides six principal instruments for the realization of its purposes and principles. They are the Security Council, the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council, the International Court of Justice, the Trusteeship Council and the Secretariat.

The Security Council is both an enforcement agency and an agency to help nations settle their disputes peacefully in such a manner that enforcement measures may be unnecessary.

The General Assembly is a forum for discussion and recommendation on any matter within the scope of the charter.

The Economic and Social Council is an instrument for the development of those international economic and social conditions essential to lasting peace.

The International Court of Justice is an institution through which the principles of international justice and law may be developed and increasingly applied to relations between countries.

The Trusteeship Council assists in the supervision of an international trusteeship system for some dependent areas.

The Secretariat is the permanent civil service of the United Nations.

III

JUL 10 1945

THE SECURITY COUNCIL

The charter places the major responsibility for the maintenance and enforcement of international peace and security with the Security Council. The Security Council will not meet merely from time to time. The charter provides that it shall function continuously and that its members shall always be represented at the seat of the organization.

The council has the duty of helping to bring about by peaceful means the adjustment or settlement of international disputes. These include such methods as conciliation, mediation, arbitration, judicial settlement and resort to regional agencies as well as any other peaceful means the parties to a dispute my choose. If necessary the council may itself recommend the terms of settlement, as well as methods of settlement or adjustment.

Should these means fail, it is the duty of the Security Council to take whatever measures are necessary, including diplomatic and economic sanctions and the use of force, to prevent or suppress a threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression.

All members of the organization are pledged to accept and carry out decisions of the Security Council made in fulfillment of these duties. They undertake to make available to the council, on its call armed forces, assistance and facilities in accordance with special agreements which are to be negotiated as soon as possible between the Security Council and the member nations. It is specified that within the limits of these agreements national air-force contingents should be immediately available for combined international enforcement action. The charter provides that these military agreements shall be subject to ratification by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

There will also be a military staff committee consisting of the chiefs of staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives to advise and assist the council in its military requirements for the maintenance of international peace, the use of the forces at its disposal and in discharging its responsibilities in connection with the regulation of armaments. Thus, the military collaboration of the great powers, which has been so important a factor in assuring victory, will be continued and developed for the purpose of insuring peace.

When the military agreements have been made the Security Council will be ready at all times under these provisions with effective means at its disposal for prompt action against aggression, or a threat of aggression.

The relationship of regional security arrangements to the United Nations organization is also established by the charter. Because bitter experience has shown that a breach of the peace anywhere in the world may sooner or later threaten the security of all nations, the supremacy of the Security Council in enforcement measures to prevent aggression is established by the charter, except as concerns the enemy states of this war.

The charter contemplates that the United Nations organization may in time assume the responsibility for standing guard over the enemy states, but this responsibility is left for the present directly in the hands of the nations which have made victory possible in the present war. They will decide when to transfer this responsibility to the organization. The United States is, of course, one of the nations which retains this responsibility.

While no regional enforcement action may be taken without the consent of the Security Council — except against enemy states—the charter encourages the use of regional arrangements and agencies in the peaceful adjustment of local disputes. It also provides that should an armed attack occur against a member state, the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense may come into play until the Security Council has taken the necessary measures to maintain peace.

These provisions make possible the further development and strengthening of the inter-American system and its integration with the world system in such a way that the act of Chapultepec can be put on a permanent basis in conformity with the charter.

IV

VOTING PROVISIONS

The provisions for membership and voting in the Security Council agreed upon at San Francisco were so drawn up as to enable the Security Council to discharge, with the best chance of success, its responsibility for the maintenance of peace with justice.

Five nations are given permanent membership in the council —the United States, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, China and France. These nations possess most of the industrial and military resources of the world. They will have to bear the principal responsibility for maintaining peace in the foreseeable future. The provisions of membership recognize this inescapable fact.

The five powers do not, however, form a majority of the members of the council. Six members are elected by the General Assembly from among all the other United Nations. This is the first of several checks and balances provided for in the charter in order to safeguard the rights of smaller nations.

The voting provisions for the Security Council also recognize the special powers and responsibilities of the great nations. A majority of seven members, which includes all five of the permanent members, is required in any decision by the council for dealing with a dispute either by peaceful means or by enforcement action, except that a party to a dispute must abstain from voting in the peaceful settlement stage.

There has been a great deal of discussion of these voting provisions, and I should like to request permission to place in the record my statement of March 5, 1945, Mr. Grew's statement of March 24 and the interpretive statement by the delegations of the four sponsoring governments on June 7, all of which are on this subject. I think they will prove useful to the committee.

The requirement for unanimity of the five great nations has been criticized because each of them can exercise a veto. I submit that these five nations, possessing most of the world's power to break or preserve peace, must agree and act together if peace is to be maintained, just as they have had to agree and act together in order to make possible a United Nations victory in this war.

The question is asked—what would happen if one of the five permanent members used the unanimity rule to veto enforcement action against itself? The answer is plain. If one of these nations ever embarked upon a course of aggression a major war would result, no matter what the membership and voting provisions of the Security Council might be.

The charter does not confer any power upon the great nations which they do not already possess in fact. Without the charter the power of these nations to make or break the peace would still exist. What the charter does is to place special and binding obligations upon the great nations to use— in unity together for peace, not separately for war—the power that is already in their hands. The unanimity rule is an expression of those special obligations and of their commensurate responsibilities.

With an important exception, the unanimity rule applies to peaceful settlement as well as to enforcement action, because any action toward settling a dispute peacefully may lead to the necessity for enforcement measures. Once the council orders an investigation or takes a similar action in a dispute, it must be prepared to follow through with whatever further measures, including the use of force, may ultimately be necessary. And this must be clear to the states involved in the dispute. If it were not, the authority and prestige which the council needs in order to secure peaceful settlements of disputes might be fatally weakened. That is why the five permanent members are required to agree and vote together from the beginning of any dispute on which the council takes action.

The power of veto does not, however, apply to consideration and discussion of a dispute by the council before action is taken. Thus the right of any nation to bring a dispute before the council and to obtain a hearing of its case cannot be blocked. Furthermore, no member of the council—and this includes the permanent members—can vote in any decision involving peaceful settlement of a dispute to which it is a party. By this provision the five permanent members must submit themselves to the same processes of peaceful adjustment and settlement that apply to any other member nation.

Additional checks are provided against abuse of their voting powers by the five permanent members. Any decision by the council in either the peaceful settlement or enforcement stage requires at least seven votes. Thus at least two of the smaller nations on the council must agree with the five permanent members before the council can take action. The charter also provides that the general assembly, where the five major powers possess no special voting powers, may make recommendations to the council on any question relating to peace and security not being dealt with by the council. It provides, further, that the council must report at least once a year to the General Assembly on all measures it has taken to maintain peace. These provisions mean that the council must act under the watchful eye of the whole organization, and its members can quickly be held accountable before world opinion if they are derelict in their duty.

There is still another, and more compelling, reason why the power of veto is not likely to be abused, or even to be exercised at all except in unusual circumstances. That is the compelling desire and need of the five great nations to work together for peace. Twice in thirty years they have been Allies against aggression. Their common interest in preventing another war is fully as urgent as that of any other nation. Under this charter they assume sacred obligations and heavy responsibilities for the maintenance of peace with justice. They do not assume these obligations and responsibilities lightly. They do so because it is in the vital national interest of each one of them to see that these obligations and responsibilities are fulfilled.

I believe that I speak for the entire United States delegation when I say that the requirement for unanimity among the five permanent members, with the safeguards that have been provided, is not only essential to the success of the United Nations Organization in the years immediately ahead, but that it recognizes and confirms a power which a majority of Americans believe the United States should have in view of the great responsibilities our country must inevitably assume for the maintenance of world peace.

The special position of the United States and the four other permanent members of the Security Council is also recognized in the provisions for ratification both of the charter and of later amendments to the charter.

The charter itself will come into force when it has been ratified by the five permanent members of the council and a majority of the other signatory states. Amendments will come into force when they have been adopted by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly or of a special conference called for the purpose and have been ratified by two-thirds of the member states, including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

It should be noted that there is no power of veto over the adoption of amendments. The Security Council does not vote on amendments at all. The power of veto applies only to their ratification by the nations concerned.

In practice no important amendments to the charter are likely to be adopted in the near future unless there is unanimous, or virtuallly unanimous, agreement upon them and ratification is regarded as assured. The General Assembly is not a legislative body. It is an international meeting of the representatives of sovereign nations. The act of voting on an important matter, therefore, is not likely to take place until all the means of adjustment usual in negotiations among nations have been brought to bear in order to reach a common viewpoint. At the San Francisco Conference there was no veto, and the two-thirds rule applied. Yet the provisions of the charter were adopted unanimously.

I feel that much of the criticism of the voting provisions of the charter arises from failure to remember that the United Nations is neither a federal union nor a world state and that voting procedures among its sovereign member nations cannot necessarily be judged on the same basis as voting procedures in a state legislature or in the Congress.

As the peoples and governments gain experience and confidence in world organization in the years ahead I hope that they will learn to apply and adapt to international affairs many more of the principles and techniques of democracy. But I believe it would be fatal to this hope if we were to attempt now to go beyond what the nations are clearly ready to undertake today. The charter affords full opportunity for later amendments whenever a sufficient majority of the people of the world is ready to go farther.

V

GENERAL ASSEMBLY AND ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

Just as the existing distribution among nations of the power to maintain peace is recognized in the provisions for the Security Council, so the principle of the sovereign equality of all member states is recognized in the provisions for the General Assembly. In the General Assembly every member nation, large or small, has one vote.

It is the function of the General Assembly to develop in practice those friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples which is declared as one of the objectives of the United Nations.

The General Assembly may discuss and make recommendations either to the Security Council or to the members on any matter within the scope of the charter. It may call to the attention of the Council any situations likely to endanger the peace and make recommendations on any questions relating to peace and security not being dealt with by the Council. It will receive and consider annual and special reports from the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council and the Secretary General.

The General Assembly has the further power to recommend measures for the peaceful adjustment of any situations regardless of origin likely to impair the general welfare, including situations resulting from violation of the purposes and principles of the organization. This is one of the most important provisions in the charter for peaceful change and for the correction of injustices present or future.

Because the United Nations is an organization of sovereign states, the General Assembly does not have legislative power. It can recommend, but it cannot impose its recommendations upon the member states. It has, however, virtually all the other powers of a free deliberative body. Senator Vandenburg has justly characterized it as "the town meeting of the world." Its authority is sufficient to make it effective as the keeper of the world's conscience and as the watchman over the international behavior of every member of the United Nations and over the other agencies of the organization.

One of the principal purposes of the United Nations is the removal of the economic and social causes of international conflict and war. Responsibility for discharging the functions of the organization in this connection is vested by the charter in the General Assembly and, under the assembly's authority, in the Economic and Social Council.

In its chapters on economic and social co-operation, the charter spells out in more detail the economic and social purposes of the United Nations. These include the promotion of higher standards of living, full employment and conditions of economic and social progress and development; solutions of international economic, social, health and related problems, and international cultural and educational co-operation. The Economic and Social Council is also charged, under the General Assembly's authority, with the principal responsibility for promoting universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion.

The Economic and Social Council will consist of eighteen members elected by the General Assembly.

In the field of its responsibility, the Economic and Social Council has the power to make studies, reports and recommendations, to prepare draft conventions for submission to the General Assembly and to call international conferences.

Subject to the General Assembly's approval, it is empowered to make agreements with specialized intergovernmental agencies concerned with international trade and finance, labor, agriculture and other related fields in order to bring them into relationship with the United Nations organization as a whole and to make recommendations for co-ordinating their activities. It is then authorized to obtain regular reports from these agencies on their work and on the steps they have taken to give effect to its recommendations or those of the Assembly.

The Economic and Social Council will also set up a Commission for the Promotion of Human Rights, commissions in economic and social fields and such other commissions as may be required. The Commission on Human Rights will have the power to prepare an international bill of rights for submission to the member states for approval.

Like the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council has no power to impose its recommendations on the member states. But, as I reported to the President, this "power to study and report and recommend—and the power to call conferences and prepare draft conventions and require reports of progress—is a power which can be counted on to go a long way toward translating humanitarian aspirations into human gains."

In the next ten or fifteen years the work of the Economic and Social Council and its related agencies in helping to restore a shattered world and to achieve better living conditions for all peoples will be on paramount importance. If the United Nations co-operate effectively toward these ends they will have gone far toward eliminating in advance the causes of another world war a generation hence. If they fail there will be instead widespread depressions and economic warfare which would fatally undermine the world organization. No provisions that can be written into the charter will enable the Security Council to make the world secure from war if men and women have no security in their homes and in their jobs.

JUL 19 1945

VI

INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

The fourth major instrument of international co-operation for which the charter provides is the International Court of Justice. The court provides the means by which international disputes of a legal character can be settled "in conformity with the principles of justice and international law," as stated in the purposes of the United Nations. The charter states the general rule that such disputes should be referred to the International Court. The statute of the International Court, which is annexed to the charter, does not provide for compulsory jurisdiction. It does, however, include an optional clause under which members of the United Nations may agree in advance to submit all their justiciable disputes to the court for settlement.

The charter provides that

whenever disputes are referred to the court its decisions shall be binding on the parties and that any member of the United Nations, party to such a dispute, must comply with the decisions of the court. If it fails to do so the matter may be brought to the attention of the Security Council for appropriate action.

The International Court will also have a most important part to play in the further development and strengthening of international law, just as the courts of England and America have helped to form the common law. The court will be the subject of separate testimony before this committee by Mr. Green Hackworth, legal adviser of the Department of State and our member of the committee on the court at San Francisco.

VII

TRUSTEESHIP

In addition to these four overall instruments of international action the charter includes a Declaration of Principles and Purposes regarding all non-self-governing territories and provides for an international trusteeship system under which some of these territories may be placed by later agreement.

In the general declaration the member nations accept as a sacred trust the obligation to promote to the utmost the well-being of the inhabitants of all dependent territories over which they have responsibility. They are pledged to insure the political, economic, social and educational advancement of such peoples and to assist them in the "progressive development of their free political institutions." They are pledged to develop self-government for all dependent peoples.

I wish to emphasize that this pledge includes the right to independence for those peoples who aspire to it and are able to exercise its responsibilities. That was the view of the United States delegation, and the Committee on Trusteeship at San Francisco unanimously concurred in that interpretation.

This declaration of international obligations regarding all dependent peoples is the first of its character in the history of international relations. No similar obligations were assumed under the Covenant of the League of Nations, which provided only for a mandate system applicable to territories and colonies detached from Germany and Turkey after the last war.

The international trusteeship system of the present charter will apply to such territories as may be placed under it by later agreements among the states directly concerned. The charter itself does not place any territories now held under mandate, territories taken from enemy states as a result of the present war, and other territories voluntarily placed under the system.

The objectives of the trusteeship system include the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the dependent peoples concerned and their development toward self-government or independence, together with encouragement of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms. These provisions constitute another long step forward from the League of Nations mandate system.

A Trusteeship Council is created to assist the General Assembly in carrying out the functions of the United Nations with regard to trusteeship agreements for all areas not designated as strategic. Membership in the Trusteeship Council will be divided equally between those United Nations administering trust territories and those which do not, but it must include the five permanent members of the Security Council. Annual reports for each non-strategic trust territory must be made to the General Assembly on the basis of a questionnaire prepared by the Trusteeship Council.

Strategic areas may be designated in trusteeship agreements and in these areas all functions of the organizations are to be exercised by the Security Council, with the assistance of the Trusteeship Council.

Both the War and Navy Departments participated fully in framing the trusteeship provisions of the charter. Furthermore, both departments have certified that they are of the opinion that the military and strategic implications of the charter as a whole are in accord with the security interests of the United States.

No commitment is made to place any particular area, strategic or non-strategic, under the trusteeship system. The charter thus leaves for future determination to what extent and under what terms islands in the Pacific which are taken from Japan at the end of the present war are to be placed under the trusteeship system. Any agreement into which the United States might enter to this end would have to be on terms satisfactory to us.

VIII

INTERNATIONAL SECRETARIAT

The charter names the Secretariat as one of the six principal organs of the United Nations, together with the Security Council, the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council, the International Court of Justice and the Trusteeship Council. The Secretary General is appointed by the General Assembly upon recommendation of the Security Council and is the chief administrative officer of the organization. The charter provides that the Secretary General and the staff of the international secretariat "shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or from any other authority" and shall be responsible only to the organization, so that they may be international civil servants.

IX

These, gentlemen—in summary—are the main provisions of the United Nations charter. In my report to the President you will find a much fuller exposition. The charter is not, of course, a perfect instrument. I am sure it will be improved with time as the United Nations gain experience in its application. But I believe it offers to the United States and to the world a truly effective instrument for lasting peace.

The purposes and principles of the charter are those in which the great majority of the human race believe. The principal agencies which it will create—the agency for law enforcement, the public meeting the court of justice and the center for economic and social progress—are those which all self-governing peoples have developed and learned to use in their own affairs. The powers given to these instruments in the international field are those with which the most thorough possible consideration has shown the nations are now ready to endow them.

In short, the course which is charted by this document is one which I believe to be within the capacity of the nations at this period of world history to follow, and it is a course which leads in the direction of our highest aspirations for human advancement in a world at peace.

I believe our experience at San Francisco offered a convincing demonstration that this charter can be made to work. Much has been written about the disagreements at San Francisco. Actually, the area of agreement was always vastly wider than the area of disagreement. Attention was naturally directed to the differences among us because neither the five major powers, nor the committees of the conference, took up their time on all those matters about which they were already in agreement. What was significant about the conference was this—the differences were resolved and a charter for a strong and effective organization was unanimously adopted. I believe the five major nations proved at San Francisco beyond the shadow of any doubt that they can work successfully and in unity with each other and with the other United Nations under this charter.

In that firm belief I have come to testify before you today in favor of ratification of the charter by the Senate of the United States. No country has a greater stake than ours in a speedy beginning upon the task of realizing in fact the promise which the United Nations charter offers to the world.

11,000 TROOPS DUE ON FOUR TRANSPORTS

NEW YORK, July 9—(AP) Four transports carrying more than 11,000 United States troops, including Maj. Gen. Harold W. Blakeley, commander of the 4th Infantry division, and Maj. Gen. Warren F. P. Draper, chief of the Public Health Branch of the Civil Affairs division, are expected to arrive here tomorrow from Europe.

The two generals will arrive aboard the Troopship Hermitage, which will bring 5,843 men of the 8th Infantry Regiment of the 4th division.

The other three transports are: The Hawaiian Shipper, with 2,259 engineers of the 8th Infantry division and a mixed group of other units; the Sea Pike, with 2,616 troops; the Tristam Dalton, with 381 troops.

SEAMEN PROTEST SLASH IN BONUS

NEW YORK, July 9 — (AP) Merchant seamen on furlough and their wives will begin picketing War Shipping Administration offices in 45 United States cities tomorrow at 8 a.m. in protest against a proposed reduction in seamen's bonuses.

Howard McKenzie, chairman of the National Maritime Union (C.I.O.) negotiating committee, said in announcing the action, that seamen will not leave ships in port to participate.

One group of 20 furloughed seamen and their wives will leave tonight for Washington, he said, to picket the office of Admiral Emory S. Land, War Shipping Administrator.

A telegram to NMU offices instructed pickets to carry signs reading "We have not struck. We will not strike. We'll keep 'em sailing. But don't let Admiral Land torpedo us with wage cuts while we're carrying war materials to your boys."

The bonus reduction, effective July 15, would lower bonuses to 33 1-3 per cent of base pay in the Atlantic ocean and part of the Pacific, and 66 2-3 per cent in all other waters except far eastern Pacific and part of the Indian ocean, where 100 per cent bonuses, plus $5 per day, would be paid.

The bonuses, paid for voyages in war zones, were ordered reduced by the WSA with the end of the European war.

The union has interpreted the reductions as "wage cuts." Base pay of ordinary seamen is 34 1-2 cents per hour without bonuses, and NMU officers said the War Labor board minimum wage for American shore workers was 55 cents an hour.

Belgian Mother Inquires About Daughter's Fiance

ST. LOUIS, July 9—(AP) A Belgium mother whose daughter, an only child, is in love with a St. Louis soldier, has written the mayor of St. Louis for information about the boy's family.

Mayor A. P. Kaufmann said today he had received a letter addressed "to the burgermaster of the town of Sint Lewis", written in French and signed "Madame J. Olivier" of Liege, Belgium.

The letter said the soldier's parents were a Mr. and Mrs. Baker who live on Minnesota avenue. The mayor's assistants said they had located a Baker family at a Minnesota avenue address who have a son, T-Sgt. William M. Baker, in Europe.

Mrs. Baker said her son had not written of the romance, but that she believed the letter referred to her son.

The letter to the mayor explained: "We have been receiving the son of this family in our home for several months and a tender affection has developed between my young daughter and this soldier.

"Since we have only this one child, we would like to be sure of her well-being and to know to whom we are entrusting her care.

"This soldier has left for Germany, but he continues to return on leave to our home and this week he has asked for our daughter in marriage. Evidently she is going to accept, but he is young and does not consider that we know nothing of his antecedents. So we have thought of you, sir, hoping you will be able to give us this information as soon as possible, if you please, as you understand that our young people are anxious. My daughter is 20, and he is 23."

Sgt. Baker is 23. "I'll write the mother right away and tell her it's all right," his mother said. "My boy is a good boy. He's due to come home soon and it look's like he'll bring a bride."

3 'SHANGRI-LA' SURVIVORS HOME

HAMILTON FIELD, Calif., July 9 — (AP) Back from a primitive "Shangri La" into which they were plunged by a tragic plane crash, a pretty little WAC corporal and two Army men flew in today from the South Pacific.

Only they, of 23 persons, survived as an Army transport, on a sightseeing trip, crashed into a mountain side above an isolated valley in New Guinea.

"I always felt sure we'd get out all right," said Cpl. Margaret Hastings, 30, of Oswego, N. Y. "I don't know why—I suppose I just had that much faith in the Army."

It was faith well placed, for a month and a half after the crash the Army air arm reached down to lift them to freedom in a daring rescue by glider.

Two Wear Bandages

Corporal Hastings and Sgt. Kenneth Deck[illegible], Wash., still wore bandages over burns suffered in the plane crash.

Third of the party, Lt. John S. McCollom, 26, of Trenton, Mo., was injured less seriously.

They will go by air to Army process centers near their homes, and then will be given leaves.

Miss Hastings didn't bother much with glamor during the long stay on the floor of the hidden valley, a place peopled with friendly and happy natives of the most primitive type.

All agreed that no romantic attachments were formed. The blue-eyed WAC wore a school class ring on her engagement finger. Lieut. McCollom has a heart interest in Dayton, Ohio, he disclosed, without revealing the name.

Natives Friendly

The natives in the deep valley were friendly and happy, the rescued party said. "I don't think they wash very often," Margaret added.

Their first glimpse of natives came as 25 or 30 of them filed out of a wilderness path. "We turned on a smile and prayed," said Lieut. McCollom.

"Then," Margaret continued, "One of the older men—we named him Pete—suddenly walked closer and stuck out his hand to shake we certainly were relieved."

Three Reach California After New Guinea Rescue

Burns Still Bandaged; Wac Corrects Some Reports

HAMILTON FIELD, Calif., July 9 (AP).—A Wac corporal and two [illegible] Army men, the survivors of the plane crash in Dutch New Guinea on May 13 that cost twenty lives, arrived today by plane from the South Pacific, en route to their homes for leave.

It was originally intended that the three should go together to Washington. This plan was changed to enable them to go to Army processing centers nearest their homes.

The three, still wearing bandages over burns suffered in the crash into a New Guinea valley surrounded by 14,000-foot peaks.

are Corporal Margaret Hastings, thirty, of Owego, N. Y.; Lieutenant John S. McCollom, twenty-six, Trenton, Mo., and Sergeant Kenneth Decker, thirty-four, Kelso, Wash.

The little corporal—she weighs 100 pounds and stands five feet one and a half inches tall—contradicted two reports which had preceded her. She was not offered a throne by the natives of the hidden valley in New Guinea. She formed no romantic attachments for any of the men she was marooned with and has none at all.

Admiral Barbey Visions Jap Defeat by Summer of 1946

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9—(AP) Vice Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, who has directed 56 amphibious landings—more than any other man in the world—said today American forces "can land anywhere in the world" and predicted victory over Japan by the summer of 1946.

"Whenever we choose to land, we can land anywhere on Japan or China," said the smiling, gray-haired commander of the Seventh Amphibious Force who is known throughout the southwest Pacific area as "Uncle Dan."

Headed For Washington

Barbey, who has put Gen. Douglas MacArthur's troops ashore all the way from New Guinea to the Philippines and Borneo, arrived by air today from Manila. He is going to Washington for conferences.

The 56-year-old Admiral told a press conference in discussing the outcome of the war with the Japanese, "they're going to be licked.

"The military knows it and the government knows it. What remains to be seen is whether they will go on fighting until the country has been destroyed or until they can't fight anymore."

Whatever the Japanese do, Barbey said, "we can get 'em ashore," and win final victory in a year's time. Barbey speaks with authority—he has commanded amphibious landings beginning with Woodlark Island off New Guinea June 30, 1943, and ending with Balikpapan, Borneo, eight days ago.

Recognized as one of the founders of modern amphibious methods, he has landed more than a million men and 1,500,000 tons of cargo since he took over as General MacArthur's amphibious off rocket-firing LCI (landi fantry) is one of Barbe innovations, and he won the of merit for work in the A landings.

Suicide Attacks Serious

"The kamikaze suicide attacks are serious," he said. "Anything is serious in war that causes damage. They have damaged our ships and killed our men. However, although they have hurt us, the question is whether we haven't hurt their air force more.

"I think the Japanese air force is deteriorating at a rapid rate, and to a great extent I believe the Kamikazes are responsible.

"No loss we have suffered to date has been commensurate with our gains, nor have they (the Kamikazes) delayed us one day. Anything that will destroy their power is to our advantage."

Barbey said one of the steps necessary for successful landings on the Asiatic mainland is local air control, which he said "we are now in position to attain." If land-based planes can't maintain that superiority alone, then carrier-based aircraft can be called on to throw their power into the battle.

There was a note of awe in the Admiral's voice as he spoke of the "tremendous naval power" of the United States in the Pacific. It is "astounding," he said, adding that pre-invasion bombardment has enabled the Allies practically to clear out the beaches before the troops go ashore.

"Japan is a pretty big place and so is the coast of China," he went on. "We are on the offensive—we can choose our spot to land. It's impossible for the defenders to be strong everywhere."

He said both China and Japan had "excellent beaches."

Barbey revealed that Allied commanders expected the North Borneo operation would be tougher than it was. One reason it wasn't was that measures were taken to combat possible Japanese use of Balikpapan's rich oil deposits as a fire weapon. But two weeks of aerial pounding and the preparatory bombardment from the sea drove the Japs off the beaches and the flaming oil trick fizzled.

Barbey laughingly recalled the D-day incident at Balikpapan when Japanese snipers fired at him and General MacArthur. "The Navy beat the Army to the foxhole," he said. "I jumped in but General MacArthur stayed upright." He said the General has "great personal courage."

As to what he's going to do when Washington lets him:

"I'm not going fishing, I'm not going to play golf, I'm not even going to think. All I want to do is spend my time a-sittin'."

Jap Broadcasts Disclose Plans to Thwart 'Invasion'

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9—(AP) Japan, working feverishly under the "dark shadow of invasion," disclosed new moves today to mobilize its people and its resources against Allied assault.

Tokyo radio told of raids on the home islands of Kyushu and Honshu by 180 bombers and fighters flying from the former Japanese bases of Iwo and Okinawa, and reported American submarines and mine-laying B-29s attempted to blockade Japanese ports.

"The enemy is making a serious and calculated attempt to raze the Japanese mainland thoroughly before invasion and thus try to weaken all resistance before the decisive battle of the mainland is fought," said Domei News Agency in a dispatch recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Soldiers Distill Salt

Japanese troops, Domei said, are "entrenched in fortifications along the coast of Japan awaiting the enemy landing." They spend their idle time distilling salt from the sea.

The News Agency did not specify which of Japan's harbors had been targets of American submarines and Superforts dropping mines instead of bombs. It circulated the unconfirmed claim that "at least seven" enemy subs have been sunk since June.

Tokyo radio said 50 Okinawa-based Liberators, escorted by 40 Thunderbolts and Lightning fighters, raided the Omura area of Kyushu, on Omura bay, north of Nagasaki, early today. It skipped mention of any damage.

"About 50" Mustangs struck airfield installations around Kyoto, Osaka and Kobe in central Honshu, the enemy account said, causing only "light damage." Forty more Mustang fighters strafed Hamamatsu and Toyohashi, also on Honshu.

On the heels of a 10 percent reduction in staple food rations of Japans populace, the Imperial government has organized what its broadcasts described as a "Wartime Agricultural Corps" and "General Food Headquarters to help speed production of food. Prefectural authorities in northerly Hokkaido acted independently to bolster food corps.

A new "munitions arsenal" will be formed from a "certain armament factory," Domei reported guardedly, and a central agency will take over all raw materials for the iron and steel industries as well as distribution of all finished products.

"Thousands" of Singapore office workers, said the Japanese-operated Batavia radio, have become "fully aware of the critical war situation and the dark shadow of invasion," and have volunteered for labor service with military units. Furthermore, 24,000 Chinese, Malayans, Eurasians and Arabs are "standing by" in the occupied British Naval base for any emergency.

The newly-organized "National Volunteer Corps" of Korea has been inaugurated in that occupied country, now within range of Okinawa bombers. Other broadcasts told of the arrival of Ginjiro Fujiwara, former Japanese munitions minister and "special fighting strength inspector" in occupied Manchuria, at Keijo, capital of Korea, to inspect "vital industries."

A new Delhi, India, broadcast, aired by BBC said Indo-China's communications had been "almost completely paralyzed" by sabotage of Japanese installations coupled with Allied bombardment and coal rationing. And Tokyo said families of Army conscripts in northern China are "determined to remain" even though they expect heavier air raids and increased transportation difficulties.

Tokyo Admits Allied Accord.

San Francisco, July 9 (A. P.).—Preparing the Japanese people for Russo-Anglo-American co-operation in the forthcoming Big Three conference the Nippon Times said today that in spite of underlying differences that exist between the three nations they will continue a policy of outward co-operation in the matter of practical politics.

The editorial broadcast by radio Tokyo and intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission then lauded Russia.

JAPS ADMIT AIRCRAFT PLANTS SUFFER SETBACK

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9—(AP) Tokyo admitted today that Japan's aircraft production on the Kyushu home island "aircraft arsenal" had "suffered a temporary setback" under the pounding of American bombs.

The radio broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, quoted the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri Hochi reports from a Kyushu correspondent as saying that lagging aircraft production was an "undeniable fact, with the B-29 raids and subsequent factory demoralizations."

Underground aircraft factories, however, the article continued, were increasing production of the "latest and most superior planes."

Japan Training Singapore Fighters

San Francisco, July 9 (A. P.).—Japan is hastily training volunteer fighters from Korea to Singapore in firefighting and rescue drills, Japanese broadcasts reported today, in an effort to hold what's left of its war-won empire.

In Singapore 24,000 Chinese, Malayans, Eurasians and Arabs are "standing by" for an emergency, the Japanese-controlled Batavia radio said. In addition, thousands of Singapore office workers have "volunteered" for labor service. The first group began work Saturday on a "five-day construction job" to strengthen defenses.

tified as Suo Oya, chief of the Tokyo radio's editorial department.

In a broalcast reminiscent of German attempts to split the Allies, Oya predicted "America's difficulties in the Pacific in relation to the Soviets" would produce a "dramatic turn of events."

Parley Seen As Test

As heard by the Federal Communications Commission, the broadcast beamed to the United States predicted that the coming three-power conference at Potsdam would test the Soviet and American positions.

"How the United States Government," it added, "will survive this deadlock in the Pacific and in what complexion the American delegation will come out of Potsdam after a direct deal with the Soviets is worth waiting to see."

The tenor of the broadcast was similar to several heard recently, including one of the Japanese radio at Shanghai that Russia's "standing desire" was to "crush the ambitions of the imperialistic Americans to control East Asia."

'Bitter' Victory

Oya said American policy evidently was to bring Russia into the war against Japan, defeat Japan before Russia can recover from the European war, or "to bind the Soviets and their activities in Asia with some direct political understanding and then proceed with the decisive battle with Japan."

He asserted that "the presence of the Soviet power, consciousness of it, is making America's dream of victory in the Pacific extremely bitter."

Okinawa Start Of U.S.-Soviet War, Jap Commentator Says

San Francisco, July 9 (AP)—A Tokyo radio propagandist declared today that "the day the Okinawa battle finished must be recorded by future historians as the first phase of the Soviet-American war."

Colonel Asserts Guard Planned To Kill Captives

Reports Soldier Had Been

Drinking Beer Before He Fired on Nazi Prisoners

FORT DOUGLAS, Utah, July 9 (AP).—Colonel Arthur J. Ericsson, of the Ogden, Utah, prisoner of war command, said today Private Clarence V. Bertucci, twenty-three, of New Orleans, had admitted planning the mass killing of German prisoners of war which he carried out by spraying .30-caliber machine gun bullets through their tents, killing eight.

Twenty other prisoners were wounded as Bertucci fired three bursts, a total of 250 bullets, from a guard's tower at the Salina prisoner of war camp 150 miles south of Salt Lake City yesterday.

Colonel Ericsson said that the New Orleans soldier, at a hearing shortly after the killing, said he was not sorry about his act.

Colonel Ericsson said Bertucci had drunk several glasses of 3.2 beer at Salina about two hours before the shootings, but there was no evidence that the soldier was under the influence of liquor when he was taken into custody.

Bertucci was brought to the Fort Douglas hospital for a complete examination. Colonel C. K. Wing, director of the security and intelligence division of the 9th Service Command, said a full report would be made later.

Newspaper reporters were not allowed to see the soldier, who twice previously has been convicted at courts martial of leaving his post and of failure to do guard duty.

Karl Altkrueger, thirty-one, of Leubben, Germany, one of the wounded, told Bushnell General Hospital officers he and other prisoners dashed from their tents at the first rattle of shots.

Bullets were flying through tents and kicking up dust. He said he was struck in both feets an instant after he left the tent.

Bodies of the eight German dead were taken to the hospital, near Brigham, in northern Utah, and the wounded were taken to Bushnell and to Kearns, near Salt Lake City.

Bertucci, dark-haired and of slight build, served eight months with a field artillery unit in England, but was never at the battle front.

Guard Kills Eight German PWs

American's Machine Gun Wounds Twenty Others in Utah Camp.

JUL 10 1945

Salina, Utah, July 9 (A. P.).—Machine gun bullets fired by an American soldier killed eight Germans and injured twenty others asleep in a prisoner-of-war camp. Why the soldier turned loose the barrage was a question still publicly unanswered today.

The shooting occurred early yesterday, a half hour after Pvt. Clarence Bertucci of New Orleans, La., had gone on duty as a guard at the camp housing prisoners working in central Utah farm fields.

Col. Arthur Ericsson, commander of the prisoner of war camp at Ogden, of which the camp here is a branch, said Bertucci, 23, suddenly fired from his post in a guard tower into a tent area in which the prisoners were housed.

Three bursts of fire, including in all 250 shots and lasting no more than fifteen seconds, ripped into the tents.

His ammunition expended, Bertucci yelled for more, Ericsson said, but was placed instead, under arrest on orders of the branch camp commander, Lieut. Albert I. Cornell.

In New Orleans, Bertucci's widowed mother said an Army officer who notified her of the incident expressed the opinion the soldier had gone berserk.

Mother Non-plussed.

"Something must have happened to him," said Mrs. Mary Bertucci, adding that she could not understand her son's action.

A board of inquiry interviewed Bertucci, officers and men at the camp and the prisoners. Bertucci's story, however, was not disclosed and Ericsson said it and other testimony would be handed on to the security and intelligence officer at Ninth Service Command headquarters at Fort Douglas, Utah.

Bertucci will be held in custody, Ericsson added, pending consideration of the inquiry board's report.

Ericsson said a spokesman for the Germans, First Sergt. Hans Fertig, testified at the inquiry that he had never heard threats exchanged between guards and prisoners, but said that the presence of machine guns on the towers made prisoners fear just such an incident as occurred.

Commandant's Action.

Cornell said he was at work in his office near the guard tower when the first burst of machine-gun fire sounded. He raced to a window, then out of doors as a second blast was fired. Just as he reached the base of the guard tower a third burst of machine-gun fire rang out.

Bertucci was stationed with a field artillery unit in England for eight months, but saw no battle action, Ericsson said.

Bodies of the dead prisoners were taken to Bushnell General Hospital at Brigham, Utah, and the wounded were taken there and to the station hospital at Kearns Overseas Replacement Depot near Salt Lake City.

Condition of eight was said to be serious.

Arrangements were made for a delegation of prisoners to attend funeral services for their slain comrades at Fort Douglas.

At Washington, the War Department said that Bertucci's service record showed two courts-martial. The first was a summary court-martial in January, 1944, while he was stationed in England on a charge that he "left his proper station" and he was restricted to the company area for two months as a penalty. In January of this year he was given a special court-martial for failure to do guard duty at Camp McLean, Tex., and was sentenced to three months' confinement at hard labor.

LONDON, JULY 9 -(AP)- BRITAIN'S HOUSING REFORMERS CAME OUT IN THE OPEN TODAY AND DEFINITELY ANNOUNCED THAT THEY WOULD KEEP ON INSTALLING HOMELESS FAMILIES INTO LONG VACANT HOUSES UNTIL "EVERY EMPTY HOUSE IN THIS COUNTRY IS OCCUPIED."

THE MOVEMENT STARTED IN THE SEASIDE RESORT TOWN OF BRIGHTON AND SPREAD TO LONDON THIS AFTERNOON AS LEADERS MET IN THE BATTERED CAPITAL TO MAP FURTHER PLANS.

HAROLD STEER, WHO IDENTIFIED HIMSELF AS SECRETARY OF THE BRIGHTON COMMITTEE, SAID THAT "WE HAVE COME OUT INTO THE OPEN. WE WANT TO DISPEL ANY ILLUSION THAT BRIGHTON HAS A HOODED KLU KLUX KLAN STALKING THE STREETS AT NIGHT. WE ARE NOT A SECRET SOCIETY ANY LONGER."

STEER REVEALED THAT TOWN AUTHORITIES ALREADY HAD ACCOMMODATED THE LEADERS OF THE VIGILANTES AND HAD ADVISED THEM NOT TO TAKE THE LAW INTO THEIR OWN HANDS.

HE POINTED OUT THAT ONE THIRD OF BRITAIN'S HOUSING SUFFERED FROM BOMBING RAIDS -- 200,000 HOMES WERE DESTROYED, 250,000 DAMAGED SERIOUSLY, AND 400,000 OTHERS DAMAGED SLIGHTLY -- AND THAT THIS PRESENTED ONE OF THE BIGGEST PROBLEMS FACING THE NATION, ALREADY SHORT OF CRAFTSMEN AND MATERIALS.

PARIS, JULY 9- (AP) -- BY BOAT, TANK AND SILK, 60,000 AMERICAN SOLDIERS CRACKED THE FIRST STRONGHOLD IN HITLER'S EUROPEAN FORTRESS JUST TWO YEARS AGO TONIGHT, AS THE 82ND AIRBORNE, THE FIRST AND 45TH INFANTRY AND THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISIONS INVADED SICILY.

TEN AIRBORNES IN NORTH AFRICA HAD SENT UP THE LARGEST FLEET OF TRANSPORT PLANES THE WORLD HAD SEEN UP TO THEN, AS THE NOW FAMED GUN-KILLING PARATROOPS OF THE 82ND WENT INTO THEIR FIRST FIGHT IN DIVISION STRENGTH. THEIR WHITE CHUTES SETTLED INTO THE DUST OF SICILY JUST FIVE

MUEHLDORF, GERMANY, JULY 8-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE NAZIS HAD INVESTED MILLIONS OF HOURS OF SLAVE LABOR AND THOUSANDS OF LIVES IN A "BURIED FACTORY" PROGRAM FOR AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION, BUT NONE OF SEVEN HUGE PROJECTS HAD BEEN COMPLETED AT SURRENDER TIME.

A TYPICAL EXAMPLE IS THE CONSTRUCTION NEAR HERE OF A SEMI-CYLINDRICAL MASS OF CONCRETE, RESEMBLING IN APPEARANCE A NATIONAL GUARD ARMORY. GERMAN ENGINEERS ASSIGNED TO THIS PROJECT TOLD AMERICANS IT WAS INTENDED TO PRODUCE THE MESSERSCHMITT 262, A TWIN-ENGINED FIGHTER BOMBER, BUT THE BUILDING COULD HAVE BEEN USED FOR MANY KINDS OF WAR PRODUCTION.

THIS FACTORY IS NOT OF THE TRUE UNDERGROUND TYPE. IT IS COMPARABLE IN SIZE TO LARGE AMERICAN FACTORIES, BEING 1,200 BY 260 FEET AND 80 FEET HIGH AT THE PEAK, GIVING 324,000 SQUARE FEET OF MAIN FLOOR SPACE AND ROOM FOR A SECOND FLOOR OR BALCONY. IN ADDITION, IT HAS EXTENSIVE UNDERGROUND HALLS FOR OFFICES AND OTHER SERICES.

THE CONSTRUCTION PLAN WAS SIMPLE--THE GERMANS CHOSE A SMALL RAVINE IN A WOODED AREA AND SCRAPED OUT A HOLE LARGE ENOUGH FOR THE PLANT. THEN THEY MADE A GRAVEL MOLD DUPLICATING THE INTERIOR AIR SPACE OF THE BUILDING AND OVER THAT LAID REINFORCED CONCRETE TEN FEET THICK. THE GRAVEL THEN WAS CARRIED OUT AND USED FOR FILL. LATER DIRT WAS TO BE PLACED OVER THE WHOLE PROJECT AND THE ORIGINAL APPEARANCE WAS TO BE LARGELY RESTORED.

OFFICIALS ESTIMATED 15,000 TO 20,000 JEWISH SLAVE LABORERS WERE EMPLOYED AT THE MUEHLDORF FACTORY AND THAT MORE THAN 2,000 DIED.

SALZBURG, AUSTRIA, JULY 4-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE U.S.THIRD DIVISION CELEBRATED JULY FOURTH TONIGHT BY EXPLODING IN THE TYROLEAN ALPS THE FIRST OF 200 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES FOUND BURIED IN A MOUNTAIN SHAFT BY SS MEN SHORTLY BEFORE THE WAR ENDED.

SEVERAL NEW TYPES OF EXPLOSIVES WERE IN THE CACHE. THERE WAS EVERY INDICATION THAT THE MATERIEL WAS BURIED UNDER THE DIRECTION OF LT. COL. OTTO SKORZENY, SS LEADER WHO HELPED LIBERATE MUSSOLINI AND WHO WAS BLAMED FOR A PLOT TO KILL GEN. EISENHOWER. SKORZENY, INCIDENTALLY, NOW IS ACCUSED OF LEADING THE PLOT WHICH OVERTHREW THE HORTHY GOVERNMENT IN HUNGARY. HE IS IN CUSTODY.

THIRD DIVISION DETECTIVES WHO FOUND THE EXPLOSIVES DRAFTED BARON VON PFUNGEN, A LEADING GERMAN EXPLOSIVES EXPERT, IN GETTING THE STUFF FROM THE MOUNTAIN SIDE WHERE THE SS INTENDED TO KEEP IT FOR GUERRILLA AND TERROR ACTIONS.

JUL 10 1945

CAPT. PHILIP BROOKS, PELHAM, N.Y., FOUND THE EXPLOSIVES THREE DAYS AGO, ACTING ON A TIP. CAPT. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, JACKSON, MISS., DIRECTED THE REMOVAL. A NATIVE WHO ADMITTED HE HELPED BURY THE MATERIEL FURNISHED A DIAGRAM OF TUNNELS AND GAVE SOME AID IN TAKING OUT THE EXPLOSIVES, PLUS A QUANTITY OF OUTLAWED DUMDUM BULLETS.

SGT.GEORGE BREslin, LEXINGTON, MASS., WHO HELPED EXPLODE THE FIRST BATCH TONIGHT, SAID "WE HAVEN'T HAD SO MUCH FUN CARRYING OUT ARMY ORDERS FOR SOME TIME."

"THERE'S SOMETHING SYMBOLIC ABOUT STARTING THIS JOB ON JULY FOURTH," REMARKED CPL. MERLE ADKINS, VINCENNES, IND.

"WE MUST OBSERVE A SAFE AND SANE FOURTH IN OUR FIRST PEACETIME CELEBRATION IN EUROPE," SAID SGT. DENNIS CREEDEN, CAMBRIDGE, MASS., AS HE SET OFF ANOTHER DETONATOR.

A GAS CHAMBER, THREE INCINERATING FURNACES WERE FOUND IN THE BASEMENT WHERE MORTON AND HIS COMPANIONS WERE EXECUTED. INMATES OF THE CAMP SAID MORE THAN 500 BODIES WERE BURNED DAILY IN THE LAST THREE WEEKS OF THE WAR. THE GAS ROOM WHERE THOUSANDS WENT TO DEATH RESEMBLED A SHOWER ROOM WITH SPRAYS ON THE CEILING. PERSONS CONDEMNED TO DEATH WERE TOLD THEY WERE TO TAKE A BATH BUT GAS, INSTEAD OF WATER, CAME FROM THE SPRAYS ABOVE.

ORNSTEIN SAID THE GERMANS RIGGED UP A DUMMY CAMERA IN THE EXECUTION ROOM AND TOLD 200 PRISONERS THEY WERE TO BE PHOTOGRAPHED. AFTER FACING THE CAMERA, THEY TURNED THEIR BACKS AND WERE SHOT IN THE NECK BY AN SS OFFICER.

ORNSTEIN SAID HE RECALLED ONE PRISONER STANDING BEFORE THE FAKE CAMERA ANGRILY PROTESTING, "IAM AN AMERICAN OFFICER. WHY SHOULD I BE EXECUTED?" AFTER EACH MAN WAS SHO, ORNSTEIN, WHO WATCHED FROM A SMALL HOLE IN THE DOOR, REMOVED THE BODY.

ORNSTEIN SAID OFTEN DISTINGUISHED NAZI VISITORS WITNESSED EXECUTIONS AND MANY TIMES PRISONERS WERE TURNED INTO A YARD WHERE SS MEN PRACTICED ON "MOVING TARGETS" FROM THE WINDOW OF A "BUNKER."

ZEIREISS SAID IN A DEATHBED STATEMENT TO ALLIED OFFICIALS THAT 65,000 MEN AND WOMEN HAD BEEN KILLED AT MAUTHAUSENAND THE NEARBY CAMP AT GUSEN SINCE 1939, BUT ORNSTEIN SAID THERE WERE "HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS." ZEIREISS' STATEMENT ALSO SAID SOME PERSONS WERE KILLED BY DOCTORS WHO REMOVED PORTIONS OF THEIR BRAIN AND OTHERS BY INJECTING GASOLINE INTO THEIR VEINS. IT ADDED THE GAS CHAMBER AT MAUTHAUSEN WAS BUILT UPON ORDERS OF OBERGRUPPENFUEHRER GLUECK BECAUSE HE BELIEVED "GASSING OF HUMAN BEINGS IS MORE HUMANE AND CULTURAL THAN SHOOTING."

ZEIREISS ALSO SAID THAT IN DECEMBER, 1943, 6,000 WOMEN AND CHILDREN WERE SENT TO HIM IN COAL TRUCKS WITHOUT ANY PROTECTION AGAINST THE COLD AND WITHOUT FOOD. THESE HE SENT AFOOT TO OTHER POINTS IN AUSTRIA AND ALL WERE BELIEVED TO HAVE DIED.

ZEIREISS DID NOT MENTION EXECUTION OF MORTON AND HIS COMPANIONS BUT SAID THEY WERE TAKEN LATER TO DACHAU. THERE WAS NOTHING TO BEAR OUT THIS ASSERTION, HOWEVER.

A95 ADD LINZ, ROME MORTON XXX AIRFIELD

MORTON WROTE A SHORT STORY ABOUT THE EVACUATED FLIERS AND SENT IT BACK WITH THE PLANES, WHICH LEFT ABOUT A HALF HOUR AFTER LANDING. MORTON THEN REMAINED IN BANSKA BYSTRICA WITH THE RESCUE MISSION.

THE GERMANS WERE COUNTERATTACKING HEAVILY AGAINST CZECHOSLOVAK FORCES AT THE TIME AND THE FRONT WAS COLLAPSING. THE PARTY MOVED TO BREZNO BECAUSE OF THE THREATENING SITUATION, BUT RETURNED TO BANSKA BYSTRICA ABOUT A WEEK LATER.

THE TOWN OF ABOUT 25,000 INHABITANTS, NESTLING IN A VALLEY, WAS HEAVILY BOMBED BY GERMAN STUKAS OCT. 20, AND FIVE DAYS LATER THE GROUP MOVED TO DONLAVY. THE GERMAN ADVANCE WAS SO SWIFT, HOWEVER, THAT THE GROUP DECIDED TO WITHDRAW INTO THE LOWER TATRA MOUNTAINS AND HEAD FOR THE RUSSIAN LINES, REPORTED TO BE ONLY FIVE DAYS AWAY.

THROUGH AN ALMOST CONTINUOUS RAIN AND SLEET THE PARTY MOVED UP INTO THE MOUNTAINS.

ON OCT. 31 MORTON AND THE OTHERS WERE IN THE BRASIVA REGION AND JOINED WITH CZECHOSLOVAK PATRIOTS IN A MARCH TOWARD THE RUSSIAN LINES. ACCORDING TO THE SURVIVORS OF THAT MARCH ALMOST EVERYONE WAS SUFFERING FROM FROSTBITTEN FEET, BUT PUSHED DOGGEDLY AHEAD FOR 15 HOURS THAT DAY.

MORTON NARROWLY ESCAPED SERIOUS INJURY WHEN A SMALL LANDSLIDE ROARED PAST THE PARTY.

DURING THIS TREK, MORTON NEVER LOST HIS FAITH THAT EVENTUALLY THE PARTY WOULD REACH SAFETY. HE HELPED RAISE THE MORALE OF THE ENTIRE GROUP, SAID ONE OF ITS MEMBERS WHO CANNOT YET BE NAMED.

SOME FLIERS IN THE PARTY WERE SUFFERING FROM INFLUENZA AND ALL MEMBERS WERE SUFFERING PAIN FROM FROSTBITTEN AND FROZEN FEET. THERE WAS ALMOST NO FOOD. EIGHTY-THREE MEMBERS OF THE PARTISAN GROUP WITH WHICH THE PARTY TRAVELLED THE FIRST 15 DAYS IN NOVEMBER FROZE TO DEATH. THREE MEMBERS OF THE ALLIED GROUP WERE CAPTURED BY GERMAN PATROLS.

ON NOV. 30 THE ALLIED PERSONNEL WERE ATTACKED BY GERMANS WHILE RESTING IN A MINING CAMP NEAR DOLNIA LEHOTA. MORTON AND THE REST MANAGED TO ESCAPE AND SET OFF IMMEDIATELY FOR POLOMKA.

ON THE FOLLOWING DAY THEY REACHED THE VILLAGE OF MYTO, AND STAYED THERE UNTIL DEC. 12. THEY REACHED A SHACK NEAR POLOMKA DEC. 14 AND REMAINED THERE TO RECOVER THEIR STRENGTH.

ON CHRISTMAS EVE THERE WAS A SMALL CHRISTMAS PARTY IN THE SHACK, WHICH WAS DECORATED WITH AMERICAN AND BRITISH FLAGS. MEMBERS OF THE GROUP OBSERVED TWO MINUTES OF SILENCE FOR MISSING MEMBERS.

JUL 10 1945

A96

ON DEC. 26 THE SHACK WAS FIRED UPON FROM ALL SIDES BY A LARGE GROUP OF GERMAN TROOPS, UKRAINIAN SOLDIERS OF LT. GEN. ANDREI A.VLASSOV AND SLOVAKIAN HLINKA GUARDISTS.

MORTON AND ALL THE OTHERS IN THE SHACK WERE CAPTURED WITH THE EXCEPTION OF A SLOVAK PARTISAN WHO DIVED THROUGH A WINDOW AND WATCHED THE SUBSEQUENT DEVELOPMENTS FROM WOODS NEARBY.

THE MEN IN THE SHACK WERE DRESSING AT THE TIME OF ATTACK AND EVERYONE TOOK COVER IN ONE CORNER OF THE ROOM.

WHEN THE GERMANS ENTERED THE HUT THEY GAVE THE GROUP 10 MINUTES TO DRESS. ALL MEMBERS OF THE GROUP WERE WEARING UNIFORMS AT THE TIME OF THE CAPTURE. THE GERMANS BURNED THE SHACK.

THE PARTY WAS TAKEN TO BRATISLAVA, AND LATER TO AUSTRIA AND MAUTHAUSEN. THERE THE TRAIL IS NOT SO CLEAR, AS THE SS (ELITE GUARD) MADE EVERY EFFORT TO OBLITERATE IT. THERE IS NO RECORD OF THEIR ENTRY THERE NOR OF THE DISPOSITION OF THEIR CASES.

ZUTTER SAID HE AND ALL OTHER DEPARTMENT EXECUTIVES IN THE CAMP WERE ORDERED TO BURN SECRET DOCUMENTS BEFORE THE ARRIVAL OF THE AMERICAN ARMIES. THERE CERTAINLY WAS NOT EVEN THE PRETENSE OF A TRIAL.

THE INTERPRETER NOW IN CUSTODY SAID HE WENT TO MAUTHAUSEN FROM BERLIN WITH TWO GERMAN AGENTS AND STARTED INTERROGATION OF THE GROUP JAN. 7. HE SAID HE REMEMBERED MORTON WELL BECAUSE OF HIS INSISTENCE THAT HE WAS A REPORTER.

ZEIREISS IN HIS DEATHBED STATEMENT ALSO MENTIONED BRIEFLY EXAMINATION OF THE GROUP.

HE SAID SOME MEMBERS OF THE PARTY WERE BEATEN ON ORDER OF ONE OF HIS UNDERLINGS AND THAT SLIVERS WERE PUSHED UNDER THE FINGERNAILS

30.24-28263

OF OTHERS IN AN EFFORT TO MAKE THEM TALK.
ZEIREISS DECLARED HE HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH THIS TORTURE AND HE DID NOT MENTION EXECUTION OF THE GROUP, ASSERTING THEY WERE TAKEN LATER TO DACHAU. THERE WAS NOTHING TO BEAR OUT THIS ASSERTION, HOWEVER.

LINZ, AUSTRIA--FIRST ADD MORTON (BY HEINZERLING) XXX HOWEVER.
THE INTERPRETER, WHO MUST REMAIN UNIDENTIFIED AT THIS STAGE OF THE INVESTIGATION, SAID HE RETURNED TO BERLIN AFTER THE FIRST INTERROGATION, BUT WAS SENT BACK AFTER A WEEK TO GET MORE INFORMATION.
ON THE SECOND DAY OF HIS NEW VISIT TO MAUTHAUSEN THE INTERROGATION HAD NOT BEEN COMPLETED, HE SAID, AND HE WAS SUMMONED TO HEADQUARTERS WHERE MEMBERS OF THE GROUP WERE HELD. THE INVESTIGATOR SAID THE SS GUARDS WERE BUSTLING AROUND IN CONFUSION.
THE INTERPRETER SAID HE WAS CALLED INTO AN ANTEROOM WHERE ZEIREISS WAS TRYING TO GET ONE MEMBER OF MORTON'S GROUP TO SIGN A BLANK PIECE OF PAPER HELD UNDER A HALF SHEET ON WHICH THERE WAS TYPING.
THE INTERPRETER SAID THE TYPEWRITTEN SHEET READ ABOUT AS FOLLOWS:
"I HAVE BEEN INFORMED THAT I AM BEING TRANSFERRED TO A PRISONER OF WAR CAMP AND THAT IF I TRY TO ESCAPE GUARDS HAVE BEEN INSTRUCTED TO USE THEIR WEAPONS."
THE COMMANDANT APPARENTLY WANTED TO GET THE SIGNATURES OF ALL THE MEMBERS OF THE GROUP ON THE BLANK SHEETS, UPON WHICH HE COULD WRITE ANYTHING HE PLEASED LATER. THESE BLANK SHEETS FINALLY WERE SIGNED BY ALL THE MEMBERS UNDER PROTEST.
AT THE SAME TIME AN SS DOCTOR WAS PRETENDING TO MAKE AN EXAMINATION OF ALL THE MEN IN ANOTHER ROOM. THE PRISONERS WERE TOLD TO REMOVE THEIR UNIFORMS AND PUT ON PRISON UNIFORMS. THEY THEN WERE LINED UP AND MARCHED OUT, ACCOMPANIED BY ZEIREISS AND FOUR OTHER SS OFFICERS.
THE INTERPRETER SAID HE SAW THE MEN, INCLUDING MORTON, BEING MARCHED IN THE DIRECTION OF A DOOR LEADING TO THE EXECUTION CHAMBER IN THE BASEMENT OF A LONG STONE BUILDING AND SENSED SOMETHING WAS WRONG.
ONE OF THE INTERROGATORS "THEN TOLD ME," HE SAID, "THAT ALL WOULD BE EXECUTED RIGHT THEN." HE SAID ZEIREISS HAD RECEIVED A TELEGRAM ORDERING THEIR EXECUTION.
THE INTERPRETER SAID THE INTERROGATOR TOLD HIM "THEY WILL DIE AN EASIER DEATH THAN ANYONE COULD WISH FOR."
THE INTERROGATOR SAID THE PRISONERS WERE NOT INFORMED OF THEIR FATE AND THAT ZEIREISS LATER LAUGHED AND SAID:
"I AM GLAD TO BE RID OF THEM. THEY WERE HERE TOO LONG. I NEED THE CELLS AND I NEED SOME OF THEIR THINGS FOR MY MEN, ESPECIALLY SHOES."

A117
ADJUTANT ZUTTER, WHO ALSO IS IN ALLIED CUSTODY, SAID THE TELEGRAM ORDERING THE EXECUTION WENT OVER HIS DESK AND THAT IT WAS SIGNED "KALTENBRUNNER."
SEVERAL DAYS LATER, ZUTTER SAID, AN SS MAN BROUGHT INTO HIS OFFICE A NUMBER OF BLANK SHEETS OF PAPER WITH NAMES ON THE LOWER RIGHT HAND CORNER WRITTEN WITH PENCIL AND TOLD HIM TO GUARD THEM.
ZUTTER SAYS HE REMEMBERS DISTINCTLY THE NAME "MORTON" BECAUSE THE LETTER "M" WAS WRITTEN SO DIFFERENTLY THAN IN GERMAN SCRIPT. HE ALSO CORRECTLY REMEMBERED TWO OTHER NAMES WITH ANGLICIZED FORMS OF GERMAN NAMES. BOTH WERE MEMBERS OF THE GROUP.
ZUTTER, WHOSE JOB WAS CHIEFLY ADMINISTRATION OF THE CAMP, SAID HE SAW THE MEMBERS OF THE GROUP ONLY ONCE--THE DAY THEY ARRIVED. ALL WERE UNSHAVEN, DIRTY AND DUSTY AFTER THE LONG TRIP. HE COULD NOT IDENTIFY THE PICTURES OF ANY OF THEM.
THE CELLBLOCK WHERE MORTON AND OTHER MEMBERS OF THE GROUP WERE HELD AT MAUTHAUSEN IS CALLED "THE BUNKER." ON THE MAIN FLOOR ARE SOME 40 CELLS WHERE THE MOST IMPORTANT PRISONERS WERE HELD DURING INTERROGATION.
IN THE BASEMENT ARE EXECUTION ROOMS, INCLUDING A GAS CHAMBER, AND THREE INCINERATING FURNACES.
IN THESE FURNACES DURING THE LAST THREE WEEKS OF THE WAR MORE THAN 500 BODIES WERE BURNED DAILY, INMATES OF THE CAMP SAID. BETWEEN THE EXECUTION CHAMBER AND THE INCINERATORS IS A COOLING ROOM WHERE THE BODIES WERE STORED.
INMATES OF THE CAMP WERE USED TO REMOVE THE BODIES AFTER EXECUTIONS, PLACING THEM IN THE COOLING ROOM UNTIL THEY WERE TAKEN TO THE INCINERATORS.
THE GAS ROOM, WHERE THOUSANDS WERE SLAIN, WAS BUILD TO RESEMBLE A SHOWER ROOM WITH SPRAYS IN THE CEILING. PERSONS CONDEMNED TO DEATH WERE TOLD THEY WERE TO TAKE A BATH AND SENT INTO THE ROOM NAKED. INSTEAD OF WATER, GAS CAME FROM THE SPRAYS ABOVE.
MORTON'S GROUP, HOWEVER, WAS SHOT TO DEATH, ACCORDING TO ORNSTEIN, WHO WAS ONE OF THOSE ASSIGNED TO THE EXECUTION ROOM.

ORNSTEIN SAID THE GROUP WAS SHOT ABOUT 4 P.M., ON JAN. 24.
IN THE EXECUTION ROOM WHERE THE SHOOTINGS WERE CARRIED OUT A DUMMY CAMERA WAS RIGGED UP. PRISONERS WERE TAKEN INTO THE ROOM WITH THE UNDERSTANDING THEY WERE TO BE PHOTOGRAPHED. AFTER FACING THE CAMERA THEY WERE TOLD TO TURN AND AN SS OFFICER THEN STEPPED UP AND SHOT EACH IN THE BACK OF THE NECK.
ORNSTEIN SAID THAT HE REMEMBERED ONE MEMBER OF THE GROUP HAD TO BE SHOT TWICE AND THAT AN SS OFFICER CAME INTO THE COOLING ROOM TO FIRE THE SECOND SHOT.
HE ALSO REMEMBERED THAT ONE OFFICER STANDING IN THE ROOM BEFORE THE FAKE CAMERA PROTESTED ANGRILY, ASSERTING: "I AM AN AMERICAN OFFICER, WHY SHOULD I BE EXECUTED?"
AFTER EACH PRISONER WAS SHOT ORNSTEIN, WATCHING FROM A SMALL PEEPHOLE IN THE DOOR, HURRIED INTO THE ROOM, REMOVED THE BODY AND SWABBED THE FLOOR.
ORNSTEIN HAD LIVED WITH DEATH SO LONG THAT HE SPOKE CALMLY ABOUT HIS DUTIES AND THE HORRIBLE EVENTS AT MAUTHAUSEN. DISTINGUISHED VISITORS, HE SAID, WERE FREQUENTLY INVITED TO WITNESS EXECUTIONS AND PRISONERS SOMETIMES WERE TURNED INTO A YARD SO SS MEN COULD PRACTICE ON "MOVING TARGETS" FROM BUNKER WINDOWS.

ZEIREISS SAID IN HIS DEATHBED STATEMENT THAT 65,000 MEN AND WOMEN WERE KILLED AT MAUTHAUSEN AND IN THE NEARBY CAMP AT GUSEN SINCE 1939, BUT ORNSTEIN PUT THE FIGURE IN THE HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS.
ZEIREISS' STATEMENT SAID SOME PRISONERS WERE KILLED BY DOCTORS WHO REMOVED PORTIONS OF THEIR BRAINS AND OTHERS BY INJECTION OF GASOLINE INTO THEIR VEINS.
ZEIREISS SAID THAT THE GAS CHAMBER AT MAUTHAUSEN WAS CONSTRUCTED ON ORDER OF OBERGRUPPENFUEHRER GLUECK "BECAUSE HE HELD THE VIEW THAT GASSING OF HUMAN BEINGS WAS MORE HUMANE AND CULTURAL THAN SHOOTING."

ZEIREISS SAID THAT IN DECEMBER, 1943, SOME 6,000 WOMEN AND CHILDREN WERE SENT TO HIM IN COAL TRUCKS WITHOUT ANY PROTECTION AGAINST THE COLD OR FOOD OR CARE OF ANY KIND. HE WAS ORDERED TO SEND THEM AFOOT TO OTHER POINTS IN AUSTRIA AND HE EXPRESSED THE BELIEF THAT ALL DIED DURING THE TRIP. OTHER PRISONERS, HE SAID, WERE FORCED TO BATHE OUTDOORS IN NEAR FREEZING WEATHER AND STAND IN THE COLD UNTIL THEY DIED.

ROME, JULY 9-(AP)-AN INVESTIGATION BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS INDICATED TODAY ALMOST BEYOND DOUBT THAT JOSEPH MORTON, 34-YEAR-OLD AP WAR CORRESPONDENT, WAS EXECUTED BY THE GERMANS ON JAN.24, 1945, AFTER HIS CAPTURE IN SLOVAKIA.

MORTON, WHOSE ENTERPRISE AND DARING WON FOR HIM A DISTINGUISHED CAREER AS A WAR REPORTER IN THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER, HAD ACCOMPANIED A MISSION OF 17 AMERICANS AND BRITISH WHO WENT TO ASSIST SLOVAK PATRIOTS IN A REVOLT LAST FALL.

THE ENTIRE GROUP WAS TAKEN PRISONER AT BANSKA BYSTRICA IN CENTRAL SLOVAKIA, 125 MILES NORTH OF BUDAPEST, AND APPARENTLY NEARLY ALL WERE KILLED.

LYNN HEINZERLING, VETERAN ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WHO HAD WORKED WITH MORTON, WENT INTO SLOVAKIA SEVERAL WEEKS AGO IN AN EFFORT TO DETERMINE MORTON'S FATE.

HEINZERLING SAID UPON HIS RETURN HERE THAT HE WAS SATISFIED FROM QUESTIONING GERMAN OFFICIALS AND GUARDS THAT MORTON WAS EXECUTED AT A NAZI CONCENTRATION CAMP AT MAUHAUSEN, A SMALL AUSTRIAN TOWN ON THE DANUBE TEN MILES SOUTHEAST OF LINZ. HE WAS TOLD THAT THE BODY HAD BEEN CREMATED.

THE FULL STORY OF HEINZERLING'S TRIP AND HIS FINDINGS IS BEING REVIEWED BY CENSORSHIP, SINCE IT CONCERNS WAR CRIMES INVESTIGATIONS.

IT WAS RECALLED THAT A GERMAN BROADCAST LAST JAN.24 ANNOUNCED THAT 18 "BRITISH AND AMERICAN SECRET AGENTS" WERE CAPTURED BEHIND GERMAN LINES IN SLOVAKIA, SENTENCED TO DEATH BY A MILITARY TRIBUNAL AND EXECUTED BY SHOOTING.

THE BROADCAST ASSERTED THE GROUP HAD BEEN "GIVEN THE TASK OF ORGANIZING SABOTAGE IN SLOVAKIA.

--DASH--

A DELAYED DISPATCH FROM ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT A.I. GOLDBERG IN BRATISLAVA SAID DR. JOSEPH LETTRIC, CO-PRESIDENT OF SLOVAKIA, WHOM MORTON INTERVIEWED AT BANSKA BYSTRICA AT THE HEIGHT OF THE SLOVAK UPRISING, HAD A SLOVAK NEWSPAPER CLIPPING QUOTING A BERLIN DISPATCH ON THE CAPTURE.

THE DISPATCH SAID THE MEN WERE CAUGHT WEARING CIVILIAN CLOTHING, BUT LETTRIC DECLARED THAT MORTON ALWAYS WORE HIS AMERICAN UNIFORM WITH WAR CORRESPONDENT'S INSIGNIA.

A47

LETTRIC DECLARED MORTON'S DEATH WAS "A BRUTAL ASSASSINATION."

LETTRIC ADDED THAT SLOVAKIAN GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS WERE PLANNING TO ERECT A MEMORIAL TO MORTON, WHOM HE DESCRIBED AS "A REPRESENTATIVE SOLDIER AND NEWSPAPERMAN, A DARING MAN, A GREAT DEMOCRAT, AND THE SON OF A GREAT FREE NATION. WE SAW IN HIM ALSO A HERO."

JOHN TRACHTA, A REPORTER FOR THE NARODNA OBRODA, INDEPENDENT GOVERNMENT NEWSPAPER, WHO WAS IN THE UPRISING CENTER AS CHIEF OF THE SLOVAK NEWS AGENCY, SAID HE HAD LAST SEEN MORTON ON OCT.27.

HE ASKED MORTON TO ACCOMPANY HIM WITH THE PATRIOT ARMY, WITH WHICH TRACHTA WAS LEAVING, BUT THAT MORTON REPLIED HE "WOULD TRY TO MAKE IT TO ZOLLEN AND FLY OUT."

JULIUS SFRANEK, EDITOR OF PRAVDA, COMMUNIST PARTY NEWSPAPER IN BRATISLAVA, SAID HE WAS THE LAST PERSON TO SEE MORTON ALIVE IN THE BANSKA DISTRICT, AND THAT HE WAS CONVINCED HE WAS DEAD.

MORTON JOINED THE ASSOCIATED PRESS AT LINCOLN, NEBR., EIGHT YEARS AGO. HE WORKED IN AP BUREAUS IN LINCOLN, OMAHA, CLEVELAND AND NEW YORK, AND WENT ABROAD IN MAY, 1942.

AMONG HIS SPECTACULAR ACHIEVEMENTS WERE REACHING BUCHAREST TO WITNESS THE ARRIVAL OF THE RED ARMY, AND THE OBTAINING OF AN EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW WITH KING MIHAI ON SEPT.7, 1944.

A FEW MONTHS BEFORE HE HAD MADE JOURNALISTIC HISTORY WITH AN INTERVIEW WITH MARSHAL TITO, OBTAINED BY SENDING TITO A SERIES OF QUESTIONS TO WHICH THE MARSHAL REPLIED TO THE EXTENT OF 1,600 WORDS. THE STORY WAS DELAYED BY CENSORSHIP, AND THE EFFORTS TO OBTAIN ITS RELEASE SERVED TO SPOTLIGHT CENSORSHIP PROBLEMS. IT BROUGHT ASSURANCES FROM PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT THAT THERE WOULD BE NO POLITICAL CENSORSHIP.

SURVIVING MORTON ARE HIS WIFE, LETTY, AND AN 11-MONTH-OLD DAUGHTER, MELINDA ANN, BORN SEVERAL MONTHS AFTER MORTON'S LAST DEPARTURE FROM THE UNITED STATES. THEY ARE IN ST. JOSEPH, MO., MORTON'S BIRTHPLACE.

BRATISLAVA, SLOVAKIA, JUNE 22-(DELAYED)-(AP)-SLOVAKIAN GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS SAID TODAY THAT THEY WERE PLANNING TO ERECT A MEMORIAL TO ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT JOSEPH MORTON, WHO WAS CAPTURED AND KILLED BY THE GERMANS WHILE REPORTING THE SLOVAK PARTISAN UPRISING IN THE BANSKA DISTRICT LAST AUTUMN.

DR.JOSEPH LETTRIC, CO-PRESIDENT OF SLOVAKIA REPRESENTING THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY WHOM MORTON INTERVIEWED AT BANSKA BYSTRICA DURING THE HEIGHT OF THE UPRISING LAST OCTOBER, SAID THAT MORTON'S DEATH "WAS A BRUTAL ASSASSINATION."

SPEAKING AT A DINNER AT THE HOTEL SAVOY CARLTON HONORING THE FIRST TWO AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS TO REACH THE SLOVAKIAN CAPITAL IN SIX YEARS, LETTRIC DECLARED:

"IN THE PERSON OF JOE MORTON, A REPRESENTATIVE SOLDIER AND NEWSPAPERMAN, WE MET A DARING MAN, A GREAT DEMOCRAT AND THE SON OF A GREAT FREE NATION. WE SAW IN HIM ALSO A HERO.

"THE SLOVAK NATION WILL CONSIDER IT ITS DUTY TO COMMEMORATE THE BRAVERY OF SUCH SOLDIERS WHO LOST THEIR LIVES IN OUR CAUSE."

JOHN TRACHTA, A REPORTER FOR THE NARODNA OBRODA, INDEPENDENT GOVERNMENT NEWSPAPER, WHO WAS IN THE UPRISING CENTER AS CHIEF OF THE SLOVAK NEWS AGENCY, SAID THAT HE HAD LAST SEEN MORTON ON OCT. 27. HE SAID HE WAS LEAVING WITH THE PATRIOT ARMY AND HAD ASKED MORTON TO ACCOMPANY HIM. "HIS LAST STATEMENT," TRACHTA SAID, WAS THAT HE WOULD TRY TO MAKE IT TO ZOLLEN AND FLY OUT."

JULIUS SFRANEK, EDITOR OF PRAVDA, THE COMMUNIST PARTY NEWSPAPER HERE, SAID THAT HE WAS THE LAST PERSON TO SEE MORTON ALIVE IN THE BANSKA DISTRICT AND THAT HE WAS CONVINCED MORTON WAS NO LONGER LIVING.

HE ADDED THAT HE HAD LAST SEEN MORTON AT A PARTY WHICH INCLUDED A RUSSIAN CAPTAIN FROM THE SOVIET INFORMATION BUREAU "WHO WAS

30.24-28265

INSISTING MORTON FLY WITH HIM TO MOSCOW TO VISIT ILYA EHRENBURG (RUSSIA'S OUTSTANDING NEWSPAPERMAN)."

"MORTON TOLD ME HE HAD WRITTEN A NUMBER OF STORIES ABOUT THE SLOVAKIAN UPRISING," SFRANEK SAID, "AND ALTHOUGH I KNEW WE GOT A COUPLE OF PLANES OUT I AM NOT SURE WHETHER HE EVER GOT HIS STORIES OUT.

"I SAW HIM LAST JUST BEFORE I LEFT WITH THE PARTISAN GROUP FOR THE NASHITALNI MOUNTAINS WHERE LATER I HEARD HE WAS CAPTURED."

A107 JUL 10 1945

LETTRIC EXHIBITED A CLIPPING FROM "SLOVAK," A TISO NEWSPAPER, DATED LAST JAN. 25. THE NEWSPAPER QUOTED A BERLIN DISPATCH AS SAYING THAT 18 BRITONS AND AMERICANS CAPTURED IN BANSKA BYSTRICA IN OCTOBER HAD BEEN TAKEN TO GERMANY, TRIED AS SPIES AND SHOT. THE DISPATCH SAID THE MEN WERE CAUGHT WEARING CIVILIAN CLOTHING.

LETTRIC STATED, HOWEVER, THAT MORTON ALWAYS WORE HIS AMERICAN UNIFORM WITH WAR CORRESPONDENT INSIGNIA.

MORTON WENT TO THE MOUNTAIN AREA WITH 17 BRITISH AND AMERICAN MEMBERS OF A MILITARY MISSION WHICH WENT IN TO AID PATRIOTS IN A REVOLT THAT KEPT THE GERMANS MARKING TIME FOR TWO MONTHS WHILE THE RUSSIANS PUSHED WESTWARD.

GUAM,TUESDAY,JULY 10-(AP)-THIRD FLEET CARRIER PLANES STRIKING TOKYO TODAY ADMITTEDLY CAN HIT WITH A MORE DEADLY CONCENTRATION OF POWER ON SMALL, CRUCIAL TARGETS THAN CAN LAND-BASED IWO JIMA MUSTANGS OR EVEN THE MARIANAS-BASED, STRATEGIC-BOMBING SUPERFORTRESSES.

CARRIER PLANES CAN RETURN TIME AFTER TIME TO SEARCH OUT CONCEALED TARGETS OR PARKED, CAMOUFLAGED AIRCRAFT--WHILE MUSTANGS MAKING A 1,500-MILE ROUND TRIP CAN STAY OVER THE TARGET ONLY A SHORT TIME.

POSSIBLE BECAUSE OF THIS ADVANTAGE, CARRIER PLANES HITTING TOKYO LAST FEBRUARY SHOT 397 ENEMY PLANES FROM THE AIR, DESTROYED 288 AGROUND AND DAMAGED 225 OTHERS. THEY SANK 19 SHIPS INCLUDING AN ESCORT CARRIER, AND NOT ONE AMERICAN SHIP WAS HIT.

WITH THE U.S.21ST BOMBER COMMAND,GUAM,JULY 9 (AP)-IN A MASSIVE ACCELERATION OF THE AIR WAR AGAINST JAPAN, MAJ.GEN.CURTIS E.LEMAY'S MARIANAS-BASED SUPERFORTRESSES SMASHED TARGETS WITH AT LEAST 42,250 TONS OF FIRE AND DEMOLITION BOMBS AND FLEW 6,500 INDIVIDUAL SORTIES THROUGH JUNE AND THE FIRST DAYS OF JULY.

SIXTY-NINE MISSIONS WERE FLOWN IN THE 39-DAY PERIOD, INCLUDING 27 FIRE RAIDS AGAINST JAPANESE INDUSTRIAL CITIES.

WITH DAMAGE YET TO BE ASSESSED IN FOUR CITIES, 36,297 ADDITIONAL SQUARE MILES OF URBAN AND INDUSTRIAL AREAS WERE BURNED OUT, BRINGING TO 130,342 SQUARE MILES THE TOTAL DESTROYED JAPANESE BUILT-UP INDUSTRIAL SECTORS.

THIRTY-FIVE WAR INDUSTRY AND OIL PLANTS WERE HIT WITH DEMOLITION BOMBS AS THE WEIGHT OF THE SUPERFORTS WAS SHIFTED FROM TOKYO AND OTHER MAJOR CITIES TO JAPAN'S LESS POPULATED CENTERS AND DISPERSED WAR PLANTS.

THIRTY-NINE B-29S WERE LOST, A LOSS RATIO BARELY MORE THAN ONE HALF PER CENT IN THE TREMENDOUSLY STEPPED UP BOMBING ASSAULTS BEGINNING THE FULFILLMENT OF GEN.H.H.ARNOLD'S PROMISE THAT 2,000,000 TONS OF BOMBS WOULD BE DROPPED ON JAPAN IN THE YEAR STARTING THE FIRST OF THIS MONTH IF THE JAPANESE PERSIST IN WAR.

B-29 MINING OPERATIONS--PARTICULARLY SIGNIFICANT IN TIGHTENING THE BLOCKADE OF JAPAN'S SORELY NEEDED WAR SUPPLIES AND FOOD FROM THE ASIATIC MAINLAND--INCREASED WITH 12 MINING MISSIONS IN JUNE AND TWO MORE THUS FAR IN JULY.

JUL 10 1945

DURING JUNE THE SUPERFORTS FLEW 426.6 PER CENT OF ALL DEMOLITION ATTACKS MADE AGAINST JAPAN SINCE THE FIRST TOKYO STRIKE NOV. 24, 1944. OF THE TOTAL OF FIRE RAIDS ON JAPAN SINCE THE B-29S STARTED HITTING JAPAN, 51.7 PER CENT WERE FLOWN IN JUNE.

IN SPREADING INCENDIARY DESTRUCTION OVER 30 JAPANESE CITIES THROUGH JULY, MORE THAN HALF THE TOTAL BOMB LOAD CARRIED TO JAPAN BY B-29S HAVE BEEN FIREBOMBS.

IN JUNE, B-29 GUNNERS SHOT DOWN 138 JAPANESE PLANES, BRINGING THE TOTAL THROUGH JUNE 30 TO 752.

THROUGH JULY 9, THE GRAND TOTAL OF SUPERFORT MISSIONS WAS 241. OF THESE, 41 WERE INCENDIARY RAIDS AGAINST CITIES AND FOUR WERE DEMOLITION ATTACKS ON URBAN INDUSTRIAL AREAS. SIXTY-THREE WERE DEMOLITION ATTACKS ON INDIVIDUAL AND MILITARY TARGETS, 31 WERE MINING MISSIONS AND 102 WERE STRIKES ON AIRFIELDS.

ON JULY 2 AND 4, FLEETS TOTALING NEARLY 600 PLANES WERE EMPLOYED--LARGEST B-29 FORCE SENT THUS FAR AGAINST JAPAN SIMULTANEOUSLY.

IN THE JUNE 5 FIRE BOMBING RAID OF THE MAJOR SEAPORT CITY OF KOBE, SUPERFORTS MET THEIR LAST MAJOR FIGHTER OPPOSITION. IN THE FIERCE AERIAL BATTLE 86 JAPANESE FIGHTERS WERE SHOT DOWN AND 31 WERE PROBABLY DOWNED. EIGHT SUPERFORTS WERE LOST.

A147KX

IN THE FIRST SIMULTANEOUS FIREBOMBING OF SECONDARY CITIES, KAGOSHIMA, OMUTA, HAMATSU AND YOKKAICHI WERE HIT JUNE 18.

SEVENTEEN OF THE INDUSTRIAL TARGETS HIT IN JUNE WERE AIRCRAFT PLANTS. MOST SUCCESSFUL JOBS WERE THE 96.1 PER CENT DESTRUCTION OF THE KAWANISHI AIRCRAFT PLANT AT HIMEJI AND 95.7 PER CENT DESTRUCTION OF THE AICHI AIRCRAFT WORKS ATSUTA PLANT IN SINGLE STRIKES.

152 Japanese Planes Destroyed By Navy Bombers in Tokyo Raid; Nip Air Force Goes into Hiding

JUL 11 1945

FEW NIP PLANES TAKE TO AIR AS YANKS ROAM SKY

Japanese Refuse to Accept Challenge, Offer Only Ackack Opposition.

SHIPS ARE SUNK

Two Enemy Planes Shot Down Near Mighty American Third Fleet.

By LEIF ERICKSON

GUAM, Wednesday, July 11—(AP) The Japanese air force refused to put up anything resembling a real fight over Tokyo Tuesday as more than 1,000 carrier planes of the massive U. S. third fleet destroyed or damaged 152 enemy planes on the ground and shot down two snoopers near the fleet, fragmentary reports disclosed today.

Whether Adm. William F. (Bull) Halsey's world's largest task force stuck around today for another strike was not made clear but even the first preliminary accounts left no doubt that the enemy air force assigned to defend the homeland was in hiding.

It obviously has been driven there by a week of strikes by Iwo-based Army Mustangs, scores of which destroyed or damaged 19 enemy planes yesterday at Honshu's port city of Kobe while the carrier Hellcats, Helldivers and Avengers were roaming the Kanto plains around Tokyo to the northeast looking for targets.

Only one of the 19 was bagged in the air by the Mustangs and the first reports of the powerful carrier plane blow at Tokyo did not so much as list a single enemy interceptor shot down.

Weak Opposition

The air opposition to Vice Adm. John S. McCain's carrier raiders was so weak during the first hours that undoubtedly they returned in repeated strikes to search for camouflaged aircraft and enemy hiding places. What they found remains to be told.

Even with the 19 Mustang victims added, for a total Tuesday preliminary bag of 173 Nip aircraft, the biggest question was: where is the Japanese air force?

While the carrier planes looked around for Tokyo's defenders, the Mustangs over Kobe had to turn to enemy shipping in the inland sea to keep occupied.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, who shattered precedents in yesterday's communique by not only saying the carrier attack was going on "at the present time" but also named some of the battleships and carriers, spoke only in the past tense today.

A Tokyo radio commentator made the pointed observation that a previous such carrier strike last February was followed by the invasion of Iwo Jima.

Nimitz said 72 planes were destroyed on the ground and 80 more were damaged during the first hours of the attack.

Reports remained to be tabulated for later in the day.

By noon Tuesday—seven hours after the attacks opened—there had been no determined enemy resistance in the air.

Preliminary Reports

The Navy made it clear that the achievements were far from chronicles, being based on admittedly "preliminary reports" of the biggest fleet stroke of the war against Nippon.

Nimitz emphasized that the raiding Third Fleet of Adm. William F. (Bull) Halsey, which included some of the biggest carriers and at least four battleships, had the advantage of "complete tactical surprise."

At the same time the fleet admiral disclosed that control of Army-based planes in the Ryukyus has passed into the hands of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

That vaults MacArthur's base of air operations within 325 miles of Japan and more than 1,000 miles above Manila.

Carrier and land based planes, totalling more than 1,500—they included a huge force of B-29s—roared over the enemy homeland Tuesday to give the war-battered country its heaviest day of aerial drubbing.

Sink Surface Craft

Nimitz reported that fleet search planes, which remain under the admiral's command, sank or damaged six small enemy surface craft Monday off Honshu, main island of Japan, and Korea. MacArthur in his communique had listed 10 enemy vessels sunk or damaged in strikes extending from Formosa to Java.

Fleet air wing 18 planes, based in the Okinawa area, have sunk 50,000 tons of enemy shipping and damaged 57,000 tons since beginning operations in April over enemy home waters, Nimitz said. Fourth Marine air craft wing planes have sunk 5,000 tons and damaged 50,000.

The admiral reported that on the day of the carrier and Superfort strike at Japan, Liberator bombers of the Tactical Air Force, based on Okinawa, struck Kikai island in the northern Ryukyus.

The day before, "a substantial force" of the Liberators bombed Omura airfield on Kyushu, southern Japan, and started several large fires.

Search planes bombed two phosphate plants on southern Korea Monday.

The fleet hitting Japan was called the "greatest mobile striking force" of history.

A naval spokesman who described the mighty force in Washington said the attack followed the usual pattern of softening up the Japanese as a prelude to further blows.

He announced the assault was the 53rd large scale attack by fast Pacific fleet carrier task forces on enemy aircraft and shipping installations since Jan. 1, 1944.

Not a Japanese plane had been sighted by Adm. William F. Halsey's trouble-hunting ships six hours after the carrier planes started their surprise assault.

(Japanese imperial headquarters issued a communique through Tokyo radio saying that from 5 a. m. to 1 p. m. Tuesday—4 p. m. to midnight Monday, U. S. eastern war time—about 800 of the carrier planes had been counted. But there was no hint of counter action).

Steam Contemptuously Close

The carriers, protected by battleships, cruisers and destroyers, steamed contemptuously close to Japan's main island of Honshu, Associated Press Correspondent James Lindley reported from one of the vessels.

He said the first planes took off from Vice Adm. John S. McCain's carriers, part of Halsey's fleet, at 4 a. m. and that up to 10 a. m. no Japanese planes or ships had come out to resist the bold attack.

Preliminary reports of returning fighter, dive bomber and torpedo bomber pilots indicated the Japaness were not even putting many intercepting planes into the air over the target area.

Lt. Comdr. Cliff McDowell of Turlock, Calif., one of the first aerial observers to return to McCain's flagship, said he saw no enemy fighters in the air.

Some were seen by American plane, McDowell told Jack Mann of Mutual Broadcasting Company in a radio interview.

Similar reports were made by other flyers, who centered their attacks on Japanese airfields.

Saw No U. S. Plane Lost

Group Commander W. A. Gerald of West Newton, Mass., reported he saw no United States plane shot down.

Bombing weather over the target area was described as perfect by Lindley. He said the area, enclosing between 72 and 80 airdromes ,extended about 40 by 60 miles northeast and south of Tokyo.

The carrier plane raid, the first on the Tokyo region since last February, folowed by a few hours a Tuesday before-dawn attack by about 550 Marianas-based American B-29s on five Nippon mainland cities.

Some of the American Navy's biggest ships were in the striking task force almost within sight of Honshu. The Japanese were told by radio, even while the warplanes were leaving McCain's carriers, that the big, prime targets were out there.

Japan Ignores Taunt

This precedent-breaking invitation to battle was issued by Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz in a communique from his Guam Pacific Fleet headquarters.

Nimitz announced that the first of the attacking aircraft caught the Japanese completely by surprise. His communique, which declared the raid was still going on "at the present time," was released around 10 a. m., Guam time (9 a. m. Tuesday, Japanese time and 8 p. m. Monday, U. S. eastern war time.)

Instead of withholding the names of the attacking ships, which has been the practice, he announced that the super-battleship Iowa was among them—offered as bait for any itching Japanese Kamikaze flyer or naval gunner.

The communique also named the battleships Indiana, Massachusetts and South Dakota; the carriers Lexington, Essex, Independence and San Jacinto and several cruisers and destroyers.

Those named were but a part of the attacking force.

Still No Jap Opposition as 1000-plane Attack Passes Eleventh Hour.

80 AIRFIELDS PRIME TARGETS

Enemy Caught Completely Off Guard—Attack Follows Big B-29 Assault.

Guam, July 10 (A. P.).—Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey, who returned to the western Pacific with his powerful Third Fleet to "knock hell out of the Japs," was doing just that today with a thousand-plane raid on Tokyo.

DAY

The tremendous concentration of striking power was launched from Vice-Admiral John S. McCain's fast carrier task force—part of the Third Fleet—which steamed practically to Tokyo's doorsteps under cover of darkness and co-ordinated supporting air attacks, caught the Japs off guard and achieved complete surprise.

[The National Broadcasting Company's Joseph Hainline in a broadcast direct from naval task force reported that up until 5 A. M. Eastern war time today "not a single Jap plane" had challenged our attacking air forces over Japan. Thus, the big attack on the Japanese mainland was continuing for at least eleven hours because the first planes ranged over Tokyo at 4 P. M. Eastern war time yesterday.]

The great attack, culmination of a week end of unremitting assault on the Jap homeland, was launched at day today on the heels of a great 550-plane Superfortress fire and demolition raid against five Jap cities.

First announcement of the strike was made by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Fleet Admiral, in an unprecedented communique which named ten commanding admirals and twenty-six of the task force vessels while the attack was in progress. Vessels named by Nimitz were four carriers, four battleships, four cruisers and fourteen destroyers. To launch 1,000 planes it was evident that other carriers were along.

So completely were the Japs trapped by the strike and by neutralizing raids on southern Jap fields which preceded it, that eight hours after the first plane was launched from the carriers no Jap defending planes had been sighted by the fleet.

Norman Paige, American Broadcasting Company correspondent, talking from the bridge of one of the battleships off Tokyo, said "the men coming back give us vivid descriptions of the damage inflicted, even as other planes—wave after wave of them—take off for Tokyo just ahead of us."

80 Airfields Are Targets.

Paige listed the approximately eighty airfields in the Tokyo area and other "especially designated targets over some 2,400 square miles" as the objectives of the "hundreds upon hundreds of Corsairs, Hellcats, Avengers and planes over the Kanto area with "sizable results." The Japs, as usual, claimed their intrepid fighters took to the air to intercept the attackers, but our own pilots said the Japs were caught flatfooted again, and no air opposition whatsoever was met in the first sweeps.

Enemy installations throughout the Tokyo area attacked in today's raid felt the second fleet operation against Tokyo, the first being made by our carrier forces last February. Then, as now, the enemy was caught by surprise. Then, as now, little opposition was encountered.

Back of this operation, as in others, are months of careful planning. Today's attacks again provide conclusive evidence of the diminishing power of Japanese forces. Its surface fleet is all but destroyed. Its air power apparently is almost non-existent. The result is that our great naval forces, amply proved by today's attacks, now are able to prowl enemy waters at will, maneuvering tantalizingly close to Tokyo itself. In addition to material damage inflicted in the raids, they are calculated to have a dampening effect on the Japs, already jittery over fears of invasion of their homeland.

Within a few hours after the first sweeps Bogies were reported approaching, providing a bit of excitement with an anti-climax of clanging bells and a sharp bugle call summoning men to battle stations. They rushed topside in life jackets, helmets and flash gear and manned all guns. They scanned the skies anxiously for a glimpse of enemy planes that never materialized. In a few minutes the Bogies were identified as friendly planes and the day's first excitement was over.

Nippon Feels Full Force Of Aerial Scourge

Saturation Bombings Believed Invasion Prelude By Tokyo.

GUAM, Wednesday, July 11, (AP)—The great aerial scourge of Japan, promised by American military leaders for months, has hit invasion-distraught Nippon.

In the rising aerial campaign to bring Nippon to her knees, all branches of America's air might have teamed to throw at least 5,000 bombers and fighters against the Rising Sun homeland since July 1. The box score for the first ten days of July shows these attacks:

Superforts—2,300 in five strikes with total bomb loads approaching the 15,000-ton mark.

Other bombers—three hits from Okinawa bases, including the first by Liberators thrown into the fray from this captured island only 325 miles south of Japan-proper.

1,200 Fighters

Fighters—Some 1,200 in bombing and strafing attacks from Iwo Jima and Okinawa bases, including the first by fliers of the 5th Air Force of the MacArthur command.

Carrier aircraft—Upwards of 1,000 fighters, dive bombers and torpedo planes now engaged in raids designed to put approximately 80 Tokyo district airfields out of business.

(Tokyo newspapers indicated a belief that these saturation bombings were but a prelude to invasion. One termed the intensifying aerial assaults the "first step of aggression" and added that lack of ground action "does not lessen its meaning."

(Another Tokyo broadcast said the current carrier plane attacks indicated "an attempt to crush Japanese air power" in the Tokyo district.

Osaka-Kobe Sector Bombarded

(Going beyond official American reports Tokyo said 100 fighter-bombers from Iwo, led by several Superforts, hit military targets in the Osaka-Kobe sector. It added that 130 bombers and fighters from Okinawa lashed western Kyushu island).

No Japanese fighter opposition met the first carrier planes of Adm. William F. Halsey's Fleet as they swept in at dawn to take the Nipponese by surprise. Ack ack fire was light.

In the earlier B-29 attack, the giant bombers unloaded 3,500 tons of incendiaries and high explosives with excellent results on Sendai, Wakayama, Gifu and Saka, all industrial centers of around 200,000 population each, and on the Utsube oil refinery near Yokkaichi. Sendao, 190 miles north of Tokyo, represented the deepest B-29 penetration of Japan to date.

Fires Sweep Area

Conflagrations were sweeping the areas as the Superforts left for home. One B-29 was lost but all its crewmen were rescued.

The raids marked the dropping of the two millionth ton of bombs by Army air forces in World War 2. The mark was reached as the Superfort "Goin' Jessie" emptied her bomb bay.

(Tokyo said the B-29s hit two additional targets—Osaka, on Honshu and Kochi on Shikoku. It also claimed 10 Superforts planted mines off the west side of Honshu)

Other U. S. communiques told of these aerial strikes over the vast Pacific war theatre:

Three score Mitchell bombers, escorted by 48 Marine Corsairs, attacked Tukuno airfield in the Amami Islands Monday.

Okinawa-based Liberators and Mitchells used 200 tons of fire and demolition bombs on Omura airfield, Kyushu island, while Thunderbolt escorts shot down 10 Japanese training planes.

More than 100 heavy and medium bombers of the 5th Air Force again smashed Formosa from Philippine bases.

FORCE SHIFTED TO MACARTHUR

Nimitz Switches Command Of Army Planes In Ryukus

Guam, Wednesday, July 11 (AP)—Comand of all army planes based in the Ryukyus (Okinawa)—including the 7th Air Force—has passed to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

He described the shift as "incident to regrouping" American air power in the Western Pacific for the final assaults on Japan.

Remaining under the Admiral's command are navy and marine aircraft wings in the Ryukyus and Iwo Jima, now busy "tightening the blockade of Japan and destroying Japanese forces and shipping wherever found, preparatory to further amphibious assaults," he said.

Could Mean Invasion

"Further amphibious assaults" could mean the invasion of Japan.

Under the change of command, Gen. George C. Kenney, MacArthur's air chief and commander of the Far Eastern Air Forces, adds the 7th Air Force to the 5th and 13th which he already controlled. The 7th previously had operated under Admiral Nimitz in the Central Pacific war theater.

News coverage also was affected. Under present accreditation policies in the Pacific, only MacArthur-accredited correspondents can write detailed news reports of Okinawa-based army air; and only correspondents accredited to fleet headquarters can write detailed stories of Okinawa-based fleet or Marine air strikes. Thus if both army and navy air units on Okinawa are active in a co-ordinated strike, two correspondents—not one—must handle the news in two separate dispatches.

Because Of New Bases

The command change was made because development of Okinawa, Iwo Jima and Marianas bases had permitted "redeployment of strong United States air forces within effective striking distance of Japan," Admiral Nimitz said.

Included in army units affected were Liberators, Mitchells, Mustangs and Thunderbolts.

The 7th Air Force, now in General Kennedy's enlarged command, collaborated with Nimitz's naval and ground forces in the swift advance across the Central Pacific from the Gilberts to Okinawa. The 13th Air Force also operated for a time under Nimitz's command, in the Solomons, before it joined MacArthur's Southwest Pacific air power.

B-29's and Iwo-based Mustang fighters—also army aircraft—are under the entirely separate control of Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, newly designated commander of the Army's Strategic Air Force. Until Spaatz arrives to take over, the B-29's—in the 20th Air Force—are operating under Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay. The 8th Air Force also will appear in the Pacific soon, also flying strategic bombing missions under the command of General Spaatz.

2 MILLIONTH TON FALLS ON JAPAN

Guam, July 11 (Wednesday) (A. P.).—A Superfortress which flew in yesterday's raid on Wakayama dropped the two millionth ton of bombs loosed upon an enemy target by the Army Air Forces in this war. The ship was the Goin' Jessie and was commanded by Capt. John D. Fleming of Columbia, Tenn.

Fleming has commanded the Goin' Jessie through most of her career—a career which included dropping more than 535,000 pounds of bombs on Japan in her forty-three missions. She has flown more than 114,000 miles on combat assignments.

The two-millionth ton of bombs "went in there like the rest of them," said Bombardier Lieut. Julius J. Chilipka of New York. "I was too busy to be nervous about it."

Halsey Throws His Sunday Punch

Guam, July 10 (A. P.).—Among ships participating in today's carrier strike against Tokyo are:

Aircraft Carriers—Lexington, Essex, Independence, San Jacinto.

Battleships—Indiana, Massachusetts, South Dakota, Iowa.

Cruisers—Chicago, San Juan, Springfield, Atlanta.

Destroyers—DeHaven, Samuel N. Moore, John Rodgers, Schroeder, Cogswell, Heerman, Southerland, Aul, John W. Weeks, Colohan, Wedderburn, Rowe, Caperton and Frank Knox.

Footnote to Tokyo: Many of these ships, particularly the new Lexington, Essex, Independence, South Dakota, Iowa and the new Chicago and Atlanta have been announced sunk many times by Radio Tokyo.

Heavy Cruiser San Francisco Still Afloat

Vessel Participated In Invasion Of Okinawa.

GUAM, Wednesday, July 11 (AP)—The famed heavy cruiser San Francisco participated in the invasion bombardment of Okinawa, U. S. Pacific Fleet headquarters disclosed today, thus again giving the lie to enemy claims of sinking her.

Okinawa was the 30th Japanese-held island and possession against which the guns of the 11-year-old cruiser have thundered since Pearl Harbor—where she escaped the fury of the Japanese sneak attack with only strafing damage.

The Japanese claimed she was sunk then.

German propagandists sent her to the bottom next—one of their submarines claiming the honor this time—off the New Jersey coast, in January, 1942.

In mid-November, the San Francisco proved she was still afloat by action off Guadalcanal, in which she won fame as one of the "fightingest" ships of the Navy.

She was hit 45 times in the night battle, opening the November 13-15 sea fighting which decided the subsequent complete American conquest of Guadalcanal. The San Francisco, giving back more than she took in the close-range conflict, had 189 of her personnel killed or wounded. Rear Adm. Daniel J. Callaghan and Capt. Cassin Young were among the killed.

The Japanese again claimed she had been sunk.

Her guns have given the answer since in the south, north, central and western Pacific. She is credited with participating in 13 major operations and two surface battles.

At Okinawa, the San Francisco supported the landing on D-day. She alone destroyed a column of Japanese troops, shot down four enemy planes in fighting off air attacks, and knocked out the following targets: pillboxes, caves, 19 gun batteries, six small guns, eight tanks, 17 trucks, a supply dump, a railroad intersection and a large aircraft hangar on Machinato airfield.

Her shells also blocked Japanese counterattack movements by causing a landslide across an important road.

The fleet announcement said the San Francisco was still engaged in Pacific operations as of May 15—the "last date" under censorship regulations on which her whereabouts may be disclosed.

BALIKPAPAN BAY IN ALLIED HANDS

DAILY NIGHT

Broad Anchorage Is Capable of Handling Unlimited Shipping.

MANILA, Wednesday, July 11—(AP) Balikpapan's broad bay, an anchorage capable of handling unlimited shipping, is completely in the hands of Allied forces, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

At the same time a headquarters spokesman disclosed the Aussies now hold all of the hotly contested Pandansari refinery area just north of Balikpapan town.

The final link in a chain of amphibious hops around the perimeter of Borner's biggest oil port came Sunday. Maj. Gen. Milford's Australians pushed in small boats from their west-shore Cape Penadjam positions four miles farther north to Djinabora.

They met no opposition. The small landing craft were protected by naval gunfire.

The new landing put the diggers across narrow straits from Dutch soldiers who seized Cape Teloktebang the preceding day.

Japanese anti-aircraft guns were imbedded in the hilly terrain overlooking the sandy shores of Djinabora, but they had been heavily hit in repeated air strikes.

Northeast of captured Manggar airdrome 13 miles northeast of Balikpapan town, Australians smashed two infiltration attacks by the Nipponese Saturday night and advanced a mile beyond Manggar's runways. Another center of enemy resistance developed on the shallow slopes of Mt. Batochampar—"Smashed Stone," in Malayan—six miles north of the refinery center.

Dutch colonial troops—volunteers from the West Indies and Javanese—held firm beachheads along the upper reaches of the Enemy 105-millimeter howitzer positions, trucks, barges and buildings were blown up by a score of 13th Air Force Liberators and Mitchells giving continued close support to the ground troops.

Australian's Ninth division patrolled south of the previously occupied Miri oil fields on Borneo's northwest coast without meeting any Japanese, their communique said.

Three enemy freighters were sunk off Kuching, western Borneo as Allied air power continued close support of ground advances. Kutching is the major Borneo airfield nearest Singapore.

A single Japanese plane "ineffectively" raided the Brunei Bay area, the communique reported.

bay after making two overwater hops last Saturday. The Dutch colonials quickly knocked out small arms fire from river boats and secured the Kariango and Telaktebang peninsulas.

Heavy Fighting in Progress

Heavy fighting was in progress on two fronts in the Balikpapan area. To the north Australian forces, striking for the last Borneo oil fields still in Japanese hands, were battling stiff opposition beyond Manggar air field, 13 miles from the port city. The Nipponese blocked roads with flaming drums of oil and turned coastal guns on slowly advancing troops of the Aussie Seventh Division.

Fliers of America's 13th Air Force bombed and strafed Japanese east coast positions in support of ground troops.

Hard-fighting Japanese naval elements were locked in hand-to-hand battling with other Aussies in the Pandansari refinery sector of northern Balikpapan. These trapped Japanese troops fought ferociously but the determined Aussies were liquidating them with speed.

The Australian forces of liberation were fanning out south, west and north of the inner reaches of Balikpapan bay. They smashed a Japanese counterattack 15 miles north of the Sesoempore river and captured a supply dump.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in his communique Tuesday, made first announcement of the appearance of Dutch colonials in the battle for the Balikpapan region. Dutch forces had appeared earlier in the Battle of Borneo. They were thrown into the successful fight for oil-rich Tarakan, tiny island off the northeast coast invaded May 1 in the first ground action against Borneo.

5TH AIR FORCE HITS FORMOSA

10 Jap Ships Attacked By Other MacArthur Planes

Manila, Wednesday, July 11 (AP). Oil fields and airdromes on Formosa were bombed Sunday by more than 65 planes of the 5th Air Force, while other planes ranging west to China and south to Java sank or damaged ten Japanese vessels, headquarters reported today.

Grounded planes were among targets hit by more than 40 Liberators in the strike at Shinchiku on the northwest coast of Formosa. Enemy anti-aircraft fire was heavy. The oil fields in the Shinei area, on the southwest coastal plain, were pounded by more than 25 Lightning fighter-bombers.

Hits Mako Naval Base

A single Liberator heckled the enemy naval base at Mako in the Pescadores between Formosa and the Asiatic mainland.

Seventh Fleet Mariners bombed the Canton arms plant and Wuseu Island, in Amoy harbor along the Asiatic east coast, Sunday.

Navy Privateers slashed at French Indo-China's communication network, destroying a dozen freight cars, a locomotive and small watercraft near Quinhan.

Another Privateer damaged a Japanese freighter Sunday off Cape Pandaran.

Java's Malang airfield was damaged Sunday night by Catalinas of the Royal Australian Air Force. Fifteen Australian and 13th Air Force Liberators neutralized five enemy airfields in Dutch Celebes.

Three enemy freighters were destroyed by search planes off West Borneo. Five schooners and a motor boat were wrecked near Makassar, southwest Dutch Celebes, and in the Flores Sea.

Sunken Ship's Bell Secure

Recovered From Flagship Luzon, It Will Be Sent to Washington

MANILA, July 10 (AP).—The bell from the former Yangtze River gunboat-squadron flagship Luzon soon will be on its way to the Navy Department in Washington.

When the Luzon was sunk by the Japanese in the channel through the Manila breakwater entrance, Commodore W. A. Sullivan sent divers down to remove its bell. "We are keeping a close guard on the bell," said Sullivan. "You'd be surprised how many chaplains are looking for church bells."

SEES JAPS TRICKED

Manila, July 10 (A. P.).—Sunken Jap ships in the entrance to Manila Bay have yielded evidence that their crews were duped by their own command into a suicide mission.

Four ships were sunk in the Jap attempt to block the narrow passage. The second was being removed today by crews under Commodore W. A. Sullivan, head of Navy salvage operations, whose home is at 30 Fifth avenue, New York.

"Bodies have been found on all ships," Sullivan said. "Apparently the Japs either sent out suicide crews or the crews were duped into thinking they would have time to get off before the ships were sunk."

Dutch Troops Battle in Borneo

Capture Upper Part of Balikpapan Bay—Aussies Fight Hard for Oil Plants.

Manila, July 10 (A. P.).—Javanese and Dutch West Indian volunteers secured the upper reaches of Balikpapan Bay near the great southeast Borneo oil port of Balikpapan in two amphibious operations Saturday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

In this, their first announced participation in the campaign, the Dutch forces quickly silenced small-arms fire from enemy river craft which had taken refuge in the mouths of the swampy Scember and Wainbesar rivers. The Dutch occupied the Kariango and Telaktebang peninsulas after short overwater crossings from Cape Baroe, solidifying the Allied grip on the whole bay area.

Australian troops, meanwhile, were engaged in tough hand-to-hand fighting against the completely encircled Japs in the Pandansari refinery district in the northernmost limits of Balikpapan town. A considerable portion of the refinery already was in Australian hands, and a spokesman said the diehard Jap naval personnel still defending the ruined structures were being eliminated rapidly. The Australians had plunged across all-but-impenetrable swamps to complete sealing off the area.

Other elements of the Aussie Seventh Division were filtering north beyond Manggar Airfield, thirteen road miles northeast of Balikpapan, against Jap defenses which features roadblocks made of burning drums of oil guarded by coastal guns turned inland.

Still another Australian force was moving south, west and north from the inner rim of Balikpapan Bay after breaking up an enemy counter-attack fifteen miles north of the Sescempore River and capturing a Jap supply dump.

As the Japs stiffened their resistance in an effort to keep the Allies from winning early complete control of the oil fields in east Borneo, American Thirteenth Air Force Liberators and Lightnings bombed and strafed all up and down the coast.

PRISONERS IN JAVA NEAR STARVATION

Manila, July 10 (A. P.).—Allied prisoners of war being held by the Japanese in Java are close to starvation, a broadcast message from Lieut.-Commander A. Donovan of San Diego, Cal., indicated today.

Japanese censorship permitted Donovan to say in a letter to his wife, which was broadcast from Djakarta, Java, that the prisoners there get an unvarying diet of rice and greens except for their Red Cross packages.

"If the people in the United States knew how much we look forward to these additions to our diet, they would send them oftener," Donovan declared.

The Japanese allowed less than one shipment yearly to reach prisoner-of-war camps such as Santo Tomas and Cabanatuan. Each Red Cross food parcel is intended to supplement the prisoner's diet for thirty days.

The Japanese permitted the broadcasts from prisoners' letters as a method of proving that Red Cross relief supplies from the United States and Britain reached the prisoners despite the later sinking of the relief ship Awa Maru.

Plane Escapes Twice

Orange, N. J., Pilot Surmounts Bad Takeoff and Flak Hits

OKINAWA, July 10 (AP).—Lieutenant William Spaar jr., twenty-three, Orange, N. J., and his crew, participating in their thirteenth mission, twice escaped death Monday when the greatest Mitchell medium bomber raid yet staged from Okinawa struck Tokuno airfield in the Anami Islands.

The plane ahead of Spaar stopped on the takeoff, blocking the runway. Too close to stop, Spaar pulled his plane into the air after only half the normal take-off run, and it skimmed over the stalled plane with only inches to spare.

Spaar's plane was hit five times by anti-aircraft fire over the target, but it returned safely to base.

Brooklyn Flyer Duels With Destroyer

Okinawa, July 10 (A. P.).—Six Navy privateer pilots paired off to strafe ten Jap ships on the Kyushu coast and toward Formosa, sinking at least one vessell and probably several others, Fleet Air Wing 1 announced today.

August M. Lodato of 320 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, and another flyer dueled with a Jap destroyer, but damage was unobserved. They sank a lugger and exploded an oiler, with flames rising 2,000 feet, they said. They also bombed two phosphate plants, a lighthouse, a radio station and sent one of two attacking Jap planes away in smoke.

Report Jap General Saved

WITH U. S. FORCES ON NORTHERN LUZON, P. I., Wednesday, July 11 (AP)—The report that a lone Japanese airplane sneaked into northern Luzon and rescued the No. One Japanese in the islands—Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita—from the jaws of a closing American trap is repeatedly encountered here.

In a tour of all American fighting fronts on northern Luzon island I found the story of the most repeated of any single rumor. It is based on a swelling number of reports from Filipino guerrillas and civilians and American Army officers themselves.

The story is that when Balete Pass, entrance to the Cagayan valley, was taken and the key junction of Santa Fe fell 13 days later, the way was open for a lightning dash through the broad valley.

No Effective Defense

The veteran 37th division moved so fast the Japanese were unable to organize an effective defense and it became apparent the battle of northern Luzon was lost.

So, according to the story toward which a majority of American officers lean, a single Japanese plane flew into the Cagayan valley at night and landed on one of the few airstrips still remaining in Japanese hands even as the 37th roared down the Tuguegarao road. Yamashita, nicknamed the Tiger and former commander of the vaunted Japanese Kwantung army in Manchuria, climbed aboard and sneaked off home.

It was announced in Tokyo that Jose Laurel, head of the puppet government the Japanese set up in the Philippines, arrived in Japan June 29. It was known that Laurel had sought refuge at Baguio with his Japanese commander-in-chief.

Yamashita was named commander of the Japanese in the islands just 20 days after American invasion forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur landed at Leyte last October.

McCain's Lucky Hat Is in the Ring Again

By RICHARD O'MALLEY

ABOARD ADMIRAL M'CAIN'S FLAGSHIP OFF JAPAN, July 10 — (AP) Vice Adm. John S. McCain's "Lucky Cap" was in the ring off Japan today—inviting the Nipponese to come out and fight.

The eyes of the Third Fleet carrier force commander were bright as he watched more than 1,000 planes soar from flight decks to strike Japan—bright under the vizor of the salty cap, which is rich in oddity.

What gives the admiral's headgear such an original touch are the band and visor. Both are regulation navy design. But sitting on top of, or around, the khaki colored crown, they give the effect of a man wearing two caps.

McCain has a special affection for his cap. In the first place, it was made by the wife of Cmdr. W. S. Sampson of Los Angeles, great friends of the admiral. And it is a good luck cap.

"The only time it ever blew off a seaman scrambled and grabbed it just before it went over the side," said McCain. "And that day we shot down a kamikaze before he had a chance to hit us. That's a lucky cap."

A crash crew seaman on the flight deck looked up at the bridge a little later.

"Don't give me no helmet," he said. "All you need on this ship is a lucky cap like the old man's got!"

MISSIONARIES SAY JAPS' FOOD IS LOW

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Finnish missionaries arriving home yesterday described conditions in Japan as "very hard" and said that as a result of American air raids "there can no longer be any talk of Tokyo," the Finnish radio said last (Tuesday) night.

The broadcast, recorded by the FCC, quoted the missionaries as saying that food conditions were "extremely poor" in the Japanese capital.

JAPANESE EDITOR SHARPLY ATTACKS NIPS' WAR POLICY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10—(AP) The Tokyo radio today tersely acknowledged Tuesday's huge carrier-borne air attack on the Japanese capital, and frankly aired surprisingly sharp criticism of Nipponese war policies by the dean of Japan's newspaper writers.

A communique issued by Japanese Imperial headquarters admitted the carrier strike. Picked up here by the Federal Communications commission, the broadcast was directed to Japanese-occupied Asia.

Later Tokyo cautioned its distant radio stations to play the communique down.

Text of the communique said: "Since the morning of July 10, carrier-borne aircraft operating from an enemy task force raided in several waves mainly our air bases at a number of points in the Kanto district.

"By one o'clock this afternoon, the aggregate total of enemy planes participating in the raids numbered some 800."

Soho Tokutomi, writing in the newspaper Mainichi, criticised the government for not telling the people the truth about the loss of important Pacific islands.

He rebuked the policy "which since Guadalcanal has tended to dismiss the loss of strategic islands with superficial optimism."

Tokutomi accused the government of misleading the people when they were told the loss of Saipan need cause no anxiety.

"Everybody now knows what the loss of Saipan meant to Japan," Tokutomi said, referring to one of the bases mounting B-29 strikes.

Of the air raids in general, however, Domei news agency broadcast views of one of its correspondents who apparently had just returned to the mainland. The correspondent admitted he had seen cities in the Yokohama-Tokyo section "pitifully strewn" with debris, but he declared morale of the people was good.

He said the people were determined to "stick it out to the end." His report did not refer to the carrier-borne onslaught.

Minimizing Air Attacks

Domei, in another report, minimized the importance of America's mounting air fury and said "mastery of the air is not an absolute factor."

The agency admitted Allied air strength over Europe had "contributed greatly" to the successful ground action, but insisted "it cannot be said for certain that it was the principal element."

The dispatch added, "x x x it seems, that in most cases, tanks and artillery were the principal deciding factors."

Domei later declared the carrier-plane raids "indicate an attempt to crush Japanese air power" in the Tokyo area, and renewed indirectly its claim that the United States had lost 50 per cent of its aircraft carriers in the Okinawa campaign by saying:

"The enemy, who has been frantic in replenishing his carrier strength, has repaired those damaged x x x and pressed into service newly commissioned carriers."

The agency said there were ten carriers in the task force.

Earlier, despite the fact the Japanese Imperial communique made no claim of downing or damaging any of the attacking planes, Domei declared Japanese fighter planes and anti-aircraft batteries "put up effective interception with sizeable results, already known, to their credit."

Fires wrought by the B-29s were brought under control this morning, one report said, and Japanese in the Sendai area were said to be "adequately" cared for with emergency foodstuffs.

"Complete normalcy is already restored in the city where citizens are busy starting reconstruction and rehabilitation work," the Tohoku army district command said.

Jap Peace Feelers Dismissed By Grew

JUL 11 1945

Acting Secretary Of State Maintains U. S. Interest Lies Solely In Unconditional Surrender—Four Specific Approaches Cited.

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP) — Japan's vague peace feelers were brushed aside today by Acting Secretary of State Grew with a sharp reminder that the United States is interested only in the enemy's unconditional surrender.

Grew told of four specific indirect approaches on behalf of the Japanese but said that the United States government never has received a real peace offer from the Japanese government "either through official or unofficial channels."

Try To Arouse Debate

The Japanese, Grew said in a statement, are using peace feelers as the Germans did, to stir up trouble in the Allied countries and particularly to try to arouse debate on the terms to be applied to Japan.

Grew spoke strongly on the subject and chose an unusual means to emphasize the importance which he attaches to his statement. Instead of releasing it through the regular State Department press officers he himself visited the newsroom where a score of reporters were gathered. He said there had been a lot of rumors about alleged peace offers from the Japanese and he wanted to clear the air.

The four "alleged peace feelers" which Grew related were these:

1. Persons described in reports to the State Department as "leading Japanese industrialists" were represented as wanting to know the best possible conditions of a compromise peace.

2. A neutral diplomate in Tokyo said he had been told by a private Japanese citizen that Japan could not accept unconditional surrender because it would mean loss of face.

Jap Diplomat Voices Views

3. A Japanese diplomat in a neutral country intimated to an American citizen through a German newspaperman that the United States, because of its "real" interests in the Far East, should abandon unconditional surrender for a negotiated peace.

4. A person whom Grew described as unidentified approached an American diplomatic mission in a neutral country with the claim that he was authorized (it was not stated by whom) to enlist a neutral government in persuading the Japanese to drop unconditional surrender and propose peace terms.

"It should be borne in mind in this connection," Grew said, "that the Japanese, like the Germans before them, rely principally upon the hope that they may be able to divide the Allies and to produce division of opinion within the Allied countries.

"To that end it would be to their interest, as they see their interest, to initiate a public discussion of the terms to be applied to Japan. This they have already attempted to do on several occasions through radio Tokyo."

Grew said the Japanese would be especially anxious to use peace feelers now that "their military position is deteriorating and the condition of their civilian population becomes more critical."

Recalling that he had warned last October against enemy efforts to arouse dissension among the Allies and within Allied countries, he reiterated that any surrender of the enemy short of an unconditional defeat would allow Japanese militarists to begin building for another war.

"I have no fears as to the nature of our decision so long as our people fully understand the dangers of a compromise peace," Grew quoted from his October speech, "but let us be warned in time."

Stressing the necessity of destroying Japanese militarism, he quoted President Truman's statement in May that while unconditional surrender will mean the end of the military leadership of Japan it will also mean "provision for the return of soldiers and sailors to their families, their farms, their jobs."

American policy "is and will continue to be unconditional surrender," Grew declared adding, "that is the best comment I can make upon peace feelers and rumors of peace feelers of whatever origin."

Gates Predicts Elimination Of Jap Air Force

Naval Undersecretary Confident Of Enemy Air Power's Early Destruction.

WASHINGTON, July 10. (AP)—Artemus L. Gates, undersecretary of the navy, today predicted early "elimination of the Japanese air force as an effective weapon."

In his final report as assistant secretary for air, a post he surrendered last week after nearly four years service to become undersecretary, Gates described destruction of Japanese air power as naval aviation's "first job," and expressed confidence it "will be accomplished shortly."

In addition, however, he said, "naval aviation must be ready to augmen the Army Air Force's bombing of Japanese targets by delivering pin-point attacks where designated; it must continue to deliver mobile air power to strike targets inaccessible or unsuited to long range land based bombers; it must be ready to support future troop landings; it must continue its effective destruction of enemy shipping; and it must destroy Japanese naval units wherever found. In addition, it must keep our own supply lines safe by constant patrol."

Not Separate Organization

Asserting that Naval Aviation is not "an autonomous or separate fighting organization nor should it be," Gates described it as an integral part of the Navy operating in conjunction with the surface and subsurface forces. Furthermore, he said, any omission from his report, dealing with naval aviation, "should not be construed as a reflection upon the accomplishments of the Army or its airforce."

"In the virtual elimination of the Japanese carrier based air force and in the decimation of the Japanese army and navy air forces," he said, "more than 17,000 enemy planes have been destroyed since Pearl Harbor by Navy and Marine planes against fleet combat losses of approximately 2,700, a combat ratio of better than six to one.

"Preliminary figures for the first quarter of this year indicate that approximately 2,800 Japanese aircraft weer destroyed by fleet planes against combat losses of about 300, a combat ratio of over nine to one. The most recent campaign, that for the possession of Okinawa, has been the most intense of any so far encountered.

3,700 Planes Destroyed

From the beginning of the campaign in mid-March up to and into June, more than 3,700 enemy planes were destroyed by Navy and Marine units; 460 by our fleet AA gunners, 457 by Marine pilots of the tactical air force, 2,605 by carrier based aircraft, 216 in the course of suicide tactics, and 38 by patrol planes.

"Navy and Marine airborne combat losses amounted to more than 650, a combat ratio of approximately six to one.

"Our air-sea team," Gates said, "will undoubtedly meet even stiffer tests as it progresses to the home islands of Japan, where we can expect to encounter increased use of the Kamikaze corps suicide pilots, who attempt to crash their planes or Baka bombs against our ships, as well as increased use of suicide boats, suicide swimmers, and similar tactics born of desperation. So far, however, no fast carrier, battleship or cruiser has been sunk by Japanese suicide tactics although extensive damage has been done."

MORE TRANSLATION URGED

Russian - English Exchange of Information Advocated

LONDON, July 10 (AP)—More Russian books should be translated into English and vice versa as a "very important matter" in the future relations between American and Russian science, Duncan A. MacInnes of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research said in a statement prepared in Moscow, where he is attending the sessions of the Russian Academy of Science.

His statement, made public by the Russian Embassy here, said that "it is to be hoped that the United States and other countries will continue the splendid lead the Soviet Union has taken in calling together scientists from many nations. The mutual understanding this brings about has the most desirable results in other fields of science."

Mr. MacInnes recommended the exchange of information in books and periodicals and declared: "My chief impression of my visit to the Soviet Union was the vast purposefulness of human energy."

Big 3 To Consider Reparations Germany Owes, Reports Say

Singleton

London, July 10 (AP)—The financial, industrial and manpower reparations to be collected from Germany have been assigned a place on the agenda of the approaching Big Three conference, responsible diplomatic quarters said tonight.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said one of the immediate problems likely to be raised would center around the use of forced German labor for the reconstruction of areas devastated during German occupation.

Meanwhile, the problem of Europe's industrial rehabilitation has grown acute.

Russ Collections Feared

Spokesmen for some countries, much of whose industrial machinery was looted by the Nazis and carted off to Germany, privately have expressed concern over reports from Berlin that the Russians have started collection—in advance of final settlement—of industrial reparations.

British and Americans have shown no inclination to deny a Soviet claim to a big percentage of Germany's undamaged machinery. Advance collections, however, may make it difficult to obtain an equitable solution of the claims of other countries.

No Agreement Yet

Apparently there has been no definite agreement as to how much machinery Germany will be allowed to retain, the degree to which the Reich will be reduced to an agricultral state, nor the extent to which her heavy industry will be reduced.

Disposition of German financial assets seized by the Allies, the greater part of which are in American hands, will pose such issues as whether these assets should be divided among the Allies, be pooled and used to strengthen German paper money, be used for the support of [illegible] rehabilitation organizations as UNRRA.

SINATRA REBUKED BY ARMY PAPER

London, July 10 (A. P.).—The Army newspaper Stars and Stripes upheld U. S. O. camp shows and the Army's Special Services today against criticism it attributed to Frank Sinatra, declaring the crooner was hardly an authority on either the military or the workaday show business."

Sinatra, who has just returned to the United States from Italy, had been quoted by the Army paper as saying in an interview that shows sent overseas underrated the soldier's intelligence. In "sounding off" against the performers and the Special Services that arrange the shows, the Army newspaper declared, Sinatra was "doing an injustice to a group of people who are, for the most part, talented, hard working and sincere."

"There have been, of course, the usual prima donnas who have flown over, had their picture taken with G. I.'s, and got the hell home," Stars and Stripes added.

"And there have been some shiftless Special Services officers who felt their mission was to pursue beautiful U. S. O. girls about the theater with full-throated cries, but these freaks are not typical of either show business or Special Services.

"Generally speaking, the camp show troupes have been made up of serious kids who did the best they could under field conditions and brought a lot of pleasure to weary, homesick men.

"We've seen the time when a master of ceremonies with a handful of jokes, a couple of pretty girls, and a juggler could do a show in a hospital tent that will never be topped by 'Oklahoma.'"

Saturnia at Southampton

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 10 (AP).—The 24,000-ton former Italian luxury liner Saturnia, renamed the Francis Y. Slanger and reconverted in the United States as the world's largest hospital ship, completed a nine-day crossing from New York yesterday to take on its first casualties here.

'VIGILANTES' SET PARLEY

Schedule Mass Meeting for Hyde Park—Plan New Drive

LONDON, July 10 (AP)—British "household Vigilantes," moving in on London, have called a mass meeting for Sunday to extend their direct-action campaign of installing homeless families of veterans in vacant houses.

The self-named "Vigilantes" scheduled the meeting for Hyde Park. They announced the speakers would include Harry Cowley and Harold Steer, leader and secretary respectively of the group in Brighton, where the Vigilantes began their secret night-time moving parties before bringing their war into the open.

Flushed with temporary success, because it takes a court order to evict a family once installed, the vigilantes said they planned to extend their drive.

Drop Reported in British Tax Receipts

London, July 10 (A. P.).—British income and excise tax receipts dropped £19,000,000 ($76,000,000) for the seven days to July 7, but the Inland Revenue Department said it was just a coincidence and nothing to worry about.

"It might be up the same amount next period," the department said. "Apparently a few of our biggest taxpayers didn't come through last week." The week's exchequer returns showed a total revenue of £51,376,585 ($205,506,336). The expenditure side total practically was unchanged at £114,230,227 ($456,920,908).

Admiralty Announces New 'Safe' Waters

London, July 10 (AP)—The Admiralty announced today that all waters of the Atlantic, Caribbean, the Baltic, North Sea, White Sea, Mediterranean, Black Sea and Red Sea were now safe from attack by enemy forces, though parts are still dangerous because of mines.

For war-risk-insurance purposes, waters of the Indian Ocean east of Ceylon and the eastern part of the Pacific were classified as "reasonably safe."

Lloyd George Will Attacked by Son

London, July 10 (A. P.).—Major Richard Lloyd George, eldest son and successor as Earl of Dwyfor to the late David Lloyd George, filed notice today to halt probate of his father's will, in which he was left without legacy.

The young earl said in an interview published in the Daily Mail last May that his father "had not left me a bean" because of his refusal to enter politics.

London, July 10 (AP)—The Prague radi osaid tonight that Marshal Tito had issued a decree July 3 abolishing all postal and press censorship in Yugoslavia.

Anti-Fascists Honor Truman

LONDON, July 10 (AP).—The Moscow radio said tonight that the Anti-Fascist Balkan Youth League in Belgrade had elected President Truman an honorary member. Premier Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) were among others elected.

Every Miss Was A Hit For Charity

LONDON—(AP) Due to an anonymous man's strange offer, the family of some soldier, sailor or airman will benefit by about $450 from the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Families Association fund.

When the V-bomb attacks were at their height last July this man told his family he was prepared to pay £5 to war charities for every week of danger so long as his house, family, office premises and staff remained safe. He did this for 41 weeks.

A few days before the end of London's rocket ordeal a V-2 landed within 100 yards of his house, causing some damage. But this man decided that, since other homes in the neighborhood were completely wrecked, such a "trifling matter" as his own ceilings, roof and windows should not let him out of his promise.

He sent his usual cheque to the S.S.A.F.A. with the request that it be used to help towards the education of a service man's child or to help a war widow.

2 DIVISIONS U. S. BOUND

44th Infantry in England—5th Embarks at Le Havre

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 10 (AP)—Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, announced today that the Forty-fourth Infantry Division, which originally was composed almost entirely of former New Jersey National Guardsmen, had arrived here and was awaiting shipment to the United States.

An advance guard of the outfit, which is slated for Pacific duty after furloughs, arrived in New York last week.

CONSERVATIVES WIN IN NORTH IRELAND

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 10—(AP) Prime Minister Sir Basil Brooke's Unionist (Conservative) government was returned to power today on the declaration of results of the northern Ireland general election held June 14.

Four Queens University seats in Belfast will not be announced until a separate counting on Friday, but with returns available from 48 out of 52 sets the standing was Unionists 31, Nationalists 10, Labor 2, Independent Unionist 2, Commonwealth Labor, Socialist Republican and Independent Labor one each.

Dry Montgomery Fete Opposed by Town Council

By The Associated Press.

NEWPORT, England, July 10—The Town Council decided today that Newport citizens would not have to go dry for one day just because Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery is a teetotaler.

It turned down a suggestion by Mayor G. W. Armstead that only lemonade and orangeade be served when Marshal Montgomery is made a freeman of Newport in a ceremony later this month.

TROOPSHIP SUNK DEC. 28

13 Missing When Fifteenth Army Vessel Blew Up in Channel

PARIS, July 10 (AP)—The S. S. Empire Javelin, bringing the main body of United States Fifteenth Army Headquarters to France, was sunk in the middle of the English Channel last Dec. 28 by a German mine or torpedo, Supreme Headquarters disclosed today.

The toll was thirteen men missing and twenty-eight injured of 268 officers and 1,215 enlisted men aboard.

The ship was rocked by an explosion below the waterline. The French frigate L'Escarmouche then came alongside and in forty-five minutes took the personnel off the Empire Javelin. A short time later there was another explosion. The ship sank within ten minutes.

De Gaulle Will Not Run In October, Aides Say

Paris, July 10 (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, two Government officials said today, will not be a candidate when French voters choose a new national assembly on October 14, but many politicians believe the new assembly would name de Gaulle President of the new Government.

The election, the first since France's fall, will name 600 representatives to comprise the new assembly. This group then will name a "President of the Government," who will select his Cabinet.

The President could be from private life, since complete freedom of choice is provided for the assembly. De Gaulle might thus be named even if he did not run for the general assembly.

PETAIN WITNESSES CALLED TO TESTIFY

PARIS, July 10—(AP) Final steps toward bringing Marshal Petain to trial were taken today when the attorney general issued summons for all witnesses and ordered an apartment in the Palace of Justice to be prepared for the aged marshal. State Prosecutor Andre Mornet said he hoped to open the trial on July 19.

Report Franco Near Churchill's Retreat

St. Jean de Luz, France, July 10 (A. P.).—Generalissimo Franco was reported to have reached Hendaye, close to this vacation spot where Prime Ministed Churhill is staying, but the British consul denied today that any conference was contemplated.

The Consul, Bruce Nairn, denied also that Mrs. Churchill intended to visit Spain although Col. Julio Ortega, Spanish frontier commander, came to Hendaye to meet her. Nairn said Ortega's visit must have resulted from a "misunderstanding."

Allied Nations Solve Berlin Food Puzzle

Four-power Command Post Set Up—Anglo-American Troops To Assume Immediate Control Of Occupation Zones.

By Daniel De Luce

BERLIN, July 10 (AP)—The United States, Britain and Russia, setting up a four-power "Kommandature (command post)" for a rotating military government of Berlin, today solved the friction-packed problem of feeding the German capital's 3,000,000 civilians.

Sore Deadlock Broken

The sore intra-Allied deadlock over Berlin's food and fuel supplies was broken by high Allied military chiefs who assured that Anglo-American troops would assume immediate and full control of their occupation zones. The way was paved for a harmonious opening of the imminent Big Three meeting.

Agreement among the three major Allies was reached in a conference of Soviet Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov and Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Lieut. Gen. Sir Ronald Weeks, American and British representatives in the Allied Control Commission for Germany.

Beaming with evidence pleasure over the outcome of the conference, Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, American military commandant of Berlin, announced details of the solution of the food problem and of the new "Kommandature" that will rule Berlin.

Berlin's food, it was decided, will be supplied from "contributions from all Allied occupation zones in Germany," and Zhukov, Clay and Weeks took steps to solve the coal problem along the same lines.

French Are Invited

Inviting the French to take part in the government of Berlin the three military chiefs decided that the "Kommandature" should comprise four military commandants, each of whom will serve as chief commandant in rotation.

Each American, British, Russian and French commander will head Berlin's military administration for 15 days, rotating as long as the city is occupied.

The first meeting of the "Kommandature" will be held tomorrow and Soviet Col. Gen. Gorbatov will be the first chief.

Today's decisions in effect vindicated the Soviet position on the feeding of Berlin after the same three Allied representatives failed to agree last Saturday night.

It was presumed that American and British transport systems would bring considerable stocks of both food and fuel into their Berlin sectors from the western occupation zones. The Anglo-American demand previously had been that all Berlin should be supplied from its Soviet-held hinterland.

Actual Food Question

Where approximately 1,000 tons of food daily for Berliners living under the stars and stripes and the union jack would be found in western Germany was an unanswered question, but it was obvious that the stalemate had ended.

American military government detachments which have been waiting in six of Berlin's boroughs since July 5 for the Russian commanders to leave were expected to start exercising control within 24 hours as a result of the agreement.

British detachments were alerted to be ready to go into their six boroughs tomorrow.

An official statement did not disclose the precise occupation sector that will be allotted to the French, but it was believed certain that French Gen. de Beauchesne would accept the invitation to the "Kommandature" tomorrow.

The Russians will retain 12 of Berlin's boroughs. This was an inter-Allied agreement reached last Fall. The Russian sector is believed populated by 1,100,000 Germans, while the Americans have 750,000 in their sector and the British 900,000.

25,000 Troop Garrison

The Anglo-American Allies intend to garrison Berlin with about 25,000 troops from their respective armies and the Russian force estimated at approximately the same size.

The return of Gens. Clay and Weeks, deputies to Gen. Eisenhower and Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, from western Germany indicated the importance attached by the Allies to getting joint government functioning h before the Big Three arrive, p sibly before Saturday.

In Potsdam district, elite guardsmen of America, Britain and the Soviet Union kept vigilant watch on every street and pathway as the hour drew nearer for the historic parley.

Approximately 40 American generals, it was reported unofficially, will be on call while President Truman talks with Stalin and Churchill.

Berlin Deadlock Is Broken

Food Issue Is Settled—Yanks and British to Take Over Areas Shortly.

Berlin, July 10 (A. P.).—The three Allied Powers have amicably solved the problem of feeding the nearly 3,000,000 German civilians in Berlin, it was officially announced tonight.

An official statement said Soviet Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, American Lieut.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay and British Lieut.-Gen. Sir Ronald Weeks had decided that Berlin's food would be supplied by "contributions from all the Allied occupation zones in Germany."

Clay and Weeks are deputies of Gen. Eisenhower and Field Marshal Montgomery on the Interallied Control Commission for Germany. Their return from western Germany indicated the importance attached by the Allies to getting the joint government in Berlin functioning before the arrival of the Big Three in the German capital, probably before Saturday.

Move to Solve Coal Problem.

Clay, Weeks and Zhukov also took steps to solve the coal problem of the city. Together these problems had served as stumbling blocks tot he sharing of the city government by the Americans, British and Russians. The three high officers also arranged for a French representative to participate tomorrow in the first meeting of Berlin's "Interallied Kommandatura."

Presumably American and British transport systems will bring considerable stocks of both food and fuel into the American and British sectors of Berlin from the occupation zones in Western Germany. The British-American demand had been for all of Berlin to be supplied from its Soviet-held hinterland.

American Military Government detachments, waiting in six boroughs since July 5 for Russian commanders to leave, were expected to start exercising control within twenty-four hours. British detachments were alerted to be ready to go into their six boroughs tomorrow.

Reds to Hold 12 Boroughs.

The Russians will retain twelve Berlin boroughs under the interallied agreement reached last fall, and which now is being put into effect. The fact that this and subsequent agreements never presented a detailed solution of the food problem was responsible for a deadlock after the Anglo-American forces entered Berlin last week.

The Americans have 750,000 Germans in their sector, while the British have 900,000. The Russian sector is believed to have 1,100,000. The Americans and British intend to garrison Berlin with about 25,000 troops. The Russian force is estimated at approximately the same size.

The Russians have been exteremely careful in carrying out an agreement to allow the Americans and British free transit on the highway from Berlin to the west, via Magdeburg, use of two operational airports in Berlin, and the opportunity to reconstruct a railway line to the west.

From the transportation standpoint, the Americans and British are believed able to meet the food problem here in a matter of days, safely before the small reserves still in their sectors would be exhausted.

Where the approximately 1,000 tons of food daily for Berliners living under American and British rule would be found in western Germany still was an unanswered question, but the British and Americans expressed relief that the stalemate had ended. Now the Berlin stage can be said to really be set for the meeting of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

The official statement did not disclose the precise sector of Berlin to be awarded the French, but their Major-Gen. Geoffrey de Beaucheren is to have a voice in the sess on tomorrow.

Stadium Hid Nazi Radar Plant

Important Luftwaffe Factory Was Beneath Site of 1936 Olympic Games.

Berlin, July 10 (A. P.).—The Nazis had a $5,000,000 radar plant under the Berlin Temple of Sportsmanship, site of the 1936 Olympic games, it was disclosed today. The factory, operated with great secrecy for the Luftwaffe, manufactured equipment that supposedly could determine the weight, size and speed of any plane leaving England for the Continent.

There is no factory there now—only a labyrinth of nearly empty underground chambers under the shell-scarred concrete apron at the south side of the great stadium. British occupation forces now occupy the entire 325-acre park site on the western fringe of Berlin. German caretakers who remained said the Nazi machinery was removed by Soviet authorities before the British arrived.

British officers indicated they were not surprised that the Russians took away the radar equipment. The British followed the same policy regarding secret German plants in northwestern Germany. Americans thoroughly combed the Zeiss optical works at Jena before evacuating it for the Russian occupation.

The sports temple radar plant was operated by the Blaupunkt Company, a subsidiary of the Bausch works.

On the north side of the stadium, the British also found underground chambers used as storerooms for aircraft parts. Some intact specimens were left behind by the Russians.

Vital War Machine Cog.

The Berlin Olympics Village, it appeared, was a vital cog in the Nazi war machine, although it was never made a priority target by Allied air forces. About thirty bombs fell in the area during the war, but they were spill-overs from other objectives.

At least six feet of concrete protected the top story of the underground tunnels where the various war activities were carried on.

The Berlin radio maintained an emergency transmitter and studio underground in the beautifully landscaped Olympic Village that Adolf Hitler built to house the world's greatest athletes. So far as is known, the studio was never used for regular broadcasts.

For sports lovers of the era when Ohio State's Jesse Owens was the fastest man in the world, there is a nostalgic memory to recall as you stand on the remains of the cinder path over which he flashed. The efficiently furnished press boxes are now banged up like shanties after a hurricane.

ULLSTEIN ATTEMPTING TO GET BIG PROPERTY

BERLIN, July 10 (AP) — Hans Ullstein is attempting to regain possession of the great Ullstein publishing house, which the Nazis seized in 1933 on the ground its owners were Jews.

The firm had a pre-war value of about 60,000,000 marks. The Nazis agreed to give 12,000,000 marks cash for the properties and gossip at the time said Franz von Papen was the middleman.

Herr Ullstein said that soon after the Russians captured Berlin the new Municipal Council appointed him temporary manager of the properties. After four weeks, he said the Municipal Council informed him he could no longer be manager.

"I found out through friends that the objection to me was that I was too westernly oriented," he said. "I consider it irreconcilable that the management of a firm expropriated by the Nazis in defiance of the law should be placed in other hands and I shall carry the fight to the highest authorities."

Herr Ullstein is the last of the publishing family living in Berlin. Most of his relatives emigrated, the majority to New York. He remained in Germany throughout the Nazi regime because he is a Christian and his wife is not Jewish.

Reports Russians Hold Berlin Bank Directors

Berlin, July 10 (AP)—Walter Nadolny, director of the Berliner Handelsgesellschaft, said today that all directors of Berlin's major banks had been under Russian arrest for the last nine weeks.

Nadolny said he alone had been released after five days' arrest because he could speak Russian and because his brother, Rudolf, had been well liked in Russia as the German ambassador to Moscow preceding Hitler's rise to power. Nadolny said he believed no one except himself had been permanently released.

Nazi Plane Is Speedy.

Munich, July 10 (A. P.).—A German warplane with propellers in the nose and tail easily ran away from the fastest American fighters in tests made here.

About forty of the craft, some in flying condition, were seized by the Americans at one airfield after Germany's surrender.

Flight tests by United States pilots showed the cruising speed to be 450 miles an hour above 25,000 feet altitude. Its top speed is considerably higher. Using only the nose engine, the plane made 350 miles an hour at 19,000 feet. In a test flight across France the German plane landed forty minutes ahead of a P-51 Mustang supposed to be escorting it.

Underground Plants Found.

Muehldorf, Germany, July 8 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The Nazis had invested millions of hours of slave labor and thousands of lives in a buried-factory program for aircraft production, but none of seven huge projects had been completed at surrender time.

A typical example is the construction near here of a semi-cylindrical mass of concrete, resembling in appearance an armory. German engineers told Americans it was intended to produce the Messerschmitt 262, a twin-engined fighter bomber.

The Germans chose a small ravine in a wooded area and scraped out a hole large enough for the plant. Later dirt was to be placed over the whole project and the original appearance was to be largely restored.

Relief to Europe Facing Cut

Lehman Says World Shortage of Supplies Calls for Reduction in Program.

Rome, July 10 (A. P.).—Herbert Lehman, head of the UNRRA, said today that the organization would have to reduce its relief program in Europe during July and August "and perhaps in the following months" because of the world shortage of supplies.

He said he could not estimate the exact size of reductions, since the supply situation was subject to change. He said the international relief agency planned to distribute 3,895,000 metric tons of supplies worth $900,000,000 in the next six months.

"More than three times that has already gone through our hands," he said, "our greatest concern is food."

He said that with surpluses in the United States, Canada, Argentina and other countries, "we believe there are ample supplies of grain to meet our needs" but added that meats, fats and dairy products were seriously short.

Nothing that countries such as the United States which supply the food and other relief goods have unaccustomed shortages of food and other supplies, Lehman asserted:

"In actual fact, they still have an abundance that to famished people of liberated Europe must seem like the wildest sort of luxury. If the liberated countries of Europe fall prey to famine and pestilence, there is no security for any of us. Our responsibility is clear."

He said China was asking huge amounts of supplies.

Pope Receives Lehman.

Vatican City, July 10 (A. P.),—Pope Pius XII received Herbert Lehman, head of the UNRRA, in audience yesterday and said the relief agency's task was "truly Christian work and Europe will never cease to bless you for it."

The Pope said UNRRA was "making a powerful contribution toward helping peoples and minorities to rise toward a more stable national life.

He denounced absolute State control over individuals, saying: "Who does not see the fatal consequences of such an error? It leads inevitably to despotic rule."

POPE PIUS PRAISES EFFORTS OF UNRRA

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pope Pius XII told Director General Herbert H. Lehman and members of his staff in a special audience at the Vatican yesterday that the UNRRA is doing "a truly Christ like work" among the war-ravaged people sof Europe.

"It is for the responsible leaders of political thought and government in all nations today to sustain these peoples, to encourage them in their efforts to rise from the ruins of an unhappy past to a new, a better and more stable national life," the Pontiff said in an address broadcast over the Vatican radio.

"Above all," His Holiness said, "it must be made abundantly clear to them, even to national minorities, that they will enjoy complete and genuine liberty in what is dearest to them—their cultural and religious life.

"Your splendid organization is making a powerful and necessary contribution towards just this end, and Europe will never cease to bless you for it. May God strengthen your hands and give light and courage to the promptings of your hearts."

Fascist ex-Minister Executed at Milan

Rome, July 10 (A. P.).—Italian press dispatches announced that Guido Buffarini-Guidi, former Fascist Minister of the Interior, was executed by a firing squad at Milan at dawn today.

Buffarini-Guidi was reported convicted of Fascist crimes and condemned to death by an Extraordinary Italian Court of Assizes at Milan.

TITO STATEMENTS DENIED BY GREEKS

Athens, Greece, July 10 (A. P.).—The Greek press under-secretary, Denis Zakythinos, denied emphatically today allegations by Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia that Greeks and Slavs were fleeing to Yugoslavia from Macedonia. He said that since Greek authorities were installed in the northern provinces "after suppression of the December rebellion, there has been no emigration to Yugoslavia."

"Before that, elements charged with offenses against ordinary law, or who collaborated with the invaders or even the supporters of the Elas may have fled," Zakythinos told a press conference.

[A Tass dispatch from Belgrade quoted the Albanian telegraphic agency as saying Albanians were arriving home from the Greek town of Ionnian in Epirus. These Albanians were quoted as saying the town had been seized by "members of a Greek Fascist organization and former members of the Gestapo" and that Albanians were mobbed.]

Zakythinos said the status of northern Epirus would be settled by the peace conference and added: "Greece is unarmed and without an army and never thought of using force."

Says Hitler Planned To Invade Sweden

Stockholm, July 10 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister Christian Guenther said today that Hitler clearly intended to invade Sweden in February of 1942 and contrated troops in northern Germany for that purpose.

Guenther told interviewers that the Germans were supplied with Swedish dictionaries. He said warnings came from several sources and that the Swedish military mobilized so quickly that the Germans canceled their plans. The Swedish Minister in Berlin informed the Nazis during the crisis that Sweden intended to remain neutral.

Soong and Stalin Talk Again.

Moscow, July 10 (A. P.).—Chinese Premier T. V. Soong, here for conferences with Soviet officials, had his fourth talk with Premier Stalin last night.

POLES WILL EXPEL GERMANS FROM SOIL

WARSAW, July 10—(AP) Prime Minister Edward D. Osubka-Morawski of the new Polish Provisional government declared in an interview last night that Poland would expel all Germans from her soil.

"We don't want them on our land," he said. "We aim to expel them all."

Osubka-Morawski, outlining his government's basic attitude toward Germany in conversation, also reviewed Poland's industrial, governmental and economic outlook for the future.

He termed as basic tasks "harvesting, repatriation and resettlement." He said he favored holding elections as soon as possible, but that they must be delayed until nearly 5,500,000 Poles abroad have had a chance to return home. He said he considered the government's plea to return embraced members of the Polish army in Great Britain.

The Premier said withdrawal of all but a few Russian troops would be completed in about two months, but that some Red army officers would remain as instructors for the Polish army.

Polish Premier Asks Delay on National Ballot

Says 5 Million Countrymen Abroad Must Get Back; Sees Prosperity Ahead

WARSAW, July 10 (AP).—Premier Edward B. Osubka-Morawski of the new Polish provisional government said in an interview last night that the projected Polish national elections must be delayed until nearly 5,000,000 Poles abroad have had a chance to return home.

The premier emphasized that he desires the elections to be held as soon as possible, but added that "until harvesting, repatriation and resettlement are finished we must not divert attention from these basic tasks."

Osubka-Morawski predicted a wave of industrial prosperity for Poland, and said the nation would apply for a place on the council of security formed at San Francisco. "Poland, if only for reasons of geography, will play an important part in the shaping of Europe and we consider a place on the council justified," he said.

Sees High Industrial Output

The premier said new industrial territories in the west are expected to make Poland's industrial output larger than before the war, despite the destruction of Warsaw, which contained about one-fourth of Poland's pre-war industry.

He said all Germans would be expelled from Poland and that the withdrawal of all but a few Russian troops would be complete in about two months. Red Army forces remaining, he said would be those needed to handle the passage of Soviet troops to the occupied zone of Germany.

He disclosed that some Red Army officers would remain as instructors with the Polish Army, which he described as very old-fashioned.

province caused four members of the National Geographical Institute to saddle their mules and start a 16-mile ride across the mountains today to investigate.

Witnesses have reported about 300 fires started without visible cause, burning white walls of buildings, childrens' clothing and floors of threshing bins. One report said that five days ago, a great column of whirling wind of a luminous brown color struck a small settlement with a violent roar and kindled flames which leaped thirty feet high. Nearly every story is accompanied by some purported explanation. Many theories rest on the supposition that the "fires" result from underground mineral deposits. The area has petroleum shale and the Government prospected for oil there in 1922.

The investigating party is headed by Lopez Azcona, Secretary of the geophysical institute.

CHINESE ISOLATE KANHSIEN AIR BASE

Japanese Are Driven From Tayu—Chungtu Is Entered on the Way to Kweilin

CHUNGKING, China, July 10 (AP)—Chinese troops have isolated Japanese-held Kanhsien, a former American air base 200 miles north of Hong Kong, and have hurled a strong flank attack against enemy beachheads on China's southeast "invasion" coast below Amoy, the Chinese High Command said today.

Chinese Army forces, which have liberated four American air bases and are threatening at least three others in south and south-central China, neutralized Kanhsien after recapturing Tayu, forty-seven miles southwest, a communiqué said. Swaying battles raged within six miles of Kanhsien, the Chinese said.

Tayu, in the heart of the Chinese wolfram mining district in southwestern Kingsi Province, was reported stormed and reoccupied by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's men Saturday night.

Tayu lies astride the Japanese communication line between Kanhsien and the big road and rail center of Kukong on the Canton-Hankow railroad, Japan's north-south supply routes across China. Kukong, 125 miles north of Canton, is seventy miles southwest of Tayu.

Chinese Pursue Garrison

Chinese headquarters said the Japanese garrison fled from Tayu along the highway leading to Kanhsien and asserted that pursuing Chinese forces had pushed on seventeen miles and reached the vicinity of Sincheng, thirty-two miles southwest of Kanhsien.

More than 200 Japanese sailors were killed or wounded in coastal Fukien Province in southeast China yesterday when Chinese soldiers and local militiamen launched a new attack against Japanese beachheads established June 30, the communiqué said.

Enemy forces attempting to strike out from Chihhu, captured coastal village twenty-seven miles southwest of Amoy, were reported reeling back to their positions. The Japanese landing parties appeared to be making little progress in their effort to strengthen mainland defenses around Amoy.

Meanwhile, Chinese columns 400 miles southeast of Chungking were reported slashing from captured Liuchow toward the former air base of Kweilin in Kwangsi Province. The High Command said that the Chinese last night recaptured Liuchai, on the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad sixty-four miles southwest of Kweilin, while other elements, striking up the Liuchow-Kweilin highway broke into Chungtu, sixty miles southwest of Kweilin.

While the Chinese isolated Kanhsien, the High Command said, the Japanese made a number of assaults around the base in an apparent effort to smash potential Chinese blows against the city. One Japanese column drove northward from a point eleven miles west of Kanhsien to reach an area twelve miles northwest, where bitter fighting was reported. Fighting also was said to be raging six miles east of Kanhsien as the Japanese attempted to wipe out converging Chinese columns.

Enemy remnants inside Chungtu, a strongly held Japanese defense point thirty miles from Liuchow, were being mopped up, the Chinese said.

Long Retreat Is Expected

Chungking observers said all indications were that the Japanese withdrawal northward, which has resulted in the abandonment of all southern Kwangsi, would carry enemy troops beyond Kweilin.

Maj. Gen. Kuo Chi-chih, Army spokesman, said that the Japanese evacuation of their corridor across Kwangsi Province to Indo-China had virtually opened the south China coast to the land-locked armies of the Chinese interior. A 140-mile stretch of the coastline between Indo-China and Luichow Peninsula was in effect cleared by the recent Chinese capture of Yamhsien and Fahsien, he said.

With those points securely in Chinese hands, the tenuous Japanese highway link between Indo-China and Canton was severed and the Chinese secured a corridor to the coast from Chungking. General Kuo said the only connection the Japanese had between Indo-China and Canton was by junk and other craft that crept along the coast by night.

United States Fourteenth Air Force fliers, winging from China bases to Indo-China, yesterday attacked shipping and rail lines south of Hanoi, while in northern China Mustang fighter-bombers damaged three bridges on the Japanese-operated Peiping-Hankow railroad.

CHINESE SEIZE MINING CENTER

Chungking, July 10 (A. P.).—Tayu, in the heart of wolfram mining region in Kiangsi province, 175 miles northeast of Canton and forty-five miles southwest of the former American air base site at Kanhsien, has been captured by Chinese forces, the Chinese High Command announced today.

Chinese spearheads, pursuing Jap troops who were reported to have pushed beyond Tayu to a point thirty-two miles from Kanhsien, which the United States Fourteenth Air Force was compelled to abandon last January 30. Recapture of Tayu isolated Kanhsien by severing Jap communications with Kukong, important road and rail center 125 miles north of Canton on the Canton-Hankow railroad. The Japs, evidently bent on safeguarding their hold on Kanhsien by smashing potential Chinese attacks, were reported counter-attacking Chinese forces.

Meanwhile, in an area some 330 miles to the southwest, Chinese forces pushing from liberated Liuchow toward the former American air base at Kweilin, ninety miles to the northeast, scored new gains.

Six Chinese Officials Sentenced In 'Scandal'

Chungking, July 10 (AP)—Six junior officials of the Central Trust, Chinese purchasing agency, were sentenced today to varying terms of imprisonment on charges of complicity in the notorious "gold scandal," in which fortunes were made through leakage of the Government's intention to boost gold futures last March 28 from 20,000 to 35,000 Chinese dollars per ounce.

The heaviest sentence was imposed upon Tai Jen Wen, who received seventeen years imprisonment. None of the leaders originally accused have yet been sentenced.

Mexican Envoy at Chungking

CHUNGKING, July 10 (AP).—Major General Heliodor Escalante Ramirez, Mexico's first Ambassador to China, presented his credentials today to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. On behalf of his government the Ambassador conferred on Chiang the Order of the Aztec Eagle, Mexico's highest decoration.

Chifley Seeks Curtin's Post

CANBERRA, Australia, July 10 (AP)—Joseph B. Chifley, Treasurer and Minister of PostWar- Reconstruction, announced today that he would stand for selection as leader of the Labor party, succeeding the late Prime Minister John Curtin. Some political observers believe that he would defeat Acting Premier Francis M. Forde and thereby automatically become Prime Minister.

AUSTRALIAN GIRLS FACE NEW PROBLEM

SYDNEY, Australia, July 10—(AP) United States Army legal and welfare authorities today were concerned over a new war problem—what to do about Australian girls finding their marriages to American soldiers vanishing along with their husbands.

Reports said a large number of Americans returning to the United States were obtaining divorces not recognized by Australian law. Additionally, authorities were checking cases where husbands were said to have simply disappeared.

For an Australian woman to be recognized as divorced under present Australian law, she must go to the United States at her own expense and this is impossible in many cases.

BRITISH FALL BACK IN BURMA

Yield Outpost Of Nyaungkashe To Jap Attack

Advanced Headquarters, Southeast Asia Command, July 10 (AP)—Japanese troops, counterattacking through mud and water sometimes chest deep, have forced the British out of Nyaungkashe, an outpost on the lower Sittang River in Burma 90 miles northeast of Rangoon, the Southeast Asia Command announced today.

The enemy attack heavily supported by artillery, apparently was intended to facilitate the retreat of thousands of Japanese eastward across the Sittang toward Thailand, British officers said.

British planes have taken heavy toll of enemy groups trying to cross the Sittang from western Burma. The main body of Japanese on the east side is striking out repeatedly in relief attacks.

Evacuate In Good Order

The British evacuated their troops and casualties from Nyaungkashe—25 miles northeast of Pegu and described as a veritable island in a sea of mud—in "good order," Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's communiqué said. The Japanese pounded the outpost with several hundred rounds of artillery.

Allied forces 225 miles to the north occupied Wuntho, an important center 90 miles southeast of Mandalay, the bulletin added. Heho is 19 miles northeast of Kalaw on the Thazi-Taunggyi road.

British officers said the renewed Japanese attacks on the lower Sittang bend were designed to keep the Allies occupied on this southerly 10-mile sector of the Sittang front while enemy units to the north attempted to escape over the river.

Fighting in this area flared into a series of small-scale but ferocious enemy attacks, often resulting in hand-to-hand combat with bayonets in deep mud and knife-sharp elephant grass growing shoulder-high.

This battle area is the corridor through which the British 14th Army advanced on Rangoon, and through which run the main road and railway linking Mandalay and Rangoon. Fighting has ranged along 140 miles of the corridor from Pegu north to Pyinmana.

Spitfires yesterday bombed and strafed Japanese troops and positions in the Nyaungkashe-Myitkyi sector, and other planes on the preceding day sank or damaged four river craft.

The Japanese were trying to cross the Sittang in groups of 500 or smaller. The RAF said that in one twenty-day period Spitfires destroyed 75 river craft and raked 300 others loaded with enemy troops and equipment.

British Are Pushed Back by Japanese

Advanced Headquarters, Southeast Asia Command, July 10 (A. P.).—British forces have withdrawn from a point on the Sittang River bend in Burma before the fury of artillery-supported attacks by cornered Japanese, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Headquarters announced today.

The British troops, including wounded, withdrew from Nyaungkashe, twenty-five miles east-northeast of Pegu, where 7,000 Japanese believed to be in the bend area have been striking bitterly in an apparent attempt to escape eastward to Thailand.

HUNGRY NAZI SUB CREW SURRENDERS

MAR-DEL-PLATA, Argentine, July 10 — (AP) A 700-ton Nazi U-boat which apparently had cruised the Atlantic for 18 weeks surfaced today inside the Mar-Del-Plata breakwater within sight of a few startled Argentines and surrendered to the commandant of this submarine base.

Her bemedalled young commander, Otto Wermoutt, and his hungry crew of 54 clambered from the submarine to an Argentine tender at 7:30 a.m., (Eastern War time) and handed over a small handbag containing the U-boat's insignia. All were placed under custody.

Argentine authorities closed the port area shortly after the submarine appeared. Wermoutt and his crew were reported reduced to "dire hunger."

U-BOAT GIVES UP TO ARGENTINE NAVY

Mar Del Plata, Argentina, July 10 (A. P.).—A 700-ton German U-boat commanded by Otto Wermoutt and carrying a complement of fifty-four men surrendered to the Argentine naval authorities at this submarine base today. All were placed under custody.

Wermoutt surrendered to the commandant of the submarine base. Naval authorities closed the port area to the public shortly after the German craft appeared in the harbor. The Naval Ministry's first communique gave few details of the surrender and did not mention the submarine's number.

Crowds gathered to see the U-boat, whose brownish sides were discolored by the long journey. It was indicated that the craft had cruised eighteen weeks and was surrendering only because the crew was unable to touch a friendly port or meet a friendly ship and had at last exhausted its provisions.

The commander appeared to be in his twenties. He brought the submarine into port submerged, surfacing well within the breakwater. The U-boat floated to the side of the Argentine submarine tender Belgrano. Vermoutt, wearing numerous decorations, climbed aboard the tender and delivered the commander a small handbag containing the U-boat's insignia.

Where the U-boat has been since Germany surrendered two months ago was not immediately explained. Allied radios flashed orders on May 8 to all German surface and undersea craft to head for the nearest Allied ports. Two weeks later Allied Navies were still searching the Atlantic for from twelve to fifteen Nazi submarines still at large.

PRESIDENT USING CRUISER AUGUSTA

Mr. Truman Tanned and Rested, as Historic Ship Crosses Atlantic.

(Editor's Note:—The following is the first dispatch from the ship bearing President Truman to the big three meeting. Ernest B. Vaccaro, Associated Press White House correspondent at Washington, is one of three reporters in the Presidential party. Transmitted by naval communications, the story was released by the White House).

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

ABOARD CRUISER AUGUSTA, July 10—(AP) President Truman sped through placid mid-Atlantic waters today enroute to Potsdam for a "Big Three" meeting he hopes may speed victory over Japan as well as chart the course for permanent European peace.

A battle-tested warship is carrying the President to the sessions with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin—talks which may help shape the course of history for generations.

The vessel is part of a two-cruiser task force, under the command of Rear Admiral Allan R. McCann.

The Presidential party, which includes James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, and Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's Chief of Staff, will fly from the port of debarkation to the Berlin area. Mr. Truman will use the big C-54 luxury liner in which he traveled to the United Nations conference at San Francisco.

Captain James H. Foskett commands the ship carrying the President. The other cruiser is commanded by Captain Robert L. Boller.

(In Washington, the Navy said Foskett commands the U.S.S. Augusta and Boller the U.S.S. Philadelphia. Foskett's home is Strafford, Pa.; Boller's at Bremerton, Wash., and McCann's home is North Adams, Mass.)

(The Augusta was the scene of an historic meeting between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in Atlantic waters in August, 1941.

It was then that they drew up the series of memoranda now known to the world as the Atlantic Charter.)

Atlantic Calm

Tanned and apparently in tip top physical condition, President Truman is cruising toward his first conference with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill through mid Atlantic waters as placid as those of a mill pond in his native Missouri.

Wearing a sporty cap cocked jauntily on the side of his head, the President seems to feel the peace of his journey may augur well for the outcome of the rendezvous in mid July in Potsdam, on the outskirts of conquered Berlin.

Primarily, the meeting will concern the laying of the groundwork for the peace treaty with Germany, including settlement of boundary, reparations, occupational, rehabilitation and other questions.

The President left Washington last Friday night by train, sailing the next day from the army port of embarkation dock, Newport News, Va., on a journey which may cover in excess of 10,000 miles by the time he returns to the White House.

Mr. Truman gave his approval today to a direct report from shipboard on his trip. Correspondents of the three news services and a representative of the radio networks accompanied him.

In the presidential party are Brig. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan and Captain James K. Vardaman, his military and naval aids; Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, H. Freeman Matthews, director of the State department's office of European affairs; Charles E. Bohlen, the department's Russian expert; Benjamin V. Cohen of Byrnes' staff and Capt. Alphonse McMahon, a naval surgeon assigned to look after the health of the party.

The smallest staff ever to accompany a President to such a conference, they will be joined in Germany by Joseph E. Davies, special presidential emissary, and officials of the War Navy and State departments.

Generals to Attend

The understanding is that General of the Army George C. Marshall, chief of staff, and Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King chief of naval operations, and possibly General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air forces, also will sit in on the conferences.

Starting with his arrival at Newport News, when he left his train for the admiral's cabin on the ship, the President has been up and about every day no later than 6 a. m.

He spends several hours each day with Byrnes and other members of his staff, going over conference papers and reports from the Pacific battlefronts.

The Chief Executive is in constant radio communication with the White House by high speed transmitters.

The President spent most of Saturday on deck, chatting with Byrnes, reporters and others in his party about architecture, particularly capitol domes, and seemed to enjoy the calm weather and bright sun. In the evening he viewed a movie.

Attends Church Services

Sunday, he attended a general Protestant service in his shirtsleeves, sitting with the sailors. He spent the rest of the day dozing and relaxing.

Bright and early Monday, looking fit as an athlete, President Truman led correspondents on a strenuous tour of inspection, ascending and descending ladders with an agility which belied his 61 years.

The President went from the hot boiler room level to the highest control towers. He made a thorough job of it.

The President looked over the giant engines, the kitchen facilities, living quarters of officers and crew, and the air conditioned sick bay, where he chatted with ailing seamen.

"I hope you get better," he told one youth. "It looks to me like you are getting pretty good care."

The presence of the big guns on the warship and an escort vessel offered a grim reminder that the United States still is at war, though on the other side of the world.

Today the President, an artillery captain in World War I, watched gunnery practice.

All plans for the Potsdam conference are described as tentative, including reports of a visit to London. Even the mode of the President's return to the United States is yet to be determined.

(The heavy cruiser Augusta was built at the Newport News, Va., Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company and commissioned Jan. 30, 1931. She was flagship of the Atlantic fleet in 1941. The light cruiser Philadelphia was built at the Philadelphia Navy yard and commissioned Sept. 13, 1937. She was one of the Brooklyn class of seven ships).

WANTS 15-YEAR RULE IN REICH

Senator Kilgore Says Nation Still Has Much Power.

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—Senators studying Germany's war potential think the beaten nation still has so much power and will to use it that she can't be trusted for at least fifteen years.

A military sub-committee headed by Senator Kilgore (D.-W. Va.) found in a preliminary report based on trips abroad and testimony of two weeks hearings here that Germany still has:

"The world's third strongest industrial economy . . . tremendous recuperative power . . . a world wide network of economic and political reserves penetrating other nations . . . the science of aggression perfected by her leading industrialists, militarists and politicians to reverse the decisions of the battlefield."

The committee recommended that United States representatives on the Allied Control Commission report to Congress every three months on the progress of steps to disarm Germany and keep her industrial machine working only on normal peacetime output. After five years the reports should be on an annual basis for fifteen years, the committee said.

"Germany in defeat remains a major threat to the peace of the world and is better prepared to implement her plot for world conquest than she was at the end of world war I," Kilgore said.

The committee said that Germany still possesses the second largest steel industry in the world, 40 per cent of the output of chemical nitrogen—base of explosives—and the ability to turn out 100,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually.

Two Million Bomb Tons Smash Axis

Army Air Forces Figure Total Since Beginning Of War—Second Half Of Amount Unloaded Within Nine Months.

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—The Army Air Forces figured today its planes have hit the Axis with 2,000,000 tons of bombs since the war began.

It's a form of applied mathematics the enemy understands painfully well.

Those 2,000,000 tons are 4,000,000,000 pounds, each pound capable of death and destruction.

String Across Country

Allowing 12 bombs to a truck, it would take a string of trucks standing bumper to bumper from Boston to San Francisco to carry them. There were some 10,000,000 bombs in all, of varying size.

The 2,000,000th ton was dropped yesterday by the Superfortress "Going Jessie" in the five-way Superfortress attack on industrial cities of the Japanese home island of Honshu. The skipper of the "Going Jessie" was Capt. John D. Fleming of Columbia, Tenn.

It took 34 months to drop the first million tons on Axis targets. The second million was unloaded in nine months.

The tonnage of bombs dropped in June against all Japanese targets by the AAF was five times the 10,503 tons dropped on them in June, 1944.

Other Figures Listed

The Japanese homeland itself was hit by the 100,000th ton of bombs on July 4.

Some other AAF figures:

AAF bombers and fighters flew more than 2,300,000 sorties. This means that the equivalent of about 1,800 aircraft have been put into the air each day since Pearl Harbor.

The planes flew a total of more than 19,700,000 hours and used more than 3,100,000,000 gallons of gasoline.

AAF planes have destroyed more than 40,000 enemy aircraft in all theaters and damaged at least 18,000 others. In the Japanese war alone, AAF planes have sunk a total of more than 2,318,000 tons of shipping.

Entirely separate totals are being built up by navy aviation headquarters.

MOVE TO CURB TROOP USE HIT BY VANDENBERG

He Pounces on Millikin's Hint That Authority Be Reserved to Congress.

CITES RIGHTS OF PRESIDENT

Connally Tells Critic of Charter to Offer Amendments if He Can Get the Votes.

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) pounced hotly today on the first hint of a move to write troop-use reservations into the United Nations Charter. Vigorously he declared that Congress should have nothing to say about the employment of troops ordered by the Security Council.

30.24 28281

The question was raised by Senator Millikin (R.-Col.) the most searching inquisitor thus far at the Foreign Relations Committee's hearings, which went into their second day. Millikin asked repeatedly whether it would violate the charter for the United States, say the President or Congress, to reserve its judgment in each instance rather than vote full permission for the Security Council to order troops into action when an act of agression threatens the peace.

"If we require the consent of Congress for the use of troops, it would violate not only the spirit of the charter but the Constitution of the United States," Vandenberg asserted.

"The President has the right to employ troops. It has been used seventy-two times in 150 years. We are merely writing into the charter the constitutional practices of 150 years. The President has had the right to use the Armed Forces in the national interest and that is a complete analogy with this charter."

Millikin Would Meet Issue Now.

Millikin said that raises the question of the ultimate authority of the American delegate, and, he asked, "Is it not time to meet that issue head-on now, not when the implementing statutes come up?" Chairman Connally disagreed sharply, and on the question of such reservations he told Millikin that he has the right to offer any reservations "if you can get the votes."

Millikin said he was not attempting to debate, but was simply asking questions. The exchange occurred while the committee was questioning Dr. Leo Pasvolsky, State Department expert on the United Nations treaty. Pasvolsky told Millikin that, if the Security Council would not know in advance what it could count on in the way of troops from the United States, "the purpose of the whole treaty would be defeated."

Earlier Senator Brooks (R.-Ill.) interrupted Paslovsky's testimony to ask why the San Francisco conference "avoided" spelling out the terms of aggression.

Definition Omitted on Purpose.

"This is a change in the usual practice in drawing up international agreements, isn't it?" the Illinois Senator asked.

Pasvolsky, testifying before a meager audience in the committee's second day of hearings, replied that a definition of aggression was left out deliberately because the conference had failed to find an all-embracing designation.

Chairman Connally broke in to say that if the delegates had attempted to tabulate all kinds of aggression, "we probably would have excluded, inevitably, some circumstance that would be an act of aggression." It was wiser, he said he thought, to leave the interpretation to each individual case in the light of all of the circumstances surrounding it.

Brooks protested that the Mexico City conference had drawn "an elaborate definition" of aggression in the Act of Chapultepec. Senator White of Maine, the Republican leader, noted, however, that the language used in the charter in this case was the same as employed in the Dumbarton Oaks agreements.

Proposal by Burton.

Senator Burton (R.-Ohio) told the witness he thought the charter would be much stronger if the Security Council were permitted to make recommendations for the peaceful settlement of international disputes on a simple majority basis in all cases. The Ohio Senator pointed out that if one of the Big Five—the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China and France—is a party to a dispute, it cannot vote on any peaceful settlement issue. If none of the Big Five is involved, however, all must vote affirmatively before the council can propose any settlement.

"Why is it so important that a major nation have the right to veto the terms of a peaceful settlement in which it is not concerned?" Burton demanded. Pasvolsky replied that a recommendation concurred in by the Big Five would carry much more weight than a peaceful settlement proposal on which they were divided.

HOUSE COMMITTEE WANTS ITALY IN UNITED NATIONS

WASHINGTON, July 10—(AP) The House Foreign Affairs committee started governmental wheels turning today toward accepting Italy into the United Nations family.

The committee approved a resolution which asks the President to "use his good offices" to that end. If Italy becomes a signatory to the United Nations agreement she will, automatically, take on the status of a full ally.

The State department gave the move virtual approval through a letter from Joseph C. Grew, acting secretary, which informed the committee the resolution "is in keeping with the spirit of our policy" toward our one-time enemy.

The resolution, sponsored by Rep. Marcantonio (AL-N.Y.) says: "Resolved (by Congress) that the President of the United States be, and is hereby, requested to use his good offices to the end that the United Nations invite Italy to be a signatory to the United Nations agreement of January, 1942."

The committee action merely sent the resolution to the floor of the House. It must be acted upon by the House and Senate before it can become operative, and even then it is not binding upon the President. The resolution serves merely as a congressional expression.

Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) of the committee said it now is considering means to get rehabilitation work started in Italy. He told reporters the country's peculiar status requires special consideration of relief measures to follow in the wake of the Army's occupation.

Italy, in her present status, is not eligible for lend-lease. An arrangement has been worked out, however, whereby lend-lease funds can be transferred to the Army and used to aid Italy as an Army expenditure.

HAS ASSURANCE BY ARGENTINA

Grew Receives Pledges From Ibarra Garcia.

Washington, July 10 (A. P.),—Oscar Ibarra Garcia, Argentine Ambassador, today presented Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew with what he called a reaffirmation of Argentina's desire "to co-operate fully with the United States."

The Ambassador said he delivered this official reassurance to Grew on cabled instructions from his Government during a lengthy visit at the State Department in which he and Grew conducted what he termed a general review of United States-Argentine relations.

Ibarra Garcia disclosed that topics discussed included the treatment of United States newspaper correspondents in Buenos Aires, but said no decisions had been reached on that matter.

The Ambassador also said he had told Grew of his plans to return to Argentina for a brief visit within the next few days. He will inform his Government on results of the United Nations conference at San Francisco and also plans to pick up some of his belongings which will assist him in installing himself permanently in the Washington embassy.

When appointed Ambassador to the United States little more than two months ago, he had to leave Buenos Aires in a hurry and thus was unable to bring with him a number of necessary things, he explained.

Ibarra Garcia said he discussed the United Nations meeting with Grew and measures necessary for fulfillment of the decisions made at San Francisco. He predicted the Argentine government would speed up ratification of the United Nations charter and said it "would be possible" to complete ratification before national elections scheduled for November.

'CLOSED SHOP' ISSUE REVIVED

Committee Majority Assails Rankin's Veteran Plan

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) hit a snag in his own Veterans' Committee today in his fight for legislation to waive "closed-shop" regulations for war veterans.

Although the committee last Friday approved the chairman's bill to permit veterans to work anywhere without joining a union or paying union dues, a majority of its members assailed the legislation today.

Last week's committee action, they said privately, was taken without full consideration and with more than half of the members absent.

"Minority" Is Majority

The eleven who signed a "minority report" represent a majority of the 21-member committee, and one of them, Representative Scrivner (R., Kan.), said several more signers could be obtained.

As is customary, no one signed the "majority report" which Rankin filed with the House yesterday as committee chairman. In it, the Mississippian asserted the legislation was necessary to prevent the exaction of union fees and dues from veterans desiring to work in industries covered by union contracts.

"The enactment of this measure will insure to our returning service men the enjoyment of the 'first freedom'—that is, the freedom to work for their daily bread, without paying tribute," Rankin added.

Law May Be Unnecessary

The six Republicans and five Democrats who signed the "minority report" said there was "every reason to hope and believe" that conferences between representatives of Government, labor and industry could "meet the challenge facing them" and work out veterans' job problems without legislation.

The signers were Representatives Engle (D., Cal.), Stigler (D., Okla.), Huber (D., Ohio), Green (D., Pa.), Carnahan (D., Mo.), Rogers (R., Mass.), Cunningham (R., Iowa), Bennett (R., Mo.), Auchincloss (R., N.J.), Ramey (R., Ohio) and Scrivner (R., Kan.).

The split in the committee was expected to force postponement of House consideration of the legislation until at least next fall.

OWI Director Admits Story About Midwest 'Inaccurate'

JUL 11 1945

WASHINGTON, July 10 — (AP) The Office of War Information will undertake, Director Elmer Davis promised today, to set Russia straight on the economic life of midwestern America.

Davis conceded that a description of eight prairie and mountain states in an OWI publication circulated in Russia and containing the assertion that "industry is almost non-existent" there "presented an unfair and inaccurate picture."

In a letter to the Wichita, Kan., Chamber of Commerce—which protested the story carried in the first issue of OWI's picture magazine "America Illustrated" — Davis said he regretted the "error."

Davis said he was sending a similar letter to the Omaha Chamber of Commerce which had said the article "implies that the midwest is a drought stricken, poverty-ridden territory with little hope of economic salvation."

Earlier, Davis told a reporter the article was "badly written, was a badly done piece, carried misstatements and will be corrected in a later issue."

At OWI it was said that the writer, who was not identified, no longer was identified with the agency, but that his departure was not connected with the protested article.

Rep. Stefan (R-Neb) said in a House speech today he was sending to the OWI "accurate information on life in the mid-west."

The story concerned Kansas, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado and Utah. It was criticized yesterday by Reps. Hope and Rees, Kansas Republicans.

In this letter to the Wichita Chamber of Commerce, Davis said: "This article was entitled 'Profile of America' and was an attempt to show the Russian people the diversity and variety of the American scene.

"It described the various regions of the country fairly, for the most part. x x x

Had to Meet Deadline

"However, in the haste to get the first issue of this magazine out at the end of last year, material on the prairie and mountain states was inadvertently drawn from outdated sources, and presented an unfair and inaccurate picture because it did not take account of the development of war industries and wartime agriculture in your great section of the country.

"The Office of War Information regrets any such error in its publications, and regrets it particularly when such an error seems to reflect upon an area which has been of such wartime service to the entire United Nations cause."

GI'S' SENTENCE RAISES QUERY

Senator Intervenes For Two Privates In China

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Senator McMahon (D., Conn.) disclosed tonight he has intervened in the case of two army privates in China who wrote they were condemned to execution for the death of a Chinese woman after an altercation with villagers.

McMahon said he informed Robert Patterson, Under Secretary of War, about it after he learned of it June 14 and that Patterson had radioed to China for a complete report which is awaited.

The soldiers are Private John V. Brennan, of West Hartford, Conn., and Private James Cooper, of Norwood, Ohio. Brennan's letter to an aunt, delivered to McMahon by the soldier's family priest, related they were court-martialed late in May and sentenced to be shot.

Trouble Over Water Buffalo

Brennan's letter, McMahon said, told of the soldiers mounting a water buffalo at a Chinese village "intending to take a ride and have a little fun." The villagers ran after them and tried to pull them from the animal's back. The soldiers resisted but a 71-year-old woman succeeded in pulling Brennan off and he fell on her, McMahon continued.

Brennan said the woman died three hours later. Two peasants testified the soldiers beat the people on the ground, the letter added, but this he and Cooper denied. He quoted a doctor as saying the woman could not have died from crushing or slapping, the Senator said.

Cooper's wife, McMahon said, is in Washington, and called on Senator Taft (R., Ohio) today.

Department Awaits Report

Cooper's case was laid before the War Department June 16. It was understood a letter describing it was passed along by Ohio officials.

The department said yesterday, with reference to Cooper, that "full information in referenceto his court-martial is en route here by courier mail [carried by an officer], and should be received wtihin the next few days." It wa sassumed the Brennan report accompanied it.

Cooper wrote two letters to Ohio June 26 and 28 telling of the death sentence and complaining he had no interpreter.

It was assumed the death sentences have not been carried out since a review in Washington is customary.

McMahon said he had not disclosed his investigation until now because the news until recently has been kept from Brennan's mother.

BLACK MARKETS IN FOOD FACE NEW ATTACKS

Anderson, OPA and House Group Move to Cut Illegal Supply

JUL 11 1945

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—New Government crackdowns on food black marketeers impended from three directions today.

Clinton P. Anderson, new Secretary of Agriculture, let it be known that he is joining forces with the OPA for that purpose. At the same time the House Food Investigating Committee promised to investigate and expose illicit operations that menace the nation's diet.

A ranking official in Anderson's department said that the new Cabinet officer already has had several conferences with Price Administrator Chester Bowles and his OPA lieutenants.

The objective, said the official who asked that his name not be used, was an attempt to plug up the holes and gaps that give rise to the black market.

Extending Poultry Program.

Anderson, he said, also is taking steps to spread the poultry procurement program now concentrated principally in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. Under this arrangement the areas in which poultry is set aside for Government use would be extended westward to ease the burden on Eastern States.

In another move Anderson announced last night that regulations are being prepared to permit non-federally inspected slaughterers to comply with the so-called Patman amendment of the recently extended price control act so as to permit them to ship meat across State lines and to sell to the armed forces. About one-third of the meat now being processed is handled by such packers.

Representative Pace (D.-Ga.), who succeeded Anderson as chairman of the food committee, disclosed the group's plans to hit at black markets in commenting on an outline of committee objectives, including a policy of feeding America first.

"The committee will investigate and expose black market operations and submit suggestions for combating this menace, which is not only greatly increasing the cost to you, but denies the people an equal share of the limited supply," Pace said. He added that the committee would investigate all cases of waste, spoilage and excess purchases by different agencies.

Pace said that the group thinks the Army ought to have first call on food, but that thereafter the next claim rightfully belongs to the American people.

Mexican Butchers Protest.

Mexico City, July 10 (A. P.).—Mexico City butcher shops closed yesterday in protest against a meat distributors' monopoly.

The butchers say that the monopoly, called the Meat Providers Company, is not bringing enough cattle to Mexico City for slaughtering, and ask an open market.

The butchers contend that they cannot adhere to ceiling prices under the conditions. In some cases tenderloin steak, the ceiling on which is 30½ cents a pound, has retailed for as much as 90 cents.

A few meat shops did not join the strike. Others opened early in the day to liquidate their stock, then closed.

Butchers estimated that 600 head of cattle are being slaughtered daily in this city, while normal consumption is 900.

BIG WHEAT CROP, LIVESTOCK GRAIN PRODUCTION DOWN

Hopes of Expansion of Livestock Production Are Blasted by Report.

HAY OUTLOOK GOOD

Corn Crop Expected to Be Only Slightly Above 10 Year Average.

WASHINGTON, July 11 — (AP) Government hopes of a sharp expansion in livestock production next year were blasted today by an official crop report indicating that production of livestock feed grains may be the smallest of the war.

This year's grain will form the bulk of the livestock feed supply for the greater part of 1946.

The report, issued by the Agriculture department, said the total production of all feed grains—corn, oats and grain sorghums—is now indicated to be the smallest since 1941. A bumper yield will be needed to permit expansion in hog numbers, larger production of poultry and feeding of beef cattle to heavier weights.

On the basis of conditions on July 1, the vital corn crop was forecast at 2,685,328,000 bushels or 543,605,000 bushels less than last year's record crop. A crop of the size indicated would be only slightly larger than the 10 year (1934-43) average of 2,433,060,000 bushels. Corn is the backbone of the livestock industry. Unfavorable weather during the planting season has cut down production prospects.

Near Record Hay Crop

The prospective short crop of feed grains may be offset in part by a near record harvest of hay—which is used principally as winter roughage for cattle, particularly milk cows. Likewise, farmers are able to conserve on present feed grain supplies because current pasture and range conditions, except in the drought-stricken southwest, were said to be in good condition.

Food grain production, on the other hand, may be the largest ever produced. The department said the wheat crop may break all records. It was estimated 1,128,690,000 bushels compared with 1,078,647,000 harvested last year and with the ten-year average of 789,080,000. The indicated wheat crop included 834,180,000 for winter wheat, 27,217,000 for durum and 267,284,000 for other spring varieties.

In an analysis of overall prospects on July 1, the department said crop production for the whole country will be below the record crops of 1942 and 1944, but well above average. The production of livestock products likewise will be below last year. The department said cool weather over most of the country during June slowed down plant development and further retarded maturity.

Despite the unfavorable outlook for livestock and feed grains the production picture for several important food crops was more favorable than a year ago. Big Crops of potatoes, vegetables, several fruits and a record rice crop were forecast, A large tobacco crop was said to be in the making. A large increase in the acreage of flaxseed, a source of vegetable oil needed for war and industrial uses, was indicated.

The department said the total crop area in cultivation on July 1 was 350,000,000 acres, or only about 1,375,000 less than last year's harvested acreage.

Sugar Production Up

Domestic production of sugar—one of the shortest food items—may be about 25 per cent greater than last year's below-normal crop. However, this country depends upon foreign sources for more than two thirds of its sugar supply. These sources have less sugar than a year ago.

The aggregate production for the eight major deciduous fruits—apples, peaches, pears, grapes, cherries, plums, prunes and apricots—may be 13 per cent below last year and 3 per cent below the 10-year average. Very short crops of apples and sour cherries will be offset in part by large crops of peaches, pears, grapes and prunes.

The department said it now appears that production of commercial truck crops for the fresh market may be equal to or slightly exceed the record 1944 tonnage. The acreage of important vegetable crops planted for canning and processing is now indicated to be about two per cent greater than last year.

The department said this year's production of dry edible beans, dried peas and sweet potatoes now seems likely to be smaller than last year.

Meat Production Drops 16%, U.S. Reports

Chicago, July 10 (AP)—Meat production in federally inspected plants last week—interrupted by the July 4 holiday—totaled 237,000,000 pounds, a drop of sixteen per cent from the 282,000,000 pounds the preceding week, the War Meat Board announced today. Production was 266,000,000 pounds for the corresponding 1944 week.

Meat production for the week in millions of pounds, compared with the preceding week and the corresponding 1944 week: Beef, 109; 129; 96. . . . Veal 10; 12; 14. . . . Lamb and mutton, 15; 17; 14. . . . Pork (including lard), 103; 124; 142.

SEAMEN PROTEST SLASH IN BONUS

WASHINGTON, July 10 — (AP) Pickets were posted before war shipping administration headquarters today as part of a demonstration voted by the National Maritime Union, C.I.O., against a scheduled reduction in seamen's wartime bonuses.

Carrying placards protesting "wage cuts," the pickets strolled before one entrance of the huge commerce department building housing the office of Admiral Emory S. Land, war shipping administrator.

In New York, Howard McKenzie, chairman of the NMU negotiating committee, said picketing is under way three and in Philadelphia, Boston, Charleston, S. C., Norfolk, Va., Mobile, Ala., New Orleans, Houston, Tex., Galveston, Tex., San Pedro, Calif., and San Francisco, cities having WSA offices.

The bonus cut was ordered effective next Sunday by the Maritime war emergency board. The board is not a part of the WSA and Land is not a member of it, but Charles Gannaway, a union official, declared Land could stop the reduction.

Neither Land nor the WSA commented.

The token picket line, which did its work quietly and made no attempt to interfere with persons moving in and out of the building, carried one placard which said:

"We have not struck, we will not strike, we'll keep them sailing, but don't let Admiral Land torpedo us with wage cuts while we're carrying war materials to your boys."

CIO MEN QUIT WLB SESSION

Group Walks Out Of Agency's Hearing On Strike

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Representatives of the CIO Rubber Workers Union walked out of a War Labor Board hearing today on a strike at the Firestone plants at Akron, Ohio, after a stormy exchange with Chairman George W. Taylor.

The walkout was in direct protest against the calling of plant committeemen as witnesses. Earlier Taylor had lectured union representatives on their wartime "obligations," and the latter charged the board with "dereliction of duty."

To Report To Strikers

Union officers announced at the conclusion of the hearing that, although making no promises, they would lay before the 16,000 striking workers at the Firestone plants not later than Friday the board's return-to-work request and all that took place at today's proceedings.

The strike began July 2 over union demands for a union shop and dues checkoff and other issues. The union refused to obey a WLB order to return to work pending negotiations, and last Friday the board called today's hearing.

Penalties Demanded

The board demanded that the union show cause why the strike should not be ended and vacation and shift premiums and maintenance of membership withdrawn from the employes as penalties for striking.

Max W. Johnstone, union attorney, defended the strike as a "legal" one which the workers had a right to vote under the Labor Disputes Act. He declared it resulted from a "breakdown in government machinery," and that 170 issues still were unsettled, and that Firestone started rate-cutting long before victory in Europe "without a single iota of censure by the Government."

Obligations Cited

JUL 1

Seizing on Johnston's remarks about union rights, Chairman Taylor asserted that in these times, "I think all of us, when we think of our jobs, realize that our obligations continue to overshadow our rights.

"The whole basis of the industrial relations program is a voluntary no-strike pladge, where free labor stepped up and said, 'Forget about our rights for the time being; our first obligation is to see that there are no strikes during wartime.'"

HOSPITAL BAN ON EX-GI O.K.'D

Walter Reed Backs Doctor Who Barred Former Marine

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Walter Reed Hospital authorities upheld today a decision by a hospital medical officer against admitting a former Marine for treatment in the army institution.

The hospital action July 4 prompted Representative Gearhart (R., Cal.) to ask the House Military Committee to investigate.

Maj. Gen. Shelley U. Marietta, commanding general of the army medical center, said an investigation disclosed no evidence of neglect of duty or inadequacy of present policy in the case of the veteran, who was described by friends as suffering from a sudden recurrence of combat fatigue.

General Marietta's statement said the medical officer did not consider the man's condition serious enough to be an emergency case, which was the only way he could be received under Government policy.

The officer suggested it would be advantageous to take him to Mount Alto Veterans' Hospital, the statement said.

The statement added that the medical officer's professional decision was vindicated by the fact that the veteran, Wallace Reid, was discharged from Mount Alto the following day after a night's rest, and resumed his school work.

Reid was said to have been upset by the noise of Fourth of July fireworks.

TOLL SUIT FOUGHT BY WESTCHESTER

County Asks Court to Bar Any Future Taxpayer Actions Against Parkway Fees

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 10—Now that Westchester County, the State and the Federal Government have agreed to tolls on Westchester's Hutchinson River and Saw Mill River Parkways, no taxpayer has legal cause or justifiable reason to complain about the levies, special counsel for the county contended here today in Supreme Court.

The argument was made by William F. Bleakley in moving before Justice Charles W. U. Sneed for judgment against two taxpayers who are suing to invalidate the Westchester toll bill. The plaintiffs are Martin Colodny of Jamaica, Queens, and Elmer E. Bogart of Mount Vernon, members of the Automobile Club of New York.

30.74 28283

Mr. Bleakley said the county spent $10,759,132 to build the Hutchinson and $14,086,863 to construct the Saw Mill. This differed from the procedure in other counties of the State, which received State aid for parkways, he contended. The parkways here are used 90 per cent by non-residents, he added.

The toll bill, he pointed out, provides that Westchester is to return the $2,361,502 Federal money used for extensions of the two parkways. The bill, passed early this year by the Legislature, is to become operative next February.

Joseph F. Murray, counsel for the plaintiffs, contended that the bill violated the State Constitution by embracing more than one subject and that no valid agreement concerning tolls existed with the Federal Government. Violations of the Federal Constitution also were charged.

Mr. Murray said the Legislature never realized the true purport of the bill, that misleading language was used in it, that provisions for repayment of the Federal money were vague, and that to permit the tolls would be turning history back to the days when the English levied taxes even on the windows of a

7TH LOAN TOPS 26 BILLIONS

Quota Doubled; Total Exceeds That Of Any Other Drive

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Final figures in the Seventh War Loan showed tonight that America piled up the fabulous, all-time record amount of $26,313,000,000, nearly double the $14,000,000,000 quota.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., announced the final results in what he called his "valedictory" speech as Secretary of the Treasury.

The E-bond goal of $4,000,000,000 was narrowly missed, sales totaling $3,976,000,000. But this was above any other drive. The previous E-bond record was $3,187,000,000 in the Fourth War Loan early in 1944.

Sales to individuals were $8,681,000,000, compared with a quota of $7,000,000,000.

Morgenthau Thanks All

Morgenthau, speaking over the radio, thanked all war-bond workers for their co-operation throughout seven bond drives and declared:

"I know that your co-operation will be continued with the same devotion and zeal under the able leadership of my successor, Judge Fred Vinson. There is still a titanic task before us."

Morgenthau resigned his post last Thursday, but will not leave the Cabinet until President Truman returns from Europe.

Morgenthau said he took pride in the knowledge the war has been financed by wholly democratic means. He said "there has been no resort at any time to coercion or intimidation or social pressure."

He said the war bond program stands as "a powerful bulwark to the economy of this nation." The savings of the American people, he said, have played an indispensable part in averting the danger of inflation, and will provide "an invaluable backlog of mass buying power to start civilian production on its way."

Economy Kept Sound

"The economy of the United States has been kept sound and secure, so that the men who fought for us overseas can return to a land of opportunity."

Before this drive, which ended June 30, the record for sales was $21,621,000,000 in the Sixth War Loan last winter.

A new record for individual sales also was set, since the greatest previous total was $6,351,000,000.

Sales to corporations totaled $17,632,000,000. The highest previous corporate investments were $15,739,000,000. The corporation quota in t[illegible]ive just ended was set at [illegible],000,000.

URGES POST-WAR POOL OF LIBERTY VESSELS

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—The United States Maritime Commission said today that Vice Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the commission, had recommended that Liberty ships totaling upward of 15 million tons be retained by the Government and kept in repair after the war as safeguards against future emergencies.

While considered the least desirable among United States merchant ships, Liberties are satisfactory bulk cargo carriers and it would be cheaper to keep these in repair than build new ones in an emergency, a commission spokesman said.

He said Admiral Land had also recommended that Liberties in excess of this tonnage damaged beyond practical repair should be dismantled and sold "piecemeal" for higher recovery.

He also declared that "no consideration is being given to an alleged proposal that Washington will require alien shipping interests wishing to lease 'C' type cargo-passenger or Victory Ships to also lease a fixed number of Liberty Ships."

"This stipulation is not in the Bland merchant ship disposal bill now before Congress, and the chairman of the commission will stick to the decision of Congress," the spokesman added.

Representative Bland of Virginia, author of the bill, said he had no knowledge of the "horse-trading" report.

U. S. Will Sell Planes On Installment Plan

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP).—Transport planes now can be bought from the government on the installment plan.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which has the job of getting rid of surplus planes, announced that the new method will apply to all transport planes having a gross weight of 5,000 pounds and over.

Purchasers will be required to make a cash payment of 15 per cent of the purchase price plus the cost of insurance, about 7½ per cent. The balance must be paid in thirty-six monthly installments. Four per cent interest will be charged on the unpaid balance.

The R. F. C. said the new plan is designed to encourage the establishment of new aviation enterprises.

SABOTAGE CASES KEPT FBI BUSY

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—Of 19,396 cases of reported sabotage investigated by the FBI, not one has been found to be enemy-directed.

The Department of Justice so reported last night, adding that there were forty-five sabotage convictions during the fiscal year just ended. Also ten spies were convicted during the year, the report said. It contained no names.

Describing the year as the busiest in FBI history, the department said convictions based on FBI investigations reached a record high of 13,813. It reported that fines, savings and recoveries amounted to $16,534,436.

U. S. Relinquishes Iran Railway

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—The Army has relinquished operation of the Iranian State Railway in Iran over which United States troops moved 2,831,937 tons of lend-lease supplies for Russia, the War Department reported today. The formal transfer was made to the British, who in turn gave control to the Iranian Government.

United States Army troops took over operation of the 685-mile line from the Persian Gulf to Iran's capital city of Teheran in December, 1942. The British had been operating the road from the time of their entry into Iran in September, 1941. Under lend-lease, 180 locomotives and 5,175 freight cars were added to the railroad's rolling stock during American operation.

Congress Votes Itself New Roof for Capitol

Post-War Repair Job to Cost Nearly $1,500,000

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP).—Congress voted a new roof over its head today—but it'll be a long time coming.

And while the repairmen are about it, they're going to fix things up so Congressional orators can be seen and heard in every nook and cranny of the Senate and House chambers.

Since 1940 Congerssional deliberations have been carried on under ceilings supported by heavy steel girders and cross frames that give the legislative halls the appearance of a warehouse. The eighty-five-year-old cast iron supports were found unsafe, and it was a case of either putting in the girders or running the risk of having tons of beautifully stained glass ceiling come crashing around Congressional ears.

"These temporary steel supports present an unsightly appearance," said a conservatively worded committee report. It recommended Congress vote $861,000 to get rid of the girders and improve the acoustics and general appearance of the chambers. Alterations of the Senate chamber would bring the total cost of the project—post-war—to $1,446,000.

Sponsors of the legislation pointed out that the work can't be done until a long recess is ordered, and that's not likely while there's a war going on.

IWO JIMA STAMPS GO ON SALE TODAY

WASHINGTON, July 10—(AP) Pharmacist's mate 1-c John Bradley who helped raise the American flag on Mount Suribachi, Iwo Jima, will participate tomorrow in ceremonies opening the sale of postage stamps picturing the flag-raising.

Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan will present the first sheet of the new three-cent stamps reproducing Associated Press Photographer Joe Rosenthal's famous picture of the flag raising to Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, commandant of the Marine Corps, in the first day sale ceremony at 11 a. m., Eastern War Time. The stamp honors the Marine Corps.

In addition to Bradley, Appleton, Wis., seaman who is one of three survivors of the group of six men portrayed on the stamp, five Marine veterans of the Iwo Jima fighting will be guests at the ceremony.

Symington Wins Support

Senate Committee Approves Him for Surplus Property Post

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP).—The Senate Military Affairs Committee today approved the nomination of W. Stuart Symington, of St. Louis, to be a member of the Surplus Property Board. If confirmed by the Senate, Mr. Symington will succeed former Senator Guy M. Gillette, of Iowa, on the board which supervises disposal of government surplus property.

The committee also approved these other nominations:

Luther Deck Miller to be chief of Army chaplains with the rank of brigadier general.

Daniel I. Sultan to be inspector general of the Army with the rank af major general, succeeding Major General Virgil Lee Peterson, whose term expired Feb. 26.

William Henry Kasten to be chief of finance of the Army with the rank of major general, succeeding Major General Howard K. Loughry, whose term expired April 22.

Dr. Fu Author Finds Tax Bill Insidious

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—The Government caught up with Dr. Fu Manchu today for $1,875 in taxes.

Sax Rohmer, an Englishman and author of the Fu Manchu books, sold the American and Canadian serial rights to "The Island of Fu Manchu," to MacFadden Publications for $10,000. This was in 1940. The Treasury claimed income taxes on the amount. Rohmer said no. Today the United States Tax Court ruled against Rohmer.

Actually $1,797 of the tax already is in the hands of Uncle Sam, since it was withheld in the original payment. If Rohmer had won, he would have got this back.

OVERSEAS SHIFT

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—The Army has set next May 1 as the deadline for carrying out President Truman's pledge to Congress of overseas service for every qualified soldier who can be replaced.

A War Department order to ground, service and air forces said that all qualified officers and men who have not had at least six months of foreign duty are to be given overseas assignments as fast as returning veterans can replace them, with "special emphasis" on men under 35.

Not covered by the order are groups exempt by the War Department, enlisted men over 38 and members of families that have had two or more persons killed, taken prisoner or lost.

Per Capita Circulation Of Money Up To $191

Washington, July 10 (AP)—At the end of June there was $191.42 in circulation for each man, woman and child in the population, the Treasury announced today.

One year ago it was $162.96.

The new per capita figure was arrived at on the basis of $26,686,066,068 in circulation and an estimated population of 139,408,000. Money in circulation means all currency and coin outside the Treasury and Federal Reserve Banks.

Mrs. Truman Heads Dr[illegible]

Group Seeks to Collect 1,000,000 Books as Gift to Russia

KANSAS CITY, July 10 (AP).—Mrs. Harry S. Truman, wife of the President, has accepted honorary chairmanship of the English Classics Collection of Books for Russian War Relief, an organization which will collect books for Russia to replace those destroyed by the Nazis.

Judge Floyd L. Sperry, state-chairman, in announcing that Mrs. Truman has accepted the honorary chairmanship, said a nation-wide drive will be started immediately in an attempt to collect 1,000,000 books.

Each donated book will carry the frontispiece inscription "To the heroic people of the Soviet Union from the people of Amer[illegible] along with flags of the two nations and the donor's name and address, Judge Sperry said.

RALPH ALLEN NAMED

WASHINGTON, July 10—(AP) Ralph R. C. Allen of Cleveland, today was named vice-chairman of the War Pobduction Board's office of Metals and Minerals.

Allen formerly was executive vice president of Oglebay, Norton and Company, a Cleveland iron ore company.

He succeeds William C. Keeley of Fairfield, Conn., who has returned to his post as vice president of the Air Reduction Co., in New York city.

NEGRO OFFICER IS AWARDED DSC

WASHINGTON, July 10 — (AP) Award of the Distinguished Service Cross to a Negro officer who killed or wounded 9 Germans while single handedly knocking out three enemy machine gun nests and an observation post was announced today by the War department.

First Lieutenant Vernon J. Baker, 25, is the third Negro to receive the DSC in this war. A rifle platoon leader in the 92nd Infantry division, he is a native of Cheyenne, Wyo. His wife, Mrs. Helen S. Baker, lives at 122 10th Avenue North (Birmingham, Ala.)

Baker won the decoration last April 5th near Viareggio, Italy, with a one-man assault against enemy positions which had been holding up the advance of his battalion

The citation said he killed five Germans and killed or wounded four more.

FIVE NAZI P.W. PUT TO DEATH AS MURDERERS

German Fanatics Hanged at Fort Leavenworth in Unprecedented Action.

KILLED A FELLOW PRISONER

Courts-Martial Sentences Were Approved by Late President Roosevelt Last October.

Fort Leavenworth, Kan., July 10 (A. P.).—Five German prisoners of war, sentenced to death for the murder of a fellow prisoner, were hanged early this morning at the United States disciplinary barracks in a move unprecedented in the annals of United States military history.

The prisoners, termed fanatical Nazis by Army authorities, were convicted January 25, 1944, at Camp Gruber, Okla., for the murder of Johannes Kunze at the Tonkawa, Okla., branch compound. They were the first foreign war prisoners ever to be executed in the United States.

The executed Germans, all members of Rommel's Afrika Korps, were Walter Beyer, 32 years old, whose rank was equivalent to that of a first sergeant in the United States Army; Berthold Seidel, 30, a staff sergeant; Hans Demme, 23, sergeant; Hans Schomer, 27, sergeant, and Willi Scholz, 22, corporal

All went to their deaths clad in their German uniforms, their only request. Their last meal consisted only of the regular issued rations. Beyer, the ranking member of the group, was the first to go to the gallows. Eight guards marched the German, who wore blue leggings and blue pants, a suntan uniform coat and open-necked shirt, into a utility warehouse where Army engineers had constructed a trap door gallows in an elevator shaft. Col. William E. Eley, commandant of the disciplinary barracks, read the execution order, relayed to the prisoner through an interpreter. Asked if he had a last statement, Beyer replied:

"I can't see why this is being done to me."

All Marched Erect.

As a black hood was placed over Beyer's head Major John Sagar, post chaplain, prayed as he was marched to the gallows, where the three-foot trap was sprung at 12:06 A. M. (Central war time).

The warehouse where the executions were held was 100 yards from the "Castle," main detention building on the disciplinary section of the Fort Leavenworth Army reservation. Windows near the execution chamber were blacked out by Army blankets. The new hemp rope, nearly an inch in diameter, hung from a 9x12 rafter, about eight feet above the platform.

The other four prisoners followed at half hour intervals, the last, Willi Scholz, dropping through the trap at 2:11 A. M. All but Beyer wore blue denim prisoner of war trousers topped by uniform coats bearing their rank insignia. Only Schomer was natiess as he was led into the warehouse by the execution detail, made up of eight enlisted men. All five marched erect.

Seven newsmen were the only civilians present at the hangings. Military personnel who carried out the death sentence, included thirteen enlisted men, the chaplains, surgeon, four official witnesses and the officers of Col. Eley's staff.

Kunze was killed on November 4, 1943, after another prisoner had found a memorandum, allegedly written by the slain man, which was considered "traitorous" by Beyer, a company leader among the prisoners in the compound.

Army authorities said Beyer suspected Kunze of being the author of the so-called traitorous note and ordered all prisoners of Company Four to meet in the mess hall.

Kunze Shouted Innocence.

There he denounced Kunze, who, Army authorities said, shouted his innocence, but, they said the prisoners attacked him with their fists and in the ensuing disorder struck the victim with a milk bottle and heavy clubs. Kunze managed to escape through a side door but he was only able to stumble a short distance before falling dead.

The death sentences, imposed by the general courts-martial, were reviewed by the Judge Advocate-General and approved October 5, 1944, by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Evidence at the trial, the Army said, showed that the five men convicted were "ring leaders" of the prisoners who attacked Kunze. They were tried under the articles of war, in accordance with the same courts-martial procedure accorded American soldiers, and were convicted of violations of the eighty-ninth and ninety-second articles covering riots and premeditated murder.

Throughout the trial the "pertinent" provisions of the Geneva Convention were observed. The German Government was notified in advance of the trial and was furnished a copy of the charges on which the five prisoners were being tried. Representatives of the Swiss Government, the protecting Power in this case, attended the trials as observers, relaying notice of the verdict and sentence to the German Government following the men's conviction.

Burial Services Will Be Held For Prisoners

Medical Examination Of Pvt. Bertucci Continues.

JUL 1

FORT DOUGLAS, Utah, July 10, (AP)—Eight German prisoners of war machine-gunned to death by an American Army private will be buried Thursday with a Protestant funeral service and under a volley from U. S. Army riflemen.

Meanwhile, Fort Douglas hospital doctors today continued to examine Pvt. Clarence V. Bertucci, 23, of New Orleans, who sprayed 250 shots through a tented prison camp Sunday, wounding 20 other Germans.

Ninth Service Command officers said it could not be determined when the examination would be finished or when any decision regarding action against the soldier could be announced.

Bertucci, who has been in the Army since 1940, has given no reason for the shootings but has admitted he planned it in advance and expressed no regrets.

Prisoners Will Attend

Between 10 and 15 fellow prisoners of the dead Germans from the Salina camp 150 miles south of Salt Lake City will be allowed to attend the funeral at the Fort Douglas cemetery at 3 p. m., mountain war time.

Since all eight were Protestants, Chaplain Frank B. Edwards of Fort Douglas will read the service for all. A chorus of 20 German prisoners from the Ogden, Utah, base camp will sing, but Army authorities stressed no Nazi songs would be allowed.

Nor may swastikas or other Nazi emblems be displayed. Efforts to locate a German national flag or a Weimar republic banner have been unsuccessful.

Half a dozen Army guards from the Ogden camp will fire a volley over the graves.

Several of the wounded are still in serious condition, but Army authorities expressed hope all would recover. The rest of the Salina prisoners are at their usual jobs in the sugar beet fields.

FIRST TO LOSE HIS FOUR LIMBS

Kentucky Sergeant Stepped on Mine at Okinawa.

Battle Creek, Mich., July 10 (A. P.).—The first and thus far the only battle casualty of this war who has lost parts of both arms and legs is now a patient at Percy Jones General Hospital here.

He is Master Sergt. Fredric Hensel of Corbin, Ky., who had both legs above the knees and his left arm above the elbow blown off on Okinawa June 2 when he stepped on a Japanese land mine.

Despite desperate efforts by doctors to save his mangled right forearm, that, too, was amputated while he was en route to this country on a hospital ship.

"I'd make a good picture for propaganda against the next war," drawled the good-natured Kentuckian.

His wife, Mrs. Jewell Hensel, formerly of Corbin but now living at Salem, Ind., was on hand to greet him when he came in late Sunday night.

Miraculously, Army doctors said, Hensel is in good condition. They say he will be able to walk on artificial legs and use his new artificial arms. The sergeant hopes to be getting around in a wheelchair for his twenty-seventh birthday August 3 and his third wedding anniversary on August 12.

Brig.-Gen. Joseph E. Bastion, commanding officer at Percy Jones Hospital, one of the Army's largest amputation centers, said there has been one other quadruplicate amputee in the Army during the war but that he was not a battle casualty. He was an Army pilot who lost parts of all four extremities due to freezing after a plane crash in New England.

12,500 Amputees.

In all, there have been 12,500 amputees from the war so far and of these 5 per cent are "double amps," Gen. Bastion said. Six soldiers have lost three limbs.

For four days prior to being injured, Hensel led a detachment of men through the mine-infested clearing on Okinawa, where they were repairing vehicles to go back into battle.

On June 2 he was working on a Sherman tank and went back to headquarters for more repairs, taking another soldier with him. Realizing they were walking over dangerous ground, he ordered his companion to keep a good distance away.

They hadn't gone far when Hensel stepped on the mine. The sturdy soldier didn't lose consciousness while his companion gave him first aid, nor until medics arrived with drugs.

An orphan, Hensel has been in the Army eight years. He went overseas in March, 1944, and with a tank battalion attached to the Seventy-seventh Infantry Division served on Guam, Le, Leyte and Okinawa.

WAR PRISONERS' HONEYMOONS END

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10—(AP) Three young Italian soldiers who listened to cupid while stationed at Camp John Knight in Oakland as members of a service unit, were on their way to an Arizona prisoner of war camp tonight, leaving behind three very indignant American wives.

The brand-new husbands, brought to this country as prisoners of war, violated War department regulations by marrying girls they met here. The men are Guiseppe Bertolotti, 24; Maurizio Scorza, 22, and Frederico Mazzonchini, 23.

Records at the Antioch, Calif., Methodist church showed that Bertolotti married Mildred Circo, 26 of that city, June 3; Scorza married Norma Romeo, 23, of San Francisco, and Mazzonchini married Virginia Panfilli, 21, also of San Francisco, June 17.

"I don't think it's fair to separate us," young Mrs. Scorza stormed. "If they don't want the boys to get married, they shouldn't let them go out to dances and parties like they do.

"They're young and good looking. Of course they fall in love. What else does the Army expect?"

Army officers said the bridegrooms would likely eventually be sent back to Italy.

EISENHOWER VISITS ROOSEVELT'S GRAVE

JUL 11 1945

Hyde Park, July 10 (A. P.).—In a simple, solemn ceremony, General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower today paid tribute to his former Commander in Chief by placing a wreath on the grave of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, the Supreme Allied Commander, his head bowed, stood in silent prayer for several seconds before the unmarked grave in the garden of the ancestral Roosevelt estate.

The General's brief visit was unannounced and only a handful of the Roosevelt family and some friends witnessed the ceremony, in addition to Army officials and press and newsreel representatives.

The General arrived at the picturesque Hudson Valley estate at noon, after a plane trip from Washington. The sky was overcast and the air heavy as he strode briskly to the grave and placed a large wreath of flowers. Eisenhower stepped back a pace, removed his garrison cap, drew to attention and saluted. He and Mrs. Roosevelt then left the garden.

The five-star General was accompanied by his wife and his son, Lieut. Sheldon Eisenhower, and Brig.-Gen. George Honnen, Commandant of Cadets at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Outside the garden, Eisenhower, Mrs. Roosevelt and others posed for photographs.

Man Says He Is Son Of Pole Who Made Plea

Chicago, July 10 (AP)—Marion Kostro, 32, who lost contact with his family in Poland fifteen years ago, identified himself today as the son of Antoni Kostro, Polish soldier who asked aid of the Associated Press in finding his son "somewhere in Chicago."

Marion Kostro, married and the father of two children, said he had had no information of his family for nearly fifteen years until friends saw his father's plea in the Chicago Daily News. Letters written by his father and held by the Associated Press in New York, will be turned over after proper identification.

The elder Kostro lost touch with other members of his family shortly after the German invasion in 1939. He was interned by the Germans, but later was freed and joined the Polish Army.

Sergeant Lindsey Discharged

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., July 10 (AP).—Top Sergeant Jake William Lindsey, twenty-four, of Lucedale, Miss., the 100th infantryman of this war to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor, was discharged from the Army today with 132 points to his credit. Mr. Lindsey told officials that he was headed for Cape Cod, Mass., to pass a vacation with his bride, the former Miss Beverly Hargreaves, of Lexington, Mass., before taking one of the many jobs he has had offered to him.

3 Soldiers' Life Terms For Rape Are Approved

Men Sentenced by Courts Martial in Assault on Wac

CAMP SHELBY, Miss., July 10. (AP).—Camp Shelby authorities announced today that court martial sentences of life imprisonment given three enlisted men on charges of raping a Wac at the Mississippi ordnance plant near Flora, Miss., have been approved after military judicial review.

30.24 28285

The enlisted men were convicted at separate trials and sentenced at a general court martial at Camp Shelby early in May for an offense which occurred on the night of April 6, 1945, the Army announced today.

The defendants were listed in the Army announcement as Private Anthony J. Wincelotic, twenty-four, of 45 Elm Street Richmond, N. Y.; Private Joe Gonzales, twenty-two, of Chicago, and Private Elmer Smith, twenty-three, of Pineville, La.

MITSCHER CHEERED

PROVO, Utah, July 10—(AP) An Admiral of the U. S. Navy who imagines he is in disguise when he isn't wearing his baseball cap, stopped at a tourist court here and strolled into a restaurant unannounced.

It took only a few minutes for a crowd to gather and give an impromptu welcome to Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher.

McGee Gets Six Months

Soldier Freed in Prisoner-slapping Case Convicted on New Charges.

Fort Devens, Mass., July 10 (A. P.).—Pvt. Joe McGee, 25 years old, released once from an Army sentence for slapping German prisoners of war, in a case that attracted national attention, was sentenced today by a court-martial to serve six months at hard labor for absence without leave, drunkenness in uniform and false swearing to an affidavit.

Three Military Policemen testified that they picked the Worcester, Mass., soldier up on the morning of June 30 in that city. They said he was obviously drunk and that he resisted arrest.

Major Leon A. McCarthy, post adjutant, testified that McGee admitted in a sworn statement that he had a record of thirteen court-martial convictions before coming to Devens on charges ranging from being away without leave to drunkenness, fighting, disrespect to a superior officer, using a halftrack illegally and slapping Nazi prisoners in France.

Finds Soldier Maladjusted.

An Army psychiatrist, Major Charles A. Angelo, told the court that McGee's mental age, according to Army tests, was 11 years, 6 months. He found that the soldier had a history of maladjustment in both civilian and Army life.

McGee was sentenced by a general court-martial in France on September 7, 1944, to two years on charges of slapping German prisoners of war. He was serving time in a guardhouse at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, when a United States Representative intervened, and he was released.

McGee told the court-martial that he had been convicted four times during the last year by court-martials and admitted that he was not entitled to several decorations he wore.

He will forfeit $35 a month pay during the term of his sentence.

DRAFT HERO VETERAN

Atlanta, July 10 (A. P.).—Wounded twice in fourteen months overseas and then discharged, former First Lieut. William K. Dobson of Atlanta found himself back in khaki today—drafted as a buck private.

The greetings from his draft board came five months after his discharge last January. In the interim he had married and got his old job back with the United States Forest Service.

He's now a private at Camp Blanding, Fla., the same place he reported to when he enlisted in the Army in May, 1942. He holds the Purple Heart with one Oak Leaf Cluster and the Bronze Star Medal. Members of Dobson's draft board and Army officials declined to comment on the case.

Submarine Rescue Craft Is Launched

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 10 (AP)—The U. S. Kittiwake, first submarine rescue ship built here, was launched today at the yards of the Savannah Machine and Foundry Co.

The ship was sponsored by Mrs. Jacqueline Jones Rue of Alexandria, Va. Mrs. Rue is the daughter of the late Lt.-Comdr. Roy Kehler Jones, USN, who was killed in action, and the wife of Lt.-Comdr. Howard F. Rue, Jr., USN.

The Kittiwake was built with $3,000,000 in war bonds subscribed by the town of Taunton, Mass. Taunton was represented by Fred Dexheimer, chairman of the war bond committee; Harry Carlow, Mrs. James W. Lovenbury and Lt. Comdr. J. T. Hodgson.

SCHOONER "ANNIE G" SUNK

NEW HAVEN, July 10 — (AP) Ernest E. Ball, New Haven oyster grower, reported tonight that the schooner Annie G sank today in rough water off Bens Point, Gardners Bay, Long Island, and that her captain, Lou Reiter of Greenport, N. Y., was missing.

Reiter's brother, Ted, the only other man aboard, was rescued by an oyster boat and taken to a Greenport hospital, Ball said he was informed.

When she sank, the Annie G was carrying a shipment of 2,000 bushels of oyster shells, consigned to Ball's company.

Food Costs Reported Up 50% in Low-Salary Class

But Diets Improved, Bureau of Labor Statistics Says

CHICAGO, July 10 (AP).—Diets of city families in the lowest income groups improved during the war, but food costs rose 50 per cent for these groups in two years, John B. Parrish, Bureau of Labor Statistics regional director, said today.

The family or individual with an income of less than $1,000 a year spent $500 on food in 1942, Mr. Parrish said, and by fall, 1944, that expenditure has risen to $700. Figures were obtained from a survey of consumers' costs and buying habits made by the bureau throughout the country.

Other income groups and percentage of increases were: $1,000-$3,000, 16 per cent; $3,000-$4,000, 6 per cent; $4,000 and over, 8 per cent increase in food costs.

Amounts spent for meat, poultry and fish represented a larger share of the total at the lower incomes in 1944 than in 1942, the survey showed, and a smaller share at higher income levels.

MARITIME UNION HITS PRO-FASCIST

NEW YORK, July 10—(AP) The National Maritime Union (CIO) today urged President Truman "to institute an immediate and complete shake-up of the State department to clean out every pro-Fascist and anti-Democratic element."

In a resolution adopted at the fifth biennial convention, the union criticized the department for continuing relations with General Francisco Franco's government in Spain "in the face of ample evidence that this government has become the base in Europe for future world Fascist activity" and for "forcing the admission of Fascist Argentina" to the United Nations conference at San Francisco.

Another resolution instructed its National council to establish a war crimes commission to compile and document "the case of the American seamen against the Nazi U-boat personnel" and to present its evidence before the United Nations War Crimes commission in London.

35,000 Troops Will Arrive On Transports

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—The giant liner Queen Mary and seven other transports are scheduled to arrive tomorrow with more than 35,000 troops, greatest number to return home from Europe on any day since V-E day.

Some 7,000 Canadians, largest contingent ever to pass through the New York port of embarkation, will be aboard the Queen Mary along with 8,642 United States troops, including the 103rd General Hospital, advance units of 10 other hospitals and Eighth Air Force units.
